

ANCHO NOTES

Misses Lucille and Lila Lee Drake had as their guest last week Miss Mary Pickett Warden.

A large crowd attended the ice cream social Friday night. Music was furnished by Mrs. Bryan Hightower. The affair was a success both socially and financially.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Storey were hosts at a party Saturday night. Games and dancing were indulged in. Refreshments were served, and the guests departed at a late hour.

Mrs. Allen Kile and son Tommy are spending a week at Cloudercroft with Mr. Kile, who is with the S. P. at that place.

V. W. Bentley, representative for the LaSalle Extension University, with headquarters at Albuquerque, was a guest at the T. J. Straley home Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Weathersbee and little daughter Jacqueline are visiting in Happy, Texas.

The Woman's Club held an interesting meeting at the home of Mrs. S. J. Pruett, Thursday, June 25. Roll call was responded by "Latest in Aviation." In contests held after the business meeting, the aviation motif was very cleverly carried out. Prizes were won by Meses. Belknap and Hightower. At previous meeting, it was requested by our efficient president, Mrs. Pruett, to have our vice-president, Mrs. Drake, preside, which she kindly consented to do. In her absence, Mrs. Pruett asked our 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Wilson, to preside, which she did very graciously. This courtesy on part of Mrs. Pruett was commendable. Various matters were discussed. Mrs. W. L. Silvers was taken in as a new member. Special guests were Meses. Harkey and O'Leary. The secretary, Mrs. Hightower, read an interesting letter from one of our members, Mrs. Elbert Brown, who now lives in Cuervo. During the afternoon, the children enjoyed games on the lovely lawn. Delicious refreshments consisting of sandwiches, cake and ice tea were served. Mrs. T. J. Straley will be next club hostess on Thursday, July 9.

Chevrolet

Detroit, Mich., July 3.—Operations were started recently in the new bumper manufacturing plant of the Chevrolet Motor Company, in this city. W. S. Knudsen, President and general manager of the company, announced today.

Construction of the new plant, which has a total floor space of 35,000 square feet, was started early in the spring and completed last month. Included in the mechanical installations are several innovations designed to facilitate in the handling and fabrication of material.

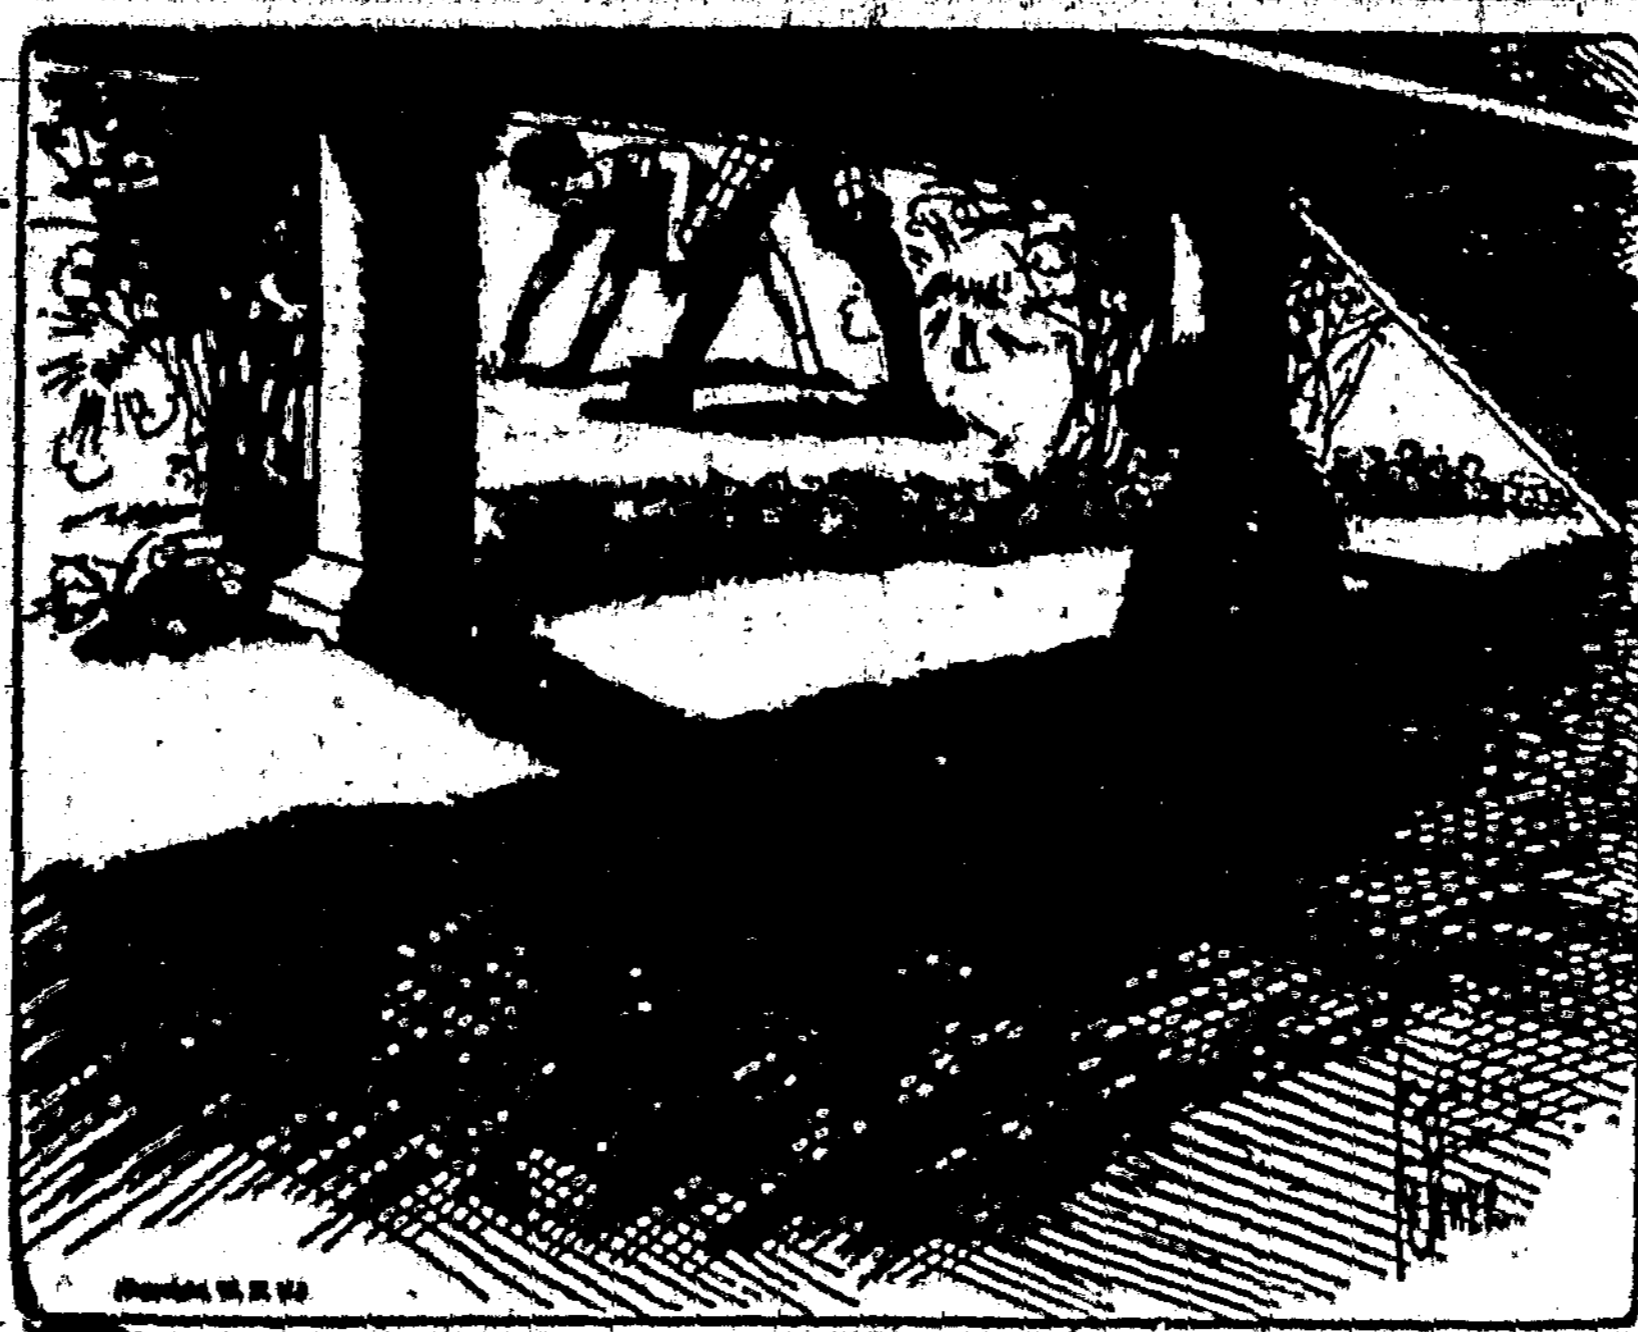

The plant has an average monthly capacity of 70,000 sets of bumpers, Mr. Knudsen said. Actual production was started on May 26th, and it is expected that a full normal schedule will be in effect within the next few weeks.

This development is one of the few expansions made within the automobile industry within the past eighteen months and is Chevrolet's second within a year. The other was the purchase and operation of a commercial body building plant at Indianapolis last Fall.

Construction of the bumper plant brings the total number of Chevrolet domestic factories to 21, and enables the company to exercise further supervision over materials, workmanship, and design of the features in the current line of sixes.

Visiting relatives from out-of-town, attending the funeral of Joe Aguayo, with the exception of the R. M. Treat and E. V. Abeyta families, of whom separate mention is made elsewhere, were — James and Alex Hill, Alex Aguayo and family, Mrs. Sterling Fisher, El Paso; Mr. and Mrs. Phil Redondo and family of Kelvin, Ariz.; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brown and family of Wickenburg, Ariz.; Mrs. Ida May and Mrs. A. G. Sheppard of Los Angeles.

July the Fourth

The Glorious Fourth at Fort Stanton

No pains will be spared at the big celebration at Fort Stanton to make the people, who attend, feel at home. There will be all forms of amusement on the grounds and plenty of refreshments throughout the day. In the evening, the Trowel Club will put on a fine array of fireworks and you are requested to remain and witness the scene.

Arrangements have been made to put on one of the best rodeos we have had in this part of the state for years. There will be something doing all the time. If you are looking for a good place to spend the 4th, come to Fort Stanton. The committee, headed by Mr. W. C. Hendren, has left nothing undone to see that everybody has a good time and it is up to you to have yours. "Nuff Sed!"

Robbery at Ziegler Brothers' Store

Sunday night burglars entered Ziegler Brothers' store, gaining entrance through one of the windows on the south side. Fortunately the sales made after checking up the night before were small, there being only about seven dollars in the cash register, which Mr. Ziegler leaves open so that in case the store is robbed, the burglars will not break the machine. Up to the present time only a few articles are missing from the stock and it is believed the loss is small, which is extremely fortunate.

Skinner's Grocery is being remodeled. The partition has been moved back a distance of about ten feet to give more room for Roy's fast increasing trade. He will soon put in a large refrigerator case just inside the entrance where he will keep fresh meats of all kinds. He invites you to call and be convinced of the many bargains he has to offer. "You be the Judge" is his slogan.

Watch Your Garden Hose

Garden hose thieves are the latest pest we have encountered. Several citizens have been robbed of hose in from 25 to 50 foot sections. People who water their lawns late in the evening, should see that the hose is put out of the reach of these miscreants. In some places where the hose was attached to the faucets, they have cut the hose. Officers are on the lookout for the thieves; have a line on them, and arrests will follow shortly. In the meantime, lookout for your hose!

Serious Accident on Nogal Road

Sunday evening, while out for a pleasure ride between here and Nogal, the Misses Rhea and Beatrix Boughner and Marvin Roberts met with a serious accident when returning home. They passed Nogal, and as they rounded a bend in the road just this side of what is known as the old Vega place, they were met by an out-going Model T Ford, driven by a man from Ancho, by the name of Storey, who was employed on the S. P. pipe line, and who was going on to the mountains to get ready for work Monday morning.

The car crashed and the one driven by young Roberts lurched to the left, turned over into the arroyo, demolishing the car and badly injuring the young ladies, while the young man escaped with a broken wrist. Miss Beatrix sustained a badly broken left thigh and numerous cuts and bruises on the face, while Miss Rhea suffered a badly lacerated scalp, which necessitated fourteen stitches to close the ugly wound.

Being close to the Vega home, young Roberts walked the short distance and summoned Leandro Vega, who brought the young people to Johnson's Hospital, where the young ladies are still confined at this writing. Miss Beatrix suffers most of all, as the large bone of the thigh is fractured in such a manner that one portion overlaps the other, which will require being gradually drawn back to its original position by weights, and it will be several days before this can be accomplished. It is extremely fortunate that the young people escaped with their lives, and although serious as it is, they are to be congratulated on their narrow escape.

Improvements at Star Cafe

The Star Cafe has put on a new dress. The north half of the place has been converted into a well-fitted dining room with five tables. The lunch-counter has also been changed and replaced with a new and more convenient one, fashioned on the horse-shoe order. The walls have been repainted and a general overhauling has taken place. Under the front awning there is a string of electric lights which can be seen for blocks on either side. On the whole, the cafe has undergone a commendable improvement, and one worthy of special mention. Thos. Ninos, the new proprietor, announces that he will make other improvements in the near future.

LOCAL MENTION

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph M. Treat and daughter Bethel came up from El Paso Tuesday and on Wednesday attended the funeral of the late Joe Aguayo, leaving for home yesterday morning. Ralph is Deputy U. S. Marshal at El Paso.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Neighbauer are here from Hot Springs and have taken over their old ranch holdings near the Malpais. We are glad to have the folks with us again and hope they will remain.

Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Blaney have just completed a new addition to their residence which consists of a pleasant sun porch and sleeping apartment, screened in, has an eastern exposure and is a valuable improvement to the Blaney home. Langston & Phipps did the work.

Fred Pfingsten was a business visitor from Lincoln Wednesday, but remained only a short time. Fred is a busy man and his stays are of short duration. He "does things" and gets away while the other fellow is thinking about it.

Heavy rains have been reported all around us, but our share is yet to come. Clouds appear daily, hover over us for a short time and vanish — but it's all right, for we are arriving at the time when our rainy season sets in, unless we miss our guess. The 4th of July is the beginning, as a usual thing.

Chas. Joyce is erecting a new addition to his laundry to make room for his rapidly increasing business. Contractor W. M. J. Langston is doing the work.

The attention of farmers and bean growers is called to the ad on page 4 of grain bins which the Titaworth Co. of Capitan is offering on from 5 to 12 month terms. The ad is self explanatory. Read it carefully.

Miss Douglas Geake of Albuquerque, member of Phi Mu Sorority and sorority sister of Miss Ruth Brickley, is visiting her for a few weeks. They plan to spend some time on the Ruidoso.

Mrs. W. C. Hendren and sister, Miss Margaret Thompson of Alvarado, Texas, who is spending her vacation with the Hendrens at Fort Stanton, were here Saturday, visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Kelley.

Miss Glenneth English returned Monday from Los Angeles, to which city she journeyed several weeks ago, accompanied by Professor J. M. Helm, who will make the "Angel City" his future home. Miss Glenneth was the guest of her brother Don while there and had a pleasant visit. Don is much pleased with Los Angeles, as was Miss Glenneth, but she prefers the sunshine of New Mexico. On their trip to California, Prof. Helm and Miss English visited the Grand Canyon, Yellowstone Park and other places of interest along the route.

E. M. Brickley, Dr. R. T. Lucas and Albert Snow made a trip to Three Rivers last Saturday to fish for trout and returned with the limit.

Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Abeyta and daughters were here from Capitan to attend the funeral of their nephew, Joe Aguayo.

JOE AGUAYO INSTANTLY KILLED

Last Monday afternoon, while looking after their cattle, Joe and Jack Aguayo, who resided on their father's ranch in the Tortolita Canyon about two miles west of Nogal, went about repairing a portion of the fence. They had not long been engaged in that work before a heavy rain-storm set in and they sought shelter in a shack where they had stored mining tools and blasting powder.

The powder cans were stacked in a pile and, naturally, the boys used the pile of cans for a seat until the rainstorm passed over. They were sitting about three feet apart, according to Jack, when a flash of lightning came and as Jack looked at his brother, he collapsed, falling directly in Jack's arms. At this instant, Jack lost consciousness and the two brothers lay for some time until Jack finally regained control of himself, only to find that Joe had been killed by the bolt.

He gave the alarm and other members of the family hastened to the scene; then the body was brought to Kelley's undertaking rooms, where it received the proper care. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon with Carrizozo Lodge No. 41, A. F. & A. M., conducting the same under the leadership of Worshipful Master, E. M. Brickley, the sermon preached by Rev. J. L. Lawson at the Methodist Church.

A choir of ladies sang several soul-stirring selections and twelve young ladies, all members of the Rainbow for Girls, acted as flower girls, headed by Mrs. Elizabeth Gumm and Mrs. Maude Blaney, the two ladies being Joe's teachers during his school days. Rev. Lawson's sermon was taken from the deceased's handwriting found in two places on the fly-leaves of his testament: "Therefore, be ye also ready; for in such an hour as ye think not, the Son of Man cometh," from which text he preached an inspiring sermon. During the service period, Mrs. R. E. Lemon and Mrs. F. L. Elliott, of the Eastern Star, sang a beautiful duet, "Whispering Hope." At the cemetery, the remains were interred with sacred Masonic rites.

Joe Aguayo was the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Aguayo, whose ancestors were among the early pioneers. The family is well known over the county and have many friends who will regret to learn of the tragic death of the oldest son. Joe had followed mining, principally for several years and had laid away material for his work in the shack or storehouse as we mentioned in the beginning of this article. He was a member of Carrizozo Lodge No. 41, A. F. & A. M., the Scottish Rite and the Mystic Shrine.

Joe Aguayo was born in White Oaks, March 1, 1904, and died at one o'clock Monday afternoon, June 29, 1931.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife, two children, his parents, four sisters, Mrs. Ben Jarvis, Frances, Dora and Lorraine, and six brothers, Paul, Ernest, Jack, Elmo, Don and Herbert, to all of whom the sympathy of the family's many friends is extended.

In order to accommodate those wishing to make late purchases for the 4th, we will keep our store open until 9 o'clock Saturday morning.—Ziegler Bros.

Pleatings Solve Many Problems

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Pleatings, and an abundance of them solve a majority of the trimming problems in fashion's realm this season. A lavish use of fine knife pleating results in more than 100 extra chic for the costume. The model pictured gives emphasis to the charm of the new pleated trimmings. It also goes to show how prettily printed materials, especially the popular dotted effects yield to pleated treatments.

If you would like to know about the smart umbrellas to which this up-to-date young woman wishes to be winning to call attention we do not mind telling you a secret, or perhaps it is the handsome leather bag which she carries which holds the secret. Anyway, to make a long story short, the umbrella is made to fold up so it can be stowed away in a certain little compartment upper top bag without anyone ever suspecting such a thing. There, it is neat, and well worth following up when next you go to buy a new umbrella and bag ensemble.

Not about this matter of decorative pleatings which are having so much to do with the wrack of the mode this season, she need not hesitate to employ this form of trimming at any time for they adorn the simplest everyday print frocks with as much distinction as they enhance the most exquisite and exclusive evening gowns. As to pleating the daytime prints, it has become the rule rather than the exception. A favorite use of fine knife pleating is to border both blouse and skirt with it.

Have you tried trimming with pleated lace? If you are making a blouse or a dress of all-over lace, for instance, cut strips of any width which may happen to suit your fancy. Have them picot-edged and pleated. You will find that these pleated frills give a beautiful finish to all edges.

Enthusiasm for pleating also carries into the coat realm this season. Full-length coats of either light woolen or silk are given very youthful and flattering lines in that they are bordered about the bottom with pleated flounces of considerable depth, the pleating repeated on the now-so-fashionable three-quarter sleeves and if there be a cape collar it is also finished with pleating. (E. 1931, Western Newspaper Union.)

Chiffon and Sequins in Mode for Evening Wear

Chiffon and sequins have come to a novel agreement for the skirt of an evening gown that is very full and cut on the bias to make it swing and swirl like a bell when the wearer is dancing.

The chiffon is printed in large pink roses on a black background. The sequins agreed to let the roses stay soft and pink and untouched if they would agree to let all the black spaces behind them go sequin.

The surprise comes in the cape accompanying and on which background and flowers have completely changed places. The spaces are in chiffon and the roses in colored sequins!

Correct Posture Is Important

strive. It is necessary for her to lean forward slightly to examine her rambling roses, but in doing so she has kept her back flat and straight, her head, shoulders and hips in line with her ankles, and she uses her feet properly to balance herself.

The picture is from a series of charts on good posture prepared by the extension service of the United States Department of Agriculture. These talks on posture include advice on the proper position for all sorts of home activities, both indoors and outdoors. The charts indicate by analogy with indoor tasks, that for garden work, too, such as digging, weeding, planting, and tasks that require stooping, it is possible to carry on the job and at the same time avert the fatigue that comes from bad position—maintained for long stretches. Work close to the ground, for example, can be done on a kneeling pad, with the back straight and the shoulders flat; hoeing and raking can be done like mopping or sweeping, keeping the abdomen and hips in the correct position and the feet squarely on the ground. Pruning, watering and gathering garden products are, similarly, much less fatiguing if good posture is maintained while carrying them on.

Some Timely Food Suggestions

By NELLIE MAXWELL

The cook who really enjoys mixing ingredients as a painter does his colors, will find no limit to the delightful dishes which one may originate or enlarge upon with the materials at hand. One must follow a few fundamental principles in cooking, and after that let the imagination soar, for there is no end to inspiration. After some experience with handling foods, most toothsome dishes may be prepared from bits of leftovers. The cook who wastes nothing, but serves her food in a dainty, appetizing manner, is a real genius and her talents are ever in demand.

It is not always wise to tell all one knows as to the contents of a dish, for some conscientious objectors will refuse to try a leftover dish, or rearranged food.

Now, why will care to call a steamed pudding a leftover? Yet one may prepare a most tasty one with a few squares of corn bread, cupful of left-over cocoa, a bit of oatmeal, a few raisins and a couple of egg yolks left from some icing or dessert.

Use the things you have at hand—anyone who knows little about foods can prepare a good meal if the market can be filled up with no regard to expense.

Do you use the half-cupful, more or less, of leftover ice cream in a cake or pudding?

with a few whole berries may be spread over the cake if desired.

Sponge Cake.

- 4 eggs
- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup cold water
- 2 cup sifted soft-wheat flour
- 1 tsp. baking powder
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. vanilla
- 1/2 cup lemon juice

Separate the egg yolks from the whites, and beat the yolks with gradually beat in the sugar, add the water, and continue the beating until the mixture is very thick and light. Stir the dry ingredients together and fold them into the egg and sugar mixture. Then fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs, add the vanilla, and bake in a slightly greased shallow pan in a very moderate oven (325 degrees F.) for 45 to 50 minutes.

Dainty Dishes for Afternoon Tea

Cream Cheese Is Useful for Making Sandwiches.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture—WFOU Service.)

Some particularly appetizing ways of using cream cheese in lunch dishes and for afternoon tea are illustrated in this photograph from the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture. The salad of green pepper, stuffed with cream cheese, is served with crisp lettuce leaves on a green glass salad plate. It tempts by color and texture as well as by its flavor. Creamed pineapples could have been stuffed for a red salad, or such fruits as grapes, figs, canned peaches, or pears, for a fruit and cream salad. Large cherries, too, are good with cream cheese stuffing or with cream balls and mayonnaise dressing.

For afternoon tea, dainty rolled and open sandwiches made with cream cheese will usually prove popular. The open sandwiches consist of a cracker covered with cheese and decorated with red jelly.

Neatly rolled and cream cheese sandwiches are valuable for the protein, fat, phosphorus and calcium they furnish in the diet. They may be introduced into almost any meal—as part of the appetizer at the beginning of a dinner or at the dessert at the end, and in any course between. Gingerbread with a cream cheese filling, shown in the picture, is an excellent dessert for lunch or dinner. Here are recipes for the gingerbread and the filling.

both from the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Gingerbread.

- 1/2 cup fat
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 cup molasses
- 1 egg
- 2 cups sifted soft-wheat flour
- 1 cup baking powder
- 1/2 tsp. soda
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. ginger
- 1/2 tsp. cloves
- 1/2 tsp. cinnamon
- 1 cup milk

Cream together the sugar and fat. Add the molasses and beaten egg. Mix together twice the dry ingredients and add to the first mixture alternately with the milk. Bake in two shallow pans in a moderate oven (300 degrees F.) for 30 or 40 minutes. Serve with cream cheese or whipped cream.

One cup of sour milk may be used instead of the sweet milk. In that case, use two scant teaspoons of soda in place of the one-half teaspoon here called for, and use only two teaspoons of baking powder.

Cream Filling for Gingerbread.

- 3 cups melted cream
- 1/2 cup salt
- 1 cup chopped nuts

Mash the cheese and mix with it enough cream to give it the consistency of a soft filling. Add the nuts and salt, and mix well. Spread on a loaf of hot gingerbread, spread the cheese mixture on the lower half, replace the upper part and press it down lightly. Serve the gingerbread at once while still hot.

Machines That Are Almost Human

By E. C. TAYLOR

The Magic Mariner

FRITHJOF's mythical ship, as described in an Icelandic saga, that sailed the seas without a human being aboard, may have been a vision of the future.

For scientists have reproduced the vessel that could sail from port to port at the will of man, and without a human being to steer it on its course, or take it past the rocky reef into safe harbor.

On September 20, 1927, the steamship Pulpit Point reached Auckland, New Zealand, after a run of 21 days from San Francisco, during which no human hand had touched the steering gear. There were cobwebs on the wheel when the vessel reached the harbor at Auckland.

There the robot that had held the ship true to her compass course across the Pacific ocean day and night for three weeks turned the helm over to an Auckland pilot.

The robot was "Metal Mike," the invention of the late Elmer Sperry, who also invented the gyroscope and the Lindbergh beacon now mounted 500 feet above downtown Chicago to direct flyers safely to their airport and that can be seen in Milwaukee, Wis., 90 miles away.

"Metal Mike" had a gyroscope for a heart and brain, and devices attached to it kept the Pulpit Point straight on an unseen path over thousands of miles of sea. The robot can steer a ship with greater precision than could be achieved by the most expert human pilot. It always knows the true north, and its hands never leave the wheel for an instant.

While the voyage of the Pulpit Point was awe-inspiring, it was only an indication of what the future holds in store. Scientists and engineers since that memorable trip here demonstrated that ships can be sailed without a single human being aboard, that trains can be run in the same way, and that fleets of airplanes could be sent to bomb cities in the wars of the future, all flown by robots and directed by radio.

Demonstrations with small working models have shown that ships or trains can be maneuvered entirely by robots. Recent stunts put on by scientists to prove the value of their brain children included the operation of ships and trains entirely by robots, that responded to instructions voiced over the radio.

The ship and train models were controlled absolutely by spoken commands. They stopped at the word "Stop." They backed up when told to "Back up." They started forward again when told to "Get along there."

Vibrations of the human voice through a microphone were received aboard the ship and train models on radio receiving sets, and started machines that operated the models.

Robots will make travel at sea much safer for future generations, scientists are sure. After each great sea disaster of recent years, new devices for safety have been invented, and many of them are now in use.

The new submarines of the United States navy have devices that signal to the surface if anything goes wrong and the vessel is trapped under the waves. Other devices permit the submarine crew to rise safely to the surface, and still others aid in salvaging a sunken submarine.

One of the newest inventions being adopted by passenger carrying ship lines is that of an automatic radio receiver that will pick up S O S calls without requiring a radio operator to be constantly on guard, and broadcast them throughout the ship.

A robot that will bring help to shipwrecked people in life boats is being added to the equipment of many ocean liners. This robot is a small radio transmitter with a hand-operated dynamo to supply the power. As the crank of the dynamo is turned, it automatically sends out a series of S O S calls to be picked up by any passing ship. It can be operated by anyone without radio experience, and will continue to call for help as long as the dynamo crank is turned.

Not Work of One Author

"The Arabian Nights' Entertainment" is merely a collection of ancient Oriental tales which were first collected in their present form about the middle of the fifteenth century, probably in Cairo. The true origin, and authorship of the various stories have been lost. Antoine Galland translated them into French between 1704 and 1708 and through his work the Arabian Nights were introduced to Europeans. Among Mohammedans the Arabian Nights are not regarded as belonging to polite literature and those who read them are open to the charge of having a depraved taste.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Wolverine's Fur Valuable

Wolverine is listed as the most valuable of long-haired furs and it is fairly expensive. The under-wool is full and thick, with strong bright top hair. The color is a rich brown, the center being an oval dark middle edged with a pale tone, becoming darker toward the back. The darkest and least coarse are the most valuable. This animal, known also as the caracajou or gopher, is found in the northern parts of this country and Canada, also in Russia, Siberia and Scandinavia. The description is taken from Gottlieb's "Fur Trade."

The Evening Fairy Tale for Children

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

EXCITED TALKING

Now the wind and the thunder and the lightning were all having a party. They all got very much excited talking and laughing, and the storm became worse and worse.

Terrible crashes and darts of lightning. Plants in gardens were knocked over and some were knocked quite flat. Roofs and chimneys which had been built in gardens at the parades were prostrated. But the wind said when the storm was all over he was going to be quiet and rest for awhile.

"Well, this has done me good," he said.

"I do believe, too, that it has done the grown-ups and children good."

"They have day after day of sunshine, and now they know that old Mr. Sun isn't the only creature in the world."

"There is the storm wind, King and Queen Thunder and the Lightning children."

Now the storm was over for a little while, but do you know that old King Thunder and Old Queen Thunder and the Lightning children and Mr. Wind found that they had forgotten a number of things they had wanted to say to each other.

The people down on the earth said to each other:

"It seemed as though the storm was over a few minutes ago, but the sky is growing dark again now."

"I believe we are going to have another storm—and we soon after the first one, too."

It was true and Mr. Wind went rattling along.

"I forgot to tell you that I thought you were a fine old fellow, King Thunder," he said.

See that everything that was in his way was crumpled up in the air and thrown about.

"I admire you so much, too, Queen Thunder," said Mr. Wind in a whistling tone of voice.

"Thank you," said Queen Thunder. "I'm much complimented."

And her voice was low and deep and quite terrific.

"You're such a fine, bold, strong, big, clever, children, you Lightning children," said Mr. Wind.

"Ah, we're so glad you like us. We'll do the best we can. We'll try to do better now for you, too, because of your kind words and your praise."

"What terrific storms and darts of lightning," said the Earth people.

"The storm seems to be getting worse all the time."

Oh, the earth people thought; the storm was a terrific one.

But the Wind, King Thunder, Queen Thunder and the Lightning children thought it was lovely.

Only Mr. Wind did a very naughty thing. Some one had forgotten to take in some sheets that had been hanging out to dry—great, big sheets that were heavy to work.

President Hoover Delivers Addresses in Three Middle West States—Moves Toward Restoration of Economic Prosperity.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

RESPONSIBILITY for the existing economic depression in the United States should be laid to frozen confidence rather than to frozen assets, according to President Hoover, who addressed the Indiana Republican Editorial association and its guests in Indianapolis. The Chief Executive expressed his hopes and plans for renewed prosperity which shall be wrought out of the nation's great natural resources by a people with renewed courage; and he vigorously defended the course of his administration in the crisis and denounced panaceas for recovery.

After alluding to the Russian five-year plan, Mr. Hoover proposed what he called an American plan. Said he: "We plan to take care of 20,000,000 increase in population in the next 20 years. We plan to build for them 4,000,000 new and better homes, thousands of new and still more beautiful city buildings, thousands of factories; to increase capacity of our railroads; to add thousands of miles to our highways and waterways; to install 25,000,000 electrical horse power. We plan to provide new parks, schools, colleges and churches for this 20,000,000 people. We plan to secure greater diffusion of wealth, a decrease in poverty, and a great reduction in crime."

From Indianapolis the President and his party, which included Mr. Hoover and their son Allan, went to Marion, Ohio, and took part in the dedication of the magnificent memorial to Warren G. Harding. Mr. Hoover delivered the chief address in which he severely condemned the "friends" who betrayed Harding's trust, former Senator Freylinghuyson, president of the memorial association, presented the memorial to the association, and Calvin Coolidge, who succeeded Harding in the presidency, replied in acceptance. Gov. George White accepted the structure on behalf of the state. Immediately after the ceremonies Mr. Hoover went to Columbus and reviewed a parade of Civil War veterans attending the Ohio G. A. R. encampment.

Next day the presidential party journeyed to Springfield, Ill., for the dedication of the remodeled tomb of Abraham Lincoln. Mr. Hoover was the guest of Governor Emerson and again delivered the main speech at the imposing ceremonies.

The political implications of President Hoover's trip to the Middle West were evident and not denied. The three states he visited have all caused alarm among the Republican leaders by their votes in recent elections. Only last November Illinois replaced a Republican senator with a Democrat and sent five more Democrats to the house in place of Republicans; Ohio elected a Democratic governor and sent six Democrats to congress in place of Republicans, and Indiana replaced six Republican congressmen with Democrats. The Republican managers hoped the presidential tour would have effect in bringing these states back into the fold, and there was also the expectation that it would help in promoting Mr. Hoover's prospects for renomination and re-election. That he is a candidate is no longer in doubt, if it ever was. This recent conference of young Republicans in Washington, under the guidance of Senator Fess, national Republican chairman, made that certain.

IN A letter to leaders of American industry and organized labor—the National Civic federation takes the first step in setting up a ten year plan of systemizing production, eliminating unemployment and integrating the industrial and economic structure of the nation. The letter was signed by James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany and now the chairman of the federation's commission on industrial inquiry. It is based on a proposal made by Matthew Wolf, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, and urges the calling of a national congress to discuss and formulate a program of industrial readjustment and create permanent machinery for this purpose.

Mr. Gerard's letter was addressed to all leading manufacturers in the country, officials of the American Federation of Labor and heads of all international unions. The letter declares that Mr. Wolf's proposal for a great congress of industry has received the indorsement of the national civic federation and expresses the readiness of the federation to sponsor such a congress "if it can have reasonable assurance that the response will be such as to make success probable." Manufacturers and labor leaders were asked to state their opinion and that of their organizations on the proposal and to advise whether they would participate in a preliminary meeting that might be held before the formal calling of the congress.

"What is desired is to draw together a great concourse of delegates, not a mere collection of individuals without representative character," Mr. Gerard's letter declared.

FOR the purpose of encouraging other nations to help in the disarmament movement by telling all about their military strength, the United States, through Secretary Stimson, has made public its report on that matter to the League of Nations. The document shows the land, naval and air armaments of the country, giving the exact number of men, warships and aircraft maintained for military and naval purposes. The total number of army reserves is also given, though this information was not asked by the league.

The data gave America's total land effectives as 139,937, including 13,080 officers. The National Guard was listed at "10,774 average daily effectives" and was not included in the total forces because it was reported "not available to the federal government without measures of mobilization."

The total strength of the naval force was fixed at 109,556, including 10,423 officers and 17,500 enlisted personnel of the marine corps. The total armed air forces, including effectives in the army and navy, were placed at 27,324 officers and men, of which 13,135 were credited to the army air corps and 14,189 to the naval air force. The total number of airplanes in the armed forces was listed as 1,762 including 965 army craft and 787 naval planes. Three army and two navy dirigibles, including the Los Angeles, were added.

Japan promptly followed the example set by the United States.

W. A. Castle

EUROPE rather expects that when Secretary of State Stimson gets over there for his visits to various capital cities, it will be revealed that the United States government will consent, under certain conditions, to alter its stand on reparations and war debts. And in this country, there are indications that this may be true.

Undersecretary of State William A. Castle gave out a statement the other day to the effect that the government does not consider its position as signifying an inflexible thesis, and there have been strong hints at the White House that President Hoover would not oppose the scaling down of war debts if he were assured this would be followed by ample reductions in European armaments.

Mr. Castle said the government is and always has been open minded on the war-debt question and has been watching the situation abroad very carefully; he added that no crisis has yet arisen of a nature that would call for any action by this country on the war debts. If such a crisis should arise, he said, it was obvious this government would have to consider whether a temporary change was necessary. Official opinion in Washington was that Mr. Castle's statement was designed to help Chancellor Brüning of Germany in the troubles that beset him.

FRANKLIN D. Roosevelt's presidential boom was given a decided boost in Massachusetts by the luncheon given by Col. Edward M. House at his summer cottage near Manchester-by-the-Sea. The governor of New York was the guest of honor and among those present were the most influential Democratic leaders of the Bay state. Little was said about politics during the luncheon, but the feeling was general that the affair was of considerable political significance, and friends of Mr. Roosevelt are of the opinion that the Massachusetts delegation in next year's national convention will be in line for his nomination. Just before the party rose from the table Colonel House ordered a toast to the governor as the man on whom the eyes of the nation are focused.

It will be remembered that Colonel House recently announced that he was corresponding with leading Democrats with a view to promoting Roosevelt's presidential prospects. Among the guests at the luncheon was Henry Morgenthau, like House a close friend of Woodrow Wilson, and it is believed he has associated himself with House in this movement with the sanction of Roosevelt, although the governor has not yet declared himself a candidate for the presidential nomination.

A L CAPONE, the world's most notorious gangster, will have to spend some years in Leavenworth penitentiary. Before Federal Judge Wilkerson in Chicago he pleaded guilty to indictments for evasions of income tax payments and for conspiring to violate the prohibition law. He will be sentenced on June 30, probably to from two to four years in prison. Sixty-eight members of Capone's gang also are under indictment for the liquor law conspiracy. Capone's rule as king of gangland is ended.

Juan Vicente Gomez

JUAN BAUTISTA Perez, obeying a demand made by the congress of Venezuela, resigned from the presidency of that republic, after evading for some time the oral and written suggestions of members of congress that he step out of office. The drive against him was managed by supporters of Juan Vicente Gomez who were determined that the veteran should resume the place he held for 20 years from the time of Castro's downfall until May, 1929. He retired then on his own motion and when Perez was elected to succeed him the constitution was amended to permit Gomez to become commander-in-chief of the army and to be responsible only to congress. An academic, rather than active type, President Perez left the task of putting down insurrections—three of which have occurred since he took office—to General Gomez and his army of 12,000 men.

Gomez, in fact, has been almost as much the ruler of the country since retiring as he was before, and his return to the presidency in the election set for June 10 was considered certain. He is getting to be an old man but retains his youthful vigor and picturesque, and probably is the man Venezuela needs.

Paul Doumer

WITH all the traditional splendor and ceremony Paul Doumer was inaugurated as the new president of the French republic, succeeding Gaston Doumergue. Premier Laval called at the senate for M. Doumer and took him to the presidential palace, their automobile being escorted by cavalry through throngs of cheering citizens, as the artillery fired the 21 gun salute. At the palace, the retiring president transferred his office to his successor, and M. Doumer received the insignia of grand master of the Legion of Honor from the hands of General Dubail, head of the organization.

President Doumer's first official act was to go to the city hall and be received by the council, after which he proceeded to the Arc de Triomphe and there, in a solemn ceremony, relighted the eternal flame at the tomb of the unknown soldier. This rite was especially moving, for M. Doumer lost four of his five sons in the war.

President Doumer received the resignation of Premier Pierre Laval and his cabinet and urgently requested Laval to retain his office. The latter consented and offered for the president's acceptance an unchanged ministry, including Foreign Minister Briand.

NEARLY 500 persons, most of them women and children, perished when a French excursion steamer capsized near St. Nazaire during a storm. Only eight of those aboard the vessel were saved.

The submarine Nautilus, carrying Sir Hubert Wilkins' under-ice polar expedition, was disabled in mid-Atlantic by the breaking down of her engines, and was taken in tow by the American warship Wyoming.

CARDINAL SEGURA, the exiled primate, slipped back into Spain the other day but was promptly apprehended and ushered out again across the French border. His presence in Spain threatened a recurrence of the attacks on church institutions, for the radicals were enraged by the news of his return. The Vatican protested his expulsion.

ONE more member of the federal farm board—the third within a few months—has resigned from that body. He is Samuel H. McKelvie, the wheat member of the board, and he said that as his term had just ended presidential acceptance of his resignation was not necessary. His successor has not yet been announced. Mr. McKelvie, who took part in the recent grain conference in London, will retire to his large live stock ranch in Nebraska.

Star for Every State in Flag of the Union

Since the admission of New Mexico and Arizona into the Union in 1912, our flag has borne 48 stars. With the addition of two more stars for these two states, it was necessary to rearrange the position of all stars in the flag. In that year President Taft issued an Executive order providing for the specific arrangement of the stars in the flag, and also designating one for each state.

Here is the pattern of the star field, with the name of the state substituted for each star:

First row—Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Georgia, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Maryland, South Carolina.

Second row—New Hampshire, Virginia, New York, North Carolina, Rhode Island, Vermont, Kentucky, Tennessee.

Third row—Ohio, Louisiana, Indiana, Mississippi, Illinois, Alabama, Maine, Missouri.

Baby Whales Hatched

For the first time, writes a correspondent of the London Sunday Observer, the Budapest zoo has been successful in hatching whales' eggs in an incubator. The four baby fish which appeared are disporting themselves merrily in a small stretch of water.

An Hungary's only considerable lake, the Balaton, would scarcely be large enough to harbor four grown whales as well as its yachting societies. It is presumed that the whales will be sold like the baby hippopotamus born at London last year, before they reach an inconvenient size.

Explosions of wrath are not so much due to a high temper as to a weak will.

Wool Growers Encouraged

Immediate reaction to President Hoover's proposal of a one year moratorium on international war debts and its resultant stimulating effects on the stock markets of the world, has come from the wool growing industry, according to reports received by the National Wool Marketing Corporation from its local units in districts where considerable volumes of wool are yet held by producers and their representatives. The prospect of stimulated international business, and the regain of confidence in the world financial structure through acceptance of the Hoover proposal, appears to hold promise of better prices to the producers. Since the President's suggestion was made public there has been a reluctance on the part of growers to sell their wool at prices now offered in the field.

The most pronounced effect of the moratorium proposal has been among agricultural bankers, who control the marketing of a considerable volume of wool. Paul A. Draper, president of Draper & Company sales agency for the National Wool Marketing Corporation, now visiting growers in Montana, reports that bankers and growers in that State are greatly encouraged and feel that the reaction of business to the Hoover proposal justifies anticipating higher prices for wool. J. B. Wilson, secretary-treasurer of the Cooperative, also in the West, reports similar reaction in wool producing circles.

Officials of the National believe that if growers and their representatives, who have control of the 1931 wool not yet sold or consigned, are inspired by the Hoover proposal and the reception given it, to resist low offers, it will mark the beginning of a stronger and more active wool market. From the last month to six weeks, growers have been sacrificing wools in large volume at below their real value, even on the depreciated Boston market of today. These wools, quickly moved into consumption at a very low dealer margin, have had a depressing effect. The National believes that these wide-spread sacrificial sales of wool, which now appear to have reached an end, have been responsible for the low markets of recent weeks.

Mr. Sol Mayer, president of the National, spent most of June in Boston, studying the Cooperative and the wool market. He was greatly encouraged at the outlook for wool, and shortly before his return home to San Angelo, Texas he issued a statement in which he expressed the opinion that wool was probably in the most favorable position of any commodity, and strongly urged growers to resist below-the-market sales. Mr. Mayer urged growers to consider the steadily rising wool consumption pointing out that the outlook has not been brighter in many years.

The Titsworth Company, Inc. WILL SELL GRAIN BINS ON 5 TO 12 MONTH TERMS

The 5 to 12 month term prices are lower than last year's prices. You pay no interest up to the maturity date.

BUTLER-DIXIE FARM ELEVATOR Handles, greatest labor, time and money saver since the combine. Elevates 200 to 750 bushels per hour into storage or box cars. Airs, cleans and conditions all small grain. LARGEST MANUFACTURER ESTABLISHES FARMERS' FIRST AID FUND TO HELP CARRY CROPS ON FARMS . .

IN readjusting their business to the new, world-wide economic situation, many farmers have extended their working capital to the utmost. Many have splendid crops yet are faced with further losses if forced to convert their new wealth at this time due to sagging prices and threatened embargoes on shipments. The Butler Manufacturing Company does not feel such farmers should be forced to make this sacrifice for the want of efficient and safe grain storage. Instead they should have the opportunity of waiting for more equitable markets which may come as a result of threatening crop conditions in other wheat producing sections.

Consequently the rainy day reserve of the Butler Manufacturing Company has been made available to help farmers properly store grain by the establishment of the Farmers' First Aid Plan. It enables your local dealer named in this announcement to extend 5 to 12 month terms without interest to maturity and prices less than last year's cash prices on Butler Economy Grain Bins. This is the same ready-made steel bin with all improvements which the two large Butler factories have supplied for 30 years and on which owners report 20-year endurance records.

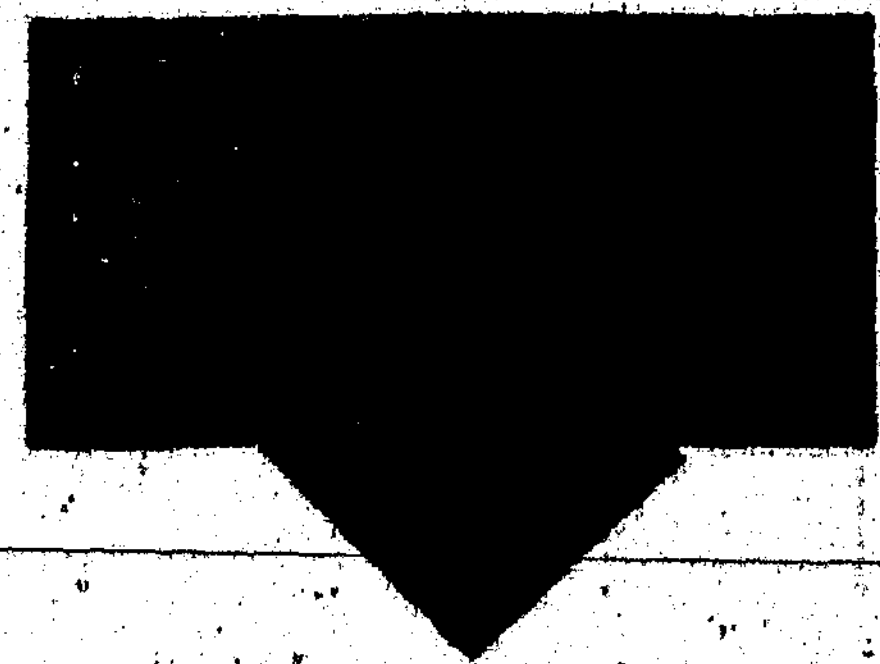

ONE HALF OF FACTORY PRODUCTION WILL BE SOLD ON 5 TO 12 MONTH TERMS

Thousands of Economy Bins and Butler-Dixie Farm Elevators will be available but not more than one-half of the production of the two Butler factories can be premised at this time. Farmers are, therefore, urged to make reservations now.

JAMES AND DOLLY MADISON ARRIVE AT "ASH LAWN" (Spiced by University of Virginia Students)

A HALLWAY THROUGH A CHURCH AT "ASH LAWN" (Spiced by University of Virginia Students)

"ASH LAWN", JAMES MONROE'S HOME AT CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

AMONG all the Independence day celebrations throughout the United States this year none is more interesting than that which will take place at Charlottesville, Va. There on July 4 will be celebrated the one-hundredth anniversary of the death of James Monroe, fifth President of the United States, author of the Monroe Doctrine and three times ambassador of the United States to a foreign land. The occasion will be under the auspices of the James Monroe Centennial Memorial Commission, appointed last spring by Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia, and will mark the first honors ever paid to Monroe officially by his native state.

The ceremony will begin with a five-minute introductory talk from President Hoover will make by radio from his camp on the Rapidan. This will be followed by an address by William B. Castle, under-secretary of state, who will speak at the University of Virginia and whose talk will also be broadcast over the National Broadcasting company chain. The ceremonies will be attended by more than a hundred members of the diplomatic corps at Washington and following the morning exercises the entire party will go to Ash Lawn, five miles from Charlottesville, the home of Monroe, where a luncheon will be served by the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Jay W. Johns. In the afternoon a reception will be held at Ash Lawn and another at Monticello, home of Thomas Jefferson, two miles away. In the evening the visiting diplomats will be given a dinner by the University of Virginia, and following the dinner another address in memory of Monroe and his anniversary will be given by Prof. William E. Dodd, the historian of the University of Chicago.

Although the principal centennial celebration will take place at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville, particular interest will center around Ash Lawn, which is to be made a new national shrine. For this lovely old colonial house, surrounded by a 600-acre estate, has been thrown open to the public by its owner, Mr. Johns, a patriotic Virginian, who purchased it last year, to prevent the estate from becoming divided and obliterated and to preserve it as a place of inspiration for Americans.

Ash Lawn was the home for 30 years during the most active period of the life of James Monroe, the last of the famous Virginia dynasty. Monroe seems never to have definitely decided on a name for this estate. "Highlands near Milton" heads most of his letters written here, but it is variously referred to by Monroe and others. Jefferson called it "Oakwood" once at least. That Monroe considered it for a name is highly probable in view of the fact that he called the estate he purchased later "Oakhill." The name Ash Lawn may well have been his selection for it shows a love of trees he is known to have had. The present owner considers it advisable to continue the use of the name Ash Lawn, as the place has been known by that name ever since Monroe's time.

Historically the home is most interesting. Monroe speaks of it as "A home of twenty-six years standing." From it he departed in 1817 to be inaugurated fifth President of the United States. He sold it late in 1823, not long before the end of his second term in office. It is located at the eastern foot of Carter's mountain on a rise of ground overlooking the eastern valley. Northward lies Monticello and southward Morven, the first Jefferson's home and the second that of William Short. These three men were friends as well as neighbors, which probably accounts for the proximity of the houses.

The first sign of Ash Lawn is a towering Norwegian pine tree, visible from miles around, standing high above all the other ancient trees on the hilltop which Jefferson selected as his he was planning during the years when he was minister to France.

One turns from the main road into a locust-bordered lane winding up to the garden entrance. Here stands the old stone mounting block, worn by many feet in the years when Monroe dispensed hospitality to visiting statesmen and diplomats. One imagines Monroe turning back at this spot for a last look at his beloved home before riding to Washington to take the oath of office; a last look at the great pine tree which dominates the estate.

From the mounting block, the white pillars of the house are almost obscured by the great box trees, almost 10 feet tall, which form the entrance to the garden. These two clumps are faced by two similar ones at the opposite side of an oval formed by English dwarf box. From this oval opens the walk, flanked by double rows of box, leading to the doorway. The garden, planned while Monroe was in France, shows decidedly the French influence. When it is remembered that this type of boxwood, under the most favorable conditions only about half an inch a year, the size and beauty of the trees which were the pride of Ash Lawn's original owner is all the more impressive.

The front part of the house was built after Monroe's time; but one steps down from the entrance hall into the original rooms, where at every turn one notes architectural details which characterize the handwork of Jefferson. Monroe had written from France to his friend at Monticello, asking him to choose a site for the home he was to build on his return, specifying that it should be in easy distance of Monticello, and including several tentative plans for the house. Here are the small paneled cupboards beside the fireplace such as Jefferson built in his own home, and a graceful arched way opening from a small hallway into the side garden.

Here and there are bits of rare old pewter; a spinning wheel, old chairs, on which Monroe and his friends sat about a blazing log fire; a cradle; mirrors reflecting the sun which comes in through the windows of French design. Much of the atmosphere of the original home has been restored in the few months since the estate was purchased by the present owner.

In the basement one finds the old kitchen, with the original floors of brick laid in a zigzag pattern, and the heavy doors still perfectly balanced on massive hinges shaped like the letter H. In the kitchen one finds many of the original iron griddles and kettles, and scarred old wood blocks. From the kitchen door a few steps lead to the icehouse, the overseer's house and the smokehouse where fine old Virginia hams were prepared.

Some of Monroe's letters show how reluctantly he left his home when he went to the White House in 1817. For seven years of his term as President he used Ash Lawn as a summer White House. He often declared to friends that Ash Lawn would be the last of his possessions to go, if he should be in financial straits. Like his friend, Jefferson, he found himself after a long life of public service, hard pressed to meet his creditors. Finally in 1820, he sold Ash Lawn in order to meet a pressing debt to the Bank of the United States.

Ash Lawn boasts a garden unique in plan and composition of this continent. Historically it has no equal, for it was almost entirely planned and planted by Monroe himself.

The garden is a masterpiece and is one of the finest boxwood gardens in America. The north and south sides are hedged with arbor vitae and bush boxwood. The house forms the western boundary; the driveway the eastern. Through the openings in the top of the arbor vitae, which is on the other side of the drive, the plateau is visible, the land rolling gently as far as it may be seen.

To one side, the south of the entrance, there extends a row of tall brush box perfectly shaped and planted in an S curve of gentle swing. This same decoration on the other side is not quite so missing and is believed to have been destroyed by fire. The narrow houseward end of the oval is flanked with two large pieces of bush box on each side. From each of these four straight rows of English dwarf box run to the front of the house where the rows are closed by four pieces of the larger sempervivens boxwood.

Between the two inside rows an old brick walk leads from oval to house. This quadruple row of English dwarf box is unique, being known only in foreign gardens.

The original brick walk goes around the left side of the house where there stands a magnificent white oak, one of the largest in the state, fifteen feet in circumference.

The foundation planing of the house is rhododendron and the base of the arbor vitae hedge on the south side of the garden is filled in with the same shrub. This planting was at one time in boxwood. The arbor vitae hedges on the north and south sides of the garden were probably planted by some one who was impatient of the growth of the boxwood. This and the vicissitudes of time no doubt account for the fact that the entire garden is not now entirely enclosed in a solid hedge of boxwood as it was originally.

This Independence day celebration at Charlottesville is the climax of the centennial celebration in honor of Monroe which has been arranged by the Memorial Commission previously referred to.

This commission also had charge of a celebration at Charlottesville on the anniversary of Monroe's birth April 23 of this year, when the famous "Lost Statue" of Monroe, a great figure, 11 feet high, carved from a solid block of Carrara marble 33 years ago for the Republic of Venezuela, was unveiled at Ash Lawn. The statue was made by Attilio Piccirilli, New York sculptor, by order of President Crespo of Venezuela, following a dispute between England and Venezuela in which President Grover Cleveland intervened under the Monroe doctrine. President Crespo had planned to place the statue before the capitol in Caracas, but before it could be sent to South America a revolution overthrew Crespo's government and he died in jail. Since that time the statue had remained in the sculptor's studio, and it was by accident that Mr. Johns discovered and purchased it to be erected at Ash Lawn.

One other long delayed honor came to Monroe this year. A bust of him was one of the four which was unveiled in the hall of fame at New York University last May. He was the last of the early Presidents to be thus honored, a fact which seems all the more unusual because of his importance in American history. Monroe has been called one of the most versatile of our Presidents. The following resume of his varied career will indicate what a busy life was his from the two years previous to the Revolution down to his death on Independence day just one hundred years ago:

- 1774—Entered William and Mary college.
- 1776—Lieutenant in Continental Army.

Darkness Explained

The Lyric Theatre was dark Wednesday and Thursday evenings, which caused many people to wonder, 'how cum'? The fact is, that during the outing period when so many of our people are away on vacations and absent from town at our mountain resorts, the management has decided that it would be better to give shows only on the nights of Friday, Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, leaving the nights of Wednesday and Thursday, dark. Mr. Earnest states that after the vacation period, he will resume with shows every night in the week. Your attention is called to the exceptional offer for next Monday night, when two people will be admitted with one paid-admission, but you must present a coupon from the front page of the Outlook at the box office when you purchase your ticket. Again, on Friday of next week, the kiddies under the ages of 12 years, will be admitted FREE. Some class to those offers. Eh, What!

Lion Should Defeat Grizzly
In an open fight between a full-grown grizzly and a full-grown lion, the victory would depend somewhat upon circumstances. As a general rule, the lion, in addition to strength and vigor, has a degree of cunning not found in a grizzly bear. Consequently, he would have the advantage over the bear and, in most cases, would come out the victor.

Idiocy of Homer?

"Have you got the 'Odyssey and Idioty' of Homer?" was the somewhat startling request recently made by a small boy to the librarian of Brightwood branch. When she pointed out that his understanding had pronunciation of Greek words was a variation from accuracy, the youngster seriously said that it didn't matter—they "sounded just alike, anyway." —Indianapolis News.
