Summer time is flower time. Mrs. Hunt's "Tree Acres" at Alamogordo will fill your wants.

LOCAL MENTION

Thos. Ninos

the new proprietor of the Star Cafe, as mentioned in last week's Outlook, took possession Wednesday morning. As we have said, Mr. Ninos comes to our town with the best of recommendations and as a showing of his business qualities, he has an ad for his next Sunday's dinner in this paper. He will make some changes in the Cafe as rapidly as possible so as to add to the attractiveness and good service.

OddFellows Buy Home

A deal was consummated the latter part of last week, whereby Carrizozo Lodge No. 30, I. O. O. F., purchased the building four doors south of Paden's Drug Store from John W. Harkey.

The building will be remodeled and made into a suitable place for a lodge hall, and later on, another story will be added to the structure.

The deal included a vacant lot on the north side and this will be enclosed with a neat wire fence, the lot sown with grass and young trees planted in the fall, much on the order of the Town Trustees' Building.

For the past six years, the OddFellows have been renting a portion of the lower floor of the Masonic Temple, but after June 1, they will be in their new home.

Scarce Breakfast at Malpais

The Sophomore class of the Carrizozo High School, went on a sunrise breakfast at 4:30 o'clock Friday morning, May 15. There were about 25 present and a good time was enjoyed by all. Wayne Van Schoyck and Lawrence Hicks had a roaring fire when the rest of the class arrived on the spot, and Mesdames Kelley, Joyce and McMillan prepared breakfast while the children made good their escape from work. They returned in time for the last day of school.

Several of the parents accompanied the children, as well as Mr. Gillette, the class sponsor.

Revival Meeting

at the Nazarene Church, Capitan, N. M., beginning May 20th, with Rev. A. K. Scott, Evangelist. A cordial invitation is extended to the public.

J. B. French, who has been ill of late, has recovered to the extent that he made a trip to Eagle Creek Wednesday and returned in the afternoon. While there, he took a look at the fish hatcheries and found everything in good condition.

Mrs. Peter Hanley, daughter Juanita and son Neal made a trip to El Paso Monday, attended to some business matters and returned Wednesday morning.

Mrs. George Dingwall is spending the present week - end with her sister, Mrs. Allan Johnson, in El Paso.

Mrs. F. L. Skinner of Nogal was a guest of her sister, Mrs. E. H. Ferguson Wednesday, returning home in the afternoon.

Why lose sleep, when the Roswell Mattress Co. can renovate your mattresses and make you feel as comfortable as a lazy southern negro?

Entertained the Ancho Teachers and Pupils

Last Friday morning after school closed, Mrs. John Dale and Mrs. R. L. Hale entertained the teachers and pupils of the Ancho school with an ice cream and cake social.

The teachers were the Misses Ethel Johnson and Hilda Key. This proved to be an enjoyable event and the hostesses were pronounced royal entertainers.

Mrs. F. J. Sager entertained the Carrizozo Bridge Club last Saturday afternoon, with bridge and refreshments.

Mrs. T. J. Rowden and young grandson left Tuesday morning for Hot Springs. Mrs. Rowden hopes to receive relief from an ailment of rheumatism. They will be absent for about one month.

Mesdames Beckett and Boughner were guests of Mrs. Nellie Branum and daughter, Mrs. Clouse at Eagle Creek Sunday.

Phillip Space says that he hasn't any stories to tell on the Scotchman this week, but he's preparing some real ones for the next issue.

Conductor Jimmy O'Rourke received word from Mrs. O'Rourke at El Paso, to the effect that Mrs. O'Rourke's father, John Lloyd, 86, had died at his home in York, Nebraska. She came up on No. 4 Monday night, met Jimmy here and they journeyed on to attend the funeral. They will return in about ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Boyd of Fort Stanton were visitors here Wednesday in the interest of the big Fourth of July Celebration, which promises to be the largest ever given in the history of the Fort.

Methodist Church

There is a man who is always putting things off. His intentions are good, but he never acts. If anyone should ask him why he didn't do something he would say, "Well, I always meant to, but I've just been putting it off." He said that so many times that people began to call him "Old Man Puttin' it Off." Do you know that man? Sunday School at 9:45; Church at 11 next Sunday morning, and Church again at 8 in the evening. -Rev. J. L. Lawson, Pastor.

Born - Saturday morning, May 15, to Mr. and Mrs. John Brown, a girl. Mother and daughter are doing nicely.

School's Out

Pick Warden Loses All of His Camp Outfit

Mrs. R. E. P. Warden came down from the Warden ranch near Ancho Wednesday night, after receiving a letter from her husband at the old Hagerman ranch near Santa Fe, where he has many sheep and in the midst of the lambing, which has been better than in former years, a fire broke out in the herders' camp and owing to a high wind which prevailed at the time, the entire camp outfit with the exception of Mr. Warden's bed roll was consumed by the fire.

This necessitated going into Santa Fe the next morning and buying bunks, bed clothing and in fact a new outfit for the camp.

Weaver-Hagsten

Mr. Jess Weaver and Miss Gladys Hagsten, both of Encino, were married in the Methodist parsonage Saturday, May 16. The Rev. John L. Lawson officiated. The ceremony was witnessed by Mr. and Mrs. Matt Mitchell. The happy couple will make their home near Encino.

Last Time this Summer

New Mexico's summer vacation travel, expected to increase this year, will be given early impetus Thursday, Friday and Saturday, May 28, 29 and 30, with the re-establishment of a cent-a-mile roundtrip fares on the Southern Pacific Lines throughout the West, announced today by the Local Agent, C. P. Huppertz. Adding interest to the announcement from the viewpoint of the vacationer, Mr. Huppertz stated the Memorial Day sale will offer the added attraction of 12-day return limit. Tickets sold under this plan, he said, will be good until midnight of Monday, June 8. It will be the last "dollar day" event of the season, according to the announcement.

And the Band Played - "Who'd Have Thought It!"

A timid young couple from out in the broad spaces came into the office of the County Clerk and applied for a marriage license, and in the absence of the clerk, Miss Frances Aguayo, one of Mr. Grelson's efficient deputies, made out the papers. After making out the license, she modestly said, "I wish to offer my congratulations in advance of your happy undertaking," to which the intended groom replied, "Thanks! It's an undertaking, all right and awful expensive, but my girl here is a tight eater and I reckon it won't take us long to make it up."

WOMAN'S CLUB

held their last meeting at Mrs. Huppertz's home, May 15, which was decorated with lovely red roses. Meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Paul Mayer. "America" and "America the Beautiful" were sung by the club - Mrs. Lemon, song leader, with Mrs. Hendren at piano.

Mrs. Lawson, as chairman of the Americanization committee, presented a beautiful flag to the club to the accompaniment of "The Star Spangled Banner" after which the salute was given. The flag is to be on display at each club meeting. Mmes. E. Barber and O. Snow stood beside the flag during the presentation.

Under Mrs. Laws' leadership, Mrs. Finley read a note on illiteracy; Mrs. Koogler on San Antonio, the oldest city; Mrs. Hall on popular songs; Mrs. Barber on laws; Mrs. Spencer, a memorial to Theodore Roosevelt. Mrs. Clouse read an interesting report of the district meeting at Canutillo. Mrs. Lemon had charge of installation of officers for the coming year and it was done in a highly entertaining manner with rhyme, verse and song. The outgoing president, Mrs. Mayer, was earnestly complimented for the splendid work she had done. Mrs. Mendenhall at the piano, sang "Memories."

Mrs. Clouse, incoming president, was presented the gavel with best wishes from the club for a successful year to the song, "We'll Be Loving You." Following is the list of incoming officers: Mrs. O. Clouse, Pres.; Mrs. Zoe Glassmire, Vice-Pres.; Miss E. Brickley, 2nd Vice-Pres.; Mrs. C. W. Young, Sec'y; Mrs. C. Lucky, Treas.; Mrs. Paul Mayer, Parliamentarian.

Miss Melias sponsored the following program:

Reading, "Don't." Ginger Charles; Violin solo, "Iris," Miss Louise Sweet; Piano duet, Zane Harkey, Mae Young; Pianologue, Zane Harkey, Mae Young, with Mrs. Kelley at piano. Mrs. Snyder gave us literature of the southwest - a splendid review of two books, one each of Adolph Bandelier - "The Delight Makers" and Chas. Lummis' "A New Mexico David," which was thoroughly appreciated.

During the social hour, Mrs. Huppertz was assisted by Mmes. McCammon, Hedrick, Grey, Gillespie and Miss Sweet in serving cookies and coffee.

Shower for Mrs. Tennis Bigelow

The many friends of Mrs. Tennis Bigelow tendered her a shower yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. M. Beck. Many gifts were presented with well wishes for future welfare and happiness. After the shower, dainty refreshments were served and an enjoyable afternoon was spent.

The First National Bank being supplied with a new roof adds an improvement to that well erected building. Langston & Phipps are doing the work.

Senator Bronson Cutting called at his office yesterday morning on his way from Alamogordo to Albuquerque and Santa Fe.

Prof. and Mrs. L. S. Van Scoyoc of Corona were Carrizozo visitors the latter part of last week, and while in town, Mr. Van Scoyoc paid this office a pleasant visit. Mr. Van Scoyoc is principal of the Corona school.

ANCHO NOTES

Two 8th grade graduates, Maude Warden and Frank Weatherabee received their diplomas at the closing of school on May 14. The upper and primary grades entertained with recitations, dialogues and songs. Miriam Hightower gave a piano solo quite skillfully and Mary Pickett Warden was the hit of the evening in two vocal solos to her own accompaniment on the guitar.

Mrs. Debra Frame's class put on a charming, little operetta, "Under the Sugar Plum Tree." The stage settings represented a Sylvan scene with a flower-bordered river on which a sail boat navigated. A group of dainty fairies led by tiny Amyllis Frame did the Poppy dance and black and red Squiggle Squiggles sang gleefully. The costumes were elaborate and the children showed the result of painstaking training. Before the operetta, Mrs. B. Hightower gave three piano numbers.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sweet entertained delightfully last Saturday evening, dancing being the main diversion. Dainty refreshments were served to a large number of guests.

Mrs. Bullard's home was the scene for a lovely party Sunday evening, the main feature being Mrs. Belknap's grandson in action. At the urgent request of friends, Mrs. Belknap consented to show the movie of her grandson, John, again, who lives in New York. Cakes, coffee and cocoa were served. Guests present were: Mmes. E. Brown, Belknap, Bill Reynolds, T. J. Straley, Kile, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. and Ralph Hall.

Dance at Ancho tomorrow night, May 23. Music by the Graves Orchestra.

The Woman's Club had an especially interesting meeting at Mrs. Kile's home on Saturday, May 15. With one exception, all resident members were present. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Haley, Mmes. McCammon, Carrizozo; Bogle, Coyote; Silvers, Reynolds, Geo. Straley, Messrs. Drake, J. M. Frame, Misses Edwina Peters, June Caldwell, Lucille and Lila Lee Drake, Maude and Mary Pickett Warden and Miriam Hightower.

Mrs. Warden was added to the membership and the club feels it has gained a valuable addition.

Roll call was answered by a "Favorite Saying of my Mother" and the Mothers' Day theme carried into the social hour which followed the business session. Each member read a poem on "Mother" and addresses were made by Mr. Haley, Mmes. Haley, McCammon and Bogle. In the intelligence tests, prizes were awarded to Mmes. McCammon, Pruett and Miss Maude Warden. During the refreshment period, Misses Maude and Mary Pickett Warden, Drake, Peters and Hightower entertained with recitations and vocal selections and Miss June Caldwell gave a very graceful gypsy dance. Bowls of sweet peas, the club flower, decorated the room. Green and white, club colors predominated in refreshment which consisted of open-face sandwiches and lima bean hand-painted place cards were used. Corsage bouquets of sweet peas were given as favors.

Next meeting will be at Mr. Price Miller's home, May 28th.

W. Connor of El Paso spent the week-end here as a guest of the J. B. French family.

Chicken Chop Suey Is a Welcome Dish

Chicken Chop Suey Is Quite Delicious.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.—WNU Service.)

Perhaps you have always thought of chop suey as a dish that is too unusual and foreign to prepare at home. As a matter of fact, chop suey is unknown in China; it originated in Chinatown in San Francisco, in an attempt to give visitors something out of the ordinary. It is made with such Chinese ingredients as water nuts, bamboo shoots, bean sprouts, soy sauce and often dried mushrooms, as well as chicken or pork, but a very good dish closely resembling the original chop suey in flavor may be made with vegetables that are common in most American localities. Soy sauce is sold in a great many groceries, and the chop suey will be almost perfect in flavor if you can get it. If not, Worcestershire sauce will do. Soy sauce contains a good deal of salt, so the amount of salt needed in your chop suey will depend on which kind of sauce you have.

Why not invite your friends or family to try a Chinese supper some evening? If you have any Chinese accessories or decorations, so much the better. At least, you can make chicken chop suey—and this is the main attraction, with preserved ginger for dessert. The Chinese do not use bread and butter, because they have the rice, but you may serve it if your family prefers. The vegetables on which we depend for vitamins are incorporated in the chop-suey-onion and celery. The recipe below is from the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture.

- 1 fowl, weighing 3 to 4 lbs.
- 2 cups sliced Brussels sprouts
- 1 cup shredded Jerusalem artichokes
- 1 cup shredded celery
- 1 green pepper, shredded
- 1 cup chicken broth
- 1 tsp. cornstarch
- 2 cups sliced onion
- 1/2 cup salt
- 1/2 cup soy sauce
- 1/2 cup fat
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- Amount of salt in sauce
- 1 lb. cold water

Put the fowl on a rack in a kettle, half fill with boiling water, cover tightly, and simmer until the meat is nearly tender. Let cool in the broth, remove the meat from the bones, dis-

Hints for Housekeepers

Dried fruits are some of the best confections for the children because the sweet is less concentrated.

Prevent rusting in the oven by leaving the oven door ajar for an hour after baking to allow any moisture to vaporize.

Pastries improve by chilling, so after the dough is mixed, wrap it in waxed paper and keep it in the refrigerator a few hours.

Mattresses will last longer and be more comfortable if they are turned frequently, sunned and cleaned with a brush or vacuum cleaner brush attachment.

Good Things for the Family Table

By NELLIE MAXWELL.

"Suppose that this here vessel," says the skipper with a groan, "should lose her bearings, run away and bump upon a stone?" "Suppose she should," and he looks down when she says, "ourselves we couldn't!" The mate replies, "Oh, blow me away!" "Suppose, again, she shouldn't?" —Wallace Irwin.

There is no dinner dish that is more popular, if we except chicken, than Baked Ham.

Soak a ham over night. In the morning put it into a kettle with one onion, one carrot, six peppercorns, one bay leaf, six cloves and water to cover. Simmer for three or four hours until tender. Remove the skin and stick with whole cloves; bake in a roasting pan, basting with the ham liquid and cider, using half of each. When the ham is well done stir some brown sugar into the cider sauce and spread all over the ham and brown. Serve hot with the liquor from the pan for sauce.

Deviled Lobster.—Cook three tablespoons of onion, one tablespoon of green pepper, three tablespoons of butter very slowly until tender. Add one and one-half cups of lobster meat and sprinkle with two tablespoonfuls of flour, one teaspoonful each of mustard, salt and paprika to taste, with a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce and a cupful of cream. Cook a minute or two. Place in ramkins or shells and bake well covered with buttered crumbs.

Fig Cake.—Beat three egg whites with one-half cupful of sugar and add a teaspoonful of vanilla. Beat three egg yolks with one-half cupful of sugar, the grated rind of an orange, a teaspoonful of baking powder sifted twice with a cupful of flour, add three tablespoonfuls of orange juice and fold in the egg mixture. Melt four tablespoonfuls of butter in a cakepan, add one-half cupful of brown sugar, one cupful of chopped figs and a sprinkling of broken pecans. Pour over this the cake mixture and bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven. When done turn upside down and serve with whipped cream. Stewed apricots, canned pineapple or any fruit desired may be used for this delicious cake.

Deviled Chicken.—Prepare a sauce of salt, pepper, dry mustard, paprika, grated lemon peel, lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce and a few drops of tabasco sauce. Add a lump of butter when the sauce is at the boiling point. Now add cubes of cooked chicken and serve when well heated through.

Vienna Steak.—Take one-half pound each of veal and beef finely chopped, season well with salt, pepper and onion juice, with a grating of nutmeg and a little lemon juice. Cook over coals or under gas from eight to ten minutes. Serve with creamed butter and paprika spread over each steak. Parsley may be used if preferred. A very hot frying pan if lightly greased may be used instead of the broiler.

Stuffed Dill Pickles.—Take two large dill pickles and core the long way with an apple corer. Fill the centers with seasoned cheese and chili. Serve cut into thin slices and use them as a garnish for a canape.

To cream butter easily seal the bowl before using.

Vegetable Stew Makes Complete Meal

A substantial stew made of several different vegetables is liked for change once in a while. When it is served on toast it is almost a meal in itself. The bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture recommends the method of making it described below. The children will enjoy a savory vegetable stew for a mid-day lunch, and it will be good for them.

- 1 cup diced salt pork
- 2 cups diced rutabaga
- 1 small onion
- 2 cups diced potato
- 1/2 tsp. eggs
- 2 cups hot water
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. pepper

Fry the diced salt pork until crisp. Remove the pork and some of the fat from the skillet and brown the onion and rutabaga in the remaining fat. Add the potato, salt, eggs, and water. Cover and simmer until the rutabaga is tender. Remove the cover and cook until the stew has thickened somewhat. Add the browned salt pork, pepper, and more salt if needed. Serve with crisp toast.

Gingersnaps That Will Retain Crispness

If the family lives ginger snaps you can make them sometimes at home by the recipe below, from the bureau of home economics. These ginger snaps should be kept in a tightly closed tin to retain their crispness.

- 1 cup molasses
- 1/2 cup butter or other fat
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 1/2 cups sifted flour
- 1/2 tsp. soda
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. ginger
- 1/2 tsp. salt

Heat the molasses to the boiling point, and pour it over the fat. Dissolve the soda in a tablespoonful of water. Add this and the sifted dry ingredients to the molasses and fat. Mix well and make into a long roll as large around as the cookies are to be. Wrap this roll of dough in waxed paper and put in a cold place to chill for several hours or overnight. The dough must be cold through and through to cut properly. When ready to bake, cut the roll into very thin slices with a sharp knife and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) until lightly browned. Remove from the pan while hot.

organdies which to see is to covet. For the graduating frock we can think of nothing prettier than white, or if preferred, flesh-colored allover embroidered organdie. Of course it must have a full hemline with fitted hip-line, however, for that is the "trick" in dressmaking this season, to accent a slender silhouette with a sprightly flare commencing above the knees. The normal waistline of this youthful gown will be defined with a girlish sash. The sleeves will be either little puffs or perhaps a ruffle or two or suggested by a bertha or capelet.

Later this charming dress will be dancing in the moonlight or, topped with a wide-brimmed sunhat, it will appear at garden parties.

It is rather difficult for the girl selecting material for her graduating frock to choose between embroidered and plain organdie which is lace-trimmed, the latter to be worn over a taffeta slip. Clever things are being done with lace and organdie, one of which is posing the crisp transparent weave over a lace foundation slip. The graduating frock being white would be mounted over white lace, but for the party dress the organdie is apt to be any lovely tint and the lace underneath should be a perfect match. The attractive organdie gown pictured has a simplicity about it which gives it charm to the graduating scene. This dainty dress features bands of lace artfully inset so as to form a front panel in the skirt, the double cape repeating this trimming. (© 1931, Western Newspaper Union.)

Graduates Choose Sheer Frocks

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

As to the matter of being prettily and modishly frocked, fashion has some extremely interesting information to impart to the "sweet girl graduate" (to be). The important message has to do with the high style value placed on the sheer cottons.

Organdie is a favorite with designers, especially the new embroidered

Story for the Children at Bedtime

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"What in the world is the trouble?" asked a squirrel with a bushy tail, who happened to be near a place in the woods where he saw a little girl was crying.

"My name is Mahalla," said the little girl, "and I've lost my—oh, oh, oh, I've lost my—" then she sobbed and sobbed and couldn't say another word.

Pretty soon one of them said: "Let's ask our old friend, Mr. Giant, to suggest some way of stopping Mahalla from crying."

"Oh," said Mahalla between her sobs, "he may eat me up and stop my crying that way. But I'm lost—" and then she burst out crying again.

"Dear me, me," said the squirrel, who had suggested the giant. "He is the kindest giant you can imagine."

All the other squirrels who had come around, too, to see what was the trouble, said:

"Nubby Squirrel is perfectly right. What he says is so. The Giant is very kind."

"Yes," continued the first squirrel who had spoken to her, of Nubby Squirrel, as he was called, "he is not just kind. He lives in a cave just a little way off, and whenever we go to call on him he gives us nuts to eat and sends home nuts to our mothers and fathers."

"He talks us wonderful stories of his adventures. He's as big as the cave but he can curl up way inside."

"My name is Mahalla," said the little girl, "and I've lost my—oh, oh, oh, I've lost my—" then she sobbed and sobbed and couldn't say another word.

Pretty soon one of them said: "Let's ask our old friend, Mr. Giant, to suggest some way of stopping Mahalla from crying."

"Dear me, me," said the squirrel, who had suggested the giant. "He is the kindest giant you can imagine."

All the other squirrels who had come around, too, to see what was the trouble, said:

"Nubby Squirrel is perfectly right. What he says is so. The Giant is very kind."

Followed by an Enormous Giant.

rel, "that when the circus comes to the town nearby, the only thing he wishes for them so we can have them."

"That is how kind he is. He's always thinking of others."

Mahalla had stopped crying and had decided the giant must be indeed very wonderful if the squirrels were so fond of him.

And so she let them go off for him. In a few moments they came hopping and jumping along followed by an enormous giant.

Some of the little squirrels were perched on his shoulders and when he sat down they hopped and scampered all over him.

"What's the trouble, little girl?" he asked, and his voice was so very kind.

"I've lost my six wild strawberries," Mahalla answered.

"Six wild strawberries?" repeated the squirrel. "You wouldn't have used more than—we can get you more than six."

"But they were in a basket of sweet peas," said Mahalla, "and such a dear thing you see the basket."

"Oh," said the squirrel, "we will have to find that." And he looked all

Doughnuts and Refreshments Popular

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.—WNU Service.)

Good tender doughnuts, freshly made, are useful for innumerable occasions where simple refreshments are called for. At church societies and other community gatherings something inexpensive but popular is usually served, and doughnuts, with a beverage of some sort, answer this need admirably. When a chance caller comes during the late afternoon, doughnuts with coffee are much appreciated. After the evening "four-course" at cards, doughnuts and a fruit drink are appropriate.

The United States Department of Agriculture gives the recipe below for doughnuts. The ingredients given make about 40.

- 1 cup milk
- 1/2 cup sifted soft wheat flour
- 2 eggs
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. baking powder
- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. nutmeg
- 1/2 tsp. cinnamon

Place the fat in a warm place until it becomes soft, though not melted. Combine with the sugar. Stir in the beaten egg yolks, and add alternately the dry ingredients which have been sifted together, and the milk. Add aroused, and down behind a fern was the waiting basket with the strawberries.

Then the Giant and all the squirrels set to work and gathered many wild strawberries so that Mahalla's basket was filled when she left them.

She loved wild strawberries almost better than any fruit and she was very happy about having such a lot of them.

The giant was happy because he had proved to his dear little girl that a giant could be a dear, friendly soul, and the squirrels were happy that they had been the ones to bring all this about.

So you see, although the story began with a sad, it ended very happily. (© 1931, Western Newspaper Union.)

BOWELS need watching

Let Dr. Caldwell help whenever your child is feverish or upset, or has caught cold.

His simple prescription will make that bilious, headachy, cross boy or girl comfortable, happy, well in just a few hours. It soon restores the bowels to healthy regularity. It helps "break-up" a cold by keeping the bowels free from all that sickening mucus waste.

You hope a famous doctor's word for this laudanum. Dr. Caldwell's record of having attended over 3500 births without loss of one mother or baby is believed unique in American medical history.

Get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin from your druggist and have it ready. Then you won't have to worry when any member of your family is headachy, bilious, gassy or constipated. Syrup Pepsin is good for all ages. It sweetens the bowels; increases appetite—makes digestion more complete.

International Chamber of Commerce Debates Causes and Cures of Economic Depression—Financiers Scored by M. A. Traylor.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

WHAT are the causes of the old world? What are the causes of the ailments? What can be done about it? These were the questions asked and in various ways answered by scores of the leading men in finance and industry from 43 nations, assembled in Washington for the sessions of the International Chamber of Commerce.

Silas H. Strawn, Chicago, newly elected president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, formally opened the meeting and then Georges Theunis, former Belgian premier and retiring president of the International body, took the chair.

The first address was the speech of President Hoover welcoming the delegates, and the Chief Executive seized the occasion to take another hard wallop at war and armaments. He said he believed the certain way to restore prosperity was to lighten the burden of national defense which is now costing the nations more than $3,000,000,000 a year and keeping nearly 3,000,000 men actively under arms. He urged the business men of the five continents to mobilize their influence upon their respective governments to join in the reduction of armament at the international conference to be held next year under the auspices of the League of Nations.

"Of all proposals for the economic rehabilitation of the world," said Mr. Hoover, "I know of none which compares in necessity or importance with the successful result of that conference."

M. Theunis submitted a long and exhaustive report on world conditions, in the course of which he said: "I am personally convinced that the commercial policy and the customs tariff in force in most of the countries of the world constitute one of the fundamental causes of our actual economic troubles. A liberal customs policy might be expected to lead to better business conditions."

He then showed he was in accord with certain prominent members of the United States Chamber of Commerce who at their meeting in Atlantic City called for a tariff revision downward.

M. A. Traylor, prominent Chicago banker, electrified his hearers by a scorching attack on commercial leaders and government executives of America. "Ambition, cupidity and greed have dictated policies, and trouble has been the result," he declared. "It is a tragedy when in a world of plenty there should be so much poverty and when, in a nation that boasts of its riches, $3,000,000 or more persons willing to work should be unable to find employment. It is a challenge to the world and especially to American business and political leadership."

Mr. Traylor's attack began with a criticism of manufacturers who took advantage of technological and management improvements to swell their output to a point far in excess of the possibilities of consumption. And he was equally severe in his characterization of the methods of bankers and of traders on the floor of the stock and grain exchanges. He urged that floor trading and small margin accounts be forbidden.

MR. STRAWN when he addressed the delegates to the international meeting invited them all to Chicago for the "jubilee" celebration of May 10 to 20, and he received assurance that many of them would attend. The midwest metropolis had made most elaborate preparations for this affair, the program including reviews in the brightly decorated "loop" district, big parades, dedication of the replica of Fort Dearborn, first of the Century of Progress exposition buildings, and to wind up with the elaborate war game of the air force of the army.

PREVAILING depression has not affected the Boy Scouts of America. The national council celebrated at a two day meeting in Memphis the close of the twenty-first year of the organization and announced it had been the best and most successful of all. President Walter W. Hood of Chicago presided at all the sessions and on the last day Maxime Schild, New York banker, was elected president for 1932.

York banker; George W. Olmstead, Pennsylvania public utilities executive; Victor F. Bidder, New York newspaper publisher; Robert P. Sniffen, Yonkers, N. Y., merchandising expert, and Mell R. Wilkinson, Atlanta (Ga.) merchant and manufacturer. Citations praised them for distinguished service to scouting.

Lord Hampton, long prominent in English Boy Scout work, served with distinction in the World war. He was awarded the Silver Cross for life saving in 1919 and the following year received the award of the Silver Wolf, the British Scout decoration for distinguished service to boys.

HERE is something else for certain active opponents of the dry law to ponder upon. The District of Columbia Court of Appeals, in an opinion which takes away from Robert de Francis of Washington the citizenship granted him in 1921, holds that a violator of the prohibition act cannot be attached to the principles of the Constitution and is not a person of good moral character.

The decision reversed the action of the District of Columbia Supreme court which had denied a petition by United States Attorney Leo A. Rorer seeking to set aside Francis' naturalization.

THIS conviction on the charge of accepting a bribe having been upheld by the District of Columbia court of appeals, Albert R. Fall says he has decided not to carry the case to the Supreme court of the United States. The former secretary of the interior, it seems, must serve the one year term in prison to which he was sentenced, and pay a fine of $100,000, unless President Hoover intervenes with a pardon—which is the hope of his friends.

Fall, interviewed at his ranch in New Mexico, said his attitude toward a Presidential pardon was rather passive. "I am an old man," he said, "I am not guilty of the crime of which I was accused. I had fought until I am worn out and considerations for my family impel me to carry the fight no further."

He said he had no money with which to pay the fine and explained he had lost ownership of the ranch on which he lives when a mortgage was foreclosed several years ago.

MOTHERS and children and their welfare were the topics of special consideration during the week throughout the nation. To promote better maternal care for the women of the United States was the object of a big meeting in the Park Lane Hotel, New York city.

Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, prominent physician and health officer as well as many well known women were among the attendants, the latter including Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Mrs. John Stoen, Mrs. August Belmont, Mrs. E. Marshall Field, Mrs. Jeremiah Milbank, Mrs. Samuel Schuler, Mrs. Robert L. Gerry, Mrs. John R. Drexel, Miss Mabel Choate, and Miss Frances Perkins, New York state industrial commissioner.

PULITZER prize awards for literary excellence in 1930 have been announced, and there are few if any surprises in the list. The main awards are: Best novel, Mrs. Margaret Ayer Barnes, for "Years of Grace"; best book dealing with the history of the United States, Prof. Barnard H. Schmitt of University of Chicago, for "The Coming of the War"; best play, Susan Glaspell, for "Alison's House"; best American biography, Henry James, for "Charles W. Eliot"; best volume of verse, Robert Frost, for "Collected Poems"; best piece of reportorial work, A. B. Macdonald of the Kansas City Star; best example of foreign correspondence, H. R. Knickerbocker of the Philadelphia Ledger; best editorial, C. E. Ryckman of the Fremont (Neb.) Tribune; best cartoon, Edmund Duffy of the Baltimore Sun. A gold medal was awarded the Constitution of Atlanta, Ga., for meritorious public service in supporting municipal graft. Several young men were given traveling scholarships in journalism.

GEORGE FREDERICK BAKER of New York, reputed to be the richest American banker and the third richest man in the country, who died of pneumonia at the age of ninety-one, was buried Tuesday in Tuxedo Park, N. Y., where he resided. Many persons present in attendance and by Mrs. generally were present at the funeral. Deceased Mr. Baker died in a period of price depression, the United States and the state of New York will receive in inheritance taxes far less of his amassed wealth than would have been the case had he passed away two years ago. His estate is estimated at something like $500,000,000.

FRENCH opposition to the proposed Austro-German customs accord seems to be effective at least to the extent of keeping the little enterprise out of line. The foreign ministers of that enterprise have stated that all questions concerning the accord must be decided in their attitude, and what that attitude will be is indicated by the fact that the Berlin government has informed Berlin that it does not wish to negotiate with Germany at this time. M. Briand is being warmly supported by Czechoslovakia.

CHINA has virtually abrogated the extraterritoriality treaties, with foreign powers, the abrogation to take effect January 1 next. Chinese jurisdiction over legal cases involving foreigners resident in China is to be established, but special courts for such cases will be created in certain areas, including Shanghai, Tientsin, Mukden and Canton. The mandate to this effect was promulgated by President Chiang Kai-shek's government after negotiations with Sir Miles Lampson, British minister, for abolition of extraterritoriality had broken down. Foreign consuls in China feared that communists would find in the action excuse for attacks on foreigners in the interior, and the number of protecting warships at various ports was increased.

President Chiang Kai-shek is having his troubles with rebels in Canton and with some members of his own Nationalist party. The former are led by Chen Chi-tang, and both they and the conservative Nationalists declare that Chiang must resign the presidency, asserting that he is trying to make himself a dictator. The provinces of Kwangtung and Kwangsi declared their independence.

PRESIDENT DOUMERGUE opened France's international colonial exposition at Vincennes park on Tuesday, and it is expected that the big show will attract throngs of visitors until it closes at the end of October. In addition to all French colonies, the United States, Italy, Belgium, Brazil, Denmark, Holland, and Portugal are represented. Native life of Indo-China, equatorial Africa, and Madagascar has been reproduced even to the extent of importing 3,000 natives.

The United States is represented by a copy of Washington's Mount Vernon home, and by pavilions for Hawaiian, Porto Rican, Alaska, and Philippine exhibits.

PRESIDENT GARMONA of Portugal is comparatively happy now, for the rather serious revolt in Madeira island has been suppressed by the government forces under command of Magalhães Correia, minister of marine. The federal troops bombarded the rebels at Funchal by land, sea and air until they gave up the fight, the leaders taking refuge in the British legation. The casualties were not excessive, but the normal life of Madeira had been greatly disturbed for weeks and the government in Lisbon was really worried for a time.

MORE than once Mustafa Kemal Pasha has refused to let the Turks make him President for life, but they are doing it in effect anyway. The other day they elected him for his third term of four years, that action being taken by the national assembly in extraordinary session at Angora, and the vote was unanimous. Ismet Pasha and the cabinet resigned pro forma and the premier and other ministers were promptly reappointed.

JAPAN'S foremost aviator, young Seiji Yoshikawa, started his solo flight from Tokyo to Washington, D. C., under the auspices of the Tokyo newspaper Hochi Shimbun. His route for the long and perilous journey was laid out to the northern islands of Japan, thence along the Kuriles to Petropavlovsk, Kamchatka, with two intermediate landings; from there across the Bering sea and along the Aleutian islands—and the Alaskan shore, with stops at Seward, and then down to Yakovlev and Seattle. At the latter city he will change his sea port-towns for landing gear and proceed to San Francisco, after which he hopes to fly to the National Capital to deliver to President Hoover a message of good will from Japan. Yoshikawa's plane is a light all-metal Junkers with open cockpit and no radio.

The huge German seaplane DO-X, which started for South America months ago and was hit up by a fire on its way again and at last accounts had reached Bolama, Portuguese Guinea.

FULL recognition has been extended by the United States to the dual kingdom of Haïti and Santo and its dependencies on the Arabian peninsula. After years of warfare, the dual kingdom is now ruled by the Sand. It encompasses an area of about 700,000 square miles with a population of less than 5,000,000.

Machines That Are Almost Human

By E. C. TAYLOR

THE Great Brass Brain IN THE office of the United States coast and geodetic survey in Washington is a "thinking machine" that in seven hours does the work of fifty to one hundred mathematicians working continuously for a year.

It is called the Great Brass Brain by scientists. Its task is to predict the tides for 4,500 ports of the world, and it predicts these tides for a year ahead, in less than an average working day for man.

The Great Brass Brain does this work with absolute accuracy; its mechanical computations are rapidly completed without the possibility of error—to which human computers would be subject.

This marvel of scientific achievement stands six feet high. It is eleven feet long and two feet wide. Upon this labor-saving device depends the safety of American shipping throughout the world.

In figuring out tides for a year in advance, thirty-seven factors enter into each computation. The tide rises and falls 1,400 times a year at any given place on the earth. The Great Brass Brain not only figures them out, but in its calculations it provides against all variants, such as spring tides and neap tides, and tells the exact height to which the waterway will be expected to rise or fall.

Once each year, when the United States coast and geodetic survey prepares to issue its annual guide for mariners, the wheels of the Great Brass Brain are set in motion, and before the day is ended there is ready for the printing presses the most exact information as to how the tides will perform during the coming year in 800 principal ports of the world and 3,500 secondary ports.

The result of the Great Brass Brain's work gives mariners all the information about tides that they could require for a year to come, and keeps many a vessel from becoming stranded on a shoal because of low water as it makes for port.

The Great Brass Brain can delve a hundred years into the future, or go back centuries into the past if called upon, and accurately answer any mathematical question concerning the future or ancient times. It can tell exactly how high the tide will be at New York, New Orleans or San Francisco in 2151, or whether there was high tide when the Spanish Armada set forth to conquer the world.

One of the household legends of American history recently was blasted by the Great Brass Brain. Historians of the American Revolution generally accepted the legend that tides held back the British army long enough to give Paul Revere a chance to complete his thrilling ride, on which he called the Minute Men to arms and made it possible for the American colonists to launch their war for independence.

Seekers after exact facts failed to find any documentary evidence to substantiate the legend that the waters of the sea helped Paul Revere, and that small phase of American history became clouded with doubt.

So the Great Brass Brain was consulted. It was asked whether the British army, that left Boston at eleven o'clock that historic night, and crossed to East Cambridge, Mass., were held there until two o'clock in the morning because the tide was against them and they could not continue their march against the colonists.

Even Henry W. Longfellow's poem, "The Rime of Paul Revere," contained this legend. Did Providence take a hand? Historians wanted to know. The Great Brass Brain quickly disposed of the myth. Providence didn't help Paul Revere at all, the "thinking machine" proved. The machine's wheels whirled, and out came the answer that instead of the tides retarding the British army, they were most favorable for their continued advance on to Concord between eleven o'clock that night and two o'clock the next morning.

Insane San Medicine Man The tribal medicine man has been condemned by one Indian organization in Alaska. The Alaska Native Brotherhood, in session at Ketchikan, adopted resolutions against fortune tellers and all sorts of witchcraft as practiced by Indians anywhere. The resolutions adopted followed: "Whereas, the Alaska Native Brotherhood opposes the practices of all old customs, which are fakes and injure our people, we affirm at this time that the alleged profession of Indian doctors, medicine men, witchcraft and fortune telling are pure fakes; "Be it ordered by this convention that it shall be unlawful for any member of the brotherhood to visit such fakers, even for fun or curiosity."

Crickets Eat Medicine Crickets are more skillful, in some respects, than master violinists, for they can play in a fifth of a second notes that a human fiddler can reach only by sliding the finger far down on the B string, and the insect repeats the feat four times at every stroke of its "bow," says "Popular Mechanics" Magazine. Dr. Frank E. Lutz and W. E. Hicks, of the American Museum of Natural History, recently isolated in the production of a "chirp" of a particular cricket and learned many interesting things about the famous musical musician.

"I'M going, anyway"

THE modern Miss needs no "time out" for the time of month. If you've ever taken Bayer Aspirin for a headache, you know how soon the pain subsides. It is just as effective in the relief of those pains peculiar to women!

Don't dedicate certain days of every month to suffering. It's old-fashioned. It's unnecessary. Aspirin will always enable you to carry on in comfort. Take enough to assure your complete comfort. If it is genuine aspirin it cannot possibly hurt you. Bayer Aspirin does not depress the heart. It does not upset the stomach. It does nothing but stop the pain.

Headaches come at inconvenient times. So do colds. But a little Bayer Aspirin will always save the day. A throat sore you can hardly swallow is made comfortable with one good gargle made from these tablets. Neuralgia. Neuritis. Rheumatism. Pains that once kept Couple's "Carrying On" Not an Unmixed Evil It was shortly after Lady Astor was put on the spot for romancing the so-called "British Bessie" that she stated it as her opinion that England was too much tied up by moth-eaten conventions.

"England is too prudish, both in its government and in its daily life. Too much convention brings dullness. I overheard a rather dignified man say to his wife: "Nelly, just look at the way Miss B is carrying on with that married man. It's simply awful!"

"Yes," admitted his young wife, "but what a blessing they are carrying on. It would be intolerably dull here without them."

Sympathetic The ingenious uses offered by small children to escape work are always amusing and often instructive. Take the case of little Marcus of Brooklyn for example: "Marcus, why didn't you finish sawing that wood?" asked his mother.

"I just couldn't, mamma," the little fellow replied. "The poor saw had the toothache."

When Travel Was Cheap Travel by foot in the early 1800s certainly was inexpensive if the 900-mile journey of Elisha Barrell of Hartford, Washington county, New York is taken as a criterion. Barrell in 1826 walked from Gouverneur to his home in 15 days at an expense of $2.42. This was exclusive of liquor he bought en route. One overnight stop cost him only 18 cents.

Healthy Town New Hampton, N. H., is a healthful town to live in. According to the town report just published, the youngest person who died in 1930 was seventy-one years of age, the oldest was eighty-five years and the average age of the nine deaths reported was seventy-seven years.

Stomach Troubles Headache and Dizziness If your stomach is sick, you are sick all over. If you can't digest your food you lose strength, get nervous and feel as tired when you get up as when you went to bed.

For 10 years Tania has restored to health and activity many thousands who suffered just as you do. Mr. Daniel Vinciguerra, of 6200 Stiles St., Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have not had a dizzy spell or a headache since taking Tania. My nerves are in better shape and I can enjoy a good night's sleep."

Let Tania help you too. It corrects the most obstinate digestive troubles—relieves gas, pains in the stomach and bowels, restores appetite, vigor and sound sleep. Tania is made of roots, bark and herbs. Costs less than 2 cents a dose. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

Good Business "Why is it that you encourage all of your clerks to get married?" "Well, I find that married men are not in such an awful rush to get home early as the single ones."—Hummel, Hamburg.

Soothes restless, wakeful CHILD

THERE are times when a baby is too fretful or feverish to be soothed to sleep. There are some pains a mother cannot get away. But there's no time when any baby can't have the quick comfort of Castoria! A few drops, and your little one is soon at ease—back to sleep almost before you can blink away.

Remember this harmless, pure vegetable preparation when children are ailing. Don't stop its use when Baby has been brought safely through the ages of colic, diarrhea, and other infantile ills. Give good old Castoria until your children are in their usual Whenever coated tongue tell of constipation when there's any sign of sluggishness.

Just give them a more liberal dose. Castoria is so pleasant-tasting, all children love to take it. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature and this name-plate:

What About Silver?

After a sleep of 30 years, silver, not thus far as a partisan issue but as a matter of economic concern, gives signs of waking up. The recent International Chamber of Commerce at Washington discussed it at some length and adopted a resolution asking that the subject be studied with a view to restoring the value of silver to something approaching the normal, and Senator Borah, a day or two later, in a talk over the radio, pointed out the extent to which the universal demonetization of silver had been responsible for the world-wide depression in business. What it means, the Senator said is that the purchasing power of two-thirds the population of the globe has in effect been cut in half. It begins to look as if silver might divide the honors with wheat as a topic of debate in the halls of Congress at its next session.

Evidence is beginning to accumulate which indicates that the political enemies of President Hoover are over-reaching themselves in their "Smear Hoover" activities, and a reaction in the President's favor is apparent.

In many newspapers independent in politics protests are appearing against the ceaseless criticism and abuse of the President and protests undoubtedly voice an increasing public sentiment.

Just because a man happens to be President of the United States is no reason why he should be maligned and traduced.

27,605 Chevrolets

Prominent among the thousands of concerns using large fleets of Chevrolets are many of the leaders of American industry. In fact, 73 outstanding business firms have purchased a total of 27,605 Chevrolet cars and trucks.

The reason for this preference lies in the unexcelled economy of Chevrolet cars and trucks, as proved by official cost records. These records show that 20 miles to the gallon is a common occurrence among Chevrolet cars. That oil expense is extremely low. That Chevrolet cars and trucks require only a minimum of service attention. That they give satisfactory low-cost service over exceptionally long periods of time.

Naturally, a car with such a fine record of economy represents an extremely wise investment for any buyer! Especially so, when you consider the many advantages that Chevrolet offers above and beyond economical operation. Come in and learn what those advantages are—what they mean in terms of style, comfort, safety, reliability and value.

NOTICE OF CONTEST

Department of the Interior
U. S. Land Office at Las Cruces, N. M.
May 8, 1931

To Edward J. Murphy, Gran Quivira, N. M., nearest land, Care Forest Service, Santa Fe, N. M., Contestee—

You are hereby notified that Juan Farmer, who gives Carrizozo, N. M. as his post-office address, did on January 26, 1931, file in this office his duly corroborated application to contest and secure the cancellation of your Homestead Entry No. 038802, Serial No. 038802, made Feb'y. 12, 1929, for All Sec. 28, Twp. 2 S., Range 10 E., N. M. P. Meridian, and as grounds for his contest he alleges that said entryman has never established residence upon said land; that he has not placed any improvements thereon, and has wholly abandoned said entry, and that said defaults exist at the date of filing this contest.

He glanced at the clock across the lobby. It was just after nine. "The place will be locked up, all right, but there'll be a watchman at the door who'll let us in. That makes it all the better because we'll have the place to ourselves."

She looked so pitiful as she thanked him that it was hard to refrain from kissing her then and there. He did it, however, and, guessing from the way she huddled down in the corner of the seat in the taxicab which conveyed them down town that she didn't want to be made love to, he went on restraining even from trying to get possession of one of her hands.

The watchman was an old friend of Martin's and he let them in without comment, though not without a good deal of visible curiosity. They climbed the stairs in silence. He led the way into the floorom, pulled a chain that flooded the room with a glare of cold white light, and after not more than two minutes' search, pulled out a manila folder that had the name "Walter Whitehouse-McFarland" written across the face of it. He laid it on the table, moved up a chair for her, and was on the point of withdrawing to leave her to herself when she reached out a hand and drew him back to her. "I want you to read it, too," she said. "Do you mind, Martin?"

He didn't wonder when the brutal headlines above these old newspaper cuttings assaulted his eyes that to the girl the thing had been a nightmare. What he marveled at was her courage in confronting it now and being willing to share it with him. He experienced a strange jumble of emotions during the silent hour that it took them to read all the contents of that file.

One of the earliest to assail him, and one of the most disconcerting, was a monetary disgust for his own profession. Here was the material that they had gathered to make up the life story of a man; a man who had lived to be fifty years old and had devoted those years, with an extraordinary singleness of mind, to useful service. And yet, except for a few minor clippings, a casual article here or there regarding papers that he'd read before learned societies, studies of chemical processes, modest announcements of discoveries, the whole content of the file concerned itself with what might or might not have happened during a ride on the train from Chicago to California; whether or not an acquaintance he had formed with a girl in an attempt to relieve her apparent distress had resulted in a sexual intimacy. And, at that, the verdict of the jury had been that it had not so resulted. Yet the doubt that remained in the public mind after the verdict of the jury had been brought in had been enough to ruin the man's career, to force his resignation from the university, to drive him into hiding for the last four years of his broken life. The newspapers had done it and they had done it without transgressing their own code. The story of a college professor indicted and brought to trial under the Mann act was legitimately entitled according to current standards to just such headlines and pictures and editorial comment as this story had received. It made Martin feel pretty sick.

Well, there was no help for anybody in thinking thoughts like that.

They were diverted by a picture included in one of the clippings of the girl then called Clara Bowman, who had been the principal witness of the trial. She was unmistakably Claire, despite the dark hair that was piled high on top of her head.

"Rhoda," she asked, "how did you know who she was? How did you know what she was saying to Forster? We couldn't hear a sound through the glass."

A smile flickered across her face. The first he'd seen there in a long while. "I forgot," she explained. "It seemed like listening to me. I can read lips, you see. Martin dear, don't you remember long ago at the Alhambra, how I saw you ask me if I didn't want to be rescued? And you asked me afterward how I knew the exact words you said, and I laughed and told you it was telepathy? I lost some of it tonight, of course, when they turned their faces away. But whenever I could see their faces I could hear just as well as if I'd been in the room."

He sat silent for a while after that, not exactly thinking, but enjoying the savor of the term of endearment she had unconsciously used. When his mind got back on the rails he took up the link in Forster's explanation, which he had been conscious of not stragglating out at the time. Forster made it.

"What the old man had said about the contract seemed straight enough, and squared with the facts as Martin knew them. If Rhoda's father had died, as apparently he had, before completing his story, it was obvious that the contract was of no value. Claire, though, apparently thought it was valuable. There seemed to be no doubt that it was the thing she'd been trying all along to steal. It wasn't incredible that if Forster knew she'd failed to get it (since he knew in whose hands it actually was) he might have offered her a hundred thousand dollars for it in pure malice, as he said. But Forster did think that it was Claire who'd stolen Rhoda's trunk, and unless Rhoda's observation had been correct, he had had his trunk while he waited to see whether she would rise to his bait or not.

He knew the contract wasn't in the trunk. But didn't he believe that something else was, something that he wanted very much, something, perhaps, he felt he couldn't be happy without?

That seemed highly probable to Martin. Why, unless there was something among her father's papers that he wanted, had he spent all those weeks advertising for Rhoda? Why had he sent his man Conley to run down the tip Babe Jennings had given him over the telephone? Why had he himself taken the trouble to lie in wait outside the studio in order to identify Rhoda for himself and find out where she worked?

The only answer Martin could see to all these questions was that Forster believed Rhoda had something he wanted. He looked up at her doubtfully, torn between his impatience to examine the contents of that little trunk tonight and his reluctance, after all she'd been through today, to subject her to any more experiences, possibly harrowing. To his surprise he found her looking at him, with eyes alight and a faint flush of color in her cheeks.

"Martin," she asked, "will you do something for me tonight? I know it's getting late and you must be tired."

"I'll do anything," he said. "Rhoda dearest, you know I will. Any possible thing that you want me to do."

"What I want to do," she said, "is to write the whole story tonight: what they did to father six years ago, Forster and Stafford and Claire, so that it can be in tomorrow's paper." The look in his face must have answered her, for at that point she broke off to ask incredulously, "Why not? Martin, do you mean you won't even write it tomorrow?"

"I can't write it," he said. "Or if I did the boss would kill it."

"Why?" she asked blankly.

"It isn't news. News is what happened today. If there's a peg to hang it on you can go back. But there's only one peg I can think of strong enough to hold that story: if we could go before the grand jury and get Forster and Claire indicted for conspiracy. But I don't believe we could get the state's attorney to listen to it. Claire couldn't testify against Forster without incriminating herself, and he couldn't testify against her without incriminating himself, so the fact that they hate each other doesn't do us any good. And the go-between is dead. If we ran the story without something definite like that to hang it on we'd be in for a million-dollar libel suit before night. His shooting her would make it news if she'd talk; but she won't. She's got him—as long as she keeps still."

Rhoda didn't protest nor argue the matter with him, but he saw the light die in her eyes and the color fade out of her cheeks again. He struggled miserably on for a while with his explanation, but he could see it was nothing but words to her, words hardly worth listening to. She asked him at last not to talk about it any more; told him she understood and said she wanted to go home.

She helped to gather up the scattered contents of the file and as he was putting it back in the drawer she patted him on the shoulder and told him not to mind.

"I think there must be some other way," he told her hesitatingly, "of doing the thing we want to do; of setting your father's memory right before the world. I think I've got the beginning of a hunch how it can be done. I'm hoping for light on it tomorrow when we go through that trunk. Rhoda dear, don't worry any more about it tonight. You're all in and you're half starved. Let's go somewhere and have a good dinner."

"I don't want to go to a restaurant," she told him flatly. "I want to go home."

"All right," he agreed, and they started down the long flight of stairs in silence. But before they got within range of the night watchman at the door she stopped and faced him.

"I don't know why I'm so beautiful," she said. "I suppose it's because I'm trying not to cry. I'll go anywhere you like, Martin." She gave him a rueful heart-twisting little smile as she said it, but she walked straight on without giving him a chance to kiss her.

It was with a notion of giving the old watchman a tip, as he sometimes did, that he put his hand into his pocket and thus made the disconcerting discovery that he was penniless. So, out on the sidewalk as they were looking up the street for a taxi, he asked Rhoda, rather dimly, if she could lend him any money. He'd given his last dollar to the taxi driver who'd brought them here.

But she told him, with a monetary flicker of amusement in her eyes, that she had given her last dollar to a taxi driver that afternoon. She searched her purse, however, and announced a hundred and six cents. "If you've got a dime," she concluded, "we can ride in the street car. And if you haven't we can walk."

He hadn't a dime but denounced a walk as nonsense. They'd take a taxi, he said, and he'd go in and get some money. That was what he should have done in the first place.

They didn't precisely quarrel over this, though she insisted on walking home and had her way.

He knew she didn't mean to be unfriendly. She even slipped her hand within his arm as they walked along, and left it there. But, even so, she felt a million miles away. They tried to talk, but gave it up. And by the time they got to the street door of the studio building, the silence between them had become a palpable oppressive thing.

She asked him now, in a strictly neutral voice, whether he was coming in.

"I'll go up with you to your own door," he said, and they climbed the two long flights of stairs side by side without another word.

There was a light shining through the crack under the studio door and they could hear Babe in there talking to somebody. But Rhoda had her key in her hand and she thrust it into the lock and swung the door open without even a momentary pause for a private farewell on the landing. Martin stepped aside. He wouldn't go in.

But in the instant that Rhoda pushed open the door the man to whom Babe had been talking spoke, and at the sound of his voice Rhoda stopped as if she'd been suddenly frozen. The man's voice broke off. Babe, who sat where she could see through the doorway, said, "Here they are," and Rhoda came to life again in a surprising way. She stung herself upon Martin like a child at the sight of an ogre. Martin heard her say in a broken voice, "It's Uncle William! Martin, don't—don't let him . . ."

"I'll Go Up With You to Your Own Door, Anyhow," He Said.

Martin's arms came around her and pulled her closer still, and as he gazed over her head at Babe's astounded face, he whispered to Rhoda, "Don't you worry, darling. He can't do anything to you now. You're engaged to me."

CHAPTER XIV

What Was in the Trunk

Rhoda's sob of assent to this perhaps unique proposal of marriage marked the end of her moment of panic. She walked into the room steadily enough, though still in the embrace of Martin's right arm. And under the now startled gaze of their rather unaccountable visitor, how he'd managed to find her despite Forster's refusal this afternoon to tell him where she lived wasn't so puzzling as the consciousness that she'd seen him somewhere, without knowing who he was, only a little while ago. Even this minor bewilderment was not what kept her rooted to the rug while Babe was stammering out a superfluous introduction (Babe's scrambled condition

Scientists Baffled by Great Mystery of Life?

"What is your life?" asks St. James. He answers it thus: "It is even a vapor that appeareth for a little time and then vanisheth away." The life spoken of here is the individual existence, the mortal life, and not the general life, the life principle. Nevertheless, the definition is interesting and suggestive.

"Life, the shadow of death," as Swinburne says, but then he was a poet. Another poet sings of life as "a blunder and a shame." One of the ancients who held that there was no difference between life and death was asked why, in that case, he did not die. "Because," he replied, "it does make no difference." The final verse of the last Psalm reads: "Let us try to understand that both breath praise the Lord." This seems to identify life with breath, which surely is a "vapor," to use the word of St. James. Our

Popular Egotism

There is an egotism worn in direct contact with the eyelids, but it is worn only to radiate a condition known as heretofore, a social deference of the nerves. It is worn with extreme delicacy and is not practical for correction of ordinary errors of refraction.

was due, of course, to what she'd seen through the doorway) and he, pompous yet a little embarrassed, stood waiting, apparently, for a welcome appropriate to long-lost uncles. The really astonishing thing was that he wasn't an ogre at all. He wasn't much taller than Martin, and he had perfectly normal, human-looking eyes and teeth. Why had she ever been afraid of him?

It wasn't until she heard Martin murmur again, "It's all right, darling," that she released herself from his arm, said, "How do you do, Uncle William," and went up (and shook hands with him. She thought he expected to be kissed but she couldn't manage that.

He said, heavily, "How do you do, my dear. I'm very glad to have found you at last. I thought this afternoon that I must expect a long search, but this evening just after . . . I saw you in the lobby of the Worcester hotel and heard this man call you Rhoda. There was enough of your mother's look about you so that I called up the telephone number I had heard you give him . . . (Yes, that was who it was, of course. The man who'd been looking at the telephone directory when she and Martin were calling up Babe to tell her they were all right.) "So I took the liberty of coming here and waiting for you, late as it was. I felt it was important that I see you at once."

"I'm glad you did," Rhoda told him, not in the manner in which one says something polite but as if she really meant it. She dimly remembered something about him and thought she had an idea. "You're a lawyer, aren't you?" she asked.

He seemed a little surprised at the question but answered stiffly, "Yes, that is my profession."

"Well then," said Rhoda, "you're just the person we want. You see, Martin and I . . ." She broke off there to remedy an omission by introducing the two men in due form. After they'd shaken hands, a strictly non-committal ceremony on both sides, Rhoda went on, "You see, Martin and I have just found out what really happened to my father—before his trial, I mean—that made him leave the university."

Uncle William's reception of this statement was not encouraging. He began to look a little more like the ogre Rhoda remembered. "That is not a matter for discussion," he boomed. "Certainly not now."

But Rhoda was no longer a little girl of twelve. "It's got to be discussed," she contradicted him crisply, "and now is the best time to do it. Martin's a reporter but he says the paper can't print the true story, even though we know it's true, unless we have Mr. Forster indicted."

"Forster indicted!" Uncle William exploded. "C. J. Forster? Perfect nonsense! What has Forster to do with it?"

"It won't seem so much like nonsense," Rhoda said, "when you know what he's got to with it. Tell him, Martin."

Uncle William's attitude and gesture showed that he meant to protest, but before he could speak Martin cut in.

"Forster admitted to Rhoda and me this evening that the whole case against her father was a frame-up. The woman was planted on the train and instructed to pretend she'd lost her ticket in order to trick Professor McFarland into paying her fare. He fell for the trick but he didn't fall for her. She admits that herself. But she went ahead, under instructions, and perjured herself on the stand. Forster's motive was to force Professor McFarland's resignation from the university so that he'd come to work for him, which is what happened."

Forster never paid the woman the money he promised her. And it was her quarrel with him that enabled us to find out about it. That's the bones of the story. It would take an hour to give you all the details, but we've got them and we'll furnish you with them whenever you like—now or later."

Rhoda's gaze from the time Martin had begun speaking had been fixed upon her uncle's face. She'd seen him wilt; she'd have said he actually sagged and spread a little, like a party deflated balloon tire. But before her lover had finished speaking he managed somehow to pump himself up again.

Days of Regret and Joy

Mary E. Hazelton in her book, "Anniversaries and Holidays" says: "The calendar includes 77 holidays, special days, seasonal festivals and holidays, without counting the feast days of the saints or commemorative and statehood days, which in some countries and states are observed as holidays; the former are counted with the names of persons, of whom there are 500; the latter with events, of which there are 330; a total of 1,100 calendar entries, an average of three and a half for every day."

Fervent Search

The bite of a box constructor is not poisonous. The danger of this snake lies, as its name suggests, in its power to wrap itself around its victim and strangle him to death.

He said now, in his booming voice, "I don't want the details at this or at any time. There's no possible good to be gained by raking up that old story. And it could do harm in more ways than one. The scandal hurt the university at the time. It's forgotten now, and president of the board of trustees, which I happen to be, I should be unwilling to see it revived."

"Revived!" Rhoda blazed at him. "We aren't going to revive it; we're going to kill it. We're going to prove that it wasn't true."

"You're going to attempt to prove that it wasn't true," Uncle William answered, "and that, my dear child, is a very difficult thing. Your father is dead. Technically there is no stain on his character, since the jury acquitted him. Any attempt to go beyond that, even if there were no other aspects of the affair to be considered, would be most unwise."

Rhoda, turning desperately away from him, saw a harbor and went to it, in Babe's arms. She heard what William Royce went on saying, but with no other emotion than a passionate wish that he would stop talking. "Your father wrote to me shortly before his death requesting me to take care of you and look after your interests. I couldn't find you at that time. The management of the hotel where you had lived informed me that you had gone to live with friends in Denver. I assumed you were in good hands and there seemed to be nothing more for me to do in the matter until I saw recently in a San Francisco paper an advertisement for your whereabouts. Seeing that, I came to the conclusion that a certain contract which your father had enclosed with his letter might have a value for you, and that you ought to be found."

"Good lord!" Martin exclaimed. "Do you mean to say you've got the contract that everybody has been trying to steal? Did you see Forster this afternoon and tell him you had it?"

"I refer," said Uncle William majestically, "to a contract which my late brother-in-law entered into with C. J. Forster. I was speaking to my niece. I cannot see that it concerns you in any way."

"Everything that concerns Rhoda concerns me," Martin told him. "She and I are engaged to be married."

"Humph!" snorted Uncle William. He was a perfectly terrible person. Martin didn't wonder that poor Rhoda had changed her name and hidden herself away from him like a frightened little rabbit. Martin could see him now—majestically pausing before he hurled a thunderbolt.

"If," he said, "your matrimonial intentions toward my niece are in any way predicated upon your knowledge of the existence of that contract, I think it only right to tell you that it is of small value and doubtful validity."

"That's what Forster told us this evening," Martin observed. "He said he had told you that it wasn't worth a nickel."

"I'll have no more of this impertinence," Uncle William roared. "You can't marry my niece. She's still a minor, and I shall never consent . . ."

"Look here," Martin interrupted him, "we don't like each other at all, but there's no good in our quarrelling unless we have something to quarrel about. And unless you're Rhoda's legal guardian I can't see that we have. Are you?"

"I'm her natural guardian," said Uncle William.

"Not her legal one, then," Martin observed. But as he turned to Rhoda he saw a panic awake once more in her eyes. "We won't have any more of this tonight," he went on. "Rhoda's had a terrible day, and she's come clear to the end of it. I'm going to ask Babe to put her to bed at once. I'll go back with you to your hotel and put you abreast of the situation."

This was a Napoleonic move. Babe came into action instantly. Before he finished speaking she was leading Rhoda toward the little stairway that went up to the loft where their bedrooms were.

Martin followed along to the foot of the stairs. "She's not to get up in the morning," he told Babe as if he were a doctor giving a nurse instructions about an unconscious patient, "at least not until late. I'll come around some time after ten with the documents and we'll go down to the baggage master and get her trunk."

Then, ceasing to treat Rhoda as if she were unconscious, he kissed her and she heard him murmur, his lips so close to her ear that it tickled, "Don't you worry, darling. The hatch is coming along all right. You leave Uncle William to me."

Evidently Martin was the right sort of person to leave him to. Her last glimpse from the balcony was of her uncle, smoldering and fuming like Vesuvius getting ready for an eruption but going out just the same through the door Martin held open, obedient after all.

When Rhoda really waked up the next morning—rather a long process after an unusually solid night's sleep—she felt very alert and sensible. She didn't precisely regret her childish terror of the night before, since it had brought out once more what a peck Martin was. She didn't believe he liked her the less for it, either. He was like that. He understood things. But her line with him when he came this morning to take her down to the station and get the trunk must be one of sturdy common sense. Above all she must let him see instantly that she took their pretended engagement as a brilliantly clever maneuver for outwitting Uncle William and nothing else. It would be terrible if he were able to think for a single instant that she thought that he meant it seriously.

MOTHERS ARE LEARNING USES OF MAGNESIA

From the beginning of expectancy until baby is weaned, Phillips' Milk of Magnesia performs the greatest service for many women. It relieves nausea, heartburn, "morning sickness," inclination to vomit; helps digestion. Its mild laxative action assures regular bowel movement.

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is better than lime water for neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding.

All drugstores have Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in generous 25c and 50c bottles. Always insist on the genuine, endorsed by physicians for 50 years.

Sore Love, Sour Honey

Love and Honey came into the life of Harry Somersfield but, apparently, he objected to their manner of arrival. Elmer Love and Haycraft Honey were in Love's car when it collided with Somersfield's. All three men alighted.

"Love," testified Somersfield, "hit me in the jaw, and Honey kicked me."—Washington Star.

COLLEGE CONNECTION

"You say you were once connected with a college—Were you a tutor?"
"Yes, I tutored a horn once for 'de football rooters!"

The One Exception

"We see no friends, we go nowhere." Complained poor Mrs. Beath.

Unbelief

"What are you going to tell your wife kept you away from home so late?"

"The truth, I was working hard on a business deal."

"Will she believe you?"
"Certainly not. She'd rather believe what she reads about husbands in the comic papers."

The Thinking Woman

"George, if you buy a motor car, I'll be able to save such a lot of money this summer."

"How do you make that out?"
"Well, you see, if we go to one seaside resort, as formerly, I'll need seven dresses; but if you buy the car we can go to seven resorts, and I'll need only one dress."

JESUS PREPARING FOR THE END

GOLDEN TEXT—And he took bread, and gave thanks, and brake it, and gave unto them, saying, This is my body which is given for you; this do in remembrance of me.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 22:7-30.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Wants Us to Remember Him.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How We Can Remember Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Meaning of the Lord's Supper.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Meaning of the Lord's Supper.

I. The Last Passover (vv. 7-13).

1. The Passover prepared (vv. 7-13).
a. Peter and John sent to prepare the Passover (v. 8). As the time had arrived for the killing of the Passover, Jesus commanded these disciples to make ready for it.

b. The disciples' inquiry (v. 9). They inquired of Jesus as to where they should prepare the Passover. The true disciple is not only ready to do the Lord's bidding, but anxious to know exactly his will.

c. The Master's strange directions (vv. 10-12). They were to go into the city where they would meet a man bearing a pitcher of water. The usual custom was for the women to carry the water. This unusual occurrence would make it easier for them to find the man. He assured them that they would then be shown a large upper room furnished.

d. The obedience of the disciples (v. 13). They did as Jesus directed them. They did not stop to question the sanity of the command but, as true disciples, obeyed.

2. The Passover eaten (vv. 14-18).
a. By whom (v. 14). Those who sat down to this last Passover Feast were the Master and the twelve apostles.

b. Jesus' words unto the disciples (vv. 15-18).
(1) "I have desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer" (v. 15). He greatly desired to show them the meaning of the passion through which he was to go.

(2) "I will not any more eat thereof until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God" (v. 16). His death was the antitypical fulfillment of the Passover.

(3) "Take this cup and drink it among yourselves" (v. 17, 18). By the token of the cup the disciples were partaking of his shed blood. Drinking anew in the kingdom of God does not mean that in heaven this service will be renewed, but that it was symbolic of the heavenly reality.

II. The Feast of the New Covenant Instituted (vv. 19, 20).
This feast took place at the close of the paschal supper.

1. The bread a symbol of Christ's body (v. 19). As bread nourishes and strengthens our bodies, so Christ is food to our spiritual nature. Unless our souls feed upon Christ, we shall perish.

2. The cup a symbol of Christ's blood (v. 20). This was symbolic of the atonement which was made by the shedding of his blood on Calvary's cross. He said, "This cup is the new testament in my blood which was shed for you," indicating that each one must personally accept the atonement made by the shedding of his blood.

III. The Wicked Behavior at the Feast (vv. 21-27).
1. The treachery of Judas (vv. 21-23).
a. The time of its manifestation (v. 21). It was while they were eating the last Passover that Jesus made the announcement of the betrayal, perhaps that Judas might be given an opportunity at this last moment to repent.

b. The betrayal was by the deliberate counsel of God (v. 22 Cf. Acts 2:23). Nothing takes place by chance. Even the sinful acts of wicked men come within the permissive province of God. This does not, however, lessen the guilt of sinners, for Jesus said, "Woe unto the man by whom he is betrayed."

c. The sorrowful question (v. 24). The disciples did not seem to suspect one another but made the question a personal one.

2. The selfish ambition of the disciples (vv. 24-27). In this tragic hour the disciples were so concerned with the thought of position that they were striving among themselves as to who should be the greatest.

IV. The Apostles' Place in the Kingdom (vv. 28-30).
Jesus assured them that those who continued with him in his trials would be appointed a place in the Kingdom which would entitle them to eat and drink at his table and sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel.

In the Redeemer's Debt

Last Saturday afternoon a large and excited crowd assembled in front of the Wetmore Apartments. When the news reached the bakery, Joe Trimble turned over a vat of dough, Roy Shafer tore the tail off his long, blue ulster, Bill Mendenhall lost one of his shoes and the Outlook man lost a package of mail. The cause for this nervous tension was that baby Peggy Crowe had cut her first tooth. How would you like to have been under barber Crowe's razor at the time? The unfortunate one, (not mentioning his name,) was having his hair groomed and afterwards you would think that one of Billy Ferguson's road graders had run through his scalp.
