After the war he left Carrizozo and located in Kansas City where he has since resided and enjoys a lucrative practice. The above complimentary press notice from the Kansas City Star, shows the Doctor's popularity in a large city, where one in the medical profession, more especially, must earn his reputation through hard work among the people and his professional associates.

Dispute Between President and Senate Over Power Board Nominations Wrecks Co-Operation—Red Cross Asks Drought Relief Fund.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

Sen. Wheeler

CO-OPERATION between President Hoover and the senate, never notable for its warmth, was practically obliterated by the dispute over the appointments to the power board. When the senate asked the Chief Executive to return to it his nominations of George Otis Smith, Marcel Grand and Claude L. Draper so that it might rescind its confirmation of those names, Mr. Hoover with understandable indignation curtly refused, declaring that he "cannot admit the power of the senate to encroach upon the executive functions by removal of a duly appointed executive officer under the guise of reconsideration of his nomination."

The President was fortified in his action by an opinion of Attorney General Mitchell, and he gave out a public statement explaining his course and intimating that the action of the senate was actuated by "a hope of symbolizing me as the defender of the power interests if I refuse to sacrifice three outstanding public servants." He said there was no issue for or against the power companies involved.

Senators who are in opposition to the administration thereupon arose in their wrath and scathingly denounced Mr. Hoover, and the body, by a vote of 36 to 23, ordered the clerk to restore the names of the three power commissioners to the executive calendar, which placed the senate on record as holding that no power commission exists. Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana served notice that he would seek to tie up the salaries of the commissioners in the annual independent offices appropriation bill, intimating that if necessary a filibuster would be conducted against the measure.

While the action of the senate was in order under its rules, it was unprecedented and does not seem to have met with general public approval. Since the commissioners had been duly sworn in and the attorney general has ruled that the appointments were constitutionally made, President Hoover was on solid legal ground in rejecting the senate's demand and indeed that was the least he could do under the circumstances. In this case the rules of the senate are in conflict with the law and the Constitution. Whether or not Mr. Hoover was wise in impugning the motives of the senate is open to question.

SINCE the destruction of private grain operators is held by the federal farm board to be no part of its function, Chairman Legge has virtually warned them to be ready for the July 1 settlements. He discloses that the board not only holds large contracts for future delivery but also is fast gaining control of the cash wheat supply. Legge said the grain stabilization corporation is holding about 75,000,000 bushels of cash wheat, and about 65,000,000 bushels of futures contract wheat which must be delivered between now and next July 1.

He admitted that on July 1, when the new crop begins coming in, he expects the board to be holding "virtually all of the national carry-over." Such a position with any futures contracts outstanding would place the board in a position to wipe out short-speculators who happened to be due to deliver wheat to the board. A similar condition existed several months ago, and at that time the board spared the short sellers by extending the delivery date.

WITH the warm approval of President Hoover, an appeal for funds for the relief of sufferers in the drought-stricken districts of the United States has been issued by John Barton Payne, head of the Red Cross. It is the hope of Mr. Payne that $10,000,000 will be contributed by the generous citizens of the country. He says the demands for help in the drought areas are increasing. Not only food, clothing and fuel for human beings are needed, but also feed for the live stock.

In his letter to Mr. Payne the President reviewed briefly the drought relief work of the Red Cross since last fall, when $5,000,000 was set aside for the purpose and appeals for further funds were postponed until it should be possible to measure the volume of requirements. He continued: "The problem has now developed more than the available funds and is not wholly one of food, clothing, and other personal care among farmers, who have suffered from the drought. There is also difficulty in the smaller rural and industrial towns as a double reaction from the drought and depression. I understand that these towns are unable to organize effectively to meet their problems as are the municipalities."

"The arrangement made by Secretary Hyde and yourself by which a representative of local Red Cross chapters will sit upon the local committees created by the Department of Agriculture for administration of the crop relief will assure that every one truly deserving will be looked after with care and without waste."

"I am confident that you will commend the never failing generous instincts of our people toward those who are less fortunate."

Investigation of conditions in Arkansas shows that Senator Caraway was not exaggerating much when he told of the needs of the farmers of his state in his argument for the senate amendment to the $45,000,000 drought relief appropriation. The senate wanted to add $15,000,000 for loans for food, but the house rejected the amendment.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas tried a new plan, offering an amendment to the interior department appropriation bill providing for a federal donation of $25,000,000 to the Red Cross for relief in city and rural districts.

Al Smith

APOLOGY and repudiation from the Republican national committee are demanded by Alfred E. Smith, Democratic Presidential candidate in 1928, for permitting its executive director, Robert H. Lucas, to circulate 800,000 copies of the "Al Smith-Raskob Idea of Inflation" circular in Nebraska and other states during the campaign last fall. On the circular was a picture of a barroom.

Mr. Smith made his demand in a letter which Senator Wagner of New York introduced before the Nye senatorial campaign committee. He declared a quotation attributed to him was false, and said: "I am entitled to have 800,000 copies of a statement, showing that I was falsely quoted, distributed just as widely as the original cartoon was and to the same organizations."

Senator Nye told the committee that charges of perjury would be filed at Lincoln, Neb., against George W. Norris, the grocer of Broken Bow, who sought to run against Senator George W. Norris in the last primary in Nebraska.

SEVERAL hundred delegates, mainly from Mississippi valley states, attended a waterway and flood control conference in Chicago promoted by Mayor William Hale Thompson. The men from Louisiana were especially active in the meeting and presented a platform calling for more money for flood control, more rapid expenditure of the funds now available, and radical changes in the Javalin plan for a reservoir system, with a board of distinguished civil engineers replacing the War department engineers in charge of construction, if necessary.

Mayor Thompson was indicted as "the most effective friend the Mississippi valley ever has had," and several delegates bitterly denounced Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, who in a New Orleans speech had called the conference a ballyhoo and political rally for Thompson.

DR. John Grier Hibben has announced that he will retire from the presidency of Princeton university at the end of the academic year in 1932. There is much discussion as to who will succeed him, but the board of trustees has not yet taken up the question. Most prominently mentioned for the place is Raymond A. Foedick, an eminent New York lawyer who graduated from Princeton with the class of 1906. He is now one of the trustees. Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, a member of the class of 1900, is also suggested. He, too, is on the board of trustees.

Doctor Hibben was elected president of the university January 11, 1912, and inaugurated the following May 12. He succeeded Woodrow Wilson, who resigned in 1910 upon his election as governor of New Jersey. Only three of Princeton's fourteen presidents served terms longer than the 30 years of Doctor Hibben. They were John Witherspoon, the sixth president, who served from 1763 to 1790; James Carnahan, the ninth, from 1833 to 1854; and James McCosh, the eleventh, from 1868 to 1888.

IF THE Democratic party wants another wet candidate for the Presidency in 1932, Albert C. Ritchie is ready for the job. Such was the implication in his address when he was inaugurated for the fourth time as governor of Maryland. Dealing with national rather than state issues, he attacked prohibition, criticized the part played by the liquor administration tion in the economic situation and declared his opposition to governmental interference with business.

SERIOUS opposition by the senate to President Hoover's six nominees for membership on the tariff board developed in the case of only one, and during the week all of them were confirmed. They are Henry F. Fletcher, Thomas W. Page, John Lee Coulter, Alfred P. Dennis, Edgar B. Brossard and Lincoln Dixon.

Robinson of Arkansas and Walsh of Montana attacked Brossard, who is from Utah, because of his alleged part in advocating a high tariff on sugar in 1924 when he was an economist in the employ of the old tariff commission. But the radical Republicans failed to support the Democrats and some of them made speeches in favor of Brossard; and the Utah man was confirmed by a vote of 45 to 36.

S. H. Strawn

UNDER the auspices of the International Chamber of Commerce a great world business conference will open in Washington May 4 and continue six days. Business men from 45 countries will attend and will try to determine the causes of the present international trade depression. This subject will be taken up promptly at the first plenary session, which will be presided over by Georges Theunis, former premier of Belgium and president of the international chamber.

The program for the conference was announced by Sllas H. Strawn of Chicago, chairman of the American committee of the international chamber. In discussing the existing conditions he said:

"The conviction is held in many quarters abroad that the first step toward business recovery in Europe is the resumption of normal buying in the United States. Until our people, by the renewal of purchases abroad of both raw materials and finished products, can reduce surplus stocks and bring about a stable price level in the more important countries, European business leaders see no probability of substantial improvement in the world economic situation."

"Perhaps the most ominous cloud that overhangs the whole economic world is the dumping on the world markets of large quantities of grain, raw materials, and semi-finished products by Soviet Russia, at prices less than the normal costs of production."

"The Washington conference will endeavor to investigate carefully the distinction between cause and effect in the present situation, with a view to establishing to what extent remedies can be sought and the first steps hastened by co-ordinating sectional endeavor."

ONE of America's truly great Jews, Nathan Straus of New York, has passed on to his reward. Having acquired a large fortune in merchandising, he devoted himself to aiding his fellow men and gave away many millions. Outstanding among his benefactions was his work for the conservation of infant life largely through the establishment of stations where pure milk could be obtained for babies by the poor. Chicago also lost a philanthropist in the death of Edwin F. Meyer, who gave large sums to dependents of slain policemen and was an organizer of the Associated Jewish charities.

NO TRACE has been found, at this writing, of Mrs. Beryl Hart and Lieut. W. S. McClaren and the plane. Tradewind in which they flew from Bermuda to the Azores on their way to Paris. For several days there were severe storms on the Atlantic and it was taken for granted that the two aviators were lost.

ARISTIDE Briand's plan for a union of European states is now under official consideration, for the committee appointed by the League of Nations to study the proposal and draw up a scheme for putting it into effect met Friday in Geneva for its first session. Not only Europe, but the whole world is deeply interested and will follow the doings of the committee closely.

The committee includes thirteen foreign plenipotentiaries and is presided over by M. Briand himself. Sir Eric Drummond, secretary general of the league, is in South America, so the chairman is assisted by J. L. M. C. Avenol, the assistant secretary, who is a Frenchman.

There are numerous opponents of the Briand scheme, and they say nothing can come of it with favor because she is both a European and a world power and such a union as is proposed would probably work to the injury of her vast dominions. The "revisionist" states, such as Germany, Hungary and Italy, would scarcely support the plan before their boundary lines were changed to suit them. The permanent officials of the League of Nations feel that the suggested union would weaken the league and its worldwide block. Even in France there are many against the plan, for Briand's political advancement are increasing in number. He himself apparently doesn't hope for more at this time than to keep the project alive.

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

By J. V. Fitzgerald

Walter S. Gifford

College students, if they are ambitious and need to make their way in the world, begin to hunt jobs in the spring before their graduation. Walter S. Gifford was in this class. He decided, in his senior year at Harvard, that he wanted to work for the General Electric company.

He sought no friends to find an opening for him. Instead he sat down and wrote a letter applying for a job. He directed the envelope to the Western Electric company by mistake. He received an application blank from that company in reply. While embarrassed by his error in writing a letter to General Electric, and then sending it in an envelope addressed to Western Electric, he forgot about it when he was hired as a clerk by the latter company. His pay was $10 a week.

His letter of application might well serve as a model to young men today who are seeking to get their start in the business world. He wrote, in part: "It is my wish to enter some good business as soon as possible after I leave here. Now if there is only some position (no matter what, provided there will be a fair chance for a rise if it is deserved) in the General Electric company, I should like to try it and would endeavor to suit."

"The fact that for two years out here, I studied a great deal on the mechanical side (mathematics, chemistry, etc.) may help as to the kind of a position I could fill. I began with the intention of becoming a mining engineer but for several reasons have abandoned it.

"If you wish any references, etc., I think I could get them, for, of course, you know nothing about what sort of a fellow I am."

Walter S. Gifford was born in Salem, Mass., in 1883. He wrote his letter of application in 1903, the year he was graduated from Harvard. His early education was received in the public schools of his native city. He was a bright student and was able to enter high school when he was eleven years old. He completed his course at Harvard in three years.

The future head of the American Telephone and Telegraph company was not a very husky and robust lad. When his companions were playing baseball, football and other games he was generally off getting his exercise and recreation by collecting butterflies and other insects. He had a notable collection when he was a high school pupil. They were all catalogued under their Latin names.

His mother had been a school teacher before her marriage. While she had other children, she was able to devote much time to teaching her son Walter. The lad's memory was not of the best when he was a schoolboy and as a result he learned early to dig out the facts. He was able to remember them by not attempting to clutter his mind with non-essential details.

It was an excellent lesson for the youngster to learn. Perhaps much of his success in the business world can be laid to his ability to eliminate unimportant details and get down to the bed rock of a proposition.

His college course was a success. It didn't give him an inflated idea of his knowledge or ability, as his letter of application for his first job shows. He had learned that a man has to begin at the bottom to be of real value to himself or to a business. He was willing, as he wrote, to take anything, as long as it offered an opportunity for advancement if he made good.

He could have gone to work in a Salem bank when he was graduated. His father would have obtained him a position but the youngster had other ideas. He wanted to stand on his own feet. He did so when he took the $10 a week job with the Western Electric company.

His first job called for him to make the trip to Chicago. He borrowed money to pay his fare rather than to accept it from his father. He was determined to make his own way from the very outset of his business career.

Wages of $10 a week didn't go very far even in 1903. Young Gifford managed to make it do somehow. He lived at Hull House in Chicago, where he had comfortable and congenial surroundings at little expense. Needless to say, on his meager wages, he had little chance to do anything but work.

He rose from a pay roll clerk to a position as assistant treasurer in a short time with a good increase in salary. It wasn't long before he was chief statistician of the American Telephone and Telegraph company. In that position he attracted the attention of Theodore N. Vall, then head of the concern, and gained further promotion.

When Mr. Vall retired, the man, who as a college boy had made the mistake of misdirecting his letter of application for a job, was made the head of one of the world's greatest utility organizations.

Pedro Martinez was held to District Court in Santa Fe without bond on a charge of first degree murder for shooting to death Mrs. Apollonia Narvaiz, at Cerrillos, while she was fixing medicine in the kitchen for her ill aunt.

Among events appearing on the unofficial calendar of the tenth legislature will be the dedication of the bronze tablet placed on the wall in the lobby of the capitol to the memory of the Rev. Seaborn Crutchfield, who served as Chaplain of the House of Representatives from statehood until his death in 1927.

Seven existing game refuges have been re-established and twenty-three others created since the inception of the Arizona Fish and Game Commission. R. L. Bayless, state game warden said, in his biennial report. The report shows 36,945 hunting and fishing licenses were issued during 1930. A total of 2,113,600 acres were set aside for protection of wild life.

Tsatsana, the high priest of the Zuni and ruler of his people for over half a century was buried in the Pueblo cemetery near Gallup with honors befitting his estate in life. The census roll of the pueblo carries Tsatsana as 98 years old, but tribal records show that his age was past one hundred, this fact being substantiated by the older members of the tribe.

The Central Arizona Highway Association recently filed articles of incorporation in Phoenix as a non-profit enterprise, naming J. W. Strode of Miami, president, W. A. Sullivan, of Globe, secretary and J. J. Keegan of Globe, treasurer. Globe is designated as headquarters. Membership in the organization is limited to residents of Maricopa, Gila, Pinal, Graham, Apache and Greenlee counties.

R. E. Crouse, superintendent of the Federal Free Employment Bureau, which, until Gov. G. W. P. Hunt severed connection with it was a federal-state cooperative enterprise, received instructions from Washington to close the office. Arizona withdrew from participation in the bureau when the Department of Labor declined to approve C. P. Flynn, Governor Hunt's appointee to replace Crouse as superintendent.

Striking laborers, who quit work on Cochise county's $300,000 courthouse and a $200,000 high school building in Globe, Ariz., have returned to work. The strikers demanded only local citizen labor be employed, and asked an increase in pay from $3 to $4 per day. The contractors agreed to the labor provision and offered a wage compromise of $3.50 per day, which the strikers accepted.

Efforts are being made by Lea county officers to determine the identity of an unknown middle aged man who was found badly beaten at Hobbs early in November, 1930, and who has been held in Lovington pending identification or the return of the man's memory. The man appears to be about fifty years old; is dark complexioned and has blue eyes. He weighs 150 pounds; is five feet, nine inches tall; has grey hair and two scars on the upper part of the left arm.

First steps in establishing a chain of hospitals for the relief of stricken Indians were taken in Tucson by Dr. Paul D. Mossman, medical director of the United States Bureau of Indian Affairs, in planning the site of a $125,000 hospital near the historic San Xavier mission. The San Xavier structure will be the initial unit in a chain stretching across the entire southwest and ultimately will entail the expenditure of many hundreds of thousands of dollars, Dr. Mossman said.

Dean Charles F. Emerton of the medical department of the University of Indiana, who spoke at the dedication of the Maytag Research Laboratory at the Presbyterian sanatorium in Albuquerque, said the institution is likely to become so valuable in the fight against tuberculosis that it will be used as a post-graduate school for doctors who specialize in the treatment of that disease. The laboratory will be devoted exclusively to a study of all the problems presented by tuberculosis.

Notice of dissolution of the Grand Canyon Cattle Company of Los Angeles, doing business in Coconino county, Ariz., as a foreign corporation, was filed with the State Corporation Commission in Phoenix recently.

Legislation covering legal separation of man and wife will be introduced in the coming session of the Arizona State legislature, and the mere announcement of the proposed change in the divorce laws of the state has already brought fire from ministers of the gospel in all sections of Arizona.

"Why, no. What makes you think so?"

"I've been sleeping on his trail for four days. He's either here, or he's heading this way."

"You sure?"

"Not sure, Buck. But he told me he'd be here."

"Told you?" Grogan's forehead knotted in a frown. "You an' Bob gettin' to be side-kicks these days?"

"Listen, Buck. I've got to have some sleep. In forty-eight hours I've hardly had a wink—been in the saddle plowing through drifts most of the time. I don't want it known I'm in town. While I sleep find out for me if Quantrell is here. Last night he stole the two Kentucky horses of my partner. If the horses are in town it ought not to be hard to locate them. Bob may be staying at the house of Manuel Gomez. They say he's in love with Dolores. Not likely he'll stay at the Gomez house, though. He's too wily for that. Find out what you can, but be careful nobody suspects what you're after. When you get back wake me if I'm asleep."

Buck Grogan was a brother of the Texas Kid, who with Shep Sanderson had been killed on the main street of Concho a little more than a year before this time. In his heart he cherished a bitter hatred of the outlaw.

"All right, Sheriff," he said. "You sleep. I'll find out what I can. Hadn't I better let you lay till ten or eleven o'clock?"

"No. If he's here he may hit the trail at daybreak. Soon as you get back wake me up."

O'Hara took off his boots, his coat, and his vest, and settled himself on the bunk. In two minutes he was sound asleep.

When he opened his eyes it was broad daylight. Grogan was standing over him.

"He's here."

"Have you seen him?" asked O'Hara.

"No."

"Who told you he was?"

"You did. I've seen the horses he an' some other guy rode in on. They're stabled in the barn back of Delgado's house."

"Do you know where Bob is?"

"No, I don't. Down in the Mexican quarter, I'd say. I met Gomez on the street an' edged round the subject the best I'll bit. But you know how greasers are. They won't tell a thing they don't want to."

"You didn't let him know I was here?"

"Do I look like a plumb fool?" Grogan wanted to know. "Of course I didn't. What I said to Gomez was that I'd heard Dolores' friend was in town, an' when he looked at me real quick I added kinda casual, 'Maria Garcia.' She is, too. Came up from Agua Caliente Tuesday. Manuel was right there with the 'SI, SI' stuff, but he was just a mite too late. He'd done give himself away, though I didn't let on for a minute."

"You feel sure Quantrell is in town, then?"

"I'd bet six fat three-year-olds against a plug of tobacco that he's not four hundred yards from us right now."

"If he hasn't lit out."

"Tell you I saw the two Kentucky horses."

"He might leave them here to fool me while he's making trucks for parts unknown."

"What would be the sense in that when he could just as well take 'em along? You know how he loves a good horse. No, sir. When he goes those horses go, too. Wouldn't surprise me if he lies low here three-four days. There won't more than half a dozen folks know he's here. He can trust his Mexican friends. They like him, an' they're not civilized enough to betray him."

The last sentence Grogan offered with an ironic grin. Common opinion to the contrary, it is quite true that the Mexicans are as a people very loyal to their friends. During the past year or two as much could not be said of the white population of Jefferson county. While the feud had been in progress most of the ranchmen had not felt any compunction about shifting sides. It was, for instance, not at all remarkable that O'Hara was now depending upon Buck Grogan to help him capture Quantrell, although the two cowboys had fought together against him in the battle at the Circle S O ranch. Yet Grogan was no traitor. The circumstances had changed, and with them his allegiance.

"That sounds logical," O'Hara admitted. "But Quantrell isn't very dependable. He doesn't always do what you'd expect him to do."

"That's so, generally speakin'. But he'll stay put here two-three days an' give his saddle a rest. He's been on the dodge a long time, an' he's right fond of Dolores Gomez. I'd say he'll want to slick around for a while, an' he most always does what he wants to do. He ain't what you'd call a prudent guy. His friends will be keepin' a lookout to see he's not trapped. Yes, sir. He'll be plumb tickled to be right here in Concho an' fool you."

"Yes, that would be like him."

O'Hara agreed. "Will you find out for me whether Steve Worrall has reached town yet? I want to see him."

"Got in late last night—him an' Amen Owen. Their horses were sure whipped out, too."

"Good! Ask him to drop in and see me. He'd better come along the creek and in the back way. Some of Quantrell's friends may be watching him."

"All right. Breakfast first. No, sir. You lie right there. I'll fix us up something."

A couple of hours later Worrall reached the cabin. He and the sheriff talked the situation over. It was decided to keep an inconspicuous watch on the Delgado stable from a side window of the Steelman store. Probably Quantrell would not stir out until night. After dark the Gomez house was also to be kept under observation.

"If his gang is here with him some of the bunch will poke their noses from where they're holed up soon as it gets dark," said Worrall. "Good thing to have quite a few men ready for emergencies, don't you reckon?"

"I think so. See Backskin Joe and Amen and the Browns. You might speak to McCarthy, too, Steve. Tell them trouble is brewing and may break, but don't let them know what's up. If too many people know a secret it's not one any longer."

O'Hara did not leave the cabin until darkness fell. By a back way he went to the Steelman-McCarthy store where Worrall and Grogan were to meet him. He was eating a supper of cheese and crackers and sardines when Owen joined him.

"Lo, Amen," he said. "Get all rested from your long ride?"

"Umph! Say, boy, there's a Mexican balle tonight at the Montez place. If you're all hot up to meet Bob you might find him among those present."

"What makes you think that?" asked O'Hara.

"You mightn't think it to see me such a stove-up old donker as I am now, but once upon a time I was a kid my own self. As I come down the street I met the Gomez family dressed in their war paint headed for the dance. Includin' Miss Dolores of the black, black eyes. She sure is a right pretty senorita an' I wouldn't blame Bob for wantin' to shake a leg with her. Course I don't say he'll be there. All I'm sayin' is that he might."

"So he might," agreed the sheriff reflectively. "Well, I'm not too old to enjoy a dance. I'll give myself an invitation to be there, too."

Amen Owen grinned. He thought perhaps he had started something. "Uninvited guests ain't always so dogged welcome," the old cowboy said. "If you go you're liable to get in a jackpot, don't you reckon?"

"It wouldn't surprise me."

"Bob is top hand with his shootin' irons. I'd say take four of five of us with you."

O'Hara cut a piece of cheese and put it between two crackers. "Can't take a posse into the barn with me. That would mean trouble right away if Bob was there, and I can't risk promiscuous shooting with a lot of women present. If Bob wasn't there, world would reach him in ten minutes that we were hot on his trail. No, I'll leave two or three of you outside and go in alone. I'll take you and Grogan and Baldy Brown. Worrall and McCarthy and Jess Brown will watch the Delgado stable to cut Quantrell off from the horses if he tries for a getaway."

"Is it yore notion that there won't be trouble soon as Bob sees you?" asked Owen with obvious sarcasm.

"Guess different. When you go in there right then you're playin' yore hole card—if Bob is at the baile. Now if I kinda drifted in maybe he'd let it ride. Far as we know, he ain't hep to it that I rode on the posse to the Mal Pais. Quelen sabe?"

"Dollars to doughnuts that he knows. You rode into town last night with Steve, didn't you? If he's here the info was passed to him almost before you had unsaddled. No, it's my place to go into the barn and see whether he is there. So I'll go."

"You're cock-a-doodle-do of this outfit, Garrett. All I got to say is, look out you don't buck yore luck onct too often."

"The Lord loves the Irish, Amen," answered the sheriff, his gay smile flashing. "Far as this curly wolf goes, he's just a man like you or me. Don't forget that he has his weaknesses, just as all criminals have. One of Bob's is his vanity. He has to make grandstand plays so that people will fear and admire him. Some day he'll come a cropper on account of it. Maybe that some day is tonight."

"Hmp! Bob ain't the only grandstander in our midst. Right now I'm close enough to spit on another guy who is a h—ppoppin' team his own self. Don't tell me you're against advertisin', boy. I ain't ever noticed that you ride into the endinal to pull off the plays that make folks talk."

The sheriff protested. "I've been driven into doing spectacular things I didn't want to do, but I never did any of them to make people talk. Or if I did the reason was not vanity, but to increase respect for the law."

Owen shrugged his shoulders. "I'll backtrack on you being a grandstander, Garrett. You're not that, an' you're there, boy, both ways from the ace. But that won't keep you from playin' on a golden harp if you're so dogged carelessness. Some low-down cuss will plug you one of these days when you walk up with him no gun in yore flat an' say, 'Consider yoreself under arrest. I'm warnin' you.'"

"Maybe you're right and maybe you're not, Amen," O'Hara rose and brushed the crumbs from his clothes. "But I've got to play the hand the way it's dealt. One might as well be cheerful about it as melancholy. How does that song go that Texas Jim sings?"

Roll your tail and roll her high,
We'll all be angels by and by.

"Hmp! I've heard preachers deny that, but even if so I aim to postpone my angelin' for a while. Well, let's mosey along."

Outside of the Montez barn four or five young Mexicans were grouped. O'Hara moved forward out of the darkness and greeted them casually.

He had seen a bottle passing from one to another, but at sight of him activities became suspended. They were surprised to see him. This was a private baile; at least Americans had not been invited. If the sheriff attended it must be in the way of business.

Then on what business? The Mexicans held together against the gringos. If one was wanted by the law his countrymen hid and shielded him. They were suspicious of the administration of justice as worked out by the ruling race.

O'Hara passed into the building. The sounds of stamping feet and the strains of the music filled the barn. Most of those present were dancing and did not observe him, but the men standing near the door expressed in their looks a surprised hostility. This was their demesne. Gringos were not welcome, especially officers of the law.

The sheriff refused to understand the resentment. His smile remained pleasant and friendly though it was a little absent-minded. His eyes were already searching for the man he had come to find. The first survey of the floor failed to find him. There were only Mexicans.

He saw Dolores Gomez. She was dancing with a slender young vaquero in the costume of a caballero. Ranged against the wall were her father and her mother, the latter wearing a black lace mantilla. Juan Garcia was on the floor. In the room were two Hashknife riders. But no Bob Quantrell.

A shift in the position of the dancers brought Dolores and her partner into the foreground. Carelessly O'Hara gazed rested for a moment on the young man with the girl. He was in velvet bell-shaped trousers and a short vest elaborately fringed with gold braid. A wide red sash was fitted tightly to his slim waist. From the costume the sheriff guessed that gallant a vain young man. He was light on his feet, but he went through the figures of the dance hesitantly, as though he had not practiced them very much. Yet he was not abashed when he made a slight mistake but quite self-possessed. A smile lit the awarty face, and at sight of the two buck teeth that showed above the retreating chin O'Hara's heart lost a beat. In spite of the disguise he knew that the dancer was Bob Quantrell.

And even while the sheriff watched him a man sidled up to the outlaw and dropped a word in his ear. O'Hara knew what the man had said as well as though he had heard him. For Quantrell's glance swept instantly to the door and found the officer. Hard and sawinking, the eyes of the two men met and clashed.

Quantrell knew he had been recognized, and the sheriff knew that he knew it, though the man's feet still kept time to the music. What would he do? O'Hara did not for an instant lift his eyes from the bandit. The price of a moment's inattention might be death.

There was only one door to the barn downstairs and one window. To reach the stairway to the loft it would be necessary for Quantrell to come within eight feet of where the sheriff stood. O'Hara knew the outlaw was thinking furiously. He would guess that the barn was surrounded, that the sheriff had his posse outside. Otherwise his course would be simple, to shoot the officer down and escape in the darkness.

Quantrell murmured something to Dolores. The girl's startled eyes flashed toward the door. She lost step, her mind distracted, then joined her partner and walked beside him from the floor.

The sheriff noticed that she was between him and her lover; that her body protected Quantrell against the chance of gun fire. A quick suspicion shot into his mind. He moved toward the man he wanted, brushing aside those who were in the way, dodging the dancers as he crossed the barn.

O'Hara was too late. He saw the outlaw's teeth flash in an impudent grin, caught a mocking wave of the hand. A streak of color dived through the air. There was a crash of glass. Quantrell had flung himself through the window head first.

Confusion instantly filled the room, which became vocal with screams, imprecations, and the lift of excited Spanish vowels. Men and women pushed this way and that, so that O'Hara found himself caught in the press as he fought his way to the window. The soft bodies of young girls impeded him no less than the muscular ones of lean vaqueros.

From the outside came the sound of shots, staccato reports of battle. The sheriff drew closer to the exit, though in his eagerness to reach the open it seemed to take many minutes rather than moments. He found himself flung against a senorita face to face, so closely that her bosom rose and fell against his heart. Dark, liquid, long-lashed eyes lifted to his. The firm brown flesh of bare arms brushed his cheeks and fingers laced themselves together back of his neck. Dolores Gomez had found another way to serve her lover.

O'Hara tried to push her away. She hung there heavy as a sack of meal. He reached back, caught her wrists, and dragged at them to break the hold. The girl clung desperately to him. Even after he had freed himself she snatched at his coat to detain him.

At last he was at the window. Protecting his face with his arms, he plunged through it to the ground outside.

Some one shouted, "Who is it?"

The voice belonged to Amen Owen. O'Hara called aloud his name. The cowboy ran to him, revolver in hand. "He got away—that greaser who came through the window. Who was he?"

"Bob Quantrell." The sheriff was already on his feet, his six-shooter out. "Which way did he go?"

"Thataway!" Owen waved his hand into the darkness. "He took us by surprise. We didn't know at first but what it was you—not till after he came a-shootin'!"

"Anybody hurt?"

"No—Too dark to see. All of us pluggin' away for general results. The boys followed him a little ways, but I called 'em back. Figured it might be a trick to draw us off from the barn. Here are the boys."

Grogan and Baldy Brown joined them.

The sheriff sketched briefly the situation while he hurried down the street with his men.

Gringos Were Not Welcome, Especially Officers of the Law.

"That was Bob Quantrell who made the break through the window. He out-generated me. No question of either of us shooting from where we were. Too many women around. So he came out through the window while I watched the door. He knows we're hot on his trail and he'll try to get away at once. Chances are he'll head toward the Delgado stable for the horses. If so, we'll have another brush with him."

A voice halted them.

"That's Jess," said Baldy Brown. It was Worrall had sent him to find out the cause of the firing.

"Nobody been for the horses yet?" the sheriff asked.

"Not yet. Pankey showed up an' took a look at the horses to see they were all right, then came out again. We didn't even chirp."

"Pankey, eh?"

"Steve was right sure it was Pankey. Couldn't see his face much, but the fellow limped like Pankey does." Within five minutes they had joined Worrall and McCarthy, who were hidden behind an adobe wall across the road from the stable. They held a hurried low-voiced consultation.

"I've a notion to take a scout around the Gomez place," O'Hara said. "Likely the family won't stay at the dance now, and Bob will try to meet Dolores before he leaves town. Steve, you come with me and look around there. We'll be back soon."

Owen rubbed dubiously the unshaven bristles on his chin. "You're crowdin' that boy consider'able, Garrett. I done told you he's got more sting to him than a sidewinder. You better stick around here with the rest of us, don't you reckon?"

"When you call for a showdown with Bob you wanta be sure you've got an ace in the hole," Baldy Brown said, drawing a plug of chewing tobacco from his pocket. "He can sure make a busted flush go a long way. An' most usually you'll find his cards are all red when they're flipped over. Now my idea is to sit here an'—"

O'Hara cut curtly into Baldy's discourse. "Not a debating society we're holding. I'm here to capture Bob Quantrell. The way to get him is to go after him. Come along, Steve."

Worrall grinned at Owen and Brown. "String along with Garrett here an' you'll have lively times, boys, long as you have any. My last words are that if I'd lived a better life I wouldn't be back here. All right, Sheriff. Scratch gravel."

O'Hara and his long lean deputy moved away and were lost in the darkness.

"There's a lad, that Garrett O'Hara, who's had more bullheaded luck than a nigger with a rabbit's foot," Baldy drawled, a little resentful. When he was making oration he did not like to be cut off so abruptly.

"Luck yore foot!" scoffed Owen. "He makes his own breaks, Garrett does. He's got guts an' horse sense."

"So have you, old-timer, but I ain't heard anybody shoutin' about what a wonder you are. Coupla years ago, this O'Hara was a tenderfoot—didn't know sic 'em. You wouldn't of said he would be worth a barrel of slucks as sheriff. Now he's the white-haired lad of Jefferson county. Tell me why, if it's not luck."

"Sure I'll tell you why, Baldy. It's because he never quits—goes after bad men like the Watsons. Lights on 'em all spraddled out. On top of that he's straight as a string. That's its shape."

Baldy agreed, still grumbling.

Gomez lived in a large one-story adobe house on the outskirts of the town. He had driven his longhorns up from Mexico and settled on the creek in the days when the Apaches were still troublesome. Within a few years the town had grown up almost at his doorstep. For a Mexican he was well off. His cows and horses had increased in number. More rooms had been added to the house. He entertained hospitably and was a political leader of his race locally. Dark-eyed sons and daughters, eleven all told, were growing up around him and his still handsome wife. They were attractive young people, devoted to their father and their mother. The gods, it was generally felt, had been very good to him.

American Feels at Home in Great Chinese City

Shanghai, to a notable extent, has become Americanized. There, in the most polyglot city in Asia, the roving American finds all the comforts of home—the radio and jazz bands, cocktails and correspondence schools, night clubs and cabarets, neon lights and skyscrapers, chewing gum and wide trousers and long skirts, evangelists and the Salvation Army.

And there, too, he finds such peculiarly American institutions as navy wives, shotgun weddings, Girl Scouts, Spanish-American war veterans, a board of censors, daylight hold-ups, immaculate barber-shops, a short-story club, wheat-cakes and a chamber of commerce.

All these things may be, as touring congressmen and other such idealists are fond of saying, the "splendid evils of American influence in China." They may be the instruments of attaining confraternity between China and America. But I do not think so, says Edgar Snow, writing in the American Mercury. The fact is that nobody in Shanghai worries himself very much about Sino-American understanding. Both the Chinese and Americans are too busy making money.

First Makers of Paper

The art of making paper from fibrous matter seems to have been practiced by the Chinese at a very early date. Some writers believe that the Chinese made such paper at least two centuries B. C. Paper first became available for the rest of the world about the Eighth century through the Arabs, who learned the art of paper making from Chinese prisoners captured in Asia. Before paper was made from fibrous matter papyrus was used for writing purposes.

Snowfall Calculated

The weather bureau says that snowfall that occurs at the government observing stations is reduced to its equivalent in rainfall and included with the latter in determining the amount of precipitation during the year. As a rule the ratio of snowmelted to melted snow is 1 to 10—that is, 10 inches of snow will ordinarily make about 1 inch of water.

EDITORIAL COLUMN

Is the Supreme Court Political? No?—Oh, Yeah!

After 33 years of valuable service as clerk of the Supreme Court of New Mexico, Colonel Jose Sena has been retired by the new Supreme Court — why? Has Mr. Sena reached the age wherein he has become of no value in that important office? Has there been a lack of efficiency in the discharge of his duties? In answer to these questions only one thing can be evident and that is that during these many years of efficient work, he has been known to have been as near perfect as any human being could have been in that particular line of work.

Anything that could be said of Col. Sena, would be a boost to him, and attorneys all over the state will join in the regret that he has been dethroned. What, then, is the reason for all this? Simply because of the fact that the Supreme Court which is supposed to be non-political, has become rankly Democratic and quote Chief Justice Bickley, his removal is simply a political proposition.

As a proof to Justice Bickley's statement, it was Mr. Sena's loyalty to the Republican party that was a main factor in his removal. He has served as secretary of the State Republican Central Committee for many years and at all State Republican Conventions, he has officiated as secretary and those who are generally on the delegations from the different counties would think that something was radically wrong if Jose Sena was not at his table with his assistants, taking down every act of interest connected with a state convention.

So, after the many years he has been the Clerk of the Supreme Court, he has been turned down on account of politics, and still the Democrats would have the public think that honorable body was non-political.

During the fall campaign, they kept quiet, but now, they are letting the cat out of the bag. —Ladies and Gentlemen, meet the Democratic Supreme Court

Danish History Centers

in Old City of Viborg
Viborg is one of the oldest (some maintain the oldest) cities in Denmark. As far as history goes back, there has always been a city there. It is beautifully situated on two hills and along the shores of two lakes. For centuries the Danish kings had to be crowned there before they were actually regarded as kings.

The city has always been a religious center. In the Twelfth and Thirteenth centuries there were 22 churches and many cloisters, although the town at that time had only about 2,000 inhabitants. The city has burned several times, which accounts for the fact that most of the buildings dating from the Middle ages are gone.

Even now, Viborg is one of the most beautiful cities in Denmark, and thousands of tourists visit it each year. The cathedral is one of the main attractions. It is decorated with frescoes from ceiling to floor, depicting the old and new testaments. The cathedral is said to be the only one of its kind north of the Alps. Viborg is situated almost in the center of the peninsula Jylland, which forms the largest part of the kingdom of Denmark.

Viborg is the capital of the amt or county bearing its name and has been the seat of a bishop since the Eleventh century.

FORD SMOOTHNESS

The new Ford has more than twenty ball and roller bearings
EVIDENCE of the high quality built into the new Ford is the extensive use of ball and roller bearings. There are more than twenty in all—an unusually large number. Each bearing is adequate in size and carefully selected for the work it has to do.
At some points in the Ford chassis you will find ball bearings. At others, roller bearings are used regardless of their higher cost. The deciding factor is the performance of the car.
The extensive use of ball and roller bearings in the new Ford insures smoother operation, saves gasoline, increases speed and power, gives quicker pick-up, decreases noise, and gives greater reliability and longer life to vital moving parts.
Other outstanding features that make the new Ford a value far above the price are the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, silent, fully enclosed four-wheel brakes, four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers, aluminum pistons, chrome silcock alloy valves, three-quarter floating rear axle, Rustless Steel, the extensive use of fine steel forgings, and unusual accuracy in manufacturing.

Belting Ribbon Used as Trimming

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHEN costumes begin to look a bit wintery, as they have a way of doing during midseason, there is a never failing solution to the problem—a perfectly new hat. To answer this call for a "first hat" milliners are advancing models either made entirely of belting ribbon or over-smart looking felts which are trimmed with belting ribbon.

Early arrivals include arresting models such as are shown in this group. The most noticeable thing about the advance styles is that they are so designed as to be worn far back on the head so as to reveal a high forehead. Then, too, hair treatments are made a feature. As you see in the picture of the all ribbon hat shown at the top the one-sided brim effect which has proved so flattering works out very pleasingly with belting ribbon. The bow at the side indicates that all ribbon hats need not necessarily have a strictly tailored look.

The all ribbon hat just below emphasizes the effectiveness of fine knif-plating. Not only does the pleated ribbon form the sharply upturned brim, but it revolves itself into rosettes at each side which give the hat a youthful look.

Wonderfully chic are the new felts which are trimmed with belting ribbon. They are being received with considerable enthusiasm. In the hat centered to the right in the picture, the idea of trimming felt with belting ribbon is worked out with utmost success. The pleated fell at the back cleverly suggests the baby-bonnet effect which is so popular. In this instance the ribbon is brought up through slots, a treatment which milliners are adopting in many instances. The cloche of felt shown last in the group carries the ribbon-drawn-through-slot idea very attractively.

Resort hat fashions include many of these ribbon hats, the difference being between north and south that the headwear worn in the former is in more conservative colors, while cheapeux which will sojourn under sunny skies are in not only pastel shades and pure white, but in the new algerian shades which promise to be the smart color note for spring.

HOW TO PREPARE CANDIED SWEET POTATOES

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Candied sweet potatoes are a general favorite, but not everyone knows the trick of making them tender and using corn sirup as well as sugar to candy them. The parboiled sweet potatoes are baked in the sirup mixture.

Another good sweet potato dish which can also be served in a casserole or baking dish is a combination of sweet potatoes and apples. Still another is made with pineapple to furnish the sweet-acid flavor that goes so well with sweet potatoes. All three recipes are supplies by the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Candied Sweet Potatoes.

3 medium-sized sweet potatoes 1/2 tsp. salt
1 cup corn sirup 4 tbs. butter or other fat
1/2 cup sugar

Partially cook the sweet potatoes in boiling water, cool, and skin. Cut the potatoes in halves lengthwise, or in three pieces if the potatoes are large. Put in a greased baking dish large enough for just one layer, not packing too closely. Make a sirup by boiling the corn sirup, sugar, salt, and fat until fairly thick. Pour the sirup over the potatoes and bake in a very moderate oven for one hour or more. Turn the potatoes carefully as they are cooking.

Scalloped Sweet Potatoes and Pineapple.

3 medium-sized sweet potatoes 1/2 tsp. salt
1 can crushed pineapple or other fat apple

Select a dry mealy variety of sweet potatoes and cook in the skins in water to cover. When tender, scrape, cut in slices of uniform thickness, and place in a shallow greased baking dish. Pour the pineapple over the potatoes, sprinkle with salt, and add the fat. Bake in a moderate oven for 30 minutes, or until light brown on the surface and the sirup of the pineapple has become thickened. Serve from the baking dish.

Scalloped Sweet Potatoes With Apples.

3 medium-sized sweet potatoes 1/2 cup sugar
1/2 tsp. salt
4 medium-sized apples, pared and cored

Cook the sweet potatoes in boiling water until tender, cool, and skin. Cut the potatoes and apples into slices, place in alternate layers in a greased baking dish, sprinkle each layer with sugar and salt, dot with fat, add a little water, and bake for 30 to 45 minutes, or until the apples are soft and the top layer is brown. Serve in the baking dish.

Wool Challie Practical for Children

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

While it is practically always necessary to put washable clothes on younger children, in some climates the warmth of such materials as wool challie or jersey is imperative. If handled with care, these fabrics may be washed at home, and as a rule, they do not show soil quickly. A wise mother provides special protection for them at meal-times, to reduce the number of trips to the wash tub. If lunch is carried, a large napkin should be put in the lunch box; if meals are eaten at home, an apron may be worn over the dress.

The little dress shown is a good model for developing in wool challie. It was designed by the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture. A circular yoke at the neckline holds the fullness in place and eliminates any bunchiness.

The dress illustrated has raglan sleeves, and the neck is flatly bound. Trimming stitches of brown and orange bring out the structural lines of the garment and emphasize the becoming lines of the yoke. The colors harmonize with the fine brown and tan pin stripes of the material. The front opening is faced back with a loose facing, so strengthen the edge for loops and flat buttons. A loop and button is used at the wrist to lap the cuff a little so that it may be let out later. The dress is made full through the body because of the long sleeves, which would otherwise tend to pull if the child were very active. Such a dress for winter wear should be made knee length, with a deep hem, to allow for growth, turned up by hand with invisible stitches. Under it cotton bloomers are worn, but they do not show. They may be white or the color of the background of the dress material.

Apricot Tapioca Dessert Good for Children

A dessert that is good for children as well as adults is always a satisfaction to a busy mother. Here's an old-fashioned favorite for which the ingredients may be found in any grocery store. The bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture furnishes the recipe:

1/2 pound dried apricots 3 tbs. quick-cooking tapioca
2 cups water 1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 cup sugar

Wash the apricots and soak them overnight in the water. In the morning cook the apricots until tender and drain. If necessary, add water to the juice to make two cups, stir in the tapioca and salt and cook in a double boiler for fifteen minutes, or until the tapioca is clear. Force the apricots through a sieve and add the pulp and the sugar to the tapioca.

Evening Fairy Tale for Children

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Little Effie Elf came along and saw Mrs. Swallow feeding her three children.

"Hello, Mrs. Swallow," said Effie Elf.

The swallow gave a shrill cry, and all the little swallows squealed for all they were worth—even though their eyes were not yet open and they didn't see to whom their mother was speaking.

"I'm not going to hurt your children," said Effie Elf. "I like chimney swallows—yes, I do."

"Do you really?" asked Mrs. Swallow. There was something about Effie Elf's voice that made Mrs. Swallow trust her and care for her almost at once.

"Well, then," she continued, "would you like to have a look at my nest? It is quite a beautiful one."

Effie Elf looked at the nest and admired it greatly. "How can you ever do so much with your fingers?" asked Effie. "It seems wonderful to me to think of being able to make a nest like that, and to put all that wonderful glue on it, too."

"Don't your fingers get sticky?"

The little swallow almost fell off the top of the chimney where she was sitting, so hard did she laugh.

And the little swallows, in their shrill little, young voices, laughed, too, for the first time in their young, little lives!

"Little Creature, who are you?" asked Mrs. Swallow.

"I'm Effie Elf."
"Well, and who am I?"
"You're Mrs. Chimney Swallow," said Effie.

"And will you please take another look, and tell me where my hands are that will get so sticky, and where my fingers are with which to make a nest?"

"To be sure, to be sure," said Effie. "How very, very stupid of me!"

"Of course, you haven't any fingers at all. And you can't get your hands sticky when you haven't any hands."

"But how do you ever manage?"

"Well, I'll tell you," said Mrs. Chimney Swallow, for she liked talking to the gentle little elf.

"In the first place," she began, "I have feet to use instead of fingers.

"They do just as well! And I make that glue you see by rubbing my beak around my nest."

"The glue comes from my beak. Isn't that fine?"

"Marvelous," said Effie Elf. "I think your nest is one of the finest I have ever seen."

"I am so glad you like it," said Mrs. Chimney Swallow.

"And now I must teach my children to fly and you know I let my children shriek and talk at the tops of their voices."

"Some people want their children to have soft voices, but not Mother Chimney Swallow."

"She's a mother who has her own ideas."

"And feet instead of fingers," said Effie Elf admiringly.

Frying or Broiling Young Rabbits Best

Tender Young Domestic Rabbit Fried Like Chicken.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Most domestic rabbits are marketed at eight to ten weeks of age, and are then termed "fryers." The bones of these quickly grown rabbits are very brittle, and in preparing the meat for cooking care should be taken to break them in such a way that they do not siver. Like young chickens and tender chops and steaks, young rabbits can be cooked by the quick methods of frying or broiling.

The bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture gives the following recipe for trying domestic rabbit:

Fried Rabbit.

Choose a plump young rabbit, wipe the dressed meat with a damp cloth, and cut into pieces for serving. Beat one egg yolk, add one-half cupful milk and three-fourths teaspoonful salt, and stir into one-half cupful flour to make a smooth batter. In a heavy skillet, heat four tablespoonsful of fat until very hot, so that it will set the batter quickly. Dip the pieces of rabbit into the batter until well coated and drop into the hot fat. As soon as browned, reduce the heat and cook at moderate temperature for 25 to 30 minutes, or until the meat is tender. Serve on a hot platter and garnish with parsley.

For each cupful of gravy desired, use two tablespoonfuls of the pan drippings and one and one-half tablespoonfuls of flour. Blend fat and flour thoroughly in the skillet, add one cupful of milk, and stir until thickened. Add chopped parsley, salt, and pepper to season.

Moist Bread Will Slice More Evenly

When planning an afternoon tea with fancy sandwiches or for any occasion, you will find that if the crust is cut from the whole loaf and the loaf then wrapped in a damp papkin or tea towel, and let stand for an hour or longer, that the bread will be moist and pliable and will slice more evenly. Use a very sharp knife in cutting thin slices.

Canadian Rivers

Back river is a modern name given to replace that of Great Fish river and commemorates Admiral Sir George Back, 1790-1878, the Arctic explorer who commanded an expedition to the river in 1833-35. The name Pelly lake is due to Back who named it in 1824 after Sir John Heary Pelly (1772-1852), who was governor of the Hudson's Bay company for 30 years.

Useful, but Not Wealth

Useful, material things which are not appropriated do not come under the head of wealth. Rain, wind, clouds, the Gulf stream, the heavenly bodies, are all useful and all material, but are not directly appropriated, and so are not rated to be wealth as commonly understood.

Good Things for the Family Table

By NELLIE MAXWELL

"The strongest strand in the cable that binds a man to his God is a wife's devotion."

"The purest altar from which prayers ascend to heaven is a mother's knee."

If you like the Chinese dishes this will be one to prepare for the guests who also enjoy them:

Crab and Egg Omelet.—If the fresh shrimps or crab is used, cook and cool. Shred one cupful of crab or shrimp. Cut one cupful of lean pork into inch long narrow strips. Use scissors for the cutting. Soak one-fourth of a cupful of dried mushrooms, then cut into strips. Slice one large mild onion and cut into strips. Fry the pork in two tablespoonfuls of peanut oil until tender and brown. Add onion, one cupful of bamboo shoots and mushrooms, a tablespoonful of soy sauce,

Just before dinner beat six eggs, add the finely cut crab or shrimp and the vegetable mixture. Fry in a small amount of peanut oil in small bits like a pancake.

Lobster Club Sandwich.—Toast bread cut one-third of an inch thick, butter and keep hot. Allow two slices for each person to be served. Sauté the lobster in a little butter, use either fresh or canned. Season well with salt, pepper and a teaspoonful of currant jelly. Fry bacon until crisp. Place slices of bacon on toast and over this a layer of pieces of lobster; cover with mayonnaise, then top with a piece of crisp lettuce or chilled watercress; make another layer of bacon and lobster and on top place a slice of toast. Garnish the sandwiches with sliced tomatoes, mayonnaise and lemon. Cut into triangles and serve.

Pimiento Cup With Egg and Celery.—Drain the small red peppers from their liquor, place in row pans to fill. Fill with the following salad: Chop one cupful of celery very fine and mix with two hard cooked eggs chopped. Into this stir one-half cupful of mayonnaise and fill the cups. Decorate with mayonnaise and small shapes cut of green pepper. Serve very cold on crisp lettuce with toasted biscuit and cheese.

Casseroles of Salmon.—Take two cupfuls of cooked, shredded salmon, two tablespoonfuls of tapioca uncooked, one cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, a dash each of pepper and paprika. Mix in the order given and bake ten minutes, then cover with small baking powder biscuit and slash baking.

Improved on Nature

Many of the flowers that adorn our gardens have been procured from plants which originally grew wild. They have been changed or improved by the patient art of the professional gardener.

After 40 Bowel trouble is Most Dangerous

Constipation may easily become chronic after forty. Continued constipation at that time of life may bring attacks of piles—and a host of other disorders.

Watch your bowels at any age. Guard them with particular care after forty. When they need help, remember a doctor should know what is best for them.

"Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin" is a doctor's prescription for the bowels. Tested by 47 years' practice, it has been found thoroughly effective in relieving constipation and its ill effects for men, women and children of all ages. It has proven perfectly safe even for babies. Made from fresh, laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other harmless ingredients, it cannot gripe; will not sicken you or weaken you; can be used without harm as often as your breath is bad, your tongue is coated; whenever a headachy, bilious, gassy condition warns of constipation.

Next time just take a spoonful of this family doctor's laxative. See how good it tastes; how gently and thoroughly it acts. Then you will know why it has become the world's most popular laxative. Big bottles—all drug stores.

Happy Again

"Nothing seemed to please Betty Jean," says Mrs. James W. Nolen, 113 Center St., Dallas, Texas. "She was feverish and fretful. Her appetite was poor; she seemed bilious."

"A child specialist recommended California Fig Syrup and it certainly made my little girl happy, well again in a hurry. We have used it over three years for all her upsets."

Mothers by thousands praise this pure vegetable product. Children love it. Doctors recommend it for feverish, headachy, bilious, constipated babies and children; to open the bowels in colds or children's diseases.

Appetite is increased by its use; the breath is sweetened; coated tongue is cleared; digestion and assimilation are assisted; weak stomach and bowels are strengthened. For your protection the genuine always bears the name California.

English Language First

The language most widely used for commercial transaction all over the world is English. A recent British educational commission designated the language of commerce other than English in the following order of importance: French, German, Italian, Spanish unquestionably the most important foreign language for citizens of the United States. It depends, however, chiefly upon the nature of business in which one is engaged. French and Spanish are probably the most important foreign commercial languages for America. The importance of German will depend to a large extent upon the future position of that country in the commercial world.

Lesson for February 1

JESUS THE GREAT PHYSICIAN

LESSON TEXT—Luke 4:33-44; 5:12-16, 18-26.

GOLDEN TEXT—Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows; yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus and Health.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus and Health.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Our Friend and Helper.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christian Ministry to Physical Ills.

I. Jesus Healing a Demoniac (4:33-37).

While engaged in teaching in the synagogue, Jesus was interrupted by a man who had a "spirit of an unclean devil," who cried out with a loud voice asking that he be left alone, professing knowledge of him as the Holy One of God. Jesus rebuked the demon and compelled him to come out of the man. At the command of Jesus the demon came out of the man with a violent struggle. This healing shows Jesus not only gracious but powerful to set free men who are under the power of the Devil, and also his ability to free men from the whole brood of diabolical passions such as lust, envy, anger, and jealousy which rule them. This manifestation of divine power amazed the people, causing them to cry out, "What a word is this!"

II. Jesus Heals Peter's Mother-in-Law of a Great Fever (vv. 38-41).

This woman was prostrate with a great fever. They of Peter's household besought Jesus in her behalf. He rebuked the fever and it left her so that she immediately arose and ministered unto them. No earthly physician has ever been known to heal in that way. Divine healing is immediate and complete. It is most important that we distinguish between divine healing and faith healing. Faith healing is the result of the action of the mind upon the body, and is measured by the degree of the faith of the individual, while divine healing is the action of the power of God upon the diseased one and is always complete and immediate.

As a result of this manifestation of divine power, the fame of Jesus spread abroad and many sick of divers diseases were brought unto him and he healed them all.

III. Jesus Heals a Leper (5:12-15).

Leprosy was a most loathsome and terrible disease. Because of its foulness, one afflicted therewith was an outcast. Leprosy was incurable by man, therefore, the leper was regarded as hopeless and dead. In response to the leper's earnest request Jesus touched him and bade the leprosy to depart, and immediately he was healed and cleansed. Leprosy is a type of sin. Though sin is loathsome, hideous and separating, Jesus has power to save those who come to him by faith.

IV. Jesus Heals a Paralytic (5:18-26).

1. Watched by the Pharisees and doctors of the law (v. 17). The spreading abroad of Jesus' fame only incited jealousy on the part of these men. They did not want to get too close to him, but close enough to know what was going on.

2. The paralytic brought to Jesus (vv. 18, 19). This is a fine lesson of Christian service. They could not heal the man, but being moved by sympathy they co-operated in bringing him to Jesus who could heal and restore. Their efforts in bringing the man show their willingness to go to pains and trouble to bring the needy man to Jesus.

3. The man's sins forgiven (v. 20). Jesus looked back of the paralytic to his cause—sin. The effect of his sin was before Jesus, but he proceeded to deal with the cause of it. All disease and death are the result of sin. The Lord deals first with that which was at the root of the trouble. Jesus saw the faith not only of those who brought him but of the man himself.

4. The purpose of miracles (vv. 21, 22). The Pharisees accused Christ of blasphemy when he declared the man's sins forgiven. Jesus showed them that back of the beneficent deed to the man was the demonstration of his deity. The main purpose in the working of miracles is the authentication of the divine mission of the one performing them. While the divine power and authority are thus shown, the wisdom and love of God are shown in that in all cases the supernatural work is for the good of the individual.

5. The relative value of physical ill and moral and spiritual maladies (vv. 23, 24). Physical ill are less serious than the sins which cause them.

Wakeful restless CHILD needs Castoria

WE can never be sure just what makes an infant restless, but the remedy can always be the same. Good old Castoria! There's comfort in every drop of this pure vegetable preparation, and not the slightest harm in its frequent use. As often as Baby has a fretful spell, is feverish, or cries and can't sleep, let Castoria soothe and quiet him. Sometimes it's a touch of colic. Other times it's constipation. Or diarrhea—a condition that should always be checked promptly. Just keep Castoria handy, and give it promptly. Relief will follow very promptly; if it doesn't you should call a physician.

All through babyhood, Castoria should be a mother's standby; and a wise mother continues it in more liberal doses as a child grows up.

Congratulations!

"I'm engaged," said the taxi-driver. "I hope you'll be very happy," said the sweet little innocent.

MOTHERS ARE LEARNING USES OF MAGNESIA

From the beginning of expectancy until baby is weaned, Phillips' Milk of Magnesia performs the greatest service for many women.

It relieves nausea, heartburn, "morning sickness," inclination to vomit; helps digestion. Its mild laxative action assures regular bowel movement.

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is better than lime water for neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding.

All drugstores have Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in generous 25c and 50c bottles. Always insist on the genuine, endorsed by physicians for 50 years.

No paymaster hands out the wages of sin. It is always there in a patient's waiting.

Carolina Woman Lost 47 Lbs.

In 3 Months and Feels Years Younger

"I have been taking Kruschen Salts for nearly 3 months. I have continued taking one teaspoonful in warm water every morning. I then weighed 217 pounds, was always bothered with pains in my back and lower part of abdomen and sides.

"Now I am glad to say I am a well woman, feel much stronger, years younger and my weight is 170 pounds. I do not only feel better but I look better, so all my friends buy."

"I shall never be without Kruschen Salts. I will never cease to take my daily dose and more than glad to highly recommend it for the great good that it is in it." Mrs. S. A. Holman, New Bern, N. C., Jan. 1930. "P. S. You may think I am exaggerating by writing such a long letter but truly I feel so indebted to you for putting out such wonderful salts that I cannot say enough."

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts 4 weeks costs but 33 cents at drugstores the world over. Take one half teaspoon in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast.

Attention to diet will help—cut out pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—the Kruschen way is the safe way to lose fat. Try one bottle and if not joyfully satisfied—money back.—Adv.

FEEL MEAN?

Don't be helpless when you suddenly get a headache. Reach in your pocket for immediate relief. If you haven't any Bayer Aspirin with you, get some at the first drugstore you come to. Take a tablet or two and be rid of the pain. Take promptly. Nothing is gained by waiting to see if the pain will leave of its own accord. It may grow worse! Why postpone relief? There are many times when Bayer Aspirin will "save the day." It will always ease a throbbing head. Quiet a grumbling tooth. Relieve nagging pains of neuralgia or neuritis. Check a sudden cold. Even rheumatism has lost its terrors for those who have learned to depend on these tablets. Gargle with Bayer Aspirin at the first suspicion of sore throat, and reduce the infection. Look for Bayer on the box—and the word Genuine in red. Genuine Bayer Aspirin does not depress the heart.

HEARD ABOUT TOWN

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hester.

of Claunch, N.M., were here last Saturday, doing some shopping and returning home late in the afternoon. Mr. Hester is a brother to J. C. Hester, of whom we made mention last week as a future Bank Examiner.

Mrs. Jesse L. Vanderburg

of Chicago, who had been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Fulmer of the New Mexico Light & Power Company for a week, left last Friday on the Golden State Limited for Shawnee, Oklahoma where she will visit relatives and friends before returning to the "Lake City." She was favorably impressed with the scenery in the nearby mountains.

Mrs. Chas. F. M. Stone of Pasadena, Calif., is here as a guest at the J. R. Blackshere ranch home and will remain for about ten days, after which she will go to eastern points to visit relatives and friends for a month before returning to Pasadena.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Crowe were Alamogordo visitors over Sunday, visiting Mrs. Crowe's parents, the Richards and Mr. Crowe's parents, the latter family having just erected a new home in the "city of trees."

J. M. Shelton

Operator for the S. P. at Corona, was in Carrizozo Monday, visiting Mrs. Shelton and the children; Mrs. Shelton is one of the teachers in our school, and the children are here attending school. While in town, Mr. Shelton attended to business matters and paid this office a pleasant visit. He returned to Corona Monday evening.

Mrs. E. A. Gumm

Mmes. Elizabeth Gallacher and Doyle Kentfrow made a trip to Alamogordo Sunday to see the picture "The Big Trail." They were accompanied by Tennis Bigelow, who motored the ladies over. There is always a reason for every act and there was one for this trip; last summer, Mmes. Gumm, Gallacher and Tennis Bigelow made a pleasure trip through the northwest and going through the Jackson's Hole country in Wyoming, they saw "The Big Trail" being filmed, and at that time, they made an agreement that if the picture ever came within 100 miles of Carrizozo, they would see it. It was not known until after they had left, that the picture would be shown here, but that afternoon, the agent came to this place and Mr. Pittman contracted with him, and it will be shown at the Crystal Theatre in the near future. Watch for the announcement.

Mrs. Alice M. French

County School Superintendent, left today for Santa Fe, where she will attend a meeting of the school superintendents who will be there from every County in the state. The object of this meeting, as stated in our issue of last week, is to present to the county school superintendents and others connected with the boards of education, the policy of the State Board as outlined, and the program of the New Mexico Educational Association which it intends to present to the Legislature, will be submitted. The meeting has been called by Mrs. Georgia Lusk, State Supt. of Public Instruction, and other matters aside from the same above stated will be outlined at the above meeting, which will be held tomorrow. Mrs. French will return Sunday.

Dance Tonight!

There will be a big dance tonight, January 30, at Community Hall, with the "Capitan Bombers" furnishing the music. The dance will follow the Tularosa-Carrizozo Basketball games.

Lupe Gabaldon

sheepraiser from the Claunch, N. M. country, was here last Saturday transacting some business, returning home in the evening.

Carrizozo Woman's Club

Arrived after publication last week.

The Club met Friday, the 16th with Mrs. R. E. Lemon at her spacious home west of town.

The president, Mrs. Paul Mayer, presided. Mrs. Lemon, Parliamentarian, read resolutions from the "Club Woman" and the Club devoted 15 minutes to parliamentary drill. The chairman of the nominating committee, Mrs. Barber, rendered her report, and the following officers were elected for 1931-1932—Mrs. Oscar Clouse, President Mrs. Zoe Glassmire, 1st vice pres. Miss Ella Brickley, 2nd vice pres. Mrs. Clyde Lucky, Treasurer Mrs. C. W. Young, Secretary Mrs. Paul Mayer, Parliamentarian

The program as follows was prepared by Mrs. Barber and announced by Mrs. Finley—Piano solo, "Melody in F"

Ruth Kelley

E. M. Barber gave the Club a very instructive talk on New Mexico marriage laws.

Mr. Crnkovich delighted the Club with two songs, with Mrs. Gillette at the piano, the first, "The House by the Side of the Road," the second, "Love's Magic," for an encore, he sang, "Uncle Kome."

The assistant hostesses, Mmes. Richard, Huppertz, French and Snow served delicious cakes and coffee.

Mrs. Anna Brazel

was here from her home in Ocala Wednesday, and from her we learned that Will Keen has about finished a blacksmith and general electric repair shop at Mrs. Brazel's place just south of the S. P. station, where he will do all kinds of repairing in the blacksmith and electrical line of work. Remember the place and give Mr. Keen a call.

"The Mystery of the Sealed Trunk"

It was an odd, little old leather trunk and its contents—thousands of sheets of paper, covered with apparently meaningless figures—seemed so promising, that Rhoda McFarland sealed it up and consigned it to a closet. There it rested for several years. But all of a sudden that trunk became an object of importance and the central property of a plot which caused Rhoda to leave her friends, take a position as a stenographer in the city, and attempt to hide her identity under an assumed name. And the possession of the trunk brought other experiences into her life—romance, adventures and acquaintance with oddly assorted persons, some good, some not so good, and others just queer; among them a handsome young man who—but you must read the story yourself. Read it as a serial in the Outlook.

To J. W. Murphy

Editor of the Burlington, Iowa Post, who conveyed his regards to Charles Siringo, author of a book on the life of Billy the Kid, we are sorry to inform you that Mr. Siringo died in California about three years ago. He was a frequent caller at this office during his last visit to this section of the state.

"The Patman Bill"

(Contributed)

The "Patman Bill" for the immediate payment of the Adjusted Service Certificates to the Ex-Service men which is now being discussed in Congress means a lot to Carrizozo and Lincoln County. If this bill is passed it is estimated that as much as $100,000 will be immediately liberated by Lincoln County ex-service men. Nothing will do more to relieve the present depression than more money in circulation. It is estimated that in the state of New Mexico more than $9,500,000.00 will be paid to these men and Lincoln County will get her share.

This measure affects every man and his family who served in the army, navy or marine corps during the war. Many of them now are in need of money on which to live. Many are out of employment and need the money now, more than they will in 1945 when it is to be paid. More money in circulation in Lincoln County now will help to relieve us of some hard times.

Sabino Vidaurri

made a trip to El Paso the latter part of last week on business.

We wish to convey our sincere thanks to the many kind friends who with acts of kindness and words of comfort contributed to our consolation during the illness and after the passing of our beloved daughter and sister. Also for the floral offerings.

The Proof of the Pudding
(By John L. Lawson)

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating." So said a wise man. I do not know who it was that first said it. But many have said it after him. And we all know it to be true. The following great men and many more, have tried the Sunday school and found it to be good: W. G. Harding—"It is time that we gave our attention to the religious instruction of the children of America." Lloyd George—"Personally, I know what a Sunday School can do; all the best training I ever had was in a Sunday School." Woodrow Wilson—"No study is more important than the study of the Bible; there is no more effective agency for such study than the Sunday School." Wm. Howard Taft—"We all agree, Protestant, Catholic and Jew alike, that Sunday School education is absolutely necessary." George Washington—"We shall preserve our liberty by the religious instruction of our youth."

Roger Babson—"The need of the hour is not more factories, railroads, steamships, armies or navies, but rather, more religious education." John Wanamaker—"I know of no other work that begins to compare with that attained by the Sunday School." Wm. Gladstone—"The Sunday School is the greatest institution in the world for popularizing the world's best book—the Bible."

The Sunday School needs you, and you need the Sunday School. And you parents! I am thinking that the majority of you are proud to say that your parents took you to Sunday School. Would it not be well for your children to be able to say the same of you? Judah said "How shall I go up to my father and the lad be not with me?" You might change that question a bit and say, "How shall my children go to the House of the Lord if I do not go with them and encourage them with my example? Think it over."

Conveyors Carry Ford Car Parts

Trains unload in the plant.

Bodies starting through the shop.

Conveyors carry wheels with mounted tires over a line on which cars pass to completion.

The highly important part played by conveyor systems in all Ford Motor Company manufacturing and assembly plants is graphically shown in the above three pictures taken in the recently opened Edgewater, N. J., plant. One of the pictures shows how parts may be unloaded from freight cars within the plant only a few feet from the various assembly lines. Another picture shows automobile bodies starting their trip on a conveyor while the third view is of the conveyor system used for bringing wheels to the chassis which are also moving on a conveyor. As indicated in the picture, a constant flow of wheels on which the tires have already been mounted moves around and over the chassis assembly line. As a chassis enters the section, workers, in groups of four, each take a wheel from the heels and fasten it to the chassis.
