

LOCAL MENTION

Frank English, Jr., underwent an operation for appendicitis the first of the week at the Johnson Hospital and is improving nicely.

Mrs. T. E. Armstrong received word Monday of the death of her mother, Mrs. N. J. Hixon, at her home in Stamford, Kentucky, which occurred the latter part of last week.

Louis Nalda was here from his ranch last week, transacting some business. Louie was recently seen all dressed up at a dance at Lutz Hall, but no one dare accuse Louie of swinging 'em 'round, for he was only a spectator.

John Gutknecht of Chicago, who was called here on account of Mrs. Ziegler's serious illness last week, Mrs. Ziegler has improved to the extent that warranted the return of Mr. Gutknecht to Chicago.

Albert and Richard Kimbrell were here from Picacho last week, visiting their parents, Assessor and Mrs. Wm. Kimbrell.

Mrs. Albert Ziegler, who was taken suddenly ill last week, is reported to be improving, according to advice given by the Johnson Hospital.

Born—Dec. 1, to Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Terrell of El Paso; a boy. The baby's name is Don Leigh. Mother and son are doing nicely.

Jose Otero, sheepman from the Capitan country, was a Carrizozo business visitor last week.

Prager Miller was here from Roswell Tuesday, being interested in the sales and shipments of cattle.

Attorney H. B. Hamilton was here from El Paso for a short time this week in the interest of his profession.

Lum Richards, Jr., was here from Corona Wednesday attending to some business. Lum said there was lots of snow up there and if we would like to borrow some they could serve us to our heart's content.

Prof. Groce, Mrs. Groce and the little daughter spent the week-end with the Professor's parents and brother at Corona.

Mr. and Mrs. George Dingwall left the latter part of last week for Comanche, Texas, to visit George's parents and other relatives. Bill Dingwall came up from El Paso and accompanied the folks on the trip.

Mrs. J. B. French and daughter Evelyn joined Mr. French at Beaumont Hospital in El Paso for the Thanksgiving dinner. Mr. French is improving nicely and expects to be home for the holiday season.

Miss Marie Brunk, County Health Nurse, spent Thanksgiving at Las Cruces.

Mrs. J. B. French will entertain the Carrizozo Bridge Club tomorrow afternoon.

Mrs. Miller of Los Angeles, mother of Mrs. F. H. Johnson and Mrs. Johnson's brother, Mr. Stebbins of Salina, Kansas, are here this week visiting the Johnson family.

OSCURA OBSERVATIONS

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. Donoho, a baby girl. Mother and daughter are doing nicely.

The dance at Oscura Saturday night was a great success. People from all over the county, and also from Three Rivers and Tularosa attended. The "Gloom Chasers" furnished excellent music.

Sam Dillard and wife made a business trip to Carrizozo last Tuesday.

Sheriff John Brady was among those whom attended the dance Saturday night. The sheriff can surely sing a mean pair of hoofs—Eh, folks?

Sam Ward and family were Tularosa visitors last week.

The McDonalds are sporting a new Chevrolet Sedan.

J. V. Taylor shipped 6 carloads of a mixed lot of yearlings and two-year old steers to Illinois markets.

Judge Crews was a Carrizozo business visitor Wednesday.

Glencoe School Notes

The Glencoe community and school gave a program celebrating Thanksgiving Day at the schoolhouse Wednesday, Nov. 25th, at 1:30 p. m. There was a good attendance and all spent an enjoyable afternoon.

The following pupils were perfect in attendance for the three months ending Nov. 27: Olivia Gill, Paulita Gill, Preciliano Gill, Estolano Gill, Amable Valenzuela, Mike Valenzuela, Camerina Ambriz, Eudosa Ambriz. The following missed only one-half day: Candido Duran, Clarence Brown. Those who were absent only one day were: Junior Perry, Donney Hensley.

Takes Two Drinks and Passes Out For 77 Days

Lewiston, Idaho, Nov. 14.—Insisting that he "took two drinks" in Minneapolis Aug. 14 and came to his senses in the Clearwater river near here Nov. 1, William Howard, 46, who said he was a Minneapolis business man, waited in jail today for money to return home.

Howard explained his memory returned after he fell into the icy water from a raft near Harpster. Apparently, Howard stated, he had panned gold at Harpster from some time in August until he fell into the water. Officers telegraphed friends in Minneapolis, at Howard's request, for money to buy a railroad ticket.

"How I got here," the man remarked, "I don't know. I know nothing of panning gold, have no friends west of Montana, and had never heard of Harpster before."

Can't or Won't Pay Taxes

It is claimed that 25% of the real property in the north central states has reverted to the Counties because of the inability or disinclination of property owners to pay high taxes. If another 25 per cent is abandoned, which may happen, one-half the land in this state will be taxed to support the other half. Perhaps that would convince state governments that taxation can become confiscatory.—The Manufacturer.

Hunter Pinned Down By Dying Elk's Horns

Salt Lake City, Nov. 28.—A story of how, pinned to earth by the horns of an 800-pound elk, he lay quietly until the wounded animal bled to death, was related here today by W. C. Bingham. Bingham was separated from his hunting partner but he sighted the animal high up in the Wasatch Mountains south of here. He had but one bullet left but he fired and wounded the elk in the neck.

It charged and knocked him over in the snow with his horns. Bingham, protected from injury by his heavy clothing, waited for the bullet to take its toll and the animal collapsed.

Radio Listeners May Hear England—?

It is announced that a number of high power radio stations have been erected in England at enormous expense for the purpose of carrying on international broadcasts.

If Europe, which claims to be financially embarrassed and is constantly demanding that the United States pay the full cost of the World War on that account, would spend more money on legitimate domestic development and less on propaganda to induce other nations to sacrifice their own interests in behalf of the nations doing the broadcasting, there would doubtless be a better prospect of peace and prosperity in the world.

Most unemployment now existing in the United States is due to the displacement of American production by foreign production based on cheapness which is at the same time paralyzing consuming power in Europe, and therefore presenting insuperable obstacles to recovery on that continent.

America will not help the rest of the world by destroying its workers by exposing them to unfair competition with lower foreign wage and living standards.

The way those Japs and Russians refrain from attacking one another, but take it out in shadow boxing, gives rise to the suspicion that they may have an agreement among themselves back in the bushes somewhere.

Postmaster Bill Waitstein of Oscura was here for the dance at Lutz Hall on Thanksgiving night, he being a member of the "Gloom Chasers" orchestra.

Jack Chaney of Corona was here the latter part of last week.

Woman's Club of Carrizozo

(Too late for last week)

The regular meeting of the Woman's Club of Carrizozo was held at the home of Mrs. Morgan Lovelace on Nov. 20. She was assisted by Meses Ernest and George Dingwall, Ed Sullivan and L. B. Crawford. After reading of the minutes and treasurer's report, Mrs. George Titworth gave a very interesting report of the State Convention held in Roswell, Oct. 26-27. The club voted to pay expenses of delegates to the convention and to make a donation of $10.00 to the Harriett Donohoo student loan fund.

The bazaar and food sale will be held Dec. 12, at Community Hall. A committee of three, Mrs. Lawson, chairman, Meses Boughner and Barnett, was appointed to solicit canned foods for the Children's Hospital and Home at Albuquerque.

All members are requested to furnish something. There will be separate booths for candy, needlework, aprons, both fancy and utility, and a nice assortment of clothes for dolls. Coffee, doughnuts and cookies will also be served. Meses French, Lawson, Sullivan were appointed as a committee to meet with the City Council to formulate some plan of organized charity.

Mrs. J. V. Taylor will be hostess for the December meeting at her ranch home near Oscura. The club voted to change the date to Saturday, Dec. 19. The Transportation Committee are: Meses Barber, Rentfrow and Claude Banum.

The following program was arranged by Mrs. J. B. French: Paper, "Nutrition," Miss Brunk; Play, "Merry Microbes," School Children—directed by Mrs. Ziegler; Reading, Mrs. Paul Mayer; Talk on Charity, J. E. Hall, Jr.

The meeting adjourned for delicious refreshments served by the hostess and her assistants.

I. O. O. F. Elect Officers

At the regular meeting of Carrizozo Lodge No. 30, I. O. O. F., held on Nov. 24, the following officers were elected for the ensuing term of six months:

N. G., Charles Jordan
V. G., Lawrence H. Dow
Sec'y, Wm. J. Langston
Treas., Robt. A. Walker

The appointive offices to be filled by the Noble Grand and Vice Grand will be made and the official roster in full, will be announced after the installation.

J. W. Morris and son Jack were here from the Morris ranch 3 miles west of Capitan Saturday.

NOGAL NEWS

The snowfall at Nogal at this writing is 9 inches, and further south and east it is heavier. Roads are almost impassable.

Mrs. Ethel May has leased the Nogal Service Station and will now try to serve motorists with the best of gasoline and oil. Your patronage appreciated.

Harry and Wm. Gallacher were up again after some more vegetables and also purchased a nice, fat, dressed hog from J. J. May.

Chas. LeBaron has leased his farm on the flats to some eastern farmers.

Jim Gatewood relieved the mail car driver on the main line for a few days last week.

The pie supper and program was quite a success. Several dollars were raised for the Xmas fund, and we are very grateful to those who helped.

Ira Robinson was up from Oscura Wednesday and reports no snow in his district.

OddFellows' Entertainment

Sixty-five OddFellows, Rebekahs and their friends gathered at OddFellows' Hall Wednesday night and enjoyed a splendid program of music, both vocal and instrumental, together with short addresses on OddFellowship.

There were two selections by Prof. D. U. Groce with an orchestra of ten pieces from his High School Orchestra of thirty-one pieces. These numbers were followed by an address by Prof. D. U. Groce, who served in that capacity in the absence of his father, D. L. Groce of Corona, who found it impossible to attend. Prof. Groce's address beamed with the high lights of OddFellowship and the fundamental principles on which the order stands.

Prof. Groce's address was followed by the Meses Leslye Cooper and Jane Kimbrell who sang two beautiful duets, and gracefully responded to an enthusiastic encore. With another selection by the orchestra, Mr. E. M. Brickley gave an interesting address, taking "Friendship" for his subject, which furnishes the theme and spirit of the First Degree in OddFellowship. Like the speaker who preceded him, Mr. Brickley's address was full of the good things for which the order stands and was much appreciated.

Following the program, a long table was spread over the full length of the hall, the seating capacity of the table being 35 and the first table being filled by the ladies, with Rev. L. D. Jordan of the Baptist Church invoking the divine blessing. An oyster supper followed and after the ladies had been served, the table was cleared and the men served, all of whom received the attention of the arrangement committee. The affair closed about 10:30 o'clock.

Mr. McGruder of the State Tax Commission was here this week on official business.

The Meses Glenneth English and Ruth Brickley who were here for Thanksgiving and the week-end with the home folks, left Monday for Albuquerque to take up their studies at the University.

CHAS. HENRY LUTZ Dies at Roswell

Yesterday morning at 4 o'clock, Chas. Henry Lutz, beloved son of Henry Lutz, Chairman of the Lincoln County Board of Commissioners, died at Roswell, according to word received here shortly after his death.

Mr. Lutz was born in Lincoln where his father was for many years engaged in the general mercantile business before coming to Carrizozo. After graduating in our local schools, he attended the Roswell Military Institute and afterwards entered business with his father where he remained until the world war came on when he enlisted and served overseas, returning home with many honors.

He was badly wounded in the service and was in a military hospital in France for months before he could be discharged and return home. But even after his return he spent a long time in a government hospital.

He again entered into business with his father, and served one term as a member of the Lincoln County Board of Commissioners, after which he went to Roswell, where he conducted a large business in the line of tailoring, cleaning and pressing.

When the term of the Roswell Postmaster expired, Mr. Lutz was appointed to that position, where he gave the best of satisfaction and continued at that post of duty until he was stricken with illness about two weeks ago and which caused his death. The sad news coming on the eve of publication, we have not been informed as to the disposition of the remains.

He was an honorable, upright, conscientious citizen and had many warm friends over the two counties, Chaves and Lincoln who will be grieved to learn of his passing. He leaves a wife, one small daughter, his father, and two sisters, Mrs. O. W. Hamberger of Dalhart, Texas, and Miss Belle Lutz of Carrizozo, to all of whom the combined sympathy of the people of this section is extended.

More Workers on New Mexico Farms

In New Mexico the demand for farm help and cotton pickers increased slightly during the month, while many migratory workers found employment in the bean fields, according to a monthly report of Mrs. E. A. Perrault, state employment director.

Approximately 1,000 persons were engaged in gathering pignuts. Highway construction decreased as several projects were finished.

Volume of building expanded in various sections affording employment to quite a number of workers.

250 Railroad Men Go Back to Work in Denver Shops

Denver, Dec. 1.—250 railroad workers went back to their old jobs today as the local shops of Denver and Rio Grande Western shops reopened.

In Salt Lake City a similar number were rehired at the D. & R. G. shops there.

The reopening of the Denver shops will increase the payroll of the local railroad $50,000 a month, it was estimated.

Sheriff Brady spent Wednesday at Las Cruces on official business.

Japanese Defeat Chinese in Bloody Battle While League Council and Dawes Seek Road to Peace.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

HOW to bring to an end the unofficial war between Japan and China was the problem that was taken up again by the council of the League of Nations at its meeting in Paris. And, coincidentally, there was the job of extricating the league from the unpleasant situation created by Japan's flat refusal to obey its orders. The distinguished diplomats were aided in their task by Ambassador Dawes, who was instructed to proceed from London to act as American observer.

While the council discussed, debated and conferred, the Japanese troops went right along with their program in Manchuria. Gen. Ma Chan-shan, commander of the Chinese army in Heilungkiang province, was ordered by General Honjo, Japanese commander, to withdraw his troops from Angashan and Taitshar, the latter the capital of the province. Ma refused to obey and the Japanese opened a fierce attack with all arms, including bombing planes which dispersed the Chinese cavalry. In bitterly cold weather the battle raged for many hours and the Chinese were finally forged out of both the cities named. In this operation the Japanese troops advanced within the sphere of influence of Soviet Russia for the first time, and as Moscow had warned them against doing this, it was believed the result might be momentous. In this big battle along the Nonni river both sides were reported to have sustained heavy casualties.

Anticipating a Russian protest, Japan notified Moscow that it held the Chinese Eastern railway partly responsible for the hostilities because it had transported Chinese troops.

IN PARIS General Dawes was much more than an observer. Indeed, he was the central figure and it was hoped that in his talks with Tameo Matsudaira, Japanese ambassador to London, a compromise might be worked out. Dawes also had a long conversation with Mr. Alfred Cox, Chinese delegate, which both of them said was most profitable. There were rumors that the United States had come to the conclusion that Japan's contentions should be upheld, and the league officials were worried. But these stories were refuted by a statement from Secretary of State Stimson to the effect that the United States stood firmly on the question of treaties and had not thus far committed itself in any way. Dawes and the council were trying to gather the real facts in the controversy, and Japan was asked to state in detail just what she demanded from China. There was a report that Dawes and Sir John Simon, British foreign minister, were contemplating invoking the league power treaty signed at Washington in 1922.

Aristide Briand, president of the council, though exhausted to the point of illness, was as busy as Dawes, especially in negotiations with Kenichi Yoshizawa, the Japanese delegate and his close friend. From Nanking came two important items of news. One was that the Kuomintang congress had declared in favor of war on Japan in case the league should fail to settle the quarrel. The other was the statement of the Nationalist government that it would regard any Manchurian government headed by Hsuan Tung, former emperor, otherwise Henry Pu-yi, as a "puppet institution" and would repudiate all its acts. Hsuan Tung was taken to Mukden by the Japanese, who presumably intended to make him a puppet emperor of that country, but what had become of him was unknown. He was said to have declared he would commit suicide rather than serve as a tool of Japan.

WHEN congress assembles there will be again a woman member of the senate, for Mrs. Thaddeus H. Caraway has been appointed to succeed her late husband temporarily as senator from Arkansas. The only other woman senator we have had was Mrs. Rebecca Felton of Georgia, who held the office nominally and for but a short time. Mrs. Caraway, however, may be expected to be an active member, for she was a close student of politics and government during the long public life of her husband. It is likely that the Arkansas Democrats will nominate her for the special election to be called and in that case she is certain to be elected to fill out the unexpired term. The next place in the house of representatives will go to another vote through the nomination of Donald McLean by the Republicans of the Fifth district of New Jersey to complete the term of the late Ernest H. Ackerman. He will contest for the seat with Percy H. Stewart, Democrat. At a special election December 1, both the gentlemen are advocates of revision or repeal of prohibition, while Mr. Ackerman was a Republican and Mr. Stewart a Republican.

PRESIDENT HOOVER announced that he had accepted the resignation of Henry P. Fletcher as chairman of the federal tariff commission to take effect on November 30. Mr. Fletcher some time ago indicated his wish to resign, but at the President's request remained in office. He had served since the commission's organization, 14 months ago. In submitting his resignation Mr. Fletcher appended a report of the commission's work, showing that by November 30 its docket would be cleared of all applications and senate requests for information.

GERMANY and France, represented by Secretary of State Budlow and M. Briand, reached an agreement on the formula by which the Germans should call for a moratorium on reparations under the terms of the Young plan, and the text of the request was presented to the world bank at Basel after the American and British representatives in Berlin had been shown the letter. The German government asks the world bank and the International powers to investigate her ability to pay the reparations and to help Germany formulate a plan to pay her private debts. The latest report of the Reichsbank shows that despite a favorable trade balance achieved by Germany in October, the Reichsbank is still very short of foreign currency.

DINO GRANDI, brilliant young foreign minister of Italy, and the mouthpiece of Premier Mussolini, has had his three days of conversations with President Hoover and departed from Washington, well satisfied. The results of the talks have not been made public at the time of writing, but it is known that the chief topic was disarmament, in which both Mr. Hoover and Mr. Grandi are deeply interested. Grandi brought with him Signor Augusto Rosso as one of his chief advisers because Rosso is an expert on naval affairs and Italy is especially concerned with the comparative strength of her navy. Signor Rosso is at present chief of the Italian foreign office division that deals with the League of Nations, and there have been hints that he might be a future ambassador to Washington.

Signor Grandi was gratified with the news that Aristide Briand, as head of the league council, had declared officially that the one-year armament building truce is in effect as of November 1, for this truce was the suggestion of Grandi—though he called it "an American-Latin idea." In his talks with the correspondents he said: "We think in Italy that the question of disarmament is the most important question existing now in the relations between countries, and that it is high time for everybody to reach some practical result." Asked for his views on war debts and reparations, he called attention to Mussolini's statement in 1922 that war debts and reparations were dependent upon each other and should be settled down.

THEODORE DREISER, eminent author, and the other members of the self-appointed committee that went to Kentucky to investigate the alleged ill-treatment of coal miners in Bell county got themselves into a peck of trouble if the authorities of that state can get hold of them. The grand jury in Bell county indicted Dreiser and his nine companions on charges of criminal syndicalism, accusing them of seeking to promulgate a reign of terror and of suggesting disorders and resistance to the state and federal governments. Conviction carries a penalty of not more than twenty-one years imprisonment, a fine of $10,000 or less, or both. The commonwealth's attorney announced he would seek to extradite the alleged offenders, and Dreiser said in New York he would fight extradition. The author and Marie Bergano, one of the committee, already had been indicted for misconduct in a Kentucky hotel.

PHILIP SNOWDEN, who served a quarter of a century and for two terms was character of the ex-convict, has been created a vice-consul by King George and awarded to the house of peers so that he may hold the office of lord privy seal in the national government. He declined to run for re-election to the lower house because of ill health.

MAHATMA GANDHI informed the British government that unless it did something for India by December 1 he would call for Bombay on December 4 to lead a new and greater civil disobedience movement in that country. In that case it is likely he will order a social as well as a commercial boycott against the British, which would mean that no Indians would work for British individuals. British troops were sent to Kashmir recently to help put down a Moslem revolt in that Indian state, and the Russian government protests, considering the military movement as a distinct menace to its frontier. In consequence Moscow made threats against Afghanistan which led the Afghan government to ask Turkey for the services of a military mission to reorganize its army. And Sir Hari Singh, maharajah of Kashmir, objects to the British taking charge of his country.

MORE trouble has come upon the bureau of prohibition through the killing of a youth in Englewood, Colo., by Henry Dierks, a dry agent. The people out there are greatly aroused, and the bureau started an investigation of the affair. Dierks, in making a raid, found the young man, Milford Smith, in possession of a bottle of wine and in a struggle with him clubbed him to death. The city council of Englewood passed and sent a resolution to the bureau in Washington a resolution in which were set forth some of the incidents in Dierks' career. It charged that Dierks, while acting as an undercover man a few years ago, had employed a 17-year-old girl as an informer; that he had got drunk collecting evidence in a raid and that in 1930 he had clubbed a helpless prisoner with his revolver. Howard T. Jones, assistant director of prohibition, said this was all news to the bureau and that there was nothing in its records to the discredit of Dierks.

According to the Englewood police, Dierks fractured Smith's skull with a blow with the butt of his revolver and then placed him in jail where he remained nine hours without medical attention. Smith died soon after being taken to a hospital.

NEGOTIATIONS between the United States and Canada for the development of the international section of the proposed St. Lawrence seaway reached the stage of first formal exchanges relating to the allocation of costs and engineering structures, and it is hoped a treaty will be ready for senate action early next year. The State department announced that the representatives of both countries "proposed to keep in touch with the respective provincial and state authorities in the consideration of the power features of the development." This is of immense interest to New York and Gov. Franklin Roosevelt who has opposed the views of the federal administration concerning power.

The discussion so far has dealt with the 45-mile international section, extending from Ogdensburg, N. Y., to a point opposite Cornwall, Ohio. Secretary Stimson and Canadian Minister Heridge made arrangements for reconvening of the joint engineering board, which will attempt to agree on procedure in the international section.

NONE of the party leaders in Washington now seem to doubt that there will be legislation to increase federal taxes, for the deficit at the end of the present fiscal year will be too big to be taken care of by further bond issues. Senator Jim Watson of Indiana, majority leader of the senate, said a tax increase was "inevitable," and as he had just been in conference with the President it was assumed this was the opinion of Mr. Hoover. Senator Snoot of Utah, chairman of the finance committee, admitted there would have to be further taxation and thought it might be possible to obtain passage of a sales tax. Senator Fess of Ohio said: "The budget must be balanced even if we are compelled to take drastic measures such as was done in England. One line of effort is reductions which are being made so as to reduce the outlay. The other must be increase in revenue. I also believe that there will be enacted excess taxes on certain articles." Senator Dillingham of Connecticut advocates restoration of nuisance taxes, especially on soft drinks. The "progressive" Republicans are calling for higher income taxes in the higher brackets, and there may be little opposition to this in either party.

Democratic leaders had less to say for their program is not yet settled. Anyhow they expect the administration to recommend the tax increase and thus shoulder the responsibility, after which they can decide how they think the deficit should be met.

AMERICAN exporters, already worried by the seeming certainty of British tariff legislation, were further dismayed by the news that the Turkish government had issued a decree drastically limiting the importation of 1,000 articles, no consideration being given to merchandise in customs or on route. America is hit by limits placed on such articles as automobiles, motion picture films, cameras, stoves, automobile tires and radios. Comparatively small amounts of these articles will be permitted to enter the country during November and December, and new quotas will be fixed for succeeding months.

TWO stockings hung from either side of the mantelpiece of an old-fashioned room. They were well filled. They bulged inartistically but generously at every possible place. Over the pictures on the walls were large branches of spruce green. In one corner of the room stood a small Christmas tree, gayly bedecked with tinsel and favors and on the very top was perched a cardboard Santa Claus who still appeared as ruddy and festive as he had when first he had stood there seventeen years before. The stockings which hung so heavily looked as though they would drop their load any minute but they were securely fastened and held down at the top by heavy books.

"Mumple," cried a girl's voice. The front door had just opened. "Hello," came back the answer from the woman sitting before the fire in the living room. She gazed with half-wistful eyes at the stockings, then she called, although she knew the answer—

"Yes! Who is it?" "Oh, Mumple," the girl exclaimed as she came in the door, "how lovely the house looks! And you've trimmed the stairway since I've been gone. Did you put some green in the pulpit?"

Louise Waterbury ran out of the living room and up the stairs, around the head of which was an opening which strongly resembled a pulpit architecturally. There again and again as a child Louise had preached "sermons" to Mumple who had sat on the stairs, the sole listener to her oft-repeated text and sermon on the theme she loved the best. It gave her a chance for so many repetitions, and again and again, in her own way she would give her text. "Samuel, Samuel," and he answered "Here am I." Again and again the Lord would call Samuel in Louise's recitation. If she had gathered some of her friends together at any time she had formed a choir procession and they had added to the service by singing "From Greenland's Icy Mountains." It was such a graphic hymn. She could see India's coral strand, the great icy mountains of Greenland and the hot soil of Africa—all vividly in her mind. She was glad the hymn had been written by some one who had had traveled—she was sure it must have been.

Yes, the pulpit had been decorated with great branches of green spruce and pine and hemlock. There was nothing in the house which didn't show that it was Christmas time and the room where they sat, with its four windows, its wreaths at each one, its white woodwork, its huge open fire dancing gayly and throwing shadows and lights and making a wonderful series of fantastic, fanciful pictures on the walls, all breathed the spirit of the season.

So they had sat every Christmas eve for seventeen years. Mumple had waited until Louise was a year old to decorate the house. "Hadden't we better be having supper now? We've a long evening ahead."

So these two celebrated their Christmas together, one of them old, the other young. And when Louise said good-night to Mumple one little happy tear did escape her, and Mumple felt it on her cheek.

"What's the matter, dearie?" "Nothing at all!" Louise exclaimed. "Only I've been thinking that the most wonderful gift of all, the most beautiful Christmas gift, or gift of life or anything and everything, in the way you have always made us have so much happiness and so much joy out of keeping 'days' and entering into the spirit of them, and in making the day-by-day living something so beautiful and so happy. Oh, Mumple, you put the spirit of Christmas into every moment of the year." And Mumple hugged Louise and said: "My dear, you're the secret of it all. It is because a young, young creature such as you, has never, never made me feel old!"

An unofficial compilation of the checking station records show that 2,035 deer were checked out of the Black Canyon "two-deer" area on the Gila National Forest during the 1931 hunting season, according to D. A. Shoemaker, range examiner of the Albuquerque regional office of the forest service. Of the total deer killed 1,884 were does (a few spike bucks were checked as does), 661 bucks and 50 fawns.

Gov. Arthur Seligman of New Mexico drove the golden spike which marked the completion of the Felt, Okla.-Farley, N. M., sector of the Santa Fe railroad's Colmar cutoff. Five thousand persons crowded about the new Santa Fe railway station in Clayton, N. M., to welcome the arrival of the first passenger train from Dodge City, Kan., to Farley over the new line. The Felt-Farley line was constructed at an estimated cost of $2,225,000.

A drainage bulletin for New Mexico, recently issued by the bureau of the census, containing state and county statistics, shows the organized drainage enterprises in the state as covering 178,222 acres. Of this amount 146,557 acres comprises improved and $9,736 acres unimproved land. There were 142,750 acres sufficiently well drained to raise a normal crop; 19,222 acres fit for a partial crop; and 15,220 acres unfit to raise a crop because of lack of drainage.

Resolutions favoring a copper tariff for the protection of Arizona's copper industry were adopted at a meeting of the Arizona Bankers' association which was held in Nogales.

Nearly 75 per cent of the 14,171 farms in Arizona are free of mortgages, and the average farm debt is lower than in 1926. Willard D. Mills, president of the Federal Land Bank, Berkeley, Calif., said in Phoenix recently. "The average farm mortgage is $1,187. Yet in 1926, when Arizona had 14,962 farms, the average was $2,047."

WOMEN: watch your BOWELS

What should women do to keep their bowels moving freely? A doctor should know the answer. That is why pure Syrup Pepsin is so good for women. It just suits their delicate organism. It is the prescription of an old family doctor who has treated thousands of women patients, and who made a special study of bowel troubles. It is fine for children, too. They love its taste. Let them have it every time their tongues are coated or their skin is sallow. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is made from fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other harmless ingredients. When you're a sick headache, can't eat, are bilious or sluggish; and at the times when you are most apt to be constipated, take a little of this famous prescription (all drug stores keep it ready in big bottles), and you'll know why Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the favorite laxative of over a million women!

A Candle in the Wilderness

A Tale of the Beginning of New England

by Irving Bacheller

WNU Service Copyright by Irving Bacheller

THE STORY

Robert Heathers and William Heydon, to escape secular and religious tyrannies, leave England in 1434 for the New World. They are welcomed at Boston by Rev. Doctor Cotton and make acquaintance with Amos Todd, veteran soldier and woodsman. Heydon falls in love with Elizabeth Brade. The young men settle down to the life of the colonists. Adverse comment forces them to dispense with their pretty cook, Mabel Hartley. Robert is smitten with Peggy Weld, who is engaged to James Rosewell. Mabel Hartley and a youth, whom she says was Heydon, are accused of adultery. Heydon and Heathers disappear.

CHAPTER IV

In Peril of the Hempen Rope

The little town was in a ferment, the like of which it would be hard to find in all its history. The best people agreed that if Robert had been the guilty one they would have been the less amazed. There were women, even those without the grace and charm of youth, who were saying: "The sleek, handsome, secret, villainous contriver! I would never have trusted myself with him a bow-shot from home in the night."

Sir Harry Vane went to the Brades' house soon after the hue and cry started. He found them crushed with sore astonishment and humiliation. Bees fell upon Sir Harry with a passionate plea.

"This is a lie—a cruel lie!" she declared. "I know it is a lie. You and my father must mount your horses and go and keep those fiends from harming him."

"I think that she is right," said the young nobleman. "We must go and do what we can for the boy."

As soon as the horses could be brought they mounted and rode away, each with sword and pistol. The hue and cry had crossed the neck and split at a fork in the main path to the freshwater river, about half a mile to the west. A part of the howling mob held this path. Mr. Brade made his way through them while Sir Harry headed the caravan that went up toward the clearing of Heydon and Heathers. Soon the dogs stopped. Led by a keener Spanish hound they made off in the woods, Sir Harry following, for it was high ground. They were not long in finding William.

"You are a good friend to come out to find me," said he. "Sir Harry, you never looked better. I have been lost since midnight when I strayed from the path. It has not worried me. I slept until awakened not long ago by a great noise."

He now observed the trouble in the face of his friend.

"Have you bad news?" he asked. Sir Harry review the damning testimony produced in court.

William turned pale, his friend put his arm around him fearing that he would fall. William stood apart, straightened and looked down in deep thought.

"Old friend, what is the truth of this matter?" Sir Harry asked.

The younger one answered with trembling lips. "The truth is, I'm done for."

He stood a moment pecking at the small mustache on his lip and saying: "I'm sorry for myself—but mostly for others. I will go and face the court and take what is coming."

"You ride the horse," said Sir Harry. "I will walk by the bride. Near the path I will mount behind you. We will slip around that pack of ruffians."

The shouting and horn blowing served to guide them toward the path. Some twenty rods away they veered around the mob and came out below it and hastened to the courthouse. Elizabeth Brade and her mother met them at the door. The girl seized the hand of her lover, saying: "Dear one! I know it is not true. What has happened to you?"

William was like one in a daze. He leaned upon his friend. His lips trembled. He looked at the girl and spoke—a riddle that passed from lip to lip, and gave for one possible solution; it would have burned her brain to ashes.

"Beas, this is the hardest part of it. Remember that whatever else may be said of me, I am no coward. God help you to stand and, chiefly, to understand what is coming."

News of the arrival of the guilty man reached the magistrates. A constable came out. He escorted the prisoner to the bar. The court discontinued the affairs it had been discussing. In a low solemn tone, that showed at times a sign of emotion, the kindly Governor Winthrop addressed the young man. He read aloud the evidence of the housekeeper, of Peggy Weld and her brother Henry who had talked with Robert at the Governor's house, of Mabel Hartley, sometimes a servant in William's house. He announced to the prisoner that the court was ready to hear any evidence he could present in his own behalf. His hands on the bench and among the spectators were shocked and amazed by his answer.

"Your honor, I have no evidence to offer. I submit to the mercy of the court."

"Where is your friend—Robert Heathers?"

"I do not know."

"He is not to be found within the jurisdiction of this court."

The governor conferred a moment with his assistants. He spoke again to the prisoner:

"William Heydon, since a time far back in the ages, even before God gave his commandments to the children of men, the marriage tie has been the mainstay of civilization. Unless it be upheld men and women lose their respect for God and man and become as the beasts of the field. They lose the love-of-all-good-things-and-soon even their own children are like unto the weanlings of the flock, indifferent to father and mother. With us, the home is the foundation of the state. Its respect for law, its steadfast virtue, is our main dependence. In a new land where to the ill-schooled law is merely a menace, and the thoughtless exceed the wise in number, we must be severe with all disorders tending to corrupt the life of the family, otherwise our little commonwealth would soon crumble into the dust. You shall be taken hence to the prison and be there confined until tomorrow morning at ten o'clock, when you will be brought to this court to make a formal plea of guilty and to receive its sentence."

There was much loss of sleep in Boston that night. Early in the evening Sir Harry Vane was at the Brades'. It was a shocked and dejected family group. Elizabeth had solved the riddle in William's words to her own satisfaction. She quoted the first sentence:

"Remember that whatever else may be said of me I am no coward. Now the man who was with the woman was a coward. He ran away. He was Robert Heathers. He is still running."

"Now take the other words: 'God help you to stand and to understand what is coming.'"

"The woman is in love with Robert. They have met many times. She adores him. That is why she puts the crime on Will, for whom she has a spite. She resented his cleaning the house of her. Perchance he had begun to suspect the secret relations between her and his friend."

"But there is more in this word 'understand.' We are to understand that he is a gentleman. That he would not put the crime on his best friend even to save himself."

"In all this you are quite right," said Sir Harry. "We must remember that these boys have been friends, inseparable as the swans of Juno. They were like brothers. Yet you have not probed to the bone of this matter of understanding. William has a brain that is never idle. It is swift to see to the end of a problem. Suppose he were to set up a defense and say: 'It was not I. It must have been Robert, for I have long suspected guilty relations between him and this woman.' It would be like blowing against the wind. The case against William is perfect—the woman, the constable, the coat, the discovery of the prisoner in a lonely part of the forest, with no explanation of his being there which the court will believe."

"The coat was undoubtedly that of William Heydon," said Mr. Brade.

Beas answered quickly: "The boys often wore each other's clothes. William's best coat was less damaged by the sea and Robert was going to meet a grand lady at the house of the governor."

She arose, saying: "I really must go to the prison and assure him of our love and faith in his honor."

Her father spoke out firmly then. "I forbid you to go there. Whether he be guilty or innocent, he is disgraced. You must put him out of your heart."

"I can die but I cannot put him out of my heart," the girl answered, a look of despair in her face. "If he dies I shall find my way out of this evil world."

Sir Harry answered her: "You broken lily! I would I had the cunning hand to mend and refresh you. I am going now to plead for the boy in a special session of the court in Dudley's house. It will meet at seven o'clock. God help me with those flinty, indurated Puritans. I hope that I can save the boy—a task for which I am prepared the better by your understanding."

He hurried to the house of Thomas Dudley. The grave-faced magistrates and their assistants had been discussing the case. All save Governor Winthrop were in favor of the plea of death for the prisoner. Dudley so informed the young man, who took issue with the court squarely in these words: "Gentlemen, you cannot take this man's life."

"Why can we not?" Endicott asked, his ire rising. "Have we not abundant proof?"

"Oh what?" Sir Harry inquired.

"Of adultery."

"Well, gentlemen, let us assume that the crime is proved. I can prove that Robert often wore William's coat. The young men resemble each other closely. How in the feeble light of that lantern could the woman or the constable have been sure of the man?"

"The woman has today admitted to me that she may have been wrong. I ask why has Robert Heathers fled from the jurisdiction of this court? William Heydon did not flee. On his way to his clearing in the dark he wandered from the path and was lost within a mile or so of this courthouse."

"Who of you with the life of a human being in his hands—and that the life of a citizen hitherto loved and respected—would venture to say on this evidence that he is the guilty man? At least is there not a serious doubt of it and are you not bound to give the prisoner the benefit of that doubt?"

"Since he was a lad in school I have known this William Heydon—the son of an English gentleman—the best bred and schooled. I knew him as a youth of the noblest ideals of conduct, and I declare, solemnly, that I think you have the wrong man by the ear."

"Do you think that Robert Heathers is the adulterer?" Winthrop asked.

"I do, and for this reason. The woman was in love with Robert. She disliked William, who had dismissed her. For these reasons she swore falsely. It appears also that Robert often wore William's best coat, his own having been soiled at sea. I think that he wore it that night. William has neither confessed nor denied his guilt. He simply asks for the mercy of the court. The case looks perfect to him but not to me. In my judgment, the identification of the constable is of slight importance considering how closely the boys resemble each other, the excitement and the dim light. William has done what any well-bred youth would be likely to do. He refuses to put the crime on his friend. He might refuse even if the case against him were not hopeless. Robert ran away. William did not. Action should be deferred until Robert Heathers can be brought within the jurisdiction of this court."

Sir Harry bade them good night. He had impressed without convicting those solemn men. Until near midnight they argued with one another, striving to discover the will of God in this business. Winthrop favored certain vital contentions of Sir Harry Vane. They agreed upon their course of action and went to their homes.

At eight-thirty next morning the court convened. Long before that hour its seats and aisles were filled with the best people of Boston and a crowd was at the doors. A little before ten the constables came in with their prisoner.

Koreans Cling to Old Customs in Marriage

It is the rule in Korea for a newly wedded woman to enter the family of her husband, though in a few cases the man makes his home with her family. Marriage cannot be contracted between near relatives. Monogamy, taught by Confucius, has been observed from ancient times, but as the chief object of marriage was the perpetuation of the family, concubinage was formerly recognized when a marriage proved childless. The marriage of young people is usually arranged by their guardians without regard to their wishes, but there is a tendency to respect the will of the parties themselves. Until the day of marriage the engaged couple do not meet and have probably never before seen each other. A wedding is always conducted at the bride's home and after that the bridegroom takes her to his house. In the days of the Korean government the prescribed age of marriage for males was 15 and for females 14, although many males were married younger. Since 1915 no marriage of a male under 17 or of a female under 15 is legal.

Exit the Ghost

The tourist was making a tour of inspection of the very ancient-looking hotel.

"Charming old place," he mentioned to his companion, a regular boarder.

"Yes," mumbled the other, steering his head past an old oak beam just in time to save a nasty bruise.

"They say it's haunted," went on the tourist enthusiastically.

"Yes, it need to be," replied the regular boarder, "but the management raised the prices so high the ghost left."—London Answers

Take the Joy Out of Life

As we understand the doctors, you can live much longer if you will quit everything that makes you want to live.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Stock Must Have Plenty of Water

Supply Should Be Warmed in Cold Weather to Produce Gains.

Thirsty stock do not get fat, while dairy cows require four pounds or more of water for every pound of milk which they produce. Where the drinking water is tempered with a tank heater, faster gains and more economical production will result during the winter months, says the Missouri Farmer. There is also a saying in feed, for when large quantities of cold water are consumed at one time, considerable heat is required to bring this up to body temperature. Nearly every one has seen dairy cows hump up their backs and shiver on a cold day after drinking ice water from a stock tank and it is not to be expected that such an experience is conducive to profitable production. One member of a dairy herd improvement association found that his cows made an average gain of 5.6 pounds of butterfat a month following the purchase of a heater. At the Iowa experiment station it was found that fall pigs given water from an automatic waterer, kept from freezing with a kerosene lamp, showed an increase in profit of 17 per cent as compared to pigs given water in open troughs. Gains were increased by 5 per cent and the feed requirements were reduced 10 per cent, due to water being available at all times. Stock tanks should be banked and covered during the winter and it is also recommended that gravel or cinders be placed around both the tanks and waterers to prevent accidents due to slipping on icy yards.

Modern Farm Machinery Calls for Large Fields

Loss of time and labor often results where fields are small and cut up by unnecessary barriers. Where two-row cultivators are replacing one-row tools, or tractor outfits are taking the place of horse-drawn equipment, as is the case on many farms, operators find that they cannot secure greatest efficiency from their new equipment if fields are smaller and more irregular than is necessary.

J. E. Dowler, rural economist at the Ohio State university states that larger fields are better adapted to modern farm machinery, and make possible savings in labor and other operating costs. A three-year study on 23 farms shows that a ten-hour day is required to plow 1.7 acres with a 14-inch plow in fields of less than six acres. In the same time two acres may be plowed in fields of between six and twelve acres, and 2.2 acres in fields of more than 12 acres.

Lime Phosphate Valuable

When manure is available and can be systematically used, it is an excellent plan to mix lime phosphate with it. Manure being made largely from hay, straw and stalks, it is a good form of fertilizer for the production of hay, straw and stalks, but is unbalanced in food elements for the production of grains, as there is too wide a ratio between nitrogen and phosphorus. The continuous use of manure tends further to widen the ratio between phosphorus and nitrogen, and the tendency is to increase the growth of stalk and straw without a proper amount of grain formation. The addition of lime phosphate to manure tends to overcome this condition, and with other factors favorable it will materially increase the proportion of grain to straw or stalk without largely increasing the total growth of the stalk and straw.—Exchange.

Heavy Cholera Losses

Hog cholera has destroyed more hogs in the United States than all other diseases combined, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. It is explained in a new Department of Agriculture bulletin, 534-F, that the disease may be prevented by immunization, sanitation, proper feeding and shelter. Hog cholera is found in all states in the country, but is most prevalent in the Middle West and South, according to the bulletin. The disease is usually the most serious during the months of October and November.

Farm Forestry Pays

One-third of all farms in the United States yield as much as $220 worth of timber per year, the Department of Agriculture says. An exhibit from the forest service shows that the annual farm forest crop is worth $303,000,000. Timber not only pays in dollars and cents, but it is like a bank account upon which the owner can draw in times of stress. Its uses range from farm buildings, telephone poles, repairs, and fuel on the farm, to saw logs, cross-ties, pulpwood, posts and poles.

Mineral Mixture for Swine

The usual rations fed to hogs in the winter months are short of mineral elements. Good hog feeders realize this and include some mineral mixture in their feeding schedule. The following is recommended by Professor Coffey of Ohio university: Forty per cent of ground limestone, 40 per cent of bone meal and 20 per cent of common salt. When fed with the grain ration this mineral mixture can be put in a self feeder where the hogs have access to it at all times.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REV. F. H. FITZPATRICK, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. (©, 1931, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for December 6

ROME AND BEYOND

GOLDEN TEXT—I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith.

LESSON TEXT—II Timothy 4:6-18. PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Finishes His Work.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul Finishes His Work. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Missionary Work Goes On. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Unto the Ends of the Earth.

I. Paul's View of Death (v. 6). This he sets forth under two metaphors:

1. An offering (v. 6). "I am ready to be offered." This figure, meaning a drink offering, or libation, shows that Paul was looking forward to a violent death. The shedding of his blood was to be an offering poured out on the sacred altar as an act of worship. Death can only be an offering to God when the life has been wholly yielded to the doing of God's will.

2. A departure (v. 6). "The time of my departure is at hand." The same idea is expressed in Phil. 1:23. "Departure" is a nautical term which signifies the loosing of a ship from its moorings in order to enter upon its voyage, but its beginning. It indicates that the vessel is outward bound. The anchor is being lifted, and the sails are being spread for the homeland. The same idea is expressed in Luke 9:31, where the theme of conversation on the Mount of Transfiguration is said to be the departure or exodus which Christ should accomplish at Jerusalem. What the exodus meant to Israel, and more, death means to the Christian.

II. Paul's Backward Glance at Life (v. 7).

God has a definite purpose for each life. Life should be so spent that at its close one may look back with a definite consciousness that the divine purpose has been accomplished. This backward look is presented in three figures:

1. "I have fought a good fight." The figure here is that of a soldier. The Christian life is a warfare. Conflicts, dangers, and temptations must be met.

2. "I have finished my course." The figure here is that of an athlete who sets out to win a race. The Christian life is a race to be run.

3. "I have kept the faith." The figure is that of a husbandman to whom had been entrusted a treasure. This treasure was the Christian faith in a peculiar way Paul was made steward of the Christian faith. He was conscious of having been faithful to the trust committed to him.

III. Paul's Forward Look to the Future (v. 8).

This is a beautiful picture of the calm at the end of a period of faithful service. Knowing that death was awaiting him, there was no dark cloud. 1. He saw before him a life with God. Eternal fellowship with God is a prize greatly to be desired.

2. A prize was laid up for him—a crown of righteousness. This reward will be given at the coming of the Lord to all who love his appearing.

IV. Paul's Associates (v. 9-12).

1. Demas, the deserter (v. 10). Demas has become immortalized as one who was religious, but because of its attractions went after the world. The love of the world caused him to turn his back upon principle, friendship, honor, and duty.

2. Luke, the faithful (v. 11). What a comfort it must have been to have with him this one faithful soul. Perhaps he was the best fitted of all to minister unto Paul—Luke was faithful in shipwreck, imprisonment, in journeying by land and sea.

3. Mark, the restored runaway (v. 13). Mark had gone back but was restored. This is a beautiful picture and most comforting. Though we have failed, we can redeem ourselves and become trustworthy. Everyone who has taken to heart his failure should be given another chance.

V. Personal Matters (v. 13-18).

1. Bring the cloak, books, and parchments (v. 13). In the jail the cloak would be needed for his comfort. The books and parchments would be required for his study and writing.

2. Wronged by Alexander, the copper-smith (v. 14, 15). We have no way of determining just when this deed was committed.

3. Defended by the Lord though forsaken by man (v. 16-18). Paul in his last trying hours was like his Lord—left alone. He says, "All men forsook me. It was said of Christ that all forsook him and fled. Paul manifested a like spirit. 'I pray God that it may not be laid to their charge.'"

The Spiritual Christian

Normally, the spiritual Christian will be occupied with effective service for his Lord. This is not a rule. We need only to know that we are yielded and ready to do whatever he may choose. To "rest in the Lord" is one of the essential victories in a spiritual life. "Come ye apart and rest awhile." We are just as spiritual when resting, playing, sleeping, or incapacitated, if it is his will for us, as we are when serving.—Christian Cyclopedia.

The Mule Stages Comeback

Kansas City—A definite swing back to the use of animal power, rather than gasoline-fed machinery for farm work, has placed breeders of draft horses and mules in a position more desirable than for many years, leaders of the industry said here today.

Coming here to show their finest animals in the American Royal Livestock Show, breeders told of rising prices, of increased demand and of minimized competition.

George Argenbright, the 65-year old Adrian, Mo., man who has made the Missouri mule famous in the nearly 50 years of his association with breeding of the long eared animals, came to the show on crutches, and carried away, with his partner, Ed Frazier, every principal mule award of the show.

"The trend back to mule power and horse power on the farm is a definite and increasing thing," he said, adding that several developments had motivated the change.

"Farm folk are tired of paying for gasoline when they can raise their own power so cheaply," he said. "One reason that hay and grain prices have gone so low in the last year or two has been that farmers everywhere have bought machinery and have stopped using horses and mules.

"They're realizing now that they've been wrong, that draft animals provide the cheapest and the most reliable power. Their tractors are wearing out and they haven't the money to replace them.

"Meanwhile the breeders have gone ahead developing better animals than ever before, more powerful animals -- and we are ready to reap the harvest."

The High Cost of Bad Roads

An article in the November issue of the Bureau Farmer vividly shows the predicament of the average farmer in the matter of roads. The article says: "Of 6,800,000 farmers in the United States, there are 2,747,732 farms on unimproved dirt roads, or almost one-half of the farmers in this country are served by roads no better than those of the ox cart days.

An additional 1,998,704 farms are located on dirt roads that are ranked as improved, and that means roads that have some grading, some drainage, but nevertheless, during the rainy season are for the most part impassable. Not more than 500,000 farms are located on paved highways and less than 1,000,000 on gravel roads. The article is illustrated by pictures and by statistics demonstrating the high cost of unimproved roads to the farmer.

There is little excuse for such a condition as this. Good secondary roads do not necessarily mean expensive roads -- as has now been proved in many western states that are using asphalt processes to provide mudless and dustless, farm-to-market roads, as well as large mileages of through-highways. Every state owes its farmers roads that can be depended upon to afford sure, safe and inexpensive transport at all seasons of the year. --The Manufacturer.

Chief Justice Hughes In Tribute to Red Cross

One of the finest tributes ever paid the American Red Cross and its membership was that by Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, of the United States Supreme Court, on the occasion of the fiftieth birthday anniversary of the organization on May 21 of this year. Mr. Hughes said: "The American Red Cross represents the united voluntary effort of the American people in the ministry of mercy. It is the finest and most effective expression of the American heart. It knows no partisanship. In the perfection of its cooperation, there is no blemish of distinction by reason of race or creed or political philosophy.

"However we may differ in all things else, in the activities of the Red Cross we are a united people. None of our boasted industrial enterprises surpasses it in efficiency. ... It moves with the precision and the discipline of an army to achieve the noblest of human aims.

"The American Red Cross is not only first in war but first in peace. The American people rely upon its ministrations in every great catastrophe. It has given its aid in over one thousand disasters. When, as we hope, war will be no more, still the Red Cross, in the countless activities of relief and rehabilitation, will continue to function as the organized companion of our country."

Twelve Million Years Less Transportation in Nation's Car Inventory Than Considered Normal, Manufacturer Tells Financiers

ESTIMATING that transportation in the form of automobiles now in the hands of the American public is twelve million "cars years" below normal, and that this deficit will eventually have to be made up, Richard H. Grant, vice president of the General Motors Corporation, recently told the American Bankers Association convention that employment in his company may be greater this winter than last year.

"Employment during the winter months is a very important thing," Mr. Grant said. "So far as our corporation is concerned, in November, December, January and February, we will be employing at least as many and probably more men than we did this past year."

In order to gauge the outlook for next year's market, his corporation, he said, attempts to set up accurate indices based on intensive scientific studies in addition to observation and common sense. "We are in the habit of looking upon an automobile not merely as an automobile but as transportation," he said. "We figure each automobile produced as six years of transportation. Then by following up records of production yearly, we get a graph which indicates what ought to be a normal inventory of transportation in the hands of the American people, and whether there are more or less million than might be expected. According to our figures, there are about twelve million years less transportation in this inventory at the present time than has been considered normal since 1925.

Anyway It Is Not Our Battle.

The one thing more certain than almost any other thing is that about 999 out of every 1,000 Americans believe the United States has no business to interfere actively in any way between Japan and China in the present controversy except to use its good offices to maintain peace between the belligerents.

The one man in a thousand who may think otherwise is the adventurer who may wish to get into the scrap, or perhaps he is one of those who believe that a jolly little war will restore prosperity to business in America.

In the first place few Americans actually know the rights and the wrongs of the case. We are sympathetic with China, perhaps, as we are always sympathetic with the under dog.

Eugenie's Grandfather Was an American

Empress Eugenie, from the portrait by Winterhalter.

IT'S a high-sounding name, Marie-Eugenie-Ignace-Augustine de Montijo, Empress of the French, wife of Napoleon III, but few people know her mother was the daughter of William Kirkpatrick, American Consul at Malaga, Spain. The great ladies who attended social functions in France's magnificent palaces didn't like the little upstart. Finally Eugenie complained of an insult from the wife of a high official at a New Year's Eve ball at the Tuilleries Palace in Paris. The Emperor heard of the insult and calmly said to Eugenie, "I will avenge you." Three days later he proposed. Eugenie's beauty and charm set the style in the gay French capital. Sixty years later she is again setting the style, for Eugenie hats are sweeping the country. Eugenie smoked cigarettes and broke down many ancient prejudices just as the American woman taking advantage of the removal of certain harmful irritants from cigarettes by such modern methods as the toasting process including the use of ultra violet rays has broken down the prejudice against smoking by women. Modern science has achieved many wonders and the creative mind is always at work to devise such aids to smokers as the notched-tab cellophane package which allows one to open the moisture-proof package by simply holding down one tab and tearing off one corner by pulling on the other tab.

Two Types of People
People may be divided into two types—those who think a great deal before they act and those who are carried away by their feelings and act impetuously without thinking. Both tendencies have their value at certain times. Grave problems require deliberation before any line of conduct is decided upon, but in emergencies something must be done at once. The first type is, therefore, handicapped when rapid action is called for, and the second type is apt to be rash and to act hastily on occasions when the situation needs reflection. People should endeavor, then, to train their thoughts and feelings so that they can be utilized to the best advantage according to the circumstances of the moment. Many a pitfall can thereby be avoided.

Never Burned Witches
Although Salem was the center of the witch craze, none were ever burned there, in spite of a common belief to the contrary. Many were hanged and one man was pressed to death between heavy stones. The Massachusetts tercentenary brought out many curious facts, and Nathaniel Hawthorne's granddaughter, Miss Gerde Hawthorne, gave some little known sidelights on her ancestral town, Salem, in a special article for St. Nicholas magazine. Samuel Mein fire, the first American architect, and originator of the New England colonial style of wooden house, was born in Salem in 1757 and most of his fine old houses were built by him.

What Does "Savvy" Mean?
"Savvy" or "savvy" is an American corruption of Spanish "saber," a form of the verb "saber," meaning to know. "Do you savvy?" is equivalent to Spanish "¿sabe usted?" Both mean, "Do you know?" "Savvy" was originally acquired from the Mexicans by early ranchers in the Southwest who spelled and pronounced the Spanish word "savvy" rather than "sabe" because in Spanish "b" and "v" are pronounced almost alike and in many words these letters are used interchangeably. When employed as a noun "savvy" means understanding, mental grasp or knowledge of affairs. Of course, it is slang in both senses.—Pathfinder Magazine.

BEDTIME STORY

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

BROTHER NORTH WIND AND JACK FROST ARRIVE

HONK! the Goose had not been many days ahead of Rough Brother North Wind and Jack Frost. He seldom is. All the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows know this and so when they heard his message, "Honk, honk, honk, honk," those who still had work to do worked harder than ever.

Paddy the Beaver went all over his house very carefully putting on fresh mud wherever it was needed so that when Jack Frost did arrive he would find it all ready to be frozen hard.

They Were So Fat They Could Hardly Waddle.

Jerry Muskrat hurried to get in the last of his supplies. Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel and his cousin, Chatterer the Red Squirrel, scampered about faster than ever to get all the nuts possible before they should be hidden under the snow. Bobby Coon, Unc' Billy Possum, and Buster Bear did their best to burst their coats by stuffing themselves with everything they could find. They were so fat they could hardly waddle. You see they make storehouses of their own skins. Yes, indeed, those were busy days.

Then one night when all was still Jack Frost arrived. He came silently and only those who were awake knew, because he slyly plinched them just by way of warning. Unc' Billy Possum was one of these and he didn't wait to be plinched twice. He promptly turned back to his home in a hollow tree and curled himself up in his warm bed for a long, long sleep. Bobby Coon did the same thing. Buster Bear felt sleepy, but he wasn't quite ready to go to bed for the winter, so he decided to wait until the first heavy snow. Paddy the Beaver watched the mud harden on the roof of his house as Jack Frost touched it, and then he dived and with a sigh of great content slipped in at his secret door under water and scrambled up into his nice, warm, dry bedroom to rest, for he had worked long and hard, and he knew that the time had come when he could work no more, because by morning his pond would be covered with ice.

But those who were asleep for the night knew nothing about the coming of Jack Frost until the morning. Then they shivered a little as they started forth and those who run, ran fast to keep warm, and those who fly, flew fast for the same reason. Later in the day Rough Brother North Wind arrived. There was nothing silent about the way he came. He whooped and howled across the Green Meadows and through the Green Forest. He caught up the dead leaves and whirled them far and wide. He shouted that all might hear: "I am the North Wind stout and bold! I came from the land of ice and cold!"

"Yes—man may not be particularly admirable," says romantic Romaine, "but they come in handy in leap year." (WNU Service.)

Who braves my strength to him I give A greater power to work and live." Peter Rabbit listened and shivered just a wee bit in spite of his warm coat. "Now what does he mean by that?" said he. "I suppose," replied little Mrs. Peter, "that he means that those who are not afraid to face hard times and do their very best are really stronger for doing it. He certainly is rough and strong, but I've noticed that we always feel well when he comes." "That is quite true," replied Peter thoughtfully. "I never can run so fast in summer as in winter." He drew a long breath. "Isn't this air good? I feel just like a run this very minute. When you get used to it winter isn't so bad. It's all in the getting used to it. Those who sleep all winter or go away where there isn't cold weather, don't know what a lot they miss. I wonder why they do it anyway." (By J. G. Lloyd.)—WNU Service.

THREE GOOD PIES

HERE is a simple pie that the most inexperienced may make without a failure:

Graham Cracker Pie.

Roll fourteen graham crackers and mix with one-half cupful of butter. Line a platin with this mixture and fill with cooked and seasoned apple sauce. Serve with cream, after baking about twenty minutes.

Lemon Fluff Pie.

Take the grated rind and juice of an orange and a lemon, add three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, the well-beaten yolks of three eggs to which one table-spoonful of cold water has been added gradually. Cook in a double boiler until smooth and pour over the stiffly beaten whites to which one-fourth cupful of sugar has been added. Pour into a baked shell, add a tablespoonful of butter and bake until firm—about ten minutes. For those who dislike a meringue, this is especially attractive, as the texture is like sponge cake or omelet.

Moravian Deep Apple Pie.

Core and pare six even sized apples. Place with a teaspoonful of lemon juice, a little of the grated rind of lemon, a cupful of sugar and enough water to cover the bottom of the saucepan. Cover and cook until the apples are tender but not broken. Line a deep pastry dish with rich pastry, carefully place the apples in the shell, filling the centers with peach marmalade. Cover with strips of pastry and bake just long enough to brown the pastry. Serve with cream. (By 1931, Western Newspaper Union.)

MISSISSIPPI'S LONE FERRY

LAST of the ferryboats to ply back and forth across the Mississippi river is the Mary Ellen. She has been carrying passengers and freight between Carondelet, Mo., and East Carondelet, Ill., for 75 years and is still making her 40 trips a day. The four Zeller brothers own and operate this survivor of the pre-bridge age, as did their father before them.

en, scrape and pie. Help dry dishes and finally collect and dispose of refuse. Nothing more.

C. Collect all food left from the meal, put into suitable dishes and put in the refrigerator. Put up bread and other food left in the kitchen. Tidy the stove and wipe off. Put up all kitchen dishes, and be in readiness to brush up kitchen floor when work is done.

D. Get ready dish water and begin washing dishes as soon as glasses and silver begin to arrive. Wash all dishes and pots and pans and then quit with a free conscience.

E. See that tables are cleared for clean dishes and begin drying as soon as things are ready. Dry pots and pans as well as dishes and finally wash out dish towels.

Usually that would be a fair division of labor with responsibilities fairly distributed. (By McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) (WNU Service.)

WHEN YOU COME . . .

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

SOMETIME I shall sleep—and you, Will you come, I wonder, In the sunshine, in the dew, In the days of thunder? Will you come with wreaths alone, Come with red, red roses, Where the one that you have known Now at last reposes?

I would have you come, I knew, But the thing to bring me Is some dream of long ago, Song you used to sing me, I would have the gift you brought In that moment to me But some water-potter thought From the days you know me.

Sometime you may come again With some sad reflection, I would have you bring me then But a recollection, Sometime you will come at last

There where I lie sleeping— Bring me something from the past, And leave it in my keeping. (By 1931, Douglas Malloch.)—WNU Service.

Fought Fire With Melons

A truck loaded with watermelons that Walter Griffith was taking to market skidded off the highway near Wenatchee, Wash., and burst into flames. With no water available, Griffith had no idea. He hurried watermelons at the blazing truck. They burst and spouted water all over the blaze. The twenty-third melon put out the fire.

This Mother Had Problem

As a rule, milk is about the best food for children, but there are times when they are much better off without it. It should always be left off when children show by feverish, fretful or cross spells, by bad breath, coated tongue, yellow skin, indigestion, biliousness, etc., that their stomach and bowels are out of order. In cases like this, California Fig Syrup never fails to work wonders, by the quick and gentle way it removes all the souring waste which is causing the trouble... regulates the stomach and bowels and gives these organs tone and strength so they continue to act normally of their own accord. Children love its rich, fruity flavor and it's purely vegetable and harmless, even for babies. Millions of mothers have proved its merit and reliability in over 50 years of steadily increasing use. A Western mother, Mrs. May Snavely, Montrose, California, says: "My little girl, Edna's, tendency to constipation was a problem to me until I began giving her California Fig Syrup. It helped her right away and soon her stomach and bowels were acting perfectly. Since then I've never had to have any advice about her bowels. I have also used California Fig Syrup with my little boy, with equal success." To be sure of getting the genuine, which physicians endorse, always ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name.

Are We Created Unequal?

The biological discoveries of a half-century or more," Prof. Harrison R. Hunt told the Eugenics Research association, "have revealed that people, instead of being potentially equal at birth, vary enormously, and that such differences are often inherited; so one might say it is self-evident that men are created unequal."

WASHING DISHES

WASHING dishes is tiresome enough when you do it alone, but aren't there times when doing all the dishes and silver and pots and pans yourself seems better than having two or three more or less willing assistants in the kitchen at the same time, working at random, bringing dishes from the table before there is any place to put them, stacking up plates that have not been superficially cleaned off, drying the dishes before they have been rinsed and putting them up where they don't belong?

Cleaning up after a meal is a complicated matter, and when there are many dishes and a number of workers there should be definite division of labor. Each individual should be given a definite task. If there are five to help, the work may be divided as follows:

- A. Carry silver and glassware to the kitchen and pile at the side of the sink. Collect table napkins, crumb table, remove cloth, take out leaves from the table if extra ones have been added, brush dining-room floor, put dining room in between meal order, and quit.
- B. Carry all chinaware to the kitchen,

RICE BRAN KEEPS FLOCK IN HEALTH

Good Food for Chickens in Confinement.

The substitution of from 10 to 20 per cent of rice bran for other feeding stuffs in the diet of chickens being reared in confinement helped to prevent a disease known as perosis (deforming leg weakness), the United States Department of Agriculture reports as one result of a series of experiments conducted in co-operation with various states.

The investigations showed also that no chickens which were being kept in confinement to study the replaceability of various feeding stuffs were developing perosis. Other experiments planned for the purpose of studying the condition showed that the addition of 6 to 10 per cent of rice bran to the diet caused a marked reduction in the number of afflicted birds.

Perosis usually makes its appearance among actively growing chicks kept in confinement and fed an unsuitable diet. One of the first symptoms is a puffiness of the joints of the legs and a tendency on the part of the affected birds to squat for long periods of time. The next stage is characterized by an increase of the puffiness and a bedding of the leg bones. In the final form the disease leaves the joints of the legs permanently deformed.

The investigations showed also that an adjustment of the relative quantity of calcium and phosphorus in the diet, as well as the addition of rice bran, helped to prevent perosis. When the two changes were made simultaneously no cases of perosis occurred. Perosis is not the same as rickets, the department points out. Chickens with perosis show normal ash content of their leg bones and the calcium and inorganic phosphorus content of their blood serum is normal, neither of which condition is true of chickens with rickets. The tests indicate that another vitamin besides D is necessary for the development of the bones of chickens.

Wise Poultryman Will Gather Eggs When Laid

It is appalling to read reports about the number and value of eggs that are lost every year because some people like to hear the roosters crow or because it is too much bother to catch them. The germ in a fertile egg will begin to grow at a temperature of about 69 degrees Fahrenheit.

Sometimes we are careless about leaving the broody hens on the nests, so they have the eggs spoiled by sitting on them all day before we gather them. It doesn't matter whether the heat is furnished by the weather or the sitting hens, as the result is the same.

While the eggs to all appearances are perfectly fresh, they will be rotten before they reach the final market, because the temperature is high enough to start germ growth, but not steady enough to keep it. This variation in temperature soon kills the germ, then rot begins. An infertile egg under the same conditions will not become rotten, as the germ has no life to develop.

Light Yolks Preferred

Poultry producers find that many buyers in the large cities, especially the New York market, prefer eggs with light-colored yolks, the United States Department of Agriculture says.

Certain materials such as green feed and yellow corn produce dark yolks, but when eggs are candled it is often difficult to tell whether the dark yolk has been caused by feed or because the egg has been exposed to heat. Thus, although buyers prefer light yolks, in order to be on the safe side, dark yolks do not necessarily mean that the eggs are inferior in quality. Feeds such as white corn, wheat, buckwheat, and oats result in eggs having light yolks.

To be classed as a quality product, eggs must be uniform in color and size, and light yolks make them more desirable in many markets.

Blackhead Carriers

Blackhead is generally carried into turkeys by very small worms which have been deposited on the soil by chickens. Since these worms live over in the soil from one year to the next, the best means of preventing the disease in turkeys is to have them run on clean ground that has not been contaminated in any way by either chickens or turkeys in the previous two years. A system of ground rotation is the best to use in accomplishing this end.

Prevent "Picking"

Cannibalism is often due to cases of prolepsis in the flock. Improper nests are apt to start it. Nests are sometimes placed in such position that they are very light, and have no partitions to separate the hens on the nest. This method of nesting makes it very convenient for a hen, while walking up and down in front of the nests to pick the laying hens. This picking causes bleeding and the hen when she leaves the nest is picked to death by the rest of the flock.

STAGE COACH TALES

By E. C. TAYLOR

Last of the Road Agents

RAYMOND HOLZSE—he insisted his name was spelled this way, although it usually was spelled Soltz by the police—was probably the last of the notorious highwaymen or road agents who preyed upon the old stage coaches in the Northwest.

He operated in Wisconsin and Michigan in the 1890's, and was famous as a crack shot. He practiced shooting by firing at a bull's eye while riding swiftly on a horse. Sometimes he would toss up hazel nuts and crack them with revolver shots. He was of the same type of gunman famous through the Southwest a few years earlier.

In the spring of 1890 a stage coach was held up between Pulcifer and Budnell Wis., with small loss. The holdup was laid to Holzse.

One morning soon after that, Herman Rafath was driving his stage coach from the north toward Shawano. He looked around and stared into the muzzle of a revolver pointed at his face. Behind the gun was Holzse.

There were two passengers on the coach, Thomas Ainsworth, known as a wit in that section, and a Menominee Indian.

Rafath at once brought his horses to a stop, and Holzse ordered the mail pouch be thrown out. Rafath asked Ainsworth what he should do, and Ainsworth advised him to obey the command.

After the mail was surrendered, the bandit ordered the driver to produce all his money. Rafath handed him $11. Holzse demanded more, but Rafath insisted that was all he had. In later years he said he had $45 in a vest pocket and had saved that by lying to the bandit.

Holzse took $1.75 from Ainsworth, all that gentleman had with him. "I'm sorry it isn't an even $10," Ainsworth told the bandit. "I still owe you a quarter. Come and collect it some time."

Holzse ignored the Menominee Indian, and ordered Rafath, Ainsworth and the Indian down the road. They walked a hundred yards away and turned around to see Holzse ripping open the mail pouch. They could hear him swearing because the pouch contained nothing of value.

After that stage holdup, Holzse's description was broadcast throughout Wisconsin, and a constant watch was kept for him by police and stage coach drivers. The sheriff a short time later took Rafath to look at a suspect he had captured, but it was not Holzse, and the man was released.

Rafath kept a wary eye open for the bandit after that, but never encountered him again. A youth who often substituted for Rafath as driver of the coach, however, did not take any chances. He whipped up his horses whenever he saw a suspicious-looking man standing by the roadside, and many a prospective passenger was left swearing when the stage rattled past him at a fast clip.

Holzse loved the limelight and it proved his undoing. He held up stages in a grand eloquent manner, and apparently tried to put on a special show whenever he was committing his crimes.

Near Marquette, Mich., a short time after his activities had forced him to flee beyond the state line of Wisconsin, Holzse stopped a stage coach, carrying mail and filled with passengers.

He warned all aboard the stage against shooting, but one passenger did not heed the warning, and fired a shot at the bandit.

Holzse opened fire on the coach, then, firing bullet after bullet through the windows and walls of the vehicle. One passenger was killed and another seriously wounded. Two bullets pierced the hat of the driver.

Holzse was captured by possees who were quickly put upon his trail, and later was sentenced to the Michigan state penitentiary for life. He was released in a few years, however.

Freaks of Appendicitis
Two cases of appendicitis on the left side have been reported at Paris by Dr. R. Bloch. In one patient the pain was on the right side where it is normally to be expected in appendicitis, while the organ whose inflamed condition caused the disturbance was on the left. In the other the condition was just reversed. These cases confirm, it is stated, that there is a clinical and an anatomic form of left appendicitis. X-rays should be used to diagnose this condition which usually can be established only after the patient has actually been operated upon.

Phone Message Recorded
Two Zurich inventors, Egon Zoller and Joseph Villiger, have solved the problem of what to do when there is no response to a telephone call. They have invented a telephone apparatus that permits also of the transmission of a written telegraphic message. The apparatus employed is a dial telephone. When the subscriber does not answer, the caller by means of a plug can transform the dial into a telegraph printer.

A Sure Sign

STOP THAT COUGH!

Bronchitis is increasingly prevalent at this season. Alone, it is seldom serious, although the cough may be very annoying. But the serious side of Bronchitis and other mild infections of the lungs and throat is that the inflamed tissues may be invaded by some far more serious organism, particularly Pneumonia. This is a real danger in most cases. It is the best of reasons why a bronchial cough or an attack of laryngitis should be stopped as quickly as possible.

The quick effective way to check these troubles is to apply B. & M., The Penetrating Germicide, three times a day, spreading it over the entire chest and throat. Usually the first application will bring out a reddish flush showing where the trouble is.

B. & M. is obtainable from most druggists. If yours cannot supply it, send his name and $1.25 for a large-size bottle sent postpaid. Helpful booklet free on request. F. B. ROLLINS COMPANY, 53 Beverly St., Boston, Mass.—Adv.

Sees Regard for Dogs

Notably on Increase
A woman who is a great lover of animals recently told two incidents, or retold them, from the press, to stress her point that the wholly commendable, but rather limited, attitude of "love me, love my dog" shows hopeful signs of progress. She says that this affection is rapidly being stretched to include the other fellow's dog.

"There was that tiny item in the paper the other day, for example, about the dog that selected the middle of a busy street in Bloomsburg, Pa., for his sister," she said. "Little noting the vast number of persons who were affected by his discriminating search for a shady spot, the dog took a peaceful nap, according to the Boston Globe, while 400 respectful motorists detoured around him."

"Then there was that other dog who had made himself unpopular with his neighbors over in New Jersey because of his habit of barking at night. The local police recorder had been notified, and the aged resident who owned him was given the sad command to dispose of him. It happened that the owner not only actually depended on the dog for companionship, but for errands at which the creature had proved remarkably dependable.

"Well, the upshot of it was," said the lady who loves animals, triumphantly, "that 68 persons, led by the mayor of the town, heard of the matter and testified in the dog's behalf. Some of them, mind you, even gave up their vacations so that they might aid the case. And the dog was officially forgiven."

Weather Dictionary
Some people collect stamps and some collect snuff boxes, but C. F. Taiman, librarian of the United States weather bureau, is collecting words relating to the weather. His encyclopedic weather dictionary, when completed, will contain about 15,000 weather terms, including slang, dialect, and scientific names for weather phenomena. It may be some years before the dictionary is finished, but meanwhile each definition is filed on a card and the cards are in daily use as references for the scientists of the weather bureau and others.

Large-Hearted Fish
A catfish weighing about two and one-half pounds swam up to the boat of Clifford King, of Del Rio, Texas, and nibbled bits of chicken tossed to it. After taking a few bites the fish swam back to the channel and returned in a few moments with four others. They partook of the refreshments, then swam off and returned in a short time with a whole school of fish about the same size.

Didn't Dare Brag
"Does your husband ever brag what a good cook his mother was?" asked the caller.
"No," smiled the young married woman, "he knows I know his father died of indigestion."

Even a baby learns that what was "cute" when it was a year old it gets spanked for at two.

Here's Proof Small Boy Can Get Too Much Cake
Children really work hard in the movies. Little Johnny Nelson is responsible for this statement, and he can prove it too.
"Why, only the other day," says Johnny, "we had a scene where a bunch of us kids had to sit at a table and eat. The first two or three scenes they did of us were swell, but even with us artistic kids there is a limit. Finally, just when I can't stuff down another thing, the director says:
"Now, we'll take this again, and this time, Johnny, eat that cake as if you really enjoyed it."
"He got sore as the deuce when I told him I couldn't even eat it unless I stood up, and how could a kid look pleased when he's got a belly-ache, anyway?"—Los Angeles Times.
Complete practically is heartless-ness.

High School Notes

And here we are all back again after our four-day frolic over the Thanksgiving Holidays. Nevertheless, it is more than just possible that the last three of these were spent in trying to recuperate after the bountiful feasting on Thursday.

And well we might feast and celebrate for did we not defeat Capitan with a score of 18-0 in the final game of the football season—Yes, we did, and How! Capitan hasn't crossed our goal line this season in the two games in which they have played against our invincible Eleven.

The boys have just completed a very successful season in football, and we all wish those who are so lucky as to be coming back next year, will be just as successful if even more so than they were this year.

And while on the topic of football, we wish to thank Mr. Burke of the Outlook for his kind donation of tickets for this last game of the season.

After Thursday's game it seemed that the boys merited something for their efforts. Therefore, on Monday night they all sat down to a well-laden banquet table at the Community Hall. Several of the town people turned out, and a very pleasant evening was spent. Bud Crenshaw was elected Captain of next year's Eleven, and we all wish Bud and his comrades a very successful year as before stated.

The girls and boys of the H. School, the Grade School boys and the Town Boys are all making good use of the Community Hall, and many exciting and victorious games are expected from all of these teams.

The American Legion Post of the two towns has kindly offered to donate a large and exceedingly interesting set of World War History volumes, compiled by the U. S. government. This fine addition to our fast-increasing Library is greatly appreciated and we wish to thank the Legion for this generous offer of these $30 books.

Miss Dia Herringa is practicing daily with her large group of youngsters for the program on Dec. 11, and she is expecting a large crowd to come and enjoy themselves on this date.

Thursday night, Nov. 19, the Sophomores and Juniors started the ball to rolling in the inter-class girls' basketball tournament. The Juniors came out on top much to the chagrin of the Seniors who had yelled themselves hoarse for those valiant Sophs. The final score was 19-10 which was not bad considering the luck which befell the Sophs on nearly every play.

Next came the Seniors against the Frosh. Of course the Seniors came out on top with 50 points in their favor to the Freshies hard-earned 4. The Frosh worked hard though and the Seniors just outclassed them.

This left the championship game between the Seniors and Juniors and the consolation game between the Frosh and Sophs for Friday night. Then came the games—the Sophs defeated the Frosh 21-9 in an interesting and fairly exciting game. Then those "unconquerable" Seniors overcame the resistance of the Juniors for a final score of 40-10.—Nuff said.

The individual points were as follows—G. Peckham, 54; R. Johnson, 20; K. Kelt, 16; F. Charles, 15; A. Kimbrell, 14; L. Cooper, 9.

Assembly periods last week were devoted to arousing class spirit for that game with Capitan which was played Thanksgiving Day. The town was back of the team to a man and C. H. B. came out victorious with a final score of 18-9.

Mr. Brickley was the foremost in this movement and we all wish to thank him for his undying confidence in the school.

Methodist Church

Eighty-one in Sunday School last Sunday. That was considerable less than the Sunday before. But it is still mighty good. Our Sunday School is growing until we need more room. A good lady has offered to give the Sunday School the use of a room in her home for a class to relieve the crowded condition in church. That is very commendable, and the offer will be accepted.

The following is a motto originated by the Woodland Christian Church (Negro) in Kansas City: "Wake Up! Sing Up! Preach Up! Pray Up! Pay Up! Stay Up! and Never Give Up, or Let Up, or Back Up or Shut Up, until the cause of Christ here and in all the world is Built Up!" It is a good motto. Let's keep it in mind and work at our job.

Preaching and the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper at Capitan next Sunday morning. All are welcome, and urged to partake of the Sacrament. Jesus said, "This do as often as ye will in remembrance of me." So let us partake of the elements which represent His broken body and spilled blood—broken and shed for us, remembering that while we were yet sinners He died for us.

Preaching service in Carrizozo next Sunday night. We have a good choir. Come and hear some good singing and take part in it. The choir is busy now practicing for a Christmas Cantata, and it promises to be exceptionally good.

The young people of Mrs. Spencer's class will have charge of evening church services on Dec. 13. Everything will be in their charge, even to the selection of the sermon subject or text. It will be a strictly young people's service, of all ages up to 100. Special services from now on until after Christmas—and then, of course, we will make a good New Year's resolution and keep the good work going. Want a part in it? Room for you—especially if you can sing. Get in the choir, or get in the audience and help swell the chorus.

While fearsome monsters sported on the shores of PENNSYLVANIA

MILLIONS of years ago in the Devonian Age—long before even these strange monsters lived—Nature formed Bradford-Allegany crude oil. When de-waxed and freed from petroleum jelly, this crude is made into Sinclair Pennsylvania Motor Oil—the year-around Pennsylvania grade motor oil! Ask the Sinclair dealers.
