THE ELECTION CONTEST

In the election contest recently heard, wherein John L. Bryan, Democrat, contested the election of Mayer J. Barnett, Republican, Bryan contested and challenged the right of all railroad men and others absent from home to vote and the Court, Judge H. J. Kiker, Democrat, of Raton ruled with him and held that the law was unconstitutional, thereby throwing out more than 100 votes cast for the Republican candidate.

In precinct 1, 21 votes had been challenged and rejected by the election judges; the counting judges through error opened these envelopes and counted the ballots. To each ballot was attached a written challenge and wherein it stated that Attorney General (Robt. C. Dow, Democrat) had held that the patients at Fort Stanton could not vote. The presiding Judge held that unless Barnett would include in his offer the challenge attached to the envelope and ballot that he would rule the offer out. Attorneys for Barnett refused to accede to the Court's demand and the Judge would not receive same in evidence. The Judge had already ruled that the patients could acquire a voting residence at Fort Stanton, and to have offered the challenge would have admitted in legal effect that they were not legally thrown out. Bryan's attorneys had not alleged that these 21 were legal voters and evidence on that point would have been incompetent. Attorneys for Barnett offered in evidence these ballots and envelopes only which they had a perfect right to do and all that was required of them under the pleadings and to have forced them to offer the challenge would have had the effect of extricating the Democrats from a perilous position of losing 20 of the 21 votes, as both sides knew for whom these votes had been cast owing to a re-count of this precinct some time ago.

One of the amusing incidents was when Bryan's case had been concluded and all of Barnett's, with the exception of opening and counting some 18 ballots of sick patients of Fort Stanton, who were confined in the hospital on election day and whom the Democrats voted on Absentee Ballots (supposed to be absent from precinct — and cannot be used by sick persons in precinct.)

Bryan was permitted to re-open his case after it was apparent that Barnett would win on the rejected ballots, and it was apparent about what ratio of the 18 would be Dem. votes for Bryan. Then Porfirio Chavez, Sr., was placed on the stand by Bryan. Chavez admitted that he wrote the names of 12 persons to their applications for absentee ballots, at the request of each person, and the Court promptly held that all such ballots were illegal and took them off of Barnett's total, even though Barnett offered to show that 3 or them had not been voted at all. Then the 18 ballots were opened and found to have been voted for Bryan and 4 for Barnett and these were deducted from the respective candidates. Then attorneys for Barnett asked the presiding Judge if the case was then closed and could not be re-opened by either side for any purpose, and it was finally announced that it was closed and could not be re-opened, whereupon attorneys for Barnett moved to strike all the testimony of Chavez because the attorneys for Bryan were so eager in their attempt to get a few votes that they forgot to have him sworn when placed on the stand. The motion was denied by the Court, which, the attorneys believe a reversible error, as the law requires all witnesses to be sworn before testifying, unless it be a very young child.

In the judgment rendered by Judge Kiker the findings of facts were as follows: That at the general election there were cast and counted for Barnett 1166 and for Bryan 1163 votes; that there were cast and counted for Barnett 188 votes which should not have been counted and that there were cast and counted for Bryan 19 which should have not been counted for him and that above numbered votes should be deducted from the total votes received by each candidate, as certified by County Board of Canvassers. The 188 votes includes the absent votes which Judge Kiker held to be unconstitutional and also 24 votes which the Court found should be deducted on account of irregularities. The 19 votes were deducted from the Bryan vote also on account of irregularities found by the court.

Although charges of fraud by the Republicans were made in practically every paragraph of the complaint filed in this case, it will be noted that there were no findings of fraud and nothing which warranted the changing the vote as canvassed except irregularities by both political parties and the question of constitutionality of the absentee vote.

These are just a few points of the hearing so that the people may see the fair and impartial manner in which the case was tried, as it appears to the "on-looker."

This case has been appealed to the Supreme Court, and we trust that the many questions raised by this case will be finally settled and thereby save useless contests and heavy expense upon the part of the litigants.

A man who has been duly elected and who has received the majority of the votes cast and counted naturally will defend the attack upon the election, as Mr. Barnett was compelled to do.

Resolutions Adopted

By Fourth Annual Convention, Fourth District New Mexico Federation of Women's Clubs

1. Whereas, a law has recently gone into effect making it compulsory to teach in connection with Hygiene and other subjects, the ill effects of alcohol and narcotics, therefore, be it resolved that the Fourth Dist., N. M. F. W. C., in convention assembled, hereby indorses this step toward the enforcement of the 18th amendment. Be it further resolved that this convention goes on record as urging all club women to lend their influence and energy to bring about greater respect for all law enforcement.

2. Whereas, a series of articles in Good Housekeeping Magazine concerning the Indian Schools of New Mexico, has completely mis-stated and misrepresented conditions in the government schools for Indians of this state, and whereas, New Mexico club women have personally made investigations of conditions as they actually are — therefore, be it resolved that the Fourth Dist., N. M. F. W. C., in convention assembled, hereby protests the publication of these false and misleading statements, and that we urge all clubs of this district to show by letter to Good Housekeeping Magazine our resentment to these untruths, also that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the United States Commissioner of Indian Affairs and to Good Housekeeping Magazine.

3. Be it resolved that this convention recommends that the Executive Board of the Fourth Dist., N. M. F. W. C., appoint one month prior to the convention date a representative committee from the clubs of the 4th district whose duty it shall be to nominate the district officers and submit its report at the opening session of the convention.

4. Be it resolved that we express our thanks to Mrs. Geo. D. Rook, our state president and to the other speakers of this convention for their enthusiastic and inspirational messages. That we hereby express our appreciation to the Carrizozo Woman's Club for their generous hospitality and delightful entertainment. That we compliment Carrizozo upon having such an adequate and attractive auditorium and we desire to make special mention of the music provided by the Carrizozo High School.

5. Be it resolved that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the local papers.

Respectfully submitted,
Mrs. Louise Coe, Chairman;
Hazel Melas, Mmes. George D. Carter, F. C. Rolland, C. R. Jeffries.

FORT STANTON NEWS

The local baseball team won from the N. M. M. I. here last Monday by score of 3-1 in as pretty an exhibition of baseball as has been seen on the local diamond in a long time. Flores of the locals was master of the situation at all times and allowed but 1 hit, it coming in the 9th inning. Pitcher Mosher was hit hard during the whole game but superb fielding on the part of his team mates kept him out of trouble except for one inning. Our boys played heads up game throughout and deserve credit for the hustling type of ball they are playing. Flores struck out 17 men. Score by innings:

There will be a big dance Saturday night, May 25, for the benefit of the ball club, with Gus Lemp and his "Night Owls" furnishing the music. Gus always brings a hot orchestra with him and a good evening of dancing is in store for all attending. Make plans to attend this dance now—it will be well worth while.

Fire of unknown origin was discovered about 6 o'clock Tuesday morning, destroying some 2 or 3 hundred cords of wood. Fortunately the high winds prevailing were from the west, enabling the firefighters to back fire by removing much of the wood leaving a large gap between the fire and the remainder of the wood pile, saving several thousand cords. Much credit is due many of our ambitious patients who voluntarily went to work assisting in the firefighting.

The following patients were admitted last week: Alfred Borgstrom, Mobile, Ala.; Henry Tripler, Pittsburgh; Herbert Butler, Savannah; Gordon Mason, Norfolk, Va.; Gerald Gavin, Hans Koehler, Ellis Island, N.Y. Wm. H. Knight, a veterans' bureau patient brought in from his home at Ruidoso early last month, died Monday morning. The remains were shipped to Birmingham, Alabama.

BEAT THEM AGAIN

The town baseball team came out on the long end with a hectic score of 22-10 in their second practice game played against the High School team. The boys are rounding up into fine shape and it won't be long, we hope, when they will be playing baseball in earnest. They have issued a challenge to the Corona High School for next Sunday, May 5, and if they accept, the probable line-up for Carrizozo will be: Gage, c; Anderson, p; Chavez, 1b; Curn, 2b; LaFleur, ss; Johnson, 3b; Richard, rf; Ferguson, cf; Wiley, lf.

Thought the World Owed Them a Living

The latter part of last week, two men giving their names as Jose Pilas and Pete Gonzales, hired out to Sherwood Corn to work for him during the lambing period and feigning being hard up, asked him for $35.00 apiece to defray some of their expenses under a promise of going out with him in the afternoon. Obtaining the money, they made their way to Dr. C. E. Freeman's ranch, where they made the same arrangements to go to work, but Dr. Freeman would only let them have $15.00. They then made their get-away. The above names were assumed, as their true names proved to be Gabriel Najjar and Alfredo Gonzales.

Sheriff John Brady saw the men in town, but did not know of the assumed names until Mr. Corn made his complaint. He then recalled that one of the men, by his true name, Gabriel Najjar, had a brother here and the sheriff on questioning him, found that the two men had gone to Roswell. He wired the sheriff at Roswell, who arrested them and on Friday, our sheriff went back and on being arraigned before Justice Harvey, they plead guilty and were fined $50.00 and costs each, which amount must either be paid, or served out in jail at the rate of $1 per day until the amount is covered.

People hiring strangers should be careful not to advance money for in so doing, they run the chance of being victimized as were Messrs. Corn and Freeman.

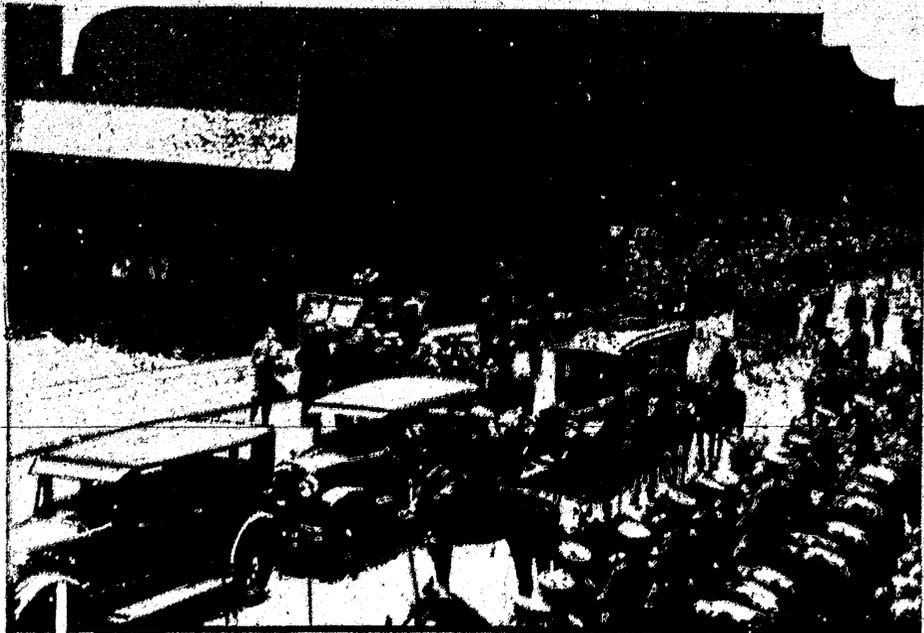

Little Hilda Barnett's Seventh Birthday

Last Saturday afternoon, Mrs. M. J. Barnett entertained a party of little friends of her oldest daughter, Hilda, on her seventh birthday. There were 12 guests present and the afternoon was spent in playing games and having a general good time, after which refreshments of icecream, cake and other dainties were served. Mrs. Barnett was assisted in the entertainment of the little folks by Hilda's grandmother, Mrs. P. M. Johnson and Mrs. Clyde Crowe.

"Killing twelve Three Bar bulls on the last day of August," Harris stated. "I was out with the ranger," Slade said. "Back in the hills. You know that yourself. That charge won't stick."

"Then maybe it was the second of May," Harris returned. "I sort of forget."

Slade suddenly grasped the significance of this arrest.

"How many of you fellows are pussy-footing round out here?" he inquired of Carp.

"I don't mind confessing that several of the boys are riding for you," Carp informed. "But while we've clinched Morrow we haven't been able to trace it back to you. I even got put on the black list, thinking you might do business with me direct after that—knowing my word wouldn't stand against yours. But not you! You've covered your tracks."

Carp spoke softly, as if to himself, detailing his failure to gather conclusive evidence against Slade.

"I even run your rebrand on fifty or so Three Bar cows. You knew there wasn't a dollar changed hands when Morrow gave me that paper which licensed me to rustle my own shestock. The idea in my starting up was to run your rebrand on any number of Three Bar cows. Later Morrow would buy me out—acting for you; can't be proved. Oh, you're in the clear, all right."

Slade broke in upon the monologue. This recitation of his probable immunity from conviction on every count, far from reassuring him, served to confirm his original suspicion as to the reason for this arrest without witnesses. If the sheriff had wanted him he had but to send word for Slade to come in. He threw out one last line and the answer convinced him beyond all doubt.

"Then a lawyer will have me out in an hour," he predicted.

"A lawyer could," Alden said. "If you saw one. But we've decided not to let you have access to legal advice for the first few days."

Slade turned on Carpenter.

"This sort of thing is against the law," he said. "You're a United States marshal. How can you go in on a kidnapping deal?"

"I'm not in on it," Carp shrugged. "The sheriff asked me to arrest you at the first opportunity. I've turned you over to him. The rest is his affair. Besides, like I was mentioning, they can't prove a thing on you. As soon as they're convinced of that they'll turn you loose."

The sheriff nodded gravely.

"The very day I'm satisfied Harris can't prove his charges I'll throw open the doors. You'll be a free man that minute."

A vision of the near future swept across Slade's mind. If he should be locked up for three months and discharged for lack of evidence it would wreck him as surely as the rumors of the last few months had cut Lang's men off from the rest of the world. Squatters had fled on every available site throughout his range and now waited to see if the Three Bar would win its fight. If the news should be spread that he was locked up these nesters would rush in. On his release he would find them everywhere. With marshals scattered through the ranks of his cow men, intent on upholding the homestead laws, he would be helpless to drive them out. If they locked him up at this time he was lost.

He nodded slowly.

"Well, I guess you've got me," he said. "I don't see that it will amount to much, anyway. Sooner or later you'll let me out." He raised his arms high above his head and stretched. Under cover of this casual move he swiftly raised one foot.

Slade planted his boot on the edge of the light table and gave a tremendous shove. The far edge caught the sheriff across the legs and overthrew him. The lantern crashed to the floor and at the same instant Morrow aimed a sideways, sweeping kick at Carpenter's ankles. As the marshal went down his head struck the corner post of a bunk and he did not rise.

With a single sweep Morrow caught the back of his chair and swung it above his head for the spot which Waddles had occupied at the instant the light went out. The weapon splintered in his hands as it found its mark, and as the big man struck the dirt floor Morrow leaped for the dim light which indicated the open door. A huge paw clamped on one ankle and a back-handed wrench sent him flying across the room to the far wall. With a sweep of the other hand Waddles slammed the door with a bang that jarred the cabin.

"We're in," he trapped, the big voice boomed. "We've got 'em sewed in a sack."

Harris made one long reach and swung the butt of his gun for Slade's head as the table went down but Slade, with the same motion, vaulted the prostrate sheriff. The force of the blow threw Harris off his balance and as he tripped and reeled to his knees Slade's boot heel scored a glancing blow on his skull and felled him. He regained his feet, gripping a fragment of the chair Morrow had smashed over Waddles' head, and struck at a dim form which loomed against the vague light of the window.

The shape closed with him and he went down in a corner with Slade. Slade struck him twice in the face, writhed away and gained his feet, back-slashing at Harris' head with his spurs. Harris caught a hand-hold in the long fur of the other's chaps, wrapped both arms round Slade above the knees and dragged him back. His hand found Slade's throat and he squeezed down on it as the man raised both knees and thrust them against his stomach to break the hold. Slade's arm swept a circle on the floor in search of the gun Harris had dropped but he was jerked a foot from the floor and Harris jammed his head against Slade, crumpled into a limp heap. Harris held him there, unwilling to take a chance lest the other might be feigning unconsciousness. But Slade was out of the fight.

The sheriff struggled to his feet as Waddles tossed Morrow back from the door and slammed it shut. He closed with his toe as the sheriff reached his side.

"Dead bird!" Waddles announced and turned to limp back to the cabin. A match flared inside as Harris lighted the lantern. Carpenter stirred and sat up, moving one hand along the gash in his scalp. The sheriff stopped and snapped a pair of hand-cuffs on Slade's wrists. They splashed water on his face and he opened his eyes. He regarded the steel bracelets at his wrists as he was helped to his feet and turned to Harris.

"Don't forget that I'll kill you for this," he said. "It was a simple statement, made without heat or bluster, and aside from this one remark he failed to speak a syllable until the sheriff rode away with him.

The sheriff waved the lantern outside the door and before he lowered it two deputies rode up, leading his horse.

"We started at that shot," one of them announced in explanation of their prompt arrival.

Alden motioned Slade to his horse and helped him up.

"Shoot him out of the saddle if he makes a break," he ordered briefly.

"Now you can move against those men I've sworn out complaints for," Harris said to Alden. "Public sentiment has turned against them to such an extent that they won't get any help—and there won't be any to fill their places, once we've cleaned them up. Deputize the whole Three Bar crew when you're ready to start."

The sheriff nodded and led the way with the two deputies riding close behind, one riding on either side of Slade.

CHAPTER XI

The freight wagons rattled away from the Three Bar at the first light showed in the east, and the grind of wheels on gravel died out in the distance as Harris and Billie finished their breakfast.

The hands had come in from the round-up the night before, prior to the return of Harris and Waddles from their mysterious two-day trip in response to the sheriff's message, and Evans saw led them to Brill's for a night of play. They were due back at the ranch in the early forenoon and Harris had allowed the freighters to depart before the others arrived.

"What did Alden want?" Billie asked, referring to the trip from which he and Waddles had returned late the night before.

"We made a call on Carp," he said. "He had some good news we've been waiting for."

"Then Carp is a Three Bar plant," she said.

"He's a U. S. plant," Harris corrected. "But he's been working in with us to get something on Slade—to gather proof that he's behind these squatter raids of the last few years and the ones they've aimed at us up to date. He couldn't get a shred that would hold in court. But Slade is almost through. His claws are clipped."

The girl started to question him as to Carp's activities but after the first sentence she became aware that his attention was riveted on something other than her words. He had thrown up his head like a startled buck and was peering down the valley.

Her rangers-bred ears caught and correctly interpreted the sound which had roused him. A distant rumble reached her and the surface of the earth seemed to vibrate faintly beneath her feet. She knew the far for the pounding of thousands of hoofs, the drone for the far-off bawling of frightened cows. A low black line filled the valley from side to side, rushing straight on up the gently-sloping bottoms for the Three Bar flat.

"They're on us," Harris said. "I might have known. Get back to the house—quick!"

As they ran she noticed that his eyes were not upon the surging mass of cows in the valley; but were trained on the broken klopes back of the house.

"Anyway, they don't want you," he said. "We'll do the best we can. I made that prediction about clipping Slade's claws too soon. What with Slade locked up and Morrow six feet underground, I was overconfident. I might have known it was planned ahead."

His face was lined with anxiety, an expression she had never before seen him wear even in the face of emergency. She had no time to question him about the assertions relative to Morrow and Slade.

The front rank of the stampede was bearing down on the lower fence. The barrier went down as so much spider web before the drive; posts were broken short, wire was snapped and dragged, and three thousand head of cows pounded on across the meadow. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

with Morrow but the man eluded him. He dared not shoot with friends and enemies struggling all about the black pit of the little room.

Morrow leaped one way, then the opposite, as the sheriff groped for him. Alden turned toward a rattle at the stove as he heard Slade's head crunch against the wall under Harris' savage thrust.

"Down him!" Waddles roared. "Tear him down! Tear him down! I'm holding the door."

From the corner by the stove an iron pot hurtled across the room for the sound of the voice and crashed against the wall a foot from his head. A second kettle struck Alden in the chest and he went down. Waddles saw the light vanish from the window, then reappear. Morrow had made a headlong dive through the little opening.

Waddles swung back the door and sprang outside as Morrow vaulted to the saddle. The big man lunged and tackled both horse and man as a grizzly would seek to batter down his prey.

The frightened horse struck at him, numbing one leg with the blow of an iron-shod forefoot, then reared and wheeled away from the thing which sprang at him, but Waddles retained his grip in the animal's mane, his other hand clamped on Morrow's ankle.

The rider leaned and struck him on the head. The crazed horse shook Waddles off but as he fell the other man fell with him, dragged from the saddle by the jerk of one mighty hand. They rolled apart and Morrow leaped to his feet but Waddles had wrenched the leg already numbed by the striking horse and it buckled under him and let him back to the ground as he put his weight on it. He reached for his gun. A form loomed above him. A heavy rock upraised in both hands. The gun barked just as a downward sweep of the arms started the rock for his head. Morrow pitched down across him and Waddles swept him aside with a single thrust.

He rose and stirred the limp shape

Officer's Dignity Cut No Figure With Pat

A young man who had spent three years at different C. M. T. C's was reminiscing. He told several of his experiences in the camps and wound up by relating the following:

"We were all scared to death of an officer that first day in camp, but not so with 'Pat,' whose name, by the way, was Abraham Lavisekl. The general rode up on his horse to observe the procedure of our being mobilized into service. On his appearance officers snapped to attention and we remained motionless until the general gave the customary 'At Ease!'"

"Pat" stepped out of line with a camera in his hand and took the general's horse by the bridle and turned it around. The horse shied back and "Pat" turned it around again. Then he stepped off about ten paces, and with much deliberation focused the camera on the puzzled officer.

"Now, smile," "Pat" soothingly requested, while the company broke into a roar, joined by the general on the horse."

Every child is fond of peanut candy and a little if properly macerated and eaten at the proper time, just after meals and in the middle of the morning and afternoon, will be of benefit. Here is a recipe that may be prepared at home:

Peanut Candy.—Take one pound of freshly roasted peanuts, shell them, remove the brown skins and roll with the rolling pin until like coarse crumbs. Take twelve level tablespoons of butter, two pounds of medium brown sugar, place the butter in a heavy frying pan, melt and add the sugar, stirring until well blended and watching for the first bubble. As soon as it begins to boil count the time, stirring carefully to keep it from scorching. After seven minutes of boiling, remove, add the nuts and pour at once into a buttered dripping pan. As soon as cool, mark off into squares.

Butter Scotch.—Take one and one-half cups of brown sugar, one-half cup of boiling water and cook five minutes at the boiling point; now add three tablespoons of butter and continue cooking until a drop in water will become brittle. Add a few drops of vanilla or lemon extract and pour into a greased pan. Mark off into squares and when cool break with a hammer.

Chocolate Caramels.—Take two and one-half squares of unsweetened chocolate, one-half cup of sirup, one cup of granulated sugar, three tablespoons of butter and one-half cup of milk. Cook until the candy forms a hard ball (245 degrees Fahrenheit) when dropped into ice water. Pour into a greased pan after adding a teaspoonful of vanilla. Mark into squares and set in a cold place to harden.

At this time of the year the fresh rhubarb is in the market and this acid fruit-vegetable is especially good for a spring tonic.

Orange and Rhubarb.—Wash and cut without peeling two pounds of fresh rhubarb. Place the rhubarb with the pulp of two oranges, all membranes removed, one and one-half cups of sugar and a tablespoonful of gelatin dissolved in one tablespoonful of cold water. Bake one hour and use as a filling for individual pastry shells. Top with a rose of whipped cream and serve cold.

Orange Strawberries.—Wash and hull one box of strawberries, cover with the juice of two oranges mixed with one cupful of sugar and chill thoroughly. Serve in stemmed glasses and top with whipped sweetened cream in a border around the glasses.

Fig Souffle.—Cook five well washed figs in a thin sirup until soft, drain, cut into small bits. Beat the whites of four eggs until stiff, add one-half cupful of sugar, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of lemon juice, a little grated lemon or orange peel, then fold in the figs. Turn the mixture into buttered and sugared custard cups, set them in water and cook until firm in a moderate oven. Serve hot with sugar and cream.

Ambrosia Southern Style.—In sections of oranges into three pieces using four to six oranges, add two sliced bananas and one to two cupfuls of diced pineapple. Add sugar to taste, chill and serve well sprinkled with freshly grated coconut.

Cabinet Pudding.—Butter a quart pudding-mold and sprinkle with one-half cupful of seedless raisins, add slices of sponge cake and sprinkle raisins on each layer. When the mold is three-fourths full add three beaten eggs, two cupfuls of milk, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, two of butter and one-half teaspoonful of nutmeg. Place in a pan of hot water after all the milk has been absorbed, cover with buttered paper and bake an hour in a moderate oven. Serve with a hard or fruit sauce. Other fruits such as candied peels and shredded citron may be added if desired.

Ready for the first warm spring days—in a crisp, new, gingham bloomer dress with short sleeves and loose neck, is Miss Five-Year-Old. She has a new straw hat, too, with a turndown brim, just wide enough to shade her eyes from the sun without cutting off too many of the important ultraviolet rays from the rest of her face.

The dress she is wearing was designed by a clothing specialist of the Bureau of Home Economics. It is made of blue and white checked gingham, trimmed with white. Any of the cotton wash fabrics such as printed zephyr, colored crepe, or broadcloth could have been used. Pongee silk is another good wash fabric for this style. The pattern selected has raglan sleeves, which are excellent because they do not limit the stretch of the arm or the width across the chest and do not tear out at the underarm seam if the child climbs a tree or swings on a piece of playground apparatus. Gathers at the neck provide additional body fullness. These gathers can be put in any plain raglan pattern very easily by allowing extra material along the front fold. The short front opening is bound with bias gingham and has only one button, which fastens through a loop of tape stitched double.

white collar, cuffs, and leg bands wide and loose, for at Miss Five-Year-Old's age, every few months there is a marked increase in every part of the body. The bands on the tops of the gathered pockets are also white and equal in width to the tops and leg bands. They prevent articles in the pockets from falling out.

At first a very deep hem is put in, to be gradually let down as need arises. Some mothers put a tuck in the first hem or turn the goods under its full width for later lengthening. Hems look best if sewed by hand, and are more easily ripped out when necessary. Allowance tucks, too, should be hand sewn or stitched with a large, loose, stitch. If they are stitched at half-inch intervals, opening up the first line of stitching will let the garment down an inch. If growth allowance is being made in the upper part of a bloomer dress a tuck should also be taken in the bloomers on a level with the placket, where it will not show. Bloomers should be cut with short sides to prevent their slipping down over the knee, but the leg bands should be loose and the length through the crotch should always be ample. The inside leg seams will be stronger if a straight piece of material is stitched across from knee to knee. About two inches of bloomer shows below the hem in a dress for a little girl of this age.

worn one of the new cunning detachable fur neckpieces, either eggshell caracul, gray beige or black caracul, or any of the new flat fabriclike furs. A gray caracul neckpiece with a gray white and black tweed mixture, a white caracul with a black loose basket-weave coat, or a beige with nubbed beige tweed—'tis reaching fashion's climax.

Handsome Fabrics for New Coats

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

One would naturally suppose that all the furor and excitement which rages throughout fashionland in regard to the ensemble costume would react to the detriment of the separate coat. Just the opposite is true. The popularity of the ensemble seems to have proved an incentive to designers to inject more originality, better styles, a superior workmanship and handsome materials into the making of the spring coat than has been noted for seasons and seasons past.

No woman with an eye to chic can possibly resist the wiles of the new coats. For that matter, a handsome quality-kind separate coat is the foundation, or should be, of every dependable, likewise smart, wardrobe. This season's models are thrillers. This model boasts a new collar the likes of which was never sighted before, that one a capelet of extraordinary lines—and so it goes on through the procession of swanky models. Then again never-before-heard-of fur trim these coats, and if the fur is not new, then the shape of the kerchief or cape collar is all that and then some.

And the materials! Man's ingenuity has surpassed all previous records in the creating of handsome woollens this season. Even with the will to do so, one cannot describe the new woven weaves, some with borders, some patterned through marvelous interweaving, others with selvedge edges which in themselves are that decorative designers haven't the heart to cut them away so they serve as trimming. Self-fringed edges are also very popular. That is, basket cloth is raveled by hand, giving a clever trimming to pockets, collars and hemlines.

Perhaps the most all-around popular woollens are those of loose lightweight basket weave. Just such a basket-weave tweed has been selected for the making of the swanky coat pictured. A modern adaptation of an old costume is this Napoleon coat modeled somewhat after the type worn by the famous general. It has the familiar capelet and the military collar.

Style-wise women are quite charmed with the idea of the separate coat of some such breath-taking material as a tweed or rough woolen, the interwoven patterning striking a vividly colorful modernistic key, with which is

Hints for Housekeepers

For safety, reboil home canned foods 20 minutes before using.

Fur which has been wet should be brushed to keep it from matting.

Rolling out the dough with a light touch is important in making good baking powder biscuits.

When wringing towels from the last rinse water, fold them lengthwise and put them through the wringer flat and smooth.

When buying wool hose get them from one-half to one full size longer than the foot and eliminate the danger of cramped toes when shrinkage occurs.

Dried fruits, such as apples, raisins, prunes, dates, figs, peaches and apricots, are particularly valuable at this time of year when fresh fruit is scarce and likely to be expensive.

How to Make Croquettes

Leftovers Made Attractive in the Shape of Croquettes.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

To paraphrase an old epigram, leftovers occur in spite of the best regulated housekeeping. When they consist of meat and perhaps potatoes, the family expects them to reappear as hash, and puts on a resigned expression. Why not surprise them with one of the most select foods appearing on any luncheon menu, one which is quite hearty enough for dinner, and sure to be as popular as it is with the ladies' clubs? Have croquettes, which, if you insist, are really only one of the forms of meat hash, cooked in a special way, but such a way that they have an elegance that is quite their own.

Some important points on making croquettes successfully are: Mold them long enough in advance for the egg coating to set. For frying, have plenty of mild-flavored deep fat, and a frying kettle with a basket. Heat the fat to just the right temperature and do not let it smoke. Fry only two or three croquettes at a time, and watch them constantly. As soon as they are golden brown, remove them from the fat, and drain on absorbent paper so they will not be greasy. The following recipe, from the Bureau of

Home Economics, is for beef croquettes, made from left over roast or steak, but any preferred cooked meat or chicken may be used:

Beef Croquettes.

- 2 cups ground Tabasco sauce, as desired
- 1 cup cooked beef
- 1 cup mashed potato
- 1/2 cup gravy or dry grated sifted bread crumbs
- 1 lb. onion juice
- 1 egg beaten up with 1 tb. water
- 1 tb. chopped parsley
- 1 tb. butter Fat for deep frying

Cook the parsley in the butter, and mix with the meat, potato, gravy, and other seasonings thoroughly. Mold into croquette shapes. Dip into the egg mixture, roll in the bread crumbs, and let stand an hour or longer to dry the coating. Heat the fat in a deep vessel to 350 degrees Fahrenheit or until a cube of bread browns in 30 seconds. Place two or three croquettes at a time in a frying basket and lower slowly into the hot fat for two minutes or until they are a golden brown. Remove the croquettes and drain on a sheet of paper. Serve hot with parsley garnish and tomato sauce.

FAIRY STORY FOR CHILDREN

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"I suppose it does seem funny to see the moon in the daytime," said the Moon. "But you see I was awake full, that's all."

"I didn't feel sleepy. I had a dream that I was watching the sun trying to keep everyone warm, and the first thing I knew was that the dream was coming true and that I really was watching the sun."

"So the dreams of the moon come true, do they?" asked the Sun. "Often, often," said Mr. Moon "and now that we are talking about dreaming, let me tell you of one I had the other day."

"The other night, you mean," corrected the Sun. "No, that is right. Of course you do mean the other day. That is when you do your dreaming. 'I can't help keep thinking of the night time for dreaming. Well, Mr. Moon, I didn't mean to interrupt you.' 'I was asleep over yonder,' pointed Mr. Moon.

"Yes, yes, go on," said Mr. Sun. "And I had the most dreadful dream."

"Oh, was it a bad dream?" asked Mr. Sun, kindly. "How very sad. Tell me about it."

"It is a good scheme to tell a bad dream and then forget all about it." "I think so, too," said Mr. Moon "I don't think I was snoring, for I don't believe I was lying on my back. You see if my shape is half size, I lie on one side. If I am a crescent shape I curve and curl up in just that beautiful way."

"I notice that," said Mr. Sun. "but I hope you'll get there soon."

"I thought," continued Mr. Moon, "that I was made of green cheese."

"How soft and wretched I did feel. And such a color—green—just imagine!"

"You know all about what?" asked Mr. Moon. "My dream, do you mean? Of course you know about it, for I have just told it to you. That's quite simple."

"No," said Mr. Sun. "I know why you should have had this dream. There was some one who once said as a joke that the Moon was made of green cheese."

"Did any one ever say that?" asked Mr. Moon, who began to grow red with anger.

"Yes," said Mr. Sun, whose voice was getting lower and lower for he was very sleepy, "some one once did say that."

"So you had to dream it, just to prove that it was a joke. A great, big, jolly joke."

"For you're not made of green cheese, are you?"

"I should just say I'm not," said Mr. Moon. He was fargo and red now.

"Good night," said Mr. Sun. "It's my bedtime now, and you've taken off that thin white robe for a bright red one."

"No one will notice me now, it's the time for you, And cheer up! You'll never have another dream like that. For you see, yourself, what a silly joke it is."

"You're a great red moon, and you are not made of green cheese. Not you!"

"Not I," echoed Mr. Moon, who was now alone in the sky.

Holstein High In Test

Canon City.—Sally, a purebred Holstein owned by H. F. Lombard of Concrete, was high cow for March in the El Paso-Fremont County Cow Testing Association. The cow produced 2,114 pounds of milk and 90.5 pounds of butterfat during the period. The high herd for the past month was that belonging to W. V. McKaughan of Ferris, consisting of eight grade Holsteins. This herd produced an average of 1,387 pounds of milk and 48.1 pounds of butterfat each during the period. The results were announced by Fred C. Kramer, tester for the association.

Radio Injunction Denied

Washington.—A motion of the National Radio Press Association, Inc., New York, for a temporary injunction to restrain the Federal Radio Commission from assigning twenty intra-continental short wave channels for the use of American newspapers was denied by Judge Jennings Bailey of the District Supreme Court, who held the company was not a "press association."

Mexico Keeps Laborers

Mexico City.—Excelsior, a few days ago, said it had been informed at the Department of Interior that effective May 1 all immigrants of the labor classes will be denied entrance into Mexico. This was decided upon because of the scarcity of work in Mexico and to keep foreigners from occupying jobs while there are so many Mexicans unemployed. A decree also will be issued forbidding the departure from Mexico of any Mexican of the working classes unless he can show a contract for a job in the country of destination.

School Cafes Upheld by Court

Denver.—Right of the public schools to operate cafeterias where students and instructors may obtain meals was upheld in a decision handed down by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals. Circuit Judge Arva S. Van Valkenburg, of the eighth circuit at St. Louis, Mo., made the decision. It supported the opinion of Federal Judge J. Foster Symes of Denver, from whose decision Mrs. Irene Goodman, Denver restaurant owner, had taken an appeal to the higher court. The case was originally carried into court after local restaurant men had staged a two-year battle against school-operated lunch rooms.

A Million Aliens Smuggled into America

Scottish Rite News Bureau:

At least a million aliens are now residing in this country who obtained their re-entry illegally, stated Representative Jed Johnson of Oklahoma, in introducing a bill in the House of Representatives to provide for the appointment of a committee to investigate and make a report on the illegal entrance of aliens into the United States. He said that he was convinced that evidence could be obtained showing that immigration officers had accepted bribes to allow the aliens to enter.

"In my judgment," Representative Johnson declared, "no greater crime can be permitted to exist in America than the promiscuous bootlegging of aliens into the United States. Especially is this true when it is considered from the standpoint of law enforcement. Congress recently voted increased millions in an effort to better enforce prohibition in America — But I submit for your consideration that it will continue to be difficult to have real effective prohibition enforcement when officers and those sworn to uphold the Constitution and laws of the United States permit the illegal entry of more than a million aliens into our borders; many of whom are the scum of the Old World, who have no respect for our laws and who are adding materially to that great army of bootleggers. Many of these undesirable aliens are not only peddling booze but are bootlegging drugs and narcotics and contributing materially to the breaking down of law and order and lax enforcement in many quarters."

"It is a matter worthy the consideration of our people, as well as that of the Congress of the United States," he concluded. "I, therefore, express the hope that a thorough investigation of these conditions may be had at an early date, and see what can be done to rid the country of one of the blackest crimes in the annals of the Government."

Editor Muchmore Has Located His Son, Gareth

Our readers will remember our article in last week's paper, wherein we appealed to ranchers, more especially, to assist in locating Gareth Muchmore, son of Clyde Muchmore, editor of the Ponca City, Oklahoma, News. Mr. Muchmore had communicated with editors of other papers over this state and also in Texas, all of whom, did their bit, as we did ours, to help the distressed father. Last Saturday morning we received a letter from Mr. Muchmore, in which he was pleased to inform us that his son was located at Muleshoe, Texas, where he hired out on a large ranch and made a start to satisfy his craving to become a cowboy and live in the great outdoors.

His parents have finally consented to allow him to remain for the time being at least, and wish to thank all those who have so kindly assisted him in finding Gareth, as he says it is due to the kindly co-operation of the papers of New Mexico and Texas that the results were obtained.

RED CROSS CHAPTERS STRENGTHEN FORCES FOR DISASTER RELIEF

Launch National Campaign to Perfect Preparedness Plans in Every Community.

A nation-wide campaign to strengthen plans for preparedness against disaster and for emergency relief has been launched by the American Red Cross through its Chapters. The program is intended to perfect disaster preparedness committees in the ten thousand communities reached by Red Cross Chapters and their branches.

When carried out, through committees of men and women in the communities, it will insure that should a disaster come, an organization for emergency relief, including every modern method science has perfected—such as the radio, the airplane, the motor car and watercraft—can be mobilized to bring assistance, with the promptitude applied by the Red Cross in recent major disasters, such as the West Indies hurricane and the Mississippi Valley flood.

These enlarged and strengthened plans for disaster relief are set forth in the revised Red Cross manual, "When Disaster Strikes," which has been placed in the hands of every Red Cross chairman throughout the nation. The plan to encourage adoption of these added disaster preparedness methods was begun at this time because Red Cross records—covering 48 years of disaster relief—show that the period of the greatest number of disasters, large and small, ranges from the early Spring through the early Fall.

The Record of 48 Years A historical summary of Red Cross disaster relief since 1882, shows that the society was active in giving relief in 938 domestic disasters and its expenditures in those relief operations were $19,594,000. The three groups of calamities appearing most frequently were: cyclones, tornadoes, hurricanes and other storms, 231; fires, 121; floods, 126.

During this period, the Red Cross also has given assistance to distressed peoples of other countries in 153 disasters. Total expenditures for relief at home and throughout the world, in 48 years, amount to $77,354,000.

In the four most recent major disasters, among the greatest which have ever visited the American continent, Red Cross expenditures for relief totaled $20,183,908. Only in the event of large disasters such as the Florida hurricane of 1926, the Mississippi Valley flood of 1927, the New England flood of the same Fall, and the West Indies hurricane of 1928, does the Red Cross seek contributions from the general public for relief work; and frequently these are not ample, as in the four disasters listed, the Red Cross donated $1,335,201 from its own treasury to aid in the work. In the event of smaller disasters, the cost of the relief is met largely from Red Cross resources.

No Community Immune No community is immune to great disasters of one type or another, the manual shows. One preparedness measure that can be adopted is a survey of the surrounding country, with the assistance of engineers and other experts to determine the type of disaster to which the section is subject. Hazards resulting from the presence of rivers and lakes, subject to overflow, of mines, munition factories, and other industries where dangers from explosion and fires may exist, are singled out for consideration.

Extension of existing disaster organizations in communities, and organization of men and women, trained in public health and community service, will result in the saving of lives and the prevention of extensive suffering, through privation, epidemic and other misfortunes, should emergency arise through disaster. These organization plans, outlined in the manual, are similar to those now existing in most Red Cross Chapters, only strengthened in some particulars. They contemplate disaster preparedness and relief committees, under which function sub-committees on food, clothing, shelter, medical aid, registration of disaster sufferers and information service, transportation and communication and finance.

Co-ordination of all of the societies, organized groups and institutions in the locality is urged, so that all effort for emergency relief will be directed without conflict. Trained in advance, these committees can swing into action, and provide an orderly and systematic relief organization.

Table with 2 columns: Disaster Type, Expenditures. Florida hurricanes, 1924, $4,477,170.07; Mississippi Valley Flood, 1927, 17,495,902.16; New England Flood, 1927, 1,335,201.00; West Indies hurricane, 1928, 5,912,622.47; Total, $20,183,908.00.

"your speech would betray you." "Speech on 'Conciliation With America.'" "When a man is hurried or excited he speaks the language of his youth. In this way speech betrays one's early life and training. It is much easier to disguise one's appearance than to disguise one's speech. One rarely, if ever, gets completely away from the speech of one's youth. I once heard a man declare that he could tell the state of the Union from which anyone came by hearing him talk for a few minutes. He insisted that there were peculiarities of speech peculiar to each state, and that these peculiarities were never altogether outgrown. Few of us ever cultivate our powers of observation to the point where we can distinguish slight variations of speech; but most of us feel able to distinguish by his speech a man from the eastern or western or southern part of our country. It is perhaps easier to learn a new language than to correct one that has been learned incorrectly. I remember an interesting example of the way in which the mind clings to the form first learned. Bispham, it will be remembered, was an ardent advocate of music in English. I remember one occasion when he sang, 'When I Was a Boy,' and sang it as only he could sing it. Then, to illustrate the superiority of music in a language known to the audience, he began to sing it in English. Everything went well until he reached a certain phrase, then his speech betrayed him into the Italian. Chagrined, he tried several times to sing the aria through in English, but every-time his speech betrayed him into the language in which he had so long sung. The speech of the majority of us is influenced by the speech of our associates. This is especially true of children, and mothers are often able to tell with whom their children have been playing by the child's unconscious imitation.

Weaponed with crude tools, courage and vision, the early pioneer had hand-carved a way to the new West. With the vision of the pioneer, the West has carried on, and with it step by step, Southern Pacific has built. In the last five years Southern Pacific has built more new line than any other railroad in the United States. In fifteen years Southern Pacific has built 1481 miles of new line at a cost of 88 million dollars. To serve the fast developing Southwest a new line has been built through Arizona; now Phoenix is on the main line. Through the barrier of the mighty Cascades it has created a new north and south railway. It has double-tracked its OVERLAND ROUTE line over the Sierra. From Wendel, California, to Lakeview, Oregon, has been broad-gauged. Now Southern Pacific is completing a short line transcontinental railway through Southern Oregon and Northern California. The Cascade line of the SIESTA ROUTE and the OVERLAND ROUTE will be connected. From less than 700 miles in 1869 to 16,520 miles today is but one way of recording Southern Pacific's 60 years of work. NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Congress Is Struggling With Farm Relief and Tariff Change Problems.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD. CONGRESS, which met in extraordinary session at the beginning of the week, is struggling with the problem of farm relief, for the solution of which mainly it was called to Washington by President Hoover. On the first day the usual process of organization was carried out, Nicholas Longworth being re-elected speaker of the house and Vice President Curtis taking his place as presiding officer of the senate. Possibly for the purpose of avoiding any objections to the sending of Do Priest and Michaelson of Illinois, Mr. Longworth swore in all the new members of the house at one time. Do Priest, colored, was under indictment for months as a member of a gambling ring, but the case was dropped recently. Michaelson was indicted in Florida on charges of smuggling liquor into the country. The administration's farm relief measure was promptly introduced by Representative Gilbert N. Haugen of Iowa and the next day it was approved by the new committee on agriculture by a vote of 10 to 2.

Tuesday President Hoover's message was read to congress. It was brief and business-like, as might have been expected, but did not meet with unanimous approval. Some of Mr. Hoover's supporters in the campaign were decidedly disappointed in his handling of the farmers' problem, those including Senators Capper, Brookhart and Norbeck. The President recommended legislation covering eight matters, as follows: Creation of a federal farm board, an enormous revolving fund and other machinery for stabilizing agriculture on a basis more profitable to the farmers.

Limited revision of the tariff to increase the protection of the farmers and to furnish adequate protection to those industries in which changed economic conditions have produced slackened activity and lessened employment.

Reorganization of the tariff commission and of its method of operation. Provision for domestic valuation of imports in cases of foreign undervaluations.

Provision for the taking of the census of 1930. Reapportionment of representatives in congress.

Suspension of the national origins immigration restriction system. "Minor administrative authorizations," possibly including the transfer of prohibition enforcement to the Department of Justice.

The control of farm production and improvement of marketing by Mr. Hoover's plan, as embodied in the bill before the house, would be committed to the supervision of a federal farm board which would use a government revolving fund to finance farmer-controlled corporations and associations. The President is known to be opposed to the export debenture plan though he made no mention of it in his message. The scheme was offered in the senate's bill for agricultural relief, which varied in other respects from the house measure.

Concerning tariff changes the message was rather vague. It said congress should be careful not to make alterations that would impair our export trade or cause retaliation by other nations. The President's recommendation that the national origins immigration restriction system be suspended probably will meet with more opposition in congress than any other of his suggestions.

POLICIES of the federal reserve board which affected stock market activities by restricting the amount of money for speculation were attacked in the house by Frank R. Reid of Illinois and Louis M. Black of New York. Representative Reid offered a resolution for appointment of a committee of nine to investigate the administration of the federal reserve system, suggesting that the board might have been unduly subject to foreign influences. Representative Black defended speculative activities on the New York Stock exchange and insisted there was no occasion for alarm on account of the greatly expanded operations there. He asserted that the federal reserve board was injuring business generally by attempting to curb speculation. The board, according to Mr. Black, is exceeding its powers under the law.

APPOINTMENT of Charles G. Dawes as ambassador to Great Britain was confirmed by the senate without roll call. Other Presidential nominations were those of Joseph M. Dixon of Montana to be first assistant secretary of the interior; Oscar B. Colquitt of Texas as a member of the board of mediation; John M. Morin of Pennsylvania as member of the United States employees' compensation commission; Patrick J. Hurley, assistant secretary of war; Ernest L. Jahncke and David S. Ingalls, assistant secretaries of the navy; Capt. Joseph J. Chatham, paymaster general of the navy with the rank of rear admiral; and Maj. Gen. Charles McK. Saitzman (retired), member of the federal radio commission, and Charles J. Rhoads, commissioner of Indian affairs.

WET members of congress lost no time in getting into action along their favorite lines. On the first day of the session a lot of bills and resolutions were introduced in the house designed to repeal or weaken the prohibition legislation, and others were offered on succeeding days. Of course not one of these measures stands any chance of being considered by this session.

Wisconsin's lower house, obeying the mandate of the referendum, voted to repeal the state prohibition act and to wipe out the state prohibition commission, and hurried the measure on to the senate. The bill takes the budget state out of prohibition enforcement, but leaves the matter optional with municipalities. Cities and villages can adopt any regulatory or prohibitory ordinances they see fit. If they want to they can adopt the abandoned state dry code as their own, but effective only within their own borders.

Washington's reply to Canada's protest against the sinking of the rum runner 'I'm Alone' in the Gulf of Mexico by a coast guard vessel was delivered to the Canadian legation. Its contents were not made public, but it was understood to be conciliatory and designed to confine the dispute to legal aspects of the case. The issue may have to be determined by arbitration.

HARRY F. SINCLAIR, seeking to avoid imprisonment for contempt of the senate, has asked the Supreme court of the United States to reconsider its recent decision upholding his sentence. Meanwhile it is reported that he has lost control of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil corporation and that his place as chairman of the board may be given to Col. R. W. Stewart, whom John D. Rockefeller ousted from the chairmanship of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. The Sinclair company is said to be dominated now by a new group of financiers.

RUSSIA, supported by Germany and Turkey, again presented to the League of Nations preparatory disarmament commission her plan for the immediate reduction of armaments. But France and Japan attacked the scheme as impractical, and the other delegates were unfriendly, and the commission voted against it. The Soviet plan provides for reducing armaments one-half, one-third or a fourth, according to the present military strength and various categories of the countries. It would establish definite figures on the number of rifles and the amount of material for the armies, navies and air forces, as against the conservative idea of merely seeking an agreement on broad general lines as recommendations for some future primary disarmament conference which should fix the amounts and numbers and so on in all the details and particulars.

He said: "Our world is marching on to a new war, into which we will fall headlong as we did in 1914 unless we start to work systematically for peace. The chief danger is connected with Russia, which, through compulsory isolation, is becoming a country of inwardly concentrated patriotism which is likely to lead to a tremendous struggle between Russia and the western powers. The Russians will call it a battle against western capitalism, but it will be more than that. War may break out in Asia or elsewhere, but it will spread all over the world in a useless and gigantic war."

GENERAL CALLES, having the Mexican rebellion practically cornered in the state of Sonora, went to work carefully and systematically to crush it finally there, the campaign being under the active direction of General Almazan. Federal forces were being concentrated, coming from the east and south. The program was temporarily disarranged by a new uprising in Coahuila and a battle in Pulpito panned, the entrance to Sonora. Federal aviators reported that General Caraveo had 1,500 insurgents defending the pass and that hundreds of Yaqui Indians were hidden in the mountains ready to engage in guerrilla warfare. General Enriquez, one of the rebel commanders in the battle of Jimenez, surrendered to General Almazan. The latter said Enriquez would not be executed but would be treated as a prisoner of war—quite a departure from the usual Mexican practice.

SO WIDELY divergent were the proposals of the allies and the Germans in the matter of German reparations that the conference of experts in Paris ended in complete failure. Schacht offered for Germany 37 annuities of 1,650,000,000 gold marks, or more than three billion dollars total less than the sum demanded by the allies; and he would not increase the offer by a cent. Lord Revelatoko's subcommittee could devise no compromise, and it was therefore decided it would be useless for the commission to continue its labors. The delegates of the allies blamed Doctor Schacht for the breakdown of the negotiations, saying he had injected political matters into what was meant to be a purely financial settlement. Germany's credit abroad is likely to suffer greatly.

KING BORIS of Bulgaria, who has been on a round of visits to various European courts, was saved from probable assassination by the vigilance of the Sofia police. They discovered two bombs in the king's private railway coach which was being prepared to meet him at the border and bring him to his capital. The police said they had received warnings that the Communists intended to kill the monarch if the bomb plot failed.

BABE RUTH being one of our national "heroes," his every move is of interest to the people. So it is in order to report that the King of Swat took unto himself a bride last week in the person of Mrs. Claire Hodgson, a former actress who hails from Georgia. They were married early in the morning and set up housekeeping in a New York apartment. Their family includes the Babe's adopted daughter, Mrs. Ruth's daughter by a former marriage, and Mrs. Ruth's mother and two young brothers.

JOSEPH W. BAILEY, former representative and senator from Texas and almost the last of the noted orators of the South, fell dead in a courtroom in Sherman, Texas, in the midst of a lawsuit. Death was caused by a clot of blood in the heart. After his service in the national congress Mr. Bailey in 1920 sought the governorship of Texas, but was defeated by Pat Neff largely because of his activities against prohibition and woman suffrage.

The body of Myron T. Herrick, late ambassador to France, was interred in Cleveland, Ohio, after impressive ceremonies in the Trinity Episcopal cathedral which were attended by eminent representatives of the American and French governments and as many of the sorrowing fellow citizens as could crowd into the edifice. The streets through which the cortege passed with military escort were thronged with people, despite rain.

Mrs. Malcolm V. Balmer has been appointed postmaster at Leupp, Arizona, the Postal Department recently advised Colonel J. H. McClintock, Phoenix postmaster. Leupp is a fourth-class postoffice, serving the Indian school and adjacent territory on the Little Colorado river in Navajo county.

The Lovington, N. M., Light and Power Company was recently purchased by the Inland Utility Company of Kansas City, a Fairbanks-Morse Corporation. The new company plans to double the capacity of the plant, and will make a specialty of pumping water in the shallow water belt around Lovington.

There will be at least half a dozen archaeological expeditions into New Mexico when summer opens, says Carl Schwachheim, Raton, N. M., scientist, who worked all last summer near Folsom, N. M., assisting in the excavation of the bones of a prehistoric mammal which aroused the intense interest of the Smithsonian institution and big museums all over the country.

Arizona state and national banks had $95,669,631 on deposit at the close of business March 27, and the combined total resources of the financial institutions on that date were $107,890,155, according to a condensed statement of reports compiled in the office of the state superintendent of banks. Compared to the corresponding report a year ago, deposits have increased $12,155,155. Resources increased $12,325,876.70, the comparison shows.

The Indian bureau of the Irrigation Department in Washington, D. C., announced recently that the date for the dedication of the Coolidge dam in Arizona was uncertain. It was first planned to dedicate the dam last September, but that date was changed to March, and since that time nothing definite has developed on the subject. It was said at the Indian bureau that the proposed ceremony had died a natural death, but there was some hope of it being revived some time in the near future.

A comparative study of maintenance costs on oil and gravel roads has just been completed by the statistical division of the New Mexico State Highway Department, which shows the oil road to cost half or less to maintain than the typical gravel road, says a highway bulletin. "Figures to date on gravel road maintenance," states the bulletin, "shows a maintenance cost of $250 per year mile. This includes cost of equipment depreciation and repair. Without the latter item, a straight actual cost of $200 per year mile is shown by our figures."

The acreage planted to wheat will lead all other crops in New Mexico this year, according to estimates on planting intentions just issued by R. E. Hare, agricultural statistician. The wheat acreage will be 341,000 acres, and other important crops will be planted as follows: Beans, 225,000 acres; corn, 215,000 acres; oats, 47,000 acres; barley, 13,000 acres; grain sorghum, 207,000 acres; tame hay, 125,000 acres; broom corn, 25,000 acres; potatoes, 3,000 acres. Unusually favorable weather, Mr. Hare said, brought winter wheat through in good shape.

The stockholders of the Las Cruces Cotton Mill Company recently declared a $5 per cent dividend, and set aside the sum of $25,000 as surplus. The majority stock in the mill is owned by the farmers of Dona Ana county, N. M.

The new $15,000 Methodist church in Alamogordo has been completed. The building consists of nine rooms, including the auditorium, three Sunday school rooms, pastor's study, music room and basement and kitchen and banquet room, and Epworth League room.

HOW TO LIVE LONGER

By JOHN CLARENCE FUNK YOUR SHOES

RHEUMATISM, neuritis, spinal troubles, "nerves," backache and headache—these make an impressive array. And every one of them can be caused by the use of improper and ill-fitting shoes. It's hard to believe, isn't it?

In days gone by the ladies of China were victimized by the foot binding custom. It was sanctioned by law and was a painful and barbarous practice. Happily, those times are past. Foot binding, however, is not altogether out of style in America and it has only personal foolishness for an excuse.

The other evening a young woman derisively laughed at a story of the tattoo and brass ring styles yet prevalent in the Fiji Islands. "What nonsense and what suffering!" she exclaimed. Yet this same sophisticated person at that moment was wearing size number 4, when her foot undeniably demanded size number five. She is by no means an exception.

It is only fair to say that by far the larger proportion of both men and women display more sense than otherwise on the shoe question. But even so, there are still too many who are unwisely vain about themselves and for that reason painfully crowd their pedal extremities into unhealthily formed footwear.

While "long fingers" can get one into the toils of the law, long toes, on the other hand, are no crime; and it is extremely foolish for anyone's conceit to reach such proportions as to have them persuade themselves that they are.

While style must be considered comfort is paramount. And this, whether it is a walking, office, or social shoe. Therefore, the next time that you go to a shoe store keep in mind the possible diseases—some of them killers—that are always lurking in the background of a misguided judgment which prompts one to purchase ill fitting footwear.

One would do well indeed to even go further than this by examining immediately the shoes which already have been purchased and are being used. If they are too short, if they bind, if they in any way inconvenience or disturb your comfort then give them away. Better by far a few extra dollars for new shoes than many dollars for a doctor bill or worse.

If you are not sensible then get that way about this shoe problem at once.

A RECENT newspaper account stated that a young woman stepped off the last stair step and straightway broke her neck! Which proves that mine workers, powder people, divers and air pilots have no corner on life's hazards.

In the perfectly sensible desire to diminish automobile death and injury rates it is quite possible to overlook the fact that while too much cannot be said regarding the careless handling of cars, there yet are a large number of less spectacular accidents daily occurring as the direct result of personal negligence.

Frequently cases are noted where death or serious accident has been based on some homely and everyday happening; and we are startled by it. "It could just as easily have happened to us," we passively reflect and merrily go on our way.

There is no desire to suggest a fear consciousness where our daily and ordinary activities are concerned. It would be a sad world indeed if everyone were constantly afraid that the next step or move might take an accidental turn. A complex of that character would be nothing short of an obsession and would almost justify admission to a psychopathic hospital.

On the other hand, there is such a thing as reasonably developing a sense of care. And in view of the many misfortunes occasioned by its lack, it almost becomes one's duty to do so.

Care, for example, in getting in and out of an elevator; care in going up and down stairs, especially when high-heel shoes are worn; care in walking over polished hardwood floors; care in leaning out of windows; care in getting on and off street cars; care in boarding and leaving trains; care on city pavements. In short, the substitution of a bit of thought for abstraction in many things that constitute the day's work and routine.

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug; Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot pat away. And it's always ready for the crueler pangs of colic, or constipation or diarrhea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-two million bottles were bought last year.

ALLEN'S FOOT-PASTE

Washington's Mother

MARY WASHINGTON HOUSE, FREDERICKSBURG, VA.

MARY WASHINGTON MONUMENT

WASHINGTON AND HIS MOTHER.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

IN THE town of Fredericksburg, Va., there stands a lofty stone shaft which is said to have the unique distinction of being the only monument in the United States erected entirely by the efforts of women to a woman. Perhaps the simple inscription on the monument explains the reason for that distinction. It reads "Mary, the Mother of Washington."

As the annual celebration of Mother's Day—it is May 12 this year—approaches, all Americans should be interested in the story of this mother who gave to the nation one of its greatest men. Washington himself once said that his mother was the most beautiful woman he ever saw, but even more interesting than this natural tribute paid by a son is the testimony contained in a letter written in 1772. Curiously enough this letter was found in a deserted house near the York river during the Civil war. It reads as follows:

"Was Burg, 7th of Octr, 1722—Dear Sissy, Madame Ball of Lancaster and Her Sweet Molly have gone Home. Mama thinks Molly the Comeliest Maiden She Knows. She is about sixteen yrs. old, is taller than me & very Sensible, Modest and Loving. Her Hair is like unto Flax, Her Eyes are the color of yours and her Cheeks are like Mrs. Blossoms. I wish you could see her."

The "sweet Molly" referred to in that letter was Mary Ball, who on March 6, 1730, became the wife of Augustine Washington, a friend and neighbor of her father's, and it was on February 22, 1732, that she gave birth to the boy who was destined to be the founder of a new nation. In addition to being a woman of great beauty Mary Washington seemed to have been a remarkable woman in many respects. "A silent, serious, woman, she was, self-contained, self-respecting, and reserved," says an early writer. "During the forty-six years of her widowhood she managed her household and farm without the assistance of any adviser and reared her children to usefulness and honor, and saw them go forth into the world equipped for its work and pain. That they each and all revered her, and sought her council in every emergency is sufficient testimony of her worth and ability. Mrs. Washington's lack of personal ambition and her constitutional reserve were qualities which prevented her from becoming popularly known to the public, even at a time when the people were eager for any opportunity to show her honor. But no demonstration was ever made in her behalf and there is but one instance recorded when she appeared in public with her son."

Another tribute to Mary Washington is contained in the statement of Lawrence Washington, of Chotank, who wrote as follows: "I was often here (at the home on the Rappahannock) with George—his playmate, school-mate and young man's companion. Of the mother I was more afraid than of my own parents; she aved me in the midst of her kindness; and even now, when time has whitened my locks and I am the grandfather of a second generation, I could not behold that majestic woman without feelings it is impossible to describe.

"Mother and son were much alike in character, personal appearance and conduct. Both were wanting in humor and imagination, and both possessed in an extreme degree conscientiousness, gentleness and determination," says the writer previously referred to. More recent historians have shown that more than once during Washington's early life there was a clash of these two strong wills, but there was a strong bond of affection between them, nevertheless.

At the outbreak of the Revolution Washington, realizing the dangers which the war would bring to Virginia, tried to induce his mother to move into town from her home on the Rappahannock opposite Fredericksburg. She had previously declined the offer of a home with her daughter, Mrs. Betty Lewis Lewis, declaring that she preferred to rule her own home. But at last Washington's insistence prevailed, and in March, 1775, he and his sister moved her, still protesting, into a home in Fredericksburg, which Washington had bought from Michael and Esther Robinson in 1772. It was a part of the original Kenmore estate. Betty Lewis' home. The garden was separated from the Kenmore garden by a fence and gate. Just as it was American women who erected the monument to Mary Washington, so it was a group of American women who have preserved the treasured cottage where Mary Washington lived from March, 1775, until August, 1783.

Although Mary Washington had strenuously objected to leaving her plantation, she soon grew very fond of her little home in Fredericksburg, and enjoyed being near her daughter and her church at which she was a constant and devoted attendant. It was in this home that she lived, far from the dangers her son was encountering in the fight for liberty, but she was in constant receipt from him of news of that struggle. Here she received the courier to tell her of his splendid victory at Trenton, and it was here that he came to her after the battle of Yorktown, accompanied by French and American officers. It was on this occasion that for the one and only time she shared the honors that had come to her now-famous son. A grand ball was given in his honor in Fredericksburg and the proud mother, leaning on the arm of her son, was the belle of the evening.

It was here, too, that Marquis de

Lafayette came with Washington's nephew, Robert Lewis, to pay his respects to the mother of the greatest American. She received the courtly Frenchman in her garden, met all his fine phrases with dignity and gave him her blessing when he bade her good-bye. As he left he said to a friend, "I have seen the only Roman matron of my day."

It was in this little home, too, that the last scene in the association of the Washington mother and son took place. In the spring of 1783, Charles Thompson, secretary of congress, arrived at Mount Vernon to notify Washington that he had been elected the first President of the new nation. After preparing to accompany Thompson to New York, then the capital of the United States, Washington rode to Fredericksburg to say good-bye to his mother. Both knew that this would probably be the last time they would see each other, for Mary Washington was then past eighty years of age and suffering from cancer. After an affectionate greeting between mother and son, so says one account, Washington said, "The people, Madam, have been pleased, with the most flattering unanimity to elect me to the chief magistracy of the United States; but before I can assume the functions of that office I have come to bid you an affectionate farewell. So soon as the public business which must necessarily be encountered in arranging a new government, can be disposed of, I shall hasten to Virginia."

"You will see me no more," she interrupted him, "my great age, and the disease which is rapidly approaching my vitals, warned me that I shall not be long in this world. I trust in God, I am somewhat prepared for a better. But go, George, fulfill the high destinies which Heaven appears to assign you. Go, my son, and may that Heaven's and your Mother's blessing be with you always." She died on August 27, 1783, and was buried in a spot on the Kenmore estate which she herself had selected.

For many years the Mary Washington home belonged to various owners. In 1890 an effort was made to take it down and erect it again at the World's Columbian exposition in Chicago. The protest which this plan aroused resulted in the purchase of the house by the Association for the Preservation of Virginian Antiquities. Since that time it has been in charge of a Fredericksburg branch of the association which has opened it to the public. Last year it was the scene of a special observance of Mother's Day, and future years may see this spot become a national shrine on Mother's Day each year, when all Americans join the women of Virginia in honoring the mother of the first and greatest American.

Handkerchief in History

The handkerchief is one of the remnants of Roman civilization. It came into general use in polite society during the reign of Henry VIII of England. It is probably connected with ecclesiastical customs and may have been an outgrowth of the manipula, which was originally of linen and worn over the fingers of the left hand and used for the same purpose for which the handkerchief was used in a certain extent in France in the Eighteenth century. At this period handkerchiefs were richly ornamented. Women adopted the use of colored handkerchiefs as soon as the taking of snuff became an established custom.

The Time by Toakes
When Bobbie was six, he was given a real watch which, regardless of quality or accuracy, had a loud tick. Naturally, the little fellow was very proud, and he would stroll up and down the street, stopping every moment or two to draw the timepiece from his pocket and regard it gravely.

Every passerby smiled at Bobbie's performance, but the climax came when his little cousin, Betty, tripped along and asked him the time.

Bobbie regarded his watch perplexedly for a moment, and then replied with dignity: "Two inches to four!"

There have been more than 120 rainy days above the normal since 1916 in England.

WHAT HILKIAH FOUND IN THE TEMPLE.

LESSON TEXT—11 Chron. 34:14-23. GOLDEN TEXT—Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path. PRIMARY TOPIC—Finding a Lost Book. JUNIOR TOPIC—Finding a Lost Book. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Discovering a Guidebook. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Bible in National Life.

I. The Book of the Law Found (vv. 14-17).

1. The occasion (v. 14). It was while restoring the temple during Josiah's reformation that the Book of the Law was discovered. No doubt, in clearing out the dark corners to make repairs and to find a place to store the subscriptions made by the people, many things which had been lost were found, among which was the law. This was "the law of the Lord given by Moses."

2. The book delivered to the king (vv. 15-17). In a report of the work, the king was informed of the finding of the Book of the Law by Hilkiah, and the book was delivered to him.

II. The Effect of the Reading of the Law (vv. 18-23).

1. The king rent his clothes (v. 19). As the law was read before him, the king was led to realize the awful extent of the nation's departure from God. He knew that sin merited punishment. The function of the law is to reveal sin. The reading of the royal robes indicated that the king was penitent and sorrowful.

2. The king sent a delegation to make inquiry of the Lord (vv. 20, 21). The king included himself in guilt before God. "Go inquire for me and for them that are left—for great is the wrath of the Lord that is poured out upon us." His sense of sin was so keen that he sent to inquire of the Lord as to whether there was any means of averting the divine judgments. Instinctively, the human heart turns from God's threatening judgments to a means of escape. The soul that arranges for sin inquires for a way of escape. The law prepared for the gospel. The law is our schoolmaster to bring us to Christ (Gal. 3:24).

III. The message of Huldah, the prophetess (vv. 22-23).

(1) Confirmation of what the law said (vv. 22-23). She said that all the curses written in the law must fall, for the sins had been so flagrant that God's wrath could not be restrained. Destruction was hanging over Jerusalem and it was too late to avert it. It was not too late, however, to repent and to obtain mercy from God, but the outward consequences of sin must be realized. Fulfillment of this is found on every hand today. The murderer must hang.

(2) Acceptance of Josiah's repentance (v. 23-25). Because of his tenderness of heart and deep penitence, the Lord said he should be gathered to his grave in peace and should not see all the evil to be brought on Jerusalem and its people. What Huldah said was true, even though Josiah died in battle (35:23-25). When God accepts a man and forgives him, his death is a peaceful one, even though it may be on the battlefield. God's presence is with him, therefore he will go straight from the battlefield to the heavenly home.

IV. The Law Obeyed (vv. 23-25).

1. The king read the law (vv. 23, 30). He gathered together the inhabitants of Jerusalem, including the priests, Levites and elders, and read unto them the law.

2. The king made a covenant before the Lord to keep His commandments and testimonies (vv. 31, 32). In this covenant he pledged himself to do three things:

(1) To walk before the Lord (v. 31). This meant that he would get personally right with God.

(2) To keep God's commandments, testimonies and statutes with all his heart and soul (v. 31). To read the law is not enough. Its holy requirements must be obeyed.

(3) To perform the words of the covenant, which were written in the book (v. 31). This was done sincerely and he caused all that were present "to stand to it."

3. The king took away the abominations out of all the countries which pertained to Israel (v. 33). All the days of the king they departed not from following after the Lord, the God of their fathers.

The Camel and the Rich Man
And Jesus looked round about, and said unto his disciples, How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God! It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.—Mark 10: 23-25.

Our Deeds
Our deeds determine us as much as we determine our deeds.—George Eliot.

Cattle and Airships - Have Close Relation

In the construction of two new dirigibles the United States will have to sacrifice 1,500,000 cattle. The part the cattle take in the construction of the most modern form of transportation through furnishing the "gold-beaters" skin for the airship forms a new chapter in the romance of industry.

"Gold-beaters' skin" is nothing more or less than a small tough section in the intestine of a steer. It got this name from the Middle ages, when goldsmiths discovered that by putting gold between two strips of this skin they could hammer it for days, making the finest gold leaf without tearing the skin.

Its great strength, along with its lightness of texture, and the further fact that it permitted less diffusion of gas than any other known substance, recommended it for balloon work. This was tried in England before and during the World war and proved successful.

you stand on—with a cough, a cold or grippe, and your blood impoverished. You must do something! Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery enriches the blood—builds health and strength.

Mrs. J. E. Swamy, 23 W. 5th St., Pueblo, Colo., remarks: "I think any one who has used Dr. Pierce's Medicines will agree with me that they are perfectly reliable—will do all that is claimed for them, if not more. The Golden Medical Discovery is for the general health; impoverished blood, stomach trouble, bronchitis, general debility. And any woman who has tried the 'Favorite Prescription' can testify to the excellent satisfaction it always gives."

Talking Mountains Found

Undersea mountains that just could not keep silent, have yielded their secret to the persistent scientists. By firing detonating shells from a brass shotgun and determining the time the echoes took to return from the floor of the sea, scientists on the non-magnetic yacht Carnegie found two new ranges of mountains. One is more than a mile high above the sea floor near Ecuador. The other rises 9,759 feet, about 400 miles north of Juan Fernandez Island. This range may be a contributing cause to the Humboldt current, and may also be the remnant of a sunken land whence sprang the mysterious Easter Island civilization.

Half of Face Lifted

To popularize face-lifting operations, a mannequin, whose right cheek reveals her as a woman of fifty and whose left cheek is that of one of thirty, is attending English race meetings, fashionable restaurants and hotels. Women with sufficient curiosity to talk to her are handed a business card. A small quarter moon of skin was cut in front of her right ear and another in her scalp, after which a doctor lifted that side of the face. The other cheek was left intact. The operation cost about $500.

Bad temper is its own scourge.

"WORTH WEIGHT IN GOLD"

Verdict of Woman Who Tried Pinkham's Compound

Tully, N. Y.—"It hurt me to walk or sit down without help and I felt sick and weak. My mother-in-law took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she induced me to take it. I am now on the fourth bottle and have also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. The medicines that will do for me what the Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done are certainly worth their weight in gold. I think I have given them a fair trial and I expect to take two more bottles of the Vegetable Compound."—Miss CHARLES MORGAN, R. F. D. 1, Tully, N. Y.

Acidity

The common cause of digestive difficulties is excess acid! Soda cannot alter this condition, and it burns the stomach. Something that will neutralize the acidity is the sensible thing to take. That is why physicians tell the public to use Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this delightful preparation can neutralize many times its volume in acid. It acts instantly; relief is quick, and very apparent. All gas is dispelled; all sourness is soon gone; the whole system is sweetened. Do try this perfect anti-acid, and remember it is just as good for children, too, and pleasant for them to take.

Any drug store has the genuine, prescriptive product.

Bit the Hand that Fed Him..

About ten days ago, a young fellow giving his name as Edward Nichols of Muscatine, Iowa, called at the ranch home of T. E. Welch at the foot of the Paton mountain and asked for food. Mr. Welch took pity on the boy, gave him food and told him he might stay for a short time and get rested up.

Everything went all right until Sunday afternoon, when the ranch owner was engaged in breaking a broncho and had ridden up to the residence of Bob Crenshaw, during which time, Nichols left the ranch and took with him Mr. Welch's new Ford Coupe, a watch worth $100, a six-shooter and made his getaway.

Sheriff Brady was notified as soon as the theft became known and he wired officers in all directions to keep a sharp lookout for the thief, but up to the time of writing, no trace of him has been found. The car had only been driven 4100 miles and together with the license plate, number of the car and other means of identification, it was found 3 miles this side of Ancho, where the thief had abandoned it and where it is thought, he boarded a freight train for the east.

and brother, Robert, were in from their ranch north of here Wednesday on business in connection with the starting of the lambing season.

Caveman Wild Turkey Visits T. G. Grafton's Barnyard

T. G. Grafton of Angus was a visitor here last Saturday to have his official papers attested, he being appointed as game warden for that locality. While here, he told us that he had been missing some of his best turkeys of late and one day last week he heard a commotion in the barnyard and thinking it caused by some wild animal, he hastened to investigate, when to his surprise, he saw a monster wild turkey gobbler engaged in a fierce fight with the domestic head of the harem and before he could interfere the wild gobbler had killed the boss of the barnyard and not satisfied with that, he walked off with a nice bunch of shebas, the choice of Mr. Grafton's flock. Mr. Grafton is at a loss to know just what to do about these conditions, as he says that his entire flock will, at the present rate of deserting, soon be gone to the wilds of the White mountains. As Mr. Grafton is the new-game warden and killing wild turkeys is positively forbidden by law, he must consult the powers higher up to see how to protect his flock, for soon, the White Slaver will have all of his turkey hens.

Hi School Orchestra in Concert. This Week

The Carrizozo high school orchestra will give a full concert program at the High School Auditorium on Saturday night, May 4, at 8 p. m.

The orchestra has been practicing regularly since the Christmas holidays on the numbers to be played and are in good shape to present several difficult numbers.

The week following the concert, the orchestra will go to Silver City, to enter the State Music contest there.

The proceeds of the concert will go to help pay the expenses of the trip.

Marches, concert waltzes, overtures and popular numbers will be featured in the concert. The orchestra members will appreciate a large crowd at the concert to encourage them in their playing and to give them a good send-off to the State Contest.

All of the orchestra members have tickets to sell—so buy your tickets from them.

Admission prices are—25 and 50 cents.

Earl Rountree

Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, was a business visitor in Carrizozo last Saturday. Earl said that lambing had begun on the Lovelace ranch, and said that the ranchmen would have no rest from now on until the lambing season is over.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Neighbauer left last Wednesday for Hot Springs, after spending several weeks here on business.

Woman's Club Notes

The 4th Dist., N. M. F. W. C. held its 4th annual convention here April 26-27. The meeting was indeed a success and the local club is proud to have had the privilege of entertaining such distinguished visitors. Many interesting talks were given during the session; those deserving special mention are: "Birds of New Mexico," Mrs. Thomas, Tularosa; Club Extension, Mrs. Tom Charles, Alamogordo; Junior Club Work, Mrs. Joyce, Carlsbad; "Our Indian Affairs," Mrs. Ruoff, Albuquerque. The Junior president on behalf of the Junior Club, presented Mrs. Joyce a tiny sombrero, emblem of their club, and Mrs. Blaney, under whose administration "Brillo de Sol" was organized. They also presented Mrs. Lemmon with an emblem in appreciation for all she had done for them.

The program by the High School Orchestra, a Spanish dance by Ernie Prghm, a piano solo by Maurice Lemon and the little Welcome number by Mrs. Burkett brought forth much applause.

The concert was well attended; it was a special treat to all music lovers and was one of the most delightful ever given in Carrizozo. Friday afternoon a picnic supper was served in campfire style at the Malpais. Messrs. McQuillen, French, Kelley and Dr. Blaney presided. The Art Tea at Mrs. Lovelace's was attended by a large crowd. The exhibit of paintings was much enjoyed. The exhibit of paintings by Miss Grace Jones and Mrs. Burke, Carrizozo, Miss Titworth, Capitan, Geo. Elmgren and others of Fort Stanton were viewed with much interest and enjoyment, and we are proud of our local talent. A delightful musical program was given and lovely refreshments were served.

The President's Dinner was served at the High School Auditorium. The tables were beautifully decorated in our club colors, purple and yellow flowers, and all yellow candles tied with big bows of purple. The place cards were very artistic; they were painted by the High school girls. The honor guests were presented with corsage bouquets by Mrs. Lemon, president of the hostess club. Mrs. Blaney was toastmistress and many delightful and witty toasts were given by the guests. At the end of the dinner Mrs. Huppertz, Farley, Lemmon and Miss Ella Brickley, who were in charge of the dinner, were escorted in and introduced. Mrs. Branigan then offered a toast to these ladies who had arranged such a delightful dinner.

Officers elected for coming year—Pres., Mrs. J. V. Tully, Glencoe; Vice-pres., Mrs. Fred Lane, Canutillo; Sec'y, Mrs. R. E. Lemon, Carrizozo; Treas., Mrs. Ben S. Burns, Tularosa. Next annual meeting will be held at Tularosa. Mrs. R. E. Lemon wishes to thank all our chairmen and the good people of Carrizozo for the
