Among farmers' wives until recently the percentage of insanity was very high. Living isolated lives, working hard from dawn until long after dark, seeing nobody but the sometimes dull, tired husband and farm hands, was bad for the mind.

You would say that a flying man or woman could write a book, "Things I Have Seen," that would eclipse Voltaire's "Choses Vues." (Things Seen), for Voltaire crawled around on the earth's surface.

Gandhi, starved Hindus whose sincerity causes the British empire more anxiety than all his 300,000,000 fellow Hindus combined, learns, as other enthusiasts have done, that the spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak.

Welding barely 100 pounds, eating no meat, taking no stimulants, a walk of 200 miles, that would seem a joke to an Irishman or a Scotchman, has exhausted him. He cannot go on.

Hodge, Calif.—President Hoover, designating May 1 as "Child Health Day," urges parents and all others to cooperate.

These are some ingredients of child health: Fresh air and sunlight. They cost nothing. Regular hours, long and regular sleep. They cost nothing.

While designating a child health day the government might think of the mother's health, also, and the disgraceful fact that this nation leads all others, civilized, in the number of mothers that die in childbirth for lack of competent attention.

Uranium, heaviest of all metals, is now produced for $200 a pound. Some of it was shown to chemists at Atlanta. The present price is low. Recently the stuff was priceless.

The sun's radiation, heat and power are supposed to come from the "stripping of atoms." The electrons, revolving around the nuclei, are stripped off and shot into space. The nuclei, left alone, are packed one against another, with no space separating them from their electrons and from each other.

An electron, in proportion to its size, is as far from its central nucleus as the sun is from the earth.

Each atom is a little solar system, so small you do not notice a million of these systems in the corner of your eye. Our universe is really too complicated, at least for our feeble minds.

Important to city governments, Bernini, which makes city roads a science, not a craft, is gradually founding of corners on streets with heavy traffic. Big omnibuses can turn rounded corners without pulling out into the street, interfering with other vehicles.

CORONA GLEANINGS

Pete Johnson of Carrizozo passed through Corona Wednesday morning enroute to Las Vegas.

George O. Haley, auditor for the Charles Ilfeld Company, is in Corona on business this week.

George Martin turned his new Chevrolet truck over Tuesday near the Marshall Atkinson ranch. The truck was heavily loaded with posts, but neither it nor George was seriously injured.

The Corona school children, faculty and a number of the parents enjoyed an all-day picnic in Red Cloud canyon Friday.

There was a meeting at the gym Friday night held for the purpose of organizing an auxiliary of the American Legion here.

One of the infant twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Alirez passed away Thursday morning.

Miss Addie Perkins, who has been quite seriously ill, is reported as improving.

The residence occupied by the T. H. Dearr family was completely destroyed by fire Monday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Dearr were on the way home from Roswell at the time. Volunteers rescued a part of the furniture, but the loss has not as yet been accurately estimated.

Bluford Chitwood and Lester Jones returned Tuesday from Lubbock, Tex., where they spent a week visiting friends.

Everett Wallace and Miss Myrtle Osborne were married at Carrizozo Monday morning. We wish them a long life of continued happiness and success.

He Is Risen

"Earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust." No matter how soft or musical the voice, no matter how filled with human sympathy, when these words are uttered, human heart-strings are torn. In them is the confession that the enemy takes our loved ones. We stand defeated, conquered, cowed. It is the sting of death. It is the victory of the grave.

But down the ages come the message of the first Resurrection Morn, "He is risen!" The Lord is risen. He was dead and is alive again. Drooping heads are lifted; tearful eyes are filled with hope; ears are strained to catch more of the glad tidings. He said, "Because I live ye shall live also." And, "He that believeth on me, though he were dead, yet shall he live." For, "I am the resurrection and the life."

Mounds of earth shall blossom forth with our resurrected loved ones. In gratitude, fathers and mothers, children and loved ones will gather with the "thousand times ten thousand and thousands of thousands" around the great white throne and sing, "Blessing, honor, glory and power be unto Him that sitteth on the throne, and unto the Lamb, forever and ever." — Rev. J. L. Lawson of the M. E. Church.

Uncle Sam Starts Taking Inventory

The Big Dam Will be Hidden in the Heart of Dreamland

Monday morning, Supt. A. E. Zumwalt of the water works system of the New Mexico Division, took the editor of the Outlook on a trip to the big dam site far away up the romantic and mytic Bonito, where the rushing waters laugh and murmur over rocks, pebbles and huge boulders, garnered on either side by rich soil covered with blue grass and clover beds, so perfect that one would think it to have been laid out and maintained by human hands. Up we went amid changing scenes of virgin growths of pine, spruce and fir, garlanded with blossoming fruit trees in the smiling mountain meadows, where the sunlight danced and played over stream and forest which seemed to respond to the glad advances of the King of seasons.

At last we reached the dam site, where we were joined by Messrs. Sines, engineer in charge; Scott, inspection engineer and Scales, rodman. Much could be said concerning the courtesies extended by the four above mentioned gentlemen, for they were glad to answer all questions about the big project to the tenderfoot newspaper man, who probed them with many queries and their patience and cheerfulness was something wonderful. They explained how they would excavate, drilling down until they came to bed rock before beginning the great foundation on which the dam will stand. This will first be done to insure a firm and lasting foundation for ages to come. The spot on which this work will be done, is where many, many years ago, placer mining was done by prospectors who found gold enough to pay them well for the ventures, and in sinking of the first drills the workers came across some nuggets, which although small, were of exceptional values for souvenirs.

The dimensions of the dam, as published in this paper April 4, was gone over again and Mr. Sines showed us just how and where the excavations are to be made, length and breadth of the dam which is designated by red flags along the mountain sides, showing the layout of the work. The distance to the site is not so great as some would think, it being but 25 miles from Carrizozo. The road up the Bonito is fairly good, but as the stream is heavy just now, on account of the melting of snows in the mountains, drivers will profit by taking it easy at the two crossings, for in attempting to use much speed, you will kill your engine in mid-stream and you might be put to the displeasure of having to request your friends to pull you over. Attorney E. M. Barber took this one. He made a rush for the other side, but was stalled and in getting out, left one of his tires in the bed of the swollen stream, so he advises prospectors to hunt for a rubber mine at that place. The engineer in charge showed us where the road would be built, as spoken in our last article, so that sight-seers might visit the dam and see it from all angles. So, ended our first visit to the site and we wish to express our thanks to Supt. Zumwalt, engineers and rodman, for the many courtesies extended.

Educational Budget Auditor

Carl D. Comstock was here Monday and Tuesday, making up the budget for the coming year. He met with Messrs. R. E. Lemmon of this place and J. A. Brubaker of Capitan. A check on the county showed that there is a substantial increase in school attendance over the county.

The County Teachers' Association meets at Capitan today and tomorrow and speakers from all state institutions are in attendance.

G. A. Sanchez

proprietor of the Alamo Photo Studio of Alamogordo and J. V. Rahilly of Tularosa were Carrizozo visitors Monday. Mr. Sanchez conducts an up-to-date photograph gallery at Alamogordo and his visit here was for the purpose of extending his business in that line.

Ford Dealership Changes Hands

Mr. Roy E. Shafer of Carlsbad has purchased the stock of goods of the Western Motors, Inc., and took charge of the Ford agency yesterday morning. Mr. Shafer, who until recently has been engaged in the ranching business with Mr. C. M. Farnsworth, will, about June 1, move his family to Carrizozo to make it their permanent home. He will have as associates some members of the Roswell Auto Co., who have had many years' experience in the Ford business. The new firm will be known as the Carrizozo Auto Co., and for the present will occupy the present quarters of the Ford Agency. The goodwill and best wishes of the retiring dealers go with the members of the new firm.

Baseball Next Sunday

CRYSTAL THEATRE

T. J. Pittman, Mgr Friday—Tom Moore & Blanche Sweet in "The Woman Racket." Saturday-Sunday—Joseph Schildkraut in "The Night Ride." Monday-Tuesday—Geo. Bancroft in "The Mighty." Wednesday—The Denver Broadcasters, under direction of Rev. Milton J. Swift. Also picture, "The Bishop Murder Case." Admission, 25 and 50 cents. Thursday—S. S. Van Dyne's "The Bishop Murder Case." Friday—James Murray and Kathryn Crawford in "Hide Out."

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Thornton

were here from their farm and ranch home near Oscura Tuesday. They will leave about Saturday for El Paso to visit the newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Moore, who were married at Las Cruces April 2. They will stay over the week-end and perhaps longer, before returning home to attend to the planting and seeding on their farm and orchard which brings forth a splendid yield of fruit and vegetables each year.

Carrizozo Lodge No. 41

A. F. & A. M., held a well attended communication last Saturday night and after the business was disposed of, the degree of Fellowcraft was conferred on one candidate. Visiting members were: Messrs. Frank Armstrong, Albuquerque; Tom Hobbs, James Anderson, Sr. and James Anderson, Jr., Fort Stanton; G. S. Hoover, J. A. Brubaker, Capitan; E. M. Barber, Carrizozo.

A Goodly Number of Carrizozo Shriners will attend the conclave at El Paso today and tomorrow and as far as we have been able to learn, the following is the list: C. F. Grey, S. W. Kelsey, M. J. Barnett, R. R. Sale, Wayne Van Schoyck, J. B. French, Roy Bogle and J. A. Brubaker, the last three named, it is said, are candidates for a trip across the "Hot Sands." They will return Sunday or Monday.

The Purity Bakery

of Roswell has an ad in this paper which speaks for itself, but as you are the one to do the buying, you must speak for the Purity Bakery products. You will see on the counters and in the cases of every grocery store and meat market in Carrizozo, the delicious doughnuts, tea rolls, cinnamon rolls, pies and cakes which this model and sanitary baking company are providing our merchants with. They look so pretty and the taste is so appetizing, that to buy once, will make you a regular customer. In this particular line of dainties, which are very reasonably priced. Be sure that "Purity Bakery" is printed on every package and you will make no mistake.

Mrs. A. B. Zumwalt

of Noyal, returned last week from Malaga, N. M., where she visited her son Flossie and daughter Irene and other relatives. Flossie is superintendent of the Malaga school and Irene is one of his teachers. Mrs. Zumwalt found them doing well and enjoying their work. They will be home to spend their vacation.

FORT STANTON NEWS

A. D. McNiff was operated on in El Paso last week and his friends are glad to learn that he is improving rapidly.

The Fort baseball team played the Roswell city team in Roswell Sunday and put up a splendid fight against the well organized opponents, losing 14 to 4. The team will play the M. I. at Roswell Saturday and the Institute boys will come here for a return game Monday at 2:30 p.m. Ball fans will enjoy these games. Come out and help us win. We are glad that the baseball spirit is reviving in Carrizozo and we hope to have some good games with our old rivals. Let's go!

Miss Lettie Gunn returned to the Post Tuesday after visiting in El Paso.

Dave Parker spent the week-end at Elephant Butte Dam, fishing and brought back a nice catch. Dr. Reid and Bill Hale are on their way to the dam and we hope they will have good luck.

Dr. and Mrs. Weathers returned Saturday night from a trip to Oklahoma.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyd and Miss Harris motored to Carlsbad for the week-end, visiting Mr. and Mrs. Golden and the Wunsch family.

Dr. Ed P. Johnson of the Bureau of Animal Industry was in Stanton Saturday, looking over the hogs.

As usual, the Lincoln, N. M. Community Church is planning a Mothers' Day service, beginning at 10 a. m. and followed by a basket dinner on the grounds. Come, bring friends, enjoy the day and meet old friends you have not seen for a long time.

Capitan Notes

Mr. and Mrs. Montie Gardenhire and Wallace Ferguson returned from California Tuesday evening

Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Koogler are sporting a new maroon-colored Chevrolet Sedan which they purchased at the City Garage in Carrizozo.

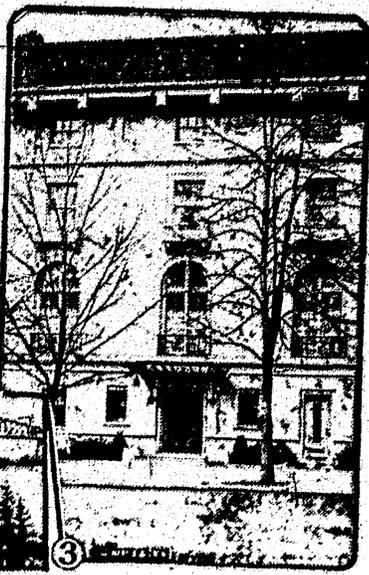

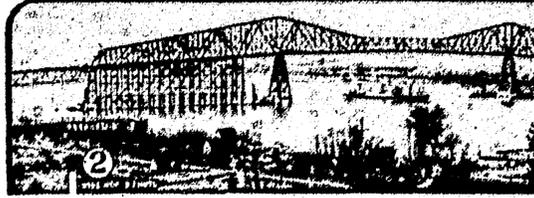

Mr. and Mrs. Williams were Roswell visitors last Saturday.

Several Capitan people are in Carrizozo this week, attending to court matters in the district court which convened there on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Miller left Tuesday for a trip to California, where they will visit all places of interest and perhaps purchase a home in one of the coast cities before their return. They expect to be absent three weeks or one month. Mr. Miller has lately been honored with a lifetime pension for long and faithful service in the Southern Pacific system and his friends are congratulating him.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Joyce have returned from Tucumcari, where they went several weeks ago, but owing to a lack of employment in his line with the railroad company, he failed to receive a justified amount and he will await the betterment of working conditions before leaving here again.

Special Easter services at Methodist Church Sunday night. Special music, songs and a sermon on the Resurrection awaits you.

1—Ruth Elder, aviatrix, helping christen two amphibian airplanes of the New York police which are stationed at the first air police precinct in the United States, at North Beach. 2—New bridge over the Columbia river between Longview, Wash., and Ranier, Ore., which has just been dedicated. 3—Pine home on R street, Wash- ington, which has been purchased by Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Taking of Fifteenth Decennial Census Under Way With New Features.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

UNCLE SAM is counting his nephews and nieces and finding out a lot about their prosperity or lack of it. In other words, the fifteenth decennial census is being taken. This big job will be finished in the cities within two weeks of the start, and in the rural districts within one month. Besides population, this census includes unemployment, agriculture, irrigation, drainage, manufactures, mining, and distribution. The distribution census, which is a new feature, will be made up of statistics of goods sold by wholesale and retail merchants and dealers and of the number of persons employed in trade. Unemployment, considered as a separate subject of inquiry, also is new, although some of the previous censuses have included a single question asking the number of months in which persons have been unemployed during the year.

For the first time each family is asked whether it owns or rents its home, the value of the home or how much rent is paid. Another new question concerns the age of each individual at first marriage, and a third question, "Is there a radio set in your home?" Answers to these questions are expected to furnish valuable new information never before compiled in the United States. It will be interesting to compare the results of the count with the figures given by the census taker, an ingenious piece of mechanism in the office of the director of the census in Washington. At one o'clock after midnight on April 1, when the census started officially, this clock gave the population of the United States as 122,184,831.

The enumerators actually began their work on April 2, and at one o'clock that afternoon President Hoover met J. Sterling Moran, supervisor for the District of Columbia, outside the White House and handed him a filled-out family schedule. Everything in it was confidential, as is the case with the replies of every other person in the country.

Missouri, New Jersey and Idaho contested for the honor of having completed the first district in the census. Centertown, Colo. county, Mo., which takes its name from the fact that it is the exact geographical center of the state, telegraphed its claim to being the first town to complete the task, to census headquarters. Contesting that honor was Kootenai county, Idaho, which reported the enumeration there completed at 9:30 a. m. Morris township, Morris county, N. J., finished early in the afternoon.

THOUGH wet and dry figures are not included in the census, those supplied by the Literary Digest's national straw vote are being given out daily and are apparently significant enough to give the supporters of prohibition in its present form considerable concern. Dry leaders contend that this poll is unfair, and Senators Jones and Dill of Washington asserted in the senate that the ballots were sent mostly to men. Mr. Dill asked the Digest editor whether women were being discriminated against and was told that the ballots were sent to the same persons who got them in a Presidential election poll in 1928.

Because of the consideration of the tariff bill on the floor of the house of representatives, the judiciary committee's hearings on the Eighteenth amendment were suddenly halted. Dr. P. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, and four other dry leaders were permitted to insert their statements in the record, but the wetts, much to their disgust, had no opportunity to cross examine them. The keynotes of all the statements was sounded by Doctor McBride in this sentence: "Prohibition at its worst, even in the worst cities and in the worst places within these cities, is better than the old-time licensed liquor traffic at its best."

Doctor McBride declared that the wets have failed to prove their major contentions—that the Eighteenth amendment fails to contribute most effectively toward the solution of the liquor problem; that the people are asking for repeal, and that they, the wets, have a constructive program upon which they can unite.

FOLLOWING several hours of discussion, the house by a vote of 421 to 163 approved of a special rule to send the tariff bill to conference. The rule made no mention of the verbal understanding that before final action is taken by the conferees separate votes will be asked in the house on sugar, cement, lumber and slings. The conferees appointed by Vice President Curtis and Speaker Longworth were the ranking members of the senate committee and of the house ways and means committee. They include none of the so-called radicals.

SENATOR NORRIS of Nebraska, sponsor of the pending resolution for government operation of the Muscle Shoals project, in a speech in the senate demanded that the American Farm Bureau federation repudiate Chester Gray, its Washington lobbyist, asserting that Gray had been exposed by the lobby investigating committee as a traitor to the farmers' cause. The Nebraska senator reviewed Gray's co-operation with the Tennessee River Improvement association, a lobby in behalf of the syndicate bid for Muscle Shoals formerly headed by C. H. Huston, now Republican national committee chairman.

CONGRESSMAN SNEEL'S resolution calling for the appointment of a joint congressional and executive commission to study the question of giving the President power to draft man power and capital in event of war was passed by the house without a record vote.

Approval of the measure after five hours of acrimonious debate was featured by a signal victory for labor interests opposed to the conscripting of workmen for industrial purposes in wartime. In its original form the Snell measure provided for a study of labor conscription as well as the drafting of industry and man power in event of war. So much opposition developed to the labor phase of the inquiry that an amendment was finally adopted stipulating that the commission "should not consider and should not report upon the conscription of conscripting labor."

OVER production of wheat in the Northwest may be checked, if the farmers take kindly to the plan put forward by Chairman Legge of the farm board at the suggestion of Dr. J. L. Coulter, chief economist of the tariff commission. The plan is for the farmers to exchange part of their seed wheat to the farm board for flax, barley, rye and oats for planting this year. Coulter, loaned to the farm board, started on a two weeks' tour of the wheat belt to try to put the scheme into effect. He hopes to cut the wheat acreage in Minnesota and the Dakotas by two million acres.

It is forecast by the Millers' National federation that the United States' carry-over of the present crop into the new crop year on July 1 will be close to that of a year ago. The carry-over this year is estimated at 243,300,000 bushels, compared to 245,000,000 bushels on hand last July 1, the forecast states.

WHATEVER else comes out of the London naval conference, there is to be a three-power limitation agreement. It was officially announced at American delegation headquarters Thursday that the American, British and Japanese were in complete accord. The Americans and British, at a meeting with the Japanese at St. James' palace, indicated acceptance of the Japanese reservations. The only points to be settled are details relating to Japanese reservations on the scrapping and replacing of ships in order to keep their deckyards working. It was said there would be no factor of difficulty in any of the Japanese reservations. The Root-Macdonald formula had previously been accepted by the Japanese government with four reservations which were considered merely technical. With this highly encouraging back- ground, the delegates went ahead with their negotiations designed to satisfy the security pact demands of France in the high hope that the French and Italians could be brought into accord with the other powers for the adoption of a five-power treaty. Italy was asked to join with Great Britain and France in a mutual security arrangement affecting the Mediterranean, and conversations were continued concerning how far the British should go in guaranteeing France against aggression. Prime Minister MacDonald has given parliament assurance that Great Britain will undertake no new military commitments, but it was hoped the French could be satisfied, nevertheless. The plenary session of the conference, scheduled for Friday, was indefinitely postponed so that Briand and Henderson might continue their search for a formula acceptable to both their governments, and also to Italy, which had not abandoned the demand for parity with France.

Nationalistic organizations of Japan staged a demonstration against the acceptance of the Root-Macdonald agreement, declaring it was a humiliating surrender of means of national defense in the face of American demands.

ONE of the minor worries of the government came to the front when it was found that Mme. Anastasia Tchulkovsky, who claims to be the youngest daughter of the slain Russian czar Nicholas II, had overstayed the visitor's permit on which she was permitted to enter the country. The immigration bureau could order her expulsion, but nothing further could be done about it, for there is no place to which she could be deported. There are already outstanding papers for the deportation of some 700 undesirable Russian natives, but since 1921 the Russian government has declined to receive any of them. They cannot be landed in other countries, so here they remain.

WILLIAM T. COSGROVE, whose resignation as president of the executive council of the Irish Free State parliament was forced by an adverse vote, was re-elected by the dail eireann by a vote of 80 to 67. Eamon de Valera and T. J. O'Connell were first proposed for the place and were defeated decisively after a long and bitter debate.

DR. OTTO BRUENING, the new chancellor of Germany, has formed a ministry which has a good chance to last for some time, although it includes no Socialists. A motion of no confidence in the cabinet, proposed by the Socialists and Communists, was defeated, 252 to 187, because the Nationalists, who hold the balance of power in the reichstag, refused to support it. If the government had fallen Chancellor Bruening, with the consent of President von Hindenburg, would have dissolved the reichstag. He gained the friendship of the Nationalists by promising a generous farm relief program.

BY THE big majority of 430 to 55 the French chamber of deputies ratified the Young reparations plan and authorized President Doumergue to sign this final act for liquidation of the World war and for the evacuation of the Rhineland. The closing day of the debate was quiet, despite warnings of the Nationalists that withdrawal of French troops from the Rhineland would release another German invasion.

WILLIAM GREEN, president of the American Federation of Labor, told the senate interstate commerce committee that 3,700,000 wage earners were unemployed in February, losing a total of $400,000,000 in wages. Workless wage earners lost at least $1,000,000,000 in wages during the first three months of this year, he added.

"One billion dollars' worth of wealth," said Mr. Green, "created by our wage earners and spent for the products and the services of our industries in three months, would undoubtedly be more than sufficient to turn the tide of business from recession to advance."

Unemployment in the ranks of the laborer has not fallen below 8 per cent of the total membership in the last 37 months, according to Mr. Green.

Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for April 20

JESUS TEACHING FORGIVENESS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 18:15-20, or Easter Lesson, John 20:1-16.

GOLDEN TEXT—Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaching Forgiveness.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Teaching Forgiveness.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Practice Forgiveness?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Is True Forgiveness?

This lesson touches a most vital subject for our everyday lives. We are always surrounded by wicked men. Ill treatment we shall most surely receive, for all who will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution (II Tim. 3:12).

In this lesson we have divine instructions as to our behavior in case of such ill treatment.

1. How to Gain an Erring Brother (vv. 15-20).

A sinning brother is lost. To bring him to a knowledge of his sin and restore him to fellowship in the church is to gain him. One soul is of greater value than the whole world. The method to be used is:

1. Personal (v. 15).

Go alone and tell him his fault. Personal effort is most vital in winning an erring brother. It is usually an effective method.

2. The help of a comrade (v. 16).

"Take with thee one or two more." The presence of one or two comrades helps in making known his fault.

3. Tell it to the church (v. 17).

Sometimes the church can accomplish that which the individual and the comrades fail to do.

4. The binding authority of the church's decision (v. 18-20).

When the church follows the instruction of the Lord, gathers in the name of Jesus Christ, and is actuated by the Holy Spirit, its decisions are final.

11. Peter's Question (v. 21).

This question was probably occasioned by the ill treatment which Peter was then experiencing at the hands of his fellow disciples, Christ's confession of Peter brought him into the limelight. The question of the disciples, "Who is greatest in the kingdom?" shows that there was some jealousy of Peter among the disciples. This envy and jealousy was known to Peter. His patience being thus tested, he came to Jesus with a question regarding forgiveness. From the Lord's teaching as to the efforts to bring about reconciliation in case of offenses between brother and brother, he knew that the spirit of forgiveness would be required. Peter, disposed to be gracious, inquired, "Will seven times?" showing his readiness to forgive his brother not three times, but twice three times, and a little over.

111. Jesus's Answer (v. 22).

This answer was an astonishing revelation to Peter. Jesus said, not until seven times, but until seventy times seven, showing that willingness to forgive should be practically limitless.

IV. The Two Creditors (vv. 23-35).

These two creditors illustrate Christ's principle of forgiveness.

1. The gracious creditor (vv. 23-27).

The king in this parable represents God. The servant who is greatly in debt represents the sinner, any sinner, every sinner—you and me. We were hopelessly in debt to God. Ten thousand talents are equal to some twelve millions of dollars. To meet this obligation would be an utter impossibility. This man's plea for time, promising to pay all, resembles man's vain imagining that he can pay his debt to God, that by his future good works he can atone for past sins.

2. The cruel creditor (vv. 28-35).

The man who was forgiven so much found a man who owed him a small sum—perhaps seventeen dollars. He shut his ears to this man's entreaty to have patience with him, flew at his throat, and cruelly put him into jail. The great mercy shown the one whose debt had been forgiven did not touch his heart, so he refused to be merciful. Being set free from so great a debt as our sins against God, we should not take up some slight consideration against our brothers, but should make God's act of unlimited forgiveness toward us a standard of unlimited forgiveness toward others.

(1) We, every one, continue to need every day the forgiveness of God. When we pray, "Forgive us our debt as we forgive our debtors," let us be sure that we have put away all thought of sin held against others. No mercy will be shown to those who have not shown mercy.

The New Life

The Desert Moon Mystery

SYNOPSIS

Sam Stanley, wealthy owner of the Desert Moon ranch, informs his housekeeper, Mary Magin, that his former wife's twin daughters, Danielle and Gabrielle, are coming to the ranch to live, their mother being dead and their father, Daniel Cannizzano, who had been the cause of Sam's divorcing his wife, in the penitentiary. Sam's twin daughters, John, has grown to manhood, and a girl, Martha, weak-minded, Mrs. Ollie Ricker, Martha's nurse, Hubert Hand and Chadwick Caldwell are the other members of the household. The girls arrive. John becomes engaged to Danielle. Gabrielle seeks to win John from her sister, and her actions when she receives a letter from France mystify Mrs. Magin. Sam learns Cannizzano is soon to be released from the penitentiary. Mrs. Magin finds Gabrielle, choked to death, with tobacco ashes beside her. She realizes that the ashes must be from Sam's pipe, and conceals them before calling the household. Causfield's verdict is murder and suicide. Sam finds a note left by Causfield confessing he killed Gabrielle, but the rancher proves he could not have done it, and the entire household is under suspicion. Danielle shows Mrs. Magin the letter Gabrielle had received from France. It is in code, typewritten.

"No, of course he didn't, dad. I'm giving you Bauermont's story, that's all. According to him Cannizzano told him he had hidden the money here, all right; but he would not tell him where. He said it was safe, that no one could find it—not in a thousand years. That was all Bauermont could get out of him, except a promise to meet him, when he got out of prison, and come here with him to get the money.

"The letter Gaby got, a few days ago, was from this Bauermont. Danny could not read the code, but she has every reason to think that the copy Gaby read to her was genuine. In it he said that the whole thing, from start to finish, had been a put up job on Gaby. He and Cannizzano had had no connection with the train robbery. The point of it was, that he had found another girl, was tired of Gaby, and wanted to ship her out of the way. Danny says the whole thing was an insult, from beginning to end; and that it seemed to have been written with no other motive than a desire to humiliate Gaby, twist her—laugh in her face."

"Sounds fishy to me," Sam mused. "Well, John, does that finish up the part of the story Danny couldn't tell?"

"I think so, dad."

"All right, now, Danny, what did you mean, a few minutes ago, when you warned me to be careful, like you did?"

Danny Could Not Read the Code.

"I—," Danny stammered, "wanted you to be careful about what you said, in anger."

"In other words, you wanted me to be careful about saying anything that would seem to implicate John?"

"John is not guilty."

"How do you know that?"

"I know it the same way that you all seem to know that Chad was not guilty. I know John."

"That's all right. But you can't know John's innocence like we know Chad's; because, from the time Gaby came downstairs, until we all set out to look for her, Chad was not out of my sight. He was at the piano. He walked to the barn with me. He walked back to the house with me. He was with us all during supper."

"You," said Danny, "say that Chad was in the barn with you during all of that hour. I wonder whether Chad, if he were alive, could swear that you were in the barn with him, during all of that hour?"

"What do you mean by that, my girl?" Sam questioned.

Danny sat and stared at him, her eyes wide, her lips bitten tight; and looked as if she were frightened plumb out of her senses, and did not say one word.

"You meant something when you said that," Sam insisted. "Now what was it? Come, speak up. I don't aim to treat you mean, and you know I'm sorry for you, and feel for you in your trouble. But what is it you have on your mind?"

She sat there, still as a mouse; her big eyes growing bigger from fright. John said gently, "If you have anything to say—please say it."

"You won't blame me?" she pleaded. "You won't blame me, afterward?"

"Could I blame you for telling what you think is the truth?"

"Hubert," she spoke suddenly, and very sharply, for her, "did you see Uncle Sam, all that time, in the barn? Could you see him, all the time, while you were milking the cows? He says he could not see you."

"No—," Hubert hesitated. "No—I guess I didn't see him, all the time. He was at one end of the barn, and I was at the other. But I heard him talking to Chad all the time. Sam was right there all the time, Danny. No getting away from that."

"But there is," she said. "You all seem to have forgotten it, but Chad was a mimic and a ventriloquist. He could have stayed there in the barn alone, and with no trouble at all, made you think that Uncle Sam was there, too, and that they were talking together."

I stopped breathing. I think the others stopped breathing. John spoke first.

"Four cows got milked. Chad couldn't milk. Never milked a cow."

"How do you know?" Danny said.

"You know only that Chad said he could not milk. We all know that he was lazy. He was raised on a farm. He told me he was."

John said: "He told me that he was born and reared in Chicago."

"Shut up, John," Sam commanded. "Go on, Danny."

"That's all," she said. "Except, that if Chad could milk, that would have given Uncle Sam nearly all of that hour."

"Dan!" John's voice sounded as if he were talking to one of his meanest broncos. "Stop it! Sitting here and accusing dad, with no evidence—nothing but a crazy, wild idea—"

"That is not true. I have evidence. I picked up Gaby's bag from the steps yesterday evening. Tobacco and pipe ashes were sticking to it. No one else on this place smokes a pipe. No one else, anywhere, drops his pipe whenever he is excited." She turned to me. "That is what I told you I dared not tell—," She hid her face in her hands.

Sam's pipe fell from his mouth.

CHAPTER X

A Part of the Past.

It seemed to me that, when Sam's pipe hit the floor, it made a noise like doom cracking. We all sat still as stones. I suppose it could not have been more than a minute, but it seemed a long time before John left Danny's side and went and picked up the pipe and handed it to Sam.

"It's all right, dad," he said.

"Not by a d—n sight, it's not all right," Sam came back to his senses vigorously. "But it is interesting—this thing. It is getting interesting anyway. Let me see— if I had got Chad to help—and I could have, by telling him it was some joke or other I had on hand—I could have sneaked out of the barn, met her and killed her, during that hour. When could I have got the body upstairs, though? That's the first missing link. My reason for killing her would be another, but—"

"Say! See here, dad," John cut in.

"You shut up, son. We are waiting to hear the rest of what Danny has to say. Come, Danny, can you supply either of those missing links?"

"No," she said, and sighed. "It was easy to see that she was plumb tucked out. 'No, of course I can't.'"

"Sam, you look here—," I began.

"You shut up, too, Mary," Sam said. Mrs. Ricker spoke. She had her say out. Nobody, not even Sam, would any more think of telling Mrs. Ricker to shut up, than they would think of telling any other dumb object, that suddenly started to talk to shut up.

"I think," Mrs. Ricker said, "that the girl herself probably killed her sister. If Sam's pipe ashes were on the bag, she put them there, afterwards, to make trouble for him."

Sam said, "Shucks!"

I thought John would be the first to speak. I was mistaken.

It was Danny herself who said, "Make her talk, now, Uncle Sam. Make her talk now, and give her reasons for saying such a cruel, wicked, lying thing."

"Mrs. Ricker," Sam put the question very solemnly, "have you any reasons for making this accusation?"

"I have a feeling that she is guilty."

"This," Sam said, sternly, "is no time for feeling, nor for quibbling. You made a serious accusation—straight out. I want your reason, or reasons, for making it, and I want them just as straight."

"I have no reasons," Mrs. Ricker said. "That is why I suspect her."

"Ah-ah-ah! Women!" Sam said; and the way he said it, it was the blackest oath he had used that day.

"I think," I said, talking fast to keep Sam from shutting me up before I could get anything said. "That it, in suspicioning an innocent girl like Danny, Mrs. Ricker is simply drawing on her woman's instinct; she'd better pass it up, for the present, and listen to some plain sexless sense.

"Gaby came downstairs at four. Danny called after her, right then; so Danny was in the house right then. Gaby went to the rabbit hutch and stopped long enough to give Martha the bracelet. Almost as soon as Martha was in the house with the bracelet, Danny was downstairs with us, cool, collected, and undisturbed. Now suppose that Gaby had come straight back into the house. I guess every one would agree that it would take her five minutes to get back upstairs. That would leave Danny not more than ten minutes to kill her, and to come downstairs, as I've said, collected and undisturbed. Come to think of it, Gaby could not have talked to Martha and got to the attic stairway in any five minutes. At the widest figuring, that leaves Danny about five minutes—"

As I had been fearing he would, Sam stopped me. "That's all right, too, Mary. But there is no need to draw so long a bow. No need to count minutes on Danny. The note in Gaby's bag fixes her innocence better than all the minutes on the clock could."

"No, it does not," Mrs. Ricker said. "Gaby knew that she had reason to fear an enemy. She probably found that out from the code letter. She may never have suspected that the enemy was her own sister."

"I wish I knew," Sam said, giving Mrs. Ricker a long look, "what you are getting at, Mrs. Ricker. I'd give that," Sam dangled out his right hand, "to know what any one of you was getting at. I think Danny would have to be pretty hard put to it, before she'd invent that story about my pipe ashes— See here, did any one else think they saw my pipe ashes around there?"

I imagined I could feel Hubert Hand's eyes boring into me. My face burned. I raised my eyes. Sam was staring straight at me.

"Mary," he said, "you found the body. Did you see pipe ashes there, then?"

My only excuse is, that it takes longer than a minute or two minutes to betray a person who has been your best friend for twenty-five years.

I said, "No."

"I am going to ask you to swear to that. Somebody get the Bible."

Nobody moved.

"You haven't made any of the others swear to anything," I said.

"I haven't caught any of the others in what I was sure was a direct and deliberate lie."

I felt weaker than filtered water. It is one thing to tell a lie, offhand into the free air. I haven't much use for a person who can't do that, when absolutely necessary. It is another thing to put your hand on the Good Book and swear to a lie. I knew that I could not do it.

"Martha," Sam said, "run and get the Bible for dad."

Martha seemed to be sound asleep. I did not notice anything queer about her appearance. Mrs. Ricker must have noticed something queer. She jumped to her feet and dashed across the room to where Martha was lying. A shriek went piercing through the house, splintering the air into quivering bits of agony.

Every one has awakened from sleep, cold with the sweating terror of some hideous nightmare, but with only the vaguest impressions of its details. So it is with me, and that nightmare hour. I can not reconstruct it. It remains, yet, in my mind as nothing but a horror of confusions.

Some of us made desperate attempts with restoratives.

I remember Sam's crying, with his face uncovered, like a child. I can hear him saying that he had given her a sleeping powder, had forced it upon her; I can hear, plainest of all, Mrs. Ricker's voice, with all the pent up passions of years breaking forth in torrents of heartbreak.

"My baby, my baby girl, my darling, Mothers' life, Mother's heart, Speak to mother, My lamb, My baby."

Her voice again, but cruel now, as she shrieks at Hubert Hand. "Stand there, you beast! Stand there, dry eyed and look at your dead daughter. The child you deserted. The child you ignored—"

I remember the feeling of the fresh air as I walked beside Sam, who was carrying Martha, out of the house. I think that it was John who explained to me that the doctor, who had left Telko, was going to meet us on the road, in order to save time. I remember Mrs. Ricker's scream, when—futile, unnecessary horror—Sam stumbled with his burden as he went to step into the sedan.

The doctor, who was younger and more cruel than even a doctor has a right to be, said that Martha had died from a stoppage of the heart, undoubtedly induced by the strong drug in the sleeping powder that had been administered. In other words, Sam had killed her. He loved her. How deeply he had loved her, none of us had ever had sense enough to realize.

We had her funeral; and Chad's, two days later. All the people in the valley came. At first, I thought that they had come to honor the dead, and Sam. But, as I stood by the graves, and watched the faces about me, faces that held suspicion, horror, curiosity; sly faces, cruel faces, eager faces, I did not care to think why most of them had come.

There were only four of us around the table that evening: Mrs. Ricker had gone straight to her room, after the funeral. Danny, with no protest from Sam, had left the day before to take Gaby's body to San Francisco.

"You people," Hubert Hand spoke suddenly, to John and Sam and me, "have been awfully decent about not asking questions since the other afternoon."

"Never mind that, now, Hand," Sam answered. "I've known, since the first week you came to the ranch, that there was, or had been, something between you two. You'd been her lover, I suppose. Well—men do. That's all. I reckon you deserted her, eh? And treated her like h—l, generally. And she found a refuge here. And, later, probably, heard that you were in trouble, and sent you a letter and told you to come here. Put you wise about the chess racket. Helped you. Made a refuge for you. Women do."

"I suppose she slipped poor Martha in, in place of the child she'd got from the orphanage—used the same papers. Well—go keep on repeating myself, mother's do. You and she have both lived straight and acted decent for the years you've been here. If the two of you want to keep on trying in this h—l-hole, and keep on straight and acting decent, you'll get the same treatment from me you've always got."

Hubert Hand pushed back his chair, got up, and walked to the window. "By G—d, but you're a white man, Sam!" he said. "You're so d—n white that you make every one around you look yellow as sulphur by contrast."

"You've got it doped out right about Ollie Ricker and me. She was twelve years older than I was—I always felt like that was kind of an excuse for me. Guess not, though. She was a good enough girl until I came along, just out of prison, and as rotten as two years in prison can make a kid. That's pretty d—n rotten. She kept me pretty straight for a while. I ought to have married her, and I know it, before the kid was born. But she was so jealous that she made life a living hell for me. I—well, I wouldn't marry her."

"It was her fault that I got sent up the second time for forgery. She talked to a girl friend of hers, and the girl snitched. Up to that time, I think that Ollie Ricker talked more than any living woman. She took a vow, the day they got me, that she'd never speak an unnecessary word again in her life. I'll say she's kept that vow pretty well. I wish to God I'd taken the same vow, before I shot my mouth off about John, the other day."

"You don't think that I did it, then?" I wished John could have seemed less eager.

"On the square," Hubert answered, "I don't see who else could have done it. That makes no never mind. I wish I'd kept my mouth shut, on account of Sam—"

She Talked to a Girl Friend of Hers, and the Girl Snitched.

"Leave me out of it," Sam growled, "and forget it. Forget the whole d—n thing, if you can. I'm through. I'm a fool. I'm a d—n sight worse—I'm an old fool. A girl got killed on the Desert Moon ranch. A boy killed himself for love of her. The killer got clean away. So far as I'm concerned, it is going to rest there. I'm closing the book. Soon as I can, I'll sell out the d—n place, lock, stock and barrel."

"That doesn't go for me, dad," John said. "And I think you'll change your mind. I'm not willing to go on the rest of my life with half a dozen people thinking that I killed Gabrielle. No air, not with one person thinking it. Here's another thing, dad. Danny honestly believes that some way or other, you are mixed up in this thing. We can't marry with a thing like that between us. I guess it doesn't make any difference in the way we feel toward each other; but it makes a barrier. Just the same, that will have to come down before we marry."

"You think Danny is coming back here, then?" Hubert questioned.

"How do you mean?—They read a telegram to me, not an hour ago saying that she'd get in on number Twenty-one Friday afternoon."

"I'll bet she's not on it."

"Say, Hand—"

"Keep your shirt on, John. We all know that Danny is innocent of the crime, and that she is a good little scout—at lot better than Gaby was, if not half as charming and attractive. But—she knows more than she wishes to know. She knows more than she can tell, in safety. For the love of Mike, folks—couldn't you see that she had some reason for working up that case against Sam? Cutting it out of whole cloth. If she'd been trying to shield John, do you think she'd have used Sam for that purpose? Not on your life she wouldn't have, she'd have pinned it on me, or Mrs. Ricker, or even on Mary." She did try to pin it on Chad—"

Mrs. Ricker came tottering into the room. Sam jumped to meet her, and helped her over to his own big chair at the head of the table.

"She leaned forward, her long black-sleeved arms stretched straight in front of her over the white cloth, her hands clenched into fists.

"For hours," she said, "I have been trying to reach a decision. I have reached it. I have come here to confess."

"Before I came to the Desert Moon—," she began, but Hubert Hand stopped her.

"Never mind, Ollie. No need confessing, as you say, any of that. Sam knows all about us. It is all right with him. I mean—he realizes it's all long past."

"Do you know all of our story?" Mrs. Ricker lifted her faded eyes to Sam.

Legal Enactments for Settling Public Lands

During the existence of the government under the Articles of Confederation, congress on September 6, 1790, passed a resolution recommending the survey and disposal by the several states of their waste and unappropriated lands to aid in paying the public debt incurred by the War of the Revolution. In the beginning these lands were regarded as an asset for the payment of this debt. The earliest efforts were to sell the land in large blocks and, prior to the organization of our present government, congress made three such sales. On June 16, 1785, congress under the Articles of Confederation passed a resolution forbidding settlement on the public domain. The act of March 3, 1807, prohibited such settlement under penalty of forfeiting any right or claim a settler may have, and the President was authorized to use civil and military force to remove such persons from the lands. Certain exceptions were made in favor of those who had settled there before the passage of the act, and later, for those who had settled before February 1, 1810, a privilege of temporary occupancy was given. From time to time acts were passed providing for the pre-emption rights within certain areas and subject to varying conditions.

"Bankrupt" Ancient Term

The origin of the word "bankrupt" is traced back to ancient times. A Hebrew custom required the deposit in the temple of certain sums of money in Hebrew currency. As Roman coins were frequently used, money changers on which they kept Hebrew coins to be bought in Roman money. Money was also lent, and sometimes the changer found himself owing more than he owned. To prevent further calamity his creditors drove him from his business and broke his bench to pieces. He was then "bench-broken" or bankrupt.

Message Undiscovered

The Sinai tablets, discovered seven or eight years ago near the base of Mount Sinai, have been only partially deciphered. They appear to be the complaint of Benitic laborers brought to work in the mines in that locality and addressed to the Goddess Hathor.

Birds That Cannot Walk

All members of the swallow family are distinguished by their small, weak feet which are used only for clinging and perching purposes. They cannot walk or hop on the ground. These birds spend more of their time on the wing than other birds and they feed chiefly on insects which they catch while in flight. Even water is scooped from ponds by the birds on the wing. Barn swallows and purple martlets are the most common species of this family in America.

FAMILY DOCTOR LEARNED THIS ABOUT CONSTIPATION

Dr. Caldwell loved people. His years of practice convinced him many were ruining their health by careless selection of laxatives. He determined to write a harmless prescription which would get at the cause of constipation, and correct it.

Today, the prescription he wrote in 1885 is the world's most popular laxative! He prescribed a mixture of herbs and other pure ingredients now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, in thousands of cases where bad breath, coated tongue, gas, headaches, biliousness and lack of appetite or energy showed the bowels of men, women and children were sluggish. It proved successful in even the most obstinate cases; old folks liked it for it never gripes; children liked its pleasant taste. All drugstores today have Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in bottles.

The Isleta Horror

As much as has been said and done about stopping, looking and listening at railroad crossings in the past, there still remains an element heedless of all the reminders and warnings that have been issued by railroad companies and large corporations over the country.

The last cost of this failure to observe the above warnings was the one in which 19 lives were snuffed out in a twinkling of time when the Santa Fe flyer demolished the Greyhound bus at the Isleta crossing and death stalked as a result. The few survivors together with the eye witnesses of the wreck, all say that the bus driver did not stop when he came to the crossing and if that was true, he either was asleep or forgot about the crossing entirely.

Some think that there should be a sign placed immediately in front of drivers of busses, which would read something like this: "Railroad crossing, STOP!" This is a good piece of advice, but is there not signs at every railroad crossing which hearken the same warning, such as "Stop, Listen, Look out for cars" which we have seen for years and still, the same thing goes upheaded and horror after horror still follow in the wake of this timely warning?

It would seem, in the face of all this, that either the building blocks be employed, or an additional man be put on every bus, whose business it would be to see to the safety of passengers and to remind the driver that they were about to approach a crossing and he must stop, look and listen before attempting to cross.

This article is not meant as a criticism on the acts of the dead, but rather as another feeble warning to the living, with the disastrous result and costly loss of lives of those who were entrusted in their care. There still remains the old-fashioned, yet effectual system of bar-gates which could be used at every crossing, which, as soon as a train approaches, the bars on each side of the track will be let down and raised after it passes. We are not doing anything except making small suggestions. What do you think; have you anything to offer, and if so, what?

Motion made by Mr. Ziegler, seconded by Mr. Adams, that a reward of $10.00 be paid to any person giving reliable information concerning the identity of any person maliciously breaking or injuring any street light or destroying any other property within the village limits and that notice of this reward be published for 4 consecutive issues of each of the local papers.

Motion by Mr. Miller, seconded by Mr. Ziegler that water used for watering the trees and lawns at the schoolhouse and Community Hall, be furnished at 1/2 of actual cost to the village.

No further business, the meeting adjourned. Attest: F. J. Sager, Clerk.

Sorry but I have been so busy

—It takes only a minute to call out-of-town by telephone. It's inexpensive, too, for Long Distance station to station rates were again reduced January 1, 1930. Evening and night rates not reduced.

for Economical Transportation

it's wise to choose a SIX!

There is one sure way to get greater value in a low-priced car today—choose a Six!

This greater value is instantly obvious when you drive a Chevrolet Six. You notice first of all its greater smoothness. There is no tremor in the steering wheel—no rattle in the floor boards—no rumble or drumming in the body.

In addition to the finer performance of its six-cylinder motor, the new Chevrolet gives you truly remarkable economy.

Its six-cylinder smoothness saves the entire car from the strain and wear of vibration. This, of course, lowers the cost of maintenance and assures a longer-lasting, longer-satisfying automobile.

From the standpoint of operating expense, Chevrolet is equally economical. No other automobile consumes less gasoline and oil. No other shows a lower expense for tires. And no other car costs less for service.

Because of its modern engineering, Chevrolet also assures a high resale value.

Chevrolet gives you fully-enclosed, weather-proof, 4-wheel brakes; a modern fuel system—with the gasoline tank mounted in the rear; four long semi-elliptic springs, mounted lengthwise in the direction of car travel. It gives you beautiful Fisher bodies built of combination hardwood-and-steel. It gives you a heavy, rigidly-braced channel-steel frame. And it gives you a full ball bearing steering mechanism.

Before you decide on any car in the low-price field, see and drive the Chevrolet Six. The more thoroughly you investigate, the more certain you are to conclude that it's wise to choose a Six—for value, for performance . . . and for economical transportation!

A Gospel of John Revival
May 18th to June 1st

The services at the Baptist Church were well attended Sunday and plans for the revival were discussed. Rev. Keating of Alamogordo is to assist in this meeting. Rev. Keating is very successful in church and evangelistic work and many young people attend his services. Music and Booster Band will be in Prof. Frazier's charge, of Lake Arthur and needs no introduction, having thrilled and inspired his audiences here two years ago with his sweet gospel singing. The pastor of the Baptist Church insists that everybody co-operates in these services, and that a welcome awaits all.

WRONG POLICIES IN INDUSTRY

By DR. JOHN TAYLOR ALTON, Cleveland (Methodist).

NO ONE is in a position to doubt that the industrial conditions, so far as the worker is concerned, are much improved over a generation ago, but there is a long way to go before ideal conditions are reached. For instance, child labor laws are being passed throughout the country, but there are still thousands of children between nine and fifteen years of age at work and as fast as laws are passed and enforced in this country those industries where child labor can be used are going to the Orient and today thousands of oriental children between the ages of five and fifteen years are working for the pitiful wage of from 75 cents to $1.50 a week. This is being done by American capital from so-called Christian America.

I know there is a change in policy in industry which proceeds on the very sound and logical reasoning that it is good business to pay good wages, for if a man has money he will buy more goods, and the more he buys the greater the demand, and the greater the demand the greater the profit to the manufacturer. But there are still many industrial concerns that have not caught that vision. One man in this country confesses to an income of over a million dollars annually and pays the girls in his factory from $8 to $15 a week. I am far from being a Socialist, but I am convinced that the unjust accumulation and inequitable distribution of gigantic surplus profits is deplorable.

No industry should be allowed to operate in such a manner that it can ruthlessly and without warning dump an army of unemployed out on the street. If there is a slack in sales let the work that remains be divided among the workmen.

REAL QUALITY IN ADVERTISING

By CARL L. GIBSON, Vice President Standard Publishing Corporation.

Buying space in a newspaper is not advertising any more than buying a farm is farming. Crops are reaped only when ground is plowed, planted and cultivated. White space becomes advertising only when it is intensively cultivated.

Art in anything is nothing more than harmony of function plus harmony of taste. We must come to realize that art, in its broadest sense, must be the motivating and vitalizing force behind advertising.

Of what value are ideas unless they can be adequately communicated to others? Isn't that essentially the big job of advertising? That part of art in copy is making copy talk the reader's language. The part of the art is to get Mrs. Reader into the picture. And the language of the reader is not that of the stockroom or the buyer.

This thing we call art has come to be a fundamental of business. The modern retail store is the public's treasure house, the place where it goes to find things which will contribute to its desire to lead gracious, alert, well-informed lives. The public has come to respect esthetic values in goods as well as service, quality and price.

SOVIET INJUSTICE TO WORKER

By WHITING WILLIAMS, Industrial Consultant, Cleveland.

The Communistic idea that every job should be under government control is absolutely wrong. If a man loses a job in Russia he finds it almost impossible to find work because his record follows him from town to town and, unless he is recommended by the group in the city where he originally had employment his chances are slim. Besides being out of work, he finds he cannot leave the country and so poverty and privation are the result. The Fascisti philosophy is that it is better to live one day as a lion than 100 years as a lamb. If the bulk of the workmen in Italy went unemployed for six weeks it would mean an internal revolution or an external war.

This country has not made the progress it should in solving unemployment problems but compared with the rest of the world our progress has been colossal.

I would remind employers that reduction of wages mean a decrease in buying power.

DUTY DEVOLVING ON ELDERS

By MUNICIPAL JUDGE J. EARL COX, Akron, Ohio.

If the young folk of today are worse than the young people of any previous generation, as some misanthropes assert, that is the worst indictment the present generation of older people has to face. If there are evils in our social system, if we have crime waves, if the government is not what it should be, if industry misbehaves—those problems should be met by the rising generation. There is no panacea we can prescribe.

There is but one thing the oldsters of today can give the youngsters—and that is vision, ideal, principle. The ideals of the founders of America were humanistic. It is up to us, who have inherited the land, to reconsecrate ourselves to those high principles.

On account of my close association with social problems on the civil and criminal benches of municipal court, I have made an intensive study recently of modern social problems. We are not quite so bad as we often paint ourselves, is one of the conclusions I have reached.

AMERICAN HOME AND SCHOOL

By DR. MORGAN, Editor Journal National Education Association.

One of the most amazing things to me is that the American school should have gotten so far as it has from the American home. Home conditions often make it practically impossible for the school and the courts to give the child a square deal. So in studying the school we must tie back into the home. The real thing we are working for is the child—the child as a unit, the child as an excellent, happy human being.

The effectiveness of this great machinery of the White House conference on child health and protection depends upon its interpretation in terms which the masses and millions of people can understand. We need in America an entirely new sense of what social statistics mean. Wouldn't it be a wonderful thing to know how many human breakdowns grew out of home factors, the lack of fresh air, sunshine, play spaces, etc.; how much of the success and failure in life can be traced back to children?

American Jewish Farmers
The Jewish Agricultural society has estimated that there are 80,000 Jewish farmers operating a million acres of farm land in the United States. It is largely due to the efforts of this organization that the number is so large. Thirty years ago, at the time of its inception, there were barely a thousand Jews on American farms. The agricultural society not only offers scientific advice, but lends money and assists the farmers in many instances in securing a suitable location.

A Sour Stomach

In the same time it takes a dose of soda to bring a little temporary relief of gas and sour stomach, Phillips Milk of Magnesia has acidity completely checked, and the digestive organs all tranquilized. Once you have tried this form of relief you will cease to worry about your diet and experience a new freedom in eating.

This pleasant preparation is just as good for children, too. Use it whenever coated tongue or fetid breath signals need of a sweetener. Physicians will tell you that every spoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Get the genuine, the name Phillips is important. Imitations do not act the same!

A test was made at Roosevelt field, Long Island, to prove that women, none of whom has had any previous flying experience, can be taught to fly modern airplanes in one day. Easter Lilies

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON.

WE read the sixth chapter of the Gospel according to St. Matthew, we find these two verses:

"And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin:

"And yet I say unto you, that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these."

And it is these flowers which, more than anything else, have become the symbols of Easter which we celebrate this year on April 20. As such a symbol the lily has a double significance. It is one of the earliest spring flowers. It typifies the rebirth of nature after the long winter sleep. In its dry, brown bulb life lies dormant during the winter and then when spring comes, this life begins to stir. First it pushes out the tender green leaves, and then the buds appear. Finally the white blossom comes forth in all its glory as the perfect emblem of resurrected life.

Its other significance is a religious one, its snow-white purity being emblematic of the flawless life of Christ whose resurrection from the tomb we commemorate on Easter day. In fact, no other flower has a place in the religious life and literature of the Christian world to compare to the lily. Yet its glory is not so new as Christianity, ancient though the beginnings of that religion may seem to us.

The Greeks and the Romans prized it above all flowers and in their earlier civilizations it had already come to symbolize purity and virtue. It was because of the place lilies had won in the popular esteem that they found place in the early paintings of the Virgin. The angel Gabriel was depicted carrying them in annunciation pictures and it is because of this that the most beautiful of these flowers, Lilium candidum, most used at Easter, is called the madonna lily.

Although this trumpet-like blossom is the best known of all the members of the lily family, there are others which are very interesting even though they do not have such significance for us as the madonna lily. In the high Himalayas in Asia grows a great lily ten feet tall. Agents of the United States government found a magnificent specimen of lily in China a generation ago—a lily of the madonna type, but harder—and brought it to America and they have been offering it to citizens to plant from coast to coast.

Most of the lilies that are native to America are radiant with color. There is the turk's cap, for instance, that flaunts the deep yellow of its many blooms through the waste stretches of parts of New England. Great, staminate stalks, sometimes nine feet tall, has the turk's cap. It may have half a dozen orange blooms at its top, but those who have tamed this plant and given it care have induced it to provide as many as 40 blossoms.

A quite different American flower is the little trout lily which likes to grow along the streams or in the deep woods. With the nourishment it has saved up in its bulb it starts growing in the early spring and is likely to have bloomed before the leaves of the trees have grown to the stage of making shade to interfere with it. A radiant yellow, the trout lily stands out vividly against its background of green.

The blue flag running to purple is another American lily that has found itself a home in many gardens. The mottled tiger lily has been a favorite for many generations. In California the "leopard lily lights the heather den," and the late aborn meadow is often red with their bloom.

The red lilies of New England, however, outshine them all and have inspired many a poet of that region. Lucy Larcom spoke of them as "red lilies blowing out of the thickets." Paul Hamilton Hayne thought that "the red lily stands from all her sister flowers apart."

An Easter Flower

"To make one petal, myriads of atoms (each in itself a planetary system of electrons) must click and wheel in their exact stations in the design."—Statement of a scientist.

Up-whispered by what Power, Deeper than moon or sun Must each of the myriad atoms of this flower

To its own point of the colored pattern run;

Each atom, from earth's gloom, A clean sun-cluster driven To make, at its bright goal, one grain of bloom

Or flock with rose one petal's edge in Heaven?

What mind roots lifted up This sacramental sign, Transmuting their dark food, in this wild cup

Of glory, to what Heavenly bread and wine?

What Music was concealed, What Lyrics in this loam, That the Celestial Beauty here revealed

Should thus be struggling to its lost home?

Whence was the radiant storm, The still up-rising song, That built of formless earth this heavenly form, Redeeming with art, the world's blind wrong.

Unlocking everywhere The spirit's wintry prison, And whispering from the grave, "Not here! Not here!

He is not dead. The Light you seek is here!"—

—Alfred Noyes in the Washington Star.

Probably the most remarkable lily in the world is the yucca, or spanish bayonet, of the arid plains of the Southwest. There the lily becomes a plant that is quite tree-like and lives for years. The lily leaves become harsh, dagger-tipped implements to serve the purpose of repelling attack. These may sit close to the ground or, again, they may stand as high as a man on horseback.

From the cluster of leaf armor, there springs now and again a tall stalk that may reach like a flagpole into the desert-sunshine. At the top of this staff there forms and finally breaks into bloom such an assemblage of pure white, bell-like, richly-perfumed, and in every way perfect lilies as nature produces nowhere else in a single cluster. It is given to the desert to grow the greatest of all the lily-bearing plants despite the fact that the chief habitat of the breed seems to be the marsh.

Lilies all grow from bulbs. This bulb-making capacity of the lily family is one of its dominant traits. It and the six petals to all lily blooms are marks of the tribe. Tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, crocuses, all are actually, because they spring from bulbs, members of the lily family.

But beautiful as are these members of the lily family, there are others which are utilitarian rather than purely ornamental and which, although like the "lilies of the field which toil not," do furnish mankind with edible crops. Surprising though it may be, botanists will tell you that some of our common vegetables are in reality "lilies."

There is asparagus, for instance, that is bought in the market tied up in bundles of many stalks, each exactly like the other. There is nothing about this asparagus in this form that would indicate that it is a lily. Asparagus tips are but young plants just coming through the ground. If they were allowed to grow they would throw out tall, lily-like stalks and crown them with six-tipped flowers that any observer would be able to identify as lilies.

The presence of this commonplace asparagus in an idling family is rather a let down to its pretensions. This, however, is not the worst. If the truth must be told, the onion is a lily. The onion is a lily that has been bred through centuries for the development of its bulb and the suppression of its top. So it has come about that the bulb may be three inches across and the top so insignificant that, when it has dried up, it hardly appears at all. Yet when this top is growing and flowering it is like those delicate plants of the window sills which sometimes are called tube roses, but which actually are a delicate, refined and fragrant lily—that comes out of the Orient.

Onions came from the Near East and in ancient days furnished a staple food for the rural inhabitants of Greece and Italy. Not only was garlic a food, but it was reputed to have medicinal value and to be helpful to the stomach in its functions.

These two bulb vegetables, the Cindersellas of the plant food world, ride about the earth in trainloads and shiploads. The material service they render is greater than that of all the other lilies put together. One would have to look far in all the relationships of nature to find a contrast more striking than that of the Easter lily and the garlic of the Mediterranean.

Even though the lily is the one perfect symbol of Easter, there are two others which through the centuries have become so closely associated with this red-letter day in our calendars that we think of them almost as quickly, in thinking of Easter, as we do of the lily. They are the rabbit and the egg.

The association of the rabbit or hare with Easter has its foundations in the ancient belief in European and Asiatic countries that the hare is the symbol for the moon. In fact, the Chinese represent the moon as a rabbit pounding rice in a mortar, while Hindu and Japanese artists paint the hare across the face of the moon. As the time of the Easter festival is governed by the phases of the moon this may be an explanation of their connection.

Since the Resurrection of Christ occurred in the spring, it is easy to see how the symbols of the egg and all revived life in the springtime came to be associated with this event in the history of Christianity. The egg as a symbol was taken over by the Hebrews as an emblem of their delivery from bondage and next the early Christians took it over as their symbol of the resurrection.

Idea of Wedding Cake Credited to Victoria

Gunter's famous confectionery shop in Berkeley square, London, goes back to 1750, when it was known by the sign of the Pot and Pine Apple. A perusal of the firm's books, dating from 1820, affords many curious insights into the table customs of late Georgian and early Victorian times. Twelfth cakes were ordered by the ton year after year, and the addition of two packs of cards to every such order was the almost invariable rule. Cuplously enough, however, wedding cakes would seem to have been unknown at London society weddings until Queen Victoria set the fashion by ordering one on her marriage. So great was the public curiosity concerning this cake that over 21,000 people passed through the Berkeley square premises in order to view it.

Insect-Catching Plants

All plants have interesting characteristics, but few are so endlessly mysterious and fascinating as are the insect-catching and insect-devouring plants, of which Florida has an especially large number, comprising species of butterworts, sundews, pitcher plants, and bladderworts. No less than five species of pitcher plants grow in Florida, says Nature Magazine, and the large flowers are so remarkable in form that a writer in 1672 aptly called them "fantastical flowers." Yet the hollow, trumpet-shaped leaves, dotted and veined with white and red and purple, are even more fantastic than the flowers, and most fantastic of all are the means by which these handsome leaves lure and capture and devour their living prey.

High School Attendance Grows

Twice as many students are entering high school now as were enrolled ten years ago, the bureau of education finds. Virtually all children attend school until completion of the fifth grade, the bureau announces. Frank M. Phillips, chief of the division of statistics, directed the investigation into high school conditions. He said that of 1,000 pupils reaching the fifth grade in 1918, only 312 entered high school and 159 were graduated. In 1920, the latest year for which figures are available, 605 of every 1,000 pupils entered high school, and 247 were graduated.

When Babies CRY

Babies will cry, often for no apparent reason. You may not know what's wrong, but you can always give Castoria. This soon has your little one comforted; if not, you should call a doctor. Don't experiment with medicines intended for the stronger systems of adults! Most of those little upsets are soon soothed away by a little of this pleasant-tasting, gentle-acting children's remedy that children like.

It may be the stomach, or may be the little bowels. Or in the case of older children, a sluggish, constipated condition, Castoria is still the thing to give. It is almost certain to clear up any minor ailment, and could by no possibility do the youngest child the slightest harm. So it's the first thing to think of when a child has a coated tongue; won't play, can't sleep, is fretful or out of sorts. Get the genuine; it always has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package.

Happy Woman Tells How She Lost 19 Pounds of Fat in 27 Days

During October a woman in Montana wrote—"My first bottle of Kruschen Salts lasted almost 4 weeks and during that time I lost 19 pounds of fat—Kruschen is all you claim for it—I feel better than I have for years."

Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings lute blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses.

Every morning take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast.

Be sure and do this every morning for "It's the little daily dose that takes off the fat."—Don't miss a morning. The Kruschen habit means that every particle of poisonous waste matter and harmful acids and gases are expelled from the system.

At the same time the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels are toned up and the pure, fresh blood containing Nature's six life-giving salts are carried to every organ, gland, nerve and fibre of the body and this is followed by "that Kruschen feeling" of energetic health and activity that is reflected in bright eyes, clear skin, cheerful vivacity and charming figure.

If you want to lose fat with speed get an 8-oz bottle of Kruschen Salts from any live druggist anywhere in America with the distinct understanding that you must be satisfied with results or money back.

THE FIRST REALLY NEW OIL IN 25 YEARS

This is the simple story of the new oil that is now enjoying such remarkable acceptance: Conoco Germ-Processed... In the first place, this new oil is an extraordinarily fine paraffin-base lubricant. And then... under exclusive Conoco patents, this oil is endowed with the unusual faculty of penetrating and combining with metal surfaces. This faculty, we call "Penetrative Lubricity." The Germ Process, by adding a precious oily-essence lacking in all other oils, does this... And so provides constant un-failing lubrication for your motor under any conceivable strenuousness of motor operation. Germ Process is the first fundamental improvement in refining methods in the last quarter century.

So won't you come into the next station you see bearing the Red Triangle and join the thousands of other motorists who have changed to Conoco Germ-Processed Oil in the last few weeks?

The Telegraph Gang

doing the wire work on the Bonito dam project is the only outfit on the Pacific System of the S. P., and has a territory range from Portland, Ore., to Tucumcari, N. M., and from San Francisco to Ogden, Utah. It is not a Western Union gang, all of the men are employed by the S. P. Their duties are to handle such jobs as the Bonito dam telephone line. In most cases the work is done with motor cars from the track. On the present job the estimate called for one No. 12 iron wire to be strung between Carrizozo and Coyote, making a metallic circuit of the old grounded pipe line phone circuit. This was done with track motor cars. The estimate also called for two wires to be strung on the Mountain States line to a 1/2 mile beyond Walnut Spring, then 1 wire from that point on the pipeline poles to the dam site. Before stringing the wire, each pole has to be sawed off at the ground line, the stump pulled, the hole re-dug, the pole set and tamped.

From Carrizozo, the outfit has met with the most whole-hearted cooperation, it has been its pleasure to experience.

Mr. Zumwalt had to have a new truck for his work on the pipeline so a new 1 1/2 ton truck was purchased from Mr. Whitaker of the Western Motors, Inc., and turned over to the Telegraph Gang until the completion of the line. Another wire is to be strung from a point 3 miles from the dam site to Eagle Creek. All of the work is in charge of Mr. H. K. Hutchinson, who has been with the S. P. since 1922, as foreman. In that time he has been in charge of all line projects over the system. His assistant, Lee Wagoner was here 3 years ago as Division Lineman between El Paso and Duran, but left that position to assume duties as Assistant to Mr. Hutchinson, who is an old friend of his.

The work is done by 8 linemen and 3 groundmen, all necessarily experts, as their duties are very diversified and covers a large field. When this work is completed it will make a metallic circuit from Coyote to Carrizozo, hence to the dam site and Eagle Creek, a line that will last for years. There is a rumor from Capt. Hamilton's office that the circuit will be cut in on the Mountain States switchboard, to handle long distance calls.

Messrs Hutchinson and Wagoner wish to express their appreciation for the kindness and hospitality shown them and their going on their first trip to this part of the system. When they finish here, they will go to Martinez, Calif., to complete some telegraph work in connection with the new $12,000,000.00 Susan Bay Bridge on the Southern Pacific System.

Junior Woman's Club

met April 12. Members responded to Roll Call by giving descriptions of National Monuments and interesting places in the United States. This was unusually interesting, as many of the members had visited these places and consequently, were able to make their answers original. The following is a list of the Misses and the places each one described:

Bigelow—The Great Salt Lake; McCammon—The Mt. Rushmore Memorial; Barnett—Famous Trees; Claunch—Gran Quivira Indian Ruins; McPherson—Old Indian Ruins; Snow—Carlsbad Caverns; Shelton—The Rainbow Natural Bridge; Shaver—The Grand Canyon of the Colorado; Strauss—Yellowstone National Park; Romero—Grand Canyon.

The usual club business followed. Much interest was shown in the drawing of pal names, to be revealed at next meeting. A program of interesting music, literary numbers, and followed by refreshments, ended a delightful meeting.
