CARRIZOZO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, JANUARY 16, 1931

PRICE $2.00 THE YEAR

CORONA CLEANINGS

A great deal of interest was shown in the election held Monday. John W. Owen was elected Justice of the Peace over D. C. Simpson, P. H. Buchanan and W. G. Chancey. W. C. Monk was the successful candidate for Constable.

Mrs. R. R. Green and daughter Miss Jane McFadden are visiting this week with Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Asbury at Sentinel, Ariz.

The Corona basketball teams won 3 out of 4 games last weekend, on out of town courts. Friday night pepped up in the last quarter to win from Encino 20 to 24 and 21 to 22. At Carrizozo, the girls dropped their game, 20 to 17, but the boys won 28 to 20.

E. L. Moulton and Max Nordhaus of Albuquerque were in Corona on business Monday. Mr. Nordhaus left by train Monday night, while Mr. Moulton left by motor the next morning.

G. W. Grove and Rayford Tracey were elected respectively Justice of the Peace and Constable at an election held at the Kimmons' home at Varney.

Basketball and Dance!

Don't forget the two big games Saturday night. Corona High School vs. the Albuquerque Indians - and the Encino and Corona town teams. A Big Dance is to follow the games.

Mrs. A. W. Colbaugh left Tuesday morning to spend a few months with her daughter, Mrs. Pearl Crossett, and her granddaughters, Mrs. Billie Simpson and Miss Vera Dunn at their home in Canutillo, Tex.

Glenn and Wayne Higginbotham and Jewel Taylor of White Oaks had dinner at the O. M. Downing home Sunday night.

Dance at San Patricio

Emiliano Sanchez and Willie Brady were here Tuesday, having some bills printed for the big dance at San Patricio tomorrow night, Jan. 17. Mr. Sanchez runs a lunch stand in connection with the dance hall and invites you to drop in and try his fine meals which include Mexican dishes of all kinds.

Miguel Luna Dies

(Contributed by H. M. Maca)

Sometime last Saturday night, at his home in Lincoln, Miguel Luna passed away, after being a sufferer for about six months. Mr. Luna was born at Polvadera, Socorro County, in 1872, and came to Lincoln County when only a youngster. He was well thought of by all who knew him over the county, and at one time served the county as Road Supervisor; also was constable at Lincoln for several years.

The funeral was held Sunday evening at the local cemetery, attended by his many friends and relatives. The deceased leaves a widow, two daughters and a son, who were here from their home in Las Cruces at the time of his death, and also leaves a brother, Ramon Luna of Lincoln, to all of whom the sympathy of this community is extended.

Dr. M. G. Paden

returned Saturday morning from Chickasha, Okla., where he visited his brother-in-law, Dr. T. H. Williams, dentist.

NOGAL ITEMS

Amos Gaylord was down from his ranch the first of the week. Amos says it is very cold up in the mountains, the thermometer registering zero weather at night an early morning. He also said that the recent snow measured about two feet in depth.

Contractor J. L. Gatewood and A. B. Helms, who have been building a 5-room rock house at Corona, have delayed the work on account of bad weather. The roads are so bad that they can't get material over them.

The election held in Nogal on Jan. 12, for the purpose of electing a Justice of the Peace and a constable, turned out satisfactorily. We can now have peace and order in Nogal.

The roads in this part of the county are in very bad shape, especially on Nogal Hill. We hear that there will be no appointments for road men before the latter part of the month.

Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Goza have a new-comer at their home, a big baby boy. Mother and son are doing nicely, but "Daddy" has recovered to the extent of being only a part of the time at his place of business.

Noveline May enrolled in the local school on Monday.

Mail cars have been running late the past few days on account of bad roads and weather.

For Sale - Fresh Eggs at 40c a dozen, delivered.

Jesse May, Nogal, N. M.

Funeral of A. N. Price

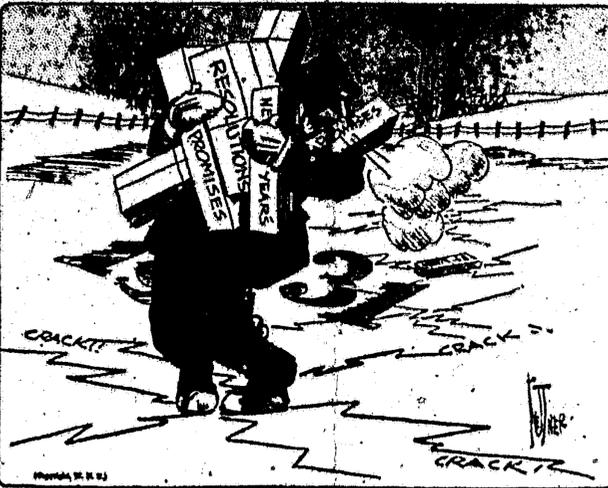

The funeral services of A. N. Price, who died at White Oaks Monday, were held Wednesday afternoon, with Rev. Lawson of the Carrizozo Methodist Church conducting the same at the White Oaks Church, after which the remains were interred in the White Oaks cemetery. The funeral was attended by the many friends of the family, who had known the deceased for many years in which he had been a resident of White Oaks.

Abraham Nathaniel Price was born at Jamestown, Tenn., Nov. 5, 1856. On July 3, 1873, he was married to Miss Nannie Millsap. To this union, one son, Miller, was born. The family came to New Mexico in the middle eighties and located at White Oaks when that place was a booming mining town and have resided there since that time. Mr. Price was a friendly, neighborly man and one of the old settlers in these regions, who put honesty and his word of honor above all things in his dealings with mankind. He leaves a wife and one son, Miller, of whom mention has been made. In his passing, White Oaks loses another of its pioneers and one who will be sadly missed by the many friends of the family in Lincoln County. The surviving relatives have the sympathy of our community.

Oddfellows Install

at the last regular meeting of Carrizozo Lodge No. 80, I. O. O. F., the officers for the ensuing term were installed as follows: Noble Grand, S. E. Greisen; Vice Grand, John E. Wright; Sec'y - Treasurer, Wm. J. Langston; Warden, M. J. Barnett; Chaplain, A. L. Burke; R. S. N. G., John Harkey; L. S. N. G., R. A. Walker; R. S. V. G., Cecil Moore; L. S. V. G., Lewis A. Burke.

Corona Meets Carrizozo In Two Thrilling Games

The spectators of the second home game of basketball enjoyed a thrilling evening when Corona met Carrizozo on the home court, Jan. 10. To those who enjoy close, fast games, these games should have proved quite gratifying. Even though Corona took home one extra point, all who witnessed the games will admit they earned it.

Referee Lackland, aided by Umpire Atkinson, succeeded in calling a close game of the essentials of a fast, clean playing team, which should be a pride of any community.

The local girls started the game with Dozier and English center, Peckham and K. Kelt forwards and W. Kelt and Lewis guards. The home team could not seem to get started off just right - perhaps a little over-confident. The substitutions at the end of the first quarter made things but little better except to cause every girl on the team to realize that it was necessary to use their best basketball strategy if the game was to be won. The first half ended with a 13-9 score in Corona's favor. Beginning the second half, Dozier returned to center, replacing Peckham and with the assistance of Frances Charles, were able to keep the ball pretty well to Kelt and Peckham. English replaced W. Kelt at guard and they held the score at the last half 20-17 in favor of Carrizozo. The girls played a good game, with Charles playing her best game of the year. Out of 18 free shots for Carrizozo, Peckham shot 6, making four points. Two new girls, Andrea and Jane Kimbrell, are reporting for practice this week and will strengthen the team considerably. The girls are working and training hard this week and hope to be able to overcome Captain tomorrow night.

The Corona boys were over-confident as to their prospective victory, due to their easy victory when Carrizozo journeyed to Corona, but they were due for a surprise. The game started with Brady and Young at forward, Zumwalt and Lewis at guard and Aguayo looking like a toy beside Corona's center. Substitutions were made later which resulted in Young going to guard, McMillan forward and Zumwalt out. One other change was made, throwing Chavez, forward and Brady out. Scoring started when Aguayo gave Carrizozo a 3-point lead by a free throw followed by a field goal close in. Corona soon scored, making the game a close battle from start to finish. The final whistle will begin Monday, January 19 and we would call your attention to the ad on page 8 which sets forth a few of the different bargains in gent's and boys' furnishing goods, ladies' wearing apparel and other things of necessity, which will be on display at greatly reduced prices. Now is the time to take advantage of this bargain sale and provide yourselves with goods which are being offered at sacrifice prices and for which you will pay more, after the sale. Mr. Ziegler's idea in giving a sale of this kind, is to give the public a treat in the way of savings on the goods mentioned in the ad, so take advantage of the sale - you will benefit by so doing.

LOCAL MENTION

The San Patricio Election

for Justice of the Peace and Constable, resulted in E. G. Gallegos receiving 121 votes for judge against W. E. Brady, who received 74 votes. Martin Herrera was elected constable, without opposition.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Arnold and son Harry of Chicago, Mmes. Louise and Allan Arnold and John Koiack of Alamogordo, spent Sunday as guests of the E. O. Prehm family. The Chicago Arnolds are here on a visit with relatives at Alamo, and while there, took advantage of the opportunity to visit their friends in Carrizozo. The party returned to Alamo Sunday evening.

W. B. Payne

was here from his ranch near Capitan Tuesday on business, returning home in the afternoon.

Rev. Edward Smith

was here from Fort Stanton on Wednesday and reported the highway very bad in some places, due to the recent heavy snowfall. He returned to the Fort in the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maxwell and children are here and will spend the balance of this month and perhaps all of February, at least, while the cold period is with us and will return to the ranch home when favorable weather sets in.

Mrs. Marie Cavanaugh

County Representative and Bob Brady, Sergeant-at-Arms of the State Senate, left Monday for Santa Fe to attend the convening of the two legislative bodies which convened Wednesday.

J. Frank Curns

who has retired as attorney for the State Tax Commission at Santa Fe, has opened an office in that city for the general practice of law. His number is 202 Galisteo-Laughlin Building and he solicits the patronage of his many friends over the state. When in Santa Fe, on either a business or pleasure trip, drop in and see Mr. Curns, who will be always glad to welcome visitors.

Costumes Brought from Round the World Exhibited

Miss Eva Alexander of El Paso, Tex., who spent several months recently on a trip around the world, will give an entertainment in Carrizozo, on the evening of Jan. 31, under the auspices of the Carrizozo Woman's Club.

Miss Alexander will take for her subject, "Costumes and Customs of the Countries Visited," and will give her impression of the various countries, and tell how the costumes of each affects the personality of the women and the tie between the costume and custom as expressed in convention. There will also be dancing and singing.

Watch for further notices and plan to see this unique entertainment. Costumes are to be worn by local models. -Mrs. R. E. Lemon.

Establishment of a Mohair Institute

Because of its high rank among the Mohair - producing states, New Mexico should benefit materially from the establishment of what will be called the Mohair Institute just announced this week in Chicago. Headquarters will be maintained in Chicago under the direction of A. C. Gage, editor of the Angora Journal, which is internationally recognized as Mohair authority.

In speaking of the announcement of the Institute, Mr. Gage says it will seek to further and advance the interests of the American Mohair industry, which has a experienced tremendous growth since the world war. Researches will be directed towards improving the quality of the fleecce and in developing new uses for the fabric. Last year, said Mr. Gage, New Mexico's 173,000 Angora goats produced 640,000 pounds of mohair and only Texas and Arizona exceed this state in mohair production, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Coalition Fails to Work

The old guard Republicans in the New Mexico Senate at Santa Fe, ruled that body at its first session this week by Senator Z. B. Moon, Democrat, lining up with the Republicans and defeating the Cutting-Seligman coalition which had been a stage to defeat the old guard Republican organization, but the attempt was checked by the Senator from Eddy county, coming to the assistance of the old guard, making a majority of one.

Thus were the hopes of the Cutting - Seligman combine dashed against the rocks, and as before, the Senate will be controlled by Republicans. This does not seem that the Republicans will block the legislation for the good of the people, but on the other hand, it will seek to do justice to every act that will have a tendency to help the state in general. Not only was midnight oil burned by the combine against the Republicans, but caucus after caucus was held until the early morning hours, considering ways and means that might put them over the top and put the old guard to rout, but everything failed, and the Senate remains loyal.

Sheriff John Brady

was a Santa Fe visitor this week and witnessed the opening of the 1931 legislature.

Fur-Trimmed Suit Is Popular

By CHERIE NICHOLAS.

It is the fur lavished short jacket suit which is holding the center of the stage when it comes to the really distinctive costume for wear about town.

Some of these midwinter suits are fairly breath-taking in their fur extravagance and animated "lines." This is especially true of the smart and colorful tweeds, the short jackets of which are bordered with showy long-haired fur which stands out about the hips in a sprightly poplin effect.

tention as a trimming fur. The costume with lightweight fur has the advantage in one respect, in that it will be wearable not only during the milder winter days, but all through mid-season and on raw, chilly early spring days it will prove timely.

The models illustrated are the sort that will happily bridge over from winter to spring. They are the "classy" type which the smart set will be wearing to luncheon and matinee.

The suit to the left is of red woolen material with black caracul edging the collar, cuffs, and the flaring pelupin.

As to the suit shown to the right, it sounds the fashionable all-black note, in that it is made of a black velvety woolen weave, being also trimmed in black caracul.

It may further be said of the suit that it will be seen everywhere this spring. Not that it will always be strictly a suit version but rather the trend is to jacket costumes, such as accented contrasts between the skirt and vivacious little coats.

Oatmeal With Raisins

Cover four tablespoonfuls of raisins with rapidly boiling water and let stand long enough for them to swell and soften. Then cut the raisins in halves if they are large. Stir these into left-over oatmeal. As much as two cupfuls of the cereal may be used. It is a good plan to have the oatmeal warm when the raisins are added. Moisten small molds or cups with cold water and then pour in the cereal mixture. Chill and serve with a little sugar and cream or rich milk.

Use Steam Pressure for Canning Meats

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The steam pressure canner should always be used for canning meats or chicken, says the United States Department of Agriculture. To be safe, meat must be processed at 250 degrees Fahrenheit. This temperature is higher than boiling water, and is only obtainable under a steam pressure of 15 pounds. Improperly sterilized meats may cause food poisoning.

In choosing a steam pressure canner, see that it is strongly built and that the top clamps on tightly so that there is no leakage of steam when it is closed. There must be an air outlet with a pet cock. The top should be equipped with a pressure gauge, a thermometer, and a safety valve. One serves to check the accuracy of the other. In size, a pressure canner should be suited to the kind of containers to be used and the probable number to be handled at one time. In case the canner must be lifted on and off the stove during canning, it is also important that it should not be too heavy.

After slaughtering, the meat may be prepared for canning as soon as the animal heat has disappeared. The meat is always cooked and seasoned before canning, just as though for immediate serving. It may be roasted, fried, or stewed. It need not be cooked tender, but it should be cooked until the center is no longer red. Remove all bones. Pack the meat white as hot as possible and fill up the jar or can with hot gravy or stock, so that the sterilization period will not be longer than necessary.

Either glass jars or tin cans may be used for canning meats. Full directions for each step in the process will be found in Farmers' Bulletin 1186-F, "Pork on the Farm." Recipes are also given for preparing the various cuts in different ways for canning. The flavor and proportions in these recipes may be varied to suit individual taste, but the length of time and the temperature for the processing of each meat or mixture should never be changed. Other meats are canned similarly after first being cooked in the way desired.

Canned Roast Pork

The ham, shoulder, or loin of pork is best roasted. Scrape the skin clean. Hams will cook more quickly with the skin left on. Wipe the piece of meat with a damp cloth. Sprinkle salt, pepper and flour on the roast. Place it fat side up on a rack in an open pan. Sear quickly in a hot oven, then reduce the temperature and cook slowly, allowing 25 to 30 minutes to the pound. Do not cover and do not add water. When cooked through and nicely browned, slice and pack in cans or jars to within one-half inch of the top of the can. Add gravy made from the pan drippings. There must be at least one-fourth of an inch space between the gravy and the top of the can. Close the can or jar and process in the steam pressure cooker. No. 2 cans or pint jars are processed for 45 to 60 minutes at 250 degrees Fahrenheit or 15 pounds steam pressure. No. 3 cans or quart jars from 55 to 90 minutes at the same pressure. In case the meat is fat the time for processing must be prolonged 10 minutes.

Steam Pressure Canning.

Broccoli Should Not Be Cooked Too Long

Broccoli has come to be regarded as a sort of aristocratic relative of cauliflower, but in its native habitat—Italy and France—it was more democratic, and eaten quite widely. The chief point to watch in cooking it is that it does not become overdone and consequently too soft to lift in whole pieces. The bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture gives the following method of cooking it:

Trim off and discard the leaves and tough lower portion of the stalks of broccoli. Thoroughly wash the remaining center stalks with flower heads attached, and cut lengthwise into strips. Drop into lightly salted boiling water, leave the kettle uncovered, and cook for 15 to 25 minutes. As soon as the broccoli is tender and while the color is still fresh green, drain, season with salt and pepper to taste, and add melted butter or other fat, or serve with hollandaise sauce.

Bedtime Story for the Children

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"I'm bright in a way," said the gold watch, "because I am of gold."

"But I will tell you first of all why I have done such dreadful things as I have been doing lately—such as to lose and gain time in such a reckless way."

"I was made to look expensive. I cost a lot of money—that is, I cost a good deal of money."

"The one who made me, and the one who had me made were more anxious to have me look well than to have me act well."

"They didn't care what happened to me once I was sold and they sold me for less than they usually would sell a gold watch for because I was so cheaply made inside."

"Of course I looked very expensive and in truth I was very expensive, for I wasn't worth my price and that makes an object most tremendously expensive."

"Well, you see, my works were very poor. I was nervous and not well and strong and so I couldn't go steadily."

"One day I'd feel very fine and I'd go dashing ahead, trying to make up for lost time."

"That, of course, a poor watch can never do. It has never been expected of a watch and so a watch shouldn't try to do it."

"Time goes right on no matter what we may do. But you see I would be so silly."

"I would go ahead so fast that it was as bad as though I had lost time."

"Many were the times when I felt so downhearted that I just dragged the hours away—and lost lots of time."

"The whole trouble was that I was trying to pretend that I was something I wasn't."

"And that never does. If a creature is what it is and isn't trying to be something else, then it is all right."

"I was trying to act like a fine gold watch and I was really a poor gold watch."

"I was a humbug, but it wasn't my fault. It was the fault of the people who made me."

"Anyway I'm here now to be fixed up and I believe I'm to be fixed right so that I'll be what I should be—a good timekeeper."

"It's rather exciting—the news I heard just a little while ago."

"My owner is to come for me tomorrow. And then I'll be really and surely and truly all right."

"And what do you suppose?"

"The others in the repair shop did not know."

"I'll be beginning the new year—and keeping the new moments all right."

"Yes, I'm to begin with the new moments of the new year and I'm to have a new start, and I know I'll be like a new watch!"

The others all ticked-tocked and said they were sure this would be the case, and they all ticked-tocked these words:

How to Remove Spots Without Forming Rings

Removing a Grease Stain With Carbon Tetrachloride.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

One of the commonest of the little accidents that occur at home is getting an unsightly spot on a dress or were counting on wearing. Grease spots, like those made by salad dressing or other food, or by car grease, can be taken out comparatively easy by means of several different fluids, but on some fabrics after cleaning a fat, still larger spot remains where the original damage occurred.

Just why do rings form? They are caused in two ways. The extra dressing in the material often dissolves in the cleaning fluid and backs up to form a ring. The other cause is the spreading of soil by the fluid. Most alkalis, especially the less expensive ones, are heavily dressed in the finishing process of manufacture. This gives them a better feel, better draping qualities, and a greater weight. The materials used in this finishing—the waxes, gums, sugar, dextrine, and glue, are apt to cause rings when the cleaning fluid is applied. They are dissolved, carried back to the edge of the damp portion, and left there as the fabric dries. Another cause of rings is that the stain merely spreads, and is not removed from the fabric. The grease spot or soil already on the garment may just dry in rings, as the cleaning fluid evaporates. Often our dresses are slightly soiled even when it does not show. In that case it is usually necessary to dip the entire dress in naphtha or gasoline to remove a spot satisfactorily.

Whether a spot comes out without leaving a ring also depends on the weave and color of the material that has been stained. A ring will not show as plainly on rough and figured fabrics, such as rep or flat crepe, as it does on smooth and plain-colored materials. One cannot hope for great success in getting a spot out of light neutral-colored satin.

"Spots may be taken out of almost any fabric, however, if the cleaning fluid is applied carefully," says an expert in the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture. "Most cleaning fluids, such as chloroform, ether, wood alcohol, gasoline, and carbon tetrachloride, are very good. Of these, carbon tetrachloride is the least likely to form rings. It has additional merit of being noninflammable."

Oh, for the fresh spring season, When the groves are in their prime, And far away in the future, Is the frosty autumn-time! —William Cullen Bryant.

A salmon dish flavored with almonds makes an excellent late supper dish. It may be prepared ahead of time, and this is an advantage.

Almond Souffle of Salmon.—Shred one pound of cooked salmon, add one-fourth pound of finely minced blanched almonds, one teaspoonful each of onion juice and Worcestershire sauce, one egg, white and yolk beaten moisture unevenly into the surrounding goods. The secret of the trick is to spread or "feather" out the liquid into the fabric surrounding the treated section until there is no definite edge when the material dries. This prevents the ring. It is always well to hasten the drying by brushing with a dry rag."

If the grease stain has been caused by a mixture of food materials, not all of which are greasy, it is well to brush the spot lightly with a small clean dry brush before beginning to remove the stain. In this way, particles of food may be loosened and brushed off with less chance of dissolving them and spreading the stain.

separately; salt to season and one cupful of whipped cream folded in the last of all. Turn into well oiled molds and set in water. Cook for thirty minutes or until the center is firm. Serve with a white sauce.

Shrimp Supper Dish.—Take one pound of small shrimps, two large slices of bread, Moisten the bread with two cupfuls of milk, add a teaspoonful each of onion juice and Worcestershire sauce, three sprigs each of parsley and thyme, one bay leaf, a blade of mace finely chopped, one-fourth of a grated nutmeg and a tablespoonful of butter. Mix well and bake in a casserole; cover with buttered crumbs.

Cream Cheese Pie.—Mix one-half cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of flour, one-eighth teaspoonful of salt and the grated rind of an orange. Add one and one-half cakes of cream cheese, work in one-half cupful of cream, add two beaten egg yolks and a few drops of vanilla, then fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a pastry shell and bake in a slow oven until firm. Serve cold with strawberry jam.

Cheese Leaf.—Take two cupfuls of grated cheese, one cupful of bread crumbs, one cupful of mashed potato, two tablespoonfuls of minced parsley, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper, one-half teaspoonful of salt and two well beaten eggs. Mix the cheese, bread crumbs, potatoes and seasonings. Add the yolks of the eggs and mix well, then fold in the whites of the eggs. Put into a greased bread pan and bake in a hot oven twenty minutes or until firm.

Fruit Cocktail.—Take a can each of apricots and peaches, add one teaspoonful of lemon juice and one tablespoonful of confectioner's sugar. Cut the fruit into cubes and arrange in glasses. Just before serving, after adding some of the fruit juices and more lemon juice, cover with ginger ale.

Lyonnaise Spaghetti.—Take half a pound of spaghetti, cook until tender in boiling salted water; drain. Chop one onion, one green pepper, one pimiento, add to four tablespoonfuls of bacon fat and cook until the mixture begins to brown. Add the spaghetti and cook until browned. Serve with meat in place of potato.

Sour Cream Spots Cakes.—Beat one whole egg and the yolks of two, add three-fourths of a cupful of granulated sugar, three-fourths of a cupful of sour cream in which half a teaspoonful of soda has been dissolved. Stir into the mixture two cupfuls of flour which has been sifted with a teaspoonful of baking powder, a teaspoonful of cinnamon and half a teaspoonful each of mace and clove. Add raisins or nuts and bake in a loaf or in a square cake pan.

There May be Poison in YOUR Bowels!

STEP out tomorrow morning with the fresh buoyancy and briskness that comes from a clean intestinal tract. Syrup Pepsin—a doctor's prescription for the bowels—will help you do this. This compound of fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other pure ingredients will clean you out thoroughly—without griping, sickening or discomfort. Poisons absorbed into the system form souring waste in the bowels, cause that dull, headachy, sluggish, bilious condition; coat the tongue; foul the breath; sap energy, strength and nerve-force. A little of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will clear up trouble like that gently, harmlessly, in a hurry. The difference it will make in your feelings over night will prove its merit to you.

Dr. Caldwell studied bowel troubles for forty-seven years. This long experience enabled him to make his prescription just what men, women, old people and children need to make their bowels help themselves. Its natural, mild, thorough action and its pleasant taste commend it to everyone. That's why "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin" as it is called, is the most popular laxative drug stores sell.

Amazes Mother

"Bobbie's stomach was often upset and he suffered a lot from colds," says Mrs. P. S. Fletcher, Jr., 4410 W. 30th St., Los Angeles, Cal. "We found he was constipated."

"Mother used California Fig Syrup, so we gave Bobbie some. He amazed me by the quick way he became strong, energetic, well again. His bowels act freely now, and his digestion is splendid."

The quick, safe way to cleanse and regulate the bowels of bilious, headachy, constipated children is with California Fig Syrup. Every child loves it. It has the full endorsement of doctors. Appetite is increased by its use; digestion is assisted; weak stomach and bowels are given tone and strength.

Look for the word California on the carton. That marks the genuine, famous, for 50 years.

"Sun-Trap" Flat

A "sun-trap" apartment house, built in the heart of the world's largest city, yet providing every apartment with ample sunlight and every room with a good supply of natural daylight, has been completed in London. In the new sun-trap house the architect, Sir Giles G. Scott, has managed the admission of exceptional sunlight by a number of notch-like insets in the outer walls of the buildings, like the air courts of American apartment houses. The sides of these insets are set square with the building walls, but are set at angles which will admit as much sunlight as possible to the windows looking out on the inset.

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

Julius Rosenwald

Peddling wasn't as profitable as the ten-year-old boy thought it ought to be. The wares he had to offer didn't seem to appeal particularly to the busy housewives of Springfield, Ill. Older and more experienced salesmen had called on them before the lad appeared. Those who needed such wares as Julius Rosenwald had to offer generally seemed to be stocked up with them. Not encouraging, to be sure. But the youngster wasn't discouraged. He knew there was a brisk market for him as a door to door salesman if he could hit on wares that were somewhat out of the ordinary. He put away the staple articles of the trade and stocked up on chromos. He did a jaud office business with them.

The boy, who later built up the mail order business of Sears, Roebuck & Company, got his first lessons as a salesman at the age of ten. He learned then that there was always a market if you had goods people really wanted or could use.

Springfield was the place of his birth. He was born in 1866 in a house not far from the old home of Abraham Lincoln. His father was in the clothing business so the boy seems to have come by his ability as a salesman naturally enough.

Even before he turned to selling goods to the thrifty housewives of the Illinois city he had earned money. He got five cents an hour for pumping a church organ when he was just about able to perform the task.

While he attended public schools he earned money as a newsboy as well as a salesman of chromos. He sold pamphlet programs when the Lincoln monument was dedicated in Springfield. He earned $2.25 that day and had the added pleasure of getting a close up of President Grant, the great hero of the Civil war. The general was the first man he ever saw wearing kid gloves.

He was a busy and thrifty youngster. He had a chance to work as a clerk in a fancy goods store during his vacation when he was fifteen years old. Even at that age he was known as a good salesman. Otherwise he would not have had such an opportunity.

He saved $25 of his first earnings in the store and used it to buy his mother a tea set as a gift for the twentieth anniversary of her wedding, much to her joy and to the great surprise of his brother and two sisters. He was already a man in the eyes of the latter.

That year he went to New York to work as a clerk in the store of his uncle. They thought the youngster was deserving of a chance in the big city. He lived frugally in the metropolis, developed his natural ability as a salesman and saved his money. New York, even in the early eighties, had many fascinations and time wasting diversions for young men from the country who thought more of pleasure than of business.

The youngster from the West was interested in little other than business. He passed up any excessive recreation for the serious task of learning his job thoroughly and putting by his money. He wanted to establish his own business. Even in these days it took real money and good credit to open a store of your own.

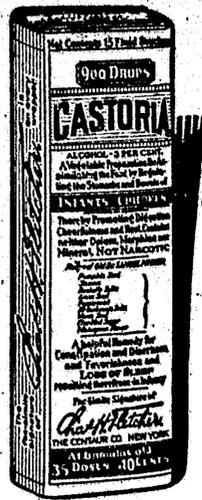

After six years as a worker in the establishment of his uncles he decided he had enough money and sufficient experience to take the plunge. He was twenty-one when he opened his own clothing store. He made money with his business for four years. But he was looking for bigger worlds to conquer. He had his eyes open for opportunity.

He heard of a clothing manufacturer who couldn't fill his orders for summer weight goods because he was unable to meet the demand. The young merchant decided that any business, where the demand was greater than the supply, was an excellent one with which to tie up. He moved to Chicago to put his money and his energies in the manufacture of clothes.

His business prospered from the outset. R. W. Sears, pioneer in the mail order business and president of Sears, Roebuck & Company, was one of the young manufacturer's best customers. Sears, watching the newcomer to the clothes making business, was deeply impressed by his direct methods and business acumen. He found the young man to be a person of few words but mighty quick on the trigger when it came to making decisions.

The Rosenwald concern did so well that when its directing genius was offered a chance by Sears to buy a half interest in the mail order house for $70,000 he was able to finance the deal. That was in 1895. The next year he became Vice President Rosenwald. He was made president of the company when Sears retired in 1908. Now the business is worth millions of dollars and the boy who sold chromos at the age of ten is devoting his vast fortune to philanthropy.

Can't PLAY
Can't REST
—child needs Castoria

WHEN a child is fretful and irritable, seems distressed and uncomfortable, can't play, can't sleep, it is a pretty sure sign that something is wrong. Right here is where Castoria fits into a child's scheme—the very purpose for which it was formulated years ago! A few drops and the condition which caused the trouble is righted; comfort quickly brings restful sleep.

Nothing can take the place of Castoria for children; it's perfectly harmless, yet always effective. For the protection of your wee one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an every-day aid. Its gentle action will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. In more liberal doses it will

HEAD HURT?

WORK won't wait for a headache to wear off. Don't look for sympathy at such times, but get some Bayer Aspirin. It never fails.

Don't be a chronic sufferer from headaches, or any other pain. See a doctor and get at the cause. Meantime, don't play martyr. There's always quick comfort in Bayer Aspirin. It never does any harm. Isn't it foolish to suffer any needless pain? It may be only a simple headache, or it may be neuralgia or neuritis. Rheumatism, Lumbago. Bayer Aspirin is still the sensible thing to take. There is hardly any ache or pain these tablets can't relieve; they are a great comfort to women who suffer periodically; they are always to be relied on for breaking up colds. Buy the box that says Bayer, and has Genuine printed in red. Genuine Bayer Aspirin doesn't depress the heart. All druggists.

To Protect People's Money

Tucumcari News:

The executive committee of the New Mexico Newspaper Association met in Las Vegas Sunday and perfected plans to demand of the state legislature a few laws that will operate to protect the people's money and equalize taxes throughout the state.

Laws will be introduced making it mandatory that financial statements of all public officials handling public moneys published either quarterly, semi annual or annual reports of all receipts and expenditures and that county commissioners' proceedings be published in detail, showing exactly what every penny is spent for, who it goes to, and who those receiving the money gave in return.

A law will be introduced making it mandatory that assessors publish their assessment rolls, treasurers' delinquent tax lists, the newspaper men believing this law will do more to equalize taxes than any other measure.

Some might, at first glance or at first thought, believe the editors are looking for and asking for a chance to get their hands in the public treasury by the publication of financial statements, but just a passing thought will prove to all that such publications will operate to save the taxpayer thousands and thousands of dollars every year.

THE NEW FORD

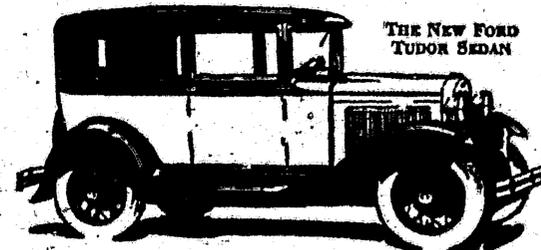

Everything you want or need in a motor car

THE more you see of the new Ford, the more you realize that it brings you everything you want or need in a motor car. . . . And at an unusually low price.

Its substantial beauty of line and color is apparent at a glance. Long, continuous service emphasizes the value of its simplicity of design and the high quality that has been built into every part.

The new Ford accelerates quickly and it will do 55 to 65 miles an hour. It is an easy-riding car because of its specially designed springs and four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers. It has fully enclosed four-wheel brakes and the added safety of a Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield. Operation and up-keep costs are low and it has the stamina and reliability that mean thousands of miles of uninterrupted service.

See the nearest dealer and have him give you a demonstration ride in the new Ford. Check up every point that goes to make a good automobile and you will know it is a value far above the price.

Norris and Other Radical Republicans Reject Third Party Suggestions—Wickersham Report Sure to Start Fight in Congress.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

DEMOCRATS, no doubt, are highly edified by the way in which the row within the Republican party is being kept going.

Responding to a question, Norris said if the Democratic party should nominate a real progressive in 1932 many of the western Republican independents would support him.

It is an open secret that the power interests are trying to nominate a Democrat who will be satisfactory to them," he stated.

There were various interesting developments in the quarrel between Norris and Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican national committee.

WITH the news that the report of the Wickersham commission would be given to President Hoover on January 5 and undoubtedly transmitted by him to congress immediately thereafter, it became evident that there was going to be a great deal of fighting over the prohibition question during the remainder of the short session.

G. W. Wickersham

Members of the lower house were said to have determined to force a roll call on some prohibition items in the Department of Justice appropriation bill which is to be reported to the house about January 13; and in the senate both wets and dries are getting their ammunition ready.

If the report contains specific recommendations for legislation changing the prohibition law in a vital way, observers in the national capital think this might be the factor that would make necessary the calling of a special session of the new congress in the spring.

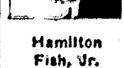

On the other hand, Senator Borah of Idaho asserted the opponents of an extra session were trying to find patriotic excuses for going home to Europe, and that there was much important legislation, aimed at helping business, that demanded immediate enactment.

THE program on which the radical Republicans want action includes such controversial measures as the debarment plan for farm relief, Muscle Shoals and power, further relief measures including the Wagner unemployment bill, regulation of bus traffic, and increase in the income tax rates in the upper brackets.

QUICK relief for the drought sufferers is a certainty. The subcommittee of the house committee on appropriations approved of an appropriation of $45,000,000 for this loan, the full amount authorized in the legislation already enacted, and the full committee was prepared to recommend this to congress immediately after the session was resumed.

Secretary of Agriculture Hyde appeared before the subcommittee to support the appropriation, although he reiterated his belief that $25,000,000 would be sufficient to care for the drought area.

Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr. of New York, in whose district West Point is situated, is urging the early passage of his bill appropriating $1,500,000 for the purchase of 15,000 acres additional for the military academy.

Hamilton Fish, Jr.

High officers of army have asserted that it is greatly handicapped by insufficient ground, meager water supply and lack of facilities for training the cadets.

Gen. John J. Pershing had endorsed the move to acquire 15,000 acres of land adjacent to the academy. He said:

"If West Point is to continue to fulfill its mission of preparing its graduates for emergencies, greater facilities for the special training required must be provided."

He urged that the government immediately acquire the land as recommended by Maj. Gen. William B. Smith, superintendent of the academy.

AT THE instigation of President Hoover, the executives of the chief eastern railroads got together and arranged for consolidation into four major systems, the focal points of which are the Pennsylvania, the New York Central, the Baltimore and Ohio and the Van Sweringen lines.

It is understood the executives agreed to allot the Reading and Jersey Central lines to the Baltimore and Ohio, the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western to the New York Central, and the Lehigh Valley to the Chesapeake and Ohio-Nickle Plate system, while the Pennsylvania will get trackage rights over both the Lehigh Valley and the Nickel Plate lines into Buffalo and a cash consideration.

IN ORDER to round out the federal building program in Washington, according to Senator Henry W. Keyes of New Hampshire, the property adjacent to the Capitol grounds now occupied by the Methodist building is necessary and may be purchased under condemnation by the government.

Keyes is chairman of the senate public buildings and grounds committee, so he speaks by the ears. The Methodist building, sometimes called the Methodist "cathedral," is located just east of the Capitol, across the street from the new Supreme court building, now under construction.

Senator Keyes said the ground occupied by the Methodist building could be used partly for open park space and partly for some government building. Although no bill is pending in congress providing for its acquisition, Senator Keyes indicated that such legislation was in prospect.

The Methodist board of temperance, prohibition and public morals, which occupies the structure, recently was refused permission to build an annex to it by the District of Columbia zoning authorities.

JUDGE DAVID JENKINS of Youngstown, Ohio, put an end to proposed plans for the million dollar merger of the Bethlehem Steel corporation and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company when he granted to minority stockholders a permanent injunction restraining the combination.

SCIENTISTS from all parts of the United States and Canada spent the week in Cleveland, Ohio, attending the sessions of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and Affiliated Societies. They numbered more than five thousand and they read and listened to papers relating the latest researches into the secrets of the universe.

Dr. Millikan

Doctor Millikan was presented by the new president, Thomas H. Morgan of the California Institute of Technology, after welcoming speeches by Dr. Robert E. Vinson, president of Western Reserve university, where many of the meetings were held, and Dr. William E. Wickenden, president of the Case School of Applied Science.

ONE of the features of New Year's day was the inauguration of Franklin Roosevelt as governor of New York for his second term. At 11:15 the governor started from the executive mansion in Albany for the state capitol, accompanied by his military staff.

NEW YEAR'S day in the White House was the occasion for the annual reception that is traditional. President and Mrs. Hoover went to the Blue room at 11 o'clock in the morning and there greeted the members of the cabinet, justices of the Supreme court, army and navy officials and members of congress and of the diplomatic corps.

EUROPE'S latest dictatorship has been established in the little principality of Monaco by its ruler, Prince Louis II, and his people do not take it with good grace. Twice within a week there were political and popular demonstrations against the prince, Prince Louis partly because he had been spending most of his time living a gay life in Paris, and partly because of the decrease in the revenues from the Casino in Monte Carlo—the only revenues of the state.

DEATH of Representative David J. O'Connell of Brooklyn reduced the number of Democrats elected to the next house to 214. He had served in congress continuously since 1919 with the exception of one term.

JAPAN lost one of its ablest diplomats in the death of Marquis Kinichi Kameura, vice minister of overseas affairs. He leaves no heir to his title.

THE MINISTRY OF JOHN THE BAPTIST

LESSON TEXT—Luke 3:7-20. GOLDEN TEXT—Bring forth therefore fruits worthy of repentance, and begin not to say within yourselves, We have Abraham to our father; for I say unto you, That God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus and John the Baptist. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus and John the Baptist. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Courageous Reformer. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Message of John the Baptist.

I. The Degeneracy of the Times (v. 1, 2).

The Jews had sunk to a very low level of civil, moral and religious life. Luke carefully enumerates the civil and religious rulers in order to show the profligacy of the times and therefore the need of a messenger to call the people back to God and virtue. Caesar has been described as "fierce, ambitious, cruel, licentious, infamous, inhuman." Civil rule was divided between four of Rome's vassals. Pontius Pilate a little later attained notoriety by unjustly and in a cowardly manner condemning Jesus to death. Herod, the son of Herod the Great, was a murderer. Annas and Caiaphas were corrupt ecclesiastical rulers.

II. The Nature of John's Ministry (vv. 3-5).

Out of the wilderness John flashed forth, preaching the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins (v. 3). The baptism was a sign of repentance. His ministry is declared to be a fulfillment of Isaiah's prophecy. He is described as one calling upon the nation to prepare for the coming of the Messiah. The only hope for the world is God's salvation through Jesus Christ. The valleys of righteousness need to be filled. The mountains and hills of sin need to be brought low. The crooked ways of commerce need to be straightened, and the rough ways of society and nations need to be smoothed. Let men accept Jesus Christ and all war and contention will end. Men will then love each other.

III. The Content of John's Message (vv. 7-15).

1. A denunciation of sin (vv. 7, 8). He called the people "a generation of vipers." He charged them with being essentially wicked and deceitful. Knowing the subtle hypocrisy of these Jews, he demanded evidence of their sincerity.

2. An announcement of judgment (v. 9.) He declared that the ax was laid at the root of the tree and that the tree not bringing forth fruit was to be hewn down and cast into the fire. John made it very plain that for their sins they should be called into judgment. To be brought face to face with judgment has a sobering effect upon men. Paul's preaching of a judgment to come made Felix tremble (Acts 24:25). While John preached sin and judgment, he accompanied it with the assurance of pardon on condition of repentance.

3. Instructions to the Inquirers (vv. 10-14). (1) The people (vv. 10, 11). Each man was to turn from his besetting sin and show love and kindness to his fellow men. Clothing and food were to be given to those who had need. The people were to turn from a life of selfishness and greed and do unto others as they would be done by. (2) Publicans (vv. 12, 13). These taxgatherers who were guilty of greed and oppression were not asked to give up their occupation, but to exact only that which was appointed by law. (3) The soldiers (v. 14). These were probably the policemen of that day, at least men on military duty. They were to refrain from false accusation and doing violence to men, and to be content with their wages.

4. Testimony to Jesus (vv. 15-18). The people were musing in their hearts as to whether John was indeed the Messiah. When John perceived this he, with fine humility, declared that his mission was so lowly by comparison with that of Christ that he would be unworthy to perform the menial act of a slave in loosing the latchet of his shoes. John baptized with water, but Christ would baptize with the Holy Ghost and with fire.

IV. John's Imprisonment (vv. 10, 20).

Because of his reproof of Herod for his lawlessness and other sins, John went to the dungeon and eventually was beheaded. God's faithful prophets are usually despised by the world, and some are even imprisoned, burned, or beheaded.

Faith

It is the wind that carries the ship across the waves; but the wind is powerless unless the hand of the boatman is held firmly upon the rudder, and that rudder is set hard against the wind. This is the attitude of steadfast faith to divine omnipotence. We hold the rudder; God fills the sails. It is not the rudder that carries the ship, but it is the rudder which catches the wind which carries the ship. And so God keeps us in perfect peace while we are stayed in him.—A. B. Simpson.

The Fighting Tenderfoot

THE STORY

Garrett O'Hara, young lawyer, on his way to practice at Concho, was in town. He shot at him from ambush by Shep Sanderson, who mistakes him for Judge Warner, whom certain cattle interests wish to prevent holding court. Barbara Steelman, who thought the shot was directed at her, warns Garrett not to go to Concho because of the big cattle war. Steve Worrall tells Garrett about the cattle war between Ingram and Steelman, father of Barbara. Bob Quantrell, young-killer for Ingram, saves Garrett O'Hara and an Englishman, Smith-Beresford, from being shot by Sanderson. The three become friends. Garrett accidentally witnesses a meeting between Barbara and Ingram. They are lovers. Garrett and the Englishman buy a ranch with Steelman as silent partner. Fitch, Steelman man, kills an Ingram follower. A posse, including Quantrell and Sanderson, capture and hang Fitch. Sanderson starts a fight at the ranch and Garrett and the Englishman are wounded. Quantrell changes sides and joins with the two "tenderfeet." A lull in the cattle war follows. Quantrell kills Sanderson and another Ingram gunman. A tentative peace is patched up through Garrett's efforts. Quantrell jeopardizes the peace project by leading an unauthorized raid on the Hughes ranch. Barbara agrees to marry Ingram. Quantrell is horridly whipped by Ingram and swears vengeance. Barbara and Ingram marry. Quantrell joins an outlaw band. O'Hara is appointed sheriff.

They reached the red road ribbon, then turned to follow it as it circled the base of the butte. Presently they could see the huddled buildings of the ranch and the windmill shining in the setting sun.

Three twisted cedars hugged the shale cliff close to the road. A man and a horse were in the cedars. The man had dismounted.

Roche pulled up a sudden halt. The heart in him died under his ribs. The man in the cedars was Bob Quantrell and he held in his hands a shotgun. It was a double-barreled one. That the cartridges were loaded with buckshot the cowboy did not need to be told. The outlaw paid no attention to Roche. He looked at the man who had flogged him, and it seemed to the vaquero that a red-hot devil of rage glared out of his eyes. But when he spoke his voice was low and almost casual, yet somehow malignantly sinister.

"Like I promised you, Dave, me an' you alone."

Ingram must have known that he was a dead man. At that distance Quantrell could not miss. The young ruffian who stood there taunting him would pull the trigger long before he could drag the rifle from its scabbard, before even he could flash a six-shooter into the light. Ingram's decision was instant, and it was characteristic of the man. He took the one fathom fighting chance that offered.

Flinging his body from the saddle head first, the cattle man's clattering fingers plucked out a revolver as he dived for the ground. A gun roared, and a dozen buckshot tore through Ingram's side while he was still in the air. His moments were to be counted on the fingers of two hands, and he knew it. But his indomitable will was for one instant stronger than death. He steadied himself on his left forearm, raised the weapon jerkily, and fired. Simultaneously, or perhaps a fraction of a second later, came the roar of the shotgun.

Before the sound of it had died away the cow man was dead.

Quantrell reached for his revolver. Roche was lying in a panic down the road toward the Diamond Tail. The killer's tusks showed in a grin, one not pleasant to see. He shuffled his bow-legged way forward, and in a sudden fury of rage flung three bullets into the dead body.

"Maybe you'll not be so handy with a quirt from now on," he spat out venomously.

The outlaw could not stay to enjoy his triumph. There was need of a hurried departure. Roche would cry the news at the ranch and saddles would be slapped on cow ponies in a hurry for the pursuit. But Quantrell took his time. It would be long before he would have another hour so full of relish as this one.

He walked back to his horse, pulled the slip knot by which it was tied, and swung to the saddle. Beside the body he stopped once more to grin evilly down at it.

From this point the road dropped slightly, in the direction of the ranch, for several hundred yards, then plunged down out of sight for some distance. Two horses were galloping toward him. He was curious to know who these two might be. Certainly they were losing no time. Delay was dangerous, but the taste of peril in his nostrils stimulated him. He waited till the riders topped the rise, turned to go, but looked back with his hand on the cantle.

"By cripes, one of 'em is a woman,"

he said to himself, and he swept his hat off in a rakish bow.

He plunged into a draw of scrub oaks, crashed through it, and presently was among thickets of chaparral. For an hour he rode fast, but when dusk began to fall he knew he was safe and slackened pace.

CHAPTER XI

O'Hara Says His Piece

The killing of Ingram aroused public sentiment more than any atrocity that had taken place during the feud. If it had occurred while the Jefferson County war had been still in progress there would have been a divided opinion, but coming as it did just after peace had been declared both factions turned on Quantrell and his gang. Poses scoured the chaparral, driving the outlaws from one camp to another. None of the bandits dared show themselves in any town. The fled into the high hills and "holed up."

The governor of the territory had put a price of three thousand dollars on the head of Quantrell dead or alive.

Even Bob Quantrell, in spite of the jaunty insouciance he assumed, was daunted by the storm he had aroused. It was not so much his enemies that he feared as those whom he was forced to trust. From half a dozen trees at lonely crossroads he tore down placards which described him and announced the reward for his capture. When he rode up to a cabin near the head of some creek, one far from any neighbors, he could never be sure that a bullet would not greet him before he swung from the saddle. He watched suspiciously the nesters who supplied him with food, and they in turn eyed him and his followers nervously. They sensed his mistrust of them and could not be sure that in a moment of acute doubt he would not resort to the six-shooter. Their apprehensions were increased because they knew, two or three of them at least, that they would have betrayed him had they dared.

At no time could Quantrell escape from the haunting dread of treachery. It was present with him when he and his men were camped far up in the pines close to the jagged peaks. He could not look into the eyes of any of his fellow outlaws without seeing the lust for that three thousand dollar reward gleaming out of them. He began to get jumpy. This was a new and disturbing condition.

One night he spread his blankets a little way from those of his companions, on the edge of the camp. After they had gone to sleep he rose very quietly, packed his roll, and carried it into the brush. He found his hobbled horse, saddled it, and tied the blankets back of the saddle. Five minutes later he was winding his way between two of the thousand precipitous hills that surrounded him.

When Deever woke in the morning he found a pencil-scratched note weighted down by a stone beside his saddle. It read:

"Adios, boys. See you later. I'm heading for Mexico. This country is bad medicine for me. It's hotter than h—l on a holiday right now."

"BOB QUANTRELL"

The outlaws discussed it. "Just as well," Deever said. "He was scared of us—scared we'd shoot him for the reward. I could see by the way he's been actin' lately. I'm plumb glad he's lit out."

"Me, too," agreed another known as Sandy. "Sure enough Bob's been on the look lately—kinda mean actin', an' you know how good-natured he usually is. I don't aim to get into any jackpot with him if I can help it. Well, I reckon the rest of us better scatter, too. Trinidad for me. I got a friend up thataway with a cow ranch."

"I aim to be an absentee for a spell my own self," the third man said. "If I ain't too late I'll take a job with a trail outfit in the Panhandle. A friend of mine's brother is foreman. Anyways, I'll shake a hoof for Tascosa, an' glad to get away at that. I been right uneasy ever since Bob bumped off Ingram."

So it happened that within six weeks of the appointment of O'Hara the Quantrell gang was dissolved and went its several ways. The new sheriff got some credit for this because of his activity in organizing and directing the posse that had kept the outlaws on the jump, but he knew he still had to justify his selection in the eyes of the old-timers.

This he proceeded to do. There were other rustlers, horse thieves, and criminals in his district. Some of these were nesters in the hills. Others had their headquarters at Concho. Against these O'Hara waged continuous warfare if he could prove that they had lifted a hand to overt lawlessness since the end of the war.

Deever drifted down to Concho and joined the group of bad men who still hung around. He relied on the fact that there was very little definite evidence that he had been one of Quantrell's men. That he had been with them now and again he did not deny, but never while the gang had been engaged in rustling or any other lawlessness.

O'Hara had adopted much more than Smith-Beresford the habit of life of those about him. He wore corduroy trousers thrust into the tops of cowboy boots, a pinched-in Stetson hat, and a gray flannel shirt. A 45-caliber Colt six-shooter sagged from a belt fastened above his hips. His face had become as brown as coffee. His muscles were hard and pliant as those of the tough backskin peg pony he rode. But the change in him was more than physical. It extended to his mental reactions. Two months earlier, for instance, he would never have taken with Deever the high-handed course he took now.

It was evening when he drifted into the Gold Nugget. The place buzzed with activity. A poker game was in progress near the back door, by which way the sheriff had entered. Some young cowboys were trying their luck with a pair of professional gamblers. A faro game was running and also one of Mexican monte. Men were lined up beside the bar drinking.

O'Hara nodded to one and another of those he knew. He was on friendly terms with a good many citizens. Most honest men liked this quiet, amiable young man who had proved unmistakably that he had nerve.

He stopped at the faro table just back of the man he had come to see. Deever looked around.

"Don't put yore foot on the rung of my chair," he growled. "I'm kinda superstitious, young fellow."

"All right, I won't," O'Hara promised pleasantly. "You about through playing?"

"What's catin' you? Want my seat?"

"Not tonight. Don't let me hurry you. When you're through I've got a few words to say to you."

Deever siewed around in his chair. "Speak yore piece right out in meetin', fellow. I got nothin' to say to you that can't be said before everybody."

"Just as you please, Deever." The sheriff's voice did not lose its amiability in the least. "What I wanted to say was that you are to get out of this country inside of twenty-four hours."

"Me! What for?" The squat cowboy rose to his feet and faced the officer. His hard eyes narrowed. "I don't have to get out on yore say-so."

"No, you can't stay. But I wouldn't if I were you. Take a straight tip and hit the trail. This climate is unhealthy for you."

"Why? Because some squirt of a tenderfoot sheriff says so?" Deever's manner was menacing, his voice harsh. Men suspended their card playing and their drinking to watch this drama. Red tragedy might flame out of it any moment.

"That's it, Deever. You've guessed it first time." O'Hara still spoke gently, almost amiably, but what he said rang out clear as a bell. "Because this tenderfoot sheriff says so. Get out. Inside of twenty-four hours, as I said."

"An' if I don't?"

The sheriff shook his head. "No if about it. You're checking out?" He was so quietly confident that Deever wavered. The outlaw knew Concho had had a change of heart. If he followed his impulse, called for a showdown and shot O'Hara, very likely he would never leave town alive. For a moment his glance slid around the room, looking for the men who might be expected to stand with him. What he saw gave him small comfort. A score of men were watching him, but what they were thinking behind those steady eyes he could not tell.

"You're the big auger 'round here now, are you?" Jeered the outlaw. "Because Wes Steelman got you appointed to a two-by-four job. Say, fellow, don't get heavy with me. It ain't supposed to be safe."

"Safe for you?" asked O'Hara, his brown eyes never lifting from the outlaw's face. "Listen, Deever. Here's the layout. Don't try to crowd your luck here. You're bucked out in this county. Get out, or I'll throw you into jail."

He turned on his heel and sauntered to the bar. Steve Worrall was there taking a drink. He asked O'Hara to join him, then added as a postscript to his invitation a remark intended to reach Deever.

"Some of these scoundrels will learn after a while to hit the pike when you give the word," he said, clapping his friend on the back. "By the great jumpin' horn' toad, you're sure one hellamiller. Betcha my bald-face mare against a dollar Mex that Concho will lose one of its sure-enough bully puss warriors right soon, say within twenty-four hours."

"I think so," agreed O'Hara nonchalantly. "How's the freighting business these days, Steve?"

"Lookin' up again, like sheriffin'," Worrall grinned. "Say, young fellow, you're sure a tonic to an old stove-up donker like me. Travellin' with you would make a jackrabbit spit in a wildcat's eye."

"Come on, Steve, I want to have a powwow with you," O'Hara said. He slipped an arm under the tall man's elbow and the two walked out of the Gold Nugget together.

The prediction of Steve Worrall turned out to be a true one. In the dark hours of the night Deever slipped out of town and departed for parts unknown.

"Dad burn it, I got to light a shuck," he told himself. "But if I ever get a crack at this pilgrim O'Hara I'll send him a through ticket to Kingdom Come."

After which he slapped a saddle on bronco and decamped.

This enhanced the new sheriff's reputation tremendously. The people of Concho could not follow the workings of Deever's mind. What reached them was that O'Hara had served notice on this outlaw, one of the most vicious of the bad men, to get out of town within a specified time and that the fellow had not waited to challenge the ultimatum. They deduced that he was afraid of the sheriff.

As the months passed O'Hara, assisted by public sentiment, cleaned up the town. There were still occasional shooting affairs, but they did not have the sanction of community support.

O'Hara was kept so busy that for months he did not find time to pay more than one or two flying visits to the Circle S O. His partner, Smith-Beresford, was managing the ranch, with some advice from Wesley Steelman, and he was doing so well that it began to look as though he might escape the usual fate of wealthy Englishmen who went into cows in the West.

It was nearly nine months after the death of Ingram that a cowboy from the Diamond Tail brought the sheriff news, not entirely unexpected. Barbara had given birth to a boy, weight eight pounds.

Since the day of the funeral O'Hara had not set eyes on Barbara. His excuse had been that he was too busy to call, but the real reason was that he did not know whether he could keep his eyes from telling her what was in his heart. Now he could no longer decently stay away. At the first opportunity he rode out to the Diamond Tail.

At sight of Barbara the blood rushed stormily to his heart. He knew that he was betraying himself, yet words choked in his throat and he could find nothing to say. In his brown hand he held the one she had given him, and as he looked at her a slow flush crept into her cheeks.

"So you came through with the proper indorsement of its beauty."

Barbara laughed happily. "You're tellin' fibs, Garrett. I'm his mother, but even I can see that he's a homely little peanut yet. You couldn't call that little button a nose, could you? But his eyes are lovely, aren't they? They are his father's."

The nurse relieved O'Hara of the baby and carried it out of the room. "Time he went to sleep," she announced with authority. "You may sit down and talk to Barbara, Mr. O'Hara."

"Won't I tire her?"

"No. Not if you don't stay too long. Amuse her."

After she had left them alone Barbara settled back among her pillows. "You've heard yore orders. Amuse me, Garrett." There was a faint friendly smile on her lips. She knew him of old.

"Good gracious! I can't. I never amused a woman in my life. I don't know how to talk with one."

"Then don't bother about amusing me. Interest me. Tell me all about yourself an' what you've been doing."

"Dad burn it, I got to light a shuck," he told himself. "But if I ever get a crack at this pilgrim O'Hara I'll send him a through ticket to Kingdom Come."

Don't neglect a COLD
DISTRESSING cold in chest or throat—that so often leads to something serious—generally responds to good old Musterole with the first application. Should be more effective if used once every hour for five hours. This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other helpful ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a scientific "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation, helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses. Keep Musterole handy—jars and tubes. To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Shaker Furniture Had Its Distinctive Charm
The Shakers anticipated by many years the modern vogue of finishing furniture "in the natural," although they often washed a thin coating of yellow ochre or venetian red over the wood. Their construction was solid and workmanlike and featured expert pegging and dovelling. Their woods for the most part were native Kentucky timber such as plain and curly maple, pine, birch, chestnut, and occasionally walnut. Not infrequently the chairs, beds and chests had wooden carvings. The Shaker furniture is austere almost to the point of crudity, particularly many of the trestle tables and benches, which are decidedly primitive, but their primitiveness has a distinct charm.—Chicago Evening Post.

An Eminent Physician Prescribed this Tonic

As a young man Dr. R. V. Pierce practiced medicine in Pennsylvania. His prescriptions met with such great demand that he moved to Buffalo, N. Y., and put up in ready-to-use form his well-known tonic for the blood, Golden Medical Discovery. It aids digestion, acts as a tonic, and enriches the blood—clears away pimples and annoying eruptions and tends to keep the complexion fresh and clear. This medicine comes in both fluid and tablets. Church Built of Glass Here's a unique feature of modern church construction. The St. Peter and Nicholas, which recently was consecrated at Dortmund, Germany, is built with a skeleton of reinforced concrete and walls of colorful glass. The church, except for a parapet seven feet in height, has nothing but glass walls. So constructed with glass walls, the church, when illuminated in the evening, presents a brilliant spectacle of striking beauty. A tower, which is illuminated at night, rises 170 feet above the church's portal.
