

RADIO RUBE'S RAMBLINGS

Rudy Vallee is the champion lady-killer among the radio stars. By the way, Radio Rube wrote Vallee a "mash note" some time ago and as yet has received no reply.

Heard a program from New York over Denver the other night at 10 o'clock, then quick as flash, the announcer said, "We take you to the San Francisco studio for another program."

Radio Rube was listening to the Gebhardt Mexican players performing their usual romantic music when the machine faded out.

He says he enjoys the Philco Symphony Orchestra on Tuesday at 7:30 over KRLD, Dallas and KMOX, St. Louis, the Damrosch orchestra, the Mobiloil orchestra and numerous other large organizations.

The Radio is making the public more critical. You used to hear a piano or someone practicing on some sort of musical instrument, but now comes the radio to take the place of arduous, tiresome practice.

Heard a pathetic (?) little ditty over the air yesterday. If you promise him you won't laugh Radio Rube will give it to you—"Pray tell me bird What can you see Up in the top of that tall tree? I'm looking at you, my little boy With heart of gladness and joy."

That's what we think, he should be shot at sunrise for reciting such rot as this.

Radio K O B at State College must have surely put more power on their station at the noon broadcast. The programs come in well, being phonograph records exclusively. Some good recordings are being put on.

In the words of a prominent citizen, "Hear Amos 'n' Andy and then go to bed."

Attention, Masons!

There will be a Regular Communication of Carrizozo Lodge No. 41, A. F. & A. M., on Saturday night, Feb. 28, for the purpose of business.

All Master Masons are cordially invited. E. M. Brickley, W. M. R. E. Lemon, Secretary.

ANCHO NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. Barney Wilson and son Walton were in Carrizozo last Saturday.

Mrs. Lulu Hale is home after making an extended visit at Fort Stanton.

Mr. Ziegler Returns From Purchasing Trip

Albert Ziegler of the firm of Ziegler Brothers, returned last Saturday from his semi-annual purchasing trip to eastern points, where he made his selections for spring and summer supply of gent's furnishing goods and ladies' wearing apparel. Mr. Ziegler showed a remarkable display of optimism in his buying in that he bought as in years before the depression came on, and avoided, in every way, the curtailment of his purchases and quality of goods.

Some of the new styles are beginning to arrive and the full new stock will be on display shortly. Be sure to investigate the quality and lateness of the styles and also note that the prices are greatly reduced without lessening the quality. Don't forget.

The Growing Unpopularity of the Seligman Administration

(Special Correspondence)

Santa Fe, Feb. 21.—The growing unpopularity of the Seligman administration seems to be chiefly due, to two causes. The Republicans say the Governor, when governor-elect, called for the resignations of all state boards and officers. These resignations were on his desk when he took the oath of office. The adjutant general, chief tax commissioner, comptroller and warden of the penitentiary, were appointed. At least, one of the appointees is a Republican. No other resignations have, at this writing, been accepted.

J. R. Aguilar and Geo. L. Ulrich are still associate tax commissioners; Charles Springer, Fred D. Huning and J. A. Mahoney, are still directing the highway work; Charles Proebstel, K. J. Baldrige and W. A. Losey, are handling the affairs of the game commission; Lawrence Tamme is administering the office of bank examiner; Herbert Yeo is still the state engineer. No member of the board of any state institution has been changed. The men who served under Governor Dillon are charged with the duty of making the set-ups for the next two years, all of which would be all right but for the fact that the governor sent a message to the legislature in which he charged that the boards, making their reports to the governor, "cheat, to get more money from the state."

If they cheat, as the governor alleges, why not accept their resignations and replace them with Democrats? The Republican senators ask. When the governor's inconsistency was pointed out on the floor of the senate, he replied that Senator Hughes of Bernalillo, who led the discussion, has nothing "between his eyes."

Senator Hughes, replying, asked the governor if it was his purpose to comply with the provisions of the state constitution that the governor shall nominate, and, with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint all officers whose appointment or election is not otherwise provided for? To that question there has been no answer.

Special Demonstration

of Dr. Scholl's Foot Reliefs will be held at Prehm's Bargain House Thursday, March 5th. A foot comfort expert from the Chicago office of Dr. Wm. M. Scholl, will be here to give you, FREE—1—Complete analysis of Pedograph prints of your stockinged feet which reveal any foot trouble you may have. 2—Thorough Test of your feet and Demonstration of the immediate relief you get with the correct Dr. Scholl Foot Comfort Appliance or Remedy. 3—Sam-

You will be shown the exact condition of your feet; what causes them to give you so much trouble; what to do to make them healthy, strong and comfortable; how to give your feet proper care; what size and type shoes are best suited to them, etc. Remember the date and be sure not to miss this opportunity to learn about your feet. All this without cost or obligation to you!

WOMAN'S CLUB

A very well attended and interesting meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Ziegler, Feb. 18th. The club voted to give $10 towards the New Mexico bell to be placed in the Valley Forge Memorial. The music department is planning to bring Samuel Martinez here for a concert sometime in April. No one should miss hearing this wonderful violinist.

At the close of the business meeting, Mrs. Blaney, chairman of drama, presented the following program: Piano solo, Margaret Shafer; Vocal solo, Mrs. Lemon; Piano solo, Lydia Penfield; Reading, Miss Brickley; One-act play, "Top Dog." Meses. Blaney, Snyder, Chas. Young and Miss Melaaas.

Before adjourning, the president, Mrs. Paul Mayer, presented each member with a copy of the "Club Woman's Collect," which follows:

Keep us, O God, from pettiness; let us be large in thought, in word, in deed. Let us be done with fault finding and leave off self-seekings. May we put away all pretense and meet each other face to face, without self-pity and without prejudice. May we never be hasty in judgment, always generous. Teach us to put into action our better impulses, straightforward and unafraid. Let us take time for all things; make us grow calm, serene and gentle. Grant that we may realize that it is the little things that create differences; that in the big things of life we are one. And may we strive to touch and to know the great common woman's heart of us all; and O Lord God, let us not forget to be kind.

The Spirit of Good Samaritanism Still Lives

Among the many unfortunates who have passed through here of late, making for the east, where they are hopeful of obtaining employment of some kind, was a man seeking to reach Dalhart, Texas, having traveled as best he could from San Pedro, California. He stopped over between freight trains and in attempting to scale the ladder of an east bound freight, he was thrown to the ground, sustaining a badly sprained ankle and an ugly cut on the head. The man was penniless and helpless; not only that, but no one seemed to be interested in caring for him until the case came to the knowledge of Mrs. E. H. Sweet of the Carrizozo Eating House. She had him brought to the hotel, where with the assistance of her daughters, Mrs. James Lee and Miss Louise, his wounds were dressed, home remedies applied and general care given the unfortunate man which included meals and lodging.

It was not until Tuesday that he was able to go on his way and at that time, the management advanced him the fare to Dalhart and he left on No. 12, rejoicing. In times like these when so many cries of the needy go unheeded, it is worthy of mention that there are still some who follow the example in the parable of the Good Samaritan. "I was hungry and you gave me to eat; naked and you clothed me; sick and in prison and you visited me; a stranger and you took me in."

Mrs. D. D. Tiffany was an El Paso visitor over the week-end.

Badly Burned

Last Sunday morning, at her home on the east side, Mrs. Victoriano Lopez was severely burned about the upper part of her body and face while in the act of replenishing her cooking stove fire. Mrs. Lopez, we understand, poured coal oil into the stove, which exploded and before she could back away from the stove, the flames had enveloped her clothing and some drapings around the room. Fortunately, the flames about her were extinguished in time to save her life and although she is suffering considerably from her burns, she is out of danger, we are glad to say. Mrs. Lopez is a daughter of Mrs. Wm. S. Brady.

This unfortunate happening should serve as a lesson to others—never to resort to coal oil or gasoline in replenishing a fire while there are live coals in the stove. It is dangerous and an explosion gives no warning.

Dies Suddenly

Clark Terry died suddenly Sunday at Tularosa, while erecting 20 miles of line for the Mesacero Reservation. Mr. Terry had been head of the Indian Service Construction for 13 years and in telephone work for 31 years. Burial was made at Blazer's Mill Wednesday, under a telephone line, this being his last request. Flowers and messages were sent from the Washington Indian Offices and Indian reservations of many states where he had been formerly employed. He leaves a wife and two sons.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gallacher, spent two days of the week in El Paso.

Chickens Recovered

If one could have witnessed a certain scene at White Oaks last Saturday it would have reminded him of the story of Billy the Kid and other things of that nature.

The sheriff was called and charges filed to the effect that chickens had been missing from many yards in town. The sheriff and deputy, Pete Johnson, hurried to the scene with sawed-off shotguns, rifles and in fact, a full arsenal. The missing chickens were found and after a conference by all parties concerned, a settlement was made out of court.

CHAPTER I

Red Hair

The first movement was complicated, and being the first, is probably worth disentangling. Afterward, when there was time to think, Martin Forbes went back to it himself.

He had come to the Alhambra tonight at the suggestion of Babe Jennings. She was going to be there, she said, and she gave him the high sign he was to take it as permission to cut in on her partner and dance with her.

Men in pursuit of vice didn't come to the Alhambra. It wasn't that sort of place. But lots of men did come who wanted a girl to dance with and take out to supper...

To the fiction writer, which Martin meant to be, he ought to prove a mine of variegated raw material. Even for his present job she was worth cultivating, he thought.

At the moment, however, he wasn't thinking about his story. He was wondering vaguely whether he hadn't discovered a new law of physics. Was your repulsion to the man you saw a pretty girl dancing with directly proportionate to your attraction to the girl?

There was nothing glaringly wrong about the bird. He might be something less than forty. He had a meaty-looking face, with a complacent smile on it, and his dress was a bit foppish. He danced well, but you could see he felt he was giving the little girl a treat. No, there was no law about it, Martin would have hated him anywhere.

Just as the music stopped they turned so that he could see the girl's face, and, in sheer pleased surprise, he smiled at her involuntarily. But it was like a head-on collision, for her look met his absolutely true. There was a substratum of smile about it, but above that there was a sort of half-serious desperation that had reference, Martin was sure, to the man she'd been dancing with.

"Want to be rescued?" Martin asked, safely enough, since she stood twenty paces off and he didn't, of course, speak the words aloud.

But, exactly as if she'd heard him, she perceptibly nodded her head and then looked up at her partner, who had spoken to her.

He touched her companion on the arm—A very solid arm—and said, "May I cut in?"

From the way they both flashed around upon him you'd have said he'd surprised them equally. But in her face, which was the only one he looked at, there dawned a delighted recognition that would have convinced anybody.

"I thought I saw you, just a minute ago," she said. Then, to the man she was abandoning, "You'll excuse us, won't you? It's literally forever since we've had a dance together."

Forbes felt himself wearing an indecently broad grin as he danced away with her over that "literally forever" of hers. She had told the blighter the exact truth!

"I didn't know anything like this could happen," he said, after they'd danced in silence about half-way around the floor, "and I don't know yet how it did happen. It's more like a perfectly gorgeous dream than anything else."

"Don't wake up, then," she said. It was an easy injunction to obey. Whether she was a perfect dancer for all the world or had been specially created for him, he didn't know. He might consider it later, but it wasn't worth speculating about now. They merely danced.

When, disengaged, they stood looking at each other he said, almost reverently, "Gosh!" and her faintly audible sigh expressed the same thing.

"Do you have to go back?" he protested. "—To him, I mean."

"To Mr. Lewis? No; I don't have to go back to anybody." She smiled faintly as she said that.

He was thrown out of his stride for a second by a pleasant perception that she knew how to pronounce the name "Lewis."

"Well then, why . . . ?" he began, when he got on the rails again.

"Just because you were kind enough, to ask me if I didn't want to be rescued," she explained, "it doesn't follow that you've taken me on indefinitely. Haven't you anybody to go back to?"

He laughed. "Not a soul," he told her. "Let's go up to one of those boxes in the balcony and get a soda or something."

Her wants in the way of refreshment were modest. A glass of root beer was the only thing she'd have.

"It was a funny coincidence," he remarked, "your saying, as you did just now, that I had asked you if you didn't want to be rescued, because that was exactly what I did ask. I mean, those very words."

"Well," she innocently questioned, "why not?"

"Because I didn't say it to you at all. I was standing sixty feet away from you. I said it to myself. How did you know exactly what I said?"

"Telepathy," she told him; but she said it with a grin.

She'd leaned forward a little to watch the crowd on the floor, but just as his gaze followed hers, she suddenly drew back into the shadows of the box. The reason was plain enough. The man he'd rescued her from—Lewis, if that was his name—was coming across the floor. Martin drew back, too.

"Do people's names ever strike you as misfits?" he asked. "His does. My idea of a man named Lewis doesn't look like that."

"Because I Didn't Say It to You at All!"

"It may not be his real name," she remarked. "Or he may have changed it from something else. People do sometimes. All I know is that that's the way one of those men in white trousers introduced him to me. He asked me to call him Max, but I don't know whether that's short for Maxwell, or Maxwell, or Maximilian, or whether it's his whole name."

He couldn't be sure in the dim light of the box, but he thought she'd colored over this admission that she was indebted to one of the floor managers for a dancing partner. He'd resolved not to try to think her out until afterward, but it was a resolution he couldn't keep. Who was she? What was she?

said. "Let's go down and dance again."

Just then—they'd moved to leave the box, but even the girl wasn't yet put in the corridor—he saw Babe Jennings coming along with a client in tow, and he got a fleeting notion that some sportive Olympian was having fun with him. For the one thing he'd decided he was certain about concerning his own companion was instantly demolished.

Babe said to her, with sisterly familiarity, "Hello, Red! You through with that box?"

His girl—"Red," indeed!—answered in a perfectly matter-of-fact way, "Yes, come in. We're going to dance."

It wasn't until then that Babe recognized him. "Hello, Marty!" she said, in lively surprise. "I've been looking around for you. But I didn't know you two knew each other."

His companion smiled. "We don't," she admitted. "We picked each other up in the middle of the last dance."

"I wish," Martin put in, "that you'd be good enough to introduce us."

It amused him to see that Babe was shocked. "Miss White," she said with cold formality, "let me introduce Mr. Forbes."

She added, as she turned away to summon her companion who had been hanging in the background, that she liked some people's nerve!

Babe's disapproval of their manners advanced their acquaintance another step. He said to her as they danced, "I don't like that name: Babe Jennings' nickname for you."

She smiled good-naturedly. "Red? Why not? It fits."

"That's just what it doesn't," he insisted. "I want a better name than that to think of you by. I wish you'd tell me your real one."

"She looked rather searchingly into his face for a moment before she answered, but the decision she'd heatated over was in his favor. 'You may not like my real name either,' she said. 'It's Rhoda. You don't like it, do you? Or if you do,' she went on, overriding the protest he made, 'what made you look so funny when I told you?'"

He didn't try to deny that he might have looked funny. "I've got some association with the name that I can't spot. I'm sure I don't know anybody named Rhoda. But the name's been in my mind within the last three days."

"Well, don't try to find it now," she admonished him. "You don't dance as well when you think."

So for the next few minutes they dispensed with thinking altogether. They allowed themselves, indeed, to become a little too oblivious to their surroundings. In the next pause, as they stood waiting for the orchestra to go on, Martin saw a flicker of a frown cross the girl's eyebrows and the next instant a voice said at his elbow, "May I have the rest of this dance?"—a rather scared voice; it wouldn't be Lewis, anyhow—and he turned to see a blushing eager youngster who'd cut in on him.

Annoying as the intrusion was, Martin couldn't help liking the girl better for her kindness in putting the shy boy at his ease. She introduced him to Martin—Higgins, his name was—and danced away with him. It pleased Martin, though, to observe that he danced badly.

He left the floor and made for a vacant sofa, a low, high-backed, overstuffed thing, one of a pair that stood back to back thwartwise in the side corridor. His fellow had, he noted, for its solitary tenant a girl whose aggressive blondness made a really focused glance necessary to satisfy him that she wasn't Babe Jennings. Reassured on that point he dropped into the vacant seat behind her. But he'd hardly begun thinking about Rhoda when his attention was sharply diverted. He felt a jar as somebody heavy sat down beside the woman on the other sofa, and heard him say to her, "Well, you were right. She's the girl."

"Where is she now?"

"Out on the floor. She can't see us here. Well, I guess I've beaten the old man to it this time."

"You?" the woman questioned ironically.

"Oh, that was a good hunch you had," he admitted.

The woman's comment was a contemptuous laugh.

Martin, interested without knowing why, found that by turning his head sideways so that his ear pressed against the back of the sofa he could hear better. The woman was speaking now in a more conciliatory manner.

"Tell me how you made sure. I suppose you got her to tell you the whole story of her life?"

"I made a pretty fair start with her," he said complacently. "She's a cagey little brat, though, and I didn't want to press too hard. I'll get more next time. But I found out her first name, and it fits."

"Keep her own first name, did she?" the woman said. "She's the one, then. I was practically sure when I saw her."

"I guess it's all right," the man said. "It won't do any harm, though, if I try to find out some more about her."

The woman uttered another short unpleasant laugh. "You listen here, Max," she said. "You've got just one job tonight. Find out where she lives. If I can get her address, we'll have C. J. where we want him. Until we know that, we're nowhere. We haven't any time to waste fooling around. She may see that ad tomorrow and answer it. Find out where she lives, and tell me. I'll do the rest. I'll go now. No, sit still. I don't want to take a chance on her seeing us together. So long!"

She came around Martin's side of the sofa, and without stirring he watched her all the way to the stairs, with a mind quite blank however, as far as she was concerned. He had something else to think about.

He had spotted his association with the name Rhoda. For the past week some one had been advertising every day in the personal column of the News for the address of Rhoda McFarland. It was part of Martin's daily routine to read the personal column pretty carefully. Every now and then he found the beginning of a story in it. He had especially noted these advertisements for Rhoda McFarland because of a minor oddity about them. Usually the advertisers for the addresses of missing persons were firms of attorneys who offered their own names and addresses in full. But these had all been blind ads. The answer was invited to communicate his facts to "X-203" or something of the sort, care of the Daily News.

Today the form of the ad had changed. Rhoda McFarland, it had said, would learn something to her advantage by communicating with "X-203": Rhoda McFarland, though; not Rhoda White.

What had made the memory of that series of advertisements pop into his head so suddenly? Max was to find out where the girl lived tonight, because they hadn't any time for fooling around. She might see that ad in the paper tomorrow and answer it. Martin sat suddenly erect and then slumped back again into the corner of his sofa. Had it been his Rhoda they were talking about?

He hadn't yet seen the man who was still sitting on the sofa behind him, but the woman had called him Max. The obvious thing to do was to walk around the sofa and take a look at him; and out if he was the same Max that Rhoda had wanted to be rescued from. But to do that openly would probably give away to the blighter the fact that his conversation with the woman had been overheard by some one who took an interest in it. Better sit still a minute first and check up.

This pair wanted to find a girl before somebody else did, somebody who was advertising for her. The woman had thought she recognized her but hadn't been sure. Apparently she'd sent for Max to come and scrape an acquaintance with the girl and find the vacant seat behind her. But he'd hardly begun thinking about Rhoda when his attention was sharply diverted. He felt a jar as somebody heavy sat down beside the woman on the other sofa, and heard him say to her, "Well, you were right. She's the girl."

"Where is she now?"

Today the form of the ad had changed. Rhoda McFarland, it had said, would learn something to her advantage by communicating with "X-203": Rhoda McFarland, though; not Rhoda White.

What had made the memory of that series of advertisements pop into his head so suddenly? Max was to find out where the girl lived tonight, because they hadn't any time for fooling around. She might see that ad in the paper tomorrow and answer it. Martin sat suddenly erect and then slumped back again into the corner of his sofa. Had it been his Rhoda they were talking about?

He hadn't yet seen the man who was still sitting on the sofa behind him, but the woman had called him Max. The obvious thing to do was to walk around the sofa and take a look at him; and out if he was the same Max that Rhoda had wanted to be rescued from. But to do that openly would probably give away to the blighter the fact that his conversation with the woman had been overheard by some one who took an interest in it. Better sit still a minute first and check up.

This pair wanted to find a girl before somebody else did, somebody who was advertising for her. The woman had thought she recognized her but hadn't been sure. Apparently she'd sent for Max to come and scrape an acquaintance with the girl and find the vacant seat behind her. But he'd hardly begun thinking about Rhoda when his attention was sharply diverted. He felt a jar as somebody heavy sat down beside the woman on the other sofa, and heard him say to her, "Well, you were right. She's the girl."

"Where is she now?"

"Out on the floor. She can't see us here. Well, I guess I've beaten the old man to it this time."

"You?" the woman questioned ironically.

"Oh, that was a good hunch you had," he admitted.

The woman's comment was a contemptuous laugh.

Martin, interested without knowing why, found that by turning his head sideways so that his ear pressed against the back of the sofa he could hear better. The woman was speaking now in a more conciliatory manner.

"Tell me how you made sure. I suppose you got her to tell you the whole story of her life?"

"I made a pretty fair start with her," he said complacently. "She's a cagey little brat, though, and I didn't want to press too hard. I'll get more next time. But I found out her first name, and it fits."

"Keep her own first name, did she?" the woman said. "She's the one, then. I was practically sure when I saw her."

"I guess it's all right," the man said. "It won't do any harm, though, if I try to find out some more about her."

The woman uttered another short unpleasant laugh. "You listen here, Max," she said. "You've got just one job tonight. Find out where she lives. If I can get her address, we'll have C. J. where we want him. Until we know that, we're nowhere. We haven't any time to waste fooling around. She may see that ad tomorrow and answer it. Find out where she lives, and tell me. I'll do the rest. I'll go now. No, sit still. I don't want to take a chance on her seeing us together. So long!"

She came around Martin's side of the sofa, and without stirring he watched her all the way to the stairs, with a mind quite blank however, as far as she was concerned. He had something else to think about.

He had spotted his association with the name Rhoda. For the past week some one had been advertising every day in the personal column of the News for the address of Rhoda McFarland. It was part of Martin's daily routine to read the personal column pretty carefully. Every now and then he found the beginning of a story in it. He had especially noted these advertisements for Rhoda McFarland because of a minor oddity about them. Usually the advertisers for the addresses of missing persons were firms of attorneys who offered their own names and addresses in full. But these had all been blind ads. The answer was invited to communicate his facts to "X-203" or something of the sort, care of the Daily News.

Today the form of the ad had changed. Rhoda McFarland, it had said, would learn something to her advantage by communicating with "X-203": Rhoda McFarland, though; not Rhoda White.

DOCTOR'S Prescription gives Bowels Real Help

Train your bowels to be regular; to move at the same time every day; to be so thorough that they get rid of all the waste. Syrup Pepsin—a doctor's prescription—will help you do this.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the sensible thing to take whenever you are headachy, bilious, half-sick from constipation. When you have no appetite, and a bad taste or bad breath shows you're full of poisonous matter or sour bile.

Dr. Caldwell studied bowel troubles for 47 years. His prescription always works quickly, thoroughly; can never do you any harm. It just cleans you out and sweetens the whole digestive tract. It gives these overworked bowels the help they need.

Take some Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin today, and see how fine you feel tomorrow—and for days to come. Give it to the kiddies when they're sickly or feverish; they'll like the taste! Your druggist has big bottles of it, all ready for use.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN A Doctor's Family Laxative

To Celebrate Virgil's Birth Among the preparations being made at Mantua, Italy, to celebrate the two thousandth anniversary of Virgil's birth is the development of a 35-acre tract, which is to be planted with more than 200 trees and plants mentioned in his poems. The space will be made to appear as much as possible like a Roman garden of the first century before Christ. As far back as the Napoleonic wars a similar project was planned, but lack of funds prevented its completion. The Virgilian wood will be dedicated in October.

Brightest

From three to twelve. That's the most important period in a child's growth. And that's the time many are retarded physically and mentally by energy-sapping constipation.

Watch your child, mother! At the first sign of bad breath, coated tongue, headache, biliousness, lack of energy or appetite, give California Fig Syrup.

This pure vegetable product will cleanse the little bowels without discomfort. It tones and strengthens weak stomach and bowels. In colds or children's diseases, employ its gentle aid to keep the system free from germs and waste.

Mothers everywhere are eager to tell how it helps children. Mrs. H. Mayer, 1737 Marburg St., Dallas, Texas, says: "I have used California Fig Syrup with Danny all his life in colds, biliousness, constipation, upsets, or children's ailments. It keeps him the brightest, happiest six-year-old I know."

Emphasize the name California when buying, to get the genuine.

Found There Was Limit to Customers' Patience.

At the time of the rush into the Palmer gold field, in northern Queensland, Australia, justice was rough but fair, observes the Dunedin (N. Z.) Star, in quoting an incident of the day.

The one storekeeper there, when stocking, took up a barrel of horse-shoe nails, thinking that they would readily sell to diggers who, in loading their pack horses, eliminated to the last ounce everything of weight that was not eatable. As it chanced, however, there was no demand for the nails. Every man who had a horse carried a few in his pocket. After the nails had been on his hands for a while he struck the brilliant idea that he would force sales by refusing to sell any flour or sugar or rice unless the buyer also purchased an equal weight of nails.

For a time the men grumbled, but bought and, not needing the nails, put them back in the barrel, so that they became to the storekeeper what the cruise was to the widow. Eventually the winds got wind and a big rumour ensued. About a hundred diggers assembled and took charge of the store. They weighed the nails, paid full price, chucked them into the creek, and on a signboard made of casement wood they notified all and sundry: "No more nails."

Antlers Grew Quickly. Deer's antlers are shed completely every year, between January and March. It takes about four months, or until about August, for the new ones to reach full growth. When the antlers are dropped, the roots or pedicles exposed are rough disks of bone belonging to the frontal bone of the skull. In a week or so this is covered by the dark brown skin of the head and then the new antlers begin to develop. The material of which they are composed is similar to that which forms hair. The antlers of a healthy vigorous elk or caribou will grow at the rate of one-third of an inch per day, or more, once they are fairly started.

Not So Dense. Everybody in the village had vainly searched for a lost cow. Finally the town miller went out alone and brought her in. "Why," he explained, "I just thought of I was a cow where I'd go, and I went there and there she was."—American Magazines.

Forest Fires

There are three classes of forest fire: Superficial fire, burns leaves of the trees and is not necessarily dangerous; crown fire, burns through the branches and kills them and is very dangerous and disastrous; deep ground fire, burns off the roots deep under the trees and makes a very dangerous fire. In burning land the fire consumes all the rotting leaves and destroys the soil, leaving the mineral element.

Radicals in Senate Keep Up Fight Against Drought Relief Compromise—Schall Attacks Attorney General Mitchell.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

RADICALS in the senate gave up hope of defeating the compromise on drought relief appropriations which was outlined a week ago, for Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader, and many others prominent in his party endorsed it as the best that could be obtained. Both Robinson and Caraway, who had been so critical of the administration's policy, changed their stand, defended President Hoover, expressed their confidence in Secretary of Agriculture Hyde and admitted that the work of the Red Cross in the drought area had improved until it was now adequate to the situation, Robinson said he was not trying to save his face, but honestly believed that the compromise agreement would do what was necessary.

Secretary Hyde was asked to tell the senate whether in his opinion money obtained by farmers under the compromise plan could be used to buy food. His reply was yes.

La Follette and Blaine of Wisconsin, Norris of Nebraska and other insurgents continued to denounce the compromise as humiliating, wicked, shameful and altogether wrong. Young Bob denounced the Democrats for cooperating with the administration, and asserted that "if we accept this surrender it means that we do nothing for the 22,000,000 affected by unemployment."

While he was speaking a committee of fifteen that was said to represent the workers' unemployment insurance delegation tried to get into the house of representatives with a big petition, demanding that Speaker Longworth recess the house for twenty minutes so they might appear on the floor and state their case. The speaker refused this request and would not receive the committee in his office, so the petition was left with his secretary and the importunate visitors were gently pushed out of the Capitol by a bunch of policemen. The unemployed workers were said to be led by communists, and the Washington police were out in force to prevent a Red invasion. This aroused the wrath of Senator Blaine, who declared that "the menace exists only in the minds of those who are protecting the very system that may some day create a real menace of this sort."

In Minneapolis, Boston, New York, Sacramento and other cities there were communist demonstrations in behalf of relief for the unemployed, in some instances involving conflicts with the police.

T. D. SCHALL, the "blind" radical Republican senator from Minnesota, renews his request that he cease recommending Ernest Michel of Minneapolis for a federal judgeship and submit a list of "fit" candidates. He puts all the blame for the situation on Attorney General Mitchell, declaring that the latter's "corporation-public utility connections" have warped his judgment. Schall isn't letting the affair rest. He sent a letter calling to the attention of the President "some of the former corporation connections of his attorney general," and also told the senate all about these.

"As a Republican and a senator," Schall wrote, "let me implore you, Mr. President, not to close your eyes to the lessons of recent political history. Taft wrecked his administration by trusting Ballinger; Harding wrecked his by trusting Fall, Daugherty and others of lesser notoriety like Theodore Bush Holland."

"Are you going to wreck yours by further trusting your attorney general? The answer is for you to make; but millions of loyal Republicans throughout the land are hoping and praying for a negative answer."

WELL, the Smedley Butler incident is closed. The very marine general has expressed in writing his regret for his animadversions on Premier Mussolini, Secretary of the Navy Adams has formally reprimanded him for his indiscretion, and the order for the general's court-martial trial has been revoked. The public is disappointed for it had expected some spicy reading.

Information obtained at Washington in that Ambassador de Marlino of Italy called on Secretary of State Hineson and discussed the Butler case in such a way that it was easy to infer that his government would prefer that Italy-American relations should not be imperiled through a presentation of the circumstances surrounding the alleged hit-and-run incident in a possibly unscrupulous way. It was apparent that Mussolini would be glad if the matter were dropped entirely, so Mr.

Stimson suggested to Mr. Adams that a compromise might be effected, with the result stated above.

Premier Mussolini was quoted as saying in Rome: "I have already forgotten the whole matter, except the kind touch of friendship the American government showed towards Italy and me."

WHEN the senate passed the independent offices appropriation bill the federal farm board was given a new lease of life and assured that it could continue its operations for another year. The measure carried the final $100,000,000 of the board's authorized $500,000,000 revolving loan fund. The senators, desiring to avoid blame if the board fails to accomplish results, rejected an amendment offered by Senator Black of Alabama which would have forbidden the use of any of the hundred millions for trading in futures on grain or cotton exchanges.

Southern senators were particularly exercised over the use of farm board funds by cotton co-operatives in trading in futures. By permitting its funds to be used in this way it was asserted that the board is encouraging speculation.

Leo S. Rover

EMBARRASSING, to say the least, is the position in which Leo S. Rover, district attorney of the District of Columbia, finds himself. When the senate rescinded its approval of the appointment of George Otis Smith as a member of the federal power board and then rejected the nomination, it also adopted a resolution ordering Mr. Rover to institute court proceedings to oust Mr. Smith from the board. He has no choice but to obey these instructions. However, both President Hoover and Attorney General Williams Mitchell hold that Mr. Smith's appointment was legal and that the former approval of it by the senate must stand, wherefore apparently it is up to Mr. Rover to attempt to prove that his superiors are wrong in their contention.

BISHOP CANNON of the Methodist Church South was freed from the charges made against him, the elders deciding they did not have sufficient merit to warrant putting the bishop on trial. But this didn't end the churchman's troubles, for Senator Nye's campaign fund committee, with enlarged powers, called on him to explain his expenditures of anti-Smith funds in the campaign of 1928.

Disclosure in the house of the large expenses incurred by the Nye committee in its travels about the country has greatly irked the North Dakota senator. This expense account has been introduced into the Congressional Record, and Nye justly fears it will be a potent weapon in the hands of his foes when he comes up for re-election.

FRIENDS and admirers of Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland are very busy these days urging him as the Democratic standard bearer of 1932. They have formed the Ritchie-for-President league and its general secretary, Lawrence Lockwood of Baltimore, Gov. Ritchie says it will have branches in forty-eight states within three months. Already these branches number thirteen, organizations in Michigan, Massachusetts, Illinois and Georgia having been formed in the last two weeks. The national president of the Ritchie league is Edward A. Gabler of Philadelphia, and the leader in New York is William A. Powell. As is of course well known, Governor Ritchie is a wet.

The entire Maryland Democracy is back of Governor Ritchie, the only man in the history of Maryland who has been elected four times to the governor's chair. From reports received, the Ritchie leaguers believe that Ritchie already is regarded as a serious contender for the presidential nomination to be made by the Democratic party next year. The plan to formulate a national organization got under way about two months ago. Secretary Lockwood said a quiet campaign was now being conducted on the Pacific coast and among midwest states.

BY a vote of 81 to 55 the lower house of the Illinois assembly passed an act wiping out the state prohibition law and the search and seizure act that complements it. The repealers had 14 more votes than were necessary. The measure goes to the senate, which is in recess until February 17, and some of the blowers were given warning that unless prompt action was taken by the upper house there might be a filibuster on appropriation bills.

The Wisconsin senate adopted three resolutions asking congress to relieve the county from prohibition. One urges a national prohibition referendum, the second asks modification of the Volstead act to permit the manufacture of light wines and beer, and the third calls for immediate repeal or modification of the Eighteenth amendment. Concurrence of the lower house in these resolutions was considered certain.

King Alfonso

DEFYING the wishes of the monarchy and disregarding all threats, King Alfonso has restored part of the abrogated constitutional rights of the Spaniards and called parliamentary elections for March 1, ending the dictatorship that has been in existence about seven years. The royal decree restores during the election period freedom of speech, freedom of writing, freedom of lawful assembly and of political and religious organization. It says the government has done everything possible to guarantee honest elections and that these should have the full support of the nation.

But, say the Madrid correspondents, many politicians do not believe in the sincerity of the government and many more will not participate in the elections because of their wrath against the king. Socialists representing the vast majority of labor, Republicans, who command the support of fully 90 per cent of the students; monarchist enemies of Alfonso XIII, who, under the guidance of Sanchez Guerra, are demanding a constituent assembly, stand fast in their refusal to go to the polls.

The opening of the electoral period finds the country in a state of extreme nervousness. Alarming posters of revolutionary and counter-revolutionary plots appear everywhere.

IF THE naval appropriations bill reported favorably to the house becomes law, the naval establishment will be considerably reduced. The measure carries $44,000,000, which is more than $30,000,000 below the expenditures allowed for the current year. It provides for fewer ships in commission, reduces the enlisted personnel of both the navy and the marine corps, diminishes funds for new warships and decreases the size of the Naval Academy at Annapolis. Officer strength is maintained at the same level.

There is now before congress a warship authorization bill carrying $74,000,000, which provides for the construction of one cruiser, four submarines and one aircraft carrier. Chairman Fred A. Britten of Illinois, of the naval affairs committee announced efforts would be made to have the house enact this measure, and it also will be pushed in the senate later. It is favored by President Hoover.

WITHOUT a negative vote the senate passed the Kendall bill, already passed by the house, providing for a 44-hour week in the postal service. The measure was backed by the National Federation of Post Office Clerks and opposed by Postmaster General Brown.

WHILE Paul Bogdanov, head of the Amtorg Trading corporation, was denying to Chicago business men that Russia was dumping wheat on central European markets, dispatches came from Vienna telling how Russia's commercial representative there, operating from his seat on the Vienna stock exchange, was offering Soviet wheat at prices as much as 25 per cent under those quoted by competitors. It was understood in the Austrian capital that the Soviet government was planning to ship wheat from Russian Black sea ports up the Danube river to compete with grain from Romania, Yugoslavia and Hungary in the markets of central Europe. Yugoslavia already has taken steps to combat this move, a decree being promulgated doubling the duty on imported wheat, flour and corn.

Rumors of political turmoil in Russia that might lead to a revolution caused the price of wheat on the Chicago board of trade to jump 4 cents a bushel to the highest price quoted there since last July.

LORD IRWIN, who is still viceroy of India, seems to have spilled the beans in the dispute with the Nationalists, Mahatma Gandhi who was a rather a conciliatory mood, wrote Lord Irwin asking an investigation of what he termed gross cruelty and repression by police in subduing those engaged in the liberation movement. The reply of the viceroy is described as "cold and coldly official," and the members of the working committee of the National Congress professed to see in it no evidence that the government really desires to make peace with the Nationalists except on its own terms. They feel there is no longer hope for the acceptance of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's proposal for a "four home rule for India. The Bengal legislative council approved the MacDonald plan.

Lesson for March 1 JESUS SENDING FORTH MISSIONARIES

GOLDEN TEXT—Therefore said he unto them, the harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth laborers into his harvest.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 10:1-23.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Helpers.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Trying Out His Disciples.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Helpers of Jesus.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Our Missionary Task.

The sending forth of the seventy was for a special time and purpose. The missionary enterprise today has much in common with that of that day, but there are certain essential differences which should be recognized.

1. The Seventy Sent Forth (vv. 1, 2).
1. Appointed by the Lord (v. 1). They went forth not merely because of an inner urge but because of personal and direct appointment. Only those should go forth as missionaries who are appointed by the Lord.
2. Sent two by two (v. 1). The purpose of this was that they might mutually help, counsel, and support each other.
3. The reason for their appointment (v. 2). It was the greatness of the harvest, and the fewness of the laborers.
4. The force back of missions (v. 2). The disciples were instructed to pray the Lord of the harvest to send forth laborers. Prayer indited by the Holy Spirit has been back of every missionary enterprise.

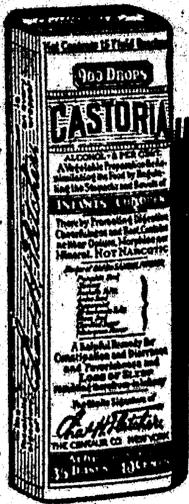

II. The Seventy Instructed (vv. 3-10)

1. As to the source of their commission (v. 3). "I send you." Everything depends upon the authority of the commission. No missionary should go forth without the consciousness of being sent by the Lord.
2. As to the dangers confronting them (v. 3). Missionaries thrust forth by the Lord will be exposed to deadly peril.
3. As to their support (v. 4). Being sent forth by the Lord, they were to look to him to provide for their need.
4. As to the speed of their mission (v. 4). So urgent was the need of the speedy evangelization of the Jewish territory that the distractions of social intercourse were to be omitted.
5. As to behavior in homes where received (vv. 5, 6).
- a. Offer the peace of the gospel (vv. 5, 6). This is to be done regardless as to whether it will be received or not. There is a reflex blessing in preaching the gospel.
- b. Do not shift quarters (vv. 7, 8). Missionaries should remain in the home where they have been received, content with what is given them. They should not demand better food and more comfortable quarters than are commonly provided.
- c. Heal the sick (v. 9). These disciples were given power to heal the sick. The ministers of Christ should seek to give relief to those in distress and use every opportunity to proclaim the gospel message.
6. The awful fate of those who reject Christ's message (vv. 10-16). Their case is more hopeless than that of Sodom. Those who reject Christ's messengers reject Christ and reject the Heavenly Father who sent him.

III. The Return of the Seventy (vv. 17-24)

1. Their report (v. 17). They were highly elated. They found that they could not only heal the sick, but cast out demons also. It is easy even in Christian service to be spoiled by our successes.
2. Jesus' answer (vv. 18-24). (a) He told them that it was no surprise to him (vv. 18 and 19). With prophetic eye, he saw their success as indicating that time when the price of this world would be overthrown (John 12:31). By virtue of his mighty triumph over Satan, he assured them that they need have no fear of what should befall them. (b) Real cause for rejoicing (v. 20). He promptly rebuked them, telling them that their chief joy should be because of their heavenly relation, not because of these miraculous gifts. (c) Jesus' exultation (vv. 21, 22). The consciousness that soon the victory would be won because God had committed all things unto him and that only as men received him could they know the Father caused him to rejoice in what was being accomplished. (d) Congratulates the disciples (vv. 23, 24). He assured them that they were sharing privileges which had been denied to many of the prophets and kings.

Quick COMFORT for fretful upset children

ALL children are subject to little upsets. They come at unexpected times. They seem twice as serious in the dead of night. But there's one form of comfort on which a mother can always rely: good old Castoria. This pure vegetable preparation can't harm the tiniest infant. Yet mild as it is, it soothes a restless, fretful baby like nothing else. Its quick relief soon sees the youngster comfortable once more, back to sleep. Even an attack of colic, or diarrhea, yields to the soothing influence of Castoria.

Keep Castoria in mind, and keep a bottle in the house—always. Give it to any child whose tongue is coated, or whose breath is bad. Continue with Castoria until the child is grown!

Odd Modes of Dressing

Woman's Crown of Glory

For centuries, the hair seems to have been covered. The Egyptians wore wigs and headresses made in the shape of birds with beaks projecting over the face, and only a few black curls escaping. Greek women parted their hair in the middle and brought it down each side of the face and over the ears, catching it up in a loose coil at the back of the neck, holding it in place with a skewer of gold; hands of ribbon were bound about the head to hold the hair across the forehead. The Roman matron wore an elaborate arrangement of curls, sometimes close to the head and often piled high on top, with jeweled coronets and pins to keep the coiffure in place. Also; these long pins were sometimes used in anger to punish the slave who was responsible for blunders.

Having worn the hair exposed for a while, a change was necessary and chin cloths, wimples and the hennin were used to cover the hair entirely. By the beginning of the Fifteenth century, headresses had become so fantastic as to appear ridiculous, the women seeming to vie with each other to make them as grotesque as possible; they also shaved the hair at the back of the neck and plucked their eyebrows. (Ditto, 1030.) The clergy waned, and laws were made, and finally the hair was brought low and again covered with velvet headresses and graceful turbans ornamented with network of pearls. With the next turn of the wheel of fashion, the hair was worn longer and curled, held up with real wire hairpins of the banded kind said to have been invented by the English in 1545. Two centuries later, the worst came in the form of coil tures so high that the hairdresser had to finish them from the top of a step ladder and one knows how many hairpins he must have used.

How to Escape FLU

1. Avoid so far as possible the places where flu germs are most likely to be spread; overcrowded cars and public meeting places; overheated, stuffy rooms.
2. Be careful of close contact with others and beware of all coughers and sneezers; breathe through the nose, get fresh air, but avoid drafts or chilling.
3. Get lots of rest. Eat plenty of citrus fruits. Keep the bowels open. Take extra precaution to keep in good physical condition, so your system will have high resistance against germs.
4. Above all, avoid catching colds. They lower your resistance to the flu germ. Ward them off. At the first sign of any cold, take Bayer Aspirin and remain indoors if possible until your cold is gone. If you have a sore throat, dissolve some Bayer Aspirin tablets in water and gargle; this will relieve the soreness and reduce the inflammation.
5. If you have any reason to suspect even a touch of flu, call your doctor at once.

EDITORIAL COLUMN

Lookout!

Under the above head, the Magdalena News ran an article last week in explanation of the fact that it had been victimized by a certain so-called Pennsylvania hosiery firm, offering three pairs of ladies' silk hosiery, postage paid, for $1.00, but we will let the News tell its story in the following which we clipped from that paper.

"The News, last week, inserted an advertisement of what purported to be a silk mill in Pennsylvania, offering hosiery at a very low figure. The News has cancelled this advertising now, because the paper is not satisfied of the reliability of the advertiser."

"It is hoped that no one has sent any money to this concern. If they have, they may get their stockings or they may not; we do not know. Our advice is, to send them no money. Reports on this concern are very vague and entirely unsatisfactory."

We wish to say that we also had the same ad, but refused to run it, because in the first place, we couldn't see how a firm could make such an extraordinary offer and stand by it. Again, we deemed it unjust to the best interests of our home merchants who are selling the best of silk hosiery at remarkably low prices. The money spent in a distant state would not do any one of our home merchants the least bit of good.

Again, we had no authentic information as to the reliability of the so-called firm, and as the Magdalena News puts it, we had no assurance that the orders would be filled after they were placed, hence, the absence of ad in the Outlook. We have noticed it in several of our exchanges and perhaps they thought the Outlook was ignored in the service—but we beg to assure them that they were mistaken.

We hope none of our people were misled, if they placed orders, — the best plan would be to be assured of the reliability of any concern which makes such extraordinary offers before buying away from home. Buy where the local merchant is responsible and backs up what he advertises.

FORD COMFORT

Every new Ford is equipped with four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers

ONE of the fine things about driving the new Ford is the way it takes you over the miles without strain or fatigue. No matter how long the trip, you know it will bring you safely, quickly, comfortably to the journey's end.

The seats are generously wide, deeply cushioned and carefully designed to conform to the curves of the body. Every new Ford has specially designed springs and four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers. These work both ways — up and down. They absorb the force of road shocks and also provide a cushion against the rebound of the springs.

Other features that make the new Ford a value far above the price are the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, silent, fully enclosed four-wheel brakes, more than twenty ball and roller bearings, extensive use of fine steel forgings, aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves, torque-tube drive, Rustless Steel and unusual accuracy in manufacturing.

In addition, you save many dollars because of the low first cost of the new Ford, low cost of operation and up-keep, and low yearly depreciation.

LOW PRICES OF FORD CARS
$430 to $630

V. B. May, Register, plus freight and delivery. Bumpers and spare tire extra at small cost. You can buy a Ford for a small down payment on a convenient financing plan. See your Ford dealer for details.

Scenes and Persons in the Current News

Members of the exclusive Congressional club of Washington sewing garments to be distributed by the Red Cross to drought sufferers. 2—Capt. Malcolm Campbell of England climbing out of the Bluebird II in which he set a world record of 245.73 miles an hour at Daytona Beach, Fla. 3—Admiral J. V. Chase, commander in chief of the combined United States fleets, who is directing the war maneuvers in Panama waters.

Folding Plane Designed for Submarines to Carry

This is the monoplane designed by Grover Loening and tested at the Curtiss airport, New York, by navy officials. It is so small that it can be folded up and carried in an eight-foot tube in a submarine. Its wing spread is 38 feet and it has a cruising speed of 100 miles an hour. It can be assembled or dismantled in three minutes.

Getting Rid of the Undesirables

Rounded up by immigration authorities, these aliens are some of a large group being put on board a ferry boat at New York for shipment to Ellis Island, where they are held in detention pens until shipped back to their homelands. For one reason or another they are all considered "undesirable."

Home Offered for Vice Presidents

This is the handsome home in Washington offered to the government by Mrs. John B. Henderson as a permanent home for the vice president and his successors. It is valued at more than $200,000.

YOUNGEST GENERAL

Lieut. Col. Thomas F. Rilea of the Oregon National Guard was appointed a brigadier-general of the line in the United States army by President Hoover, and thereby became the youngest general in this country, being only thirty-three years old.

ADOPTED BY KEMAL

Kemal Pasha, president of Turkey, remembering the days when he guarded sheep in the mountains of his country, recently adopted this young and friendly shepherd boy whom he has found that the road has been improved as a federal aid project, and that there will be sufficient money available for the work.

Southwest News Items

In order to prevent a possible epidemic of cerebro spinal meningitis, city schools and motion picture houses were recently closed in Flagstaff, Ariz. The precautionary measure was taken after Minnie Alton, 14 years old, a high school student, was stricken with meningitis.

More than two-thirds of the poultry hatching stock in New Mexico is accredited. This is a result of the work inaugurated three years ago by the New Mexico Poultry Association, which was organized at that time to improve conditions of the industry throughout the state.

Three Phoenix men were made defendants in a suit filed in Federal Court in Santa Fe, N. M., by R. E. Comans, also of Phoenix, seeking $20,000 for injuries alleged suffered in an accident twenty-two miles from Winslow, Ariz. They are C. D. Watkins, C. C. Ellis and Otella Ellis.

The Arizona Senate unanimously passed the joint memorial to Congress, asking immediate cashing, at face value, of World War veterans' compensation certificates, introduced in the House by McQuillan of Navajo and Rosenbaum of Gila. It previously passed the House with one dissenting vote.

E. L. O'Malley, president of the Phoenix Baseball Club, said in Phoenix a few days ago, Louis Gulsto would pilot the Senators in the 1931 race for the state league title. Gulsto, 1930 manager, O'Malley said, will report in Phoenix about April 1. He is at present coaching baseball at St. Mary's College.

Sugar beets have proved a profitable crop in the vicinity of Las Vegas, N. M., where they have been grown for the fourth year, and at several points in northern New Mexico. More than 250 acres were grown in San Miguel county and it is expected that the acreage will exceed 600 acres for the coming season.

New Mexico was one of the seven states, including the District of Columbia, in which no bank failures were reported during 1930. State Bank Examiner Lawrence Tamme stated in Santa Fe. The states in which no failures were reported were Maine, Rhode Island, Wyoming, New Mexico, Nevada and the District of Columbia.

Nearly dead from loss of blood, Samuel M. Johnson, World War veteran of Parks, Ariz., was found in the Bloody Basin country, near Prescott, Ariz., where he had been trapping. His right arm was badly shattered when his gun accidentally discharged. He was brought to the government hospital at Whipple, where amputation was necessary.

Cadet Joseph B. Donnelly, whose plane crashed thirty-five miles southwest of Roswell, was found by Allen Doyle, rancher, twenty miles from the wrecked plane. The plane crashed when the motor stalled as Donnelly attempted to make a landing. As he neared the ground, the wind direction shifted and he landed with his tail in the wind. The plane turned over and was demolished. Donnelly suffered only a slight bruise under his right eye.

The governors of California and Arizona, for the first time in the history of Arizona as a state, clasped hands on Arizona soil at Phoenix recently, and exchanged friendly greetings. James Rolph, Jr., of California, broke bread with George W. P. Hunt, seven-times chief executive of Arizona, and declared "I want to be friendly—if for no other reason than to shake your hand and say 'hello, governor!'" "If there have been misunderstandings in the past, Rolph assured the Arizona veteran, "I'll change all that. I hope you'll pay us a return visit."

More than 400 delegates attended the annual convention of the Northern New Mexico Teachers' Association, held in Raton. Speakers included Dr. W. D. Armentrout, director of instruction at Colorado State Teachers College, Greeley; Dr. J. E. Zimmerman, president of the University of New Mexico; Dr. A. O. Bowden, president of the New Mexico State Teachers College; Frank Caroon, president of the State Normal University; Mrs. Georgia Lusk, state superintendent of schools, and Raymond J. Huff, president of the State Teachers' Association.

Progress is being rapidly made in sinking the elevator shaft at Carlsbad caverns, near Carlsbad, N. M., which is being rushed to completion this spring to house the longest single lift elevator in the world into the largest and most spectacular cave of its kind. The construction work is a most interesting engineering feat, unique in the fact the digging of the shaft is being done from the bottom up and from the top down at the same time, the workmen to meet somewhere near midway when the shaft is completed. The hole is about 1816 feet to accommodate two elevator cars each a single lift of 740 feet from the big room of the cavern to the surface.

M. Daugherty, Miss Lillian Bean and Dr. C. M. Stanfill were re-elected to serve as members of the Tucuman, N. M., school board.

Addition of the thirty-three miles of roadway to complete the cavern highway between Carlsbad and the Carlsbad caverns, to the emergency highway program has been ordered by Governor Arthur Seligman of New Mexico. Governor Seligman said he has found that the road has been improved as a federal aid project, and that there will be sufficient money available for the work.

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

Dr. William J. Mayo
The surgeons were getting ready to operate. The doctor administering an anesthetic to the patient felt faint. A thirteen-year-old boy was in the operating room. He stepped boldly to the front, took the place of the sick physician, and administered the anesthetic under the directions of the operating surgeon. The boy was William J. Mayo, later to become world famous as a surgeon.

Matters of medicine and surgery were familiar to the youngster even at the age of thirteen. His father, was Dr. William H. Mayo, one of the best surgeons in the West. His ancestors had been prominent in the profession for generations in England, from which his father came to this country in 1845.

Young Mayo had been brought up in the world of curing the ill of mankind. It wasn't unnatural that he was able, under the circumstances, to serve as an assistant at an operation when he was only thirteen. His first patient recovered. Since then he has cured thousands by the skill of his surgery.

The youngster had early ambitions to be a stagecoach driver. He was born in Le Seur, Minn., in 1861, but his father moved to Rochester, in the same state, when William was two years old. Minnesota was in the Wild West of those days. There were few highways running across the rolling prairies. Indians roamed the plains. Many of the pioneers lived in crude sod huts.

Stagecoach drivers were heroes to the boys in Rochester. They were rough characters, but the glamor of adventure hung over them in the eyes of young Will and his playmates. They dashed into the town, pulling up-foam-flecked horses with a flourish that was highly impressive in juvenile eyes. They were a link with the great world outside the little prairie settlement.

But like most of us, who in our youth dream of becoming firemen, policemen, engineers, cowboys or stagecoach drivers—young Mayo's ambition was soon directed into other channels. His father's practice covered much of the southern part of the state. The boy often accompanied him on visits to patients far out on the lonely prairie.

The youngster saw Indians living in wigwams while on such trips. He held the horses when his father made calls in the sod huts of the homesteaders, occasionally assisting in the setting of a broken limb. He witnessed suffering and fortitude.

His environment tended to direct him toward the study of medicine. He made up his mind when he was in high school to follow in the footsteps of his father and so many of his ancestors. After being graduated from the high school in Rochester he attended Niles academy. From there he went to the University of Michigan. He was graduated in medicine in 1883.

He had hardly returned to the old-fashioned home, which his father had built in Rochester and in which he spent his boyhood, than he had an opportunity to show the benefits of his training. A tornado, one of those wind storms so dreaded in the flat prairie country, struck Rochester and wrecked part of the village.

His father turned his home into a hospital. The elder Mayo, the newly made Dr. William Mayo and his brother, Charles H. Mayo, then a medical student, treated the injured. The sons assisted their father in several emergency operations.

Dr. William J. Mayo made an excellent record in college. So did his brother. Both learned medicine as they grew up. Doctor Will worked in a drug store during his vacations. Doctor Charles did likewise. Furthermore they had the direct benefit of the deep knowledge and wide experience of their father.

They had a good microscope when they were in high school. Their father bought it specially for them and taught them its use. They studied with it many winter nights when a blizzard roared outside the comfortable home of the Mayos. Such training and advantages were most helpful when it came time for them to take up seriously the study of their chosen profession.

The first real practical experience Dr. William J. Mayo had as a practicing physician in Rochester indirectly brought about the establishment of the world famous Mayo clinic. Rochester was without a hospital. The need for such an institution was emphasized after the tornado had left death and suffering in its wake.

The Sisters of St. Francis, who had served as nurses for the Mayos when they were administering to the needs of the tornado victims, agreed to help build a hospital if the Mayos would serve as physicians and surgeons. Doctor Will's father donated the land. The brothers then began their work together. Out of that early association has grown their own world-known institution for the relief of suffering humanity.

STOMACH UPSET, SOUR? THIS WILL COMFORT

Youthful Whistler
A whistling prodigy at the age of ten months is Ralph Emerson Hipple, of Harrisburg, Pa. The musical ability of the youngster was discovered by his mother when she investigated the source of the whistling she heard and found her son in his crib trilling dulcet tones through puckered lips. Since then he has practiced his music lesson daily without parental urging.

Don't neglect a COLD

DISTRESSING cold in chest or throat—that so often leads to something serious—generally responds to good old Musterole with the first application. Should be more effective if used once every hour for five hours. This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other helpful ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a scientific "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation, helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses.

Keep Musterole handy—jars and tubes. To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Important Vitamins in Low-Cost Foods

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

When neither the food supply nor the purse limits the selection of food, it is possible to afford so large a variety that the homemaker may choose somewhat at random within each of the food groups and be reasonably sure of meeting the food requirements of the family. When, as in the drought-affected regions, variety must be greatly curtailed because of food shortage and lack of ready cash, it is necessary to weigh with the utmost care the contributions made by each food material to the dietary. The subcommittee on nutrition, working under the direction of the national drought relief committee, which includes representatives of the co-operative extension service and the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture, has prepared a list of foods that for the money invested in them offer good or excellent returns, in terms of vitamins, protein, and minerals. This list is part of the material assembled to aid professional nutrition workers who are called on to advise families in the sections where one-sided diets are common.

The food groups mentioned by the committee are: Cereals, milk and cheese, eggs, lean meat and fish, fruits and vegetables, sugars, fats. Among the inexpensive protective foods listed, with a rough indication of what each furnishes to the diet, are included: Milk, eggs, lean muscle meat, liver, kidney, fish, shellfish, vegetables, including tomatoes, thin green leafy vegetables, potatoes, and certain root vegetables, dried peas and beans, fruits, whole-wheat products; wheat germ, rice polish, molasses, not highly refined; butter, cod liver oil, pure diastase yeast. These foods, many of which can be grown on the farm, are recommended in addition to the cereals, fats, and sweet foods on which too many families depend entirely.

AROUND THE HOUSE

Never beat a cake after folding in the egg whites.

A child's honest questions deserve honest answers.

Roll out pastry with light, quick strokes. A heavy hand has ruined many a good pie.

Keep overshoes and raincoats clean and in a cool dark place. Rubber deteriorates rapidly in heat and sunlight.

To loosen dirt and save time and wear in laundering dirty garments, wet them; rub soap on, roll them up, and soak them in a small quantity of water overnight.

After emptying a jar of fruit, wash and dry the jar, put the top on at once, and put the jar on a shelf reserved for the purpose. When canning season arrives next year much trouble in gathering and matching jars and covers will be saved.

Modern Kitchen Tools Are Necessary

No workman can do good work with poor tools, and many a housewife struggles needlessly with a balky egg beater, dull or broken knives, or inadequate cooking utensils. A housekeeper of ten years' standing was seen trying to turn fried eggs with a paring knife. When asked why she didn't use a pancake turner, said she'd never owned one. Check over the kitchen equipment and see if some of the dissatisfaction with "kitchen drudgery" may not be remedied by adding a few time and labor saving devices, or by replacing worn-out pieces.

Plaids Are in Fashion Limelight

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Women who make it a point to declare the new fashions are coming out in frocks of printed silks both the heavier and sheer weaves which play up plaided design in its every mood. In fact, all along the highways and byways which lead through the realm of smart patternings one encounters plaids in some form or another.

The versatility displayed in the new goes to prove that a decided innovation has taken place so far as the new patternings are concerned, in that the gay stripes, plaids and paisleys are a distinct departure from the usual florals which for so long a time have held the center of the stage.

The plaid silk which fashions the modish afternoon dress in the picture is chosenly conservative at the same time that it is decidedly modern in its technique. The wavy lines which so delicately and gracefully trace a plaid patterning are black against a pale blue background with tiny red dots scattered in pretty confusion throughout the entire design.

Black buttons effectively trim this frock and the color scheme is further stressed in that a black belt, black scarf and black gloves are worn with this costume.

Salsify or Oyster Plant as Winter Food

In the winter months salsify, or as it is often called, oyster plant, appears on our markets. Sometimes a homemaker finds when she has pared and cut her salsify it has turned dark. It is not altered in food value when this happens, but it is not slightly. To avoid difficulty, drop it into cold water as soon as it is cut, says the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture. Salsify is served in a white sauce more often than any other way, but it may also be dipped in flour and fried.

- 2 bunches salsify or 1 cup milk
- 1/2 cup butter
- 1/2 lb. melted butter
- 1/2 lb. flour
- 1/2 lb. chopped parsley

Wash the salsify, scrape, cut into small pieces and drop into cold water to prevent it from turning dark. Boil in an uncovered pan in a small quantity of water for 30 minutes, or until tender, and drain. Prepare a sauce of the fat, flour, milk, salt and pepper, pour this over the cooked salsify, reheat, and serve with the chopped parsley over the top.

Tasty Confection May Be Made of Pumpkin

A delightful confection may be made of 1-inch squares of pared pumpkin. To a pound of these pieces, three-quarters pound of sugar is added, and allowed to stand overnight. In the morning the sirup may be drained off and cooked until it coats the spoon, after which the pumpkin, one lemon, and a tablespoonful of preserved ginger are added, and boiled until the pumpkin is clear. The pumpkin should be simmered until the sirup is absorbed, and then lifted out and drained first on plates, then on a screen covered with cloth. When it is no longer sticky, it is rolled in granulated sugar and packed in glass jars.

Manners of Men

William of Wykeham wrote over the doors of New college, "Manners makyth man." . . . No citizenship can be good in which individuals are not willing to subordinate their own individualities to some extent for the advantage of others. . . . A race or a generation without any concern for good manners would almost certainly in like degree lack unselfishness.—From "Education and Life," by Ernest Martin Hopkins.

Evening Fairy Tale for the Children

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

The Fairy Queen took a trip with some of the other fairies to where the banana trees were growing.

The fairies were so tired from the trip that they fell asleep, but just as the Fairy Queen was about to go to sleep she noticed that the leaves of the banana trees all around were laughing, actually laughing.

"What are you laughing for?" asked the Fairy Queen.

"We're laughing because we're almost ripe. It's so jolly to be almost ripe."

"Well, of course, I don't know," said the Fairy Queen. "I've never been a fruit, so I don't know what it would be like to be ripe or unripe."

"Ah, but we have such a glorious time growing, and while we last, we are so happy," the banana trees said.

"Don't you last long?" asked the Fairy Queen. "Of course, I can understand that the bananas wouldn't last long if there were many people around as food of them as I am.

"I am devoted to bananas. Yes, you really might say that I was devoted to them."

"So are many of us in Fairyland, too, and, of course, in the world of people as well."

The banana leaves laughed again. They made such a lovely sound as they laughed.

It reminded the Fairy Queen of the sound of a gentle summer rain.

"Some of our cousins have traveled on boats," the banana tree said.

"Some have gone on trains, too."

"But tell me why you don't last very long?" the Fairy Queen asked.

"Because," said the leaves, "we are cut down when all our fruit has been taken."

"We are not nice any longer. We can never do the same work again, you see."

"But there are shoots that are taken from our roots. These are started off again, and they do the same work as we have done."

"Aren't you sad that you don't do the same work over again yourselves?" asked the Fairy Queen.

"No," said the leaves cheerfully, "it is enough for us to do our work well once.

"What Are You Laughing For?"

"That's all we want. That makes us very happy. We love the warm sun and we have had our reward for our work."

"We have grown beautiful and ripe. Ah, ha, ha, we're getting ripe now." The Fairy Queen's mouth watered

Spider's Valuable Secret

Vast engineering schemes at present unthought of would be possible if science could reveal the secret of the spider's web. If man could make ropes and cables with the approximate strength of a spider's web, suspension bridges could be thrown across on small cables, and, being light and easy to anchor, there would be no limit to their length.

Use of Chemicals to Remove Stains

Medicine Dropper Handy When Removing Stains With Chemicals.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

There are a few common chemicals which are necessary to remove stains, and these should be kept in every household. Some of them are poisonous, so don't put them in the family medicine cabinet or in the pantry. The chemicals most frequently needed are Javelle water, potassium permanganate, oxalic acid, ammonia water, and carbon tetrachloride. Keep these out of reach on a high shelf, together with a medium-sized bowl, a medicine dropper, a glass rod with rounded ends, several pads of cheesecloth or old linens, a small sponge, and sheets of white blotting paper, suggests the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture.

If the nature of a stain is not known and it does not appear to be greasy, spraying with a wet cloth may be effective. Try this on some part of the garment that will not show, unless you are sure the fabric will not water spot or lose its color. Chemicals should not be used until after water has been tried, except when the fabric is unsuitable for water treatment.

Potassium permanganate can be used in removing certain stains from all white fabrics except rayon. One or more repetitions of the treatment may be necessary in the case of persistent stains. Any pink or brown stain left by the permanganate is removed by applying hydrogen peroxide made very slightly acid, if not already so, with hydrochloric, acetic, oxalic, or tartaric acid. Oxalic acid in saturated solution, or lemon juice, may also be used on cotton, linen, or silk for removing potassium permanganate stains. Follow by thorough rinsing.

Potassium permanganate is suggested for taking out stains made by writing ink, leather, mildew, indelible pencil, perspiration, tea, tobacco, tomato vine, and turmeric, the yellow ingredient in curry powder.

The bottle in which oxalic acid is stored must be marked "Poison," and kept out of reach of children. To prepare a solution, dissolve as many crystals of the acid as possible in a pint of lukewarm water. Put into a bottle, stopper tightly, and use as needed. Apply to the stain with a medicine dropper or glass rod, and after allowing it to remain a few minutes, rinse thoroughly in clean water. Neutralize with a solution of ammonia.

Oxalic acid is mentioned in connection with removing some writing ink stains, from rust, medicines that contain metallic salts, and some forms of mildew. It is also used after treatment with permanganate, when the latter leaves a residual stain.

Recipes That Will Appeal to All

By NELLIE MAXWELL

For a delectable dessert that is not only beautiful to the eye, but satisfying to the palate, try:

Orange Cream.—Soak two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in one-quarter cupful of cold water and dissolve in one-half cupful of hot orange juice, adding one-half cupful of sugar. Fold in one and one-half cupfuls of whipped cream and one-half cupful of orange pulp cut fine. Serve with a fruit sirup.

Tapoca Cream.—Take one-third of a cupful of quick cooking tapoca, add one-half cupful of sugar, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt and one quart of milk. Cook in a double boiler (stirring often) for 15 minutes. Add one egg yolk slightly beaten, one teaspoonful of flavoring and cook for a minute or two, stirring vigorously. Remove from the fire and add the stiffly beaten whites of the egg. Chill and serve in glasses with crushed fruit.

Chocolate or caramel sauce or maple sirup with a few chopped nuts may serve for variety in sauces.

Fold whipped cream into the pudding and serve with orange sections or bits of pineapple.

Fold in chocolate sauce mixed with whipped cream. Canned fruit sauce, coconut, marshmallow sauce or canned fruits all make delectable sauces for the pudding.

Club Cookies.—Take one cupful of shortening, one cupful of sugar, one egg, one-half cupful of sour cream, one-half teaspoonful each of soda and cream of tartar and three cupfuls of pastry flour. Mix as usual and pat the dough out to two inches thick and chill overnight. Roll and cut into any desired shape. Bake in a moderate oven ten minutes.

Filling.—Take one cupful of stewed stoned prunes, one-half cupful of stewed apricots, three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, one-fourth cupful of sugar and one-half cupful of prune or apricot juice. Cook together, adding one tablespoonful each of butter. Cool before using.

Ancient Ophir

Ophir was a seaport or region from which the Hebrews in the time of Solomon obtained gold. The precise geographical situation has long been a subject of doubt and discussion. It was probably in India or perhaps southern Arabia; at any rate, it appears from scriptural mention of the place that it was accessible by water from the towns on the Red sea.

Don't Overdo It

Bacon Drippings Add Flavor to Food

Bacon drippings add flavor to every food that is cooked in them, or in which they are used. The drippings are especially good in sauces for meats and vegetables. When added to the dressing for fowl and other meats, a particularly rich flavor is produced.

DON'T Trifle WITH COLDS

Sluggish intestinal systems lower resistance to colds. Cleanse them with Feen-a-mint, the modern chewing gum laxative. Gentle, safe, non-habit-forming. More effective because you chew it.

FOR CONSTIPATION

Enormous Toll Taken

by Agricultural Pests

That the annual toll exacted from agriculture by insect pests is even greater than that taken by plant diseases was brought out by J. A. Hyslop, of the bureau of entomology of the Department of Agriculture. He placed the annual loss in the United States in excess of $2,000,000,000. "At least two-thirds of the loss occasioned by insects is preventable," he said.

Lee A. Strong, of the plant quarantine and control administration of the department, estimating the losses from plant diseases and insects, in round numbers, at $3,000,000,000 annually, said that "fully 80 per cent of the important pests responsible for this enormous loss are of foreign origin, practically all of them having been introduced prior to the passage of the plant quarantine act of 1912."

N. Y. Woman Lost 14 Pounds of Fat

One 85 Cent Bottle of Kruschen Salts Did It

"I am starting on my second bottle of Kruschen Salts and am real pleased with results. I take it for reducing and so far have lost 14 pounds and I think it is doing wonders for me. I do not feel so tired evenings when I get home from work."

A generous bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts 4 weeks costs but 85 cents at any drugstore in America—take one half teaspoon in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast—cut out pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—that will help Kruschen take off your fat. Before the bottle is empty, surplus fat is leaving you—indolence changes to activity—you'll feel younger—eyes will brighten—step grows spry. Millions know this—you ought to know it. Kruschen Salts is the ideal treatment for constipation, indigestion, headaches, nervousness and acidity. Take Kruschen every morning—it's the little daily dose that does it—if not joyfully satisfied after the first bottle—money back.—Adv.

Tortoise Grieves for Mate

Sleep finally assuaged the sorrow of a giant tortoise in the London zoo for its dead mate. For several weeks following the death of its companion the lumbering reptile constantly made the rounds of the tortoise house searching for her. There were other giant tortoises around him, but they were not his distinctive variety, and he wanted a friend. Then winter came and after eating a meal he turned his head to the wall and buried his troubles in sleep.

Senator Oliver M. Lee stopped over here Monday, on his return trip to Santa Fe from Alamogordo, where he spent Sunday with his family.

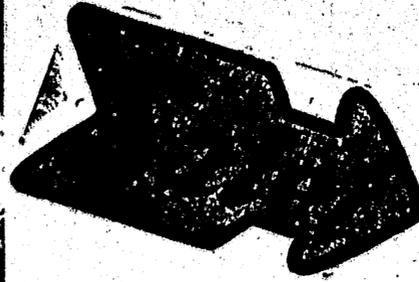

Methodist Church

"Great oaks from little acorns grow." But did the oak come from the acorn, or the acorn from the oak? Read the first chapter of Genesis and read any theory of evolution you can find, then be at church in Capitan next Sunday morning. Let's see if we can answer the question.

The Washington Birthday program at the Carrizozo church last Sunday was a success, 76 being present for the class period and more came in time for the program. The lads and lasses dressed as so many George and Martha Washingtons, and the songs, recitations and maneuvers of these youngsters were a treat, indeed. Many more good things are planned for the children and their parents during the year. Some of the pupils are to receive solid gold award pins for a regular year's attendance, soon.

Did God make man, or did man make God? Read the first chapter of Genesis; or Paine, Ingersol, Voltaire, or whatever you can find on the subject. Let us see what we know about it at church next Sunday night. Sunday School at 9:45 a. m.

LOOK OUT FOR ME

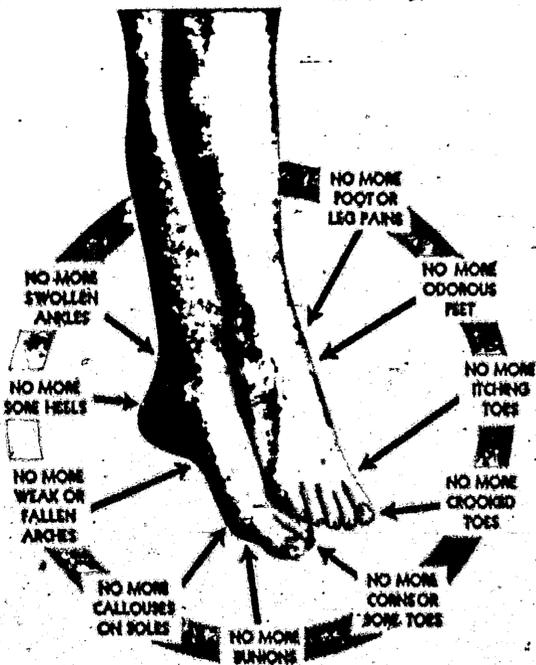

Mrs. C. E. Wright, once a resident of Carrizozo and who has been on a visit with friends on the coast, stopped over on her return trip to Tucumcari Tuesday, during the stay of No. 12, to see some of her old friends. The Wrights will move here in about two months.

SPECIAL DEMONSTRATION!

QUICK RELIEF from all FOOT Troubles!

At our Store by a Foot Comfort Expert from Chicago

Thursday, March 5th, 1931

On the above date a Foot Comfort Expert from the Chicago Staff of Dr. Wm. M. Scholl, famous Foot Specialist, will be here to demonstrate how easy it is to have comfortable feet. He will gladly tell you all about your feet; show you why they hurt; what to do to restore them to normal; how to give them proper care; what size and type shoe you should wear for comfort, etc.

No charge made for his services

Any Dr. Scholl Appliance or Remedy you may purchase on the recommendation of Dr. Scholl's Foot Comfort Expert is guaranteed to give you absolute satisfaction or money refunded.

REMEMBER THE DATE!

PHYSICIANS are invited to send or bring their foot-affected patients to this demonstration.

FREE

Each visitor to our store during this demonstration will receive a sample of Dr. Scholl's Ziru-pain, for Corns, Bunions and every ailment of the feet. The Foot Comfort Care.
