Funeral of Dr. H. E. Pine

The remains of the late Dr. H. E. Pine, the account of his death having been published in this paper last week, arrived here on No. 12 Friday evening in charge of R. E. Stidham of Tempe, Arizona, and met at the local station by the officers and members of the local Masonic fraternity and conveyed to Community Hall where they remained until Monday afternoon when the funeral services began with singing by a choir of ladies, after which the Rev. L. D. Jordan, pastor of the Baptist Church preached a short but effective sermon in which he reviewed the life and activity of the deceased and gave an interesting account of the man whose friends were Legion. The floral offerings were many and beautiful, silent tributes of the love and esteem in which the deceased was held.

At the close of the services, the remains were taken in charge by Carrizozo Lodge No. 41, A. F. & A. M. and conveyed to the waiting hearse through a line of members of the Order of Eastern Star who were flower bearers and thence through the line of officers and members of the Masonic fraternity, thence to the cemetery, where the last sacred Masonic Rites were performed by Worshipful Master E. M. Brickley, assisted by officers of the lodge and visitors from other lodges over the state.

Dr. H. E. Pine was born at Campbell, Texas, June 29, 1877, being at the time of his passing, 54 years, 2 months and 5 days old. After completing his literary studies, young Pine entered the veterinary college at Kansas City, from which institution he graduated in 1908. On Oct. 15, 1899, he was united in marriage to Miss Callie Graham of Campbell, Tex. To this union, 6 children were born, 4 of whom preceded the father to the world beyond. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Callie Pine, one daughter, Mrs. Catherine Pine Russell, and her son, Carroll, one son, Robert Pine, all of Tempe, Arizona, two brothers, Dr. David Pine of McLough, Kansas, and Raymond Pine of Valentine, Texas, and one sister, Mrs. Nora Larmer of Dallas, Texas.

After graduating from the veterinary college, he entered the government service as inspector in the bureau of animal industry, which position he held until his death. He came to Carrizozo in 1909 and resided here 11 years, moving to Aztec, N. M., where he resided until his failing health caused him to move to Arizona.

As stated in our last issue, Dr. Pine was a Past Master of Carrizozo Lodge No. 41, A. F. & A. M., but at the time of his death was a member of the lodge at Aztec. He held his Eastern Star membership at Tempe, Arizona. He was an ideal Mason in every sense of the term. His natural courteous disposition, square dealing and true with his fellow men, generous and charitable, made him lasting friends wherever he went. To Mrs. Pine and other relatives, the Outlook extends its warmest sympathy.

Message of Merit

Among the many messages of condolence received by Mrs. Callie Pine after the death of Dr. H. E. Pine was one from Governor Hunt of Arizona and speaks for itself, as follows:

Executive Office

State House

Phoenix, Arizona

September 6, 1931.

Dear Mrs. Pine:

It was with deepest regret that I learned of the death of your husband, Dr. Pine. He was a fine, outstanding citizen of whom our State was very proud. His every action was for the betterment of our community and State. Few men, in the course of their life, make as many friends and as few enemies as did Dr. Pine.

Of course, Mrs. Pine, I realize the futility of my condoling words to soften the sorrow of your dark hour of despair, but I do want you to know that you have my sincere sympathy in this, your hour of sadness.

Sincerely your friend,

G. W. P. Hunt.

National Government Under MacDonald Supplants British Laborite Cabinet—Gifford Organizes Campaign for Relief in America.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

STANLEY BALDWIN, British prime minister, found himself caught between the two fires of the demand by the Conservatives and Liberals for reduction of the dole and the absolute refusal of the trades union congress to accept that expedient for the financial relief of the country.

At the suggestion of Mr. Baldwin, Mr. MacDonald was persuaded to resume his place as prime minister, and a cabinet, small as in war time, was selected, these being the members: Laborites—Mr. MacDonald, Philip Snowden, J. H. Thomas, and Lord Snowden.

Conservatives—Stanley Baldwin, Neville Chamberlain, Sir Samuel Hoare, former chancellor of the exchequer, and Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister.

Liberals—Sir Herbert Samuel and the marquis of Blandford.

Eight other ministers without cabinet rank were appointed.

In a radio address, Mr. MacDonald defended the proposed reduction of the dole.

Mr. MacDonald is denounced in some Labor circles as a traitor, and elsewhere is being hailed as almost a hero.

The London Daily Herald, chief organ of the Labor party, charges that the fall of the Labor government was dictated by the United States Federal Reserve bank.

SEVERAL congressmen, speaking on behalf of American shipping interests, are protesting against the deal made between the federal farm board and the government of Brazil, because the 25,000,000 bushels of wheat which will be traded for coffee will be transported to Brazil in Brazilian vessels.

Chairman Stone of the farm board said nothing could be done about it, as the negotiations had been closed.

Representative Frank L. Bowman of West Virginia declared the action of the board in allowing Brazil to arrange the transportation was a "colossal economic blunder" and in violation of the spirit of the merchant marine act.

The American Steamship Owners' association sent a protest to President Hoover.

Probably, as Mr. Stone says, nothing can be done in this instance, but it is more than likely that if the deal makes sales of wheat or cotton to China and other countries American shipping interests will be protected.

Somewhat the same plan was advocated by Senator Robert J. Bulkley of Ohio in an address before a big Democratic rally in Kenton, Ohio, in which he declared the right to control liquor traffic should be returned to the sovereign states.

Tommy Preston Takes an Interest

By JOHN FRANCIS

TOMMY PRESTON was lounging on the shady side of the porch at the Kingsboro Country club when Nancy Phelps ambled up the steps, said, "Hi, Tommy," and flopped into a chair beside him.

"What's the matter, Nancy?" asked Tommy. "You look tired out."

"I am," said Nancy. "I've been following Ted Pearson and Sam Shane around the links. What a game! Nearly everyone expected Ted to win easily, but Sam fooled us. He was three down at the turn, but on the last nine holes he came back beautifully and won at the eighteenth."

"You didn't have to be there," Tommy drawled. "You didn't see me out under that sun, watching two saps chase a golf ball, did you? You just bet you didn't. I sat here in the shade, enjoying a nice, cool drink."

"I thought you were going to enter the tournament," Nancy said.

"I was," replied Tommy, "but then I decided it involved too much work." Nancy's face flushed. She was terribly in love with Tommy, but she could not stand his indolence.

"Tommy," she said, half-pleadingly and half angrily, "aren't you interested in anything?"

"You know I'm interested in something, Nancy," he said. "I love you and you love me, too. I know that. Nancy glanced up slowly. 'You're right, Tommy,' she said. 'I do love you. But I won't marry you. Do you really want to know why?'"

"It's something I've done?" "It's partly that," said Nancy, "and it's partly something that you don't do. Shall I continue?" "Please do."

POULTRY

KEEP THE GROWING CHICKS WELL FED

Several Rations Economical and Effective.

Growing chicks should be well fed to insure health, protection against disease, rapid, economical gains while they are young, and quality flavor to the meat of broilers and fliers, says O. C. Ufford, extension poultryman at the Colorado Agricultural college.

A simple, economical and effective growing ration for the farm flock can be made, Ufford suggests, from the following ingredients:

The scratch mixture may be cracked corn of a size suitable for the chick, whole wheat or a mixture of equal parts of these two grains.

A mash mixture may be composed of the following feeds, he says: Fine yellow cornmeal, 35 pounds; bran, 25 pounds; shorts, 25 pounds; meat meal or meat scrap, 10 pounds; bone meal, 4 pounds; salt, 1 pound. Ground wheat may be substituted for the bran and shorts if desired.

When milk is available in any form, it can very profitably be fed to the flock, it is added.

"The mash should be kept in suitable, non-wasting feeders, allowing the chicks free access to it at all times," the extension poultryman says, "and feeding space should be provided so that at least one-fourth of the flock can feed at one time."

"The grain can be fed in hoppers, morning or evening, in amounts that the birds can clean up readily, or fed in a litter of straw that should be changed occasionally as a sanitary precaution.

"Green feed is a very important part of the chick's diet. When a green range, lawn clippings, alfalfa, lettuce or other greens are not available, 5 to 10 pounds of alfalfa-leaf meal should be added to each 100 pounds of the above mash mixture."

EDITORIAL COLUMN

I Ain't Tellin' Yuh—
I'm Just Askin' Yuh

With all due respect to the hombres who is augurin' an' instigmigatin' what they please to call a "Field Meet," we wishes to eenkwire with all proper awe an' bashfulness if they is goin' to likewise have anything in it what slightly resembles somethin' what might interest an old timer or a cow hand. No offense. I'm just a-asking yuh.

What we want to see, is a rodeo. (Eastern folks pronounces thit "Rodayo," an' they smiles condecendin'ly as they puts the emphasis on the "day" part.) We'n's is mornfuly plinin' for some leetle reminder of the good old days which seems as they has departed forever. This was oncel a ceow cuntry until it were ruint with sheep an' gasoline. We hasn't seen a buckin' hoss, nor a steer hogtied in so long we is gettin' plum' despondent.

Somehow, we just can't seem to git enthoused on what he has dished 'out' to us in the way of entertainment now-a-days. If this was back before the Volstead drouth hit us, we might, I dunno. I just say, we might.

Time hyar was, when the days of Fiestas was crammed full of hooray an' hilarity. Broncs was rode, steers an' goats was roped, wild ceows was milked, barbeque was thankfully an' appreciatively et; then we got ready for the night's baile.

Of course, some of the boyes had to ack like ruffness an' hoodlums. We doesn't approve of them — openly. I shamefulely recalls how some of them disgraceful scamps use t' sneek over to the canteen or up to the Headlight saloon an' then git all soused an' saturated.

But the ladies won't have to worry 'bout that no more. Bootleg don't has the same 'fect as old Bourbon, Rye an' Sour mash had. No longer we'll see the old-fashioned hombres draped over the end of the bar, mornfuly warblin' Sweet Adeline to the ackompaniment of a lot of lusty snores which comes from someone whose number 'leven was stickin' out from under a pool table where he has been tearfully drunk by the boys what is better constituted to carry what they has been imbibin'.

All them boys is now dooly repentant. They promises to ack pious an' respectful if yuh'll only have us a rodeo instid of a punkin' show, or a 'Infa' exhibition, or a kid doin's whar a bunch of school children hop 'round in some abbreviated, kiss-me-quick britches an' bats a ball 'round a floor to the chune of a tin whistle until they gits the ball into some-klad of a poke or dingus make 'out of fish net strung on a iron ring. I b'leave they calls it basket ball.

Can't we have us a Rodeo? I ain't tellin' yuh. I'm just askin' yuh.—Contributed by "Malpai Moss."

WHAT THE TWINKLING LITTLE STARS SAW

HIGH up in the darkened sky the little stars twinkled and twinkled as they looked down on the Green Meadows and the Green Forest, on the Old Pasture, the Old Orchard and the Smiling Pool. No sign was there of the little people who sleep at night, for they were hidden away in their secret places, trusting to their stillness and the Black Shadows to keep them safe from those who were hunting for them. But of the little people who see by night many were abroad. Over the Green Meadows and the Green Forest on noiseless wings, coming and going as silently as one of the Black Shadows themselves, was Hooty the Owl looking for a dinner. Just beyond the edge of the dear Old Brier Patch little Mrs. Peter Rabbit hunted for some clover leaves still green and sweet, ready to run back to the safety of the friendly brambles at the least sound.

Up the Crooked Little Path walked Jimmy Skunk. The little stars winked and twinkled more than ever. They knew where he was going. He was headed straight for Farmer Brown's henhouse. Down the Lone Little Path through the Green Forest came Uncle Billy Possum. Uncle Billy was very fat. On the edge of the Laughing Brook sat Bobby Coon very still and gazing very hard into a little pool. Billy was fishing. In the Smiling Pool was Jerry Muskrat so busy putting the final touches on his house for the winter that he could hardly take the time for a hasty lunch. You know Jerry is a great worker.

But the most interesting place on which the little stars looked down was the pond of Paddy the Beaver deep in the Green Forest. All around in the edges the Black Shadows lay, but out in the middle the pond was silvery in the starlight. Just where the Black Shadows and the silvery part met floated twelve queer looking things. The little stars twinkled harder than ever, for never before had they seen anything like these in the pond of Paddy the Beaver. They were Honker the Goose and his followers sleeping peacefully after their long, long journey from the Far North. And the little stars saw more. They saw Paddy the Beaver as busy as Jerry Muskrat, his cousin, of the Smiling Pool. He also was laying in supplies for the winter. At the same time Paddy was doing more. He was keeping watch for danger, not only for himself but for his visitors, for Paddy felt responsible for their safety. That is, he felt that he should prevent any harm coming to them. So he was very wide awake. His ears and his nose were busy every minute, on guard for sounds and odors which might mean that enemies were coming. The little stars twinkled as they watched, and presently they saw three forms creeping stealthily among the trees toward the pond of Paddy the Beaver. One came from the direction of the Old Pasture. It was Old Man Coyote. The other two were together coming from the direction of the Green Meadows. They were Reddy and old Granny Fox. The little stars have looked down on many exciting things that have happened in the night, just as jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun has looked down on many exciting things that have happened in the day time. This promised to be quite as exciting as anything they had seen for a long time, for it was very clear that Old Man Coyote and Granny and Reddy Fox were after a goose for dinner, and you know there are no hunters more clever than these three. As long as those sleeping geese were out in the middle of the pond they were safe, quite safe, but the watching stars saw that several of them were drifting little by little toward the shore. Would they wake up in time?

FOOD COMBINATIONS

THERE is no law which governs the foods that go together, nor the time or season for serving; for the kind of food served depends upon whether you live in China, or in Boston. The tastes of the people determine the food combinations. There is nothing more interesting to the average woman than foods, their combinations and methods of preparing and serving. We like and thrive on certain kinds of food and are in better health than when too many combinations are offered. As we learn to treat the body as the engineer treats his furnace, giving it fuel at stated times, not over stoking it or filling it up with too many kinds, we find we have better health and greater efficiency. If we over eat, we waste good fuel and over work the furnace; if we are under-nourished the furnace cannot give off heat or supply energy.

The three food principles which we find supplies the body in the best manner are proteins, such as meat, eggs, fish, milk and the carbohydrates, which are sugars and starches, represented by potatoes, rice and sugar; then come the fats and mineral matters, which are fully as important. We find our fats in yolk of egg, cream, butter and fat of meats. If these principles are included in each meal or during the three meals of a day we have what is called a well balanced diet.

We obtain our mineral matters, which build up bone, teeth, and nails, from green and root vegetables. Fruits give us the acids we need as well as sugar and mineral matter. The roughage which is found in the leaf and root vegetables is also valuable for its use in the intestinal tract, keeping it clean and also inciting the action of the villi in the intestine.

THE LITTLE LADIES

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

NOT all the ladies I have known were twenty-one or two. On Sunday morning, out alone to walk, as people do, Some Sunday morning fair and cool I'm always meeting some, When home again from Sunday school The little ladies come.

Within their hands a book of prayer, Within their hearts a psalm, I wish that all the ladies there Were half as sweet and calm. For, whether winter's here again Or spring, with budding grass, It always seems like Sunday when The little ladies pass.

A coat, a hat, a parasol, And shoes of black or tan, As gracefully they wear them all As any lady can. They bow to left, they bow to right; Upon the promenade, It surely is a pretty sight To me—I guess to God.

All Nations Are Building This Memorial

ALL the world claims Shakespeare, so all the world is contributing toward the erection of the new Shakespeare Memorial theater at Stratford-on-Avon, England, an aerial view of which is given herewith. It is to be a beautiful building, standing close to the lovely Avon, and will be equipped with all modern theatrical devices. The superstructure is practically completed and the theater will be ready for dedication on the birthday of the immortal bard next April.

SALT IN DAMP WEATHER

TO THE housewife damp summer weather means caked salt and stopped salt shakers. It is true that various sorts of special table salt do much to help this difficulty, and the trick of putting a few grains of rice in the salt shaker also does some good. Adding a little cornstarch to the salt undoubtedly helps to keep it from caking, though it also adulterates it. English people have a sharp dislike for the salt-shaker and this is perhaps because they have so much damp weather. They regard the open cellar as the only fit dish for salt, and salt shakers as gross Americanisms.

On the other hand we are apt to look on open salt dishes as not so conveniently sanitary as shakers. If we do use them they should be refilled before each meal and never allowed to stand uncovered where dust might get on them. Then too they should be used with little glass salt spoons—silver corrodes too readily in contact with salt.

The only trouble that pepper gives the housewife is that it loses strength if kept on hand too long. It may remain "hot" enough but loses the characteristic spicy flavor that is so much stronger in freshly ground pepper from a little hand pepper mill than in pepper shaken from a can of ground pepper that has been kept on hand for some time. Oddly enough some persons don't like the freshly ground pepper—they have become so accustomed to stale pepper that the fresh kind doesn't taste like real pepper.

Most housewives have some prejudice or other regarding the time to salt vegetables. Some insist that potatoes should be boiled in salty water, others that this takes from the flavor. Some cooks never salt meat until it is partly cooked, others do not add the salt until it is entirely cooked, while others dredge meat with a little salt and pepper before bo-

The Old Gardener Says:

PHILOX plants flower freely, and if left to themselves are almost certain to set a large quantity of seeds, which will fall to the ground and quickly germinate. Then a crop of undesired seedlings will come up all around the mother plant, in some instances perhaps crowding it out. It is when this sort of thing happens that garden makers think their plants have reverted to the distressing magenta, which is all too common in gardens. The moral is, of course, that the plant should not be allowed to go to seed, and that seedlings, which happen to come up, should be rooted out.

STAGE COACH TALES

By E. C. TAYLOR

From Stage Driver to Railroad President

THE Hon. Ginery Twitchell rose from obscurity to become one of the leading figures of the era of stage coach transportation, then president of the railroad that put his stage lines out of business, and then a member of congress.

Many a New England child, hearing the cry of "Ginery's coming! Ginery's coming!" and probably wondering what a "ginery" was, watched with delight as a great stage coach with six prancing, reeking, foaming horses came to a stop in front of the Bay-state house, in Boston, or the taverns of Worcester, Mass., or Brattleboro, Vt.

Seated atop the magnificent vehicle was a dignified, self-contained man, ruddy of face, his stout body swathed in a heavy greatcoat and on his head a tall silk hat. Ginery Twitchell would sit erect on the coachman's seat, gather the reins well in hand and suddenly be off with a great rattle of wheels and blowing of horns.

Ginery Twitchell was called "Honorable" even then. Probably it was because of his vast reputation for integrity, and, probably also because he was an inveterate politician, and always had a finger in the political maneuverings and plottings of his part of New England.

His stage coach was one of the most famous that ever rolled over the rough roads of the early days of the United States. It was built in 1837 by Henry T. Brock of Worcester, and never was repaired beyond occasionally getting a new coat of varnish. In 1840, at the request of the citizens of Barre, Vt., seats were added to the top, so that the great coach carried 32 persons, 12 inside and 20 outside.

It once carried 62 young women from Worcester on a blackberry excursion, with eight horses drawing this record load. During the presidential campaign of 1840, it carried the political leaders to and from meetings around Quinsigamond.

His last driver, Henry S. Miner, narrates that Twitchell before the days of the railroad collected election votes on horseback, and once rode from Greenfield, Mass., to Worcester, a distance of 54 miles, in four and a half hours. He had relays of fresh horses every six or ten miles, and made the ride at night.

In the days when he was a post rider, before he had accumulated sufficient funds to buy an interest in a stage coach line, he once slept in his clothes, including buckskin underwear, in the American House in Worcester for a week, waiting for despatches from British steamers. He also had men and fresh horses waiting the entire week along the road to Norwich, Conn.

When the boats arrived, Twitchell mounted his horse and started for Norwich. He met the boat, and delivered the despatches in New York hours ahead of any other post line.

Ginery Twitchell was a great favorite with those who rode with him, and the seat beside the driver was eagerly vied for, even in bad weather. He had an inexhaustible fund of racy anecdotes with which he regaled his acquaintances. The people along his post and stage routes trusted him with their business commissions, and he performed a service similar to that of the express companies of today.

After a long period of self-denial in his early days, he bought a stage coach and two horses from a Mr. Stockwell, and established a stage line between Brattleboro and Worcester. In 1833 he owned and operated a line between Barre and Worcester, and later established a stage line from Greenfield to Brattleboro.

In that year the postmaster general at Washington advertised for contractors to carry the mail and Twitchell, instead of bidding for one route, went to Washington and obtained several. Within a short time he was the largest stage operator in New England, owning a large number of fine stage lines and coaches.

One of his feats was driving a coach from Worcester, Mass., to Hartford, Conn., a distance of 60 miles, in 3 hours and 20 minutes, through deep snow. That was on January 23, 1846.

When the railroads came, Twitchell turned to the new mode of transportation, and became first president of the Boston & Western railroad.

Aviation in Canada

One of Canada's Far-Flung Trading Posts.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

ALTHOUGH the revised itinerary of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh's vacation flight to Japan and China routed them over many square miles of practically unexplored territory in northwest Canada, much of the country they traversed between Washington, D. C. and Baker Lake, Northwest Territories, has been flown by Canadian government air surveys and by aerial prospectors.

The native Indians, Eskimos and Royal Canadian mounted policemen of the Hudson Bay district have not before had such distinguished aerial visitors, but the sight of an airplane, either in winter or summer, is no new experience to them.

Few people, except those who have seen it, realize the high degree to which northern Canada has organized its air transport. Using water routes, open in summer, it has laid down a wide network of fuel and supply stations at strategic points. All around Hudson Bay, at convenient spots; down the Mackenzie river to Lake Athabasca; about Great Slave and Great Bear lakes and along the Arctic coast, and down the Yukon, these depots are set up. Now practically every district in continental Canada is within flying range of one of these stations. In fact, if you picture the Canadian airways as linked up with the air net in the United States, the broad statement is true that, given good weather, no place on the North American continent is now more than one or two days' flight from a railway.

It was in survey work and in patrols of her millions of acres of forest reserves that Canada first used planes. The first attempt to use a plane on a long distance commercial mission was made by an oil company in 1921. To meet an emergency, it started two all-metal monoplanes, on skis, from the railroad at Peace river on a 1,200-mile flight to Norman on the Mackenzie river. The weather was vile; blizzards with temperatures of 40 and 50 below zero alternated with mild spring thaws.

Pilots Are Resourceful.

One plane, landing on crusted snow, at Simpson, broke through so that a ski collapsed and a propeller blade struck the ground. But the resourcefulness of Canadian pilots, in a smash, far from shops and spare-part stores, is revealed in Pilot Gorman's laconic report on this accident:

"March 30. . . . Will try and have a new 'prop' made here. Oak sledge boards are available; also some glue. And a Hudson's Bay company man named Johnson is an old cabinetmaker. . . . We can use the damaged propeller as a pattern and use the Catholic mission workshops here.

"March 31. Found moosehide glue. Borrowed some boat clamps, so that the boards can be clamped tightly together in making the laminated propeller.

"April 15. Tested the new propeller. It works satisfactorily."

The amazing degree to which planes now wipe out miles and save time in Canada was shown by flights and photography work carried on from a base on the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. From this stormy coast Capt. Vernon ("Turk") Robinson made flight after flight, bearing surveys and supplies over a mountainous coast line into the interior plateau. He carried drums of gas by air, making caches at points far distant; from these deposits planes could operate even farther inland. Thus Grand Falls, on the Hamilton river, was finally reached. Then, after a day's flight of 800 miles, starting from Burnt lake, photographs were taken of the falls; and the next day the engineer-photographer was back in Quebec having his pictures developed. By sea and canoe, the only other means of travel, this task would have taken all summer!

Adventure, grim and perilous, is often the lot of pilots and passengers in flight over the long stretches of empty wilderness which intervene between fuel caches, camps, or settlements.

Meet With Perilous Adventures.

One party, from a base on the in-hospitable Gulf of St. Lawrence, was forced down by bad weather and had to alight on an unknown lake. A floating log ripped the bottom from their hull and the flying boat sank. Casting aside their clothing, the crew swam for the shore. They made land minus any food or equipment, and spent a week, naked, in the woods in the midst of the black-fly season. The days were blazing hot, but the nights freezing cold. Two men, badly hurt in the crash, reached the shore only with the greatest difficulty.

Fortunately, however, in the party was a land surveyor, who managed to swim ashore with a hand ax and a water-tight box of matches. Using his ax, he made a rude shelter. By snaring rabbits in the woods and killing frogs with sticks, the party kept alive for seven days, till rescued by another flying boat sent to seek them.

The search for the lost French flyers, Coll and Nungesser, in May, 1927, nearly cost the lives of Captain Robinson and his crew. They had flown along the north shore as far as the Strait of Belle Isle, then still full of ice, when a storm forced them down. Anchoring late in the evening, in the shelter of a rocky ledge, they curled up in their cockpit to await better weather. Suddenly the wind veered, blowing a gale from the open sea. Their anchor dragged and their ship smashed on the rocks. They saved their emergency kits, made a fire on shore from the wreckage of their plane, and cooked breakfast. They walked 20 miles along the beach, to a lighthouse and signal station, to report their whereabouts.

Returning from a flight up the Ashuapmucuan river, one pilot brought with him an old Indian. When invited to ride, the red man seemed in no way perturbed at the prospect. He calmly donned helmet and goggles, and settled himself in the front cockpit, as if flying were an everyday act with him. In a half hour he flew downstream a distance which just previously it had taken him six days to cover by canoe.

On landing he climbed out, stretched himself, and said to the pilot: "Bon canot! How much him cost?"

That Indian saw the advantage of air travel in the north country. Undoubtedly he graphically pictured to himself what paddlework he could save for himself and family in their long annual canoe trips to their hunting grounds, if they owned such a "bon canot!"

Flying in Winter.

In north Quebec, flying goes on summer and winter.

On a January morning Capt. Kenneth Saunders, chief pilot of the Canadian Fairchild company, started north with an engineer and a Hudson's Bay company official, on a visit to some of the northern trading posts. Unless one flies, it usually takes six weeks of mulling on snowshoes, with a dog team to haul baggage, to reach these wilderness outposts. Regions between posts are wholly uninhabited. Snow lies from four to six feet deep; trails, such as they are, usually follow the lakes and rivers, through a broken country of small timber.

When Saunders and party left Roberval the day was bright and fair, but the thermometer was 25 below. An hour up the Ashuapmucuan they sighted the first trading post and circled to land on the frozen river. Either they struck a spot where a warm spring had thawed the ice or else an early fall of snow on this ice had prevented a thicker formation; anyway, the plane broke through. The men had barely time to crawl from the cabin before the whole fuselage was under water.

Luckily, they were near the post, and Tom Moar, the Indian in charge, volunteered to walk out the hundred miles to civilization with a message. He started away within half an hour, taking only an ax, some matches and a chunk of moose meat. He made the trip in the record time of five days, sleeping twice, on the second and fourth night, in holes in the snow lined with balsam boughs, and traveling continuously the rest of the time.

Meantime the Canadians set about salvaging their plane. They made a platform of logs around the machine on which to work. As the water was not deep, a tripod of poles cut from the woods was built over the aircraft and its wings were removed.

Salvaged Their Plane.

Seven days later a rescue machine reached the scene with hoisting tackle and tools. The wrecked plane was moved safely to shore. A tent was erected around the front of the fuselage and the engine, which was a solid mass of ice. This ice was chopped out, and then a stove was lit in the tent and gradually the cabin and engine thawed out.

The metal propeller, badly bent, was straightened and the engine reassembled. The carburetor, though frozen in a solid block of ice for eight days, again worked perfectly.

On the 6th of February the plane was again ready for flight. Accompanied by the rescue machine, which had made several trips to ferry in gas, provisions, and little gifts for Mrs. Moar and her family (on whose hospitality the crew had been dependent during the salvage operations), it took off safely and flew back to Roberval.

Northern British Columbia is as inaccessible, a country as can be found on this continent. Cut off from the Pacific by the panhandle of Alaska, with its coastal mountains and glaciers, it can be reached only by the Stikine, the Peace, or the Liard rivers and their tributaries.

FINE OLD GARDEN TO BE "RESTORED"

Good News for Lovers of Horticulture.

The oldest botanical garden in the United States is located within the limits of the city of Philadelphia, and is one of the shrines of the horticulturally minded tourist. The two-hundredth anniversary of the founding of this old garden was celebrated on June 5 and 6 of this year, with ceremonies suited to the occasion. The opening day was spent in special exercises of a historical nature, and on the second day the visitors were guests at the garden, tea being served in the old home of the founder, John Bartram, a section of which was built in 1700, by Swedish settlers, and became the foundation from which Mr. Bartram built later. The building was purchased by Mr. Bartram in 1723; and the original house still remains in the garden enclosure.

The Bartram garden is now undergoing a process of restoration that will bring it back to its original form, a fitting tribute to the plot of land that has been devoted to garden purposes for two hundred years. The house has been restored to its original form and now the garden, through the efforts of the garden clubs of Philadelphia and surrounding country, will be made to resemble as nearly as possible the garden of the old days. These clubs have undertaken as their first work to restore to the garden the native rhododendrons, mountain laurel and other evergreens.

John Bartram was a native American, his birthplace being Darby, Pa., near Philadelphia. He lived to the good old age of seventy-eight and died in Bartram house in 1777. The garden is located on the west bank of the Schuylkill river, and for many years it was a most isolated spot. It was through his voluminous correspondence with Peter Collinson, a grower in London, England, and the exchange of many seeds and plants, that Mr. Bartram's work became well known.

Another famous botanical garden which ranks as the finest in the world is at Buitenzorg, Java. This garden in its present state of perfection being the product of nearly a century of effort on the part of the Dutch inhabitants of Java. So wonderful are the flowers and plants that the garden, which includes 90 acres, is known as "The Garden of the East." L. C. Breed in the Gardener's Chronicle tells us of the vegetation in this garden of wonders. The governor-general's house, which is located in the garden, is approached, we are informed, through the finest avenue of trees in the world. These are Kinnari trees reaching 100 feet overhead and have tall straight trunks, covered with staghorn ferns, Birdnest ferns, orchids and every type of parasite and air plant that the climate will permit. Mr. Breed also describes a palm that stands about 40 feet high, and a "wilderness of climbing plants," among which are the palms with branches 600 feet in length. He makes note of another palm that bears the largest fruit and the largest leaves of any known tree, the fruit being two feet in diameter, and the leaves 10 feet. Some of the trees rise to a height of 100 feet before the branches spread.

On the Firing Line

Stepping from a taxi in front of the Lambis, a hurrying author presented the driver with a $20 bill to pay a meter charge of $1.10. The driver snorted, and remarked that it was the first twenty he had seen since shortly before the war, and to expect him to change it amounted to mockery. The passenger turned to an actor shading himself on the Lambis stoop, and asked for a dollar and a quarter.

"If I had a dollar and a quarter," returned the actor, "do you think I'd impel it hanging around here?"—New York Morning Telegraph.

Wealth and happiness are not always on the best of terms.

Motor Busses Supplant Ancient Railroad Line

Motor busses have supplanted the service provided by the first steam railroad line operated in the United States and its abandonment has been recommended to the interstate commerce commission. The line, 23 miles long, was constructed by the Delaware & Hudson railroad in 1823 between Carbondale and Honesdale, Pa., to transport "stone coal," as anthracite was then known. The Storbridge Lion, first steam locomotive operated in the United States, was taken for a trial run on the line in August, 1829. The test run showed that the rails, wooden stringers capped with rolled iron strips, were not strong enough to sustain the locomotive and the steam engines were abandoned until the roadbed was strengthened several years later.

By traveling around, a man learns that lots of improvements contemplated for his home town are already established in some others.

HEARD ABOUT TOWN

Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Shaw and small son Melbourne motored down to Tularosa, the Town of Roses, last Sunday.

Deputy County Clerk Ernest Key spent Sunday visiting his parents and old Amigos at Capitan.

Jim Dow of Lincoln has moved to Carrizozo.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Greer and children of the Greer Goat ranch in the San Andres mountains, visited Carrizozo relatives and friends on Sunday of last week. It should be an excellent year for Mohair, with all of this moisture we've been having. And the Greer Goat Ranch is famous for the above-named product.

Thieves gained entrance to Prehm's Bargain House Wednesday night by cutting through the back wall of the building, taking out a lot of goods and getting away with it. Officers are hot on the trail of the thieves, we understand.

Geo. Titworth, of Titworth & Co., Inc., of Capitan, returned from El Paso Sunday, where he spent Saturday on a business mission.

H. E. Alden, bandmaster at State College, is in Carrizozo for a few days this week, tuning pianos. Mr. Alden paid this office a friendly visit, and in discussing music, said he had material at State College for a prize-winning band. He is an ex-army band leader, having been with some of the country's foremost musical organizations. Mr. Alden has a likeable manner, of pleasing personality—but when he assumes his duties as conductor of the band, he means business, with a capital B. This doesn't mean he is severe, for the band boys all swear by him.

Lell St. John, chef at the Carrizozo Eating House, has opened up a boxing club at Navarro's Hall and the boys over town are flocking there every night, all eager to learn a few tricks in the Manly Art. Some are already complaining with split lips, sore muscles and the like, but boys are boys and with few exceptions, all are willing to paste a sock on the nose or to be pasted one.

Jeff Herron of the Titworth Co. of Capitan came over to see Wheeler and Woolsey in "Hook, Line and Sinker," shown at the Lyric Theatre Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Dow and family have moved from Capitan to Carrizozo and will make this place their future home.

Carrizozo Woman's Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Oscar Clouse Sept. 18, at 3 p. m. Officers of the Club will assist the Hostess.

R. E. Lemon came in last Saturday from Lordsburg, N. M., where he had been relieving the station agent at that place for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Stidham and daughter Katherine of Tempe, Ariz., were here and attended the funeral of the late Dr. H. E. Pine last Monday. The Stidham family are close neighbors to the Pine family in Tempe and were also neighbors and old friends when the two families resided in Carrizozo.

Card of Thanks

We wish to convey our sincere thanks and deep appreciation to the host of kind friends for their many expressions of sympathy and condolence in the death of our beloved husband, father and brother, Henry E. Pine. We feel especially grateful for the profusion of beautiful flowers sent by loving friends. May Heaven be kind to you—is our heartfelt prayer.

Mrs. H. E. Pine,
Robert Pine,
Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Russell and son Carroll,
Raymond H. Pine.

Lowell Ross of Wichita, Kan., nephew of the esteemed druggist at Paden's Drug Store, came in the latter part of last week on a return trip to his Kansas home from California. Lowell remained over for the week and with his aunt and uncle, and left Sunday night. He was very much pleased with this section of the state.

Miss Harriett Blackshere of the Blackshere ranch near Ancho was a Carrizozo visitor to see "Cimarron" at the Lyric Theatre on Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. David Garcia and children arrived here last week from Bisbee, Arizona, to make this place their future home. They were residents of Arizona for eight or nine years, but Carrizozo is home to them and they were glad to return.

Ralph Hall, brother of Attorney John E. Hall, is the new Clerk at the Postoffice.

Baca-Tellez

On Monday night, Sept. 7, Juan B. Baca and Miss Angeline Tellez were united in marriage by Justice of the Peace A. H. Harvey. Both groom and bride are Lincoln County products, being born in the town of Lincoln and reared in Carrizozo. The groom is the son of Mrs. Eusebio Baca; his grandfather, Mr. Sylvester Baca, who has conducted a pool hall and dance hall on the east side for several years, being one of the county's pioneers and widely known and esteemed by his many friends. Juan B. has been one of the trustworthy employees of the highway department for a number of years.

The bride is also the offspring of a pioneer family, she being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pablo Tellez, and very popular among the young Spanish-American set of Carrizozo. Their friends express their sincerest wishes for a future and unstinted happiness.

Dr. F. H. Johnson returned the first of the week from his trip to California, where he attended the Association of Railway Surgeons at San Francisco, thence to Yosemite. He visited the Southern Pacific Hospital while at San Francisco. The doctor also visited his son LaMoyné at Los Angeles and found him doing very nicely. Drs. Johnson, Ramey and Britton were instrumental in securing the next meeting of the Association for El Paso.
