Get the Health Clinic Habit

Does your baby do what he should? Are you feeding it so as to give it the best foundation for future years, or are you satisfied that the baby is not sick now? Are you training him to habits of neatness and independence, of self-helpfulness and good health?

The County Nurse, Miss Egbert, will be in her office every Saturday morning, up stairs in the Court House. She likes to know the babies; to help the mothers care for them by weighing, inspecting and giving books on child care.

So many mothers wait until troubles begin with their children and then worry, instead of preventing those troubles.

BRING your baby every month and your pre-school child twice a year.

More than three-fourths of school children have physical defects. A large percentage of the diseases of childhood are easily and cheaply prevented.

Come and visit your Health Office! A cordial invitation is extended to all the County! You of the Woman's Club who were instrumental in starting a nursing service—you taxpayers who make possible a continuation of such a service. Come and get acquainted with the health situation in your County. Your visit will be of interest to you and an inspiration to the Nurse.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Skinner left the first of the week for El Paso where Mrs. Skinner will visit for a week or two days with her daughter Frances. Roy returned Wednesday evening on 12.

Injured for Life in Automobile Crash

Little Gertrude Gault, 10-year old niece of Mrs. J. K. Such of this place, was the victim of a taxicab crash last week in San Diego, Calif., in which the child had one of her eyes put out and the other so badly injured that scant hopes are entertained for saving that member.

The victim of the crash was a member of Flynne O'Malley's Hollywood Starlets, juvenile dancers. She is now in a hospital where one of her eyes has been removed in an operation and efforts are being made to save the other, says the San Diego Union. The little Miss had been attending rehearsals since school closed and was preparing to go on a tour with the above company during the vacation period, but the accident may incapacitate the child for life.

This office is in receipt of word from Prof. J. M. Helm, of whom mention is made in another place in this paper. A card was written from San Bernardino, after he, in company with Miss Gleneth English, had gone through the Grand Canyon and over the desert, reaching the above-named city on June 16. The Professor stated that they would dine in Long Beach the night the advice was forwarded. He also stated that their trip was very pleasant and they had but a slight amount of car trouble.

To Fred Lalone of Sierra Madre, Cal.—We would like to know who you're bettin' on—Stribling or Schmelting?

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Van Huss of Midland, Texas, and sons Buddy and Bill are here for a visit with the Dewey Stokes family. Mrs. Van Huss is a sister to Mrs. Stokes. They will leave the last of the week for home.

Mrs. Joe Trimble, children, Moureen and Billy Jean and Miss Mable Champaign came over from Artesia this week. Mrs. Trimble to join her husband at the Carrizozo Bakery and make this place her home, while Miss Champaign will visit the folks for a short time.

DON'T FORGET the big celebration at Fort Stanton on July 4th. Tune up yourself, the family and the car and be there!

Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Hickey and L. A. Whitaker spent two days this week at the Will Ed Harris ranch above town.

Wayne Van Schoyck and Chas. Littell were visitors from White Oaks Sunday.

Old Printer Pays a Visit to Ghost City

O. B. Upson, veteran printer now employed by the Denver Post, paid a visit to this part of the state recently, according to the Albuquerque Tribune and after expressing his surprise at the improvement in the Duke City after an absence of 40 years, turned his attention to the town of White Oaks and said that he could recall it as a thriving mining town in years gone by, but on visiting the old place, he found nothing left but memories of better days. The only ones left whom he once knew, were Judge John Y. Hewitt, former legislator and Ah New, who once conducted a restaurant.

Have Proper Lighting in Living Room

Efficient Light for Reading.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

How often one goes into a home which is nicely furnished, well-arranged, and comfortable except for the lighting?

The cause of good modern lighting is to have your light concentrated where it illuminates what you want to see.

Slip Covers for Chairs, Good Protection

Slip covers are attractive on bedroom chairs at any time. They protect the upholstery from dust and hard wear and provide variety in the room's decoration.

Helpful Suggestions for Homemakers

By NELLIE MAXWELL

It has been said that a man is known by absorption, meaning that we can tell the quality and type of any one's life by the things he allows to absorb him.

To restore a white spot caused from heat, on a polished surface, rub lightly with alcohol.

In washing linoleum add a little vinegar to the water; it removes any grease that plain washing will not.

A salad may be made more attractive by dipping the fluted edges of the lettuce leaves into paprika.

When gum gets on the furniture, cover with a blotter and press with a hot iron.

To remove varnish and paint from woodwork add two tablespoonfuls of lye to one quart of thick starch.

When food burns on granite or aluminum dishes, fill with cold water, add washing soda and bring to a boil. To keep cheeks fresh, wrap in a cloth moistened with vinegar.

Home-made wall paper cleaner—Take a tablespoonful each of kerosene and salt, two tablespoonfuls of flour, two tablespoonfuls of ammonia and one-half cupful of warm water.

Grandmother's old remedy for colds has not yet been equaled.

To keep starch from sticking when ironing add a bit of lard the size of a pea to a quart of starch while cooking.

When preparing bread for sandwiches cut off the end crust, spread the bread with softened butter, cut off the slice, spread again on the loaf, and cut the next slice, piling up the slices as they are cut.

Sheer Velvet for the Bride's Gown

The amazing sheerness and suppleness of modern velvet speak eloquently in its favor as a medium for the nuptial gown.

The tulle veil falls in classic silhouette from a simple band of pearls. The sleeves are long, almost completely covering the hand and the skirt is made to touch the floor in front, and the train is moderately long.

Machines That Are Almost Human

By E. C. TAYLOR

The Adding Machine

WILLIAM SEWARD BURROUGHS got tired of keeping books. So he studied mechanics, took a hunch in a machine shop and invented one of the most familiar robots, the adding machine.

This robot doesn't resemble a human being in any way, but it performs mathematical computations more rapidly and far more accurately than the human brain.

The chance of error in giving the adding machine its instructions, however, is much less than the chance of error by human beings to whom the task of making the computations might be intrusted.

All business now relies on these robots for adding, subtracting, multiplication, division and tabulation.

Sets of wheels are shifted as keys are punched on the keyboard of the machine. These keys are numbered from 1 to 9, with a tenth key for zero.

Some models can add two or more columns at the same time, also add the totals for all the columns together.

When asked to subtract, some of these robots use complementary numbers on their keyboards; that is, the key number 9 also will have a number 1 on it, and the process of addition is reversed.

The calculating machine, similar to the adding machine but considerably more complicated, is generally used for multiplication and division, because it performs these computations more quickly than does the adding machine.

One type of the calculating robot causes the items in the computation to appear immediately on dials when the keys are depressed, the operation of a crank clearing the figures of the dial faces when the computation is completed.

All four arithmetical operations are performed on this robot as variations of simple arithmetic. But the counting wheels are so arranged that they take short cuts over the simpler adding machine.

On another type of the calculating robot the amounts to be computed are first set up on the keyboard and the operation of the machine either by hand or electric motor effects the calculation.

Some of these machines show the figures to be computed on dials before the computation is made, to guard against human error in submitting the problem to the robot.

Totalling dials show the total in addition, the product in multiplication, the minuend or remainder in subtraction and the quotient in division.

A calculating robot that prints a complete record of all its computations has recently been invented. It prints the factors, figures out and prints the answer and accumulates the total of all the answers with a single operating stroke.

This latest calculating robot is used extensively in business. It keeps books, makes out bills, credits partial payments and keeps an accurate record of balances, doing the work of a corps of bookkeepers, and making no mistakes of its own.

Treasury Issues $800,000,000 Long Term Bonds Because of Big Deficit—Teague Retires From Federal Farm Board.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

Andrew Mellon

THOUGH the United States is popularly supposed to be the richest nation on earth, the government is "up against it"—the "it" meaning a billion dollar deficit, with the prospect of another billion deficit during the next fiscal year.

Other type of stabilization of markets which will come through the long time project of developing a system of co-operative control of agricultural products, which will effect a better control of production and a better control of distribution and thus have an important influence in the stabilization of markets.

REPORTING on the general agricultural situation, the bureau of agriculture economics of the Department of Agriculture shows that American farmers are selling their produce at less than prewar prices, but are paying about one-third more than before the war for the things they buy.

GERMANY is expecting great benefits to result from the remarkable meeting at Chequers, England, of Chancellor Heindrich Brüning and Foreign Minister Jullus Curtius with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and Foreign Minister Arthur Henderson.

THE general assembly of the Presbyterian church, in session at Pittsburgh, rebuked the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America for report of its committee approving of birth control, and adopted a motion instructing the council to "hold its peace on all questions relating to morality and delicacy" until they have been discussed with its constituents.

LAST June Congressman Tinkham of Massachusetts issued a statement about the political activities of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., which the bishop dared him to repeat without benefit of his official immunity.

GOVERNORS of about half the states took part in the annual conferences at French Lick, Ind., and several of them disrupted the program of harmless topics by injecting their own vigorous opinions into their addresses.

C. C. TEAGUE, one of the original members of the federal farm board and its vice chairman, has resigned, having served one more year than he at first intended.

There are two distinct methods of stabilizing markets," he pointed out. "Probably the one that has been emphasized most in publicity has been the stabilization operations on wheat and cotton, which were entirely emergency operations undertaken to meet emergency conditions and which I believe are entirely justified and which will have resulted in benefits to agriculture and business generally far outweighing any cost to the treasury."

"However, in my judgment the greatest benefit will come through another type of stabilization of markets which will come through the long time project of developing a system of co-operative control of agricultural products, which will effect a better control of production and a better control of distribution and thus have an important influence in the stabilization of markets."

Manufacturers of the United States came off more easily than had been expected. Only about 200 items in the tariff against them were altered by the premier. Customs duties were raised on anthracite coal, furniture, oranges and the higher priced automobiles. There was bad news, however, for Americans who have investments in Canadian companies, for Mr. Bennett ordained that, beginning next July an income tax of 2 per cent must be paid by all foreign investors receiving dividends from Canadian concerns.

The only bright spot in Canada's financial picture, Mr. Bennett stated, was the fact that the dominion's conversion loan of $250,000,000 had been subscribed up to $639,816,500. He emphasized that during his regime no fewer than 75 American manufacturers had established plants in Canada and made it clear he was attacking close to his "Canada First" attitude. His conclusion brought a great ovation from his followers.

Chancellor Brüning

Chancellor Brüning and the four men discussed thoroughly the bearing of reparations on the world economic crisis. It was the hope of the Germans that this conference would find a way out of the present financial wilderness.

THE Chequers meeting aroused the French and led them to reaffirm their contention that German reparations and the Allied debts to America were inseparably connected by the Young plan. As it is put by A. L. Jeune in Le Midi of Paris: "On the battlefield of international debts, where we held the front line so long until the Young plan brought us back to the reserve trenches, it would be a great impudence to give them up."

FOUR eastern and western air lines, whose planes fly about 12,000,000 miles annually, have consolidated their management, operation, traffic and sales and now become divisions of the United Air Lines, with general offices in Chicago. The lines involved in this big merger are: The National Air Transport, operating from New York to Chicago and Chicago to Dallas; the Boeing Air Transport, operating from Chicago to San Francisco; the Pacific Air Transport, operating from Seattle to San Diego, and the Varney Air Lines, operating from Salt Lake City to Seattle and the Pacific Northwest.

P. G. Johnson, president of the Boeing companies, who was recently made president of the National Air Transport and the Varney Air Lines, is to be president of the new company.

TENNESSEE'S political-financial troubles were approaching a climax during the week with the state legislature preparing to vote on the question of impeaching the governor, Henry H. Horton. The situation in Nashville was tense. Though the foes of the executive were apparently in the majority, Horton seemed undaunted.

Most of the eight articles of impeachment reported to the legislature by a committee relate to a main charge of conspiracy, alleging plots between the governor and Col. Luke Lea and Rogers Caldwell, two bankers who are now under indictment as a result of the bank failures of last November. Congressman Ed Crump, the Memphis political boss, was conducting the fight against the governor, though he kept himself in the background. The resignation of Senator Scott Fitzhugh, one of the Crump faction, from the speakership, and the election of Senator A. E. Broadbent of Clarksville to fill his place took much of the thunder away from the defense, for Senator Broadbent is an independent, an anti-Crump man, and he will be the next governor if Mr. Horton is forced out.

CANADIAN tax payers are hard hit by the first budget presented to parliament by Premier R. B. Bennett. He announced a deficit of $90,000,000 and said new taxes would be required to meet it. Consequently he proposed imports as follows: Increase in the sales tax from 1 per cent to 4 per cent; reintroduction of 3-cent postage; increase of the income tax on corporations and stock companies from 8 to 10 per cent and a new special excess tax of 1 per cent on all imports.

RELATIONS between Premier Mussolini and the Vatican were strained almost to the breaking point and outwardly it appeared there could be no peaceful settlement of the quarrel. But efforts at conciliation were being carried on quietly by Foreign Minister Dino Grandi on the one hand and Cardinal Gasparri on the other. The trouble centers in the Catholic Action Clubs. Mussolini decreed the disbanding of all youth organizations connected with Catholic Action because of alleged political propaganda and closed the clubs and playgrounds. The pope protested against this, both as head of the Vatican City and as head of the church. He made effective his disapproval by withdrawing his personal representative from the Padua celebrations, canceling the diocesan eucharistic congress in Rome, prohibiting church processions and placing the Catholic Action societies under charge of the bishops. Mussolini gave out a statement saying there was nothing topsy-turvy about his acts and that the clubs were permanently closed.

Ear-Shaped Violin Shows

Resembling a human ear, a violin invented by a German musician was shown in Germany recently. It is said to produce sounds of great sweetness and purity. As the sounding surfaces are vertical to the bow it was not necessary to curve them to make room for it. This apparently has increased the resonance of the instrument.

General's Good Reason for Leading His Men

The retirement of General MacArthur brought the famous World War commander once more into the spotlight. Floyd Gibbons recounts this characteristic anecdote concerning him.

"With Frazier Hunt and the late Lincoln Eyre, I had gone to visit MacArthur, then a brigadier general, but he was out. We waited awhile and presently he came in, not in showy uniform but in a black sweater. He had personally led his troops over the top against a line of machine guns. The sweater was creased with bullets.

"Say, General," remonstrated Eyre, "we can't afford to risk a good brigadier general out there doing the work of a second lieutenant. You're much too important." To which MacArthur replied,

"There are times in this war when the life of a brigadier general is not important. I want my men to know that I will never ask them to do anything I am not willing and glad to do myself."

Money in Old Autographs Valuable autographs occur in the most unexpected places, and it pays to keep one's eyes open. Recently an invalid, going through an old volume, found a letter bearing the signatures of a number of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. This letter, also brought independence to its finder, as he sold it for the tidy sum of $51,000.—St. Nicholas Magazine.

Speedy Pigeon Honored

As a mark of honor the pigeon which won the race of the 750 miles from Harwich, England, to Vienna, Austria, was given a special cage framed by fir tree branches at the recent pigeon exhibition at Dreher park, Vienna. The bird also made a world speed record. Six other pigeons took part in the race. The sport of carrier pigeons is again coming into vogue in Austria.

Newspaper Production

There are now 39,500,000 copies of newspapers published daily in the United States, or one for every three inhabitants, and 27,000,000 issues of Sunday newspapers.

EDITORIAL COLUMN

U. S. Forest Service and Lincoln County Co-Operation

O. Fred Arthur, Forest Supervisor and Harry Lutz, Chairman of the Board of Commissioners, went over the roads in the Lincoln National Forest last week on an inspection of the work recently finished under the direction of Chas. F. Grey.

The roads which have been finished are leading from Angus to Ruidoso, and the one leading from Alto to Eagle Creek Lodge. The officials spent a day in looking over the work and pronounced it perfect in every detail.

The country through which these roads pass was rough and the work which was to be done was very difficult, so the Forest Supervisor and the County Commissioners co-operated, and with Mr. Grey at the head of the work, they now have some of the best roads in this part of the county.

The Forest Supervisor, Mr. Arthur, is deserving of much credit for his part of the work, which gives much needed relief to the people of that locality.

The Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, Mr. Lutz, and other members of the board, County Clerk, Gransen and Sheriff Brady, all of whom made frequent visits to where the work was being done.

The territory on the road from Angus to Ruidoso was the roughest and the expense was partly borne by the county, the forest service defraying the major portion and also furnishing the machinery. The labor was paid by the County.

The forest service is making the new road from Alto to Eagle Creek Lodge and by that project, they eliminated five crossings on the creek, which will afford great convenience to those having summer cottages at this popular resort. Under Mr. Grey's supervision, the roads are well made, the people are well pleased and a great benefit to all concerned, is the result.

Chevrolet six-cylinder trucks cost less to operate

It is a matter of record, among more and more large fleet operators, that Chevrolet six-cylinder trucks give a lower transportation cost than any other truck of equal capacity in the market.

These firms are finding, through experience, that Chevrolet sedan deliveries are capable of 20 miles or better, to the gallon of gasoline; that Chevrolet 1 1/2-ton trucks are making fuel records which are relatively just as high. That it costs very little to keep Chevrolet trucks in first-class working order. That Chevrolet service charges on both parts and labor are exceptionally low. That the active life of Chevrolet trucks extends well past the 50,000 mileage mark.

To place your hauling on a minimum-cost basis—and keep it there—put Chevrolet six-cylinder trucks to work. A wide variety of Chevrolet-built bodies is now available. And delivered prices of Chevrolet trucks, complete and ready for work, are based on low chassis-cost and low body-cost, plus only reasonable charges for handling and financing.

Chevrolet 1 1/2-ton chassis with 131" wheelbase $520

(Dual wheels optional, $25 extra)

1 1/2-ton chassis with 137" wheelbase, $590 Commercial chassis, $355

THE STORY

Yancey Cravat, just returned from the newly opened Indian territory, relates his experiences to a large gathering of the Venable family.

The reedy voice of the sick man had the ghostly quality of an echo. You heard it above the woman's shrill clamor.

The Venable eye, from one end of the table to the other, turned like a single orb in its socket toward the young woman facing them with defiance in her bearing.

Seeing something of this, Felice Venable said again, more loudly, as though to convince herself, "She's not to go."

Perhaps Sabra had not realized until now how terribly she had counted on her husband's return as marking the time when she would be free to leave the Venable clan.

"I will go," said Sabra Cravat. "If anyone had been looking at Lewis Venable at that moment (which no one ever thought of doing) he could have seen a ghostly smile momentarily irradiating the transparent, ivory face."

CHAPTER II

Indians were no novelty to the townspeople of Wichita. Twice a year, chaperoned by old Gen. "Rull" Plummer, the Indians swept through the streets in their visiting regalia.

A cowed enough people they seemed by now; dirty, degraded. Since the Custer massacre of '76 they had been pretty thoroughly beaten into submission.

The child Cim had got it into his head that this was to be a picnic. He had smelled pies and cakes baking; had seen hamper packed.

There was a lunatic week preceding their departure from Wichita. Felice fought their going to the last, and finally took to her bed with threats of impending dissolution which failed to achieve the desired effect.

"That needn't prevent you from remembering you're a lady, I hope. Unless you are planning to be one of those hags in a sunbonnet and no teeth that Yancey seems to have taken such a fancy to."

So Sabra Cravat took along to the frontier wilderness such odds and elegances as her training, lack of experience, and southern family tradition dictated.

There was, to the Wichita eye, nothing unusual in the sight of these huge covered freighters that would soon go lumbering off toward the horizon.

The wagons, packed, stood waiting before the Venable house. Perhaps never in the history of the settling of the West did a woman go a pioneering in such a costume.

Now, with a lurch and a rattle and a great clatter of hoofs the two wagons were off. They had made an early start.

EGGS, the mince pie. It was all very gay and comfortable and relaxed. Short as the morning had been, the afternoon stretched out, somehow, endless.

"Well, camp here," he called to Sabra and came toward her wagon, prepared to lift her down, and the boy.

"Yes. For the night. Come, Cim." He lifted the boy down with a great swoop.

"You mean for the night? Sleep here?"

He was quite matter-of-fact. "Yes. It's a good place. Water and trees."

It Was a Hard Trip for the Child.

"I'll have a fire before you can say Jack Robinson. Where'd you think you were going to sleep? Back home?"

Somehow she had not thought. She had not believed it. To sleep out of doors like this, in the open, with only a wagon top as roof!

Yancey began to make camp. Already the duties of this new manner of living had become familiar. There was wood to gather, a fire to start, water to be boiled.

A sudden shout from Yancey. A squeal of terror from the bundle of carpeting in his arms—a bundle that suddenly was alive and wriggling.

By noon next day they were wondering how they had got on at all without him. He gathered wood. He started fires. He tended Cim like a nurse, played with him, sang to him, helped put him to bed, slept anywhere, like a little dog.

Yancey pointed out the definiteness with which the land changed when they left Kansas and came into the Oklahoma country.

Suddenly the land, too, had become red; red clay as far as the eye could see. When the trail led through a cleft in a hill the blood red of the clay on either side was like a gaping wound.

It was a hard trip for the child. He was by turns unruly and listless. He could not run about, except when they stopped to make camp.

Often the days were gay enough. They fell into the routine, adjusted themselves to the discomfort. Sabra got out the sunbonnet which one of the less formidable Venables had jokingly given her at parting.

The wind, at certain periods of the year, blows almost without ceasing in Oklahoma. And when it rains the roads become alighting bogs of greased red dough.

At Pawnee Yancey saw fresh deer tracks. He saddled a horse and was off. They had, before this, caught bass in the stream, and Yancey had shot prairie chicken and quail.

She was quite serene. She listened for the sound of horse's hoofs that would announce Yancey's triumphant return.

In a sudden panic she stepped out of the wagon with the feeling that she must have her own human things near her—Cim, Isalah—to talk to.

Together they looked under the wagons, behind the trees. "Cim! Cim! Cimarron Cravat, if you are hiding I shall punish you if you don't come out this minute."

Often the days were gay enough. They fell into the routine, adjusted themselves to the discomfort. Sabra got out the sunbonnet which one of the less formidable Venables had jokingly given her at parting.

"Where's Cim?" "Where's Cim?" She ran to the other wagon, peered inside, called. He was not there.

Improved Uniform International Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for June 21 THE SIN OF CAUSING OTHERS TO STUMBLE (Temperance Lesson)

GOLDEN TEXT—It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Helping Others (Health Emphasis) JUNIOR TOPIC—My Responsibility for Others (Health Emphasis)

This lesson sets forth fraternal duties in matters of conscience. The background for these obligations is found in the fact that there were some in the church at Rome who were very conscientious with reference to eating flesh.

1. Neither Party Is to Sit in Judgment Upon the Other (Rom. 14:1-13). This instruction applies to things indifferent in themselves. It would be a mistake to apply these principles to such actions as are inherently wrong.

2. Each man is responsible to God alone (v. 4). Each man belongs to God. 2. Each man must decide for himself what is right for him to do (vv. 5, 6).

3. A properly enlightened Christian may have perfect liberty to act in a given way as far as he himself is concerned, but the exercise of his liberty may become an occasion of stumbling to another.

4. We should follow after things that make for peace and edify one another (v. 19). To ignore the conscientious scruples of a weak brother is to destroy the work of God—to pull down the gracious work which God is doing in him.

5. We should exercise our faith in God and abstain from things which offend the weak brother (v. 21-23). III. We Should Plead Our Neighbor and Not Ourselves (Rom. 15:1-13).

1. Because of Christ's example (v. 1-3). He is our supreme pattern. His supreme thought and purpose was to help and save others.

2. Because of the Scripture testimony (v. 4-13). The Old Testament Scriptures abound with examples of self-denying sacrifices for the good of others, having their culmination of meaning in the action of Christ.

3. Because of the Holy Spirit's witness (v. 14-16). The Holy Spirit bears witness with our spirit that we are the children of God.

4. Because of the love which we have for one another (v. 17-19). Love is the fulfillment of the law.

5. Because of the peace which we have with one another (v. 20-22). Peace is the fruit of the Spirit.

Hamburg and Luebeck

Scene in the Port of Hamburg.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

MEMORIES of the prosperous era of the Hanseatic league are stirred by the proposal that has recently been made for joining the one-time Hanseatic cities of Hamburg and Luebeck. The cities, which were both leaders in the old league, lie only about 40 miles apart in northeastern Germany; one on the Elbe river near its mouth into the North sea, and the other on the River Trave, only ten miles from the Baltic sea. The object of the association of the two ports would be to eliminate competition and to overcome the effects of the depression that both have felt.

Hamburg is both a free port and a free city; and he who sees Hamburg quickly learns that both appellations have practical consequences. The visitor starts forth, wisely enough, to see Hamburg's best advertised spectacle, its harbor. He finds it has not been overrated. It is one of the most amazing industrial spectacles in the world; that vast sweep of cluttered water, pierced by hundreds of land fingers separating the rectangular water sheets which are basins, skylined by monster skeletons of mighty ships in the hulling, often smoke-screened by the chimney outpourings of myriad factories.

For six miles along the broad Elbe, 75 miles up-river from the sea, extend the massive docks, the hippodrome landing stages, the intricate jumble of cranes, derricks, and elevators. The landing stages are necessary because Hamburg has an "open harbor," accessible to the sea, in contrast to the dock-basins and flood-gates of much of the Port of London.

A ferry is the proper sightseeing vehicle. For the port is a 15-square-mile area, strown with every type of modern vessel, from huge ocean liners down through lazy barges, alert yachts, energetic motorboats, chugging tugs, and busy ferries.

"You have your pass, of course," inquires the master of the "circular ferry"—"circular" applying to the trip, not the craft.

"A pass, what for?" "A part of this harbor is a free port, sir," patiently explains the boatman. "And you will wish to come back."

What the Free Port Means. You get your pass, your boatman threads his way for miles and miles through a floating traffic jam, but an orderly one—that makes crossing Fifth Avenue seem child's play to the land-lubber mind. You visit the free port, then your ferry heads back toward your embarkation place. On the way you pull up at what seems to be a customs house, displaying a sign which marks the free port limits. You show your pass; the boat is searched.

You understand the need for the pass, and you realize, too, that you have just seen one key to the prosperity of the foremost continental port.

The huge free port, with its mammoth warehouses, cluttered with silks from China, beef from Argentina, coffee from Brazil, harvesters from the United States, all bearing addresses for transshipment to strange-named Baltic ports, none to pay a cent of duty into Germany's treasury.

One-third of Hamburg's harbor, you later learn, is given over to this free port; in its zone are employed some 20,000 of the city's 110,000 industrial workers.

Hamburg entered the German customs union in 1888, thus enabling it to sell its own goods to Germany, tariff free, but its canny senate maintained its free port privileges, which arrangement makes it the great trans-ocean department store of the Baltic.

A senate in a city? Yes, a senate which clings to its stiff Spanish dress as loyally as it guards the ancient rights and privileges of the free city—the "Free and Hanseatic City of Hamburg."

window portaltures of the John Paul Joneses of maritime Hamburg. You climb aloft. The peculiar walls catch your eye. They seem to be of solid wood, most delicately carved and beautifully decorated. Closer examination shows some to be felt, pressed-to-the-hardness and likeness of wood, with the intricate patterns imposed by a matrix.

And after a banquet hall that conjures up memories of the belted burgeses, the staunch merchants and the gentleman adventurers of medieval times, you come upon the senate chamber. One feature strikes a home note in the American bosom. This senate, too, has secret sessions. But when it does, it retires from the chamber with the visitor's gallery and the press gallery into a smaller chamber that has just one entrance. That entrance is guarded by two massive doors of incredible thickness.

Dating back to Charlemagne, Hamburg is Germany's most modern city. Almost modernistic. The fire of 1842 left few traces of its medieval architecture. Some of its newer office buildings have spiraled sides, in northern search for sunlight; others have contours that make them loom up in Hamburg vistas like a giant Europa entering a narrow harbor.

In these office buildings are elevators which have dispensed with doors and operators. They run on the chain principle, like buckets in a well. They do not stop. One hops on or off as the "buckets" pass the floor. If one forgets to alight at the right floor, no harm done. Stay on, and you will be carried around the top or bottom of the shaft as on a ferris wheel.

Busy but Beautiful. Industrial to its finger tips, militant to its heart, Hamburg is a beautiful city. It leaves a confused impression of Minneapolis and Venice. For the Alster river, en route to the Elbe, plays wide in the midst of Hamburg's busiest quarter, giving it the unique spectacle of great office buildings, fine hotels, fashionable shops, all along the lake front. Clerks in the great, gray stone building which is the office of the Hamburg-America line, glancing up from their ledgers, can look out over a glistening sheet of water, flecked with tiny yachts, motorboats, scurrying ferries, racing shells, and canoes; with swans and sea gulls hovering about.

By night the hotel visitor can view from his window the moonlit waters, rimmed by thousands of electric bulbs, and see tiny firefly points of light bobbing all over the surface. At one corner are huddled hundreds of canoes, their occupants reclining on cushions, listening to the concert of the Alster pavilion. This sprightly cafe, or coffee house along the lake front, gathers its daytime patronage from the great department stores of the opposite side of the street.

Luebeck's Commerce and Romance. Luebeck, companion port of the north, became, during the World war, the foremost port of the German empire in foreign, water-borne trade. It is the smallest of the free cities of Germany, but richer in reminiscences of former greatness than either of the other two. Hamburg, Bremen and Luebeck joined the modern German empire as free and independent Hanseatic cities. Hamburg and Bremen have developed into great stone-and-mortar hives of present-day business; have multiplied their wealth at a tremendous rate; and have, more and more, grown to the international type of purely business cities. Luebeck, on the other hand, while it has maintained an importance as a busy place of commerce, is medieval, romantic, a breath from the past.

Lying ten miles from the Baltic sea, on the River Trave, the channel of which has been so improved that boats of 16-foot draft are able to tie up at the city's docks, Luebeck has been a nerve center of North German trade with Denmark, the Scandinavian lands, and with Russia. The city has been made into an island by its harbor improvements, the Trave flowing around its western border and a wide canal around it on the east.

This city enjoys a location as favorable as that of Bremen or Hamburg for the distribution of its wares over Germany. It is reached by rail in two and one half hours from Bremen, and is about as conveniently near to Berlin. The port is connected with Copenhagen, Stockholm and Danzig by regular steamer services. Its chief articles of commerce are wines, especially clarets, timber, tar, and northern consignments of German manufactures.
