is nearing completion. Contractor Pittman has the outer portion finished and is now engaged in painting the interior. The building presents a neat and nappy appearance and reflects credit on the Mayor, Trustees and the Contractor. It shows how well the Trustees knew what they wanted, and also shows what nice work can be done by a contractor who knows his oats. Take a look at the building as you pass by.

Ford Kellar

Trainmaster's Clerk, was an El Paso business visitor Monday; Ford says it was so hot on the border "that you could fry an egg on the sidewalk."

Thursday and Friday—King Vidor's production, 'The Crowd' with James Murray, Eleanor Boardman and Bert Roach.

FORT STANTON NEWS

Mrs. Hannah Westhafer, mother of Dr. Westhafer and daughter, Miss Clara Westhafer of New Castle, Indiana, are guests of Dr. and Mrs. Westhafer and will remain for the remainder of this month and the month of August, returning home about September 1.

Alamogordo came to the Fort last Sunday and took a ragged ball game home by the score of 18-9. Both teams were short some of their regular players. Despite the score the game proved exciting and close until the last two innings, when Alamo forged ahead. Both McCoy and Riese, starting pitchers, had to retire before the game finished.

Dr. and Mrs. Westhafer returned July 5, from a visit to different points in Arizona. At Nogales, they visited Dr. and Mrs. Murdock, formerly of Fort Stanton and who will leave shortly for Honolulu. Their trip was one of interest and pleasure and their only regret was, that they arrived home too late for the big celebration on the 4th.

The Carlsbad team which was to have played at the Fort this coming Sunday, called up Monday, cancelling the game due to the breaking up of the team. This is a keen disappointment to the fans as that team had power and was doped to put up a whale of a fight for victory. The Fort beat them in June, 3-2.

The team goes to Tularosa Sunday for a game. These teams played close games early in the season.

Attention, Masons!

There will be a Regular Communication of Carrizozo Lodge No. 41, A. F. & A. M., on Saturday night, July 20, for the purpose of business.

All Master Masons are cordially invited.

C. F. Grey, W. M., S. F. Miller, Secretary.

The Carnival

which has been in town for the past 3 days, will entertain the children tomorrow from 2 to 5 p. m., with special prices of 5 cents, both on Ferris Wheel and Merry-go-round. J. L. McDermitt is the owner and manager.

The Week-End

Asks Representation From Carrizozo

El Paso has produced two very successful rodeos and this year, all elements connected with the stock and range interests have joined hands to make the coming event, Sept. 27, 28, 29, by far the biggest that has ever been attempted.

The new association has, through its Carrizozo vice-president, Mr. R. C. Sowder, invited Carrizozo not only to take part in the festivities, but to furnish one of our ladies, who is a good rider, to represent Carrizozo in the parades and at all functions, etc.

If the request of the association is granted, which no doubt it will be, the lady will be furnished with a horse, saddle and bridle and all we will have to do will be to see that she is properly clothed in cow girl costume and sent to the Southwest Range, Stock Show and Roundup. This expense will be meagre when we take into consideration the many business men and stockmen who will be eager to see Carrizozo represented in the big doings and the expense of the girl's costume and other necessities will, according to those interested in the matter, not amount to over $100.00.

The Carrizozo representative will be accorded all the honors falling to representatives. She will be provided with an escort in the parades, share in the advertising which this event will receive as a whole. There will be 25 pinto horses for the girls of the Queen's Court. W. T. Johnson, who produces the Dallas & New York Stock Show will furnish 50 head of the best bucking horses in the country, thirty Brahma steers for riding; the Slaughter - Veal Land & Cattle Company will send 40 head of long horn Mexican steers for the bulldogging and black muley calves have been secured for the calf-roping.

At this event, a Queen will be chosen, but the girl must be from El Paso. Photos will be taken of all the girl representatives and the same will be published in the El Paso papers. Mr. Sowder has appointed a committee with A. J. Rolland as secretary to see to raising funds with which to provide the lucky Carrizozo girl, who will be chosen by the same committee to represent Carrizozo. Here will be a chance to get our town before the people in fitting manner. Let's go!

Sold Fine Bunch of Hereford Bulls

J. R. Blackshire returned this week from Kansas with 25 head of the finest Hereford bulls ever brought into this county, according to expert stockmen. The bulls' ages are from 17 months to 2 years and were the property of Sowder & Blackshire. Nineteen were sold yesterday, 16 to T. G. James for the Kudner ranch in the Venado Gap and 3 to Harry Aguayo, Lincoln County owes a great deal to the above named gentlemen and others of our stockmen for bringing in fine bred stock to replenish our ranges.

How Cold?

should drinking water be to satisfy thirst and yet not injure the consumer? Workers in heated places do best with water at 50 to 55 degrees. In less heated quarters, 45 degrees can be enjoyed without danger. These facts were uncovered by Frigidaire Corporation in the course of factory experiments with five new series of electric water coolers which have been added to the organization's line of products.

Mrs. Zoe Glassmire

left Wednesday on No. 12 for Lawrence, Kansas, following the receipt of a message to the effect that her mother was very ill. Mrs. Ida Mason of California, has also gone to Lawrence, to be at the bedside of her sick sister.

George Cooper

is managing the B & B Service Station, during the absence of Mike Barnett, who is ill in a hospital at El Paso, but is improving, we are glad to say.

Dr. W. H. Broadus

arrived in Carrizozo according to appointment and on being asked how business was in fitting glasses, Dr. Broadus said that it was very good. He filled his appointments and left Wednesday evening.

Professor J. M. Helm

arrived home yesterday from a month's absence, during which time, he visited at Albuquerque, Santa Fe, and thence to California, where he spent the past two weeks of his pleasure trip.

CORONA NOTES

Rev. John W. Williams of Hot Springs is conducting a 10-day "Old-Time Revival" at the Baptist church. Every one is cordially invited to attend these services.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Porter announce the birth of a son, Ralph Ruston, Tuesday, July 9.

Bill, 2-year-old son of Mrs. Georgia Davis, fell last week, injuring his side and breaking his arm near the elbow.

Some of the Corona ladies met at the church Thursday for an all-day quilting. As a result 4 quilts are now ready for the orphanage at Portales.

Little Lucille Jones met with what might have been a very serious accident when she fell into a tank of water while picnicking Sunday with her parents and some friends. She was rescued by Louise Shelton, who is to be complimented upon her ability to act quickly and calmly.

Willard won the baseball game over Corona Sunday with 11-9 score. Archie Perkins, catcher for the local team, received a fractured knee cap during the game.

Dick Jenkins is on crutches this week, suffering from injuries received when a heavy pipe rolled on his leg.

Nelle Snodgrass has dislocated her shoulder again.

Mrs. Lilly Anderson and son of Oakland, Cal., are spending the summer months with Mrs. Anderson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dishman.

Frankie Shelton broke his right arm Tuesday, when the horse he was riding stepped into a prairie dog hole and fell.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Varney and children have returned from a two weeks' fishing trip in the northern part of the state.

Bill Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Lum Richards left Monday on a camping excursion. They will be joined later by Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Greer and by Mr. Greer's brother.

Buck Dean and Jimmie Jones accompanied Bill and Orville Dove on a trip to Kansas and Oklahoma this week.

Mrs. Ruth Ware of Alamogordo is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Downing.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Penix and children returned Monday from a vacation trip to Newkirk, Okla.

At Rest

Mrs. Belya Gray Kuykendall was born September 14, 1912, at Lampkin, Texas, and departed this life at 12:20 p. m. Friday, July 12, at the early age of sixteen years. Mrs. Kuykendall had lived here only about one year, coming from Dora, New Mexico. On April 18, 1929, she became the bride of Clyde Kuykendall.

Little need be said of the noble life and sterling character of this lovely girl. Her life to the last, was beautiful, sincere and she quitted this earth a brave, kindly, sweet and gentle soul, ready to go far in any enterprise to which in the next world may beckon her.

Among the surviving family are her husband, her father, A. L. Gray, a brother, Gus and a sister, Mrs. Viola Cole, all of whom were with her at the last. Those unable to be here, on account of the suddenness of her death were, two other brothers, Willie of Portales, N. M., Alva of Briggs, Texas, and five sisters,

W. W. Stadtman tenders his resignation as Village Clerk, and the same is accepted by the Board. Owing to the absence of two of the Trustees, the successor to W. W. Stadtman is not appointed.

There being no further business the meeting is declared adjourned.

Mesdames Wilmouth of Amarillo, Clara Kelley of Stafford, Ethel Lamwright of Athens, Pearl Hall of Hamilton County, Texas, and Claude Manning of Marvin, California. Belya will be missed greatly by these and other relatives, besides a multitude of friends.

The funeral services were conducted Saturday afternoon by Rev. VanGundy of Santa Rosa, after which, all that was mortal of this loved one was laid to rest in the Corona cemetery. The family has the deepest sympathy of the entire community and may this short verse prove a consolation.

"So shall it be at last, in that bright morning
When the soul waketh and life's shadows flee
Oh, in that bright hour fairer than daylight dawning
Shall rise the glorious thought,
I am with Thee."

CHAPTER VIII

Dolores

to the future—I should have insisted upon their flight; or, failing in that, I should have stayed longer with them, talking in the moonlight.

At Treinta I found Senor Perez in a high state of nerves. Because of lack of time I had, therefore, to forego the hospitality of his house. I told Don Felix, however, that Juarez loved him and that he would not forget him; and I explained the loss of my beard. As he had seen the general put an arm around me, and had heard him call me Pablo, any explanation—or none—would have sufficed. That pass of Madrella had proved to be a valuable find indeed.

I was going home, for the City of Mexico—since the coming of La Anita into my life—had suddenly assumed the role of home. France, somehow, seemed very far away. The city had been—before my meeting with the beautiful lady of Avenida Flores—merely a pleasant playground, for the duties of a staff officer are never very hard. But this great laxity of mine—though hopeless, for she had forbidden me the house—had given life a deeper significance; had made of this sweet world of ours something great or by far than a playground; had lifted the goal of my ambition and desire up among the very stars.

Now, like the good general that I hoped some day to become, I builded a complete mental picture of the ground that lay before me. Lestrangle was an obstacle that might—because of the lie I had told Madrella—be removed by that worthy himself; a possibility that pleased me not a little, for Captain Lestrangle had been guilty of the blackest treachery. Second: Col. Miguel Lopez, whom I would have to reach through the emperor; if, indeed, Pablo did not come to my aid in this direction also. And last—but by no means least—Madrella. Aside from the lease to our respective countries there lay between Madrella and me a potent personal hatred that might have been traced to the lovely lady of Avenida Flores, and that would die, I feared, only with the death of one or both of us.

Evidently he had made no attempt to follow me to Puente de Ixtla; I assumed, therefore—for I had no thought that the blow on his head had killed him—that he would be in Cuernavaca, awaiting me, or that he had returned to Mexico City to confront Lestrangle and Lopez. If I did not find him in Cuernavaca, there would be, I was sure, an interesting time ahead of me when I should reach the City of Mexico.

"We Owe Our Lives, Senor," I Said, "to That Ready Wit of Yours."

Of course, Pasqual, at the crossing of the arroyo, may have stopped him; but, in spite of all my confidence in Pasqual, there was a serious doubt in my mind of the Indian's ability to accomplish that. If Neville, with the advantage of his size and strength and shrewdness, had failed.

This, at least, could be settled, for there was Pasqual.

He let out a cry of welcome, and came down the ridge with the sure-footed swiftness of an antelope.

"Ah, Pasqual," said I, "buenos dias."

"But the beard, senor?"

I laughed. "A beard, Pasqual, is but the mantle of the moment, to be cast aside as the need for it departs. Besides, I do not care to look like the bearded man who visited me in the gloom of early morning yesterday. Have you seen him, Pasqual?"

He shook his head. "He has not come this way."

"Then he waits for me in Cuernavaca, eh? In that case, Pasqual, we must hasten, for there are many things to do."

"The Indian considered his burro, which stood head pendant, eyes closed, ears drooping—beside the road. 'Can you hasten on such a beast, senor?'"

"Get up behind me; he will carry both with ease."

The burro, by dint of walking a while and then putting on a sport of wild galloping, managed to keep in sight as the sturdy mountain pony, with that swift running walk of his, put the miles behind us.

"A good horse, senor," said Pasqual, in my ear.

"Aye; I'm going to give him to you and Dolores—as a wedding present."

"Ah—senor!"

"Indeed, he will help you put in a crop of grain, Pasqual, and he will help you harvest it. Of a Sunday, and sometimes on an evening, he will—if harnessed to one of those light, two-wheeled carts seen in the city and purchased for a few pesos—carry you and Dolores far. Your station in life will be greatly enhanced thereby."

"But the horse is a thing of great value, senor, and you—"

"Is my life a thing of small value, Pasqual, and did you not risk your own to save it? This horse is all in my payment for your service; besides, I am presenting him also to Dolores."

Now a long silence fell between us, to be broken by the grateful Indian only as we entered the outskirts of Cuernavaca:

"Will you go with me, senor, to see Dolores; it will be a day long remembered in our lives? Dolores will want to see you to thank you. I would have her happy."

"I shall be pleased to know Dolores; I would tell her also of thy service to me, and of my gratitude. Few men, Pasqual, are worthy."

We stopped before a tiny house with red-tiled roof and walls that were plastered and painted a rich brown with border of red.

Pasqual whistled. It was a perfect imitation of the call of the slate-gray partridge.

"We will wait—a little; oh, senor?"

"Yes, Pasqual; we will always wait."

In five minutes the white front door opened and a figure came out, a figure in a simple dress of golden brown, with a purple mantilla over the straight black hair. She was small and slim, with the light and easy grace of a fawn; and, as she ran swiftly into the arms of the bronzed, broad-shouldered man who stood at the gate, a great longing possessed me, and my mind raced ahead to the city—and, perchance, to the lady—that I would see before the sun had set.

With heads close, they talked together for half a minute in swift liquid Spanish, then Pasqual turned to me. "Senor, this is Dolores."

"But Pasqual mio," she said, smiling, "what do I call him?"

"Pancho," said I, giving the Spanish for my Christian name.

She extended a hand, and I lifted it to my lips, bowing with all the grace at my command.

"For so small a service, Dulce mia," said Pasqual, "the senor has given me money enough for our marriage, and—"

"As he had saved my life, Dolores, the service was not so small."

"And for a wedding present," continued Pasqual, "he has given us the horse, which will help us with that little farm of mine. I—I wanted him to see you."

Now she turned to me again. She touched my sleeve. "Senor Pancho," she said softly, "we would like to show our gratitude to thee." She stood on tiptoe, and in the shining eyes that studied my face with such an earnest, childlike eagerness I saw a sudden mist of tears.

Reading approval in Pasqual's smile I took the sweet brown face in both my hands and kissed it reverently.

"Gracias," she whispered, thanking me.

So I left them; brave, honest, trustful Pasqual—whom I had tricked most grievously—and his lovely little Dolores. I am not proud of that questionable bit of deception, yet I have the consolation of knowing that, with the coming of the final test, Pasqual showed me that he loved me for myself.

I met, on the street in front of the Hotel Montezuma, Lieutenant Brugiere; he who had suggested to Pasqual that the old man mount the horse.

"Is it Francois?" said he, starting.

"None other, Brugiere, and drier by far than the Sahara. I have come many leagues; where is there a good drink?"

"He put an arm over my shoulder. 'A good drink is not to be had this side of our beloved (afe Africano, but an indifferent drink may be obtained from the fat Manuel, who sits yonder on the porch of his hotel like an over-size spider waiting for a fly; though that broad white turban on his head gives him more the appearance of a Turk.'"

"He's not a Turk, Brugiere," said I; "he's a Tartar; and the turban, I think, is a bandage."

As we mounted the steps Manuel lifted himself from the capacious chair with rusted labor and a repressed groan of pain. He held the massive door open for us and then proceeded on to the bar, where he put out glasses and a bottle or two, standing the while, with fingers outspread, as we poured our drinks.

Brugiere, who knows wines as every man who has lived in Dijon should, held his glass to the light. "A pity," said he, "that a country so rich in fruits should be so poor in drinks. Is this, Manuel, the best you have? Our friend has traveled far."

Manuel shook his head. "This wine," said he, "is all."

"Did your brains explode?" questioned Brugiere, his eyes on the swathed head. "Or—?"

"I fell, senor," said the bandaged man; "it was dark in the hallway. I stumbled, and my head, by evil fortune, came in contact with a chair."

"Are you sure, Manuel," said I, "that it was a chair. Might it not have been a stool?"

"A stool, senor?"

"Aye, a stool," said I, "a heavy, three-legged stool, which splunging free in the semidarkness, might, perchance, have come in contact with thy head?"

Now the bloodshot eyes focused upon me, and, during that critical scrutiny, I stroked a beardless chin—and waited. Recognition came slowly. His great body shook, his pudgy hands gripped the bar and a greenish pallor of fear settled on his face. Finally a sound—riding on that gapping breath of his—came forth: "Senor!"

Now We Ran a Race With the Sun.

Brugiere laughed. "Is 'Senor' all you can say to us, Manuel, after such vast preparation?"

"Manuel's eyes never left my face. 'I think,' said I, 'that it was a stool.'"

"Yes, senor, I am sure it was—now that I reconsider it." His eyes sought the floor.

"And, Manuel, you might," I continued, "be able to find some wine for us that may prove more smoothly carressing to the palate—is it not so?"

"I will see, senor; will you wait?"

"What is it," questioned Brugiere, wondering, "do you have, in your eyes, the light of Aladdin's lamp, or—?"

"Not at all, my friend; I merely had, in my hand, that stool which came in contact with his head."

Manuel brought fresh glasses and poured out with a shaking hand that precious fluid for us. Lieutenant Brugiere lifted his glass, smelled the wine, and raised it to the light. "Nectar," he cried, "a drink fit for the gods!"

Farmers Worked Up Over Spanish "Lions"

A wag's remark to farm tenants near Dover, N. C., during the Spanish-American war caused much apprehension for several days to the simple folk of the countryside. He told them the American naval and military forces were superior but Spain had "more lions." He even went so far as to say 600 of the beasts had been landed at Beaufort, not far away, the night before.

Taking up the joke, villagers rigged up a "horas saddle," or reined box across which could be drawn a piece of wood as a bow, emitting sounds similar to the roaring of lions. This was secreted in the neighborhood and "played" throughout the night. The tenants were terrified and among some of them the belief in the lions remained alive for a long time. William Warters, resident of Dover, recalling the tale, said that for several days barred doors and loaded guns were the rule in the district.—Detroit News.

Antique Dealers' Tribunal

One of the strangest tribunals in England sits at regular intervals in an upper room in St. James' street West, in the center of the great art world of London. It is the antique dealers' "High Court of Justice," to which any of the 150 members of the British Antique Dealers' association has the right to appeal. Its judges, who sometimes number as many as 20, include some of the world's greatest experts on precious stones, old china, tapestries, pictures and antique furniture. Disputes arising out of the sale of an antique of more than ordinary importance are often referred to the court for arbitration, and if they think fit, the judges have the right to call in independent art experts. It is to protect the interests of antique dealers and safeguard the honor of their industry that this tribunal has been established.—Harford Courier.

Macaroni Chinese

Macaroni and other pastes are considered typical and peculiarly Italian food, and Italy is probably entitled to the credit for her early appreciation of these foods. However, history credits their first use among the Chinese and their European introduction to the Germans. The Italians are said to have learned the art of making them from the latter. History shows that by the time of the Fourteenth century Italy was the only European nation enjoying macaroni.

SYNOPSIS

Capt. Francois de Vigny, serving with Maximilian's army in Mexico, tells the story. A roving group of officers is discussing La Anita, who, rumor says, has lured French officers to death or desertion. Summoned by Maximilian to make explanation, De Vigny undertakes to deliver the message to La Anita. At La Anita's home, De Vigny meets Colonel Lopez, Mexican officer and the girl's cousin, Pablo Madrella, who bears a wonderful resemblance to De Vigny, except that he wears a beard. Angered that Anita should be called before the emperor, Madrella forces a duel on De Vigny in which the Mexican is wounded. Assisting Madrella to his carriage, De Vigny picks up a paper that falls from his pocket. It proves to be a pass, granting Madrella passage through the Mexican lines. Late before Maximilian, it is, of course, Madrella's death warrant, since it proves him a spy. Questioned by Maximilian, La Anita denies luring French officers to danger, and is given her freedom. De Vigny secures leave of absence, planning, while Madrella is wounded and under guard, to grow a beard and impersonate him, with the idea of securing information of Juarez' movements. Dressed as Madrella, he enters La Anita's home by stealth and overhears a conversation between Madrella and Lopez which proves the latter a traitor to Maximilian. Lopez has secured Madrella's release and the latter is leaving at once for Juarez' camp. He reaches Cuernavaca about the same time as the real Madrella. An unsuccessful attempt is made by Madrella to kill De Vigny. Believing him to be Madrella, De Vigny is welcomed by Juarez. De Vigny saves Cuernavaca by convincing Juarez, who had planned to seize the city, that the French garrison is too strong.

CHAPTER VII—Continued

"If Pablo," said the general, "can remove a beard and become Captain de Vigny, why cannot De Vigny grow one and become Madrella? And if De Vigny had considered such a step he would, of course, first acquaint himself with intimate details of Madrella's life—would he not?"

"Undoubtedly, excellency, also he should fall out of hand," in mental torture, I hung on the brink of despair. What would be his next question?

"There is one obstacle De Vigny would never surmount, one bit of evidence he could not possess. That evidence would remain, at all costs in the keeping of Pablo Madrella, for it is his life. If you can produce that, Pablo, well and good; if not, you are indeed unfortunate."

"And that, excellency?" said I, wondering if Desancon, as a last resort, would really shoot, and give us a chance for our lives.

"Only a piece of paper," said Juarez, "on which has been written, and signed by me, an order passing Pablo Madrella y Gutierrez through the Liberal lines."

He waited, while, with trembling fingers, I fumbled through my pockets, finally bringing to light that potent pass. He read it with knit brows and returning it to me, held out his hand.

"You'll forgive me, Pablo; I must be certain, and so much depends upon me. I feel, somehow, that Mexico lives or dies with me; that all the cores of this unhappy land have descended upon my shoulders."

In the long silence that followed this speech the general pressed my hand in an iron grip. "I must give my country my best."

"Each one of us, excellency, is trying to do just that," said I, and Lopez smiled at my double entendre.

"There is a task for you, Pablo," Juarez produced a sealed letter. "We must attend to Miguel Lopez; he is dangerous. I have arranged for Maximilian to pay the colonel for his treachery." The general smiled.

"This war of ours is more of intrigue than of arms. You will deliver this communication to Lopez, and I shall see that it is found upon him."

"Such a task will be one of pleasure, excellency."

"I assume, Pablo, that you will have delivered this within forty-eight hours, and any other communication will be timed accordingly."

So, as we stood rigid and erect, he bade us good night.

"That," said Lopez, "is that—and a closer shave I never want to see!" He grabbed his glass of wine and bolted it.

"We owe our lives, senor," I said, "to that ready wit of yours. You must escape this night, both of you."

Lopez's eyes questioned me.

"Don't you understand?" I cried. "Madrella may come at any time; even if he doesn't this hoax cannot be kept long under cover. Don't you see that the trick that has been played upon him?"

"Suppose he does, Francois—what then?"

"What then? Are you mad, senor; cannot you see? Soon the night will have gone, and with it your chances for escape."

"We will stay with this thing that we have started, Francois. After our coup de main has been accomplished we will consider means of escape, and not before. As Louis has said, a great battle may, some day, hang in the balance, and then two soldiers of the Empire—"

I gave it up. Ah, Monsieur, and I know—and I have seen—

SUB ROSA
By MIMI

The Disagreeable Memory
THIS is really the only cute pair of shoes I bought in Paris at all," said Jinny, displaying slim satin-shod feet.
"But I thought you said you got some awfully nice brown suede shoes there," objected Cornelia.
"Well, I got two nice pairs then," amended Jinny lightly and forgot the incident—after an instant's reflection that there was something awfully disagreeable about Cornelia, which she couldn't quite place.
"Oh, he is so attractive," sighed Miriam, "and I'm going to be so happy with him. He's always seemed to me the most gorgeous man I've ever seen."
"But I thought you said when you first met him he was just too ugly to look at," Cornelia's protest came quickly. "And you couldn't understand why Gladys went with him. And that awful story you told me about his family, too."
Miriam gave her a dirty look that should have persuaded any sensible young person to keep her peace—but Cornelia plodded steadily on, piling up evidence to prove that Miriam had never and could never be in love with the man she proposed to marry.
Needless to say she did not convince Miriam of this important fact. Neither did she make any deep impression on the other girls present.
The habit of remembering things which other people choose to forget is not uncommon—but it's always unpopular.
It's a disagreeable little trick really—and when Cornelia says that she is entirely innocent of any malice in thus dealing with her friends, I don't think she's strictly truthful.
One can never be quite sure when one's going to be tripped up, made to feel dishonest when one is with Cornelia.
Therefore she's avoided—conversation with her is guarded carefully. You may argue that friendship with C. breeds a certain amount of absolute honesty, necessarily. But it doesn't work that way on the girls today. They resent having to be over-accurate in their stories, and they feel no urge to correct their own inaccuracies—only an urge to avoid C.'s society as much as possible—and to talk to her as little as courtesy permits.
This stily little habit of remembering too well what others have conveniently forgotten, can produce much loneliness and unhappiness if it be used unwisely.

What About Flirting?

GLADYS demands to know rather indignantly, I think, why flirting is wicked. She and Bob have been engaged for some little time. So have Flo and Jack. The two young couples see a lot of each other, and just recently Gladys has begun a mild flirtation with her girl friend's fiancé.
Just a harmless little thing you know—no offense intended, and Bob is simply raising the roof about it. And Flo hardly speaks to Gladys unless she has to.
Gladys thinks the whole thing is so narrow-minded and small town. She herself has never been in the least like that. For instance it wouldn't bother her a bit to find Bob and Flo holding hands under the table, or gazing into each other's eyes of a summer evening. She'd know perfectly well that they were just flirting to pass the time, and she'd laugh it off.
But they won't let her go on holding hands with Jack. They think it's indecent, and dangerous. Those are the very words Bob used about the ridiculous business.
Well, no, I wouldn't go so far as to say it was indecent. Half the young married couples and young engaged pairs of the present generation do this exchange-flirtation business.
If I flirt with your husband, you can flirt with mine for a while—that sort of thing. It seems to put more pep into the party if one is permitted to hold hands with some one else's husband.
If this flirting business were just a question of smiling eyes and laughing lips, and promises half-uttered, and hands touching lightly—well, that would be that, and who could say a word against it?
But oh, dear, it's apt to get so awfully complicated. Gladys' smiling lips and laughing eyes spruced to Jack's under a summer moon may unbalance him a bit—start him thinking that perhaps after all Flo isn't the only girl in the world.
When a girl is firmly tied to a man, and has been so for some time, it's too easy for her to flirt with some one else—and it's too easy for her to become convinced that the some one else is more attractive. Flirtation under those circumstances is very apt to lead to a new engagement. That's why we modern girls are always getting engaged. That's why we so very often end up by taking what's left—a very poor substitute for the nice boy we started with.
Flirt all you want to while you're still unattached, but remember that you may do yourself a lot of harm by flirting with another while you're all bound up to the original boy-man.

DEMOCRACY AS WAR'S ANTIDOTE

By GENERAL SUMMERALL, Chief of Staff U. S. Army.

WAR will decrease as democracy increases among nations. Religion and patriotism always have gone hand in hand, and atheism seems ever to breed communism.
No man or group of men can formulate public opinion in this nation. It is the result of a national psychology, a great force aroused simultaneously throughout the land by some incident or experience, and carrying all before it when it moves. The people of this country have an innate love for peace. They have developed and will develop an aversion for war.
But in the last analysis the responsibility for the common defense rests upon the nation as a whole. The armed forces can only assist the people in the direction in which they wish to move.
No nation ever has survived a great military defeat. Each war has strengthened the moral fiber of our people and given them a greater love for their country. In observing Memorial day and in honoring the fallen heroes of other great wars, it takes no eulogies, no recital of their tragedies to interpret what their going means to America.
We take the army and navy for granted, and trust to those in charge the responsibility of keeping them sufficiently strong to protect our nation. We owe it to those who gave their lives, to take into consideration what they might have to say about it. We think of the Statue of Justice, and of the scales in one hand but we forget the sword in the other.
No government can or does exist without sufficient forces to protect itself. Self-preservation is recognized as a primary obligation.

EDUCATION IS ROAD TO WEALTH

By DR. J. S. NOFFSINGER, National Home Study Council.

Education is one of the greatest of all wealth producers in the nation's economic structure. The per capita wealth last year in the five states which maintain the most efficient educational systems was twice that of the five states whose schooling standards are considered the least efficient. Incidentally, the progress of adult education has made notable strides in the wealthier states. This fact is due to the expansion of industry, finance and commerce, which made it imperative for organizations to educate and train large numbers of their employees for advancement to higher positions.
The scarcity of skilled workers and trained executives is reflected by the latest statistics bearing on the national employment conditions. These figures show that more than 42,000,000 persons are gainfully employed in the United States, and of this vast army less than 4 per cent are installed in executive positions which carry the responsibility of directing the energies of these workers.
Moreover, the demand for trained executives, technicians and skilled workers still exceeds the supply found available.

INDIFFERENCE TO PUBLIC DUTY

By GOVERNOR CAULFIELD, Missouri.

Indifference to politics and disdain of politicians is tending to degrade government. No service is more important than service to the state. In the days of Washington, Jefferson, Hamilton, Madison, Franklin and their contemporaries, the government seemed able to command and attract the very ablest men of the nation.
Unfortunately there is a tendency on the part of our people to despise the public service and to shirk public duty. It is becoming fashionable to affect indifference to politics and a certain disdain of politicians. Such a tendency is deplorable, as it tends to degrade and ultimately destroy the people's government. It is manifest that it is a high public duty, upon the performance of which the perpetuity of this form of government depends.
The people should develop a fierce and militant passion for honest public service and should esteem those who render such services.

RELIGION NOT MERE COMFORT

By REV. DR. HARRY EMERSON FOSDICK.

Religion has its comfortable aspects. Folks want it. It is dreadful to be really irreligious, to think that creation has no spiritual origin, meaning or destiny, that the creative power cares no more for us than the weather for the grass. One flees from the arctic cold of irreligion to the gracious warmth of faith in God and His goodness and to the comfortable and sustaining power of His fellowship.
But it is easy to get a religion for comfort only. A man can love his family primarily for what he gets out of it. A man can love his country primarily for what he gets out of it. A man can love a friend and squeeze him like an orange into his cup; and a man can love God for what there is in it. There is a lot of that kind of religion today. Some of our most prominent modern cults face the tremendous temptation to be religious for comfort only.

MISPLACED SENSE OF "HUMOR"

By RABBI ISRAEL GOLDSTEIN, New York.

A sense of humor is destructive of the will to progress and achievement when it becomes a studied habit and pose. Most of the great leaders and reformers who left an impress upon their own and subsequent generations were not noted for their sense of humor. Moses, Mohammed and Jesus, in the sphere of religious leadership, and Alexander and Napoleon, in the sphere of national leadership are outstanding examples. The great figures in public life today are on the whole very serious-minded men.
When it is an occasional relaxation a sense of humor is wholesome and cleansing. But scoffing and mockery for the sake of amusement, which has become the vogue of our blasé youth, is a seasoned negation of the things that should matter most.

Should War Occur--and Russia Succeed

War clouds are hovering over the Orient and it is very likely that there will undoubtedly be a conflict in war if Russia succeeds in its plan.

The Russian government, if it can be called, is showing its strength in the East and China will be the first to feel its strength because of its proximity to her strength to the East.

The line of contention is the Chinese Eastern Railway, which has long been an important factor in the peace of the Orient. It was originally built by Russia, but has been operated since 1912 jointly by the Russians and the Chinese.

In the treaty on which the line has been operated, there is a stipulation to the effect that the Russians refrain from spreading communistic propaganda, but China claims Russia has been violating this, which would be no wonder to the communist government without a doubt.

Communist propaganda is spreading over the earth at an alarming rate and only a short time ago, the Daughters of the Revolution passed resolutions protesting this infamous propaganda and other patriotic organizations among which was the American Federation, did the same. It is strange to say, some of the big papers in the east criticized the actions of these organizations on the grounds that they were interfering with free speech and free press. Among the papers condemning the red propaganda and upholding the actions of the patriotic organizations was the National Republic at Washington, D. C. which for a long time, has been the target for abuse at the hands of the communists, but this is all done in a free country.

If Russia brings on war with China, every civilized country on the face of the earth should get China's assistance and blot Russia from the map. It is a country that defies the laws of God and ignores the rights of man to live under any other rule other than what it preaches; that of bloodshed, fire and tyranny. We predict that if war comes on between these two countries, that the much hated Mussolini will embrace Russia and join hands with it, to defeat

China; but there are other powers to be reckoned with, should this come to pass. This country will view the outcome with interest, and let us hope that if war comes, it will culminate in the twilight of Russian cussedness, for if Russia succeeded in the conflict, she would attack other countries in her attempt to set the world afire with communism.

Encampment a Success

According to the local Baptist pastor, the Ruidoso Baptist Encampment closed last Sunday with a record breaking attendance. It was estimated that about a thousand people attended the encampment this year. There was a marked increase over last year's attendance. The messages of Dr. J. J. Cook were greatly helpful. The Bible lectures of Dr. W. F. Frye of Simmons University were well worth the trip to the mountains. A greater Encampment is being planned for another year, and Prof. Harp of the Pecos Valley has promised to bring a larger orchestra and the encampment will be still better in every way. Several Carrizozo folks attended the encampment in part.

LAY TELEPHONE CABLE BENEATH THE MISSOURI

First Submarine Line to Cross River Installed Near Sioux City, Ia.

A submarine cable has been laid across the Missouri River between Sioux City, Ia., and South Sioux City, Neb. It is the first underwater cable to span the Missouri River and will replace two aerial cables extending over the combination bridge.

This submarine cable measures 2,300 feet in length all in one piece. It is four inches in diameter and weighs more than twenty pounds to the foot. The weight of the entire cable is more than twenty-seven tons. Inside are contained 103 pairs of wires, more than three times the number which were provided in the aerial cables which have been in use. Over these wires will pass telephone traffic to such important centers as Minneapolis, St. Paul, Omaha and points in the South.

Because of its weight and bulkiness, the cable was cumbersome to handle and it proved a slow and tedious task to lay it. The cable was first stretched across the river through a series of pulley blocks which had been suspended from the floor of the bridge by ropes. These blocks were placed some ten feet apart and hung only a few feet above the surface of the water. The cable was threaded through the blocks with a considerable length being left on the reel so as to provide for the slack when the cable was laid in the water. The cable then had to be released from the floats and pulley blocks and sunk to the bed of the river. In some parts of the river there were sandbars where the cable had to be buried about three feet into the sand.

Two submarine cables were also laid recently across the Mississippi River at Havreport, Ia., connecting with Rock Island, Ill. These two cables will add to the existing facilities which have been served by an older telephone cable. Their completion provides a continuous cable route to Havreport from Chicago, New York and other points in the East. These cables will also carry transcontinental telephone business.

EDUCATIONAL PREPARATION A GROWING REQUIREMENT FOR SUCCESS IN MODERN BUSINESS

Death-Knell Sounded for Guesswork and Slipshod Methods by Advancing Technical Proficiency in Finance, Trade and Industry—How Banks Are Developing a Professionally Qualified Generation of Younger Bankers.

By HAROLD STONIER
American Bankers Association

The great school of experience is still holding classes in America, but the scientific spirit of the age has so generally invaded the workshops of industry and trade that they have largely become technical research and training laboratories in themselves and are no longer run on the old-fashioned cut-and-try methods of former generations when Experience was considered the only teacher. It would be hard to find a working force in any pre-eminently successful business or industrial organization in the United States today but what the dominating leadership is schooled in the scientific principles of its specific field, whether manufacturing, merchandising or finance. The rapidly advancing standards of business in this country, with their relentless demands for efficiency as the only hope for survival in the competitive struggle for economic existence, has sounded the death-knell for guesswork and slipshod methods.

HAROLD STONIER

As a result, educational preparation in the techniques of commerce, industry and finance are virtually essential to outstanding success in these fields, as it is already an absolute prerequisite in the various recognized professions. This is not to depreciate the value of native ability and experience in business, but education after all is merely a means for helping the individual to apply the net good of the accumulated experience of many to his own day's work—a means for helping special native ability to come into its own more rapidly and surely and for enabling all classes of ability to gain the maximum of success to which they are entitled.

These facts are plainly recognized by practical, work-a-day business in every line. Every progressive business organization in America is emphasizing the importance of education as never before. Education has come to be looked upon as the answer to many of the problems within the organization as well as to problems affecting industry as a whole.

Business Organizing Institutes
Institutes for developing specifically qualified workers are being operated or organized in many fields of commercial and industrial activity. These institutes are trying various types of educational work with a distinct trend toward more and more emphasis upon education for the rank and file of business employees of all grades.

We have been having business failures in this country at the rate of about 2,000 a month. This score speaks for itself. It is glaring evidence of incompetence on the part of thousands of business men in handling the problems inherent in their fields of endeavor. The detailed records show that practically 75% of business failure in this country is due to lack of training and competence on the part of those who failed. This is conclusive evidence that no one can afford to undertake executive business responsibilities without adequate education and training. It is for that reason that every enlightened business organization is today insisting as never before that its employees take advantage of some type of technical training.

American banking is fortunate and has just cause for pride in that it has a record of twenty-eight years of definitely organized educational activity among its workers in its credit for developing trained bankers. People in banks in large numbers are taking advantage of the educational opportunity given by the great non-commercial college of the banking business, the American Institute of Banking. They see on every hand evidences of the value of the training it gives. Of the 10,000 graduates of this Institute, 75% now occupy official positions in American banks. The other 25% are still too young to have attained such heights. Here is an example and an encouragement to the people of all lines of business.

The American Institute of Banking has a membership of 44,320. Of these 33,551 are class enrollees, comprising younger bank people, both men and women, who are learning the scientific technique of their chosen business at the same time they are engaged in the practical work of earning their livings at it. The difference between the 33,551 enrolled in classes and the 44,320 total membership comprises older bankers who have taken the Institute course in the past or are at the present time sponsoring some type of educational work in the organization.

Banking Educates Its People
It has been estimated that there are probably 375,000 bank officers and employees in the United States at the present time. These figures would mean that about one banker in every six is either enrolled in Institute classes in banking or is actively supporting some educational function of the organization. No statement could possibly give more emphatically the importance placed on education by the banking interests of America than these facts.
This American Institute of Banking is the educational section of the American Bankers Association. It was formed twenty-eight years ago by bank employees and officers and has been carried on ever since as a voluntary organization. Many students who have graduated continue their membership in order to give active support to some type of educational work other than the actual class program.

The greater part of the educational work is carried on in 200 cities and towns in the United States. Here the local chapter of the American Institute of Banking has its regularly organized courses of study under supervision of the national body with local instructors and directors to fulfil the standard requirements regarding text material, classwork and examinations. Instructors are recruited from the ranks of leading universities, from members of the legal profession and from among accountants and bank men who have made a record in some field of activity in banking that marks them as experts. All instructors must be approved by the national organization. They are compensated by the local units. The students pay tuition, in which they are frequently aided by their employing banks, and this, together with contributions made by the banks for general classroom overhead, finances the educational program.

Education a Pathway to Advancement
Leading banks in various parts of the country are insisting that their employees take work in the Institute. This is frequently a part of their contract of employment at the time they enter the bank. It is also now quite generally understood in the field of American banking that study in the American Institute of Banking is considered one of the basic factors in the promotion of the individual to a place of importance in a bank.

The Standard Certificate of the American Institute of Banking is annually gaining a greater and wider recognition among practical bankers throughout the United States. These certificates are coming to have the same importance in the banking world that certificates of education have in the field of the general professions. This is a practical example and one thoroughly well demonstrated by seasoned experience of the new spirit of American business.

ONE COW VS. ONE DOZEN

"Why milk twelve poor cows when one good cow will do the work of the twelve?" asks the bulletin of the American Bankers Association Agricultural Commission. It declares that analysis of more than 100,000 individual yearly records from cows on test in dairy herd improvement associations indicate that on the average: Cows that produced 100 lbs. butterfat a year returned $14 each over feed cost; Cows that produced 200 lbs. butterfat a year returned $54 each over feed cost; Cows that produced 300 lbs. butterfat a year returned $84 each over feed cost; Cows that produced 400 lbs. butterfat a year returned $134 each over feed cost; Cows that produced 500 lbs. butterfat a year returned $174 each over feed cost.

In other words, one 500-pound producer will return $10 more over feed cost than twelve 100 lb. producers. This does not take into account, either, the added labor of milking and caring for the larger herd, or the much greater expense of providing stable room for a dozen instead of a single animal. The figures are based on farm prices from all parts of the country.

Undoubtedly the aforesaid Dutchman got a bargain, but even the shrewd trader could hardly have foreseen the great metropolis which has spread over the 24,346 acres purchased from the aborigines at so trifling a cost. He might have visualized a great aspect but his wisest fancy could not have conceived a magic city of sky-raping buildings, great bridges and towering millions, of which the island of Manhattan is the heart. The offices are constantly being added.

BABY OF BELL SYSTEM FAMILY HAS BUSY YEAR

Nearly 750,000,000 telephone calls were handled over the Bell lines in the State of New Jersey during 1928, and more than 40,000 telephones were added, making a total of 623,000 Bell telephones in service in New Jersey at the beginning of 1929.

The New Jersey Bell Telephone Company, the youngest of the Associated Bell Companies, expanded its plant during the year to the extent of $15,000,000. This expansion included the addition of new equipment and the extension of local and toll lines by more than 170,000 miles of wire. More than half of this wire was placed underground in storm-proof cable. For 1929 a still wider expansion is planned.

Lincoln County Girls Win in County Contest at Vegas

In the basketball contest between girl teams of the different counties represented at the New Mexico Normal gymnasium in Las Vegas, the Lincoln County team won over all contestants.

The first game was between Quay and Union, Quay winning by one point. Valencia and San Miguel forfeited their games to Quay, leaving Lincoln and Torrance to play, Lincoln being the winner by 23 to 7. Lincoln and Colfax then played, but Colfax suffered worse than Torrance. Lincoln 24-Colfax 4, leaving Lincoln and Quay to fight it out.

The excitement was at a high pitch and both teams were determined and at the end of the first quarter the score was 2 to 0 in Quay's favor, but at the half, Lincoln was ahead to the tune of 4 to 2 and at the final, the score was 16 to 10 in favor of Lincoln County.

The line-up for Lincoln was, Bessie and Mary Ferguson, Guards; Louise Fritz and Callie Morris, Centers; Dorothy Wright and Ethel Johnson, Forwards; Maudie Fritz and Clara Fritz Lowe, substitutes.

36-Duplicating the Swing. The best golfer is the one who can the most consistently duplicate the right swing. By no possibility can the ball reach the desired spot unless the stroke is good. Every poor player occasionally has made a shot which he or she stores in memory as a wonder. That result must have been obtained by a good stroke. Of course it was accidental if there is little knowledge by the player of the mechanics of the swing and no ability to duplicate the accidentally good swing. You can't hit a golf ball a thousand times without hitting it correctly a time or two.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Huge Treasury Surplus May Bring About Another Cut in Federal Taxes.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

SECRETARY of the Treasury Mellon announced that the treasury surplus for the fiscal year ending June 30 was $185,000,000. Actual reduction in the public debt during the year was $373,000,000. The surplus would have warranted a total reduction of approximately $735,000,000, the additional amount being carried temporarily as an increase in the net balance in the general fund.

The surplus was accounted for largely by the unexpectedly large income tax receipts in March and June of this year based on abnormal profits from stock speculations during the year 1929. The huge 1929 earnings will be further reflected in the September and December income tax payments. The surplus for the calendar year 1929 may easily exceed $500,000,000, unless it is greatly cut down by loans under the farm relief act, for which $150,000,000 already has been appropriated.

Following Secretary Mellon's statement, President Hoover made it known that "careful study" was being made of the question of further reduction of federal taxes, and it was inferred that he probably would recommend another cut in his December message to congress. Three things, he said, must first be determined. These are the effect of legislation during the last twelve months which has increased expenditures far beyond the budget; how far the expenditures of the government in other directions can be reduced; and how far the increase in revenue is due to the temporary stock exchange activity.

The President evidently believes that it will not be necessary to wait until the March, 1930, tax returns are available before determining whether income tax revenues may be expected to continue at their present volume. The administration program for tax reduction is likely to include a greater deduction for earned income and a reduction in the tax on corporation earnings.

ALEXANDER Legge of Chicago, president of the International Harvester company, had accepted appointment as a member of the federal farm board and will be its chairman for the first year. Other members elected by President Hoover and who have accepted are James C. Stone of Kentucky, representing tobacco cooperatives; C. C. Teague of California, fruit cooperatives; C. B. Denman of Missouri, president of the National Livestock Producers' association, and Carl Williams of Oklahoma, editor of a farm paper and identified with wheat and cotton cooperatives. W. S. Moscrip of Minnesota, an official of dairy cooperatives, was offered a place on the board but at the time of writing had not accepted.

Mr. Legge, according to the President, is making as great a sacrifice as any citizen who ever entered the public service. He is surrendering a salary of more than $100,000 a year to accept a place that pays $12,000 yearly. It is believed he will resign after one year and return to private business, but in the meantime, Mr. Hoover hopes, he will have worked out the solution of the farm problem. During the war Mr. Legge was vice chairman of the war industries board and manager of the allied purchasing commission, doing invaluable work.

IT WAS officially announced at the White House that President Hoover will call a national conference within the next year to discuss the health and protection of children. Dr. May Lyman Wilson, secretary of the Interior, with the cooperation of Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, will direct the work of the conference. Dr. Harry H. Bernard, former state health commissioner of Indiana, has been selected as executive secretary. The cost of financing the conference will be paid out of a $500,000 fund placed at the disposal of the President from private sources.

According to Mr. Hoover's statement, "the subjects to be covered embrace problems of dependent children; regular medical examination; school or public clinics for children; hospitalization; adequate milk supplies; community nurses; maternity instruction and nurses; teaching of health in the schools; facilities for playgrounds and recreation; voluntary organization of children; child labor and scores of allied subjects."

RUMORS spread all over the country to the effect that Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary in charge of customs, prohibition and coast guard operations, and James M. Doran, prohibition commissioner, had been or soon would be asked to resign at the instance of President Hoover. This was vigorously denied at the White House, and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon said in a signed statement: "There is no truth in these reports, and there are no facts to justify the circulation of rumors of this character, which do an injustice to two gentlemen who are performing a difficult task with a high degree of ability and devotion, and who have in full measure my confidence and support."

The American Automobile association at its annual convention in Buffalo took cognizance of the methods of quick-trigger enforcement agents which its members said, were endangering the lives of innocent automobile tourists along the Canadian border. President Thomas P. Henry of Detroit and others dealt with the matter in their addresses.

Representative Tinkham of Massachusetts in a letter to Attorney General Mitchell demanded the prosecution of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church for violation of the federal corrupt practices act, asserting that the board is a political organization as defined by that act and that it has failed to file itemized statements of its expenditures for the last four years. Dretz Mitchell, research secretary of the board, denied there was a basis for its prosecution. He stated that no expenditures had been made which he felt were reportable under the corrupt practices act, and declared that the act was not intended to curtail the right of free speech. He also reported that the board had spent less money in 1929 than the average annual expenditures of the five years preceding.

BOBBY JONES, the eminent amateur golfer of Atlanta, is again the national open champion. In the tournament at the Winged Foot Club, Mamaroneck, N. Y., he fell into a bad streak of playing—that is, bad for him—and was tied for first place with Al Espinosa, professional. Each of them took 204 strokes for 72 holes. In the play-off at 90 holes Bobby had regained his form and Espinosa was at his worst, so the Atlanta won easily with 141 to 161. This is the third time Mr. Jones has captured the national open championship.

KING GEORGE'S speech from the throne, read to the British parliament by Lord Chancellor Sankey and of course representing the program of the new Labor government, was not at all startling and was far from extremely radical. The most important promises made by the MacDonald regime were that efforts would be made toward disarmament, that there would be diplomatic recognition and resumption of trade relations with Soviet Russia, that unemployment conditions would be improved and that numerous industrial bills would be investigated. The address mentioned favorable conclusions of the reparations conference and preparation for a second conference of governments which may climax its work with arrangements for evacuation of the Rhineland. It then said of disarmament:

"Conversations have commenced with the ambassador of the United States of America on the subject of naval disarmament in consequence of which it is the earnest hope of my government to issue in co-operation with my governments in the dominions, the government of India and the governments of foreign powers, an early reduction of armaments throughout the world."

One of the most important announcements was that the MacDonald government intends to tackle the liquor problem, at least by investigation, and has decided to appoint a commission at an early date to examine the whole field of legislation relating to sale and supply of intoxicating liquor. The only suggestion of real socialism in the message was a hint that the nationalization of mining royalties might be proposed after an inquiry.

FOR reasons that are decidedly obscure to Americans, Baron Tanaka and his ministry in Japan have been forced to resign after carrying on successfully for a considerable time. Yugo Hamaguchi, leader of the Liberals, was summoned by the emperor to form a new cabinet. Premier Tanaka's downfall was attributed chiefly to alleged mishandling of the Manchurian situation last year and to the government's failure to protect Marshal Chang Tso-lin from assassination at Mukden. In Tokio it is asserted that the general staff and the elder statesmen demanded that he quit after his management made a necessary severe discipline of the Japanese officers concerned in guarding the railway crossing where Chang was killed, and thus lowered Japan's military and international prestige. Lieut. Gen. Chotaro Murakami, who commanded the Japanese army in Manchuria at the time of the assassination, has just been relegated to the reserve list without being promoted to the rank of a full general; he was succeeded by Gen. Eitaro Hata.

Tanaka also was blamed for bad handling of the ratification of the Kellogg peace pact, which was accomplished a few days ago. It was said he permitted too much opposition to develop. Just before resigning Tanaka and some of the cabinet members were decorated with honorary imperial orders.

CHINA is planning to make itself a sea power of considerable importance and will develop a modern naval base on the Chekiang river. The Nationalist government announces that it has signed an agreement with Great Britain providing for the training of Chinese naval cadets in England and has engaged a British naval vessel to assist in the development of its navy. It is understood that British shipyards will receive contracts for the building of Chinese warships. Most of China's war vessels were bought from England and Germany 29 years ago, but she has lately built a good-sized fleet of light craft in her own shipyards. In 1927 President Chiang Kai-shek said it was China's intention not to be bound by any agreements pertaining to naval limitation which the powers might make.

DESPITE strict censorship, reports are coming from Italy indicating that Mussolini and his Fascist regime are having difficulties in various districts. Provincial party secretaries have been changed, and two members of the chamber of deputies have been suspended without announced reason. The Fascist police are reported to have arrested 36 former leaders of Italian Masonry following the recent decisions of Masons in Paris to re-establish contact with the Masons in Italy. The country has an adverse trade balance and in consequence economic conditions have become unsatisfactory. Premier Mussolini summoned a meeting of the cabinet for July 13 and there may be a general shifting of officials.

SPAIN'S government is taking measures to check the fall of the peseta and pave the way for a return to the gold standard. Among the relief measures are: Formation of a national council to encourage consumption of home products and thus limit importations; regulation of foreign machinery imports, particularly for public works; restrictions of imports which currently enjoy reduced customs duties; stimulation of home production of tobacco, wheat, cotton, and corn; and protection for the Spanish automobile industry.

The New Mexico state tax commission has reduced the valuation of the Elena Gallegos grant from $1 to 75 cents an acre, but denied a cut on the Pajarito grant, also assessed by the county authorities at $1, after an inspection of the lands in Bernalillo county, Chief Tax Commissioner Nathan Jaffa announced in Santa Fe recently.

Superintendent Bolles of Carlsbad cavern stated in Carlsbad that rumors emanating from Texas that the cavern had been closed to tourists because of a lake forming above the cavern were false. "Since the entrance to the cavern is 500 feet above the plains," Mr. Bolles said, "it would be physically impossible for a lake to form above the cave."

Continued subdivisions of the larger farms in the Salt river irrigation project in Arizona have cut down the average size farm from forty-five acres some ten years ago to twenty-seven and one-half acres at the present time. Population of the project was estimated at the present time as 35,000. There are 3,743 farms on the 245,000 acres of the project.

With the increasing summer traffic on highways, deaths from automobile accidents in New Mexico increased during May. Six persons were killed in automobile wrecks, one of thirty who met death from violence during the month. Eight persons died from gunshot wounds, four of them being homicide cases. The number of homicide cases was about three times the monthly average.

The state of New Mexico wants to find a member of the Pojuaque tribe of Indians. If one lives today he's the owner of the famous old pueblo of Pojuaque, near here, and, incidentally, a fortune is waiting for him. The attorney general of New Mexico recently broadcast the call for the Pojuaque. His action followed a request from the department of public lands to render a decision concerning title to the unclaimed pueblo.

With a capitalization of $2,500,000, a merger of virtually all the commercial airlines in Arizona, which will result in the construction of a huge airplane factory in Phoenix, will be formally incorporated within a few days. The first million dollars for completion of the plans already has been underwritten by a large New York banking house, it is reported in Phoenix, and construction work on the factory will be commenced immediately.

New Mexico has a deficit in the general appropriations account of $176,809.55 at the end of the seventeenth fiscal year, July 30, including $9,769.18 for the seventeenth year, State Auditor Ulbarri stated in Santa Fe. The deficit was $330,264.38 at the end of the sixteenth year. On the face of these figures there appears to be a reduction. The cut, however, is only in bookkeeping, Mr. Ulbarri said. There have been issued $20,000 casual certificates of indebtedness, authorized by the ninth state legislature, which will have to be paid by a special tax levy, he said.

Richard Meyers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Darius Meyers, prominent Santa Fe artists, has entered training at the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Surety bond of $25,000 has been filed with the Arizona state treasurer in Phoenix for the International Automobile Association, by George W. Combs, president of the company, qualifying it to continue operations in Arizona, under an order issued by the corporation commissioner June 17, setting forth that all automobile clubs in the state must file a bond.

"Vaccine" Said to End Poison Ivy Suffering

The affliction from poison ivy is now treated in the same way that hay fever is combated—that is, by injecting into the sufferer minute quantities of extract of the very poison which causes the distress. This has been found effective both as a preventive measure and as a method of treatment. An injection of the poison ivy antigen, which is an extract made up of poison ivy leaves, acts in the same manner as a vaccine. It usually requires about three injections into muscular tissue for the cure of a case. Within 24 hours after the injection the itching ceases and the irritation begins to disappear. This treatment immunizes the patient against an attack of poison ivy for about two months. However, the patient is again susceptible the following season. It also is possible before the season begins to give one injection of poison ivy antigen and thus afford immunity from the affliction for three or four months.—Washington Star.

Value of Resistance

No doubt a world in which matter never got-out of place and became dirt, in which iron had no flaws and wood no cracks, in which gardens had no weeds and food grew ready cooked, in which clothes never wore out and washing was as easy as advertisements describe it, in which the right word was not hard to find and rules had no exceptions, and things never went wrong, would be a much easier place to live in. But for purposes of training and development it would be worth nothing at all. It is the resistance that puts us on our mettle; it is the conquest of the reluctant stuff that educates the worker. I wish you enough difficulties to keep you and make you strong and skillful.—Henry Van Dyke.

Power From Pit-Head

Some of the collieries of France are not only producing coal but power as well for the use of neighboring industries. The current is also made use of for operating the mine machinery. This enables them to consume not only any excess coal but also the unmarketable low-grade coal and dust. Since the war, six such power plants have been constructed. These are interconnected and range in capacity from 20,000 to 100,000 kilowatts.

We are very modest and hesitate to speak about such remissnesses.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Cow to the Rescue Being chased by a bear and rescued by a cow was the experience of Mrs. Fred Howard, of Straight, Pa. She was fishing near her home when a bear and her four cubs appeared. Mrs. Howard's screams attracted her husband and also a cow, which gave chase to the bear. The cubs made no effort to escape and climbed an apple tree.

DR. CALDWELL'S THREE RULES

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will come from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate systems and is not habit forming. The Doctor never did approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Get a bottle today, at any drugstore and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open. For a free trial bottle, just write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois.

Lesson for July 21

EZEKIEL'S VISION OF HOPE

LESSON TEXT—Ezekiel 47:1-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Ezekiel's Message of Hope.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Ezekiel's Message of Hope.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Will the Right Finally Win?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Cure for the World's Ills.

Ezekiel's final vision, chapters 40 to 48, exhibits a comprehensive view of the restored order when the Messiah shall hold sway over the whole earth. Our lesson for today is but a small part of this vision. It can be understood only in the light of the whole. The following outstanding facts should be noted:

1. The restored temple (chs. 40-42).
2. The return of Jehovah. (ch. 43).
- In chapter 11 the Lord is seen taking His departure. In chapter 43 He is seen returning.
3. The arrangement of the services of the temple (chs. 44-46).
4. The river flowing from the temple (47:1-12).
5. The land apportioned among the people (47:13-48:29).
6. The holy city (48:30-35).

In the attempted interpretation of this vision, some five different views are held. The one preferred by the present writer is that it is a prediction of the temple which shall be erected in Messianic times. The literal view prevents wild speculation and at the same time permits the fullest figurative application. In fact, the Holy Spirit gives the interpretation of the waters flowing from the smitten rock (1 Cor. 10:4) in such a way as to leave no doubt as to its meaning. The river flowing forth from the sanctuary typifies the river of life, the salvation of Christ flowing forth to the world. Observe:

I. The River's Source (vv. 1, 2).
It flows forth from the house—the restored temple where God has come to dwell. It flows from the divine presence. This flowing of the waters is miraculous. So is the eternal life which proceeds from Calvary's cross. Because Christ is divine, His shed blood has power to give life. It is to be noted that the stream came by way of the altar (v. 1), showing that eternal life for the world proceeds from God by way of the cross. Perhaps the deepest mystery of life is how life can spring out of death. Despite its mystery, the student of the Holy Scriptures and of physical science knows that life out of death is the philosophy of the universe. "Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone."

II. The Deepening River (vv. 3-5).
The deepening and enlarging is without any tributaries. For the first quarter mile the depth was to the ankles. By the time it had reached one-half mile it was to the knees. Till the distance of three-fourths mile was reached it was to the waist, and at the end of the first mile it was too deep to ford—"waters to swim in." The spiritual truth to be derived from this figure is that the life and salvation which have flowed forth from Calvary made vital by the Holy Spirit, have widened and deepened through the centuries and dispensations. This is especially true of the individual who yields himself to the Holy Spirit.

III. The Healing Effect of the Waters (vv. 6-21).
There is life in the progress of this river. "Everything shall live whithersoever the river cometh" (v. 9). It flows from the altar toward the east country down into the desert and into the Dead sea. "The region of the Dead sea which has been the embodiment of barrenness and desolation, in the coming day is to be changed into a scene of life and fruitfulness."—Gray.

1. Trees on the banks of the river (vv. 7, 8).
Just as vegetation flourishes near the river, so wherever Christ's salvation is witnessed to in the energy of the Holy Ghost, life comes. This has been true throughout the centuries of church history. The details of fruitfulness are enumerated in verse 12.

2. Everything in the waters shall live (v. 9).
Wherever the stream flows, there shall be life.

3. The waters of the Dead sea shall be healed (v. 10).
Fishers shall gather from the Dead sea even as from the Mediterranean. The gospel brings life to those in trespasses and sin. The world is dead and therefore in need of the life-giving stream from Calvary.

Christianity

The distinction between Christianity and all other systems of religion consists largely in this, that in these others men are found seeking after God, while Christianity is God seeking after men.—T. Arnold.

Sulphur in Meteorite

That Fell in Arizona

The ether regions traditional source of "fire and brimstone," are not alone in their quota of sulphur. A meteorite, which descended from the sky to a group of Indian ruins about five miles from Winona, Ariz., and which was discovered by a flagstaff oiling station operator, has been found to contain more than 5 per cent of sulphur. This has been determined after analysis by two geologists.

The meteorite was egg-shaped, but badly decomposed as a result of the years that have elapsed since it fell. It was buried ten inches below the ground. It is of the stony type, but contained small amounts of iron. The sulphur was present in the form of iron sulphide.—Kansas City Star's Science Service.

Alfonso's New Name
Cosden Cobb, the millionaire tobacco planter of Kentucky, said on disembarking from the Berengaria in New York:

"I met the king of Spain in London. He isn't as gay in dress as he used to be, but he is gayer than ever in spirit.

"When I congratulated him on the engagement of Primo de Rivera he gave a gay laugh.

"Oh," he said, "you mustn't call me King Alfonso any more. My name is Segundo de Rivera now."

Numbered Jurymen Next
Europe is watching with great interest the result of the plan of President Cosgrave of the executive council of the Irish Free State to circumvent the intimidation of jurors and witnesses. A bill introduced in the dail by him provides for the secrecy of jury panels, identification of jurors by numbers instead of names and secret hearings of all cases where the police superintendent testifies that it is necessary for the safety of jurors and witnesses.

MOTOR FUELS & LUBRICANTS

PERSONALS

T. M. DuBois
Corona wool-grower, was a Carrizozo business visitor last Saturday. Tom has had an unusual good season and is now ready to dispose of his wool, which we presume was the chief object of his visit.

BORN—At Carrizozo, Friday, July 12, to Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Jones of Corona, a girl. Mother and daughter are doing nicely.

Albert S. Roberts
Deputy Revenue Collector, was a Carrizozo business visitor last Friday and Saturday, leaving for El Paso Sunday evening.

Mrs. Esteban Medina
and daughter, Mrs. Isaac Marquez, came in on No. 1 Tuesday morning and after spending the day with the Saturnino, Alex and Joe Chavez families, proceeded to El Paso to be at the bedside of Mr. Medina, who underwent a serious operation at Hotel Dieu the latter part of last week. The family reside at Tucumcari.

Mrs. Meyer Barnett
children, father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Johnson, left Sunday morning for Tucson, Arizona, where they will visit Carroll Johnson, after which they will visit all places of interest in the state. They expect to be absent several weeks.

Mrs. Thos. McDonald
and daughter Anna were Carrizozo visitors from their home in Oscura on Tuesday of this week.

Mrs. G. D. Young
proprietress of the Style Shoppe, spent Sunday in Tucumcari.

John Scharff
of Three Rivers spent several days in Carrizozo last week.

FOR SALE—Bed Springs and Mattress.—Apply to Mrs. R. A. Walker, Star Market and Cafe.

Chavez—Pacheco
Tuesday evening at six o'clock at the Santa Rita church, Simon Chavez and Miss Sofia Pacheco were united in marriage, the same of which was solemnized by the Rev. Father Reyes, pastor of that church. The young couple are well known here and are much esteemed by the local Spanish-American populace, all of whom wish them unending happiness. The bride's father, Juan Pacheco, is highly recognized in the "Union Catolica Guadalupeana," of which fraternity he is the Advisor. Jailer Sam Farmer served as best man and Mrs. Farmer as bridesmaid.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Titworth of Capitan, were Carrizozo visitors last Friday, returning in the afternoon.

Revival Meeting at Corona was begun by the Baptist pastor and Rev. J. W. Williams, pastor at Hot Springs. Attend these services if you can and "Let God Lead" is the slogan of this meeting. All Christians are invited to co-operate in these services.

Mr. and Mrs. L. P. McClintock
left Tuesday morning for Texas, where they will spend about one month, during which time they will take in the principal parts of interest and will visit relatives. They had intended to start last week, but Mrs. McClintock was taken ill on the day they had intended to leave, hence the delay.

Mrs. M. L. Blaney
Mother Advisor of the Rainbow Chapter for Girls, met with the members in their regular meeting last Friday evening and after the close, Mrs. Blaney entertained them at her home with a suitable program which ended with the hostess serving refreshments. This, with other means for the good and welfare of the girls, is practiced by the Mother Advisor which they look forward to with much pleasure. The membership is not confined to Carrizozo, but some are from Capitan, Corona and Ancho. The next regular meeting will take place at Masonic Temple on the evening of July 26. Members will please take notice and plan to attend, if possible.

Florentino Lopez
one of the soft drinks dispensers at Rolland's Drug Store, made a business trip to Tucumcari last Saturday, returning Monday morning on No. 1. Alfredo, his brother, donned the apron behind the fountain while "Tino" was absent.

Bob Brady
father of our young and alert sheriff, Johnny Brady, was a Carrizozo business visitor this week.

Mrs. Shirley Phipps
is now showing a nice line of ladies' silk dresses, lingerie, fancy sox and ladies' handkerchiefs. She extends the public an invitation to call and see the new lines. Drop in and look the stock over.

The Silva Boys
Frederick and Vidal, were Carrizozo visitors from their home in the Tucson mountains on Monday of this week. We can now account for Fred's frequent trips to town—he courts a certain beautiful "Senorita" from the east side, and the magician with the Moncibals Show, which was recently in town, was not far from wrong when he made a declaration. Fred was not present, but you ought to have seen her blush!

The Infant
son of Mr. and Mrs. Jose Dias died Monday morning at the home of the parents and was buried Tuesday morning in the local cemetery.

Here's a Good One!
Went to see a friend the other day and he said: "Open de date so I can drive out de doats."
Come and see us and make yourself at home. Our "date" is open to you at all times.

Mrs. T. J. Straley
son, Captain Straley, daughter, Mrs. A. B. Knight and son, Tommy were here from Ancho Wednesday, on their way to California, where they will spend several weeks in visiting principal places of interest. Captain Straley is in the service of the government at the border and is on a leave-of-absence for his vacation.

Mrs. Charles Terrell daughter Elgiva, son, Charles Bryce and mother, Mrs. A. R. Duggar and son, were down from the Duggar ranch in the Tecolote canyon Wednesday, where Mrs. Terrell is spending about six weeks to escape the hot weather in El Paso, after which time they will take a trip to California and return to El Paso in time for the opening of the fall school term.

Floy Skinner
the efficient superintendent of the Bonito water service for the Southern Pacific, was here attending to some official duties on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. U. Finley
Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Pilant, daughter Judith and Mr. Morris, general distributor for the Firestone Tire people, spent several days at Cloudercroft, leaving here Saturday and returning Tuesday. They report a pleasant trip and a good time.

Mrs. George Benson
and little niece, Viola Arnold of Tucumcari are guests of Mesdames Frank Abel and S. O. Sproles. During their visit, they spent a week with Mrs. Abel at her summer cottage on the Ruidoso. Mrs. Benson is the wife of engineer Benson, the family residing here for several years when George was running from here to Duran before the S. P. took over the E. P. & S. W.

Dr. F. S. Randles
who had been in Carrizozo from Mammoth, Ariz., for a week, left Monday on receipt of a message from a mining company in whose employ he had been for the past two years. He was to have remained here for two weeks, but the demand for his services at the mines, necessitated his return sooner than expected. It is ever thus with men who "know their onions," Doc.

Lincoln Forest Notes

Alejandro Chavez and Albert De la Rosa were arrested and taken to Alamogordo July 15, by Deputy Sheriff Lon Hunter and Ranger J. A. Work, charged with breaking a Forest Service telephone line near the Sacramento River.

The line was in use between the Sacramento lookout and the road camp on Sacramento River for fire protection purposes. It was found broken in seven places just after the above men had gone over the trail between the camp and the lookout.

This offense constitutes a felony under Federal law, the maximum penalty being 3 years imprisonment and $1000 fine, but because of the apparent ignorance of the defendants they were prosecuted under the more lenient State law. They were found guilty, Chavez receiving a fine of $25 and costs and De la Rosa receiving a jail sentence of twenty days, which was suspended when it was found that he had made illegal entry to the United States, and was turned over to the Immigration officers for deportation.

The Cogdell Brothers

Willard, Earl and Holland, were here for several days this week looking over their homesteads in the Gran Quivira region. The Cogdell Brothers conduct a thriving plumbing and electric business at Abilene, Texas, but they like our section of New Mexico, hence their desire to own land in these parts and pay us an occasional visit. Come again, boys!
