Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Greisen, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Shafer of the Carrizozo Auto Company and Rev. J. L. Lawson were Roswell visitors Monday. Rev. Lawson returned with the delegates Monday night, the Greisens and Shafers staying over, returning Tuesday morning.

T. E. Kelley received word Wednesday morning from Riverside, Calif., to the effect that his mother, Mrs. Ed R. Kelley, had fallen and broken her hip.

Attorney and Mrs. H. B. Hamilton came up from El Paso Monday to Alamogordo, where Mr. Hamilton was to attend to some legal matters in the district court and on Tuesday, Mrs. Hamilton and Mrs. J. E. Farley made a trip to Carrizozo and spent the day as guests of Mrs. C. P. Huppertz, who entertained in their honor at a 5-table bridge party, at the conclusion of which, the hostess served refreshments, for which this lady has no superiors and but few equals. The guests returned to Alamo Tuesday evening.

In a letter received this week from R. M. Treat, he sends his best regards to old friends here. Ralph is Deputy U. S. Marshal, with headquarters at El Paso.

In a letter from Mrs. Violet Dixon of San Francisco, one of our former residents and still our loyal subscriber, she asks among other things, if the depression has struck the desert? To which we answer that the desert has taken care of the traveling portion of the work-hunters and our own have fared better, by far, than in any other state in the country.

Miss Hazel Melas entertained the Senior Class and the Carrizozo teachers at a six o'clock dinner at the Carrizozo Eating House last evening. Covers were laid for eighteen and the affair proved to be an enjoyable event. Miss Melas has sponsored the entertainment of Senior Classes and teachers at the end of the term for several years.

Max Kurstein, circulation agent for El Continental, a Spanish daily paper in El Paso, is here for a few days looking out for the interests of the circulation department of that paper. El Continental carries Associated Press dispatches and is also a member of the United Press of Mexico.

Wilbur F. Coe is down from his home on the upper Ruidoso for a brief visit in this city. Mr. Coe says that the apple crop on the Ruidoso is in fine shape and that the mountains this summer will be especially beautiful. — Roswell Record.

Mrs. Jimmy Lee and sister, Miss Louisa Sweet, made a brief visit to El Paso this week.

A lease was drawn up yesterday, wherein R. A. Walker leased the Star Cafe & Meat Market to Thomas Nixson of East Vaughn, for one year with the privilege of two. The new proprietor will take possession next Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Walker will take a much needed rest with relatives in Texas and Iowa. Mr. Nixson comes here well recommended and we welcome him to our town.

Delegates to Highway Meeting at Roswell

Mayor Geo. T. McQuillen, Town Trustee T. E. Kelley, A. L. Burke and John E. Wright left last Sunday evening for Roswell, as delegates to attend the Carlsbad Cavern-Grand Canyon-Petrified Forest Highway meeting Monday afternoon.

Delegates were present from several states and made interesting talks concerning the big highway which, when completed as it should be, and as it will be at not a far distant date, will be one of the best and most direct routes for eastern tourists in the country.

During the day, the delegates were taken over the city to points of interest, among which was a visit to the Roswell Military Institute, where, after viewing the uniformed drill by the Cadets, they witnessed a game of Polo between the screen comedian, Will Rogers, with a picked team from among the Cadets and the regular Polo team of the Institute, in which Will was a game loser.

At 7 p. m., a banquet was served at the Roswell Woman's Club, at which good talks were made from the different delegates and the affair closed with a dance in the ballroom of the Woman's Club and attended by most of the delegates. Tuesday morning, all who were desirous of visiting the Carlsbad Cavern, availed themselves of that opportunity as guests of the Carlsbad Chamber of Commerce.

The meeting was extremely harmonious, all being of the one idea of working together for the cause of the big highway which will attract tourists and furnish them with scenic views of New Mexico, Arizona and Colorado. It will furnish the most direct route to the coast and will be a time-saver and a sight-seeer from start to finish. The location of the next meeting will be decided and announced by the Executive Board of the Association. It was voted to continue publicity and to get out new folders to further advertise the highway. Roswell did herself proud on this occasion and proved to be a royal hostess, nothing being overlooked to make the delegates feel at home and be well entertained.

Woman's Missionary Society

The monthly business meeting was held at the home of Mrs. O. J. Snow with Mrs. C. A. Snow and R. E. Lemon as assistant hostesses. Mrs. Sloan was leader of the Devotional, assisted by Mrs. Lemon, both of whom responded in their usual charming manner. The president, Mrs. Boughner, gave a very interesting and instructive report of the Annual New Mexico Conference of the Woman's Missionary Society. Plans were made for a period of Mission Study at each monthly social meeting. Next meeting at home of Mrs. Mendenhall, Wednesday, May 27.

J. J. Hoffman received word that his brother, Todd, had died at Floydada, Texas, on the night of May 12th and buried on the 13th.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hobbs and children returned Tuesday from an extended trip through Texas, where they visited relatives and friends. They report a pleasant trip, an enjoyable visit to old friends and familiar scenes, but were glad to get back to continual sunshine.

Poor Little Wild Flowers

Tootin' Our Own Horn

BY REV. JOHN L. LAWSON

Much was said about the Carlsbad Cavern, the Petrified Forest and the Grand Canyon at the meeting of the Carlsbad Cavern-Petrified Forest-Grand Canyon Highway Association in Roswell Monday by the delegates. And rightly said, for these are among the great wonders of the world. But we of Lincoln county have a great attraction also. I believe that the attention of the motoring public should be called to our attraction, the Malpais. So while others along this great national highway, which reaches more attractions than any other on earth, sound forth the praises of the attractions nearest them with the blare of trumpets, let us pipe a little about our own.

Just let your imagination play a bit and try to think what an awful and awe-inspiring thing that lava flow must have been when the volcano was active. A great river of molten metal, sand and stone which flowed for some 50 miles down this valley. No old-fashioned theologian would have needed more than a sight of that for a lurid description of the future abode of the vile wretches who refused to accept his creed.

Soon after my arrival in Carrizozo I wrote a description of the Malpais for an editor in Missouri. I wrote something like this:

"I have just seen the place where hell was, before it was moved to wherever it is now. The ashes and clinkers remain—the inhabitants are gone. Carrizozo is near a great lava bed; The old crater is in plain view from my window. The lava bed is from 1 to 10 miles wide and some 50 miles long. Just a great mass of clinkers, as heavy as iron and as hard as chilled steel. The ripples, eddies and cataracts of the molten stream of rock and metal, which at some ancient time spouted from the mouth of the volcano and flowed down this valley between White mountains and the Oscura and San Andres ranges, can be plainly seen in the solidified lava. As the mass cooled, great cracks and fissures opened; and gigantic gas bubbles burst, making great pits. In these fissures and pits, Indians and desperados used to find refuge. Chief Geronimo and Billy the Kid used to hide there.

If Dante could have set on a nearby mountain peak and have watched that river of hot lava flow by, hearing its hiss, crackle and roar, he would not have needed any other inspiration or urge to write "The Inferno." Thanks to the sandstorms—enough sand and soil has been carried into the cracks and crevices, to produce some vegetation. Cedar trees, gnarled and twisted into grotesque and unbelievable shapes, cactus, sage brush, thorns and thistles. The very vegetation corresponds in its evil nature and tormented existence to the souls of the lost in "The Inferno." Locally, the lava bed is called the Malpais (bad land.) It is well named. In an attempt to reach the crater, Donald and I climbed over steep hills and walked thru deep valleys of hard, sharp, clincker-like lava, circled with great pits in which large buildings could have been hidden, and jumped across fissures which were 30 feet or more deep. It is, indeed, a fearful place, but well worth traveling many miles to see."

A great national highway has been built across the lava, and no one going from the Carlsbad Cavern to the Grand Canyon over this highway should fail to stop and see the Malpais. Then, too, there is Grand Quivira, within easy reach of Carrizozo; the Painted Rocks, right on our door-step; historic Lincoln, situated on the highway, and White Oaks, "The Land of Heart's Desire" and the resting place of our first governor. Our mountain resorts, our game and fishing, have been advertised some. Would it not be well to have some circulars descriptive of these other attractions printed for distribution to the traveling public? Let's toot our horn!

H. A. Mirabal and Mrs. Mirabal were here Wednesday from Glaunch, attending to business matters. While here, they were guests at the home of County Treasurer and Mrs. R. A. Duran.

Meadames F. A. English and J. M. Beck and daughter Betty left yesterday for San Antonio, N. M., to meet Miss Glenneth English, who came over by bus to that point from the Albuquerque University, to spend her vacation with the home folks here.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kochendorfer of Chicago, old friends of Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Blansy, visited at their home for the weekend, while on their way to Glendora, Calif., to make that place their future home.

Mayor McQuillen, the Board of Town Trustees and Fire Chief J. M. Beck gave a banquet to the members of the Fire Department Tuesday night at the Carrizozo Eating House.

Reception to Grand Matron

Tuesday evening was full of interest to members of the O. E. S., from the fact that this date was set for the reception to the head official of the order, Mrs. Edith Neel of Santa Fe.

A six o'clock dinner was served in the banquet rooms of the Masonic Temple, after which, a social hour was enjoyed, during which time, a reception was tendered the distinguished visitor and all the honors of the order given her by Comet Chapter No. 29.

The Chapter was then called to order by Mrs. Zoe Glasemire, local Matron, and the degree of the Eastern Star conferred in the presence of the Grand Matron, who pronounced the work of the chapter ranking with the best in the state.

The hall was crowded to its capacity to welcome the Grand Matron, who gave a splendid address in which she complimented the chapter on its good work and zeal for the cause in which it is engaged. In keeping with an honored custom, the Grand Matron pays a visit to each chapter in the state once each year and she left Wednesday morning to continue her work at other places.

Activities at the New Lyric Theatre

Mr. E. C. Trieb, lessee of the new talking moving picture theatre, was here Wednesday and, after transacting some important business, left for Roswell in the evening.

Before leaving, Mr. Trieb announced that owing to a few days' delay in the arrival of a new machine, the theatre may not be opened before June 1, but when it is opened to the public, the equipment and sound qualities will be equal to the best in the state, or for that matter, in the entire southwest.

The large marquee, awning or porch, as you may term it, has been erected over the front of the theatre, and a big electric sign bearing the name "Lyric" extends from the top of the marquee to the top of the building. The sign will be equipped with 25 electric lights on each side and may be seen from a great distance.

The old doors are being taken out and replaced with wider and more convenient ones, for better entrance and exit.

The seating capacity will be changed and increased, and a sound-proof partition put entirely across the inner entrance to the theatre.

The large stoves will be taken from the theatre, as Mr. Trieb says, they detract from the reception, and as for heat in cold weather, that will be had from behind the screen and blown over the theatre by means of large electric fans. The old screen will be taken down and a new and latest design of perforated screen will be installed to take its place. The theatre will be fully equipped with Western Electric sound-system, which is the best the talking picture industry affords. The theatre will not be opened to the public until everything has been amply tested and when Mr. Ernst, the manager for Mr. Trieb, announces that all is ready, you may come fully confident that you will see a good show and that the sound will be unequalled. More announcements will be made as the work goes on.

ANCHO NOTES

Bill Reynolds is here from El Paso this week.

Terry Mayben, who is connected with Public Utilities at Canyon, Texas, has returned to his home after a two weeks' visit with his sister, Mrs. Curtis Weathersbee.

Several young ladies enjoyed a Slumber party at the home of Mrs. Allen Kite last Thursday night.

A number of parents of Ancho school children gathered Thursday of last week for an all-day "sew" for the purpose of making costumes for the Operetta being staged by pupils of Mrs. Frame's department. An Operetta is an innovation in Ancho and gives promise of being a very interesting experiment of what can be done in that line by careful training of such young children. The children were given a delightful lawn party at the home of their teacher, Wednesday afternoon. After games, they were kodaked in their operetta costumes. Ice cream and cake were served.

Miss Miriam Hightower had as her week-end guest, Miss Edwina Peters.

Mrs. E. I. Harkey and children were El Paso visitors this week.

Mrs. R. L. Hale and children motored to El Paso last Friday and returned home Sunday.

L. P. Hall and daughter Edith made a trip to Albuquerque last week after Mr. Hall's son, Leonard, who had undergone an operation on his legs, which was successful and pleased his friends very much.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hall were in Carrizozo Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Duncan made a business trip to Fort Sumner last week.

The baseball game between Corona and Ancho, played on the local diamond last Sunday, resulted in a victory for Corona. We dislike mentioning score, but here it is: 26 to 4. Return game will be Sunday, May 17th.

Mrs. R. E. P. Warden, one of Ancho's charming matrons, was awarded the prize at the Nogal dance last Saturday night, for being the best dancer. Her partner was Jim Cooper, her brother.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Pruet spent the week-end in Pastura.

After an extended visit at Socorro with her paternal grandparents, Miss Gladys Jump came home to welcome her brand new baby sister, June, who made her appearance on April 16th.

Complimenting Mrs. Dru's Erame, a number of friends met for a picnic in the hills above Luna Monday evening. After a hilarious game of baseball, all gathered around big bonfires for a fish fry which was supplemented by many other good things tempting to the palate. The merry crowd remained in the hills until a late hour, when they repaired to the Ballard home at Luna to run off a movie film of the young grandson of Mrs. Belknap, which had come as a Mother's Day gift to her from New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Reynolds and Mr. and Mrs. Pete Frame attended the dance at Ruidoso last Saturday night.

Evening Fairy Tale for the Children

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"Now, whenever you are near water," said Father Raccoon to his children, "you must always wash your food."

"That makes it so much cleaner," Father and Mother Raccoon are very clean and care a great deal about having their food fresh and nice and clean.

"You can eat a great many things," continued Father Raccoon. "You are allowed to eat all kinds, fish, frogs, turtles and all sorts of fruit and nuts."

"The best of all you haven't mentioned," said the Raccoon little ones. "Ah, I am keeping it as a surprise," said Father Raccoon.

"Where are we going?" asked the children.

"Going where?" asked Father Raccoon.

He noted as though he didn't know what the children meant.

"Dear me," sighed Mother Raccoon, "the children know so much these days."

"Yes, it was different in my time. I didn't know about treats and feasts until I was told."

At that all the Raccoon children laughed shrilly.

"Oh, mother," they said, "now you have let the cat out of the bag."

"We didn't say we knew that we were to be taken to a feast and to have a treat when our lessons were over."

"Let what 'cat out of what bag?'" asked Mother Raccoon. "I have no cat, and I have no bag."

"What absurd nonsense you children talk!"

"Oh," said one of the Raccoon children, "that is just an expression, you know."

"Still I don't understand," said

Washed Every Bit of Food.

Mother Raccoon. "I am not up to date, I suppose."

"An expression is a saying," said the Raccoon children. "It is something people say—lots and lots of people. And it is supposed to be wise."

"What does it mean?" asked Mother Raccoon, who was much puzzled.

"Well, it just means that some one has let the secret out—or the thing that was supposed to be kept in."

"Why did they use the cat and bag for example?"

"Oh, I don't know," said the little raccoon. "I don't believe any one knows how these expressions start, but once they start every one starts saying them—so that they become sayings or well-known expressions."

"Well, it is true," said Mother Raccoon. "We are going to have a treat and a feast."

"You have all learned your lessons well," said Father Raccoon, "and so we are going to have a treat."

And Mother and Father Raccoon, and all the little Raccoons went off for a splendid feast.

But even at the feast they all washed every bit of food before they ate it.

In fact they had their picnic by a brook, and the Raccoon parents were proud to see how well their children had learned their lessons.

Hot Sauce Will Add to the Pudding

Here's delicious hot pudding sauce which your grandmother, doubtless, knew how to make. She would have used it for cottage-pudding, plum-pudding, and other hot cooked puddings for which its flavors are suited. The ingredients are given by the bureau of home economics.

1/2 cup butter, 1/2 cup granulated sugar, 2 lbs. boiling water, 1/4 tsp. salt, 2 eggs, 1/2 tsp. vanilla, 1 lb. lemon juice. Cream the butter, and add the sugar, salt, boiling water, and the well-beaten egg yolks. Cook over steam and stir constantly until thickened. Fold into this the well-beaten egg whites and the vanilla and lemon juice. Serve at once.

Nellie Maxwell's Food Suggestions

If we are commonplace and indifferent, we will find other people so. Mind finds its level just as water does. A really original and sympathetic person will find others interesting and agreeable. To complain of those we meet is really to admit ourselves dull.

When buying meat see that it is of good color and well mottled with fat.

A fresh fish will be bright of eye and firm of flesh with the odor sweet.

Citrus fruits should be weighed in the hand—the heavier they are the better.

Use nuts in a loaf to take the place of meat. They are highly nourishing and are fine for all sorts of dishes.

If you have a neighbor who is using cake at about the same rate that your family does, why not exchange halves of cakes as two neighborly women do. Thus having a fresh half of cake with-no work and no left-over cake to disturb the conscience.

When making mush for supper, prepare enough for frying for breakfast; everybody likes fried-mush with sirup. Pour the hot mush into greased baking powder cans, kept for the purpose. When cold it slices without waste of crumbling.

When food scorches while cooking, set the dish in another of cold water—the steam rising from the food will dissipate the scorched flavor if it is not really burned.

To remove burned food from a dish, without scratching, add soda to cold water and simmer until the food is softened.

Aluminum dishes which have been scraped will always have enough spots to catch food and cause burning. They should be rebuffed or they will always burn easily.

Lettuce, endive and such crisp green foods should be served at once after the dressing is added—as they wilt readily. Keep lettuce well washed, in a thin bag of cheesecloth in the ice chest. It will be ready at a moment's notice to supply the salad.

Fruit Rolls.—Prepare a biscuit dough and roll out one-quarter-inch thick; spread with butter, corn or maple sirup, cinnamon, raisins and roll up. Cut into slices and place close in an oiled tin. Bake in a hot oven 15 minutes.

Profitable Ideas
Money was made by the man who first thought of molding candles, instead of dipping them, and not less profitable was the method of making pins all in one piece, discovered by Seth Hunt. He did not fall far short of Joseph Chamberlain, who also thought carefully on the subject of points, and evolved the modern screw, which brought him a highly satisfactory income.

Dividing Child's Day
According to the White House conference about six hours should be given to school work, and a child twelve years of age should have eleven hours' sleep. The dividing of the remaining hours of the day would depend on the individual case.

First American Rope Walk
The first rope walk built in the United States was constructed at Boston by John Harrison in 1642.

Use Plain Curtains if Paper Is Figured

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.—WNU Service.)

The choice of curtains for any room is determined by its use, the character of the wall, and the other furnishings. If the wall paper is figured there is already much color and design in the room. To add more pattern, usually of a different kind in the window hangings would produce confusion and restlessness. However, an interesting contrast may be secured, according to the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture by using plain curtains when the wall paper is figured. They may repeat the background color of the paper or one of the dominant hues in the design.

The illustration shows a successful window treatment for a room of this kind. The ceiling is rather low and the divisions in the wall space tend to make the window seem shorter than it really is. For this reason simple curtains were selected and made to emphasize the straight vertical lines. The side draperies were finished at the top with a french heading which divided the fullness into well-defined pleats. Shaped tie-backs were used to hold them in soft, graceful folds. French heading hooks, such as are described in Farmers' Bulletin 1653-F, on Window Curtaining, were sewn to the back of each pleat and used to attach the curtains to the rod.

The tan cotton poplin chosen for the draperies is slightly darker than the deep cream background of the paper, and blends with the lower part of the wall and the woodwork. Deep cream dotted flax net was used for the plain curtains. They were finished at the top with an inch heading and a small casing through which the rod was run. The lower edge was finished with a 2-inch double hem.

ance for shrinkage should always be made. An extra 2 inches may be added when cutting them, and after the curtains are hemmed an inconspicuous tuck may be basted to the wrong side just below the casing. It provides a practical means of having the curtains the proper length at all times, and can be quickly and easily ripped out before they are laundered.

Machines That Are Almost Human

By E. C. TAYLOR

The Thought Transmitter

DO YOU believe in mental telepathy; in the power of one individual to transfer his thoughts to the brain of another, without speaking the words?

Science has approached such a phenomenon. A device has been perfected that enables speech, not thought, to be projected into a chosen brain by the mere pointing of a finger. Only the person selected to hear it can hear the speech. In a crowded room, no one else can hear what the speaker has to impart to his chosen hearer.

Scientists call the device a thought transmitter, however, since it is the speaker's thoughts that are transmitted, although they are put into the form of words before they are conveyed to the other person.

In any vast crowd, enveloped by an immense silence, it is possible for an operator of the electrostatic projection machine to put words into the mind of a chosen subject merely by grasping the handle of the machine and pointing his finger at the ear of the subject.

The device has been demonstrated to scientists and others throughout the country by Sergius P. Grace, assistant vice president of the Bell Telephone laboratories. His uncanny device confounded gatherings of electrical engineers and industrial leaders in New York and Chicago.

At the New York demonstration Doctor Grace hooked up the machine, grasped a terminal and pointed a forefinger at the subject's ear. The latter heard a speech stressing the fact that this was merely a demonstration. No one else in the room heard the speech.

In Chicago, Doctor Grace, before 1,000 members of the Illinois Manufacturers association, spoke by a telephone transmitter and by means of an amplifier what he said could be heard all over the room. While he was speaking a part of the current used was stored in a "delay" circuit, and part of the speech was not broadcast.

After being stored four and a half seconds, this electrical current was transformed to high voltage and passed into Doctor Grace's body. At this stage of his demonstration, Doctor Grace pointed a finger at the ear of a member of the audience, who then heard directly in his brain the same sentence which Doctor Grace had spoken into the telephone a few minutes before.

This amazing feat, Doctor Grace explained, was due to the ear drum and surrounding tissues being made to act as one plate of a condenser receiver, the resulting vibrations of the ear being interpreted by the brain as speech.

This electrostatic projection apparatus in its present rudimentary form, however, is still only a scientist's plaything, Doctor Grace explained, but it opens a wide field for useful machines built on the same principle.

Another device, demonstrated by Doctor Grace at the same two gatherings, has since been placed in use in telephone exchanges.

Carrying a telephone into the room, Doctor Grace requested a member of the audience to dial any number. The spectator dialed a number and two seconds later a loud speaker in the room, in a clear, human voice, spoke the number and exchange dialed. This device is now used in co-ordinating automatic and voice telephone systems.

A device to keep radio conversations secret also was demonstrated by Doctor Grace. Scientists are working to perfect that machine, for use when radio telephoning becomes more popular, and as an instrument of communication in times of war.

The device "scrambles" any speech sent over the radio apparatus. This "scrambled" speech is ordinary speech with the frequencies, or tones, reversed, so that the high frequencies become low and the low frequencies become high. In other words, the low tones become high and the high tones of one's speech become low when "scrambled" by the device.

Another newly invented device attached to the radio receiving apparatus at the other end "unscrambles" the reversed speech and it is heard in the form in which it originally was spoken.

Does Carving for Ruler
Four million pieces of wood are to be used by Jean Louis d'Esque, carpenter on the American motor ship West Cussetta, in a screen with 200 wooden butterflies. The collection is to be presented to the ex-maharaja of Indore in India. The butterflies and freezes will be entirely of wood, which will be carved by d'Esque, who estimates that it will take him two years to complete the work. In his cabin are scores of brilliantly colored butterflies, each composed of hundreds of different kinds of wood. A Tawantian butterfly, one of his best works, is composed of 1,200 pieces of wood.

Royal Barge Preserved
The English royal barge has been placed in the new National Maritime museum at Greenwich. The barge was built in 1696 for King William III, and has since been used by nearly every sovereign of England. The last time it was used was in the Thames pageant in 1914.

Touch of White in New Print Frocks

to know that the graceful white crepe bertha collars which so attractively style these frocks are finished about their hemlines in the trim-stitch way.

For the benefit of those who feel the urge to try this interesting experiment—here's how: You simply thread the coarsest of machine needles with a special trim-stitch thread which can be bought at almost any notions counter. Wind the same kind of thread on the bobbin, set the gauge for nine or ten stitches to the inch and sew. The thread may be in self color or it may contrast the material. A tri-color effect is suggested, that is, when there are three rows of stitching such as adorn the collar which graces the dress at the top. The fichu like collar below shows only two rows of trim-stitching, the color of the thread matched to the background of the print.

In these flattening necklines the vogue for a "touch of white" is interpreted in a most effective manner. The majority of daytime frocks have dainty lingerie details about them, this season. An interesting feature about some of the smartest collar-and-cuff sets made either of lace, crepe, plique or organdie is that they are often finished with hand-crochet edging.

Revolutionary Pensions
On August 26, 1776, congress offered pensions equal to half pay to the officers and enlisted men who were disabled in the Revolutionary war, with proportionate pensions in the case of partial disability. An act granting pensions to invalids was passed in 1792, but the first service pensions were granted by the act of March, 1818.

Local Notices
The abbreviation "p. q." following a lawyer's name is a legal notice signifying "per quod" and means whereby. In this case it means the lawyer attaches his signature and the reason whereby it is official is the fact that he is a notary appointed at a certain time, giving the expiration of his term of office.

It's the little finishing touches which count in making a dress. No one appreciates this fact so keenly as does the amateur seamstress who has undertaken to make her own "simple" dresses. Her one hope is that the frock or blouse, whichever she happens to be making, will not have a "homemade" look.

To most women it is "finishing the edges" which presents the most perplexing problem. Well, why not do them the trim-stitch way? It's ever so simple when you know how. Done on your sewing machine in the neat and attractive stitching which has the effect of rows of outline embroidery.

Labor's Liberty Legion Out for Modification of Dry Law — Governor Roosevelt Dismisses Charges Against Mayor Walker.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

LABOR'S LIBERTY Legion, as it is termed by Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, is in action for the purpose of bringing about modification of the Volstead act and eventually the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment. It consists of a national committee of the organized trades, and it held a two day convention in Philadelphia that was attended by about 200 delegates from all parts of the country. Mr. Woll was in the chair, and he did not mince words in stating the aims of those workers who are opposed to prohibition, and at times his language was almost inflammatory. He declared the groups which "forced" prohibition on the country were the industrialists who were prompted by the desire to increase their profits through higher production by making machines of human labor, and the church groups "who have admitted their failure to rule man by moral suasion, but seek to force their rule by the use of the big stick of the law."

Asserting that he did not believe in "milk and water methods," Mr. Woll continued, "There is too much law and order today. I want to see the shackles of injunction broken, if not by lawful methods, then through physical resistance. It is only by aggressiveness that states and communities will regain their privileges. "Our nation came into being under a violent disregard of law and order. The negro was freed by bloody strife, in complete disregard of law and order. Labor unions came into being and won for American labor its high standards of living, through strikes, lockouts and other violent methods."

A report to the committee, written by Woll and L. M. Osborn, president of the cigar makers' international union, held out the hope that the legalization of light wines and beer might be enacted by the next congress. It stated that only 17 members of the senate and 45 representatives were prohibition "die hards" and that some of them were "listed among the most valued customers of Washington's well known bootleggers."

NOT worth further consideration, is in a nutshell the verdict of Governor Roosevelt of New York state in dismissing the charges against Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York city. And thus Tammany Hall wins a point in its struggle with the citizens of the metropolis who are warring on what they believe to be graft and corruption.

Gov. F. D. Roosevelt

The charges, it will be remembered, were filed by Dr. John Haynes Holmes and Habbil Stephen S. Wise on behalf of the city affairs committee, and alleged malfeasance and misfeasance on the part of the mayor, whose removal was asked. Walker's reply was not and vituperative, branding his accusers as "Socialists," though in later public statements he asserted the Communists were to blame for the fight on him. The governor in dismissing the charges said he did not find in the documents submitted sufficient justification to remove the mayor or to proceed further in the matter. There was no evidence, he added, that showed Walker had failed to act on information given to him of that he had failed to keep himself advised as to the activities of the subordinates beneath him.

The city affairs committee promptly announced that the fight on Mayor Walker and on civic corruption would not be abandoned.

CHAIRMAN ARTHUR WOODS of the President's commission for unemployment announced his retirement from active work with the organization because he is going to Europe to study employment conditions there. He also said that a perceptible improvement in general economic conditions has been registered in recent weeks.

IF PRESIDENT HOOVER wants to be re-nominated—and it is generally supposed he does—he will win by acclamation on the first ballot in the 1932 Republican convention, granting that the test of party sentiment made by the Washington Post is accurate. By the same token, Vice President Curtis will be re-nominated if he so desires.

The Post polled the approximately 1,000 delegates to the Republican national convention of 1928. About one-half of them answered. They were asked to state who, in their opinion, would be the party nominee next year. As to the Presidential nomination the response were distributed as follows:

- President Hoover—487.
- Senator Dwight Morrow of New Jersey—13.
- Calvin Coolidge—12.
- Lowden, Dwyer, Horah, and Senator Watson of Indiana received one vote each.
- Theodore Roosevelt was second in the list of probabilities for second place on the ticket.

IN THIS connection, it is interesting and perhaps surprising to read the statement made by former Gov. W. L. Harding of Iowa to the Republican national committee, to the effect that the farmers of the Midwest are solid in support of the federal farm board and of President Hoover's farm relief policies. This, Mr. Harding says, he learned in conversation with "thousands of farmers in my own and nearby states." He declared the Democratic seed of discontent has fallen on barren soil, and continued, "The American farmer today is selling his wheat at 20 to 30 per cent more than the farmer across the border in Canada. His corn is bringing 30 cents per bushel more than in the Argentine. The Republican tariff and the farm board—both of which the Democrats would destroy—are responsible for this advantageous condition."

King of Siam

KING PRAJADHIBHOK of Siam, accompanied by Queen Rambal Barni and her parents, made his official visit to Washington during the week. They arrived in the capital city from New York on Tuesday, being met at the station by Vice President Curtis and other high officials, who were duly photographed, and escorted in state to the Larz Anderson mansion on Massachusetts Avenue. Next day the royal couple made their formal call at the White House. Just within the front door President and Mrs. Hoover met them and led them to the Blue Room where, after brief conversation, the king requested the honor of presenting his suite. Mr. Hoover giving consent, the royal retinue entered and was introduced by the Siamese minister.

The king and queen soon after hustled back to their temporary home and the return call by Mr. and Mrs. Hoover quickly followed. Queen Rambal Barni has been having a great time shopping in New York, purchasing quantities of feminine gear, especially hosiery and footwear. She has the reputation of being the prettiest woman of all the Far East's royalty.

OFFICIAL groups within the Protestant Episcopal church and the Presbyterian church in the United States have recommended vital alterations in the church codes that will surely cause long and loud discussion.

After six years of study, an Episcopal commission advocates a revised canon creating ecclesiastical courts to pass on problems of marriage. It would permit ministers to remarry communicants and divorced persons whose fitness had been approved, eliminate all mention of ground for divorce and remarriage, and defining nine causes for annulment.

A commission of the Presbyterian church, deploring the increasing divorce rate, given its approval to birth control practiced only "in fidelity to the highest spiritual ideals of the Christian home," and suggests the establishment of courses of instruction in marriage.

The Presbyterian report will be submitted to the general assembly of the church in Pittsburgh May 28. The Episcopal revision will be presented to the general convention in Denver September 16.

EMINENT educators from all parts of the country gathered in Urbana, Ill., Friday, to take part in the formal inauguration of Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase as president of the University of Illinois. State officials, alumni and students went to make up a great throng, and the program lasted all through the day and evening. In the morning the procession formed at the library and marched to the men's gymnasium, escorted by the university's famous military band. President George Barr of the board of trustees presided over the inaugural ceremonies. Governor Emerson extended greetings on behalf of the state; Samuel Wesley Stratton, chairman of the corporation of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, spoke for the university world, and President Rasmussen of Illinois college for the schools in the state of Illinois.

Dr. H. W. Chase

There were further festivities in the afternoon, and in the evening President and Mrs. Chase held a reception. Doctor Chase, who was formerly president of the University of North Carolina, has been acting president since last July, when he succeeded Dr. David Kinley. There was a note of sorrow in Friday's celebration, for Dr. E. A. Alderman, president of the University of Virginia, who was to have taken part in the program, passed away on the train on his way to Urbana; and only a few days before word had come of the death of Mrs. Kinley in Shanghai, China.

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S little trip to Cape Henry, Virginia, to take part in the celebration of the 324th anniversary of the landing of the first permanent English colonists was sadly marred by a torrential rainstorm. He and Mrs. Hoover went there on the Department of Commerce boat Sequoia, and just as the ceremonies began the downpour came. All were drenched to the skin and took refuge in the railroad station, where tea was served. The President took his wetting good naturedly, and Mrs. Hoover, too, laughed, though her new hat was ruined.

Phillip Snowden

GREAT BRITAIN'S landed gentry never did like Phillip Snowden much, and their feeling against him was intensified last week when he delivered his budget speech in parliament. The chancellor of the exchequer, weak from illness and a severe operation, stood bravely before the British lawmakers and announced that he intended to put through a plan for the taxation of land values. The present land system, he said, is unjust and a burden to trade and industry, and direct taxation of land values would prove a remedy. He proposed to set up machinery for national valuation, which probably would take two years. When the valuation is completed the tax would be one penny per pound on the capital value.

Laborites and Liberals cheered wildly, but the Conservatives sat glumly silent. The latter will oppose the scheme, and it will be fought in the house of lords, but if the Labor party can continue in power it may be put through.

As for the present budget, Mr. Snowden announced only two changes, both temporary devices. The tax on gasoline is raised four cents a gallon to twelve cents, and there are certain alterations in the payments of income taxes. Mr. Snowden will get $97,200,000 by withdrawal from the exchange stabilization fund that has been on deposit in New York.

SOVIET RUSSIA scored twice during the week. By order of Under Secretary of State Mills a cargo of Russian lumber, brought to Providence, R. I., was admitted to the United States over the protests of domestic producers. Mr. Mills stating that there was no evidence that it had been produced by convict labor. Of greater importance was the signing of a new credit agreement between Russia and Italy which assures large purchases by the Soviets from Italians and the extension of credits by the latter.

EGYPT'S worst railway disaster occurred when the Cairo-Alexandria express caught fire while running at high speed; at least 41 persons lost their lives.

An earthquake in Transcaucasia killed nearly 400 of the inhabitants. Ten men perished when an oil well near Gladewater, Texas, exploded and became ignited.

SILVER has sunk so low in price, the ratio in relation to gold being now about 60 to 1, that many persons think something should be done about it. Four senators are out to discover what this something may be. They are the members of the senate foreign relations subcommittee.

Sen. Pittman on commercial relations with China. The chairman, Key Pittman of Nevada, has just started for China, and will be joined there by Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, who is on a trip to the Philippines. Claude Swanson of Virginia and Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota will soon sail for Europe.

Pittman and Vandenberg will investigate the possibility of a loan of some of the treasury's surplus silver bullion to the Nationalist government of China for coinage. Swanson and Shipstead will consult with political and economic leaders of Europe, concerning a possible international conference on a plan to suspend the practice of demonetizing silver coins and disposing of them as bullion. Both these ideas were presented to the President in two resolutions by the senate, but Mr. Hoover made no response.

EXTRADITION of ex-King Alfonso may be asked by the Spanish republic when he settles down somewhere; he is accused of granting Gen. Damasco Berenguer, dictator of Spain until two weeks ago, is in prison awaiting trial for the part he played in the Morocco military disaster of 1921 and for the execution of two officers after the revolt at Jaca last December.

Stream of Cold Water on Love's Young Dream

Dr. Horace Day was asked to resign his chair of biology at Howard college because he expressed certain doubts about Noah's ark and Jonah and the whale. Doctor Day said at a Birmingham reception: "I suppose these doubts of mine have caused some people pain. Well, isn't it worth a little pain to clear the air, to see straight and true?" "A Birmingham young lady was proposed to by an epic poet." "How much do you make, Virgil?" she asked him, "out of your epic poetry?" "Well," Virgil said, "I only made $64 last year, but, oh, darling, there are other things in life besides money!" "Yes," the young lady answered, "Yes, Virgil, there's the poorhouse." —Detroit Free Press.

WOMEN SHOULD LEARN USES OF MAGNESIA

To women who suffer from nausea, or so-called "morning sickness," this is a blessing. Most nurses know it. It is advised by leading specialists: Over a small quantity of finely cracked-ice pour a teaspoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Sip slowly until you are relieved. It ends sick stomach or inclination to vomit. Its anti-acid properties make Phillips' Milk of Magnesia quick relief in heartburn, sour stomach, gas. Its mild laxative action assures regular bowel movement. Used as a mouth-wash it helps prevent tooth decay during expectancy.

WARD OFF COLDS

Salt Lake City "In my opinion, and also in my husband's, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is by far the best and most reliable general tonic for a debilitated condition of health. We take this medicine during the winter and spring months to keep ourselves in good health. By keeping us ward off attacks of colds and spells of indigestion and various other common ailments to which all people are subject more or less."—Mrs. J. M. Harvey, 122 W. 4th St., All drug stores.

Castoria

made especially for CHILDREN

CHILDREN usually hate to take medicine but every child loves the taste of Castoria. And mothers like its action—so gentle, yet so prompt and effective.

Castoria is a never-failing comfort to children and mothers alike because it was formulated expressly for children—to correct their little ills and upsets.

The beauty of it is you can give Castoria to children of all ages with equally sure results. When baby's cry warns of colic, a few drops of Castoria has him soothed; and free from pain, he is asleep again in a jiffy.

In an older child when coated tongue or bad breath tell of constipation, a more liberal dose is usually all that is needed to cleanse and regulate the bowels.

Your doctor will tell you Castoria deserves a place in the family medicine cabinet until your children are grown. He knows it is safe for the tiniest baby; effective for a child in his teens.

The SEALED TRUNK

by HENRY KITCHELL WEBSTER

W.N.U. SERVICE

Forster was still in his swivel chair sitting almost as he had sat when Martin looked at him before, but in the act of relaxing back into it as if he had just meant to get up and they had changed his mind.

"She's looking wicked," Martin commented. "What do you suppose she's up to?" Rhoda squeezed his hand hard and said, "Don't talk! Listen!"

However, if she had a revolver in the bag she was content to leave it there for the present. What she produced from it now was a long amber cigarette holder and a package of cigarettes, one of which, very deliberately but with rather shaky hands, she proceeded to light.

Her only response to this was a theatrical laugh, not very convincing, and an elaboration of the processes of making herself comfortable in the chair.

But it was Forster's face that Martin's gaze rested upon. He appeared at first to be genuinely, even blankly, puzzled as to what the woman was getting at, and he broke in upon her two or three times with sharp impatient questions to which she paid no attention whatever, continuing to eye the cigarette and to go evenly on with her narrative.

Now though, Martin's attention was sharply diverted from both actors in the play to a sob from Rhoda. Turning to her in consternation he saw her trying vainly to blink away the tears that were blurring her vision.

The woman had abandoned her affection of lazy amusement and at something he must have said to her, had burst into a rage. She had sprung to her feet and was fairly pouring vituperation over him by the bucketful.

There was a comic element in this scene which Martin had been enjoying, but now the woman made a move which startled him. She stepped back out of the possible reach of Forster's hand and, snatching up her wristband from the corner of the desk, jerked it off.

"If she's got a gun in that bag she'll shoot him," Martin said to Rhoda, and would have jumped for the little door which led into the room if she hadn't stepped him by catching his arm.

would shoot him, though. I'd like to myself. He deserves it."

She had told what the woman's intentions were with a degree of confidence that was almost convincing. All the same it struck Martin as rather uncanny when seconds after Rhoda had finished speaking he saw Claire actually produce a letter from her wristband, and still taking care to keep out of Forster's reach, began reading it aloud to him.

"Rhoda, darling," he cried, "how did you know she was going to do that?" She stood looking at him now, face flushed, eyes bright with tears, leaving the scene they had been watching so intently to play itself out unregarded.

Myself, but one the less blissful, he said he was, and as he bent down over her she held up her face for his kiss with a simplicity that brought unexpected tears into his own eyes.

A raucous voice now broke in upon them—Conley's declaring with profane elaborations that he would be dead. They'd forgotten his very existence and had allowed him to come to them.

Forster, rummaging desperately with his half-palated hands in the shallow drawer of his desk, had pulled out a long-barreled, old-fashioned revolver, and when, directed by Rhoda's cry, they looked, they saw the old man trying to point it at Claire.

CHAPTER XIII

The Frame-Up

The report of the revolver was followed instantly by a scream from Claire. Rhoda and Martin, after exchanging one horrified look, followed Conley through the door, which he'd left open behind him.

Claire lay on the floor moaning, apparently unconscious, her face as covered with blood that it wasn't possible to see the exact nature of the wound. The revolver, a blue filament of smoke still rising from its barrel, lay on the carpet three or four paces away.

Conley picked her up in a matter-of-fact sort of way which led Martin to think that he'd come to the same conclusion as his own, that she was not dangerously injured.

"More blackmail!" Forster snarled. "It's a conspiracy, that's what it is. You are all in it."

He looked as he said that like nothing in the world but a rat in a corner, darling helpless venomous glances this way and that; toward the picture over the fireplace, behind which he knew his bodyguard was no longer on watch; toward the closed door through which no cry of his could be heard; even toward the revolver lying on the carpet, hopelessly out of his reach.

It was Rhoda who answered him. She was so pale Martin had feared that she might be going to faint. But the glittering timber of her voice as she spoke convinced him that she was white only with anger.

said. "That's the conspiracy you went into with Claire Cleveland—only she was called Clara Bowman then—and the man who was your secretary—I think his name was Stafford."

"You don't know what you're talking about," Forster wheezed. But the consternation in his face proclaimed that she did know.

"You had your secretary hire her," Rhoda went on. "That's why you didn't know who she was when she came back here and got a job in your office. You didn't know that Stafford had told her who you were. And when he died you thought you were safe. You thought you didn't have to pay the money you'd promised her for running my father."

"Rhoda, darling," he cried, "how did you know she was going to do that?" She stood looking at him now, face flushed, eyes bright with tears, leaving the scene they had been watching so intently to play itself out unregarded.

She happened to be standing, without knowing it, almost over the revolver, where she had only to stoop to pick it up.

That glance was all it needed to demolish him completely. He flopped out of his chair and sprawled down upon his knees on the carpet, holding out his palmed hands, imploring mercy.

Rhoda went a little whiter and turned her face away. "Do you mind picking him up, Martin, and putting him back in his chair?" she asked.

McFarland was wasted, where he was. He knew as much about the chemistry of petroleum as any man in the world; more in some ways. And he was nothing but a college professor working along a line I was interested in.

"I never saw anybody as stubborn as he was. He'd hardly listen. Practically told me to go to hell. He said the university had financed his researches up to now and it would be disloyal to leave them. It didn't do any good to talk big figures to him. He was throwing away a fortune—anyway that's how it looked at the time—like giving a nickel to a new-boy. I was about ready to quit, but Stafford had an idea."

"I don't say it was a very nice idea, but your father hadn't left us anything we could do. Stafford said if there should happen to be some little scandal out at the university so that McFarland would resign, he'd probably come back to us."

"Well, that's all. He went ahead with it. I didn't know what he was going to do. He went too far; further than I meant him to. I didn't think there'd be a trial. I thought McFarland would realize there was something on him and get out quietly. Only, you see, he was so innocent he didn't realize there was anything on him. And when the thing really got started it was too late to stop."

Rhoda's set face succeeded him seeking, and cringing away from the sight of it he turned to Martin. "You can see how it was, can't you? I didn't know he'd take it so hard. I didn't mean him any real harm. I meant to make him a rich man."

ing, and cringing away from the sight of it he turned to Martin. "You can see how it was, can't you? I didn't know he'd take it so hard. I didn't mean him any real harm. I meant to make him a rich man."

"You didn't make his fortune, though," Martin said. "Why not? How did you trick him out of it?"

"I didn't trick him out of it," Forster answered, with more assurance than he'd shown before. "I gave him a perfectly fair contract. I fitted up a laboratory for him, paid all his bills for supplies, and gave him a hundred dollars a week in cash for his personal expenses. I kept that up for four years. It must have cost me altogether forty or fifty thousand dollars. He was always just going to find the thing he needed to make his discovery practical, but he never did."

"Rhoda flashed into the scene. 'Then why did you offer Claire Cleveland one hundred thousand dollars just now for the contract you made with my father?'"

Forster had to gulp twice before he could answer. "I didn't mean anything"

He Was Always Just Going to Find the Thing He Needed.

by that. I was kidding her, you might say. I knew she hadn't got it. She hadn't either."

Rhoda confirmed that with a nod before she went on. "But then you told her to send for it. You said, 'Send for whatever you've got and have it brought up here just as it is.' That meant my trunk, I suppose, that you thought she'd stolen. You told her to send any messenger she liked; you told her to send your nephew Max. You said he'd been doing odd jobs for her lately and that he knew his way around her flat. You were trying to make her angry, but you held your breath while you waited to see whether she would send for the trunk or not?"

Forster turned to Martin as one who makes another appeal to reason. "Why would I hold my breath? I knew she hadn't any contract. I knew the man who did have it. I'd seen him just this afternoon. I told him it wasn't worth a nickel, just like I told her."

There was a kink in this, Martin perceived, but he hadn't time now to try to straighten it out. He turned to Rhoda, meaning to suggest casually that there was no point in their staying here any longer, but she looked so white and limp, now that the fire of anger had burned down, that he went and put his arm around her instead.

Her head drooped down on his chest, and he heard her say, "Take me away, Martin. I feel as if I couldn't breathe up here any longer."

"All right, dearest," Martin said, and without a glance at Forster started leading her toward the door.

Just before they reached it Conley opened it and came into the room. But he didn't, as Martin for an instant feared he would, offer to hinder their going out. He had something else on his mind. "The woman's all right," they heard him say to his employer as

Linger at Stage Doors for "Closeup" of Stars

Familiar among Broadway's night sights are the small crowds who gather near stage doors after the show is over. Usually between the hours of eleven and twelve they are to be found waiting for their favorite star to emerge.

Original "Caucus" The origin of the term "caucus" is traced back to the Caucus club of Boston, organized during Revolutionary days. This club was composed mainly of persons engaged in shipbuilding. It and the Merchants' club of the same period, used to meet before elections and agree on candidates for town and provincial offices.

they left the room. "She's got a bunnet hole through her cheek and she's lost a couple of teeth, but that's all the damage." In his excitement he neglected to close the door, and the departing pair, before they rode down in the little private elevator, were able to hear how the old man took the news.

"That means more blackmail," he wailed. "Where's Max? He'll have to get me out of this."

Down in the lobby Martin and Rhoda paused. Knowing how tired she was and what a storm she'd been through, he felt that he couldn't bear to tell her she must come with him now to the railway station in the hope that they wouldn't be too late to prevent Max from making off again with that trunk of hers.

"Rhoda, are you all right?" he demanded earnestly. He must have shouted it rather, for a man turning the leaves of a directory at the desk looked up curiously at the pair of them.

"She said she wasn't. She just didn't feel like talking to Babe. She'd sit in that big chair over there and wait for him. She gave him their telephone number just before she walked away in case he'd forgotten it."

"What did he want with you?" Martin demanded. "Naturally," said Babe, "he wanted his ticket and his trunk check."

"But he had them," Martin told her. "He took the envelope out of my pocket an hour ago, after he'd knocked me cold with a crack in the jaw."

"Well, he didn't think he had them fifteen minutes ago when he left here," she assured him.

"Wait a minute," Martin said, and laid down the receiver for a search of his pockets. "It's all right," he told Babe a minute later. "I've got them. What he got out of my pocket was your dummy envelope, the one you fooled him with in the first place. I don't wonder he looked sick. Well, don't worry about us any more," he concluded, "and don't expect us till we turn up."

"How long is it," he asked Rhoda when he went back to her, "since you've had anything to eat?"

"I don't know," she told him absently. "Not since I had lunch at the Tip-Top Inn. I don't remember whether I ate anything then or not."

"Well, then, that's the first thing to attend to," he announced. "I'm going to take you somewhere and get you a good dinner."

"I couldn't," she said. "I know I couldn't swallow a mouthful." Then, with a flash of animation in her tear-freshened eyes, she looked up at him and went on, "I know what I want to do, Martin. I want you to take me to the morgue."

He didn't for an instant recognize his own newspaper and stared at her in consternation until she added, "I want to read all it says about father; everything. Every horrible thing they did to him. Can we do it tonight, or will the place be all locked up?"

WOMEN: watch your BOWELS

What should women do to keep their bowels moving freely? A doctor should know the answer. That is why pure Syrup Pepsin is so good for women. It just suits their delicate organism. It is the prescription of an old family doctor who has treated thousands of women patients, and who made a special study of bowel troubles.

It is fine for children, too. They love its taste. Let them have it every time their tongues are coated or their skin is sallow. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is made from fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other harmless ingredients.

When you've a sick headache, can't eat, are bilious or sluggish; and at the times when you are most apt to be constipated, take a little of this famous prescription (all drug stores keep it ready in big bottles), and you'll know why Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the favorite laxative of over a million women!

Lesson for May 17

JESUS ENTERS JERUSALEM AS KING

LESSON TEXT—Luke 19:29-43.
GOLDEN TEXT—These shall make war with the Lamb, and the Lamb shall overcome them; for he is Lord of lords, and King of kings; and they that are with him are called, and chosen, and faithful.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaches the People That He is King.
SECONDARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaches the People That He is King.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Loyalty to the King.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Supremacy of Jesus.

This event is frequently designated as the "triumphal entry" which is somewhat misleading. While it was his official entry into Jerusalem, it was far from being a triumphal entry. In fulfillment of prophecy the Messiah officially presented himself to the Jewish nation. It seems that back of the cry "Hosanna" was taking form the awful word "crucifixion." It is possible that the word "crucifixion" was uttered by some of the same persons who had cried "Hosanna." Though they were utterly blind to the fact, God was about to carry out his plan of Hosanna which means "save now" through the crucifixion of his son.

1. The Preparation (vv. 29-33).
1. Sending the disciples for the ass (vv. 29-30).

He told them just where to go to find it, and how to answer the inquiry of the one who owned it. This shows how perfectly the Lord knows all our ways.

2. The fulfillment of prophecy (Zech. 9: 9, Cf. Matt. 21: 4, 5).
Some five hundred years before, Zechariah had predicted this event. Christ's entry into Jerusalem was an exact fulfillment of this prediction. This is highly instructive to those who would understand the as yet unfulfilled prophecies. Since the predictions of his first coming were literally fulfilled, we can expect the second to be literally fulfilled also. The first is established beyond a doubt. The second we should as heartily believe. The prediction of Zechariah 14: 3-11 will be just as literally fulfilled as that of Zechariah 9: 9.

3. Obedience of the disciples (vv. 32-34).

The request may have seemed strange and even unreasonable, yet they fully obeyed. The true disciple will render glad obedience to the Lord, no matter how strange his commands may seem. Obedience to that only which seems reasonable is not obedience at all. May we prove that we are really his disciples by obeying him.

II. The Entry of the King (vv. 35-39).

1. The disciples set Jesus upon the ass (v. 35).

This act of putting the garments upon the ass and setting Jesus upon it showed that they recognized him as their king (II Kings 9:13).

2. Acclaimed as king by the disciples (vv. 36-38).

Some spread their garments in the way, others perhaps having no garments to spare cut down branches of trees and strewed them in his way. This, no doubt, was just as accessible to him. They praised God for all the mighty works which they had seen.

III. The Critical Pharisees (vv. 39, 40).

Although swept along by the demonstrations of the multitude, the Pharisees deemed it prudent to ask the Lord to rebuke the disciples, as such behaviour might be interpreted by the Roman government as an insurrection. To their demand Jesus replied that such homage was not only fitting but necessary. He declared that if the multitude were silent, the very stones would cry out.

IV.—The King Rejected (vv. 41-44).

Christ knew what awaited him in Jerusalem. Though surrounded by loyal hearts, he knew that the rulers of the nation had no heart for him. His coming trial and death loomed before him so that he wept over Jerusalem. He knew what awful days awaited him and that loyal hearts would gladly welcome him if they only knew. He showed them that their inability to see him as their King and Saviour would result in bringing upon them the destruction of their city.

V.—The King Taking Possession of His Own House (vv. 45-48).

Upon entering the city he rebuked the rulers for allowing the house of God to become degraded by carrying on traffic therein for gain. The cleansing of the temple only increased their hatred and opposition to him. The chief priests and scribes even sought his destruction.

Christian Service

There is something deadly in Christian service, where "the excellency of the power" is of us and not of God. The tragedy in so many lives is here; they have no adequate power base, and when they are confronted with a supremely difficult task they fall to cope with it and are disastrously overwhelmed.—Jowett.

The Fort people are making the announcement early, so that the entire county, if possible, may agree to unite and have one grand celebration at Fort Stanton.

We believe that more can be accomplished by having one celebration than could be done by having others, from the fact that in more than one event of this nature, the attendance will be divided, the crowds at each place will be less and the entertainment would follow in the same channel. Therefore, let's all unite for one grand celebration.

Passed Through Here

Mr. and Mrs. Will Rogers passed through here Monday afternoon on their way to their home in California, after staying over at Roswell Sunday, where they consulted with the faculty of the Military Institute with a view of having their son enroll in that institution, and incidentally, Will gave the polo fans a chance to see him in action both Sunday afternoon and Monday morning. They were at the Carlsbad Cavern last Saturday, where Will was the first man to descend into the cavern by the new elevator shaft, which he did by being let down in a bucket. The elevator will soon be ready for the public and arranged so that older people and invalids who heretofore have been deprived of seeing the wonderful cavern, may see be able to go without difficulty.

The humorist described the cave's grandeur with the following phrase: "If a drunk awoke in the Carlsbad Cavern, he'd think he had died and went to heaven."

Our Sunday School went in a body to the Mothers' Day service at Lincoln last Sunday. There were many cars, and Mr. W. L. Burnett took the boys' class on his truck. There was a great crowd in Lincoln and Rev. Reynolds paid a high tribute to Motherhood in his sermon. A sumptuous basket dinner was enjoyed on the lawn of the Bonito Inn after which there was a very interesting program by the Sunday School.
