Whoopee!

Arrangements for the big Southwestern Range Stock Show and Round-up to be held in El Paso Sept. 27-28-29, are about completed to make the coming event the biggest and grandest ever seen on the Rio Grande. Many places will be represented in the affair, and Carrizozo has made its choice for the lady to represent our town, in the person of Mrs. H. C. Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Reilly. The Reillys have long been stock people of our community and Mrs. Jones has had considerable experience in riding, which comes handy to her when the parades are staged. As stated in previous articles concerning the big event, the lady representative will represent Carrizozo in the parade and at all social functions from time to time during the 3 days of the big show.

The lady representative must have a Carrizozo escort and the committee which made the selection of Mrs. Jones, has also selected L. A. Whitaker of the Whoopee!

Western Motors, Inc., to act as the escort in the parades and at the social functions.

Mr. Whitaker is well acquainted with everybody connected with the big show and is also accustomed to riding. His figure, clad in cowboy attire, riding at the side of the little lady representative, will give Carrizozo a good amount of advertising as well as to make a strong argument in favor of the town in the affair, as a whole. The costumes for Mrs. Jones and Mr. Whitaker are being made and by the time the bell rings for the start, we will be with them (and we don't mean maybe, either.)

Mr. R. C. Sowder, one of the Vice-Presidents of the association, has donated liberally to the event, as well as spent much time in assisting in the arrangements for the big show. We will be there for the sound of the gong when the time comes and Carrizozo's slogan is: "Tell El Paso We Are Coming."

is receiving splendid co-operation from adjoining towns and there are no conflicting dates we know of.

Following is an extract from the letter of the Pres. of Roswell C. of C., J. S. B. Woolford: "I am sure that our Fair Association will appreciate very much your action in vacating your dates for your Fair. We hope that you will come to the Cotton Carnival and call on us." Dates, Oct. 9-10-11-12.

The following from the Secretary, Claud Simpson: "I want to concur heartily in what Dr. Woolford told you. It was certainly a fine spirit on the part of you people to change your dates and I want to assure you that I am eager to do everything I can to show our appreciation."

From the El Paso C. of C., D. O. Bandeen, Executive Vice-Pres. and General Manager: "Thank you for your communications regarding the Lincoln County Fair and Track Meet and your kind invitation to attend. We shall certainly try to be represented. Meanwhile we are giving the matter of change of

National Bank for Alamogordo

E. M. Brickley, banking man of Carrizozo, was here Tuesday and made the announcement that a new bank is to be established here by himself and associates as soon as necessary formalities can be completed.

Application has been made for a National Bank charter and it is expected arrangements will be completed in a very short time.

The new institution will be affiliated with the H. B. Jones system, with banks at Tucumcari, Santa Rosa, Carrizozo, Willard, and Mountainair.

The Jones system is strong financially, and Mr. Brickley, its representative in the new organization here, is well known as a banker and business man.

He was formerly state senator from his district, and his financial standing is unquestioned. —Alamogordo Advertiser.

School Notes

Alice M. French, Co. School Superintendent

The Lincoln County Schools opened Monday, Sept. 2. While a few of the outlying schools have not been heard from, practically all schools started with a slight increase in attendance over last year. This shows that our county is developing and our population, growing. Having had an abundance of rain and abundant crops, we understand there will not be nearly so many of our children go away to the cotton fields this year as they have been doing for several years past. This will mean better attendance and more efficient work in the schools.

A meeting of the Lincoln County Teachers is being held today. Registers and general supplies will be given out, also sample copies of supplementary books and other materials. Dr. Johnson, County Health Officer, will talk to the teachers on the importance of having the children vaccinated and arrangements will be made to have this done at earliest possible date. After the business meeting, the following program will be given: Address to Teachers, John A. Haley, Pres. Co. Board; Daily Preparation of the Rural Teacher, C. V. Koogler, Supt., Capitan School; Music in the Rural School, Mrs. A. D. Boucher, Primary Teacher, Corona School; Teaching English to the Spanish-American Child, Mr. Freeman, Supt., Hon-do School.

peace-loving people of that country, they saw much different conditions. True to its name, this country is still enjoying comfort and plenty.

They were much longer going over than returning, mainly due to faster speed of the returning vessel and storms they encountered on the seas in going over. They presented this office with a fine German briar pipe and a purse—and as the latter is oftentimes lean and lank, it will be much appreciated as when it is filled. As often as the pipe is smoked, we will think of the Zieglers.

Before leaving New York, Mr. Ziegler purchased his fall and winter stock which will begin to arrive shortly.

All join in welcoming them home.

Mrs. J. A. Brown

Dr. Chase and Mr. King, all from Chanute, Kansas, came in Monday in the interest of a tuberculosis hospital which they wished to propose to the people of Carrizozo, and a meeting was held Monday night at Community Hall for the purpose of placing their proposition before the people. A good-sized audience greeted the visitors; Mayor McQuillen opened the meeting, stated the object of the same, after which he introduced the visitors who made talks and fully explained the object of their proposition.

Their mission as outlined by Dr. Chase and Mr. King, was to erect an up-to-date hospital near Carrizozo, where patients could be sent from all parts of the country, and in consideration of the suitable altitude, this location would meet with the approval of leading physicians everywhere, the visitors said.

After fully explaining the object of their visit, several citizens of Carrizozo made short talks, but in consideration of the fact that a more representative collection of citizens would be required, many being away from town, no definite action was taken, and the visitors left Tuesday morning. Their proposition in the matter is now under advisement and later developments are expected.

D. A. Saunders

Night Chief Dispatcher in the Southern Pacific offices at El Paso, came up Thursday night, attended the monthly meeting of Comet Chapter No. 29 O.E.S., and left this morning after giving his old Carrizozo friends a hearty handshake. "Sandy" looks well and we were glad to meet him again.

'Mickey' McNeill

Daniel Kusianovich, Eric Williams and John McLaughlin were business visitors from Fort Stanton yesterday, returning to the Fort in the afternoon.

The Carrizozo Schools

Mrs. R. C. Miller

daughter, Elizabeth and son, Rayburn, are here this week visiting the J. D. Chandler family. They were accompanied from their home in Amarillo, by Mr. Miller and Mary Catherine Chandler, Mrs. Miller's sister, but they returned Sunday, so that Mary could be at Amarillo to attend college on Monday.

Fairy Tale for Children

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"I will tell you," said the gray wolf to the prairie wolf in the next yard in the zoo, "why this life is not so thrilling."

"Do," said the prairie wolf. The gray wolf snatched his lips together as though he wanted to tell his story.

"The zoo isn't nearly so thrilling as wild, free life, not nearly, not nearly."

"I know that," said the prairie wolf, "but I'm ready to hear your reasons."

"Now listen, prairie wolf, there are many creatures who are always saying: "Oh, that is no better than I could have done, or I could have said as much as that, or I was just going to say that."

"Ah," said the Gray Wolf.

"In many cases it may be quite true, but I don't like a creature to try to get the credit for something some one else has done."

"Just suppose a person made a fine speech and some cross, jealous person said:

"Oh, I could have made just as fine a speech, it wouldn't be so nice. Take my advice, young prairie wolf, don't try to get all the credit for what everyone else has done too."

"When you tell a story I won't try to make it mine."

"All right," said the prairie wolf, "so please continue."

"Ah," said the gray wolf, "I am known by many names."

"Sometimes I am called a black wolf and sometimes a white wolf because my family moves from place to place."

"We believe a little differently in a number of different small ways and look differently in different places."

"You're mighty fond of that word 'different,'" said the prairie wolf.

"Don't be rude, young prairie wolf," said the gray wolf. "I wish to tell you that what they call me does not matter, for I have been very great in my day."

"What was your day? Thanksgiving? Christmas? Columbus day?"

"You think you're clever!" said the gray wolf. "Let me tell you I don't pay any attention to such talk."

"I wish to tell you that when I was free I was the danger of many a cattle ranch."

"Ah, what hunts and feasts and sport I have had."

"And another thing I want to tell you is that my family is interesting and they're just as wild as I was."

"They too love cattle and sheep in just the way I loved them!"

"Here in the zoo they don't give me a chance to show my love for those animals, so I think back happily of the days back when I had my chances and took them."

"Not only the days! No! Not only the days! The nights were even more important."

"Oh, such nights. Such gorgeous feasts!"

"Here it is too tame. There I was a danger to the cattle ranches."

"Here they don't let me make a danger of myself—and I can do it so easily."

"Oh, it seems a pity."

"A wolf's ways are not the ways for a zoo—they're the dangerous, wild ways of freedom and spaces and all such glorious things."

Conveniences for Bathroom

Built-in Closets and Drawers Make a Bathroom Convenient.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

When the installation of running water in an Illinois farm house was completed, it was possible to have a modern bathroom, and a small second floor room was remodeled for the purpose. Its dimensions were such that in addition to the built-in tub and other plumbing fixtures, one of the side walls could be used for specially fitted linen drawers, with two small closets suitable for storing medicines and bottles, and a roomy lower cupboard for sick-room equipment. High windows on two sides give good light. The photograph was taken by the United States Department of Agriculture. The new bathroom was part of the general home improvement carried out at the suggestion of the home demonstration agent.

Acidity

The common cause of digestive difficulties is excess acid. Soda cannot alter this condition, and it burns the stomach. Something that will neutralize the acidity is the sensible thing to take. That is why physicians tell the public to use Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this delightful preparation can neutralize many times its volume in acid. It acts instantly; relief is quick, and very apparent. All gas is expelled; all sourness is soon gone; the whole system is sweetened. Do try this perfect anti-acid, and remember it is just as good for children, too, and pleasant for them to take. Any drug store has the genuine, prescriptive product.

Novelty Sleeves in Coats

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

We may be ignoring sleeves so far as our frocks are concerned, but when it comes to the new fall coats and jackets, that's another story—one in which unusual sleeves is the dominant theme.

Even now we are seeing this reaction to desirable sleeves in that the jackets which complement midseason ensembles create a sense of "coming events" in regard to new sleeve silhouettes.

If you are interested in modish sleeves, meet Mary Philbin (in the picture) who, being one of Hollywood's shining stars, knows how to dress. Because of her knowledge of fashions she chooses this very pretty navy and yellow printed crepe sports frock, the button-trimmed flowing sleeves of which are one of its outstanding style details.

By the way, if you are casting about for a timely midsummer costume, one to bridge over between now and when cool days arrive, choose a dark print crepe. Those in the fashionable browns patterned with yellow or pumpkin or tangerine shade are just as autumn-like as fancy can picture. Wear a yellow felt hat with it, possibly a matching yellow blouse to complete the symphony in fall colorings.

Continuing with a survey of sleeve prospects, it's really surprising the extremes to which some of them are going. Some of the more formal wraps of velvet or fine cloth have deep flounces dropping from the elbows, while one-piece frocks adopt sleeves which flare a wide circular-cut ruffle. Others have the sleeve and flare cut all in one piece.

The idea of novelty is further accentuated in applied ornamentation such as embroidered or appliqued patternings, which give the sleeve a new interpretation.

Perhaps the most marked departure in the way of sleeve treatments registers in the advance for trimmed coats. Especially does the positioning of fur interpret elaborated themes. One striking model—of a modernistic patterned woolen weave has its sleeves cut slightly belled. There is a pointed upturned caracul cuff finishing in a diagonal line at the top. Several inches above another band of the fur runs parallel to this diagonal, giving an intriguing swirling effect to the sleeve entire.

For sheer frocks designers are creating sleeves which repeat the pointed and flared flounces which fashion the skirts.

Flavor Mixture for Potatoes

Is the family tired of potatoes cooked in all the ordinary ways—baked, boiled, mashed, creamed, scalloped, or fried? Try this new combination of flavors the next time you have potatoes. It is from the bureau of home economics.

2 cups potatoes, sliced
1 small onion, sliced
2 tba. butter.

1 1/2 cups strained tomato juice
1 tsp. salt
Dash of pepper

Cook the canned tomatoes for 2 or 3 minutes, then press them through a coarse strainer to remove the seeds. Wash, pare, and cut the potatoes into slices about 1/4 inch thick. Brown the potatoes and onion in the butter about 20 minutes and sprinkle with the salt. Add the tomato juice, cover, and simmer until the potatoes are tender. The potato thickens the tomato juice so that no other thickening is necessary.

TIPS FOR HOUSEKEEPERS

Too ripe fruit is the cause of many failures in canning.

Cook berry preserves quickly; long cooking changes flavor, color and texture.

To teach the child to enjoy the taste of new vegetables start with very small quantities.

Roll summer silks or other delicate materials in a heavy towel after rinsing, shake until dry enough for proper ironing and press on the wrong side with a moderate iron.

Keep on hand a supply of soda fountain straws ready for the family picnic.

Lettuce leaves which are too large or flat to make an attractive salad may be shredded. Just before serving the salad, roll each leaf in a firm roll and shred if crosswise with scissors.

Rayon Garments Popular

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The increased vogue for garments made of rayon, particularly for underwear, has led manufacturers to strengthen and improve this fabric so that it is usually found very satisfactory in respect to wear and to care. Many women launder for themselves any underwear that does not require ironing, especially knit garments of silk or rayon, such as vests, bloomers, stockings, and other articles, and if a few precautions are observed, this can be safely done and the articles of rayon will give good service.

Some types of rayon are weaker when wet than dry, says the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture. It is often torn by being hung up with clothespins or by rough fingernails or rings worn while it is being washed. Lukewarm water should always be used rather than hot water, which makes rayon tender. Soap made of pure, neutral soap, are also preferable to rubbing soap directly on the garments. The fabric should not be rubbed, but squeezed and rinsed repeatedly until it is clean.

After washing, the garment should be hung over a line or in any other suitable place, but under no circumstances should clothespins be used. The illustration shows what has happened in one case where this precaution was not observed. A large hole, started from a small puncture, has appeared, and the threads of the fabric are rapidly running. Many rayon garments can be gently patted and pulled into shape suitably to wear without ironing, but if an iron is used care must be taken not to have it too hot. Medium heat is best.

The Use of Candy and Sugar

By NELLIE MAXWELL

Candy is always in season and appropriate for any occasion. The air pilots know the value of the concentrated food, as they always carry a supply of hard candies to nibble on, or chocolate bars, which are a food in themselves. Such food is easy to carry, agreeable to eat, and something enough to supply the energy needed in long flights. The idea that candy eating is not good for the figure, is one which is not sustained by the activities who work hard, and whose slim waistlines are so important. Here is what one says about candy: "It is necessary for an actress to keep her figure, and you may be sure I wouldn't eat candy if I thought it made me fat." She eats six or seven pieces of candy at every performance, which is part of her current play and a bit of stage business.

The woman who shops knows the weariness which assails her after an hour or two of pacing from one counter to another. Those who have tried it, say: "Keep a package of candy in your purse; when the feeling of fatigue comes on, take a piece." Sugar is quickly available, as it is so soon absorbed and supplies energy.

With the proportions of one tea-spoonful of sugar to one cupful of water all the other available vegetables were cooked by these methods. Lessen the sugar when the water is less, as one-half cupful of water will take one-half teaspoonful of sugar.

While the warm weather is with us, keep the candy box in the refrigerator, especially chocolates. The favorite box-bow will taste better if well chilled than if allowed to soften in the warm air.

Two groups of culinary experts, in research work, working independently of each other, have been improving the flavor and appetite appeal in methods of cooking vegetables. Although sugar has been used in vegetable cooking for many years among many cooks to accentuate and blend vegetable flavors, the general use of it is rather a new departure for the majority.

When soldiers are to travel light, and yet go on long marches and still retain their energy, the best concentrated food for them is sugar. Athletic coaches recognize the value of sugar for intense muscle effort. Crews given a liberal allowance of sugar to eat before entering a boat race were winners over their opponents who were without the sugar.

Jack Quinn Plans to Retire

TWENTY-NINE years in baseball is enough for one man, says Jack Quinn, who throws twisters for the Athletics. Jack, who was christened John Quinn Eicus, was forty-four years old July 5. That is the way the records have it. Jack looks like he might be fifty. Yet he throws like he was twenty-five. Anyway Jack has announced his retirement effective at the end of this season.

Quinn, after breaking into professional baseball in the Pennsylvania state league in 1903 first hit the majors with the Yankees in 1909. Four years later he was sent to Rochester. The Braves had him for a few months in 1913, and then Jack jumped to Baltimore of the Federal league for a two-year hitch.

When the outlaw league blew up in 1915 Quinn headed westward and joined the Vernon club of the Pacific coast league. He was there in 1916, 1917 and part of 1918, going to the White Sox when the coast loop suspended because of the war.

Jack finished the season there and found himself the center of an argument between the White Sox and the Yankees. He was awarded to the latter and remained with that club through 1921.

Traded to the Red Sox in 1922, the veteran played there through 1924 and then went to the Athletics on waivers early in the 1925 season.

Jack, at forty-three, had the best year of his career in 1928, when he won 18 and lost 7.

Until this year Jack had played sixteen years in the majors, winning 170 and losing 142 games. He was in 462 games and pitched 2,841 innings.

All of this time Quinn played in but one world series. That was with the Yankees in 1921. Jack pitched four innings, allowed eight hits and two bases on balls and was credited with a defeat.

NEED FOR SUPERIOR MANHOOD

By REV. W. H. WEIGLE, JR., Chaplain-Episcopal Actors' Guild.

THE need of America is superior manhood, personalities and individuals who will counteract our materialistic tendencies and who will listen to the voice of God instead of the ring of the almighty dollar. The truth and hope of any time must always be sought in minorities. All history, whether in the field of religion or art, is a record of the power of minorities.

There needs but one wise man in a company and all become wise, so rapid is the contagion. Great men exist that there may be greater men. As Christians we were never meant to be lost in a crowd. We are to speak, act, and live differently than the multitudes. In a democratic country it requires an unusual amount of courage to draw apart and rise above the common herd.

There are disquieting signs in our national life today. We may not be worse than our ancestors, but I doubt very much if we are any better. There is a danger that we mistake license for freedom, and that we select the laws we choose to follow and scorn the others.

In America we have been constantly exposed to religious influences, but with it there have been only sputters of righteousness. There is a tendency to accept institutional religion and organized Christianity rather than the compelling person of the Galilean Peasant. We have become so familiar with the outward aspects of the manifestations of Christianity that our attention and devotion and consecration have been weaned away from that which is most lasting and vital—an individual and personal relationship with the Risen Christ.

TEACHERS AND LABOR UNIONS

By MARY C. BARKER, President American Teachers' Federation.

Through struggle of body and soul the workers of the world have attained, or are attaining, their right to associate for the advancement of their just interests. We know that the labor movement is not just a selfish demand on the part of a particular group for something that it does not have, but wants to possess. It is a humanitarian movement, whose watchword could be stated thus: Help yourself to attain the conditions necessary for you to function as a human being, as a worthy member of your community. Help others to help themselves.

We teachers are in a real sense a labor organization. We are one of those 100 or more national and international unions that make up the larger part of the American Federation of Labor.

We are part of the labor movement, and we are so organized because we believe that the principles of organized labor are sound, that organization of workers into unions is a necessary part of the human machinery that has been set up in the world to promote human progress.

We acknowledge our debt to organized labor for the conditions that make it possible for us to operate in this way. It is our privilege, along with all other workers of today, to build upon a foundation that was laid by the struggles of those who have preceded us.

Labor's program is our program and labor's interest is our interest, for what labor wants is that the interest of no group shall be subservient to the interest of any other group, that all shall share justly in the good things of life.

BURDEN IMPOSED BY EDUCATION

By DR. ALBERT PARKER FITCH (Presbyterian), New York.

The educated person faces life with certain handicaps and burdens which are the price of the knowledge he has acquired. Along with the great value that it brings, education brings into life a great burden, and with the burden, sorrow.

Even though a man has a large store of general knowledge there is a danger for him in the present day tendency toward specialization. A genuinely educated man must keep his mind on the whole human scene. The insistence upon highly specialized training is turning upon the modern American world educated men and women with small minds.

There is a pitfall into which the man falls who knows just enough to find a flaw in everything, the temptation to retire into one's mind and watch the world go by. As though any knowledge is ultimate without action! It is nothing without the power to beget ideas, to beget action.

The habit of dealing in "universal concepts rather than realities," is a handicap, too, in that it makes its addicts "forget that man faces conditions, not theories."

And finally there is disillusionment. Unless they make their "minds the accomplices of their prejudices," the learned, even though they would, cannot share the soothing convictions of the untutored, for they look on history realizing that man, though he had made material gains, remained always just the same.

The genuinely educated man rises above "the burdens that education has to carry" as did Jesus, "the consummate genius."

IDEA OF UNIVERSITY TRAINING

By DR. ROBERT M. HUTCHINS, President-Elect Chicago University.

My view of university training is to 'unsettle' the minds of young men, to widen their horizons, to inflame their intellects. It is not a hardening, or settling process. Education is not to teach men facts, theories or laws; it is not to reform them, or amuse them, or to make them expert technicians in any field; it is to teach them to think, to think straight, if possible; but to think always for themselves.

I would advise young persons contemplating entering school "to know the fellows" and to get a diploma, because it is the open sesame into the company of persons who matter, and to join their local country club or fraternal organization.

These bodies have high ideals. They are organizations for mutual improvement. Their dues are lower than those of most colleges. You get to know the fellows in one. It would seem plausible to suppose that anyone can get from them most of the things one gets at the university, if one goes to the university because it is the thing to do.

Little Note Appealed to Traffic Cop's Heart

Mrs. Harrison, a young matron of Montclair, drove to the business section to do a little shopping the other day. She averted to the curb as she neared a store she intended to patronize, but before she had reached that point her motor stalled. For 10 minutes she tried to get it to start, but without success. She gave it up as a bad job and alighted to summon a mechanic. To her horror she discovered that she was parked directly in front of a fire hydrant.

Mrs. Harrison knew that the Montclair police were strict about such a violation, but she was resourceful. So she hastily wrote a note and stuck it in the window. It read: "Dear Mr. Officer—Police, don't give me a ticket. I couldn't make the d—d thing go and I've gone for a mechanic."

When she returned with the mechanic she found a policeman reading the note and laughing heartily. Not only did he not give her a ticket, but he assisted the mechanic to get the motor going.—New York Sun.

What Sadie Said

Oliver Cabann, wealthy Buffalo banker, said at a dinner on his return from Europe:

"Europe loved us during the World war, but now that we expect her to pay her war debts she loves us no longer."

"Europe is like Sadie."

"Sadie," Tom said, "you used to say there was something about me you loved."

"Yes, so there was, but you've spent it," said Sadie."

Army Without Guns

You have never seen or heard officially the number of workers in the Salvation army, for it is the policy of the international organization never to reveal these figures, but at the same time it is known to mount up into the millions. Other figures, however, are available. With its worldwide organization it supplies through its hundreds of hotels, food depots and shelters nearly 11,000,000 beds and over 20,000,000 meals to the needy every year.

Women and children are also looked after in numerous homes and institutions. Farms are run for unemployed and emigration is actively assisted.—Washington Star.

There is nothing more satisfactory after a day of hard work than a line full of snowy-white clothes. For such results use Red Cross Ball Blue.—Adv.

Gabbiest People

Canadian citizens talk more over telephones than do any other people. A recent survey showed that the per capita use of the telephone in that country was 221 conversations a year. The next highest user is the United States whose citizens use the telephone 205 times a year. Denmark is third with a per capita usage of 157 calls a year.

No Hands on New Watch

An entirely new type of watch has made its appearance in London. This has neither dial nor hands. It is, in effect, a speedometer recording the passing of minutes instead of miles. In the center are two small apertures which reveal the numerals recording the hour and minutes.

Pilot's Faith Justified in Pitcher Eppa Rixey

According to Eppa Rixey of the Cincinnati Reds, a manager's good, old-fashioned hunch will sometimes result in the winning of a game that, even with the best of master-minding and most profound of psychological maneuvers, might have been lost. An illustration in point being when Rixey was pitching against the Dodgers in Brooklyn not so long ago.

"In the first inning," Rixey told us, "I was touched for five hits, off which the Dodgers made four runs. They seemed to be able to hit everything I threw over and I was actually beginning to think that I never would succeed in getting a man out."

"But finally the inning ended somehow and during our time at bat at the start of the second we got a man on second and third and, with two down, I came up. It certainly seemed to me I would be taken out for a pinch-hitter, but when I started for the plate Manager Hendricks never said a word and let me go."

"As I walked up to the plate I still couldn't see why he kept me in the game. I certainly looked bad in that first inning and, added to that, we needed those two runs on the bases in the worst possible way."

"But that's where Hendricks' hunch that I had a good game in my arm that day proved right, for I not only made a single and scored those two runs, but when I got back on the mound I settled down and allowed only two hits for the rest of the game, which we won, 5 to 4."

Beaman Is Winner

O. G. Beaman, Cornell, winning the two-mile race in the international dual track and field meet at Travers Island, where Oxford-Cambridge and Princeton-Cornell teams met.

Old "Slim" Sallee Was Best With Bases Full

Old "Slim" Sallee, who pitched his last ball in the major league back in 1921, was never known to be worried by base hits and, if anything, pitched better ball when the bases were full. A typical Sallee game would net the opposition anywhere from nine to twelve hits per game, and once he even went so far as to turn in a 12-hit, one-run game.

Naturally his manager knew that his had the effect of spurring Sallee to his utmost efficiency and so, consequently, remained unworried by the barrage that generally took place when his ace was on the mound.

BASEBALL SQUIBS

Brooklyn has purchased Babe Phelps from Jacksonville of the Southeastern league.

With the signing of Pitcher "Red" Bryco, Binghamton (New York-Penn) released Fred Adams outright.

We are considering having nothing to do with the Chinese-Russian dispatches until they number the players.

The Toledo baseball club has the reputation of carrying the heaviest pay roll outside of the major leagues.

The knuckle-ball helped Ed Rommel win his first seven games for the Athletics. Rommel has excellent control.

John Miljus, of Cleveland, has been a successful finishing pitcher this year, but has had trouble finishing his own games.

Babe Phelps, pitching ace of the Jacksonville club of the Southeastern league, has been sold to the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The day after the St. Louis Browns built a screen above their short right-field fence four drives bounced back into the playing field. None went over.

Selection of Bill Shipke, Omaha and Des Moines third baseman of two decades ago, as a scout for the Cincinnati National league club, has been announced.

If Max Bishop is forced to wear spectacles on the field he will be the second basemen so arrayed. George Toporcer won fame as the first infielder with glasses.

The record number of ball games won by a major team in a season was set by Frank Chance's Chicago Cubs in 1906, when they rolled up a total of 116 victories.

Sam Hyman, veteran left-handed pitcher, purchased from New Haven during the past winter, has been released by Manager Heinle Groh, of the Hartford club.

No major league ball games in New York are broadcast. And the metropolitan magnates hold that the radio is hurting the attendance in the cities broadcasting games.

Self-confidence is very wonderful, as in the case of the young infielder who, after making three gross errors in rapid succession, calls to the pitcher, "Come on, kid, pull yourself together."

In 1926 Lefty Grove of the A's fanned 194 and in 1928 he struck out 183. If he keeps up his present gait he will pass the 200 mark for this season. In the International in 1923 he fanned 330.

Jack Quinn, veteran Athletics' pitcher, achieved a remarkable record as far back as 1908 when he won 14 out of 16 games for the Richmond club in the Virginia league, the other two being ties.

Otis "Doc" Crandall, veteran spitball pitcher, has rejoined the Los Angeles club, Pacific Coast baseball league, of which he was a mainstay, for more than ten years, until the season of 1927.

Chuck Dressen, of the Cincinnati club, knows more about horses than a lot of professional turfmen. He spends his winters around the stables at Belmont and is said to have ambitions as a trainer.

Excavation Work Closed for the Season

The return to Albuquerque on last Saturday of 60 University students who have been camped at the Battleship Rock on the Jemez river for the last 4 weeks, the excavation work of University and the School of American Research is definitely closed for the season. The camp of tents will be broken immediately.

The season has been an unusually profitable one. Besides the work done at Chetro Kettle in Chaco Canyon the early part of the summer, 4 weeks have been devoted to Un Shagi on the Jemez.

It is one of the most important ruins in the province and has yielded a wealth of material.

49 skeletons, 22 bowls and 125 artifacts—awls, arrow points, axes, etc., have been removed during the season.

The work has been done almost entirely by students, under the supervision of officials of the University and the School and with the assistance of Indians from the pueblo Jemez to do the actual digging.

Besides the work on the dump which yielded the bones and the greater part of the other material, the east kiva was excavated and revealed several new features, and a series of rooms was discovered near the west dump.

The specimens which were removed will be sent to the University archaeology laboratory for further study and to the museum. Lecture work of the season was completed Thursday.

Courses have been given in Indian art, New Mexico history, Buddhist art, myths and rituals, and southwestern history. The faculty has numbered some of the best men in their lines in the entire field.

Among them were Hartely B. Alexander, professor of the philosophy class at Scripps College; Kenneth J. Saunders, professor of oriental archaeology at the University of California; Frederick W. Hodge, of the Museum of the American Indian; Wesley Bradford, field technician of the School of American Research spent several days in camp giving instruction in proper methods, and A. V. Kidder, who has been working on the ruins at Pecos for the last 15 years, gave several lectures on the pre-pueblo periods during a short visit. Dr. E. L. Howett, professor of archaeology at the University

TELEPHONE AIDE IN MANY WAYS—Lakeport (Cal.) Press & Record Telephone service is the greatest help the people of today have in bringing to their attention matters of vital and urgent importance that require immediate action. It was absolutely necessary, during the recent search for the four persons who were lost, that searchers keep in touch with the ones waiting patiently for word from them. This was done by telephone. After the four had been located by telephone, news from the Upper Lake central office to the outside world was installed in less than two hours to inform relatives, newspapers, friends and others interested in the whereabouts of the missing party.

Telephone aids police efficiency. Stolen cars are reported by police departments, insurance companies, or their owners, runaways reported, questionable characters to be apprehended and officers to be located are all done by telephone.

The close cooperation, courtesy and promptness of the telephone operators enable the public as well as officers to locate people and keep in touch with them.

THE BANK'S PART IN THE FARM PROBLEM

By H. LANE YOUNG

Member American Bankers Association-Agricultural Commission

ONE of the most discussed and least understood questions regarding the farmer's problems is the part the bank has played, or is to play, in financing the farmer. The basis of co-operation between the two, however, is a very simple one.

H. Lane Young

Both sides are subject to criticism for the condition that exists today. The major share of the blame rests on those banks that have faltered through disregarding fundamental principles in loaning other people's money, that have encouraged the farmer to expect bank loans without first putting his business on the earning basis which would justify a bank to lend him money.

One of the underlying reasons for the failure of so many country banks has been the existence of too many banks. With the limited business of the community divided among too many banks it was impossible for them to make enough money to justify the employment of officers with the proper ability to manage the bank successfully. Then the scramble for business was so hard that good judgment and foresight were forgotten in granting loans, with the resultant failure of the weaker institutions.

In the future, banks are not going to loan the money of their depositors without the kind of security that can be immediately realized, upon in case the loan is not paid, or unless the applicant presents a sound and successful record of business operation—whether that business be manufacturing, merchandising, or farming.

Farming-Banking Interdependent

This is a perfectly obvious attitude, because country banking cannot be successfully and profitably carried on unless farming is successfully and profitably operated—the two businesses are dependent upon each other. There is no longer any question that the time has arrived for these interdependent businesses to reach a common ground of understanding of the requirements that both must meet for their mutual welfare.

There is no doubt but what the future prosperity of the farmer and the basis of cooperation between banker and farmer is the intelligent diversification of crops. It is necessary, however, to have the right conception of diversification.

The mistake that many farmers have made in attempting to diversify has been to invest too much money, time and land in a new and untried crop—sometimes a hazardous crop—or one for which no immediate market has been developed, resulting in a loss of the initial effort and discouragement of future efforts on a more conservative basis.

Disregarding the primary and essential principle of farming—namely, increasing earnings by decreasing the cost of production through the practice of building up soil by crop rotation and intensive cultivation, is responsible for a large share of the farmers' trouble today.

As An Agriculturalist Sees Farm Board's Job

The new Agricultural Marketing Act approaches farm relief from a materially different point of view from that of former bills before Congress in recent years, says Dean H. L. Russell of Wisconsin University College of Agriculture in the American Bankers Association Journal.

"It contains a new idea, fraught with the greatest possibilities—the organization of a Federal Farm Board," he says. "It has been possible for farm cooperatives to borrow from Federal-aided institutions before, and at a materially lower rate than city business men had to pay for working capital, but this is the first set-up made by the government in which a commission has been carefully chosen to give undivided attention to an effort to solve the problems of a farm group."

"It is hard to conceive of a higher degree of responsibility that must be assumed by this commission. No board ever created by congressional action has been clothed with as wide plenary powers. It is authorized not only to advise but to execute, to plan and put its plans into effective action, to buy and hold, to dump, to dip into the Federal Treasury to accomplish its ends with what would be almost unlimited resources to any private commercial concern. The board's only job is to succeed, and no governmental agency even during the war time emergency had a wider latitude."

"Many will think the farm relief program will be universally applicable to the individual land owner or operator. Such procedure is far from the case. Aid is to be extended through cooperative organizations by making it possible for such groups to obtain cash advances to hold crops so as to permit of more orderly marketing."

"While the primary relation is with cooperatives, the individual or unorganized farmer will also profit by the activities of his organized fellows. If a stabilized program of merchandising is able to eliminate the surpluses that

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Sino-Russian War Clouds Denser Over Manchuria—Senate Tariff Bill.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

WAR between China and Soviet Russia became increasingly probable during the week, and China let the world know that if it did come, Russia alone should be blamed. Several weeks ago it was said in these columns that the basis of the Manchurian trouble was the incurable itch of the Russians to sovietize the rest of the world, and this fact is emphasized in identical communications delivered by China's envoys to the governments of all nations signatory to the Kellogg pact. The note handed Secretary of State Stimson by Minister Wu makes the flat charge that the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics has been plotting to overthrow the Chinese government and says the latter has the documents to prove this accusation.

Since 1927, the Chinese government declines, Russia has been conducting communistic propaganda in China, using the funds of the Chinese Eastern railway to finance these activities. These involved, it is charged, not only the overthrow of the Chinese government but the destruction of China's political and economic system. These activities, it is added, have progressed to a point where the safety of China is endangered. China also charges Russia with sponsoring a policy of wholesale assassinations, one of the purposes of which was to bring about a world wide revolution.

In the present crisis on the Manchurian frontier Russia, the Chinese say, has been making warlike threats involving not only firing into but the operation of military airplanes over Chinese territory. China, says the communication, still hopes for peace, it adds that "should such acts of provocation on the part of the Soviet government result in unavoidable clashes arising out of China's determination to defend her own rights the responsibility for disturbing the peace of the world must entirely rest with the Soviet government."

During the week there were repeated clashes between Chinese and Russian troops which in one or two instances amounted to real battles. Each side accused the other of invasion, but the dispatches indicated that the Soviet forces were the more aggressive in making border raids. The Nanking government continued to hurry heavy reinforcements to the Manchurian frontier, and recent cablegrams from Tokyo said Russian troops had already completed mobilization and were soon to march on Harbin, the Manchurian railroad center. It was asserted this advance was to be a "punitive expedition" and that the Soviet government was determined to force China to comply with its demands regarding the Chinese Eastern railway but would make no formal declaration of war. Several trains on the Chinese Eastern were dynamited recently and Soviet agents were arrested charged with the crime.

REPUBLICAN members of the senate finance committee completed their draft of the revised tariff bill and made it public, and immediately started the battle of words that is certain to be continued with increasing fury when the senate begins consideration of the measure. Senator Reed Smoot, chairman of the committee, gave out figures as proof that the bill was an up by his conference represents a scaling down of duties from the house bill rates.

The comparisons showed equivalent ad valorem for the senate committee bill, the house bill and the present law. It was indicated the senate committee decreased rates in ten of the fifteen schedules from the duties of the house bill. In four schedules the revision was upward and in one there was no change.

The revised bill represents increases from the present law in twelve schedules, decreases in two and no change in one. The equivalent ad valorem was obtained by calculating revenues under the different measures and figuring what the total duties by schedules would represent in percentages of total values of imports.

It was estimated the customs revenue under the senate bill would amount to $605,408,400, as compared with $646,014,645 under the house bill and $510,512,930 under existing law.

The figures showed a reduction in the agricultural schedule from the house bill, which was somewhat of a surprise.

The equivalent ad valorem of rates of the agricultural schedule in the senate committee bill was listed as 32.99 per cent as compared with 34.00 per cent in the house bill and 22.50 per cent in the present law.

The senate reconvened on August 10 with only about thirty members present and decided to hold "perfunctory" sessions twice a week until September 4, when the tariff debate would begin. The leaders planned passage of the measure about the middle of October. The house will reconvene September 29 and will mark time until the tariff bill is passed and ready for conference.

The republican members of the senate finance committee approved a compromise provision for delaying two years the shift from a foreign to a domestic valuation basis, and settled several other administrative tariff controversies. Democrats of the committee made ready the numerous amendments to the bill which they will offer.

WHILE the representatives of the allied nations at The Hague were still disputing over the division of German reparations, with small prospect of immediate agreement, Dr. Gustav Stresemann, German foreign minister, informed them that, whether or not the Young plan was ratified by September 1, Germany could pay, beginning on that date, only the reparations called for by the scheme devised by Young and the other experts, namely, $497,900,000 a year.

Premier Aristide Briand of France replied that since the Young plan had not been adopted the German government must continue to carry out the treaty in force—the Dawes plan—which the reichstag had ratified.

Phillip Snowden, British chancellor of the exchequer, said he considered the Germans must continue their payments according to the Dawes plan, which is the only recognized scheme for reparations.

British and Belgian troops were preparing to evacuate the second zone of the Rhineland, but Premier Briand said the evacuation of 80,000 French troops from the occupied territory hurriedly would be difficult since barracks were lacking in France to house them. It was understood that by January 1 the allied troops of occupation to the number of less than 20,000 would be out of all but the last zone, the Moselle bridgehead.

As for the split of reparations, London dispatches indicated that Morgan and other American bankers might have a good deal to do with forcing a compromise. The British press and, on the surface, the British government uphold Snowden in his refusal to accept a reduced share of the German payments, but it was said Prime Minister MacDonald was much impressed with the arguments of the financiers.

THE Graf Zeppelin completed its momentous voyage from Friedrichshafen to Tokyo in approximately 102 hours, circled over the Japanese capital and landed at the Kasumigaura flying field thirty miles away. For several days the passengers and crew were feted by the wildly enthusiastic Japanese while the dirigible was being refueled and overhauled. The emperor himself taking a leading part in the entertainment of the visitors. As the big ship was being taken from the hangar for its start across the Pacific two struts were broken, and the take-off was delayed a day. Then the Zeppelin soared into the air on its way to Los Angeles and Lakehurst.

Oscar Kassar and Kurt Luescher, young and comparatively inexperienced Swiss aviators, took off from Fort Belknap for a flight across the Atlantic ocean to the United States. By the end of the week it was believed they had paid the penalty of their rashness with their lives. From the time when they were seen above Terra Nova Island in the Azores all trace of them was lost.

Miss Maryel Crosson of San Diego, one of the contestants in the women's air derby from Santa Monica, Calif., to Cleveland, Ohio, met her death in western Arizona. Her body was found crushed against a boulder and a hundred yards away was the wreckage of her plane. Evidently she had leaped for her life but her parachute had failed to open.

Manner and Walker in the plane Spokane Sun God accomplished the feat of making a refueling non-stop flight from Spokane to New York and return. They were in the air five full days and traversed 7,200 miles.

One of the British entries for the Schneider cup races, a super-marine Rolls Royce six piloted by Flying Officer Waghorn, made in tests the fastest flight ever made by an airplane. The tremendous speed of 350 miles an hour was reached, without an assisting wind. Lieut. Alford Williams was having a lot of trouble with the American hope for the Schneider trophy. During one of his attempts to get it off the water he was made unconscious by fumes from the engine.

UNCLE SAM decided last week to make a loan of $6,000,000 to help promote the building up of the merchant marine. The administration notified the shipping board that it saw no objection to such a loan to the American Export Steamship corporation under the Jones-White act. The company wishes to build four vessels, and this work may prevent unemployment in the Camden yards of the New York Shipbuilding company. Secretary of the Navy Adams also signed a contract with the last named concern for the construction of one of the cruisers in the fifteen-cruiser program, the cost to be $10,000,000.

Relief for agriculturists of several classes is actively under way through the federal farm board. That body approved loans aggregating more than $3,000,000 to be expended through co-operative groups for the stabilization of the California and fresh grape industries. The two principal groups concerned are the Sun-Maid Raisin Growers and the Federal Fruit Stabilization corporation. In addition to cash credits granted, the board, it was announced, will assist the Sun-Maid Raisin Growers in whatever way possible to insure the growers "the undisturbed use and control of the valuable Sun-Maid trademarks, the modern plants, and the international sales organization," which the raisin growers of California have built up over a period of years.

It was announced by the board that it would probably make advances of from five to ten millions to supplement the assistance not given Southern co-operative associations.

GERRIT JOHN DIEKEMA, a banker of Holland, Mich., and a former member of congress, has been appointed minister to Holland to succeed Richard M. Tobin of California, who resigned. Mr. Diekema, whose parents were born in Holland, speaks Dutch and has long been a student of the affairs of the Netherlands. Between 1891 and 1907 he was a member of the Spanish treaty claims commission.

NEW YORK has formally abandoned its plan to hold a world's fair in 1933, leaving that year to Chicago, whose Century of Progress exposition is fast being brought into concrete form. The New Yorkers decided to wait until 1935 and "then show them how to put on a world's fair right." The Chicago exposition has the advisory patronage of the National Research council, the backing of President Hoover and the national government and a united civic support.

BRITISH cotton manufacturers have agreed to arbitrate the dispute with their workers, the great strike in the Lancaster mills came to a close and half a million hands returned to their jobs. Lesson for September 8

NEHEMIAH REBUILDING THE WALL OF JERUSALEM.

GOLDEN TEXT—The people had a mind to work. LESSON TEXT—Nehemiah 2:1-74. PRIMARY TOPIC—Working Together.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Working Together. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Teamwork. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Co-operation in Religious Work.

In order to prepare to teach this lesson the teacher should master the contents of the book of Nehemiah.

Nehemiah was a cupbearer to the Persian king. While performing his official duty he learned of the distress of his brethren in Jerusalem. The walls of the city were broken down, its gates burnt, and the remnant of the captives were in great affliction. This news brought by his brethren greatly moved Nehemiah. He sat down and wept and mourned several days, fasting and praying before God. In answer to his prayer he was granted a leave of absence from the Persian king, and credentials from the king. He journeyed to Jerusalem and made a survey of the city by night without disclosing his purpose to anyone. Having thus obtained first-hand information, he called the representatives of the Jews together and said, "Let us build the walls of Jerusalem."

1. Preparation for the Building (chap. 3).

The division of labor in this project displayed Nehemiah's administrative ability. A wise distribution of labor makes difficult tasks easy. Observe some outstanding features of this great work:

(v. 6). Stress laid upon indifference

In administrative tasks it is proper that unfaithfulness should be pointed out as a warning to the unfaithful and encouragement to the faithful.

2. Help rendered by the women (v. 12).

Perhaps: Shallum had no sons to aid him.

3. Stress laid upon earnestness of some (v. 20).

Recognition of fidelity will spur one to faithfulness.

4. Every one built over against his own house (vv. 10, 23, 28).

No incentive for exertion is quite so strong as that which concerns one's own family.

5. Certain guilds of men undertook certain work (vv. 8, 31, 32).

6. Hindrances Encountered (4:1-6:14).

1. Scoffing of Sanballat and Tobiah (4:1-6, 2:19, 20).

The oppressors of God's servants frequently begin by hurling ridicule.

2. Conspiracy for a sudden attack (4:7-9).

When the enemy saw that the work was actually succeeding they changed from ridicule to an attempt to throw the workmen into a panic.

3. Conspiracy with the Jews (4:10-23).

They sought to hinder by inducing the Jews who were outside to discourage their brethren by the claim that the task was hopeless and that they were liable to sudden and secret attack.

4. Greed and oppression of the rich (5:1-13).

The Jews of that day, like the profiteers of our day, took advantage of the poor and oppressed them, so that they mortgaged their land and even sold their daughters into slavery.

5. Scheme to take Nehemiah's life (6:1-14).

When Sanballat and Tobiah failed in every other way they sought by craft to get Nehemiah away, that they might kill him.

6. The Wall Completed (6:15-34).

So energetically did they pursue their tasks that in fifty-two days the wall was completed. We may learn from this:

1. That though God's children are beset by enemies, they should not fear.

2. That when beset by enemies, we should pray (4:9).

Their faith was accompanied by wise precaution.

(a) They set a watch (4:9).

(b) Men were permitted to be with their families (4:13), and would thus fight better.

(c) Half worked and half watched, all armed for battle.

(d) They worked with sword in one hand (4:17).

(e) They slept in their clothes in readiness (4:23).

Prayer and faith are not slothful or inactive.

A Picture by Plate

Plate pictured the soul under the figure of a many-headed monster, a lion and a man, combined in one form. The man represented the higher nature, the reason; the lion the passionate element; and the many-headed monster the lusts and appetites. The picture is as true today as when first presented. The lion and many-headed monster exists in every person. It can only be changed by the love of the Christ, by which the lion is made to be as a lamb.

ANALYSIS OF GRADE CROSSING ACCIDENTS MADE BY RAILROADS

Washington.—Two significant facts are shown by reports just filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission by the railroads of this country as to the number of highway crossing accidents in 1928, an analysis of which was recently made public by the safety section of the American Railway Association.

First. That more than 25 per cent of the total number of highway grade crossing accidents in which motor vehicles were involved in 1928 resulted from motorists running into the sides of trains.

Second. That there was a greater increase in the number of accidents caused by motorists striking the sides of trains in 1928, compared with 1927, than in the number of highway grade crossing accidents resulting from motor vehicles being struck by trains.

Out of 5,038 highway grade crossing accidents in which motor vehicles were involved during the past year, 1,275 resulted from motorists crashing into the sides of trains, which were either standing still or in motion. This was an increase of 113 or 9.7 per cent compared with the number of such accidents in 1927. Highway grade crossing accidents resulting from motor vehicles being struck by trains totaled 3,761 in 1928, an increase of 74 compared with the preceding year, or an increase of 2 per cent.

Highway grade crossing accidents involving motor vehicles resulted in 2,176 fatalities in 1928, an increase of 183 over the number of fatalities resulting from such accidents in 1927. Fatalities resulting from motor vehicles being struck by trains in 1928 accounted for 1,938 fatalities, while 277 persons lost their lives as a result of motor vehicles running into the sides of trains. There was an increase of 159 in the number of persons injured in motor vehicle highway grade crossing accidents during the past year compared with the preceding year.

Owing to physical reasons and prohibitive cost, which would place a heavy burden on the people, elimination of all grade crossings is impossible. The railroads in co-operation with state and local authorities, are eliminating many of the most dangerous crossings. New crossings, however, are being added in greater numbers. Millions of dollars are being spent by the railroads, in many cases in co-operation with the states and municipalities, for the installation of safety devices to warn motorists of approaching trains.

The railroads have for some years conducted an intensive campaign in an effort to impress on the public the necessity for greater care in passing over highway grade crossings. Continued co-operation of the public in exercising continuous vigilance while approaching and passing over railroad crossings will produce gratifying results in lessening the number of railroad crossing crashes.

German Radio Committee Visits U. S. Washington.—Germany's radio audiences want to hear the United States work and play, declares Dr. Kurt Magnus of Berlin, who has been called the M. H. Aylesworth of his country, being president of the Reich Rundfunk Gesellschaft or National Radio Company which controls Germany's nine largest broadcasting companies.

Dr. Magnus heads the German radio commission now here to arrange for exchange of radio programs between the two nations.

Cotton Growers Receive Aid Washington.—Cotton farmers are to receive the full cash equivalent of this year's crop in advance whenever they are "in distress and must have money," under plans announced here by the federal farm board. The funds will be advanced through the cotton co-operatives. The board itself will advance 25 per cent of the value of the crop, 65 per cent will be loaned by the federal intermediate credit banks, and the remaining 10 per cent will be paid from the capital reserves of the co-operatives.

HATE

Wreck of the Schem

There were black looks from the men as they cut away the wreckage of the main-topmast and curses on their lips lost nothing in vehemence for being muted by the gale. Fellowes, remote on the poop, missed none of the discontent, although he seemed to have eyes only for the huzzars astern, and the rocky coast that filled the horizon to starboard. He held himself very erect, his slight, wiry frame tensed with energy, his hard-chaunced, young face frowning bleakly. Old Henderson, his first mate, standing beside him, nodded toward the frigate's close-reefed topsails flitting nearer about the combars.

"'Tis bad luck, sir. We'll go ashore if they hit the other stick."

"They won't follow us in much closer," Fellowes answered shortly. "There's a port called Faro we ought to open any moment. I know where we are. That's Algarve, in southern Portugal."

He scanned the viscous pall that draped the sky behind the frigate. An onshore gale, that was the crowning affliction! Everything had gone wrong since they spoke the Salem letter-of-marque off the Cape Verde, and heard Madison had declared war—baffling winds, suspicious cruelties, the storm that had driven them east into the Gulf of Cadiz. And now, this tall-sparred, yellow frigate!

A cold rage possessed Fellowes; his blue eyes, bluer for the tan of cheek bones and brow, sparkled icily. He reviewed the long voyage to Canton, the patience with which he had assembled a choice cargo, certain to pay big profits.

Was he to see that cargo put up at auction by a British prize court? See the Schem that he had groomed and cherished lovingly sold off at Portsmouth for British registry? He'd die first, he told himself. And his jaw set squarely as a tongue of flame and a roundshot whined overhead to the rigging.

"Gettin' closer," croaked the first mate. "And we're purty nigh them rocks."

"I see it, Mr. Henderson," Fellowes assented crisply. "And once for all, I'll not strike. The frigate daren't follow us much farther—she draws twice what we do."

"Aye, aye, sir," muttered the first mate, but his tone was one of dissent.

Fellowes' fists clinched tight under the skirts of his watch-coat. Give him a few hours of darkness, and he'd contrive to slip free of his trap, beat past the blinded frigate, perhaps turn and steer east again for Cadiz—he could, at a pinch, find a market for his cargo with the Spanish merchants. But profit, trade was a secondary consideration. The main thing was to outface the arrogance of British power, show that America could keep the seas.

The frigate, undeterred by the imminence of a dangerous coast, continued on her course a point or two nearer the wind than the Schem's. Suddenly, in her bows, glowed two little jets of flame for eyes. The whippy boom of Long Toms rumbled down the wind, and the deck of the Schem trembled under Fellowes. There was a cracking and rending of timbers, but he looked in vain for signs of damage until he saw the helmsman clutching at the maddly spinning wheel.

"She don't answer, Cap'n! She don't answer," babbled the man.

Overhead spars banged and canvas started as the brig broached to; the foretopmast went by the board with a crash in a welter of tangled rigging. And in the midst of the confusion, Fellowes heard himself saying calmly: "The rudder's shot away. You'd best get forward, my man."

"I knowed 'twould happen," cried the first mate. "She'll be on them rocks in a jiffy. The sooner we lower the boats, the surer we'll be o' savin' the crew."

"There'll be time," snapped Fellowes. "Her head's swinging into the wind. The foretopmast will serve as a sea-anchor while it holds."

"Mr. Henderson, we'll lower the quarterboats." And he called down to the crew: "Smartly, men! I'm sorry you're going into captivity. Any who prefer to stay with me I'll do what I can for."

"Ain't you comin' sir?" exclaimed Henderson.

"I was brought up in England," Fellowes answered dryly. "I don't bicker for their prisons."

"But them rocks—"

"I'll risk it. My luck is due for a turn. Now, then, look alive, all of you! No small gear, men. Just as you are."

They obeyed him mechanically, officers and men alike demoralized by the rapidity with which disaster had overtaken them.

Presently old Henderson rolled aft, and hailed him respectfully:

"Better come along of us, Cap'n; she's a goner."

"I'd rather chance the rocks than Dartmoor," Fellowes rejoined, with a smile. "Make no mistake. You'd be wiser to stay with me—go for a privateer's man after we reach home."

"You'll never reach home through them rocks," Henderson answered stubbornly. "I'm sorry, sir. Ye been a good skipper. I'd stay—if I seed any chance of gettin' ashore."

"Thank you, Mr. Henderson. Don't worry—you're right to go."

he saluted clumsily, and clambered over the bulwarks. A moment later, the small boats cast off, and pulled away. Fellowes was relieved when the frigate held on her course to pick them up. At least he had the satisfaction of knowing he wasn't responsible for any deaths. And he told himself, surveying the battered hulk of brig, that he'd done all that was possible to save her.

But she was a goner, as old Henderson had said. Drifting steadily on shore. He dropped off the poop into the green pool of the waist, and slipped through the companionway of his cabin, where he discarded watch-coat and sea-boots, and buckled on a belt containing his scanty funds. He had barely regained the deck, when a wave demolished the clutter of wreckage that moored the brig's bow.

Fellowes was half-suffocated by the cascades of emerald water that breached the bulwarks, but he fought his way forward, and succeeded in leaping himself to the windlass. He had his parting view of the frigate, lying to, the Schem's boats under her counter. Ahead, a saw-toothed ledge of rocks dripped blackly in a hollow between two waves, and he pulled the slip-knot of his lashings, bracing himself for the shock. It came with a jarring and rending of timbers, a mighty din of waters. Then he was snatched off the deck, hurled up—and up—and up. He must swim, he realized, but at once he began to sink. Down—down—down! A drumming in his ears, eyes smarting, lungs oppressed. But he must fight on. He must show these Englishmen—

Fellowes was aroused by fingers prodding at his garments. A hairy face glared greedily into his; a curved knife flashed in the gusty light of torches, playing hazily about a ring of other hairy faces, bestial and cruel.

The man holding the knife wrenched at his soaking neckcloth. Easy to imagine what would happen next. He braced himself for the nick of the steel—and a woman's voice belled in the shadows, high and clear. The hairy faces recoiled; the knife was hidden. The woman spoke briefly again.

The torches blazed nearer, straw torches, tightly braided and dipped in resin. Across the area of plebby beach, he saw distinctly the three people who approached him: two women, one slim and willowy, despite the cloak that enveloped her, the other enormous in girth, panting and wheezing as she waddled along, and with them a casocked priest.

The slim woman stooped over Fellowes, and he looked up into a pair of velvet brown eyes, dewy and calm, passionate, set in a lovely, oval face.

"Poor soul," she exclaimed in English, innocent of accent. "We saw your misfortune from the castle. But why did you remain on your ship?"

"I don't strike," he whispered.

A shadow mantled her olive features.

"All the world at war, and America must thrust her infant into the melee! But we'll not talk politics, sir. I'll have you carried to Padre Antonio's."

Four of the hairy peasants, very uneasy and deferential now, lifted the American upon their shoulders, and tramped off at a fast gait up a winding path in a vent of the cliffs. But Fellowes knew little of that climb, for the rough handling tortured his battered frame, and most of the way he was unconscious.

When he came to, he was lying in a huge, canopied bed, warm and drowsy. His wet clothes had been removed, and liniment applied to his cuts and bruises. Moving tentatively under his covers, feet rustled among the rushes, and the girl of the manilla appeared beside him, no longer cloaked, her figure showing to advantage in a gown of woven stuff as brown as her eyes. At her elbow was the enormous woman, who had attended her on the beach, a creature so stout as to seem a caricature.

The girl dropped a hand on Fellowes' forehead.

"Ah, your fever is going," she said approvingly. "You'll do well, sir."

"Thanks to you," he murmured.

"No, no! Thanks to yourself—and such aid as we could render."

"I'd have had—knife in throat—but for you," he insisted.

"We won't speak of that. Our peasants, alas, are little better than savages. But there is something I must say to you, sir. I am obliged to leave this place, Perenna, in the morning. There is no one here who speaks English. So if you will tell me your wishes, I will explain them to Padre Antonio. He has the money-belt you wore, and will return it at your pleasure."

"Where do you go?" asked Fellowes.

"To Lisbon." She caught her lip in her teeth, as if regretful of the statement. "If you will be advised, sir," she hastened on, "you will journey into Spain. The British control all northern Portugal, and their authorities in Lisbon will not be partial to a shipwrecked American."

He hesitated.

"I think I'll try Lisbon."

"As you choose." She was almost haughty. "But you will require rest and refreshment in the meantime. The Padre understands."

"Now you must sleep, sir,"

"But I haven't thanked you! And I want—"

"'Tis late, and I rise with the sun. Good-night, sir—God fetch you safe home."

She was gone. And fretful as he was, a power stronger than his will pushed about his leaden eyelids. He awoke to a stamping and shouting in the street below. Mindful of his rescuer's departure, he managed to stumble out of bed, and hobble to a window. His curiosity was rewarded. A stately coach, six stalwart Andalusian mules hitched to the pole, stood at the priest's door, that functionary, himself, in the act of ushering the two women into it.

The girl leaned from the coach window to give some parting message, and called to the coachman perched high on his box. The ponderous vehicle swayed off, the mules' hoofs clacking daintily. Fellowes, more weary than he had reckoned, was content to crawl back to bed. He must discover who she was, he told himself, yielding to sleep again.

He was awakened by the priest tapping his shoulder, proffering a cup of chocolate.

The chocolate put new strength in him, spurred him to inquire the girl's identity. But he could make nothing of the Padre's Portuguese, the Padre looked blank at his English, and the most Fellowes could gather was that a certain Donna Cara was a great lady, a good lady, if somewhat unusual in her conduct. He supposed the girl to be Donna Cara, but he wasn't by any means sure of it. All he could be assured of was that she had gone to Lisbon. Very well, he'd go there. And the third day of his stay he announced his intention. The Padre seemed disturbed, but after considerable debate, he shrugged his shoulders, produced Fellow's money-belt and a hairy-face nani Rojas, who looked like a bandit and passed for a muliteer.

The fourth day Fellowes rode forth of the village. At the top of the narrow street, he halted to look back for the last time. His eyes were upon the rocks where the Schem had gone to her doom, a doom so complete that the only vestiges remaining of the brig were scattered bits of wreckage lodged in inaccessible crannies of the cliffs.

Clever Hiding Places for Family Treasures

In this day of checking accounts, safe-deposit vaults, wall safes, burglary insurance, of pursers on steamships and clerks in hotels who safeguard our valuables for us, it is difficult even to imagine what must have been the anxiety in the days when every woman had to look after her treasures for herself.

And yet even our grandmothers can sometimes tell us of the way they hid their jewelry deep within the feathers of the bed, or hiding their money in the chinks of the wall or sewing it in the wide hems of their skirts. And the secret drawers and slides and cubby holes that we find in interesting old pieces of furniture bear witness to the fact that women of former generations have had a far less easy time of it to hide their treasures than we.

In the bureaus, desks and other pieces of furniture made by the master cabinetmakers of the Eighteenth century in France and England much time and skill were used in making these secret hide-away places—the location of which and method of opening was often kept a deep secret between the maker of the piece and the owner.
