

ANCHO NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Lewis and children came in last week from Amarillo to visit the Curtis Weatherbee family.

Lee Simpson was a visitor at Alamogordo over the week-end.

Mrs. D. A. Putaturo is expected to arrive soon from Trinidad, Colo., to be the guest of Mrs. W. I. Silvers.

Cap Straley is in El Paso this week.

Archie MacArthur has returned to El Paso after spending a two months' vacation here.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Morris are home from Fort Worth, Texas.

A good crowd was present at church Sunday. The sermon was delivered by Rev. Jordan of Carrizozo.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Pruett, J. A. and Grover Pruett motored to Carrizozo Tuesday evening.

Several from here attended the ball game in Carrizozo between Corona and Tularosa.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Textor and children were here from Carrizozo last week, visiting Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Harkey, before returning to their home in El Paso. Mrs. Textor is a sister to Mr. Harkey.

R. C. Skinner Dies at Carlsbad

Tuesday morning about five o'clock, R. C. Skinner, beloved son of Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Skinner of this place, died at Carlsbad after a short illness. Mr. Skinner was afflicted with appendicitis in which an operation was necessary, but from the effects of the ether he developed pneumonia, which caused his death. His parents and brother Floy of Nogal, as mentioned in this paper last week, were at his bedside, the parents being present until the last.

The funeral was held at Carlsbad Wednesday with Rev. Guenther of the El Paso Nazarene church conducting the services and the remains interred in the Carlsbad cemetery alongside of those of his brother Lute, who preceded him to the great beyond two years ago. The services were attended by the many friends of the deceased from his home town of Malaga and also those from Carlsbad. The floral offerings were many and beautiful, being silent expressions of the love and esteem in which he was held by all who knew him.

Robert Conda Skinner was in every sense of the word, a model, Christian gentleman. It was not only his aim, but his life was a standing example of manliness, straightforwardness and square-dealing with those whom he came in contact; therefore, none knew Con Skinner but to love him. He was born and reared in this county, where the friends of his boyhood will be sad to hear of his passing. About four years ago he sold his home on the Nogal - Mesa and purchased a farm near Malaga, N. M., where he was successful in his endeavors, but his career ended at the noontide of life when skies seemed the brightest.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife; three sons and three daughters; his parents; two sisters, Mesdames Bowen Zumwalt and A. R. Duggar; two brothers, Floy and Roy Skinner, to all of whom the sympathy of this community is extended.

CORONA CLEANINGS

The string of cars attending the ball game at Carrizozo Sunday pulled more than 45 miles of mud on their return. Cars were in the ditch all along the way, but it didn't take the ball boys long to get them out and not a car was passed and left in the ditch. The last car got in about 12 o'clock.

Bythol Jolly spent the week-end with his parents. He is employed by the S. P. near Alamogordo.

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Prestridge and children spent the week-end at the Perkins home. They were accompanied by Miss Margaret Prestridge, who is vacationing here from her home at Cheyenne, Oklahoma.

Mrs. A. J. Atkinson has returned from a short visit with relatives in Roswell.

Allan Davidson made a trip to El Paso last week.

Mrs. Carsley Baker has returned to Fort Sumner after a short stay with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Willingham. Mr. Baker will remain here for several days yet.

Miss Dorothy Arnold has gone to El Paso for a visit. She will remain away during August, returning then to fill a position as teacher in the local schools.

Ben Roberts has gone to El Paso where he will undergo an operation. He will probably be gone two weeks.

E. B. Hall left this week for an indefinite stay in an El Paso hospital.

Raymond Kelley and a friend are here for a visit with the G. W. Greer family.

Miss Willie Day Standhardt of Roswell is here this week to visit friends and relatives.

Wm. Bagley's brother drove in Sunday from southern Texas for a brief stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Penix drove to Albuquerque last week. They were the guests of Mrs. Penix's brother, Harold Barre.

W. C. Monk has traded his Chevrolet truck for a Chevrolet coach.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Wallace announce the birth of a son, Arthur Ray, July 21st.

Mrs. Corbin Hester has as her guests this week, her sister, Mrs. Parker and two daughters of Rosebud, N. M.

J. E. Gates suffered a stroke of paralysis Monday afternoon, his condition considered as very critical.

W. S. Dishman is enjoying a visit from his mother and niece, who are here from their home near Amarillo.

Baron Auriemma was here for two days, talking to old acquaintances. While here, he raised $85 for the Salvation Army. He left Sunday for Carrizozo.

Archie Perkins left Tuesday for Hot Springs where he will be employed until the opening of the fall term of the Albuquerque "U" when he will return to resume his studies.

Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Van Scoyoc were called away by the serious illness of Mr. Van Scoyoc's mother. They left Corona at 8 o'clock one morning, arriving at Manhattan, Kansas, that night. The mother is somewhat improved at this time.

Mr. and Mrs. Clint Brooks were in from their ranch Tuesday and

Right About Face at the Fair

Tularosa Beats Corona

A large crowd composed of Corona, Tularosa and Carrizozo people witnessed the baseball tussle between the Corona and Tularosa teams last Sunday on the local diamond.

For the first five innings both sides played a hard-fought game. Tulle put one across the plate in their first time at bat and one more in the second inning, but Corona came back in the following frame and evened up the score 2 and 2. Tularosa forged ahead again in the 4th with two more tallies, but the Corona ballsters retaliated with three more in their time up and with this score standing 5 to 4 in Corona's favor, the Tularosa bats let out a bombardment in the 5th which netted them enough runs to put the game on ice and take it easy the rest of the way. The final score stood 14 to 6 in favor of Tularosa.

The umpiring job was divided between Meyer Barnett, Marshall St. John, Joe Chavez and a fourth man, whose name we failed to obtain.

Lightning Strikes School

During the last rainstorm, lightning struck one of the chimneys of the High School, tearing off a portion on the east side of the stack near the top. Another struck near the roof, both of the damages were about three feet in length.

This weakens the chimney so that it may be necessary to tear it down even with the roof in order to make it secure. As this is the concern of the insurance company, it will receive the proper attention before it falls and something more serious happens.

Mesdames Chas. Edwards and Robinson of Three Rivers were Carrizozo visitors Monday of this week. Thanks awfully for your cheerful call, ladies.

Bryce Ward was a visitor at Albuquerque Sunday and Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Shafer of Carrizozo were here Monday, visiting at Mrs. Alice Sultemeier's home.

Bill Johnson, Archie Perkins, Edna Atkinson, Willie Standhardt and Alice Sultemeier were in Vaughn Monday night, the boys attending lodge and the ladies visiting friends.

Mrs. Frank Sultemeier and sons have gone to Alamogordo to visit Mrs. Sultemeier's mother, Mrs. J. C. Richards and family.

"Gloom Chasers" Chase Gloom

The Carrizozo "Gloom Chasers" were determined that no gloom should remain in this neck of the desert last week, so they made a raid on Ancho last Friday night where their good, peppy music scattered all the gloom in that locality. A large crowd greeted them at Ancho and everybody had a good time, of course—How could they help it when all they had to do was to help themselves to the dancing with such excellent music?

Saturday night they put on one of the best attended dances had at Community Hall for many moons. If anybody who attended that dance possessed the least amount of gloom, it disappeared in double-quick time, after the music began. Ask anyone who attended and they will verify what we have said.

The organization is composed of the following young ladies and gentlemen: Raymond Lackland, trumpet; Mack Shaver and Lahoma Bigelow, saxophones; Dorothy Dozier, piano, and Tennis Bigelow, drums.

Mrs. Albert Ziegler entertained the Carrizozo Bridge Club at her home Monday afternoon.

G. S. Rockwell and son of Capitan were Carrizozo business visitors on Tuesday of this week.

Mrs. Lola S. Medina, daughter and sons returned Tuesday to their homes in Tucumcari after a week's visit with the Sat and Joe Chavez families.

Chas. Coplin of Ziegler Bros. Store spent Saturday in El Paso on a business mission.

Otto and Ernie Prahm were week-end visitors at El Paso.

Mrs. Florentino Lopez returned Tuesday from Los Angeles, where she enjoyed a week's visit with Tino's relatives and also with her sister, Mrs. Fred Lalone and family at Sierra Madre. Mrs. Vidaurri and Osorio, who accompanied her, remained in Los Angeles for a longer visit with their father, Frank Jauregui, sisters, Mrs. Louis Vidaurri, Miss Mary Jauregui, brother Encarnacion and his new bride.

Methodist Church

The Rev. J. O. Cox, Presiding Elder, will preach in Carrizozo next Sunday night at 8 o'clock and at Capitan Monday night. The pastor will preach in Capitan Sunday morning. Those who have heard Rev. Cox will want to hear him again. Come, bring your family and friends.

LOCAL MENTION

Mrs. Alice M. French, County School Superintendent, has been advised that the State Teachers' Examination in New Mexico History and Civics will be held in the office of the County School Superintendent on Saturday, August 29, at 10:30 a. m.

Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Gillespie left Saturday morning for Los Angeles, where they will visit relatives and friends for the remainder of the month.

BORN—Sunday morning, to Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Chavez, a girl. Mother and daughter are doing nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Brandon, son Claude and daughter Dolores came in last week from Putnam, Texas, and were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Branum for the week, leaving Monday for their home after a pleasant visit, during which time the Branums took them for a trip to our mountain resorts. Mrs. Brandon is a sister to Mr. Branum.

Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Shaw and little son Melbourne left Saturday for Mountainair, where they spent Sunday with Mr. Shaw's parents. Mr. Shaw returned to his duties at the City Garage Monday morning, while Mrs. Shaw will visit for a week or ten days at Mountainair and also with her parents at Belen. She will be home before school starts.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. French returned Saturday from an extended trip through the north-west; they visited Yellowstone Park and other places of interest. They were absent about three weeks. Mr. French reports that New Mexico is in the best condition regarding employment of any state they have visited.

J. R. Blackhere was a Carrizozo business visitor from his ranch in the Red Lake country on Tuesday of this week. Mr. Blackhere, like all other ranchmen, can't help shoutin' for joy over the amount of rainfall we have received lately.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Lucky and their friends, the Lytells of Lolo, Kas., were week-end visitors at El Paso and the old city of Juarez.

Miss Frances Skinner has resigned her position in the telephone exchange at El Paso, and will assist her father at Skinner's Grocery, which is fast becoming known as the "popular store."

Mrs. A. L. Burke returned Tuesday morning from her trip east which she took with Dr. and Mrs. R. T. Lucas four weeks ago. After a visit at the Lucas home in Kansas City, Mrs. Burke made a business trip to Chicago, where she made her purchases for the fall and holiday seasons, consisting of art and gift goods, which will be on display this week.

Mrs. John Cowley, sister to Mrs. W. C. McDonald, came in from her home in Milwaukee for a visit with her sister, likes Carrizozo immensely and the crisp, cool nights. We are over a mile in elevation, consequently that accounts for the difference in our climate -- in decided contrast to the sultry, stifling nights back east.

Ice Cream Social

will be held at the home of Mrs. C. O. Davis Friday afternoon, Aug. 21, for the benefit of the Methodist Church, to which the public is cordially invited. The social will begin at 2 p. m.

Salvation Army Campaign

Baron Auriemma came up from Alamogordo last Friday where he conducted one of his campaigns for the Salvation Army. The Baron left Carrizozo for Corona, where he received a hearty welcome and a most generous response to his efforts by the good people of that place.

He came here Monday and remained over until Thursday, when he made a trip to Lincoln, Fort Stanton and Capitan.

The Baron will return to finish up his work next week, after which a full report will be published of the work done in the County, as a whole.

"Sunny Jim" has added a few silvery threads to his hair since he last visited us, but it doesn't interfere with his superb Grand Opera baritone voice -- everybody will be glad to hear him again.

United States Steel Cuts Dividend Rate and Will Reduce Salaries—Germany Now Is Helping Herself.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

J. A. Farrell, generally regarded as the barometer of American business conditions, went on record when the directors at their meeting in New York reduced the quarterly dividend on common stock sharply from $1.75 to $1. The new dividend rate amounts to $4 a share instead of $7 and is the lowest paid by the corporation in sixteen years.

At the same time the directors dealt with the wage question through a recommendation that salaries of officers and employees be adjusted, leaving it to the management to determine the amount of reduction in pay. There was no mention of readjustment of wages and the officials would not comment on the possibility of this action, but in some quarters it was thought the directors were authorizing the first move in a program that would be extended to labor in case this became apparently unavoidable. President Hoover's administration took occasion to repeat its plea that there be no lowering of wage scales in key industries and of living standards, and President James A. Farrell of the United States Steel corporation has been regarded as one of the staunchest supporters of this policy.

The reduction in salaries, it is understood, will be put into effect as soon as the adjustments can be worked out. The proposed cut will be applicable to all salaried employees and will average about 10 per cent, it is believed. One rumor is that some of the higher executives will accept larger reductions. President Farrell himself is in this latter category. The exact amount of his salary has never been made public, but one guess places it between $100,000 and $150,000.

The reduction of the dividend rate affects more than 200,000 stockholders. Steel stock is owned and traded in throughout the world. Wall Street took the news of the directors' action quietly, though it had hoped the dividend rate would be placed no lower than $1.25 a quarter.

Four more bold aviators successfully crossed the Atlantic ocean, though the first pair were far from reaching their destination. Hugh Herndon, Jr. and Clyde Pangborn took off from the New York municipal airport with the intention of flying to Moscow and thence around the world. All the way across the ocean they flew through dense fogs and they were compelled to land in a farm field near Cardigan, Wales. They went on to London and continued their flight from there.

Russell Boardman and John P. Lando, who left at the same time and from the same airport on a flight to Turkey, were more successful, for they landed safely in Istanbul, beating the non-stop distance record established by Casteo de France.

COL. CHARLES A. LINDBERGH and Mrs. Lindbergh started from Washington on their long and perhaps perilous aerial jaunt to Japan in their big scarlet and black airplane. The first hop, which was intended to take them as far as North Haven, Maine, where is the summer home of Mrs. Lindbergh's parents, ended in Flushing bay, New York, in the midst of a thunderstorm and heavy downpour of rain. The colonel announced that the radio tests had proved unsatisfactory and the flight was accordingly delayed until the apparatus was got in order.

The hour of the Lindberghs will take them up across Canada to the Far North, across Alaska and to Japan by way of the Aleutian islands. Their Lockheed Sirius plane has been equipped with every device needed to make the trip safe and successful. The colonel is chief pilot, his wife chief navigator, and both are qualified to work the wireless.

CHERRED UP

by the encouraging promises and predictions of Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain, Secretary of State Stimson of the United States and other eminent statesmen, Germany worked hard during the week to rescue herself from financial collapse. The distinguished visitors were received in Berlin with uproarious demonstrations and were the chief figures at banquets and conferences. "Britain's confidence in Germany is undiminished," declared Mr. MacDonald. "We are filled with admiration for Germany and we are firmly convinced that if she continued her efforts, if she exerted all her intellectual, moral, and economic powers to get on her feet again, without trying any way to scamp, other nations will help her and not suffer her to go under. A free, self-respecting Germany is indispensable."

Mr. Stimson, before leaving Berlin for London, issued a statement in which he said:

"The American people have faith in the German people and believe in their future. My faith in Germany has been strengthened by my visit here. I believe the present difficulties are due mostly to temporary lack of confidence and that through courage and renewed confidence Germany's welfare will be restored."

The German government announced the formation of the "Acceptance and Guarantee" bank with a capital of $48,000,000 to facilitate the immediate financial transactions of the country and to make possible the re-opening of all German banks. The Reichsbank and eleven other leading German banks guaranteed the credits to the new bank.

In addition to removing the restrictions on banking activities throughout the country, Dr. Hans Luther, president of the Reichsbank and Chancellor Bruening said they hoped the new bank would also help re-establish the closed Darmstaedter and National bank, and save other small banks now tottering.

One important step taken by the government was the appointment of Herman Schmitz to assume control of all German banks during the crisis. He was made controller of the country's financial structure with power to draft plans to stop the flow of funds from the various banking houses. Herr Schmitz has been closely identified with the great chemical industries of Germany.

H. P. Fletcher, veteran diplomat, who has just tendered to President Hoover his resignation as chairman of the tariff commission, effective on November 15, being interviewed, Mr. Fletcher said tersely: "My plans are indefinite, but I certainly don't intend to go into a convent." There were rumors that he would seek the Republican nomination for the Pennsylvania senatorship as successor to Senator Davis, but this he denied. Also it was thought he might be appointed governor-general of the Philippines.

In view of the long experience of Mr. Fletcher in the diplomatic service and the fact he served as ambassador to both Italy and Belgium, there is talk that, if any change should be made in the office of secretary of state, he would be a logical man for the post. Following the election of Hoover in 1923, he was mentioned freely for secretary of state and for ambassador to Great Britain and ambassador to France. Long a friend of President Hoover, he accompanied him on the good-will trip to Latin America soon after the Presidential election.

NORMAN H. DAVIS

one of America's most eminent financiers and at present trustee of the Bank of New York and Trust company, announced that he had accepted a post on the finance committee of the League of Nations and would sail for Europe almost immediately.

His first business there will be to attend a conference on European credits which will open August 20. He will then take part in a meeting of the finance committee early in September. He will return home in October, and will not be obliged to relinquish any of his business interests in this country, as the finance committee of the league is called together only three times a year, each meeting as a rule, continuing for only a few days.

Mr. Davis is entirely familiar with European finances for during his distinguished career he has been a member of numerous international commissions and conferences. In 1920-21 he was undersecretary of state.

ON the report has come from the Wickersham commission, it deals with the American prison system, which it condemns as inefficient, antiquated, failing to reform the criminal or protect society, and as using brutal and unjustified disciplinary measures. Much of the report is a denunciation of prison conditions, characterized as "almost inhuman," under which men are imprisoned in overcrowded cells without sufficient light or fresh air or benefit of modern plumbing.

It attacks also the system of prison discipline described as "treacherous, unprincipled, unwholesome and not infrequently cruel and inhuman." Asserting these methods "contribute to the increase of crime by hardening the prisoner," the commission urges they be changed by law.

Outlining what is considered the ideal, the commission asserts segregation of the diseased, insane, drug-addicted and hardened criminal is one of the first requisites. It holds reformative prisons of the Auburn type are unnecessary save for the worst types.

Under the proposed system all prisoners would be paid wages, their treatment would be more humanized, the choosing of prison officials would be removed from politics and guards would be trained specifically for their task.

It is advocated that "no man should be sent to a penal institution until it is definitely determined that he is not a fit subject for probation." Extension of the parole system also is urged as the "best means yet devised for releasing prisoners from confinement."

IN ONE of the most strongly worded opinions ever handed down in a prohibition case, the United States Circuit Court of appeals at Chicago severely attacked the tactics of dry agents in entrapping offenders, declaring their methods to be "a shock to the court's sense of justice" and observing that there is "an ever increasing frequency of similar cases." The opinion reversed the conviction of five policemen of Indianapolis who last year were found guilty of conspiracy to protect a "speakeasy."

"That there was a conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, there can be no doubt," said the appellate court's opinion. "The conspiracy was conceived by the three prohibition agents, who enlisted the services of a decoy, Lyle, to more effectually accomplish their object." Horace Lyle, who managed the government operated speakeasy, is a notorious colored dry spy who has been indicted for bribery and arrested several times for drunkenness.

THERE is a lot of labor trouble in the East. In New York 30,000 workers in the men's and children's clothing industry went on strike on orders from the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America. The objects of the strike, according to union officials, are to prevent a return of sweat shop conditions and to put an end to gangster's intimidation of union workers and officers.

The two unions in the textile industry at Paterson, New Jersey, which are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, had scheduled a strike for August 3, but their hand was forced by a premature strike engineered by the radicals, and the more conservative ones were compelled to quit work earlier than intended. Thousands of workers walked out and the mills were stopped.

CARLOS IBANEZ, president and dictator of Chile, who held his own throughout all the Latin American revolutions of last year, has fallen at last. The "man of destiny," as he styled himself, faced with a popular uprising that was all arranged, resigned verbally just before the congress promptly accepted the resignation but apparently withheld the safe conduct out of the country which Ibanez asked. Therefore, in the early morning hours the overthrown dictator, accompanied by his wife and three army officers, fled from the palace in a motor car. At Los Andes they boarded a special train for Argentina, and it is considered unlikely that any attempt will be made to bring him back to Santiago for trial.

When Ibanez fled, Pedro Opazo, president of the senate and vice president of Chile, became acting president, but he lasted only a few hours, for the people were convinced he had aided Ibanez to escape. He, therefore, stepped out in favor of Juan Esteban Montero, who presumably will be chief executive until a president is elected. Montero is one of the country's leading lawyers.

Chile halted with approbation the announcement that Pedro Blanquer, one of the most popular men in Chile, had agreed to accept the post of finance minister. His "word and water" policy during his eight-day term as premier has been accepted by most Chileans as a great step to rid the nation of its economic distress.

FRIDAY saw the belated dedication of the marble column at Putnam Day, Ohio, memorializing the victory of Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry over the British in the battle of Lake Erie in 1812. The 350-foot shaft has been completed for 15 years, but the ceremonies were put off from time to time until the present.

Dedication addresses were made by Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois and Gov. George White of Ohio. Among others on the program were Webster P. Huntington of Columbus, president of the Perry's victory memorial commission; John H. Clarke, Cleveland, former associate justice of the United States Supreme court; and Edwin A. Scott, president, and A. W. J. Flack, secretary of the Canadian club of New York.

SAM C. MAJOR, representative in congress from the Seventh Missouri district, died in Fayette, Mo., and the Republican majority in the next house was thus reduced to two, for Mr. Major was a Democrat, one of the twelve in the present Missouri delegation of sixteen. He was sixty-two years old and was elected to his fifth term last autumn.

Grandmother Was Dodging Realities

By E. R. RICHARDSON

(By McClure Newspaper Syndicate, (WNU Service).)

ON THE way to the train to meet her daughter and the six-month-old grandson, Isabel Bingham did not feel like a grandmother. In addition, she knew that Henry Wiltshire had not suspected the unwelcome relationship. Half a dozen times this altogether handsome eligible lad seemed to be tottering on the brink of a proposal. Now if he discovered the existence of the grandson, he would forever be deterred. She could not in her wildest imagination picture the debonair Wiltshire in the role of grandfather. Indeed, she must ward off his visits until after Peggy and the baby left. Isabel elbowed her way towards the train. There was Peggy—in one arm the baby and in the other an assortment of pillows and pink blankets. The rebellious grandmother first shuddered and then gathered the pink and white bunch of bouncing humanity in her arms.

"Why mother, I never saw you look so young," Peggy said. "What have you been doing to yourself?" "Just forgetting realities," Isabel replied, leading the way to a taxi. "I'm willing to be an old-fashioned grandmother though to give you the rest you need. While you're here, the baby's my charge."

The girl sighed as she settled herself in the corner of the seat. "That will be heavenly," she said. "I was never so tired."

Poor Peggy! During the two weeks of her visit Peggy must be as free as she was in the old days, must play with the girls until the tired look left her eyes.

That afternoon while Peggy and the baby slept, Isabel called Henry Wiltshire's office. Waiting for the connection, she remembered frantically that she had thought of no reason for requesting Henry Wiltshire not to call. Then she heard his voice on the wire.

"A most unexpected thing has happened," she faltered. "I can't see you for two weeks. I—I may have to be away. I—I'll call you when I am free again."

There was real concern in Henry Wiltshire's tone. "Can I be of service to you?" he asked.

"In this—in this case," Isabel stammered, "there's nothing you can do. There are others involved besides myself."

When Isabel hung up she felt that Henry Wiltshire might conjecture a number of frightful things. Why, she had sounded positively melodramatic! Falling in love at forty-five was more demoralizing by far than falling in love at sixteen.

Isabel Bingham had known Henry Wiltshire only two months. The company of which he was president was establishing a branch in her city, and he found it necessary to be there almost constantly until the new offices were under way.

Henry Wiltshire's courtship, beginning at once, had combined all the fire of youth and all the determination of middle age. Isabel from the first was swept off her feet. Recently, however, she had been a bit disturbed by his failure to propose.

The first days of Peggy's visit were so full that Isabel found little time to grieve over the absence of Wiltshire. Strangely, Isabel was rather enjoying her new duties.

At the close of a day during which Isabel had had the baby all to herself—while Peggy went to a bridge luncheon—a terrible possibility occurred to her. Suppose, after her marriage to Henry Wiltshire, he should not like the baby! It was all very well to choose between a man and a baby when one loved the man and had never seen the baby, but it was quite a different matter when one knew the baby to be the most adorable darling in the world.

"What a charming picture you and the youngster make!" said a pleasant voice behind her.

Isabel turned, and with starry eyes and crimson cheeks faced Henry Wiltshire. Oh, her hair, her dress, her unpowdered nose! She must say something, but her tongue was dry and her mind a blank.

"Call it curiosity, interest, solicitude, whatever you will," Henry Wiltshire continued, "but I couldn't stay away another day."

Isabel heard the garden gate open and close with a bang. Peggy was running up the path.

"Oh, mother," the girl cried, "it was terrible to leave you with the baby all day."

Isabel managed to murmur, "My daughter, Mrs. Kilgo, Mr. Wiltshire." Peggy acknowledged the introduction and then turned to the baby. "Did it miss its muzzer? It's bedtime this minute."

Then with a nod she was gone. Isabel, having risen from the pallet, was trying to push the front hair back into captivity. It was a relief to hear Henry Wiltshire's hearty laugh.

"We are all amazing, aren't we?" he said. "Dodging realities we adore. You are beautiful today, Isabel."

Was it possible that he had no doubts for grandchildren? Then she knew that he was drawing her to the rustic beach beside him.

"I have loved you since that night I first met you," he said. "You seemed so young to have thrust upon you my grandson almost five! Could you consider adopting one that old?"

Isabel's eyes danced with happiness. "I think I could," she said, and he held the protesting little Henry Wiltshire kissed her.

William Albert Welty, Albuquerque realtor, listed debts of $9,216 and assets of $350. Mrs. Annie B. Welty, his wife, listed the same debts and assets.

Petitions of citizens from Williams for mercy for their mayor, Bob Thurston, sentenced to serve six months in jail and pay a fine of $500 for violation of the national prohibition laws, failed to move Federal District Judge Fred C. Jacobs of Prescott. "It would have been better," the court said, "if the petitioner had not spent his time and money trying to influence the court."

Arizona life insurance policyholders and beneficiaries received $3,200,000 from life insurance companies in 1929—a decrease of $670,000—or 21.1 per cent, from the amount paid in 1928, says "The National Underwriter Insurance Press." New Mexico policyholders and beneficiaries received $3,400,000 from life insurance companies in 1929, an increase of $270,000 or 8.6 per cent over the amount paid in 1928.

The G. O. S. ranch, most famous of southwestern cattle properties, which came into existence in 1885 as the result of an experiment by G. O. Smith and Vic Culbertson with 121 head of cattle, has gone to new owners. Likewise the two C ranch gains a new boss. Both properties were relinquished by the Sapello Holding Company in deals closed in Silver City, N. M., recently.

The Zia sun symbol, which for years has given New Mexico the most distinctive automobile license plate among the forty-eight states, is to be dropped off the 1932 auto plates. State Comptroller J. M. Lujan announced in Santa Fe that the 1932 plates are green with white lettering. The sun symbol, familiar to all New Mexicans, but a constant source of curiosity to all outsiders, will be dropped off, and in its place the words "Sunshine State" will be printed.

The Miami Evening Bulletin and the Daily Miami Silver Belt have been changed from daily publications to the weekly field, and the Arizona Record of Globe has taken similar steps. The latter will be a semi-weekly. This leaves the Globe-Miami district without a daily publication for the first time in forty years. Curtailment of production by the three big copper companies here, and the low price of the red metal were given as the reasons for the changes.

Possibility that an Indian was not responsible for the murder of Henrietta Schermer, Columbia University coed, was gathering momentum as federal authorities investigating the mysterious slaying admitted themselves without clues. Intensive investigations have been carried on since the anthropology student's body was found in a rugged canon seven miles from Whitewater, Ariz. Although the Apache Indians have been under suspicion since her battered body was found, the suspicion was grounded only on the fact that they outnumber the whites nearly twenty to one in that part of Arizona.

A $10,000 improvement program at the Prescott gas plant of the Arizona Power Company has been started. It was learned from Malcolm M. Bridgewater, general superintendent.

The government's case, charging conspiracy among officials at Gallup to violate the national prohibition laws, collapsed in Santa Fe before insufficient witnesses, and a verdict of not guilty upon instructions from United States District Judge F. H. Kennamer was returned immediately after the government rested. No defense witnesses were presented.

FIT CHICKENS FOR EXHIBIT AT FAIRS

Must Be at Their Best to Carry Off Prizes.

Before chickens can win many prizes at fall fairs, they must be carefully selected and fitted for the show. It is only by a careful, systematic examination that one can find all the faults of a bird.

"Before selecting the birds to be entered, place the males in individual coops and the females either in these individual coops or small group coops," advises C. F. Parrish, extension poultryman. "Those having many birds to condition may equip a building for the purpose, though most small exhibitors use temporary quarters. The important thing is to have the birds where they may be handled easily at any time without the possibility of making them wild or breaking the plumage."

Mr. Parrish does not advise force feeding to get the birds in shape. There are times, however, when a few extra ounces of flesh may turn a decision in a bird's favor. Extra feeding may also help to develop a better plumage. The best way to go about getting these desirable attributes is in the addition of a more concentrated and palatable feed to the regular ration.

Practically all white birds are washed before exhibiting. One that has not been washed looks out of place in strong competition. Four tubs are needed to do this effectively. In the first, the water must be warm and plenty of soap suds used. This is rinsed off in gradually cooler water in the other three tubs, with bluing added to the last one. After washing, allow the bird to stand in a dripping coop for 30 minutes before going into the exhibition coop to dry completely.

Use of Artificial Light in Henhouse Indorsed

The use of artificial light in the houses of the laying hens in September and October is proving a profitable practice on many New Jersey farms, reports C. S. Platt, research specialist at the state college of agriculture, New Brunswick. It has, explains Mr. Platt, the advantage of prolonging the length of the day in the early fall and seems to give an increased egg production in the months when large eggs are demanding a premium price. This is an extension to the use of artificial lights, which heretofore have been used exclusively on pullets and solely in the winter.

Any system of artificial light may be used, starting it when the daylight or working hours for the hens fall below thirteen. If the morning system is used, the lights are put on from 4:30 a. m. until daylight. The evening system calls for lights from dusk until 6:30 or 7 p. m., and the evening lunch system from 8:30 to 9:30 p. m.

The purpose of the light, of course, is to increase the food consumption. For best results 100 birds should consume from 10 to 12 pounds of grain daily and an equal amount of mash. Moist mash may be fed to good advantage.

No Place for Roosters Among the Laying Hens

"Farmers of the central states lose $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 a year on account of producing eggs that are fertile. When they move into commerce they are removed and destroyed," says Paul Mandeville, secretary of the United States Egg society.

"A more serious loss occurs," Mandeville says, "from slowing down consumption of all eggs while these poor eggs are being forced on unwilling buyers. It is well known that a chief advantage of handling California eggs is the fact that they are infertile."

Remove all roosters, young and old, from the laying flock.

Poultry Hints

Unless the range is clean, chickens may be kept in a house as surgically clean as an operating room yet die from fith disease. Not the food fed before them but what they can get outside is responsible for intestinal disorders of poultry.

The use of barley to replace yellow corn in poultry rations should be determined by the relative prices of the two grains and the availability of sources of vitamin A.

In the opinion of many poultry specialists broilers should be sent to market as soon as they are salable. As the chick makes the most rapid growth during the first few weeks of its life, it costs more and takes longer to put on weight after it has reached a pound in weight.

Ground barley is a satisfactory substitute for ground yellow corn in a standard laying mash when the scratch grain is composed of a large per cent of shelled yellow corn and green feed is available for the birds.

THE STORY

Yancey Cravat, just returned from the newly opened Indian territory, relates his experiences to a large gathering of the Venable family. Yancey is married to Sabra Venable; is a criminal lawyer and editor of the Wichita Wigwam. When the Run started, Yancey had raised his pony against the thoroughbred mount of a girl. The girl's horse was injured and when Yancey stopped to shoot it she grabbed his pony and got the land Yancey wanted. Yancey announces he is going back to the Oklahoma country with Sabra and their four-year-old son, Cimarron. They make the journey in two covered wagons. They arrive at Osage, where Yancey intends to start a newspaper. Yancey is determined to find out who killed Editor Page of the New Day. Preparations for the publication of the Oklahoma Wigwam are completed. Yancey consents to conduct divine services on Sunday. During the services Yancey announces he has learned who killed Editor Page. He stoops in time to escape a bullet fired by Yontis. Still stooping, Yancey shoots and kills Yontis. Then he announces that Yontis killed Fegler, Sabra's second child. Donna, is about three years old when she returns to Wichita for her first visit. Yancey frustrates a bank robbery and kills two desperados. Yancey urges Sabra to join him in the Run at the opening of the Cherokee strip. She refuses.

CHAPTER VII—Continued

Sabra's farewell was intended to be cold. Her heart, she told herself, was breaking. The change that these last four years had made in her never was more apparent than now.

"You felt the same way when I went off to the first Run," Yancey reminded her. "Remember? You carried on just one degree less than your mother. And if I hadn't gone you'd still be living in the house in Wichita, with your family smothering you in Southern fried-chicken and advice." There was much truth in this, she had to admit. She melted; clung to him.

"Yancey! Yancey!"
"Smile, sugar. Wait till you see Cim and Donna, six years from now, riding the Cravat acres."

After all, a hundred other men in Osage were going to make the Cherokee Strip Run. The town—the whole territory—had talked of nothing else for months.

She dried her eyes. She even managed a watery smile. He was making the Run on a brilliant, wild-eyed mare named Cimarron, with a strain of Spanish in her for speed and grace, and a strain of American mustang for endurance. The start was made shortly after sunrise so as to make progress before the heat of the day. But a cavalcade awoke them before dawn with a rat-a-tat-tat of six-shooters and a blood-curling series of cowboy yips. The escort rode with Yancey and the others for a distance out on the plains. Sabra, at the last minute, had the family horse hitched to the buggy, bundled Cim and Donna in with her, and Isaiah hanging on behind, somehow—the prim little vehicle bumped and crested its way over the prairie road in the wake of the departing adventurers.

At the last Sabra threw the reins to Isaiah, sprang from the buggy, ran to Yancey as he pulled up his horse. He bent far over in his saddle, picked her up in one great arm, held her close while he kissed her long and hard.

"Sabra, come with me. Let's get clear away from this."

"You've gone crazy! The children!"

"The children, too. All of us. Come on. Now." His eyes were blazing. She saw that he actually meant it. A sudden premonition shook her.

"Where are you going? Where are you going?"

He set her down gently and was off, turned halfway in his saddle to face her, his white sombrero held aloft in his hand, his curling black locks tossing in the Oklahoma breeze. Five years passed before she saw him again.

CHAPTER VIII

Dixie Lee's girls were riding by on their daily afternoon parade. Sabra glanced up as they drove by. She was seated at her desk by the window in the front office of the Oklahoma Wigwam.

Her face darkened now as she saw them driving slowly by. Dixie Lee never drove with them. Sabra knew where she was this afternoon. She was down in the back room of the Osage First National bank talking business to the president, March Rankin. The business men of the town were negotiating for the bringing of the packing horse and a plow works and a watch factory to Osage. Any one of these industries required a substantial house. The spirit of the day was the boom spirit. Boom the town of Osage. Dixie Lee was essentially a commercial woman—shrewd, clear-headed. She had made a great success of her business. She was a percentage in the town. Visitors came to her house now from the cities and counties round about. She had built herself and her thriving business the first brick structure in the wooden town; a square, solid, and imposing two-story house, its bricks formed from the native Oklahoma red clay. The house had been opened with a celebration, the like of which had never been seen in the Southwest.

Sabra Cravat, mentioning no names, had had an editorial about it in which the phrases "insult to the fair womanhood of America" and "orgy rivaling the Bacchanalian revels of history" (Yancey's library stood her in good stead these days) figured prominently. It was—this red brick brotchel—less sinister than these good and innocent women suspected. Dixie Lee, now a woman of thirty or more, ruled it with an iron hand. Within it obtained certain laws and rules of conduct so rigid as to be almost pious. It was, in a way, a club, a rendezvous, a salon. For hundreds of men who came there it was all they had ever known of richness, of color, of luxury. Here they lolled, sunk deep in rosy comfort, while they talked territory, politics, swapped yarns of the old cattle days, played cards, drank wines which tasted like sweet prickling water to their whisky-scarred palates. They kissed these women, thought tenderly of many of them, and frequently married them; and these women, once married, settled down contentedly to an almost slavish domesticity.

A hard woman, Dixie Lee; a bad woman. Sabra was morally right in her attitude toward her. Yet this woman, as well as Sabra, filled her place in the early life of the territory.

The Oklahoma Wigwam had flourished in these last five years of Sabra's proprietorship. She was thinking seriously of making it a daily instead of a weekly; of using the entire building on Pawhuska avenue for the newspaper plant and building a proper house for herself and the two children on one of the residence streets newly sprung up—streets that boasted neatly painted houses and elm and cottonwood trees in the front yards.

Some one came up the steps of the little porch and into the office. It was Mrs. Wyatt. "Well," she exclaimed, simply, but managing to put enormous bite and significance into the monosyllable. Her glance followed Sabra's. Together the two women, tight lipped, condemnatory, watched the gay parade of Dixie Lee's girls go by.

The flashing company disappeared. A whiff of patchouli floated back to the two women standing by the open window. Their nostrils lifted in disdain. The sound of the horses' hoofs grew fainter.

"It's a disgrace to the community"—Mrs. Wyatt's voice took on its platform note—"and an insult to every wife and mother in the territory. There ought to be a law."

Sabra turned away from the window. Her eyes sought the orderly rows of books, bound neatly in tan and red—Yancey's law books, so long unused now, except, perhaps, for occasional newspaper reference. Her face set itself in lines of resolve. "Perhaps there is."

A man like Yancey Cravat—spectacular, dramatic, impulsive—has a thousand critics, scores of bitter enemies. As the weeks had gone by and Yancey failed to return—had failed to write—rumor, clouded by scandal, leaped like prairie fire from house to house in Osage, from town to town in the Oklahoma country, over the Southwest, indeed. All the old stories were revived, and their ugly red tongues licked a sordid path through the newly opened land.

They say he is living with the Cherokee squaw who is really his wife.

They say he was seen making the Run in the Kickapoo land opening in 1893.

They say he killed a man in the Cherokee Strip Run and was caught by a posse and hung.

They say he got a section of land, sold it at a high figure, and was seen fording it around the bar of the Brown Palace hotel in Denver. In his white sombrero and his Prince Albert coat.

They say Dixie Lee is his real wife, and he left her when she was seventeen, came to Wichita, and married Sabra Venable; and he is the one who has set Dixie up in the brick town.

They say he drank five quarts of whisky one night and died and is buried in an unmarked grave in Horseshoe ranch, where the Doolin gang held forth.

They say he is really the leader of the Doolin gang. They say. They say.

It is impossible to know how Sabra survived those first terrible weeks that lengthened into months that lengthened into years. There was in her the wily endurance of the French Marceys; the pride of the southern Venables. She told herself that Yancey was dead. She told the world that he was dead. She knew, by some deep and unerring instinct, that he was alive.

She ran the paper conscientiously; wrote from it a decent livelihood for herself and the two children. When it had no longer been possible to keep secret from her parents the fact of Yancey's prolonged absence, Felice Venable had descended upon her prepared to gather to the family boom her deserted child and to bring her, together with her offspring, back to the parental home. Lewis Venable had been too frail and ill to accompany his wife, so Felice had brought with her the mere hipposing among the Venables, Goforths, and Vians who chance to be visiting the Wichita boom at the time of her departure. Osage had looked upon these stately figures with much awe, but Sabra's recollection of them had been as coolly cordial as her rejection of their plans for her future was firm.

"I intend to stay right here in Osage," she announced, quietly, but in a tone that even Felice Venable recognized as inflexible, "and run the paper, and bring up my children as their father would have expected them to be brought up. I mean to stay here in Osage until Yancey—until— She never finished that sentence.

The Osage society notes became less simple. From bare accounts of quiltings, sewing bees, and church socials, they blossomed into flowery imitations of the metropolitan dailies' descriptions of social events.

Sabra was, without being fully aware of it, a power that shaped the social aspect of this crude southwestern town. The ladies of the new Happy Hour club, on her declining to become a member, pleading lack of time and press of work (as well she might) made her an honorary member, resolved to have her influential name on their club roster, somehow.

As Sabra Looked at Him She Knew.

They were paying unconscious tribute to Oklahoma's first feminist. She still ran the paper single handed, with the aid of Jesse Hickey, the most expert printer in the Southwest (when sober), and as good as the average when drunk.

There still was very little actual money in the territory. People traded this for that. Sabra often translated subscriptions to the Oklahoma Wigwam—and even advertising space—into terms of fresh vegetables, berries, wild turkeys, quail, prairie chickens, dress lengths and shoes and stockings for the children.

Sol Levy's store, grown to respectable proportions now, provided Sabra with countless necessities in return for the advertisements which were sent through the country via the Oklahoma Wigwam. In a quiet, dreamy way Sol Levy had managed to buy a surprising amount of Osage real estate by now. He owned the lot on which his store stood, the one just south of it, and, among other pieces, the building and lot which comprised the site of the Wigwam and the Cravats' house. In the year following Yancey's departure Sabra's economic survival was made possible only through the singular shrewdness and generosity of this quiet, sad-eyed man.

"I've got it all down in my books," Sabra would say, proudly. "You know that it will all be paid back some day."

He began in the Oklahoma Wigwam a campaign of advertising out of all proportions to his needs, and Sabra's debt to him began to shrink to the

Boomerang Long in Use as Weapon of Warfare

An article in the Encyclopedia Britannica on the boomerang of the Australian aborigines mentions various peoples that have used similar instruments. Both the return and nonreturn boomerang are found in most parts of Australia. The return form was, according to General Pitt-Rivers, used in ancient Egypt. A weapon closely resembling the boomerang survives to the present day in northeast Africa, with allied forms made of metal, or throwing knives. In south India is found a boomerang-shaped instrument which can be made to return.

The Hopis of Arizona use a nonreturn form. The Indian Cyclopedic gives details of the chakra or steel disk, formerly carried by Sikh soldiers. These were 2 to 2 inches in diameter and about an inch of breadth of rim, and had sharply ground edges. They were rotated on the forefinger, then projected with considerable force 150 feet or more. They are called expensive and almost useless weapons. Another form of boomerang used in India is made of wood and iron at Gujerat and of wood and ivory at Trichinopoly.

English Life Pantomimes

Englishmen in exile seem to cling to pantomime as tenaciously as to plum pudding, writes a columnist in the Manchester Guardian. When the Rossetti wintered in the ice at Melville Island in 1852 Christmas was celebrated by the production of a pantomime, which had the novelty of being played entirely for the fun of the performers. There was no audience for every member of the crew took part, with the commander, Mr. George Nares, starring as Columbine.

In 1875, when on another polar expedition in the Albatross "reopened the Royal Arctic theater" after it had been closed for 25 years, and pantomime was again the favorite pastime of all concerned.

Super-Clock

One of the world's most intricate clocks is in the old tower of Cornelius at Lierra, Belgium. The masterpiece not only indicates the time from Greenwich, but virtually keeps track of the universe, giving the signs of the Zodiac, the solar system, days of the week, phases of the moon and the tides.

vanishing point. She got into the habit of talking to him about her business problems, and he advised her surely. When she was utterly discouraged he would say, not triumphantly, but as one who states an irrefutable and not particularly happy fact:

"Some day, Mrs. Cravat, you and I will look back on this and we will laugh—but not very loud."

"How do you mean—laugh?"

"Oh—I will be very rich, and you will be very famous. And Yancey—"

"Yancey!" The word was wrenched from her like a cry.

"They will tell stories about Yancey until he will grow into a legend. He will be part of the history of the Southwest. They will remember him and write about him when all these mealy-faced governors are dead and gone and forgotten. They will tell the little children about him, and they will dispute about him—he did this, he did that; he was like this, he was like that. You will see."

Sabra thought of her own children, who knew so little of their father. Donna, a thin secretive child of almost seven now, with dark, straight black hair and a sallow skin like Yancey's; Cim, almost thirteen, moody, charming, imaginative. Donna was more like her grandmother Felice Venable than her own mother; Cim resembled Yancey so strongly in mood, manner, and emotions as to have almost no trace of Sabra. She wondered, with a pang, if she had failed to impress herself on them because of her absorption in the town, in the newspaper, in the resolve to succeed. She got out a photograph of Yancey that she had hidden away because to see it was to feel a stab of pain, and had it framed, and hung it on the wall where the children could see it daily.

"Your father—" Sabra would begin, courageously, resolved to make him live again in the minds of the children. Donna was not especially interested. Cim said, "I know it," and capped her story with a tale of his own in which Yancey's feat of deriding do-otrivalued any swashbuckling escapade of D'Artagnan.

"Oh, but Cim, that's not true! You mustn't believe stories like that about your father."

"It is true. Isaiah told me. I guess he ought to know." And then the question she dreamed. "When are Isaiah and father coming back?"

She could answer, somehow, evasively, about Yancey, for her instinct concerning him was sure and strong. But as the fate that had overtaken the negro boy she covered, afraid even to face the thought of it. For the thing that had happened to the black boy was so dreadful, so remorseless that when the truth of it came to Sabra she felt all this little world of propriety, of middle-class Middle West convention that she had built up about her turning to ashes under the sudden flaring fire of hidden savagery. She tried never to think of it, but sometimes, at night, the hideous thing took possession of her, and she was swept by such horror that she crouched there under the bedclothes, clammy and shivering with the sweat of utter fear. Her hatred of the Indians now amounted to an obsession.

It was in the fourth year of Yancey's absence that, coming suddenly and silently into the kitchen from the newspaper office, where she had been busy as usual, she saw her Indian maid twisted in a contortion in front of the table where she had been at work. Her face was grotesque, was wet, with agony. It was the agony which only one kind of pain can bring to a woman's face. The Indian girl was in the pangs of childbirth. Even as she saw her Sabra realized that something about her had vaguely disturbed her in the past few weeks.

Improved Uniform International

Let she had not known, had not dreamed of this. The loose garment which the girl always wore—her strong natural slenderness—the erect dignity of her Indian carriage—the atollism of her race—had served to keep secret her condition. She had had, too, Sabra now realized in a flash, a way of being out of the room when her mistress was in it; busy in the pantry when Sabra was in the kitchen; busy in the kitchen when Sabra was in the dining room; in and out like a dark, swift shadow.

"Arita! Here. Come. Lie down. I'll send for your father—your mother." Her father was Big Knees, well known and something of a power in the Osage tribe. Of the tribal officers he was one of the eight members of the council and as such was part of the tribe's governing body.

Dreadful as the look on Arita's face had been, it was now contorted almost beyond recognition. "No! No!" She broke into a storm of pleading in her own tongue. Her eyes were black pools of agony. Sabra had never thought that one of pure Indian blood would thus give way to any emotion before a white person.

She put the girl to bed. She sent Isaiah for Doctor Valliant, who luckily was in town and sober. He went to work quietly, efficiently, aided by Sabra, making the best of such crude and hasty necessities as came to hand. The girl made no outcry. Her eyes were a dull, dead black; her face was rigid. Sabra, passing from the kitchen to the girl's bedroom with hot water, cloths, blankets, saw Isaiah crouched in a corner by the wood box. He looked up at her mutely. His face was a curious ash gray. As Sabra looked at him she knew.

The child was a boy. His hair was coarse and kinky. His nose was wide. His lips were thick. He was a negro child. Doctor Valliant looked at him as Sabra held the writhing red-purple bundle in her arms.

"This is a bad business."

"I'll send for her parents. I'll speak to Isaiah. They can marry."

"Marry! Don't you know?"

"Something in his voice startled her. 'What?'"

"The Osages don't marry negroes. It's forbidden."

"Why, lots of them have. You see negroes who are Indians every day. On the street."

"Not Osages. Seminoles, yes. And Creeks, and Choctaws, and even Chickasaws. But the Osages, except for intermarriage with whites, have kept the tribe pure."

This information seemed to Sabra to be unimportant and slightly silly. Purity of the tribe, indeed! Osage! She resolved to be matter of fact and sensible now that the shocking event was at hand, waiting to be dealt with. She herself felt guilty, for this thing had happened in her own house. She should have foreseen danger, and avoided it. Isaiah had been a faithful black child in her mind, whereas he was, in reality, a man grown.

Doctor Valliant had finished his work. The girl lay on the bed, her dull black eyes fixed on them; silent, watchful, hopeless. Isaiah crouched in the kitchen. The child lay now in Sabra's arms. Donna and Cim were, fortunately, asleep, for it was now long past midnight. The tense excitement past, the whole affair seemed to Sabra sordid, dreadful. What would the town say? What would the members of the Philanthropic club and the Twentieth Century Culture club think?

Doctor Valliant came over to her and looked down at the queer shriveled morsel in her arms. "We must let his father see him."

Sabra shrank. "Oh, no!"

He took the baby from her and turned toward the kitchen. "I'll do it. Let me have a drink of whisky, will you, Sabra? I'm dead tired."

She went past him into the dining room, without a glance at the negro boy cowering in the kitchen. Doctor Valliant followed her. As she poured a drink of Yancey's store of whisky, almost untouched since he had left, she heard Valliant's voice, very gentle, and then the sound of Isaiah's bubbling. All the pretenses in her was outraged. Her firm mouth took on a still straighter line. Valliant took the child back to the Indian girl's bed and placed it, by her side. He stumbled with weariness as he entered the dining room where Sabra stood at the table. As he reached for the drink Sabra saw that his hand shook a little as Yancey's used to do in that same gesture. She must not think of that. She must not think of that.

Lesson for August 16

SOWING AND REAPING
(Temperance Lesson.)

LESSON TEXT—Galatians 5:1-10.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Obeying the Law.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Sowing and Reaping (Effects of Alcohol).
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Sowing and Reaping (Effects of Alcohol).

In chapters three and four Paul presented in a masterful way the heart of Christianity; namely, that justification is by faith in the atoning work of Christ rather than by the works of the law. In chapters five and six he made practical application of the doctrine to the affairs of life. Gracious justification by faith is the dynamic for right living. Those who are freely justified in Christ will manifest the fact by the following conduct:

1. Restore the Singing Brother (v. 1).

1. Who he is. "The one overtaken in a fault." The idea expressed by the word "fault" is not to minimize the sin, but to show the suddenness of the temptation. One's spirituality is shown by his willingness to help in such a case.

2. What is to be done. He is to be "restored." Restore is a surgical term which means the placing back of a dislocated member to its normal place. Christians are members of the body of Christ. Therefore, the sinning of a brother should as really give us pain as the dislocation of a member of our body.

3. How it is to be done. "In a spirit of meekness." Harshness has no place in the life of a Christian. The fruit of the Spirit is love, meekness, etc. The believer must show his right to claim the life in the heavens by stooping down to help the brother crippled and beset in the dirt of earth.

4. The incentive. "Lest thou also be tempted." No one is immune from temptation. The surest way to be fortified against temptation is to go sympathetically to the rescue of the fallen.

11. Bear One Another's Burdens (v. 2).

Many are the burdens of life: burdens of weakness, temptations of a fallen nature, sorrow, suffering, and sin. Some have more temptations than others. Since believers are inseparably bound together, the strong should bear the infirmities of the weak. Christ is the supreme burden bearer. When we bear one another's burdens, we fulfill the law of Christ. Many have inherited the appetite for intoxicating liquors, and the spirit of burden bearing will move us to make our utmost endeavor to remove far away the temptation to strong drink.

12. Bear Our Own Burdens (v. 3).

There are some burdens which can be borne alone by the individual. Personal responsibility cannot be escaped. In a most real sense every man bears his life alone. Helpful as is sympathy, human and divine, greatly as we need the helping hand of our brother, the individual must live his own life. The law of God which is in harmony with the law which controls the individual declares, "The soul that sinneth it shall die."

13. Support Teachers of God's Word (v. 6).

It is incumbent upon those who are taught in God's Word to give of their means for the support of the teacher. To repudiate this obligation is to mock God (v. 7), for God has ordained that they who preach the gospel shall live of the gospel (1 Cor. 9:14). The declaration, "Whoever a man soweth that shall he also reap," sets forth a law which operates in all spheres of life.

14. Be Earnest in Well Doing (v. 9).

The harvest is sure. Sow good seed and patiently wait for the reward. The same unfulfilling law which eventuates in a harvest of corruption to those who sow to the flesh will bring life everlasting to those who sow to the Spirit.

15. Work for the Good of All Men (v. 10).

The believer in Christ who realizes his freedom will have sympathies and interests as wide as the race. While especially endeavoring to help those in Christ, he will be reaching out to all men. He will be seeking to win them to Christ. This obligation to work for the good of all men applies in such matters as the abolition of the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages.

The Righteous

The righteous are as trees of life; the fruits of their piety and charity, their instructions, reproofs, examples and prayers, their interest in heaven and their influence on earth are like the fruits of that tree, precious and useful, contributing to the support and nourishment of the spiritual life in many.—Matthew Henry.

When Learning Is Useful

Education is useful, but when it ignores God it is destructive.—Babcock.

Carlsbad Boy Scouts

will be hosts to the troops of the Eastern New Mexico Council at a short term water camp, beginning Aug. 25 and closing on the 29th. Three life guards will direct a water program consisting of instruction in swimming for beginners, advanced swimming, life saving, canoeing and boating. The camp will be pitched just across the river from town and will have a good beach for swimming activities. A shallow area will be roped for beginners and every precaution will be taken to maintain a safe and healthy camp. Minor Huffman, Area Boy Scout Executive will have charge of the camp.

In addition to the water program the boys will have an opportunity to visit the Carlsbad Caverns and other interesting places near Carlsbad.

The water camp will top a summer activities for the Boy Scouts. 267 Scouts and Leaders attended the summer camp in the Sacramento mountains and set a high mark for attendance. In addition, several troops held their own camps.

Watching in the Moonlight

One of our leading ranchman relates an experience he recently had when on the watch for wild beasts which had been invading his domain. After the loss of several sheep, he decided to keep watch over his flocks in person. The moon was full and its rays shone with such brilliancy that an object might be plainly distinguished at a great distance.

It was about the midnight hour and the owner of the ranch grew weary and sleepy, when all of a sudden from over a grassy hill came a mountain lioness with three kittens. His first impulse was to take aim and shoot, but he hesitated. They began to play. The mother stretched herself on the grass and amused herself by watching and apparently applauding each little prank of the kittens.

They frolicked and played so much like our domestic kittens that the ranchman finally began to enjoy the scene equally as well as the mother. The moonlight fell in a golden sheet on the spectacle and as the ranchman watched, the desire to destroy the lioness changed to one peaceful mind. The change was so acute that he felt that in allowing the mother and the little fellows to finish their family prank unmolested, no harm could come to his flock by their misdeeds. They rolled, tumbled over the mother, who received the gentle attacks much as any other mother would the pranks of the young, until finally, with their play finished, they stole away as silently as they came.

NOTICE OF CONTEST
Department of the Interior
United States Land Office
Santa Fe, New Mexico
July 14, 1931

To Blake A. Shupe of E. Vaughn, N. M., Contestee:

You are hereby notified that John J. Jones, who gives Ramon, New Mexico, as his post-office address, did, on June 19th, 1931, file in this office his duly corroborated application to contest and secure the cancellation of your homestead entry, Serial No. 061514 made January 17th, 1929, for Lots 1, 2, 3, 4, E $\frac{1}{2}$ W $\frac{1}{2}$  Section 20; Lots 1, 2, 3, E $\frac{1}{2}$ W $\frac{1}{2}$  Sec. 21, Twp. 1 S., Range 19 E., N. M. P. Meridian, and as grounds for his contest he alleges that said Blake A. Shupe has wholly abandoned the said entry for more than 2 years last past; that he has never established residence on the land nor made any improvements whatever on same.

You are, therefore, further notified that the said allegations will be taken as confessed, and your said entry will be canceled without further right to be heard, either before this office or on appeal, if you fail to file in this office within twenty days after the FOURTH publication of this notice, as shown below, your answer, under oath, specifically responding to these allegations of contest, together with due proof that you have served a copy of your answer on the said contestant either in person or by registered mail.

THE GREATEST VALUE EVER BUILT INTO A FORD CAR

(F. O. B. Detroit, plus freight and delivery. Bumpers and spare tire extra at low cost.)

WHEN you buy a Ford car today, you buy what is unquestionably the greatest value in the history of the Ford Motor Company. Never before has so much beauty, comfort, safety and performance been offered at such a low price.

The low price of the Ford is something to think about because it means an immediate saving of many dollars — always an important consideration. But far more significant than price alone is what you get for that price. When high quality is combined with low price, you may justly take pride in having found a most satisfactory purchase.

See the Ford — ride in it — learn something about the value that is built into every part. The more you know about it, the more certain you will be that it is the car for you. It is literally true that when you "get the facts you will get a Ford."

FLATHORN'S TROUBLES

"DID I understand you to say that Flathorns, the Moose, is having troubles?" asked Buster Bear of Honker the Goose, who had just come down from the Great Woods of the North to the pond of Paddy the Beaver in the Green Forest.

Beaver, Frickly Porky, and Juniper the Hare laughed right out. "What do you think Flathorns is like?" asked Honker.

"Are You Afraid of Him?" He Asked Innocently.

Flathorns, but as you've never seen him, of course you wouldn't understand. He's bigger than me. He's the biggest of all the people who live in the Great Woods.

Peter's eyes opened wider than ever. "Are you afraid of him?" he asked innocently, staring very hard at Buster, for he couldn't imagine Buster being afraid of anyone excepting a hunter with a terrible gun.

"Well," replied Buster, slowly, with a funny look on his face, "I—that is, Flathorns and I never have quarreled."

Frickly Porky chuckled. "Come Buster," said he, "own up that you always have kept out of the way of old Flathorns. You know perfectly well that he isn't afraid of you, and that you wouldn't face those big horns of his and those sharp-edged hoofs of his for anything in the world."

"Flathorns" and I never interfere with each other," replied Buster with a great deal of dignity.

Peter had listened to all this with a puzzled look on his face. "But this isn't telling me what Flathorns is like," he interrupted. "He must be very big indeed if Buster Bear is afraid of him."

"He is," spoke up Juniper the Hare. "You have seen the horse that Farmer Brown's boy drives in the cornfield."

Peter nodded, "Is he as big as that?" he asked, looking as if he couldn't quite believe such a thing.

Juniper nodded in his turn. "And on his head he has the biggest horns you ever saw," said he. "You see Flathorns is cousin to Lightfoot, the

The Old Gardener Says:

Stock gardeners searching for choice plants should not overlook the lilacs, for there are several low-growing kinds that are perfectly at home in such gardens. One of the best is the Siberian coral lilac, which rarely exceeds a height of two feet and has lovely deep scarlet, although very small, flowers. Groups of the Eriogonum lilac, particularly the dwarf variety, Prince of Orange, are excellent in the rock garden, and Lilium concolor is so hardy that it will thrive in Canada. These lilacs should be planted the coming autumn.

"If he is so big as all that I don't see what troubles he can have," declared Peter.

"Hunters," declared Honker. "They hunt for those big horns of his, though what they want of them, I can't understand. They hide at the places where old Flathorns goes to drink and try to shoot him. They steal along behind him through the woods. They imitate the voice of Mrs. Flathorns, and try to call him to where they are hiding so that they can shoot him, just as they imitate the calls of my friends and try to kill me. It seems to me that this is the meanest of all mean ways. None but mean folk ever do anything so unfair as that. Oh, yes, big as he is, old Flathorns has his troubles. He doesn't feel safe a minute. Not once in a while he gets even. He did a few days ago I left so some night."

Machines That Are Almost Human

By E. C. TAYLOR

The Invisible Policeman

RECENTLY in New York city a $50 bill was offered to any person who could pick it up without causing an invisible policeman to sound an alarm. No one got the $50.

The invisible policeman on guard was an unseen ray. It was set up at a meeting of the New York Illuminating Engineering society in the Westinghouse Lamp company.

The bill was put in a five-foot safe with the door closed but unlocked. Somewhere athwart the safe, probably across the door, an ultra-violet ray of light was placed. The ray could not be seen. It was harmless; it could not be felt by the human touch.

The ray "shone" upon a photo-electric eye some distance away. Anyone attempting to take the $50 bill from the safe would interrupt the ray, thereby casting an unseen "shadow" upon the electrical eye. Thereupon the eye would loudly ring a burglar alarm.

"With these rays," said Mr. McCoy, "it is possible for jewelers, bankers and other custodians to add greatly to the security of their valuables. It can be made impossible for an intruder to move about without detection, as the rays can be placed at various angles in a room. They may operate a tear gas barrage, or set off a silent alarm. Then can be projected far enough to protect the entire mouth of a harbor in war time with a warning signal bell."

One of these invisible policemen now stands at a gate in Springfield, Mass., and counts automobiles as they pass on the adjoining road. The robot has no physical contact with the passing automobiles. No wires stretch across the road to flash a signal when a car passes.

The unseen ray of light is used. When an automobile passes, it breaks the ray, and the mechanism within the robot adds another to the total of the cars that have passed.

This new "black light" is being used more and more extensively to expose fraud. It can disclose forgeries and counterfeit money. It has been used even to trap bootleggers. The makers of industrial alcohol can put a very small dose of some fluorescent dye in their alcohol, and the dye will "shine" when the unseen ray is directed on it, no matter how much the bootlegger had "cooked" or otherwise tried to disguise his product.

A new "fever tube" giving off rays similar to this, developed in the radio research laboratory of the General Electric company at Schenectady, N. Y., has aroused in the mind of its inventor, Dr. W. R. Whitney, director of the laboratory, the thought that radio may eventually be used to heat the roomers instead of the room.

It may be possible, he holds, by using an adaptation of the fever tube to supply heat to the occupants of homes and office buildings instead of heating the homes or buildings themselves. We heat thousands of cubic feet of space, he asks, merely to keep a body warm. Maintain sufficient heat in the person instead of an excess of steam in radiators.

Doctor Whitney's fever tube sends off unseen rays of heat that are absorbed by the body upon which they are directed, but which are not felt in the sense of being hot to the touch.

His suggestion is that his device might be placed in the walls of a room, the rays directed across the path of greatest activity, and then, with windows open, no furnace in the cellar and no radiators to look after, the inhabitants would be comfortably warm.

Scientists are making wide use of these unseen rays and variations of it. A weird light has been produced that causes moving objects to slow down or appear still. This light, resembling a huge flash light, turned on a whirling electric fan, caused it to look as though the blades were at rest.

Engineers have used this to find out what caused erosion on the tips of airplane propellers during a rain. The "light" made it possible to see the cracks forming in the blades when artificial rain was turned on while they were in motion, and this showed how to protect propellers against this.

Curious Colloquialisms

Queer names are given to the local holidays in northern villages in England. The district round Huddersfield alone supplies a rich variety. At Halthwaite the strange title of "San-James" was used to the end of last century, and it still lingers, maybe. At Hensley they have a "feast" at All-moosbury a "rush," at Longwood a "thump" and at Kirkstrotton a "rant." Meltham has one almost as curious as Halthwaite: it is, or was, called a "hartwey." There must be dozens of others, although the "wakes" and the "feasts" are probably in a huge majority.

Evolution of Money

Salt Merchant of Morocco, Whose Salt is Also Used for Money.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

ETHIOPIA (Abyssinia), which has hitherto got along without a money of its own, is taking steps toward establishing a currency and coinage system on a gold basis. Most of the citizens are now using for their purchases bars of salt, rifle cartridges, and even empty bottles and tin cans. The money necessary in international dealings has been furnished in limited supply by Maria Theresa Thalers, introduced a number of years ago from Austria, and by a small amount of paper money issued by a branch of the National Bank of Egypt established in Addis Ababa, capital of Ethiopia. This bank is to be purchased by the Ethiopian government as a first step in its program to set up a currency and coinage system.

When Ethiopia issues her first bank notes and certificates, these bits of inked paper will represent the latest link in the very long chain of the evolution of money. In earliest times man traded or bartered one product or article for another. But the need for a common denominator of value became apparent even with the first glimmerings of civilization. The skins of animals served in this way when man was still a hunter, while shells became the first money of tribes living near the sea. When man settled down and became an agriculturist or a herdsman, grain and cattle came into use as his measures of value. The ox was "big money," the sheep "small change."

There were certain disadvantages in using live stock as money. For one thing, it might walk away, in the night; for another, it consumed much provender. There were difficulties about very small change for the purchase of such edibles as kettles of fish and messes of pottage.

The human geography of the Near East, which had been pastoral, about this time got an industrial urge. A way had been found of extracting a metal from the earth of the island of Cyprus, handily set in the eastern Mediterranean. The Romans later twisted the name of this island to such a way that the modern word "copper" was derived from it.

How Copper Became Money.
Copper pots began to appeal, and like cattle, were universally prized. Merchants would exchange whatever they had in their stalls for copper pots, and the demand for them was more nearly universal than for any other object. The copper pot was, therefore, money.

Then into this region came one imbued with an idea of importance. Instead of presenting pots for use in facilitating barter, he would tender the copper of which they were made. He would offer it in a convenient form, made up into a strip which he called obolus. No definite idea of its size survives, but it was said that six made a handful. The obolus marked a great advance toward the use of coin.

The scene shifted to the west. Italy, as it awoke from barbarism, adopted a unit of copper as a measure of value. It called the unit as, a Roman pound of 12 unciae, or ounces, and it came into general use.

Copper served the purpose of money because of its intrinsic value. The as had the value of a pound of copper. Human nature being the same then as now, it soon came to pass that people made the as in a weight a little less than a pound and profited to the extent of the metal thus saved. They learned to mix certain quantities of base and cheaper metals with the copper and their currency deteriorated.

Thus a step toward the development of actual money was forced on the nations. Governing powers found it necessary to step into the breach, to test metals used as money, to put their stamps guaranteeing quality and weight upon them, and by this avenue copper coins arrived.

As the centuries passed in the Mediterranean area, copper became plentiful and its purchasing power decreased.

Rome was getting much of the earth of Cyprus. Thus it developed that an average household of ancient Rome, going to market to buy for a feast day, would need to pack a donkey to bear the weight of the copper for his shopping.

The metal came to be too bulky in proportion to its value. Yet it held its place until another metal appeared that better served money purposes. That metal was silver. The map of the civilized world was expanding. Spain had begun to produce.

Civilization moved westward and Charlemagne established an empire of the French in the Eighth century on a silver standard. He formally decreed that the pound of silver should be the basic measure of value, and a continent accepted his edict. So it happens that in France today the word argent means "money," although its literal significance is "silver."

Money of England.
Money history began to be written in another geographical area. The English began to talk of the "pound" in designating a money unit. This is the silver pound of Charlemagne.

Originally 240 pennies were made from the pound of silver, and although the pound (sterling) has become a measure of value and not of weight, the relation to the old value standard continues—240 pence to the pound (sterling).

The English word "shilling" has a geographical origin that is quite different. It was first used by the blonde barbarians of the North. These warriors and their opponents were given to wearing rings and arm bands made of silver or gold. After battles the rings of the slain were highly prized by the victors, and were gathered and properly distributed by an official who had charge of this division of spoils. He was known as the ring-breaker and was actually the first treasury official of these northern tribes.

The rings were so made that they broke up into bits of a somewhat uniform size. One fragment was called a "schillingas." In the North, it was an early form of money, and from it came the shilling, so dear to the English heart today.

The world was short of actual money from Caesar to Columbus. There was little progress during that long stretch and there appears to be some soundness in the theory that the absence of a circulating medium of sufficient quantity to make development possible was, in part, the reason for the stagnation. Yet, despite its scarcity, money events were taking place about the map of Europe and seem, in retrospect, to have been in preparation for the coming of better days.

Origin of the Dollar.
Toward the end of the time of shortage there appeared in the interior of medieval Europe an individual who was to write a chapter of money history that has come down strangely into modern times, and to give a new nation of the West a currency unit that was to have a profound effect. This man made the first dollar in all the world, and gave it a name—which, though the etymology is not apparent at a glance, becomes upon examination the lineal ancestor of the word "dollar."

The count of Schlick, for such was his title, dwelt in St. Joachimsthal (Joachim's Dale), a mining region of Bohemia. The patron saint of the community was St. Joachim.

Here the count of Schlick, in 1516, appropriated a silver mine. As his retainers took out the precious metal, the master laid his finger to his temple and considered the purpose to which he should put it. He must have been a man of perception, for he seemed to realize that he dwelt in a money-hungry world, and that his silver would serve best if made into coin.

At any rate, he devised a new one all his own. On its face appeared a reproduction of St. Joachim, and it was named after that personage and the community which gave it birth—Joachimsthaler. It was the first dollar.

Now note the evolution of the word "dollar" from this its polysyllabic ancestor. When the Joachimsthaler found its way into medieval Germany it was warmly welcomed. A practical people, however, soon tired of the length of its name, and by a judicious dropping of syllables it became the "thaler." The word in that form still survives in Germany.

When the thaler passed into the Netherlands its pronunciation was somewhat changed. There it was called the "daler." Then it crossed to England, where, by use of the broad "a," daler became "dollar." Under this modified name and geographically transplanted, the Joachimsthaler of the count of Schlick has grown and prospered.

CELTIC LANGUAGES CYMRIC AND GAELIC

Both Irish and Welsh are living languages. They belong to the Celtic group, as English belongs to the Teutonic group. Celtic languages are divided into two sections, the Cymric and the Gaelic. The Irish language, or Gaelic of Ireland, as well as the Scots' Gaelic and Manx come within the latter category, while the Welsh belongs to the Cymric group. The languages within each of these groups resemble one another closely, yet they present many important points of difference. The Welsh has an almost perfectly phonetic spelling; while the Irish spelling is historical and consequently does not give a true picture of its present pronunciation.

Irish (Gaelic of Ireland), which is more than two thousand years old, was perhaps the only language used in Ireland before the introduction of Christianity. Then came Latin, but it did not displace Gaelic. Gaelic remained the language of the people, and the English emigrants to Ireland learned to speak it. But Cromwell's accession to power marked the end of its supremacy. Under his laws the Irish had to become English in speech, thought and religion or become deprived of educational opportunities. The inhabitants of the Pale—a strip of territory on the eastern coast of the island nearest to England—took up English, but those outside of the Pale remained Irish and consequently had fewer educational advantages.

During the last half-century many attempts have been made to restore the ancient Irish language and culture, and Irish is now, under the Free State, the official language, although the English language is equally recognized. The Irish language is a compulsory subject in the schools, the Gaelic league carries on the work of teaching adults, and many other organizations endeavor to establish the habit of speaking Irish so that it may permeate every aspect of social life.

But it has not yet reached the date of the senate; Irish is rarely, if ever, spoken in either of these two houses.

Welsh is the nearest sister tongue to Gaelic, and over a short stretch of sea is spoken by perhaps a million people. It is the language of church and chapel and produces a large crop of prose and poetry. It is the mother tongue of Lloyd George.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Japan Has Earned Name, "Cherry Blossom Land"

Many tourists visited Japan during April, especially in order to see the cherry blossoms. Japan's cherry blossom season is like that of no other land. It lasts for only a few weeks in April, but during that short period the whole country seems a delightful garden. Japan, indeed, has been given the name of "Cherry Blossom Land." Japanese are trying to cultivate a type of cherry tree which will blossom three times a year instead of only once. In this way it is hoped that Japan may be made even more popular as a holiday resort. They are passionate lovers of natural beauty, and the cherry trees seen in every garden are grown for flowers and not for fruit.

Leprosy

There are at present from 600 to 800 leprosy patients in the United States and approximately 3,000,000 lepers in the world, says Hygein Magazine. Most of the lepers in this country are confined to the leprosarium at Carville, La. A recent report shows that only one of the thirty-one who were discharged as cured had a relapse.

Friendship Marred by Distance in New York

In New York city it is possible to know an infinite variety of good citizens. You may scrape up an acquaintance with showgirls, professors of applied therapeutics, novelists, pugilists, Hindu swamis, tabloid reporters, toe dancers and captains of South American banana boats. You may even become warm friends of a bibliomaniac or a Hoboken bartender.

But what good will they do you? If you live in the Bronx, your best friends invariably live in Flatbush, and if you live on City Island, the boon companions you are just dying to see always reside in Jamaica or Jersey City.

So that if you are projecting an hour's friendly call, you have to travel on the subways two hours; you are mauled by the theater crowd, and manhandled by the downtown warehouse watchmen going uptown to sleep and the uptown swells going downtown to play.

And when you arrive at your friend's house at 10:00 p. m., limp and shopworn, you find, of course, that he has quit waiting for you and has gone to a Rumanian fish house three blocks from your home which you left two hours ago.

Friendship in New York becomes too often a terrific chore. It is far easier to be content with the casual folk you rub against where your business or your thirst takes you. As a rule, therefore, the "people to your taste" are not to your taste in any deeper, spiritual sense, but they simply frequent the same resort or restaurant you do and are tolerable only because they can speak your jargon of art or business and do not attempt to assault you with beer mugs.—Ernest L. Meyer in the Forum and Century.

Lost 20 Lbs. of Fat In Just 4 Weeks

Mrs. Mae West of St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I'm only 25 yrs. old and weighed 170 lbs. until taking one box of your Kruscher Salts just 4 weeks ago. I now weigh 150 lbs. I also have more energy and furthermore I've never had a hungry moment."

Fat folks should take one half teaspoonful of Kruscher Salts in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast—an 85 cent bottle lasts 4 weeks—you can get Kruscher at any drug store in America. If not joyfully satisfied after the first bottle—money back.

Clemente Hightower Dies at Reserve, N. M.

Perry Hightower of Lincoln has just returned from Reserve, where he attended the funeral of his father, Clemente Hightower, who died at that place on August 4th.

Mr. Hightower was well known in this county, having resided at Hondo for many years, during which time he taught school and was at one time a member of the New Mexico State Legislature. He was well informed—a writer of much merit, and a fluent interpreter, doing most of the work of this nature at all the Republican county conventions and also at state conventions at different times. He was familiar with historic facts connected with this county, many of which he described in his articles to the press at various times.

He leaves a wife, one daughter, Mrs. A. T. Allwood of Reserve; three sons, Cree of Reserve, Perry of Lincoln and Willis of El Paso. He was born at Little Rock, Arkansas, and was 72 years of age at the time of his death. The surviving relatives have the sympathy of their friends in Lincoln County.

Mr. Graves traveled last year with his orchestra, composed of six pieces. Violin, two saxophones, guitar, piano and drums. The Graves family, Mr. Graves, wife and 4 children compose the orchestra and they are all trained musicians. Here is what one of Roswell's officials thinks of Graves' "Sunshine Six."

To Whom it May Concern—
"I have known Mr. Graves and family for a number of years and am pleased to say that I have found them to be honest, enterprising, of the best character, and one of the best organizations of musicians I have ever known."

Mr. Treib Pays Us a Visit

E. C. Treib, Lessee of the Lyric Theatre was here Monday from Roswell, and after inspecting the equipment of the theatre which he found to be 100% in every way, left Tuesday morning.

Mr. Treib has two theatres in Roswell, the Princess and the Capitan, both of which have been lately remodeled. He expressed himself as being well satisfied in the manner in which Mr. Earnest has his equipment in operation at the Lyric. "The sound," said Mr. Treib, "is equally as good as we have in either of our theatres in Roswell."

There is a good line-up of pictures dated for Carrizozo, and a visit to the theatre will convince the most skeptical of the fact that the sound reception is as good as any in the southwest. Give the local amusement enterprise your support and become a regular patron.

Miss Louise Sweet

wrote this office a nice letter this week. Miss Louise is undergoing advanced study on the violin at the Conservatory of Music at Cincinnati, Ohio. She has been very busy with her course, but has found some periods which have enabled her to become better acquainted with Cincinnati and its people, whom it has afforded her great pleasure to meet. She has also visited the many places of interest in the city and vicinity, where Miss Louise has been courteously entertained - but still contends "there's no place like home." She will leave Cincinnati for home about Aug. 29.

Birthday Theatre Party

Last Saturday, Aug. 15, being the 18th birthday of little Miss Margaret Shafer, Mrs. Shafer entertained in her honor with a line theatre party, the guests numbering twelve. After attending the Lyric, they were taken to the Shafer home, where the hostess served dainty refreshments.

E. L. Christian, traveling freight agent for the S. P. lines, was here yesterday and made this office a pleasant call.

LOCAL MENTION

Wayne Zumwalt will fill the vacancy of Mr. Null as Cashier of the First State Bank at Mountainair. The Nulls are returning to Marysville, Mo., their old home. - Estancia News-Herald. Ed. note--Wayne was at one time with the First National Bank of Carrizozo and Mountainair has made a valuable addition to their list of residents in the coming of Mr. and Mrs. Zumwalt.

Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of Estancia Rose and family were here last week, Mr. Rose working in the interest of a highway that will connect the country to the extreme north, forming a link with the Canadian highways. Mr. Rose was editor of the Outlook in the early days of Carrizozo; he recalled many things of interest still here, and reminded him of the days when Carrizozo was in her swaddling clothes.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. H. Thornton of Oscura were Carrizozo visitors on Tuesday of this week.

This office acknowledges the receipt of a nice, new letter from our old friend and former resident of Fort Stanton, W. S. Howson, who is now located at New Orleans in the employ of the government. After saying that he enjoys the weekly visits of the Outlook, where he reads about his many friends in Lincoln County whom he wishes well and sends his best regards. Mr. Howson resided at the Fort for a number of years, during which time he made many lasting friends not only there, but over the County.

Professor and Mrs. D. U. Groce spent a portion of the week at Corona, assisting Prof. Groce's sister, who is locating there and will teach in the Corona schools for the fall and winter term.

Sheriff John E. Brady and Henry Delgado were Roswell business visitors the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. A. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Robinson came through here yesterday from Three Rivers and went on to Santa Fe where they will transact some business, after which they will visit the different historical points at the ancient city. They will return about Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. U. Finley left yesterday morning for Roswell where they will attend the State Golf Association which will be held today and tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Lovelace were here Tuesday from Corona attending to some business matters and returning to their ranch in the evening. They were greatly elated over the good rains they have had in the Corona district of late, which insures a fine range for the coming winter season. Water holes in that vicinity are well filled, stock is fat and healthy.

John Scharl was here Monday from White Oaks and his smile told how well he was pleased with the good moisture they have had in that locality during the past week.

This For That

Announcing the Opening

Of the Carrizozo Public Schools
Monday, August 31, 1931, 8:30 A. M.

The Carrizozo Schools are up-to-date in every respect and fully accredited. The faculty is composed of college men and women who are Specialists in the subjects that they teach.

This year, the Carrizozo High School offers the largest and most complete curricula ever offered in the history of the school. New elective courses in Science, Commerce, History and Music will be added to increase the total number of units in all subjects to 31 this year.

Parents residing outside of the Carrizozo School District are invited to enter their children in the Carrizozo Schools this year, free of tuition charge.

High School Education is more valuable today than ever before in the history of the world. Increased competition in all lines of human endeavor coupled with an unparalleled increase in high school attendance places a severe and lasting handicap on the youth who is without high school training.

Statistics prove that every day spent in high school is worth $10.50 to the student in money value alone as based upon the increased earnings of high school graduates over the earnings of individuals not thus trained.

Today, High School Education is the Nation's Birthright of Youth in terms of service, economic independence, and happiness. Carrizozo High School earnestly desires to serve this Community and Nation by helping young men and women to acquire this Heritage of Great Price.

Mrs. Christian Schale

Edith Degg was born in Heddesford, Staffordshire, England, May 29, 1870. She died in El Paso, Texas, August 12, 1931. She married Christian Schale in 1886. To this union, eleven children were born: Geo. W. Schale, Albert Schale, Mesdames Marie Disinger, Edith Van Schoyck, Jane Eaker, Josephine Brungardt, Mabel Kessel, Misses Minnie, Dorothy, Blanche, and Fred Schale, the two last named preceding their mother in death.

Besides her children, Mrs. Schale leaves a sister, Mrs. Blanche Bailey and nine grandchildren to mourn her passing. Mrs. Schale accepted Christ as her saviour and united with the Episcopal church early in life.

After brief services conducted at the cemetery by the Reverend John L. Lawson, Saturday morning, August 15, the body was laid to rest beside her husband in the White Oaks cemetery. To the surviving relatives, the sympathy of this and surrounding communities is extended.

Miss Belle Lutz left Saturday for Dalhart, Tex., where she will visit for several weeks with her sister, Mrs. O. W. Bamberger and family.

Attention, Masons!

There will be a Regular Communication of Carrizozo Lodge No. 41, A. F. & A. M., on Saturday night, Aug. 22, for the purpose of business.

All Master Masons are cordially invited.
E. M. Brickley, W. M.,
R. E. Lemon, Secretary.

Nogal Items

Chas. F. Burton, employee on the LeBaron ranch, has returned from Louisiana where he visited relatives and friends.

Marion Hust and family were up from their ranch near Oscura last week.

Jesse Peacock and wife, Orley Brack and family were here from Hagerman last week for a few days' visit.

We received the sad news of the death of R. C. Skinner last week with regrets.

Geo. Hust, who was operated on a short while back, is practically well now.

Ethel May and son-in-law Paul Vandergriff made a trip to southern Texas for a short visit with her parents. They returned to Nogal this week.

Silas May of Tucuman passed through Nogal on Wednesday of last week.

Ethel Maloney is here this week from Phoenix, visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Helms.

The Graves' Orchestra will be greatly improved now, as they have added another musician to the organization.

Albert May, who has been in El Paso receiving treatment for his eyesight, is back home and aside from his eyes being very weak, he is somewhat better.

Wm. Ferguson and his road crew have greatly improved the roads which were badly washed out during the recent rains.

For Sale-Nice, Fat Hens; R. I. Reds and Banded Plymouth Rocks.-Jesse J. May, Nogal.

Counts Time Spent on

Study of "Math" Wasted
I believe that an appalling amount of time is spent in childhood in learning things which don't matter, remembering things which will never be needed, and doing silly tricks which an intelligent man need never waste his time upon.
Let us contemplate, for example, the absurdities and abominations of arithmetic. At a conservative estimate, I have myself wrestled with arithmetic and its related studies through ten years of my irreplaceable youth.
I was, moreover, pretty good at it; I could throw a mean logarithm and chase a cotangent into a corner and dig my hat on it. I have done all the geometry, plain and fancy, and delicately in calculus. I once make an advanced algebra say "Uncle."
You that not a trace of it but furthermore I don't must be a large blank which was once but it isn't the but for a reason- multiplication of arith- which is st- will take an a ray to be "uncle."

Texas. They were accompanied by Mr. Dishman's mother and a niece who have been here for a short visit.

Active construction on the new schoolhouse began Tuesday and is progressing rapidly.

Mrs. Edgar Ogden stopped overnight enroute to visit friends in Santa Rosa. Miss Dorothy Arnold returned with her from El Paso and will remain here for a few days before joining Mrs. Ogden on her return trip.

The C. E. Porter family and Delbert Jolly are attending the First American in Albuquerque.

Bryce Ward is in Albuquerque for a few days. Jack Kemper is looking after his business while he is away.

Mr. and Mrs. Fornham of Joplin, Mo., have been spending a few days here. Mrs. Fornham has returned to Joplin to make arrangements to move to Corona where she will join her husband who has purchased the Richards hotel and filling station at Torrance.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Eagleton and Mrs. Nay Service are guests this week at the M. C. Richards home in Alamogordo.

Mrs. W. C. Monk is enjoying the visit of her sister and family from Houston, Texas.

Word has been received from Mr. and Mrs. Paul Long and Verdin Cleghorn, who moved last week to a new home on the California coast.

Drowning

Seferino Montoya was drowned while attempting to swim across the Big Tank two miles south of Corona last week. Rescuers were more than two hours in getting him to the bank. All efforts at resuscitation proved futile. Burial was made in the local cemetery. He is survived by his wife, two children, his parents and three sisters, to all of whom our sincere sympathy is extended. Seferino was born in Carrizozo; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dionicio Montoya, residing here for several years before moving to Corona.

Mrs. Alice M. French

County School Superintendent, has been called to Santa Fe by Mrs. Lusk, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, to attend a meeting of the County Superintendents throughout the State.

All schools throughout the County will open on Monday, Sept. 7th.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Payne, daughter June and Miss Gerhardt of Abilene, Tex., a cousin to Mrs. Payne, were here from their ranch near Capitan last Saturday. Miss Gerhardt is paying a visit to the Payne family and likes our part of the state very much and we hope that she will come again.

Murder at San Patricio

Tuesday afternoon at about 1:30, Bruce Wilson, 55, shot and killed Jim T. Boatwright. The two men had had several quarrels, the first about three months ago and the second nearly a month ago, at which time the victim said that Wilson had made an attempt to go into his pocket after a gun, at which, Boatwright knocked him down. There was no further trouble until Tuesday afternoon at the time mentioned above, when Boatwright went to Wilson's house and as he entered, Wilson, who was sitting on his bed engaged in conversation with a Spanish-American lad of 16, fired five shots into his body with a .45 calibre gun, killing him instantly.

This is the story given to us by Sheriff John E. Brady, who received the statement from the young man, who was the only eye witness to the shooting. At the preliminary hearing before Justice Gallegos of San Patricio, Wilson was bound over to await the action of the District Court without bail. Sheriff Brady brought his prisoner with him and placed him in the county jail.

Salvation Army Campaign

Baron Auriemma is here this week winding up his campaign for the Salvation Army. He delivered a religious address at Lincoln Sunday and sang "The Holy City," with Mrs. J. M. Penfield at the piano. At 3 p. m. he sang in Ward 10 at Fort Stanton "God Touched the Rose," "When the River Shannon Flows," "Absent" and "Let Me Call You Sweetheart." This was followed by a program in the dining hall as follows: "The Hills of Home," "Invictus," "The Blind Ploughman," "Holy City," "La Donna Mobile," "O Sole Mio," "It A Depends on You," "Springtime in the Rockies," and "Good Night Sweet Dreams," in all of which selections he was accompanied by Mrs. W. C. Hendren at the piano.

The receipts so far from the places visited are as follows: Capitan $70; Fort Stanton $67.50; Lincoln $31; Corona $88, as Carrizozo $275, making a total of $581.59 at this writing and it is expected that the total will reach the $800 mark before the close of the week. To all whom contributed to the fund and assisted in the musical programs at different places, the Baron extends his thanks.

HEARD ABOUT TOWN

Editor Will LaPoint of the Las Cruces Citizen, Mrs. LaPoint and children paid the Outlook family a pleasant visit the latter part of last week. They were on their return trip home from the Grand Canyon, visiting friends at Santa Fe, Albuquerque and Las Vegas on their way home. Bill has been wanting to take this trip for five years, but has been too busy to do so, until at the present time. Will has been ill of late, but his condition now shows a marked improvement. That's right, Bill, don't forget the number, and many thanks for the visit—we enjoyed it.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Franke and children of Corona were Carrizozo visitors on Saturday of last week.

Mesdames Robert Keil and C. F. Gray and their children left Monday morning for Tucson, where Mrs. Gray will visit with her sister's family for several weeks. Mrs. Keil had been here for three weeks, during which she divided her time visiting her parents at their ranch home; her sisters, Mesdames Gray of Carrizozo, Ward of White Oaks and Hightower of Ancho and their families.

Heard this one the other day—Some one was talkin' about dogs, and which they thought was the best watch dog. One fellow spoke up and said: "A peculiar incident occurred last night, when our dog made a mistake. He thought there were burglars in the house—he finally ended up by biting my wife." —Some Purpl!

Clemente Hightower Dies at Reserve, N. M.

Perry Hightower of Lincoln has just returned from Reserve, where he attended the funeral of his father, Clemente Hightower, who died at that place on August 4th.

Mr. Hightower was well known in this county, having resided at Hondo for many years, during which time he taught school and was at one time a member of the New Mexico State Legislature. He was well informed—a writer of much merit, and a fluent interpreter, doing most of the work of this nature at all the Republican county conventions and also at state conventions at different times. He was familiar with historic facts connected with this county, many of which he described in his articles to the press at various times.

He leaves a wife, one daughter, Mrs. A. T. Allwood of Reserve; three sons, Cree of Reserve, Perry of Lincoln and Willis of El Paso. He was born at Little Rock, Arkansas, and was 72 years of age at the time of his death. The surviving relatives have the sympathy of their friends in Lincoln County.

You can't be your best without God, any more than the daisies can bloom without sunshine. You can't explain God, but neither the daisies can explain sunshine. All the schooling that it is possible to get—if you have no God, of what use is it? You want to be more than cultured machines. You want to know Him whom to know is life eternal. When you know Him, all the rest will be useful and you will be better equipped for every good word and work—Gipsy Smith.

Native Turquoise Indian-made Rings are all the vogue. These rings are strictly Indian made, not in a factory in the east. What is a nicer gift to send a friend in the east, than a native turquoise ring? It is typical of New Mexico, "something different" that can only be procured in the west. We have them in all styles and prices. — Outlook Art & Gift Shop.

Skinner's Grocery

Remember Your Pocketbook and N-o-t your Adam's Apple when you get ready to buy your Groceries. Your Adam's Apple will never notice the differences between high and low prices, but your Pocketbook will.

If you squander your money on high-priced groceries, your pocketbook will suffer, but your Adam's Apple will remain the same. If you form a partnership with your pocketbook, the savings you'll realize will be mutual.

It is the same with fresh, wholesome meats. If you buy at our store, you buy fresh groceries and meats, because we sell quickly and keep the stock moving. If you don't believe it, try an order and see for yourself.—Adios!

Fire Department Tryout

Hurrah and a couple o' whoops! We heard the roundhouse whistle again Wednesday, it being blown on the tryout of the fire department. We now propose that Fire Chief Beck have the tryout three times a day—at the hours of 12, 1 and 6 o'clock, so that we will be reminded of going to lunch, to work and of the time for dinner. The bright red automobile fire truck furnishes the kids with a real city attraction. P. S. — The truck has a siren whistle, too.

Graves "Sunshine Six"

The Nogal Amusement Hall has good crowds every Saturday night and everybody enjoys themselves. Mr. Graves says he has been playing for the last 30 years at different places over the country and has never had more orderly patrons than those who attend the Nogal dances, for people soon learn that Mr. Graves will not allow anything in the way of misconduct.

Mr. Graves traveled last year with his orchestra composed of six pieces. Violin, two saxophones, guitar, piano and drums. The Graves family, Mr. Graves, wife and 4 children compose the orchestra and they are all trained musicians. Here is what one of Roswell's officials thinks of Graves "Sunshine Six."

To Whom it May Concern—
"I have known Mr. Graves and family for a number of years and am pleased to say that I have found them to be honest, enterprising, of the best character, and one of the best organizations of musicians I have ever known."

W. C. Winston, Police Judge, Roswell, N. M.

If you want to go where you may enjoy yourself in dancing to the best music in the state, come to Nogal. Ask the orchestra to play "The Nogal Blues," composed by the youngest member of the orchestra.—Advertisement.
