Mrs. Kelley's Recital

Notwithstanding the cold spell which swept over this section the early part of the week, the Hi School Auditorium contained a good-sized and appreciative audience at the Recital offered by the pupils of Mrs. T. E. Kelley Wednesday evening.

The program, which was so well arranged by Mrs. Kelley was carried out with accuracy, and the talent displayed was a great credit on both teacher and pupils.

As three of our boys, former students of the Carrizozo schools, Raymond Luckland, Maurice Lemon and Don Lemmon, who are attending the Military Institute at Roswell, are here for the holidays—Raymond sang two songs which added an appreciative feature to the program.

We wish it were possible to give each number on the program special mention, but as space forbids, we are taking the affair in a collective sense, and close by saying that the Recital, as a whole, was a splendid success and those who were so unfortunate as to miss this musical treat, were robbed of a treat. It was a splendid affair and reflected credit on all who contributed to its success.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Wilson came in on the Golden State Limited last Sunday from California and stayed over until Monday as guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Hickey at the Kudner Ranch in the Venado Gap. Their short visit furnished the guests with a means of pleasant diversion, as they took horseback rides in the mountains and enjoyed the scenery which that locality affords. They left Monday on the Golden State Limited for the east. Mr. Wilson is Vice-President of the Goodyear Tire Company and the entertainment furnished through the courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. Hickey, will ever be remembered by the short stay in this region of everlasting sunshine.

Engineer E. J. Shulda who has been ill recently with an ailment closely resembling the flu, has recovered and the arrival of his daughter Helen from Los Angeles to spend the holiday season, seems to have cured Dutch.

FORT STANTON NEWS

Commanding Officer Dr. and Mrs. Faget were Roswell shoppers Saturday.

Dr. D. D. Swearingen, eye, ear, nose and throat specialist of Roswell visited the hospital Sunday and is considering an appointment as attending specialist at the Marine hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Hendren visited Roswell Tuesday and have lined up some very good entertainment for the Christmas holidays for the patients. Roswell people are lending every assistance to help make this a Merry Christmas. The Trowel Club has completed arrangements for entertainment on Dec. 26. The Seamen's Church Institute will also have a party with instrumental and vocal music on Christmas Eve, the musicians coming from Roswell. The Misses Gibbons and Purdy of Roswell will present a specialty number (piano and whistling.) It is understood that an oyster stew and other refreshments will be served. In addition each patient will get a nice Christmas package.

On Sunday, at 7 p. m. at the Chapel of our Redeemer a Sunday school program will be given by the church school under the direction of Mmes. Hendren, Gylling and Burleson. In order to swell the chorus for the singing of Christmas carols, friends from Carrizozo and Capitan are practicing with the local choir for this occasion.

The Trowel Club reports they also have friends from Carrizozo and Capitan who will assist them on Dec. 26. Some of these people are singing and playing in some very good musical programs at their respective communities.

The Seamen's Social Club is planning a smoker for New Year's Eve, so the entertainment planned for New Year's Eve will be changed to another date, notice of which will be made later.

On behalf of the Christmas committee we wish to thank our many friends in Roswell, Carrizozo and Capitan for the splendid co-operation given in this program.

Mrs. Gensler, Mr. and Mrs. Fagan and family were in Roswell Friday in the interests of the Christmas committee.

O. T. Goldsmith of Little Rock, Arkansas, is visiting his brother at the Marine hospital.

A World War That Hasn't Ended

A call to arms was sounded so many years ago,
To fight an unseen enemy and a very deadly foe.

A weapon we call science and man who know and care,
Brought to us the microscope with which to see and plan.

So now we see him in the field,
from us he cannot hide;
Stand fast, men and don't retreat, we'll fight him side by side.

Our officers now can work much better since the enemy they can see,
I'm sure a victory is in sight, we'll conquer Old T. B.

Mr. and Mrs. Pate Phillips gave a party at their home Friday night. All present had a lovely time.

Miss Jonell Blood has been quite ill this week.

Mr. Burkhead and family from Mountainair have moved into the old Evans place.

Angus will have a big Christmas tree and program Friday night, December 21.

The Carrizozo Woman's Club met at the home of Mrs. Nellie Brannum Friday afternoon, Dec. 13. Since some of the churches are having Christmas programs, it was decided that the club would not have the Community Christmas tree and program this year.

Committee Chairmen reported that several of the departments are planning special entertainments to make money for their departments. Mrs. M. J. Barnett reported that the Civic Department is having a dance and card party at Community Hall on February 15, 1930.

At this meeting the nominating committee for the new officers was selected and they were asked to meet and have their report ready for the next meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Haley presented to the Club Library a set of Standard Encyclopedia.

The program was, "The American Home." 1. Song - Assembly. 2. Musical Reading, "My Little House"—Mrs. Elliott. 3. Paper, "The American Woman and a Word Picture of the Home-Maker's Responsibility"—Mrs. R. E. Lemon. 4. Song, "I'll Always be Mother's Boy"—Alfred Richardson.

The hostess served delicious refreshments. Next meeting will be on January 17, 1930.

Capitan Notes

The Kathryn Players gave two excellent entertainments at the Gym Monday and Tuesday.

The Freshman class of Capitan Hi will entertain the high school students and teachers at a party Wednesday evening.

The Misses Mora and Mary Ferguson made a business trip to Roswell Wednesday.

There will be a dance at the Gym Friday, Dec. 20, and on Christmas night, Dec. 25, another dance will be given. Music will be furnished by the "Mountain Boomers." Don't get your dates mixed, and attend.

The Capitan Hi basketball teams played the Carrizozo teams last Saturday. While the boys lost, the girls kept their record clean with a 29-11 victory.

The grade teams played Lincoln Friday, losing both games. Girls' score, 17-16; boys', 9-8.

The Freshman and Sophomore teams played Lincoln Hi, Capitan winning 20-17.

RADIO RUBE'S R-A-M-B-L-I-N-G-S

Radio Rube wishes everyone a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. This includes Amos n' Andy, the Wonder Bakers, the Criterion Quartet from Salt Lake City, and all other radio performers who contribute to our entertainment.

This jolly bunch of good fellows do much to dispel gloom and furnish many happy hours to waiting thousands. They'll figure prominently in the programs during the holiday season.

Conductor George Dingwall, who makes his regular trips to and from El Paso, was here this week and being an old friend of Radio Rube, he was anxious to know all about the radio news from the fans up here. George said the El Paso hook - up with other stations which is now "The Voice of the Great Southwest," is gaining prominence and will soon be classed among the leading stations of the west.

Radio Rube heartily recommends our local radio dealers to those interested in this amusement. Rolland's Drug Store, Kelley's Hardware & Sport Shop and Hedrick & Co., of Carrizozo and Eric L. R. Williams of Fort Stanton. At either place you will be well served with the radio of your choice. Rolland handles the Majestic, Kelley is agent for the Atwater Kent and Stewart Warner, Hedrick & Co. for the silver-tongued Victor and Williams of Stanton for the Atwater Kent. I am not plugging for either of this people in particular, for they are all friends of mine and all handle good machines and will be glad to give you a demonstration at any time.

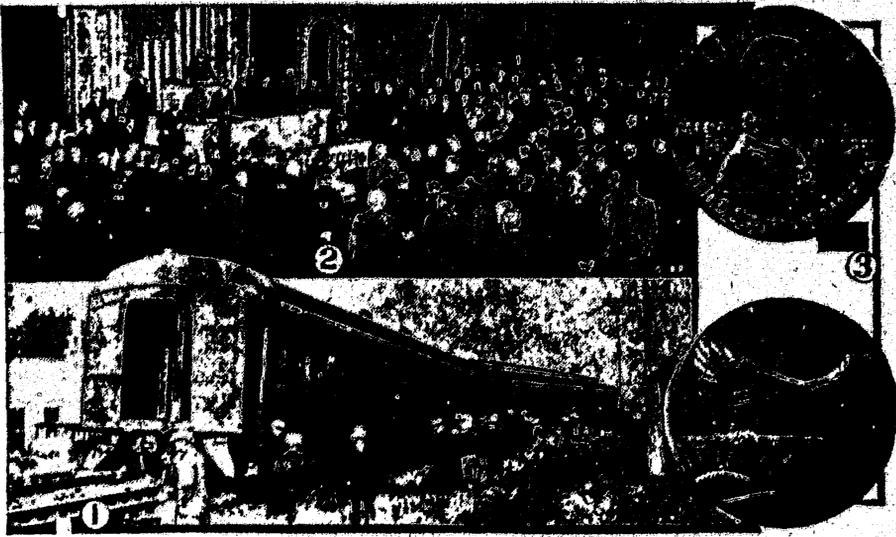

Queer things happen very often in radio land. Recently in a town in New York, a newly married couple got into a quarrel over the radio. She wanted Damrosch and his Symphony orchestra and he wanted Amos n' Andy. They finally agreed on Gilmore's Blue Green Gasoline circus, where "Sunburnt Jim" gave them such a reception that they resolved never to fuss about the radio again.

I heard something funny over KSL in Salt Lake recently; they were staging a play of some sort where a number of young ladies were to appear. When the manager asked if they all were present and being told they were in waiting, he yelled: "Bring 'em in, just as you bring 'em Young!" This sounded rather funny to me, as Brigham Young founded the Mormon colony at that place.

During the storms that have swept the country far and wide, this Old Man Statie has done his stuff in good shape - he has grumbled, snuffed and snorted and made things miserable for radio fans. He ran the scale from high G down to a pedal or contra note, after which he'd sneeze, stutter and shriek, come to a b-l-u-e note and stop.

Mrs. A. E. Lesnet son, Frank and daughter, Mrs. L. B. Crawford, are looking forward to a visit from Messdames Geo. Dingwall, Allan Johnson, and Miss Allene Haley, who will spend the holiday period here.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Congress Hears President's Message and Gets Busy on Tax Reduction.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

CONGRESS is doing business again at the old stand, the first regular session having opened Monday with perfunctory meetings of both houses. Next day President Hoover's annual message was read in senate and house, being listened to with intense interest and praised by administration supporters and criticized by the opposition.

The document was long and comprehensive, consisting of a matter of fact statement of what the administration has done and of what it hopes to do in the near future, followed by many recommendations to the legislative body. Concerning international matters the President expressed "high hopes" for the success of the naval conference in London, and made the significant statement that if the movement for reduction of armament fails, the United States may find it necessary to spend upward of $1,200,000,000 in naval construction in the next six years. He gave praise to the Kellogg-Briand pact, and said he would submit to the senate later the amended world court reservations. He urged ratification of the French debt settlement. In view of the uncertainty with respect to future revenue, the President recommended that the proposed 1 per cent cut in individual and corporation income taxes be limited to the present year. He urged early action on the tariff bill, again asking that the measure be devoted to aid agriculture and industries that have not been prosperous, and once more he advised that the flexible tariff provision be retained.

Mr. Hoover's liking for commissions was evidenced in several recommendations. These included suggestions for a commission to study the problem of branch, group and chain banking, a commission to dispose of the Muscle Shoals controversy and a commission to study conditions in Haiti. The message advocated an increase in appropriations for rivers and harbors improvement from $50,000,000 to $55,000,000 annually, at least half of which should be available for the Mississippi inland waterways system. It also asked bigger appropriation for construction of public buildings and for ocean mail contracts. Concerning the reorganization of government departments, the President said he had come to the conclusion that the only way to avoid endless controversy was to delegate authority to the executive.

When he reached the subject of prohibition and law enforcement the President used decidedly vigorous language. In dealing with the former he said that "it is not to be expected that any criminal law will ever be fully enforced so long as criminals exist," and of law enforcement and observance generally he said it is "the most serious issue before our people." He scolded the citizen who insists on selecting the particular laws which he will obey, branding him as the enemy of society. He made a number of recommendations for legislation to aid in enforcement of the prohibition law.

ON WEDNESDAY the President sent to congress the budget for the fiscal year 1921 calling for the expenditure of $4,830,000,000. Of this sum about $719,000,000 are for national defense activities, including the laying down of the three 10,000 ton cruisers on which suspension of work was ordered by President Hoover last summer. An outlay of $38,000,000 for the army and navy air services is contemplated, and $40,000,000 is to be expended on public buildings.

SPURDY action on the administration's $180,000,000 tax reduction program was obtained in the house, the joint resolution for the legislation going through practically without opposition. It was assumed that the senate also would adopt the resolution after some debate, and that the legislation would be enacted before the Christmas holidays. While the reduction applies to only one year, there were indications that the President hopes it can be made permanent.

THE senate, according to program, took up the three year old controversy over the right of William S. Vare of Pennsylvania to a seat in that body. Efforts to delay the debate were defeated, and on Wednesday Mr. Vare himself, crippled by paralytic paralysis and watched over by his physician, appeared in the senate chamber and read a detailed denial of the charges of fraud and corruption in his campaign for nomination and election in 1923. Every one knew that Vare's appeal was hopeless, for a majority of the senators were hostile to his cause. The privileges and elections committee had decided in his favor the contest brought by W. B. Wilson, the defeated Democratic candidate, but a minority of that committee reported that alleged ballot box frauds and corruption made Vare's election illegal. Radical Republican senators could vote for this report because it would accomplish the exclusion of Vare without seating a Democrat.

WHEN President Hoover and Secretary Stimson, backed by Great Britain, took cognizance of China's appeal and sent a note to Russia and China asking them to remember their obligations under the Kellogg pact and stop their warlike activities in Manchuria, they ran against an ugly snag. Maxim Litvinoff, acting Russian commissar of foreign affairs, replied with a brusque note virtually telling the United States to mind its own business. He attempted to justify Moscow's course in the Manchurian embargo, and then emphasized that the United States government had appealed to Russia at a time when direct negotiations were being carried on with Manchuria. By strength of this circumstance, the American note to Russia was termed an unjustified attempt to influence the Chinese-Russian negotiations and consequently could not be considered as a friendly act.

The commissar followed this with a public statement in the course of which he advised the United States and Great Britain to turn their minds toward activities in South America, warships in Chinese waters, and armies in colonial countries rather than attempt to obstruct the Russo-Chinese negotiations.

Secretary Stimson in a statement to the press made a sharp rejoinder upholding the right of any nation to mobilize world public opinion against a threatened outbreak of war.

The Nationalist government of China announced it would do all possible to effect a peaceable settlement with Russia of the controversy over the Chinese Eastern railway.

NEARLY four hundred of the country's leaders in business, finance and industry gathered in Washington Thursday at the invitation of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States to take steps for the advancing of President Hoover's campaign of business progress. Mr. Hoover himself told them first of the progress made through the series of conferences held previously, and Assistant Secretary Kiell of the Commerce department addressed them on "the elements of strength and weakness in the present business situation."

A general discussion followed, culminating in the organization of a permanent committee, which is to maintain an alert scrutiny over national production, distribution and consumption, for the purpose of noting depressions in particular fields as they develop and of evolving a means of ending them before they become serious.

In his survey Mr. Kiell, although saying that "admittedly in some industries the situation is not as satisfactory as it might be," and nothing is to be gained by giving those less solid wheels in our business mechanism," went on to declare that agriculture, in a broad sense, is sound, transportation active and efficient, mining and most major manufacturing activities "predominantly healthy, with a sound local and banking system and available credit at reasonable rates. Prices are steady with a somewhat downward trend, and inventories are low and without indication of any serious congestion."

KING VICTOR EMMANUEL and Queen Helena of Italy made history Thursday, when they paid their formal visit to Pope Pius. They were the first sovereigns of united Italy ever to enter the Vatican. Minister of Foreign Affairs Dino Grandi, Count de Vecchi, Italian ambassador to the holy see and a great throng of courtiers accompanied the rulers to the Vatican City, all being in closed automobiles and escorted by cyclist police. Hundreds of thousands of persons gathered in the streets to witness the procession, and on buildings along the way the Italian and papal colors were displayed. High officials of the Vatican City met the king and queen at the Arch of Charlemagne, the papal gendarmes presented arms and their band played the royal march. After a lot more stately ceremonial the visitors entered the throne room alone; the pope met them and raised them up as they bent to kiss his hand; then the door closed and the three conversed alone for a time. The royal pair as they left, carried precious religious gifts bestowed by the pontiff. After calling on Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, and receiving holy water from Cardinal Merry del Val, they worshipped in St. Peter's and returned to their palace.

ALL of our biggest oil magnates and Sir Hehr Deterding of Holland, managing director of the Royal Dutch Shell companies, were in Chicago last week attending the annual meeting of the American Petroleum Institute. The fact that Harry E. Sinclair is still popular among oil men was demonstrated by his re-election as a director of the institute. Edward L. Doherty was retired at his own request. Deterding addressed to the convention a plea for conservation of oil.

"A great many today," he said "think the oil supplies inexhaustible. We pay too little attention to wasteful exploitation (apart from producing too much), forgetting that new fields in the States may still be discovered, but that they can never be created. Nature put them in limited number and it is almost childish to state that the more that are discovered the fewer are left to the fate of discovery."

E. B. Reeser, president of the institute, asserted that the American petroleum industry had succeeded in balancing demand and supply of crude oil supplies but that there was still an overproduction of gasoline.

POSTMASTER GENERAL BROWN'S annual report revealed that the deficit in his department for the year ending June 30 was $35,481,176, or more than twice as big as the previous year. Among the factors responsible for this fact were the granting of $7,470,000 additional pay to postal workers and the payment of $7,390,000 on ocean mail contracts; also the downward revision of postal rates during the last year reduced revenues about $21,523,000 below what they would have been. Mr. Brown's report said that the department handled free of charge special privileged mail that otherwise would have paid in nearly ten millions of dollars.

REPRESENTATIVE TINKHAM of Massachusetts has prodded the senate committee on lobbying so severely that it may inquire into the activities and sources of revenue of a lot of lobbyists other than those whose concern is with the tariff. These may include the Anti-Saloon league and other bodies that are supposed to influence the votes of congressmen in matters relating to prohibition. Chairman Caraway of the committee told Mr. Tinkham the investigators would give him a public hearing. The Massachusetts representative has introduced a measure to require, under the threat of heavy penalties for violators, the registration of persons attempting to influence legislation.

GOBLINK, GERMANY, was abashed with boisterous and torches and bay with banners during a twenty-four celebration of the liberation of the second zone of occupation of the Rhineland. As the allied troops marched in, the German authorities marched in, the bands played and the people rejoiced hysterically. It has been announced that the last of the British occupation troops will leave the Rhineland on December 12.

Lest We Forget

The season for general rejoicing is at hand and in our eagerness to deal out gifts to those we love and to those who have bestowed favors on us during the passing year, we are apt to lose sight of the great duty we owe to those who have been less fortunate in life's battle than ourselves.

After Santa Claus has come and gone, it will be too late to think of this important matter, as the day of expectancy will have passed and gone. In making our gifts, let us number among those we have chosen to favor, a certain percentage of the needy among those of the little ones who are at this time in the year, looking for the coming of the Patron Saint and see that they are not disappointed.

In pondering over this matter, we are likely to overlook what we might term, the smaller things that will please and gladden the hearts of the ones of whom the Saviour referred to when he said: "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such, is the Kingdom of Heaven."

A collection of gifts in the way of smaller things for the little ones will be more appreciated than the ones which are more expensive.

The little doll, toys, candy, nuts, and the things in general, which the children are expecting are not difficult things to select and the sunshine they will bring into the hearts of the unfortunate will more than pay us for the pains. Again: there are families in our community where misfortune has left its ugly scars.

Let us not forget that if every human being has a claim on our kind offices — the unfortunate should have the first claim.

The time is at hand and before another issue of this paper, the glad celebration of the birth of the Prince of Peace, will have come and gone.

"Let not your right hand know what the left hand doeth" but if we are thoughtful in these things, the New Year will bring a blessing for having remembered those whom He never forgot.

A Reduction in LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE RATES

Effective January 1, 1930

Effective January 1, 1930, another reduction in Long Distance rates will be made. This is the fourth reduction in the Bell System in a little more than three years and based on the present volume of calls, will mean a saving of more than $5,000,000 a year to the telephone using public of the United States.

This announcement follows the rate reduction February 1 of the current year, 1929, which also represented a saving of $5,000,000. Earlier reductions had been made October 1, 1926 and December 1, 1927.

EVENING AND NIGHT RATES UNCHANGED

The latest reductions apply to day rates on Station-to-Station calls. Evening and night rates are not changed. The term "Station to Station" designates calls on which you are willing to talk with anyone at the called telephones in another city and the new rates affect those calls 50 to 250 miles from the calling point.

Reductions have been made in accordance with the aim of the Bell System "to continue to furnish the best possible telephone service at the lowest cost consistent with financial safety."

UNDERWOOD ANDERWOOD

A Basket of Grapes

Blanche Tanner Dillin

IN THE east of a cloudless sky shone a bright star as a beacon, over the town. Groups of town folk hurrying in its direction appeared as the wise men who followed the star of old.

Every one would be attending the Christmas entertainment given at the church, so no need to keep his fruit shop open, decided Matt Hughes, as he joined the happy joyous throng bound in that direction.

From where he sat he could plainly see the star, and he fell to dreaming of another Christmas when that same star shone as brightly as now, but instead of the snow-clad hills of New England there was the wide expanse of the California desert. Across that desert toward the star rode a lone horseman, a song on his lips and a smile on his face. From his saddle hung several packages in the bright holiday wrappings.

As he drew near a cabin the song changed to a shout of greeting which died to a low exclamation of surprise as he saw there was no welcoming light. After searching in the dark he had struck a light, and then had come the discovery of the written message. It was the same old story—unaccustomed to the desert the problems confronting one trying to conquer it had proved too big. Howard James, the playmate of his childhood, college friend and later neighbor out here in the West, proved now to be the real love of Dolly Hughes instead of Matt.

One day the name James Howard was spoken in his presence; the similarity in the name of his former friend caused him to locate the man. Then he learned that Dolly had not survived long after reaching there.

Matt Silently Extended His Gift.

With a curse on his lips the husband left, and although the two had lived in the same village for several years, they had never spoken to each other; but Matt had never revealed the identity of the other man.

Words of the program mingled with his dream, such as "The Glory of the Lord shone round" and "They brought Him gifts" and the words of the minister at parting—"Little children love one another."

An idea which formed quickly in his mind crystallized into action and Matt found himself hurrying first to his shop and then to a little home in the other part of town. Entering the presence of his once while friend, Matt silently extended his gift.

"Matt" the word was half a question and half an exclamation. The one addressed placed his offering in the other man's hands.

"Howard," he said, "I have brought a token of forgiveness." As he saw what the basket contained Howard clasped the gift more tightly.

"A basket of California grapes!" he cried over and over. "Just what I have longed for."

"Why it's only a basket of grapes," stammered Matt.

"No," Howard after a moment replied in a choked voice, "it's much more than that; it's an answer to prayer."

"Well," Matt said as he turned to go, "I'm glad that you like them." At the door he turned and extended his hand.

"Merry Christmas, Howard," he said.

The other grasped the outstretched hand—"Merry Christmas Matt, and God bless you." And the next moment the bearer of the gift was out under the stars.

WAITING for SANTA

MERRY CHRISTMAS

MERRY CHRISTMAS! Merry Christmas! No two other words could ever hold so much of warmth and gladness within them. There is a nameless something in their sound that fills the heart with happiness. As we hear them, the Christmas spirit, that most delightful and happiest of feelings, takes possession of us. And it is no selfish happiness that the words awake, for we are not content to keep it to ourselves; we want to go out and make others happy, to share our joy with all the world. We want to bring a smile to other faces; to help lessen and lighten the burdens that others may be carrying.

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

Just two short words, and yet how much they mean when unnumbered hours of happiness they bring! What glad and joyous things we wish for those we love as we call them out. What hopes surge within our hearts that the best in life may come to them! How cheer the words friends ship grow deeper and more sincere, and home ties and ties of kinred sweeter and stronger. There is a magic within them that makes us prize and value all the gifts that are ours; that makes us appreciate and cling close to our precious possessions.

And what memories they awake! Memories of other happy Christmas days; of hallowed friends and comrades that are now beyond the grasp of our hands; of the happy and never-forgotten days of childhood.

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

A smile and a song follow the words. They can bring gladness into every heart and bright sunshine into the day. And as long as the world goes on they will always remain as now, the happiest, the heartiest and the most joyous words that man can speak or write.

Christmas is for children. Christmas is first of all for the children. Don't forget the tree, and that they will enjoy making the pop-corn balls and candy and stringing bits of cotton to hang from the branches.

HERE are all sorts of presents. Some presents are duty presents. These are not quite so nice. Some presents are presents exchanged between friends for years and years and years. These are very nice, keeping up the old friendship, the old traditions, the old links.

Sometimes these are between people who have not seen each other for years, who keep up their friendship, who keep it secure through all the years by the Christmas link.

Then there are presents one gives to children. These are always fun. And there are presents one can give to children who otherwise would have no Christmas. These are even more fun. And there are presents one can give to little lonely, wide-eyed children who gaze wistfully into lighted shop windows.

There is hardly anything that brings a glow to the heart more than giving presents that are complete and overwhelming surprises to the recipients.

Then there are presents one can give to those faithful postmen who so unerringly bring the greatest boon in the world to one's door—the mail.

And there are presents one can give to one's milkman and ice-man and to little boys who deliver packages and messages around Christmas time.

All of these presents are such a pleasure to give. They are the presents that give such happiness to the giver, and the recipient feels the giver's good wishes, appreciation, tribute.

But perhaps the nicest of all presents to receive and to give are those that are absolutely not necessary from any viewpoint at all—not presents of gratitude, not presents of appreciation, not presents of joyous impulse, but the presents given because in the heart of the The Nicest Xmas giver is a desire to do something for that person—a wave of warmth and friendship and just the sort of feeling that says:

"I think I'll give that good friend something this Christmas. I just feel as though I'd like to do it—no reason for it whatever—but I feel as though I'd like to do this."

Those are the very nicest presents of all!

Santa Claus on the Road

by Frank H. Sweet

OM CHASEM was jovial, half-fellow-well-met, and did not like to work, except at repairing an old automobile which he owned. He and his big family were now on their way to Florida, planning to camp out.

They were going slowly, owing to various aspects of the car, chief among which was old age. Suddenly came a familiar squashing sound.

"Nother puncture, pa!" shrieked Arathusa, aged sixteen.

"Get me a plaster, Thuse," pa called out. "Fix it in a jiffy."

Thuse matched a plaster from the top of the junk box. It was the one thing that was always handy and in place. She hopped out.

In twenty minutes it was fixed, and they were going again, slowly, with pa glancing slyly over the side. Two miles, perhaps, when again came the familiar sound.

"Nother tire puncture!" once more shrieked Thuse. "That makes seven this afternoon."

"Only five or six," expostulated pa. "Saved, 'cause I counted," positively. She hopped out with another plaster.

Cars of all sorts were continually passing, going the same way. Another two miles or so, and a very handsome car appeared, coming to an abrupt stop opposite. The driver uttered a smothered exclamation.

Pa was out again, with Thuse standing by him with a plaster.

"Comes o' pickin' up one inner tube thrown away on the road, an' buyin' another in a junk shop for twenty-five cents," sniffed Thuse. "Why don't you buy a new one for a changer?"

"There was some good in 'em, Thuse," explained pa. "I hate to see things wasted. Can I help you, sir?" to the other car owner.

"Don't know," replied a perplexed voice. "Something seems to be wrong. I don't know what."

Pa left his own work unfinished and went to the other car, crawling under with his makeshift tools.

"Let's stop here and trim a tree for the children," suggested a woman in the car. "I saw a nice place a few rods back, with something that looked very much like holly. We won't reach Jacksonville till after Christmas."

"All right. Just as you say. I'll drop the bunch of you, and then skip over to the town and buy a few things for the kids. Say," to pa, "you've got a mighty nice bunch of holly in your car—and some mistletoe, I'll be bound."

"Not for me," laughed pa. "I noticed 'em back yonder and cut 'em, thinkin' I might meet somebody on the road who'd like some. You're welcome."

The transfer was made, with a "We are certainly grateful," from the woman. "Now we'll go back to the place I saw."

Pa's wife had been busy, and was out beside the road preparing dinner during the wait.

"All ready," she now called.

Dan, the ten-year-old, openly scoffed. "Salt pork an' measley taters," he said. "No, thanks, I'm not hungry."

The rest ate, excepting Thuse, after which pa returned to his puncture.

The Dinner Was Spread Lavishly Over a Big, White Cloth.

He was just ready to start again when Thuse called:

"Here comes that man."

"All invited to dinner and Christmas tree," generally. "The wife insists. No back talk."

Pa would have refused, but a look at the faces of Thuse and Dan deterred him.

"All right," he said, "be right over."

At first sight of the dinner, spread lavishly over a big, white cloth, Thuse whispered, audibly, "Turkey, and gobs of it." Dan merely chuckled.

After they were all so well filled that they gaped, they went to the Christmas tree, where everybody received as many presents as they could carry back, and pa himself had a full set of new tires. It was the first time pa had ever looked embarrassed.

The Christmas City

IN THIS Christmas city everybody called him Uncle Kriss. None of the young people knew that he had any other name. But everybody knew that Christmas would not be Christmas if Uncle Kriss did not direct the festivities.

Uncle Kriss was neither rich nor poor. He had no family of his own. Nature fashioned him on the pattern of Santa Claus. He was never happier than when planning a happy Christmas for the town—the town which came to be called the Christmas city.

Long before Christmas Uncle Kriss would go day after day with the boys and girls into the hills to gather evergreens and red berries for wreaths. A truck was sent to haul them to town. Then for a full week everybody worked making Christmas wreaths. A big bow of red crepe paper was fastened to the bottom of each wreath.

On the day before Christmas there was a Christmas wreath in the front window of every home, rich or poor. The Christmas city looked to be, as it really was, the home of Santa Claus. There was always a big tree erected in the street downtown and decorated with colored lights, cotton and tinsel. A small tree was sent to every home in town where there was a child. "Give the people plenty of Christmas," Uncle Kriss used to say, and they will need no police nor jail. The town had a small jail, but only once in ten years had there been anybody in it on Christmas day, and then there was a Christmas wreath in the little window behind the iron bars.

On Christmas morning Uncle Kriss formed the men into a company of good fellows and sent them from home to home among the poor to see that no child was missed and no one was cold or hungry on Christmas day, in the Christmas city.

PERSONALS

A Correction

In the account of basketball games between Carrizozo and Mountainair last week, we made an error, in the name of Georgia Peckham using the name Rustin instead. While this was not a costly error, yet the name was wrong and we hasten to make the correction, as in the first place, the once Georgia Rustin is now Mrs. Claude Branum, and in the next place, Georgia Peckham is a crackerjack basketball player and we beg your pardon, Georgia — it will not happen again.

Real Meaning of Christmas

Another year has gone and Christmas is here. What emotions this day brings to us. Firesides, yule logs, loved ones, homes, gifts and all of the Christmas delicacies. What a joy is the day. With God the day means giving and Christ. With us it should mean the same. And may this season be one of peace, joy and contentment, because in your giving you have found Christ. Come to church next Sunday and renew in your mind the spirit of Christmas.

The above picture shows a sectional view of Samson "Oil-Rite" Windmill illustrating principle of Pump, also location of Four Timken Roller Bearings

The AUTOMATIC OILING SYSTEM and lubrication of the various parts is accomplished as follows: The oil is poured into the gear case, which submerges the lower part of the double gears, including the wrist pin, when at the bottom of stroke. The rotation of the gears carries the oil up and floods the pinions, and the oil running down over the inside of the gears floods the gear shaft. The trough which is part of the hub of wheel head, maintains a level that submerges the lower part of both front and rear Timken bearings, and the surplus oil is returned to the gear case through a passage in the main frame extension. A felt oil retaining washer and paper gasket prevent any oil from working out around the wheel shaft.

AUXILIARY OIL PUMP

One of the outstanding features of the SAMSON "OIL-RITE" is the extreme simplicity, efficiency, and practicability of the pump.

The main frame on the Oil-Rite mill forms a reservoir that holds a sufficient amount of oil to lubricate the mill for one year. A sheet metal helmet completely encloses the reservoir and covers all working parts thus eliminating waste and making it dirt, rain, sleet and snow proof. No water can get in to flood the oil, no dust can blow in to grind out the bearings. This construction prevents squeaks, rattles and gear howling brought about by inefficient fabrication, all of which is avoided in the automatically oiled "OIL-RITE" mill. The ball bearing turn table, the constant supply of oil always flooding the moving parts and the Timken roller bearings insure the owner the "OIL-RITE" mill will pump water in the slightest breeze.
