RADIO RUBE'S RAMBLINGS

Well, Radio Rube is back with us again, after a pleasant vacation spent in jail. Rube reports an enjoyable time in the hoose-gow, and wishes that you could have been along.

Radio station KOB at State College plays the dickens with W O A I, San Antonio, making it difficult to get either station clearly. Phonograph records are broadcasted exclusively from KOB at State College, and it is a shame to spoil really good National Broadcasting programs such as is put on over W O A I, which is a 50,000 watt station.

I was very much amused, says Raymond Lackland, in Andy trying to explain the Einstein Theory of Relativity to Amos. "Sho, Einstein is the only man that can draw two straight lines together and have them meet—just like that," Andy remarks.

Will Ed Harris

heard over the radio — An English authority says that Great Britain gave the Saxophone to the United States. Well, this was one way of getting even with us for winning the Revolutionary War.

Old Paw Henderson ran-t-s nightly over KWKH at Shreveport, La. He is going kinda easy on his pet hobby, the Chain Stores, and has taken up the Trucks and Motor Busses instead. Pop is dead right in saying that the Railroad companies are the largest taxpayers we have, while the trucks and motor busses contribute practically nothing to the upbuilding of a community. Paw isn't so foul-mouthed as he used to be, the "choice" English he used when referring to Senator Dill and the Misteltos, isn't fit to print.—That was a long, long, time ago. (Ask someone that heard it, for it is R i-c-h.)

L. A. Whitaker heard this over the radio this week — A Denver man is serving 18 months in the penitentiary for having 4 wives.—Whit wonders if this is just a punishment or a vacation!

In spite of the depression, Frank English, John E. Wright, Raymond Lackland of Hedrick & Co., H. A. Miller of the City Service Station, Rolland's Drug Store and T.E. Kelley report the Radio business excellent. They invite you to call for a demonstration of the Radio of your choice.

Radio Rube heard the Detroit Symphony orchestra over KRLLD, Dallas, Tex., Sunday evenings from 7:30 until 8 p. m. Wm. Webster, an old-time friend, with whom Radio Rube has had the pleasure of playing, is performing on BB-flat bass in the Detroit Symphony orchestra.

Because he preferred Amos 'n' Andy to classical music, the wife of a Chicago man is suing for a divorce. Well, Radio Rube's motto is this — to stay out of family troubles, for they're both liable to turn on you.—Anyway, what's a divorce now and then between friends?

Ten Italian Planes Make Flight From Africa to Brazil at Cost of Five Lives—Doings in Congress—Unemployment Decreasing.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

ITALY'S "air armada" conquered the Atlantic ocean, but at the expense of five lives. Of the fourteen big seaplanes that started from Rome for Brazil, ten made the flight across the sea successfully. Two crashed immediately after the take-off at Bolama, Portuguese Guinea; one man was killed in the fall of the first, and the entire crew of four perished when the second fell and burst into flames. The two replacement planes that were in the squadron were ordered into flight after these mishaps, and both of them were forced down by mechanical trouble not far from the Brazilian penal island of Fernando do Noronha. Their crews were picked up by Italian destroyers that were patrolling the route.

Of the ten planes that got across safely, the first to land at Natal, Brazil, was the one piloted by Gen. Italo Balbo, Italian air minister, who commanded the armada. The second was piloted by Colonel Maddalena, holder of the world's distance and endurance records. General Balbo was highly elated by the success of the flight, saying it was greater than he had expected, despite the misfortunes at Bolama. The aviators were given a great welcome at Natal, and later in the week, when they flew on to Rio de Janeiro, were the recipients of a wonderful ovation in that capital city. The planes are all to be sold to the Brazilian government, but may first be flown to Buenos Aires and back. They are of the Savoia Marchetti "55" type adapted as bombing planes by the Italian navy and on the transatlantic flight each carried four men and radio telephone and telegraph sets.

NEARLY seven months of intensive and careful work by detectives and newspaper men has resulted in the arrest of the man who is declared to be the murderer of Alfred Lingie, a reporter for the Chicago Tribune. The law authorities in Chicago assert that mysterious crime that excited the entire country is now cleared up. The accused man is Leo Brothers, a gunman of St. Louis who has a long police record. He was quietly arrested in Chicago on December 21, but the capture was kept secret while the officials completed their investigation.

Brothers, who in Chicago went under the name of Louis V. Bader, an avers the description of Lingie's assassin and is said to have been positively identified by witnesses to the murder. The officials declare he was hired to slay Lingie, but refuse for the present to tell who hired him or to name the witnesses who identify him. Neither would they reveal any of the proof they say they have of his guilt.

CONGRESS no sooner resumed its session after the holidays than the opponents of the administration resumed their troublesome tactics. These centered for the time being largely about the appropriation for drought relief. The house passed the bill Sen. Caraway carrying $45,000,000 for this purpose, but the senate promptly amended it by adding $15,000,000 for the purpose of loans to farmers for food. Senator Caraway of Arkansas sponsored this move. He declared he knew there was extreme suffering in the country districts of his state, and his assertions were strengthened by the reports that hundreds of farmers had rioted for food at England, Ark., and were appeased to some extent by gifts of food from the Red Cross.

John Barton Payne, head of the Red Cross, in testimony before the committee on appropriations, decried there was a riot at England and said that 500 persons had been quietly fed after "about forty men came in with some excitement" and demanded food. The administration does not think congressional appropriations for food are necessary or wise. The radicals and perhaps some other members of congress more than intimate that President Hoover and his advisers are cold blooded and heartless in this matter.

EIGHT United States marines were ambushed and killed by Nicaraguan bandits on New Year's day, and as a result the senate, on motion of Senator Johnson of California, called on the State department for a comprehensive report on the use of our marines in the Central American republic. Evidently the old question is to be debated again in congress. However, Secretary of State Stimson said the administration plans to keep the marines in Nicaragua at least until after the 1932 elections. This will be

In accord with the wishes of the Nicaraguan government, President Jose Menéndez stated he believed it would be unwise to withdraw the marines at this time; he added that he would like to insure additional co-operation of Nicaraguans with the United States force in an effort to stamp out banditry. His government, he said, is trying to obtain a loan of $1,000,000, part of which would be used to strengthen the national guard for this purpose.

BEST news of the week was that many thousands of men were being put back to work, especially by the railroads and the automobile manufacturers. The tonnage of the unemployment situation was appreciably lessened. The Chicago & Northwestern system returned nearly 7,000 employees to their jobs in the mechanical and car departments, which had been closed since December 24. These departments were reopened on a three day a week basis. The Monop lines took back nearly 800 men on a part time basis, and the Santa Fe and the Rock Island lines were preparing to give at least temporary jobs to hundreds. Other thousands, mainly stoppers, were returned to work by the Illinois Central, the Norfolk & Western, the Missouri Pacific, the New York Central and the Southern Pacific.

In Detroit and Cleveland the auto mobile factories were humming again. Twenty-two thousand men were recalled to the plants in the Detroit area Monday, and in the Ohio city not only the motor car makers but many other industries added to their payroll.

RESPONDING to a resolution of the senate asking for information on the subject, Secretary of Labor William N. Doak reported that approximately 400,000 aliens are now illegally residing in the United States, and that of this total, 25 per cent, or 100,000, are deportable under the provisions of the immigration act. In order to facilitate the federal program of deporting undesirables who are illegally residing in the country, several suggestions were made by Mr. Doak for changes in the present law, among them one for strengthening the law relative to the deportation of those aliens "who are affiliated with organizations which advocate the overthrow of the government of the United States."

That last phrase, of course, means chiefly the communists, and it is interesting to note that a big anti-communist mass meeting, presided over by Martin W. Littleton, was held in Carnegie hall, New York city, Friday, at which a resolution calling for the exclusion of those disturbers was adopted. Representatives of the leading civic, patriotic, labor and church organizations of America took part in the meeting, and Congressman Hamilton Fish told something of the findings of his congressional committee of investigation into the activities of the Reds.

TREASURER JOSEPH B. NUTT of the Republican national committee told Senator Nye's committee that Robert H. Lucas exceeded his authority and made a mistake of judgment in pledging the national committee's special account to secure the $4,000 he borrowed to finance his anti-Norris propaganda. But Mr. Nutt said he didn't blame Mr. Lucas for fighting Norris and added that he had loaned Lucas $3,500 a few days ago to pay off the bank loan. The committee's special account, he said, was not a slush fund but was created to help out in certain congressional districts.

MORE trouble for the administration is brewing in the matter of immediate payment of the World war veterans' adjusted compensation certificates in cash. Representative Patman of Texas, sponsor of the bill for such payment, said it was likely the house would discharge Senator A. H. the ways and means Vandenberg committee from further consideration of the measure so that action could be obtained. He asserted a petition for this course had been signed by members from many states who believe, with him, that unfair tactics have been employed to defeat the bill.

Senator A. M. Vandenberg of Michigan, an administration supporter, was actively seeking to bring about some sort of compromise. He favors legislation to permit veterans to borrow up to 50 per cent of the ultimate value of their certificates. But this doesn't satisfy Patman. "Our nation," said the Texan, "is the wealthiest on earth. It owes less in proportion to wealth than any other country. It has given billions of dollars to other countries in recent years and much of it was used to pay their own veterans adjusted pay and bonuses up to $5,000 each. "We can pay the veterans in cash now by selling bonds at the lowest interest rate in the history of our nation and retire the last one of those bonds in three or four years. By diverting payments from the public debt, which is already overpaid up to this time, no increase in taxes will be necessary now or later."

PANAMA started the New Year off with a bang and added that country to the list of Latin American nations that have set up new governments by force. This revolution, however, lasted less than twenty-four hours and was accompanied with very little bloodshed. When it was over Florencio H. Arosemena had given up his office of president and was under arrest at the home of a cousin who was one of the revolutionists, the government was in the hands of a junta and Dr. Harmodio Arias was named acting president.

The office of president was at once offered by cable to Ricardo Alfaro, Panama's minister to the United States, asking him, if he accepted, to return at once from Washington. Alfaro took only four hours to decide, and then accepted the call and began to wind up his affairs in the American capital. He is a veteran liberal and has been minister in Washington for nine years. It was believed by the revolutionists that his close relations with the American government would tend to hasten the recognition of the new regime by President Hoover.

For a day or two it seemed likely that Panama City would be attacked by a small army of armed farmers from the Chepo district where is the country seat of Vice President Tomas Dugue, an adherent of Arosemena. But the provisional government placed machine guns on the highways leading into the city, and the counter revolt faded into nothingness.

Secretary of State Stimson conferred with President Hoover on the matter of recognition, and, while no statement was given out, the indications were that the Alfaro government would be recognized after some delay.

MODIFICATION of the so-called comment decree of 1920, ordered by Justice Jennings Bailey of the District of Columbia Supreme court, greatly loosens the restrictions imposed on the big packing companies. The Armour, Swift, Cudahy and Wilson concerns are now permitted to engage in the manufacture and sale of nearly all classes of food commodities. But they are not allowed to enter the retail field, Justice Bailey holding that retail activity by the packers "would probably result in almost complete annihilation of the independent retail grocers."

ONE day after flatly denying the report that he was about to resign, George Akerson, secretary to President Hoover, handed in his resignation—to the considerable relief of the Chief Executive's supporters. As his successor prominent Republicans in Washington are urging Representative Franklin Fort of New Jersey.

Mr. Fort will leave public life on March 4. He was the unsuccessful dry candidate for the Republican nomination for the United States senate last spring, being defeated by Dwight W. Morrow.

FRANCE laid the Lion of the Marne at rest with all possible honor, and the name of Joseph Joffre, marshal of the republic, is now added to those of the other famed leaders in the World war who have passed on. Glad in the black tunic and red breeches he wore in 1914, Joffre lay in state for two days in the chapel of the war college. On his breast was only one decoration, the Medaille Militaire which is granted only to army commanders and privates. Tuesday night the body was taken on a gun caisson, escorted by cavalry holding torches, under the Arc de Triomphe to the Cathedral of Notre Dame. Wednesday morning in the cathedral the services were conducted by Cardinal Verdier, archbishop of Paris. The remains were then placed in a vault in the chapel of the Invalides besides the hiers of Napoleon, Foch and other national heroes. They will remain there for several weeks and will then be buried at the Joffre country home at Louveciennes, not far from Paris.

When the news of the marshal's death was given to the world, messages of sympathy poured in on the family and the French government from all countries. German war commanders and the German press were as lavish in their praise of the dead man as were those of the allied nations. One of the warmest tributes came from Gen. Hermann von Kuhl, the man whom Joffre defeated at the Marne. All of which was highly gratifying to the marshal's mourning fellow countrymen.

WOMEN SHOULD LEARN USES OF MAGNESIA

To women who suffer from nausea, or so-called "morning sickness," this is a blessing. Most nurses know it. It is advised by leading specialists: Over a small quantity of finely cracked ice pour a teaspoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Sip slowly until you are relieved. It ends sick stomach or inclination to vomit. Its anti-acid properties make Phillips' Milk of Magnesia quick relief in heartburn, sour stomach, gas. Its mild laxative action assures regular bowel movement. Used as a mouth-wash it helps prevent tooth decay during expectancy.

EDITORIAL COLUMN

Behind the Scenes at the Nation's Capital

(By James L. West)

Washington, Jan. 21 — While publicly, Mr. Jouett Shouse and some other Democratic leaders are mentioning Governor Franklin Roosevelt of New York as the outstanding possibility for the Presidential nomination in 1932, much private talk is heard that Ex-Governor Al Smith will again be a candidate for said nomination, in other words, "He's at it again."

Gossip has it that although allowing his name to be prominently mentioned from now on until near - convention time, Gov. Roosevelt will then withdraw and allow the name of Al Smith to again come before the Convention, and those who are in a position to know, say that Al Smith will again be the nominee.

So, summoning all things up, we are assured ahead of time that ex-Gov. Al Smith will be the next candidate on the Democratic ticket for the Presidency, and the above scheme by Gov. Roosevelt will be worked out to perfection. Let it come—we're ready for it.

The Recent Elections

have proven of much interest, but the one held last week for Justice of the Peace and Constable was one of the most exciting of any held here for many moons and moonshines.

The Polls opened early to admit a big bunch of excited voters who were on the job to fulfill their promises to their respective candidates, and all through the day, voters came and departed, discussing and cussing the merits of their favorite candidates for these important offices.

The Judges and Clerks had a hard time to keep the peace, for the highway department and the sheriff's force crowded the booths, and bloodshed was narrowly averted at many times during the day. The peace-loving public breathed easier when the polls closed without any fatalities.

The vote was so close, that there is considerable talk about a "Recount" which will give the amusement-loving public another chance for a day's fun at someone's expense.

Believe it or not, but this is all bunk and there were no votes to count, and A. H. Harvey, the present Justice of the Peace, will still preside, and the Constable will not be necessary, as we have plenty of peace officers.

Costumes Brought from Round the World Exhibited

Miss Eva Alexander of El Paso, Tex., who spent several months recently on a trip around the world, will give an entertainment in Carrizozo, on the evening of Jan. 31, under the auspices of the Carrizozo Woman's Club.

Miss Alexander will take for her subject, "Costumes and Customs of the Countries Visited," and will give her impression of the various countries, and tell how the costumes of each affects the personality of the women and the tie between the costume and custom as expressed in convention. There will also be dancing and singing.

Her collection comprises an authentic Egyptian costume, the native dress of the Malay Peninsula, Dutch East Indies and the Hula-Hula costume worn in the Hawaiian Islands; also Japan and a Chinese Mandarin Robe of exquisite quality. Pictures made on the trip will be exhibited by Miss Alexander, who received favorable comment by some of the largest newspapers of the world and alluded her as the "Titan-Haired" girl from Texas. NOTE—The costumes will be worn by local models, whose names will appear in this paper next week. Watch for further announcements.

PROGRESS INCREASES IN FARM HOME WORK

The improvement of farm kitchens and the securing of labor-saving equipment have been subjects of leading interest among the farm women's clubs in New Mexico during the past year, according to the reports of the state home demonstration agents.

During 1930 a total of 401 farm home kitchens were remodeled and rearranged for comfort and efficiency in doing the farm housework. Sixty new homes were planned, and forty-seven water systems were installed. Labor-saving equipment was purchased in 687 farm homes, and 209 pressure cookers and .60 tin can sealers were put into use in rural homes for preserving the home food supply.

There were 546 girls enrolled in 4-H cooking clubs and 184 in canning clubs. In the home improvement work, 119 girls were enrolled. The selection of materials and the construction of clothing and the selection of readymade clothing have also been very popular among rural women and girls during the past year. Organized groups of rural women and girls have been given training either through meeting or special clothing schools in 21 counties where organized Extension work is conducted. A total of 1178 girls were enrolled in 4-H clothing club work in 1930.

During the summer of 1930 four farm women's camps were held in New Mexico, with an attendance of 114 rural women from 19 different counties of the state. At these camps the women were given training for home economics leadership and demonstration work.

JESUS TEMPTED

LESSON TEXT—Luke 4:1-12. GOLDEN TEXT—For in that he himself hath suffered being tempted, he is able to succor them that are tempted. PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus True to God. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus True to God. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Overcome Temptation. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Conflicting Ideals.

I. The Place (v. 1). The wilderness of Judea. The first man, Adam, was tempted in a garden with the most pleasant surroundings. The second man, Jesus Christ, was tempted in a barren wilderness, surrounded by wild beasts (Mark 1:13). Adam shamefully failed, involving the whole race in ruin (Rom. 5:12); Christ gloriously triumphed, bringing justification of life as a free gift upon all who believe (Rom. 5:18).

II. The Purpose (v. 1). Christ was led into the wilderness by the Holy Spirit. His temptation was Messianic. Men today are not tempted as he was, but the same methods are employed by the Evil One. The time had come for the Redeemer to enter upon his mediatorial work. Therefore, he went from the place of anointing and heavenly recognition as the Son of God to meet and to spoil the enemy of God and men (Heb. 2:14).

1. It was not a preparation for his work but rather his first conflict with the enemy. In his baptism we have the symbolic act of the dedication of himself to the work of redemption through the work of the cross.

2. It was not to see if Christ would stand fast, as to whether he would fall under the most crucial test. Being the eternal Son of God, incorporated with the perfect humanity, sin and failure were impossible.

3. It was to exhibit Christ as an object upon which we may rest our faith with unshaken confidence. He came as the second man, the head of a new race, the very source of its life. The temptation was, therefore, a demonstration of the inseparableness of the divine and human natures in the incarnation.

III. The Method (vv. 2-12). Christ as the world's Redeemer sustained a threefold relation—Son of Man, Son of God, and Messiah. Therefore, Satan made each one a ground of attack.

1. As Son of Man (vv. 2-4). Satan made his first assault upon him as a man by appealing to the instinct of hunger. Satan urged him to use his divine power to convert a stone into bread. The temptation was in satisfying a right hunger in a wrong way. To have yielded in this case though his hunger was desperate would have been to renounce the human limitations which he had taken for our sakes. To do right in a wrong way is to sin.

2. As Messiah (vv. 5-8). Here the temptation was to grasp his rightful dominions by false means. The Devil offered to surrender unto him the world if he would adopt his methods, would worship him. The force of this temptation was in the fact that the kingdoms of the world are Christ's by God's covenant with him. Satan has forfeited his right to rule. God's method by which Jesus was to possess the world was his sacrificial death on the cross.

3. As the Son of God (vv. 9-12). Here Satan tries to induce Christ to presume upon God's care. He quoted a Messianic psalm to induce him to so act. To do the spectacular thing in order to get notice is to fall into Satan's temptation. For Jesus to have placed himself in danger in order to get God's special help in delivering him would have been to sin. To test God as to whether he will keep his promise is the greatest distrust.

IV. Christ's Defense (vv. 4, 8, 12). It was the Word of God. He met and repulsed the enemy with "It is written." In the most crucial hour of the world's history Christ quoted from the Book of Deuteronomy, which the rationalists of the day reject as not being fully inspired.

V. The Issue (v. 13). Satan was vanquished. He could not stand against God's Word.

Let the Light Shine

Christian, rest not until thou knowest the full, the unbroken shining of God in thy heart! To this end, yield to every stirring of it that shows thee some unconquered and perhaps unconquerable evil! Let the light shine upon it, and shine it out!—Andrew Murray.

Enmity With God

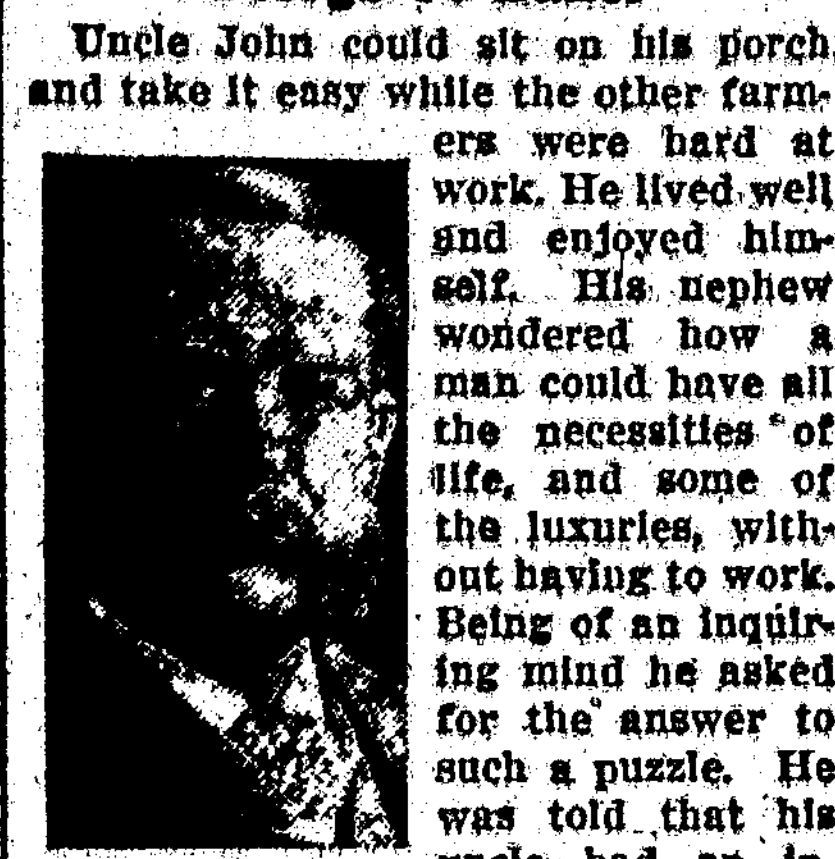

Friendship of the world is enmity with God because the leadership of the world is directly against godliness; and for this reason it is out of the question for any child of God to forsake the ways of godliness and conform to the sinful ways of the world.—Doctrines of the Bible.

The Empty Cup

Do not let the empty cup be the first teacher of the blessings you had when it was full.—Maclaren.

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

George F. Baker

Uncle John could sit on his porch and take it easy while the other farmers were hard at work. He lived well and enjoyed himself. His nephew wondered how a man could have all the necessities of life, and some of the luxuries, without having to work.

Being of an inquiring mind he asked for the answer to such a puzzle. He was told that his uncle had an income from his savings and was able to live on the interest of his money.

That was how George F. Baker got his first lesson in thrift and in the value of saving and investing. He was visiting his grandparents in Dedham, Mass., where he spent much of his vacations as a boy, when he learned the lesson that was to help make him one of the world's leading bankers and enable him to amass a tremendous fortune.

George F. Baker was born in Troy, N. Y., in 1840. His father was a merchant, who at one time had a shoe business in New York city. The older Baker didn't enjoy buying and selling. He became a reporter under Horace Greeley on the New York Tribune. He specialized in politics. He became a Washington correspondent for his paper, later holding numerous political positions.

His son was eight years old when the family moved to Brooklyn. Young George went to school in Williamsburg, but spent much time with his grandparents in Massachusetts. The country air agreed with him. He thrived on it and became a sturdy and robust youngster.

It was at Dedham that he laid the foundation for the strong constitution that has enabled him to be active for so many years. There also, through the example of his uncle, he learned the lesson in finance that helped him in laying the foundation for his great fortune. He earned his first money, during a vacation at Dedham, by gathering cranberries left under the bushes by the pickers.

He carried the berries to the barn in pails, dumped them in a sleigh, that was stored until the coming of the New England winter, and when it was full and all the berries salvaged, he sold the batch for $7. That was good money for a boy in those days before the Civil war. Young Baker didn't waste it on candy or entertainment. With the example of his uncle in mind he saved it.

The youthful financier finished his education at Seward university at Florida, N. Y., when he was sixteen years old. His first job was in a small Albany bank. His father, whose interest in politics had gained him an election to the state legislature, was secretary to Gov. Myron H. Clark at the time.

The youngster worked hard learning the rudiments of the banking business, but he had time to enjoy himself after the fashion of the youth of the period. He drove his own horse and buggy. He got his exercise by rowing on the upper Hudson.

Sculling was a great sport on the river at Albany and Troy in those days. There were good boat clubs and good oarsmen. Young Baker was one of the best. He was skilled enough to win a sculling championship of the upper Hudson. He was also active in church and lecture work.

He was badly injured in a railroad accident in 1859. For a time it was thought one of his legs would have to be amputated. He recovered and served as secretary and assistant military secretary to Gov. Edwin D. Morgan, who was chief executive of the state at the outbreak of the Civil war.

Before this he had worked as a clerk in the state banking department. His pay there was only $500 a year, but he managed to save $100 of his first year's salary. His father was in Washington at secretary to William H. Seward and young Baker returned to the banking department when Governor Morgan retired from office.

He was known as the best informed clerk there. His knowledge soon gave him an opportunity to enter the banking business for himself. He became interested in the plan of Secretary of the Treasury Chase to sell bonds through banks and to form banks which could pledge bonds themselves for the circulation of currency up to 90 per cent of their value.

He talked the proposition over with John Thompson, a New York financier, and in 1863 they launched the First National bank with a capital of $200,000. Thompson offered the young banker $100,000 the stock he wanted and promised to carry it for him. But George Baker, at the time, didn't believe in borrowing money. Some misguided friend, apparently, had warned him against being a borrower.

So he used only his own savings to buy stock. His next egg permitted him to buy thirty shares. He also became a teller and before long the cashier of the bank. He prospered and later borrowed the money with which to get control of the institution which he was destined to make one of the strongest financial concerns in the world.

PRESCRIPTION in use over 47 Years Really Helps Bowels

Don't you want this way of making the bowels behave? A doctor's way to make the bowels move so well that you feel better all over! Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin doesn't turn everything to water, but cleans out all that hard waste clogging your system. It cleans you out without any shock, for it's only fresh laxative herbs a famous doctor found so good for the bowels, combined with pure pepsin and other harmless ingredients.

A doctor should know what is best for the bowels. Let Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin show you how soon you can train the bowels to move freely, every day, the way they should. It's wonderful the way this prescription works, but it's perfectly harmless; so you can use it whenever a coated tongue or sick headache tells you that you're bilious. Fine for children, too (it tastes so nice) and they ought to have a spoonful the minute they seem fretful, feverish, or sluggish, or have a sallow look.

You can get the original prescription Dr. Caldwell wrote so many years ago; your druggist keeps it all ready in big bottles. Just ask for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and use it always for constipation.

This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other ingredients brings relief naturally. Muterole gets action because it is a "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses.

Keep Muterole handy—jars and tubes. To Mothers—Muterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Muterole.

BURMA and ITS PEOPLE

Burmese Women Smoking White Cheroots.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

BURMA, which has been heretofore governed as a part of India, is now to be made a dominion of the British empire on its own account. In many ways the country and its people differ markedly from India.

Though the same can be said for nearly every little-known country, it is especially true of Burma, that there are two: the Burma known to the superficial tourist who visits only the beaten paths like that "from Rangoon to Mandalay," and that known to those who live in the country or journey more intimately among its people—the true Burma, little affected by the civilization of the West.

To the cities have flocked hordes of Indians and Chinese and many Europeans and Armenians. The Burmese of the larger cities, too, have in many ways taken on, at least superficially, the ways of the West. From a visit to the cities, therefore, one can form but guesses of Burma.

It is when one reaches the Burmese "back country" that the suspicious he has gathered in the cities are confirmed and he sees that in many ways Burma is utterly unlike many other eastern countries. The blighting caste system as such, which he is likely to look upon as the curse of India, is almost wholly lacking. There are members of certain classes, to be sure, who are looked upon as degraded because of their occupations or those of their ancestors—descendants of pagoda slaves, grave diggers and beggars—but the people above them are practically of one level.

There is none of the veiling of the women as practiced in the Mohammedan countries, none of the seclusion of India, and not even the modified seclusion of China. The women are freer than in most oriental countries, and may come and go as they please, just as men may, in the houses and temples, on the streets and in the bazaars. Women, in fact, keep shop in many of the bazaar stalls, and are better "business men" in every way than the Burmese males. The observer from America feels that Burmese women approach much more nearly the freedom of the women in his own country than he was ready to expect.

Some Wild Tribes.

There are numerous tribes in Burma, having different customs and speaking different languages, but for the most part they are of the same racial stock. All seem to have a strong element of Mongolian blood. The Burmese are dominant numerically, in influence, and in intelligence. Some of the tribes of Upper Burma, notably the Chins and Kachins, are quite wild. The Karens, less numerous than the Burmese but numbering almost as many as the Shans, live mostly in the uplands, but since the British occupation they have migrated more and more into the lowlands. They are most interesting to Westerners because of the relative ease with which they have been converted to Christianity. Unlike the Burmese, they are not Buddhists. Their religion consists chiefly in the propitiating of nature spirits with offerings.

There is a safety and lightness of manner among the Burmese and a love of bright colored clothing and music not found among the more sober and somber Indians, which has earned for the Burmese the title, "Irish of the Orient." At the same time they are inclined to indolence to a greater extent than the Indians. But at least there is not the keen economic urge to industry in Burma that there is in India proper. In most parts of Burma the soil is rich, the rainfall plentiful and in some areas more than abundant. The Burmese have long been free from worry over the threat of famine. There is in the country little real poverty, and on the other hand, no great wealth.

Where Burma touches India proper on the latter's eastern border it is bounded by Bengal and Assam. Farther to the north it touches southeastern Tibet. Along its eastern border Burma is in contact with China for a considerable distance. The Chinese at one time claimed sovereignty over the land. The lower part of Burma's eastern boundary is formed by French Cochinchina and Siam; and to the south and west lies the Bay of Bengal. The total area of Burma is slightly less than that of Texas, while its population is in excess of 12,000,000.

The greater part of Burma is in the tropics and during half the year much of it is very hot. This heat is especially trying to Europeans in parts of the delta region where the humidity is high. In some sections more than 20 feet of rain falls each year. There is considerable loss of life among natives in some parts of the country from snakes, spiders, poisonous insects and wild animals.

Poor Traveling Facilities.

Traveling arrangements in Burma, as in most eastern countries, are poor. The best facilities are to be found along the Irrawaddy river, the great highway of the country, and along the comparatively few miles of railroad. Even there, however, hotels are seldom available. Throughout most of the country travelers must depend on the British government bungalows, and must carry bedding and take with them a servant to obtain and prepare their food. Springless bullock carts, bumping over roads that are little more than paths and trails, furnish the principal method of transportation in the interior.

Perhaps the most characteristic concomitant of the Burmese men, women and children's appearance is the inevitable "whackin' white cheroot." It is said that a mother often transfers her lighted cigar from her own mouth to that of the weo child in her arms; and no lady would start on a dress parade without taking a necessary stock of "smokes" to supply her while she is out. This cheroot is more like an overgrown cigarette than anything else, and is said to contain but a small portion of the real tobacco leaf.

Another Burman custom common to boys, girls, men and women is kunchewing. The Burman has been said to smoke between chews and chew between smokes, but to have little time for anything else. The betel nut is chopped fine, a red lime paste is spread on a certain kind of astringent leaf and all are jammed into the mouth together. Then the chewing begins. To extract the last bit of flavor from the combination, the chewer conchors his face while his cheeks puff out more and more, until finally discomfort compels him to start again with a fresh "charge."

The Burman has a pride that makes him in his own estimation second to none on earth. He is descended, he declares, from angels who came on earth and gradually adopted the ways of human beings. His kings, before the days of Thebaw and his queen, Suppyawati, had complete power over their subjects and wore a list of titles which make the letter-abbreviations of orders after the name of a British celebrity seem few by comparison. These potentates were content, however, to be known as "Lords of the White Elephant" for short.

Social Customs.

Courtship in Burma is a more open and natural flirtation than it is in almost any other part of the East. The young man usually manifests his interest at one of the pagoda feasts by shy attentions; he then calls in company with his boy friends to find that the young lady with a bevy of her friends is awaiting him. He means business, however, and if the families consent he persuades her to eat a meal with him in public, and by virtue of this procedure his bachelorhood is brought to an abrupt end.

Before the young girl in Burma makes her debut she must have her ears pierced for earrings. The holes are kept open and enlarged by wearing in them glass or metal tubes of increasing size until they are half an inch in diameter, capable of carrying weights similar to the decorations worn by the South Sea Islanders. In olden times the fashion demanded much larger holes than those in vogue at the present time, and many an old Burmese lady uses hers as holders for her cheroots, somewhat after the American doughboy's conceit of wearing a rag behind his ear.

A dead man in Burma always pays his fare across the mystic river of death with a small coin which he carries in his mouth. The curse that rests on grave-diggers as a class probably comes from the fact that most of the men of this trade have no scruples about digging the poor wretches up for their coins. It is believed that this causes the spirits of the disturbed ones to return to this world to seek all the ills that the Burman imagination can conjure up for them.

To Reax Dickens' Home
 At Boulogne-Sur-Mer, France, the last vestige of the Villa des Meul-seaux, where Charles Dickens lived for three years and wrote several books, is to be destroyed. The Boulogne municipal council has approved the razing of the building which long has been in a state of ruin. It was here that Dickens wrote "Little Dorrit," "Bleak House" and "Hard Times."

CONOCO GERM PROCESSED PARAFFIN BASE MOTOR OIL

Tomorrow morning, as you step hopefully on the starter, will there be a slow disappointing groan, as it tugs at your unwilling motor?... Or, will there come a swift responsive roar?

If you're having trouble starting, you're probably using an old-type oil that congeals at temperatures well above freezing. You should change to Conoco Germ-Processed.

But that's not all! To ward off the wear that these prolonged starting periods bring, you want an oil which provides instant lubrication at the first reluctant revolution of a cold motor... And there's just one oil which can do that! Because there is just one lubricant which penetrates metal surfaces and never drains away in idle periods.

Conoco Germ-Processed Motor Oil is that one lubricant. Change to this motor oil with twin advantages for winter use... 35 cents per quart for all grades at the sign of the Conoco Red Triangle.

Fred (Shorty) Dawson

was here this week from the Tucson mountains, where he is doing some mining claims. From him, we learned that his old chum and former associate, Doc F. S. Randles, is now employed on the Bonito Dam.

Sam Bigger

at one time publisher of the Capitan Mountaineer, was a visitor here Tuesday and as customary with Sam, paid this office a friendly visit. Come as often as you're in town, Sam, you're always welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Shields were here from their home near Coyote Tuesday, doing some shopping and returning home before the noon hour.

Before investing your money in a new automobile, you will find it worth while first to learn what Chevrolet has to offer.

Each of the nine new models is a fine car—a quality product throughout. Each is designed, built, finished and equipped to standards that are entirely new in the low-price field. Yet Chevrolet's reduced prices are not only the lowest in Chevrolet history, but are among the very lowest in today's motor car market.

Come in. See the new Chevrolet Six. Drive it. Check the prices—and you will realize why it is called the Great American Value.
