Willis R. Lovelace was down from Corona this week on business.

Adjust Your Car to Winter Weather Conditions

With the coming of the wide temperature ranges experienced at this season of the year, the motorist will find it to his advantage to have the motor retuned and adjusted, according to M. D. Douglas, General Parts and Service Manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company. One of the distinct advantages of the modern automobile over its early predecessors is found in the fact that the motor today can be adjusted to give maximum performance in all seasons. A motorist who drives through the winter with a car adjusted to summer weather conditions deprives himself of much of the car's capacity for performance and needlessly increases its operating expense. Mr. Douglas said.

The carburetor should be checked, and the valves should be adjusted to prevent loss of compression. The ignition system, especially the timing, should be cleaned thoroughly and checked up for proper adjustment; the proper functioning of the ignition system is essential to easy starting on cold mornings. Other suggestions made by Mr. Douglas include a thorough flushing out and cleaning of the cooling system; drafting and refilling it with a good grade of oil. And, perhaps most important of all, the brakes should be adjusted, or, if necessary, relined.

Attorney H. B. Hamilton is here this week from El Paso attending to court matters.

Robbery at High School

Last Friday night, thieves entered the high school building, forced an entrance to Superintendent Groce's office, turned everything topsy-turvy, but left the records undisturbed. In checking up Saturday morning, a trumpet, the property of Ansel Swearingen, was missing. The only clue to the theft is that Sept. L. Skinner of the Bonito water system for the S. P., saw a man at Nogal with an instrument which answered closely to the description of the missing trumpet, but that Mr. Skinner had no knowledge of the theft. The man went on toward Roswell and officers at that place have been notified to keep on the lookout for the thief.

NOGAL NEWS

Mr. Daniels, mining man from Roswell, was here Tuesday. Mr. Daniels expects to have the mines in Nogal Canyon working soon.

Messrs. Joyce and Helmer of Roswell are trying to make a deal for the Helen Rae mine and if they succeed, they will put the mine in operation.

FOR SALE—About 150 boxes of nice apples; three varieties. Orchard R. U. N. $1 per box. Selected Apples $1.50. Will be ready for sale about Nov. 15th. —See Jesse J. May, Nogal.

Marvin Peacock and wife returned Tuesday from San Francisco where Marvin had his tonsils removed. They liked the Golden State very much, but it sure is cold there, Marvin said, and after seeing people wearing their overcoats at this time of the year, you want to come back where sunshine is visible.

A. J. McBrayer and family of Carrizozo passed through here Saturday on their way to the E. N. M. Fair at Roswell.

Miss Irene Zumwalt has returned to Nogal.

Mrs. Sam Cox was down from Fort Stanton Sunday, visiting her parents.

NOTICE—Hunters, I have a good 25-35 Winchester for sale. Practically new and very cheap. —See Jesse J. May, Nogal.

Baptist Church (L. D. Jordan, Pastor)

R. V. Shaw, Sunday School Supt.
10 a. m.—Sunday School.
11 a. m.—Sermon, "Cleansing the Temple," by the Pastor.
7:30 p. m.—Rev. J. C. Owens, Sec'y of the Baptist State Mission Board, will preach at the evening service. Everybody cordially welcomed to all these services.
Money measures a man. It is not how much money you have, but what you do with what you have. There are working girls in our church who are giving more than men and women who live in fine houses and drive multiple-motored cars. See? We have widows in our church who are working with their hands to support their little children and who are giving far more than people who live in luxury. They are putting God first and He is richly blessing them.—Louie D. Newton.

Methodist Church

Preaching at Capitan next Sunday morning; at Carrizozo at 7:30 in the evening.
84 in Sunday School in Carrizozo last Sunday.

Miss Hortense E. Payne, who stayed over here for about two weeks while on a return trip from San Francisco to Clarkburg, West Virginia, left the latter part of last week for her home in the above named city. Miss Payne travels a great deal and is now planning on a pleasure trip to Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gallacher are on a bear-hunting trip to Silver City.

Rolland's Drug Store Burglarized

Last Sunday night, thieves broke into Rolland's Drug Store by making a hole in the 'dobe wall in the rear of the building and entering in between two shelves. The thieves first tried to force an entrance through the back door, but failing in this, they dug through the wall. Many things were taken among which was all of the jewelry in the cases, all of the candy in the one and two-pound packages, all of the face powder, perfume, cold creams, etc.; all of the cigarettes. The cash register, which is always left open, was robbed of cash to the extent of $7.55, we understand. They opened the case containing scissors and after taking several pair, used one of the finest in trying to open another case, left it in a badly bent condition. Mr. Rolland had not at this writing checked entirely up on the loss, but presumably, it will reach over the $400 mark.

Missionary Society

The Quarterly Zone meeting took place in an all-day session at the home of Mrs. Spencer on Thursday, Oct. 8, with the Carrizozo Auxiliary acting as hostesses to the Capitan, Tularosa and Alamogordo Auxiliaries. About 35 were in attendance and the regular routine of work and program was observed.

The regular monthly meeting was held Wednesday, Oct. 14, at the home of Mrs. J. E. Hall, with Meses Walker, Collier and Smith as assistant hostesses. Mrs. Spencer was leader of the devotional and the entire program was interesting and well given. Mrs. Boughner presided over the business session. Mrs. J. V. Taylor of Oscura is the new member for the month.

"God and the Census" and "Christ Comes to the Village" are two new mission study books recommended for beginners in mission study. The Week of Prayer to be observed throughout the Church is designated as Nov. 1st to 7th, inclusive.

C'mon! Get ready for the Fair. Of course, you'll come.

Ancho Broadlandings

Wayne VanScoyck came over from White Oaks Sunday, returning in the evening, accompanied by Jess Vandervort, who spent Monday as a guest at the Van Scoyck home.

Henry Morris made a business trip to El Paso the first of the week.

Robt. and Jack Lemasters were Carrizozo visitors Monday.

L. L. Peters is in White Oaks assisting in drilling a well on the Sam Wells ranch.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Comrey came over from Capitan the first of the week, Harry staying on his homestead north of Ancho.

Mrs. Bowers of Nogal was a guest at the Dale home Wednesday.

Jesse Dyer was in Ancho Wednesday on business.

Mrs. Floyd Ellis has returned from a short visit with her mother in Roswell. The Ellis family are interested in mining and we welcome these young people to our community.

Vice President, New Mexico Scottish Rite

Santa Fe New Mexican: Jacob O. Jacobson of Albuquerque was elected president of the William Griffin class of Masons receiving the Scottish Rite degree at the Temple and Mayo W. Hamilton was elected vice president. Mayo or Pat, as he is better known to us, is one of our former Carrizozo boys and we congratulate him on his election and hope that at the next turn of the wheel, he will go to top—and you will Pat, unless we miss our guess. Harry Gallacher of Carrizozo was one of the candidates to receive the degree.

George Blaney, brother to our local dentist, Dr. R. E. Blaney, was a guest of the Blaneys one day last week, while on his way from his home in Upland, Calif., to Chicago, on a business trip.

LOCAL MENTION

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Ross and infant daughter came in last Saturday from Oklahoma City and will visit Charlie's parents, Druggist and Mrs. J. S. Ross for several weeks.

Miss Mary Bell, sister of Miss Ella of the First National Bank, who has been attending school at Raton, came in Monday and will remain in Carrizozo for an indefinite period. Mary liked Raton, but the altitude proved too high for her is the reason for coming back to Carrizozo.

The dance last Saturday night at White Oaks given by the "Gloom Chasers" was as usual, well attended. Those who were in attendance say it was one of the best given at that place for a long time. The "Gloom Chasers" are rapidly coming into prominence because they deliver the goods and give the dance fans a good run for their money.

Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Shaw, son Melbourne, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Burke and son Lewis, made a trip to the White Sands across from Tularosa last Sunday afternoon. On the return trip, they stopped for dinner at Mrs. Maude Fribley's Hotel, where the landlady's good home-cooked meals are so popular with Carrizozo people who visit at Tularosa. After dinner, the party motored back, arriving home at 8 p. m.

J. Benson Nowell, popular attorney, is here this week in the interest of court matters.

Col. G. W. Pritchard, veteran attorney, is in Carrizozo for several days this week, attending to court matters.

On Wednesday of this week, our old friend Bill Wettstein was appointed postmaster of the office at Oscura. The office is on the right side of the highway and directly opposite the depot. Bill will operate a filling station next door to the postoffice and will also sell groceries, cigars, tobaccos, etc. Give Bill a break when you're down his way.

Mrs. Stebbins, sister to Mrs. F. H. Johnson, who had been visiting the Johnsons for two weeks, left last Friday for her home in Salina, Kansas.

Marion Jolly was here Wednesday from Corona attending to some minor court matters. Marion's crop is in splendid condition this year.

Earl Rountree was here Wednesday from Capitan.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Lemon and son Maurice returned Monday from White City, Kans., where they attended the funeral of Mr. Lemon's mother. Maurice went on to Roswell, where he is attending the Military Institute.

District Court convened Monday, Judge Frenger presiding and District Attorney Newell acting in his official capacity. As usual, the first two days were spent in arranging the docket. The Grand Jury returned two true bills and six no-bills. In the case of the State of New Mexico vs. Hayden Gilbert, charged with murder, attorneys for defendant secured a change of venue to Dona Ana county.

ANCHO NOTES

Harry Straley is home after absence of several months, spent in south Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Weathersbee and Mrs. E. J. Weathersbee have returned to Oklahoma City after a brief visit with the Curtis Weathersbee family.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Gipson and Mr. Bridges motored to Carrizozo for dinner last Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Comrey, accompanied by Mr. Comrey's niece were here Wednesday from Capitan visiting with the R. L. Hale family.

H. A. Morris made a business trip to El Paso this week.

"Nig" Littell was in Ancho Sunday from White Oaks.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. L. Davis and G. M. Davis went to Carrizozo Tuesday morning, returning home in the afternoon.

Mrs. Lee Simpson and the new addition to the Simpson family, Theresa Lucille, are at Tecolote where Mr. Simpson is section foreman.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Egneto have arrived from Deming and will live at Luna, Mr. Egneto having been employed at the Luna pumping station.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Straley, Mrs. Joe Roscoe and H. L. Martin returned to El Paso Monday after spending the week-end at Luna.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Pruett were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alix Hubbard at Coyote Friday evening.

Mrs. Geo. Titworth of Capitan was guest of Mrs. C. C. Balknap for a few days last week. On Friday night, Oct. 9, Mrs. Balknap entertained with a party, complimentary to Mrs. Titworth. Three tables were assembled for Bridge which was the diversion of the evening. Mrs. Grover Pruett made high score. Dainty refreshments were served.

The Woman's Club held its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. J. E. Frame Saturday. Special guest from out-of-town was Mrs. Geo. Titworth of Capitan. The penny contest closed with Mrs. Allen Kile's side being victorious. The losing side of which Mrs. B. W. Wilson was captain, will entertain the winning side. After a lengthy business session a social hour was enjoyed. In the pencil game, Mrs. S. J. Pruett won first prize and Mrs. L. L. Peters the consolation. A delectable two course menu was served. Next meeting will be with Mrs. Bryan Hightower on October 24th.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Storeys were Alamogordo visitors for two days this week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Frame, Mrs. Bill Reynolds and Miss June Caldwell attended the dance at White Oaks Saturday night.

Miss Maudie Warden spent the week-end at the Warden ranch.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hall, Sr., enjoyed a visit Sunday from attorney and Mrs. J. E. Hall, Jr., daughter Jeane and Ralph Hall of Carrizozo.

Rev. Jordan came up from Carrizozo Saturday, but owing to inclement weather no services were held Sunday.

EQUALITY

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

AS USUALLY the sunlight falls on things that are not so bright. And so, with all of our canting, our words of making, such of speaking, our holding high, and working great. A little better than the crowd. What nothing in God's scheme, my brothers, that makes us better than the others.

The workman standing by your door may be a laborer, no matter. But who here has no mouth, wealth or beauty?

They have no death or duty? You are a laborer, I guess. Oh, it's not that, then something less, a word beside the road of living, walking and eating, nothing giving.

There is but one nobility: You may be better, friend, than me, but only if you better labor for God and world and land and neighbor. If I were like, I would ask, for find myself, some sort of work, for men are only equal, brothers. Who labor somehow with the others on this earth, brother—work service.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

OLD MAN COYOTE WARNS PETER

PETER had a bad dream that when Old Man Coyote saw Peter's head sticking out of the window he would catch it and eat it. Peter was so scared that he didn't sleep a wink. He had to get up and look out the window to see if Old Man Coyote was there. He saw nothing but the stars and the moon. He went back to bed and fell right off.

He generally got into trouble. You can't really tell anything on with Old Man Coyote. He was the old of Peter's party. Peter was just a boy and he had had a bad dream. You wouldn't have made me as good a Coyote as one of those guys but you would have done very well.

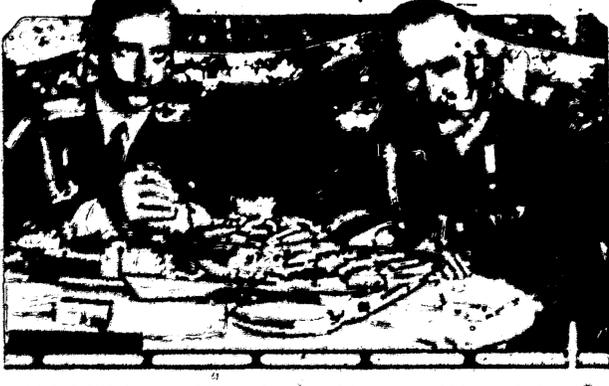

And now I am going to give you this warning, Peter. You see Old Man Coyote will be coming. What unless you get me a gun, a fat one, and you to make up for the one you started me on of you'll never get back to the Old Man Coyote. You see I'm giving you this warning. I must have a gun or I will have you. Now don't you wish you had a gun?

"All right, Peter," replied Old Man Coyote as he turned to trot away. "Remember what I said and get me a fat goose if you want to get back to the Old Man Coyote. Peter was so scared that he didn't sleep a wink. He had to get up and look out the window to see if Old Man Coyote was there. He saw nothing but the stars and the moon. He went back to bed and fell right off.

stuff. Mix thoroughly, put into a mold and leave in a cold place to mold. Serve with a mayonnaise dressing to which two tablespoons each of chopped green pepper and celery have been added to a cupful of the dressing.

Mock Paté de Foie Gras.
Put one pound of calf's liver, one pound salt pork, through a food chopper. Beat two eggs until light and fold in one cupful of bread crumbs, one-half cupful of milk, one medium-sized onion finely chopped or grated, four sprigs of parsley, salt and pepper to season. After mixing well turn into a greased pudding dish. Cover tightly and steam four hours. This may be served hot or cold.

Butterscotch Pie.
Take two cupfuls of brown sugar, the yolks of three eggs lightly beaten, four tablespoons of flour, one tablespoonful of butter, and cook until thick with two cupfuls of milk, a pinch of salt. Pour into a baked crust and cover with a meringue, using the egg whites and two tablespoons of sugar. Brown in a moderate oven. This makes enough filling for two pies.

Almond Cheese Cakes.
"Briskly beat to lightness due eggs a few. With the eggs so beaten, beat—Nicerly strained, for this same use—Lemon Juice. Adding milk of almonds, sweet. With fine pastry dough, rolled flat. After that, line each little scalloped mold; Round the sides, light-fingered, spread Marmalade: Pour the liquid egg gold into each delicate pit: Prick it. In the oven—and, by and by, Almond cheese cakes will in gay Blood array Bless your nostril and your eye." —Magnesian in "Cyrano."

Fresh Laborer Salad.
This is a perfect salad when prepared from a freshly boiled laborer. The laborer should be boiled with a tablespoonful of salt and a few pepper corns in rapidly boiling water for forty minutes, remove and cool. If cooked this length of time the meat is easily removed from the shell and is more tender. Cut the meat into fair-sized pieces, add half as much dried celery and enough french dressing to moisten. Let stand an hour or more, drain and serve in nests of lettuce with mayonnaise dressing. All ingredients should be well chilled and served at once. Dust with paprika. Make nests of three curled leaves with a spoonful of the salad in each. (C. 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

One More Heston

Jack Heston, son of the famous Willie Heston who was regarded as the greatest football star ever developed at the University of Michigan, is a sophomore and a halfback at Ann Arbor, and of course he will have a lead to carry in the matter of family tradition. His father was all-American selection in 1901-2-3, so Jack will have his work cut out for him. He is expected to play an important part in Michigan's 1931 campaign.

Caring for the April
Approximately $100,000,000 is expected to be distributed among some 3,000 persons under Massachusetts' willoughby inheritance act, which went into effect in 1927. All nearly 60,000 persons over 65 years of age, who have been in the state at least 20 years, are eligible for assistance, which ranges between $2 and $10 weekly.

Siam's Monarch Credits Progress to Football

The king of Siam, now in this country for an operation on his eyes, is noted or rather will be to history, for the great progress his country has made under his rule. When asked by a reporter what he considered to be the greatest factor in this remarkable progress, he made the astounding answer—"Football." "No, I do not fear. You know I was educated in England and learned the game. I introduced it in Siam and it aroused the spirit of competition in a race which has idled along in contented apathy for centuries. "The army and navy played first. We had few men in either, for Siamese are not eager to be warriors. But soon after football came in, we had so many recruits that now our ranks are overflowing. Football awakened the nation and this wakefulness spread to every line of commercial and social endeavor. It has even taught a barefooted nation to wear shoes."

Los Angeles Boy Needed Help

Leroy Young, 116 Georgia St., Los Angeles, is a "regular fellow," active in sports, and at the top in his classes at school. To look at him now, you'd think he never had a day's sickness but his mother says: "When Leroy was just a little fellow, we found his stomach and bowels were weak. He kept suffering from constipation. Nothing he ate agreed with him. He was fretful, feverish and puny. "When we started giving him California Fig Syrup his condition improved quickly. His constipation and biliousness stopped and he has had no more trouble of that kind. I have since used California Fig Syrup with him for colds and upset spells. He likes it because it tastes so good and I like it because it helps him so wonderfully!" California Fig Syrup has been the trusted standby of mothers for over 20 years. Leading physicians recommend it. It is purely vegetable and works with Nature to regulate, tone and strengthen the stomach and bowels of children so they get full nourishment from their food and waste is eliminated in a normal way. Four million bottles used a year show how mothers depend on it. All ways look for the word "California" on the carton to be sure of getting the genuine.

When PAIN Comes

WHAT many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes the acid instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali in water neutralizes instantly many times that much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try. Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any druggist.

The Voice of Labor

MILAN and the LAKES

Fishermen on Lake Garda.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

MILAN, chief city of the Lombardian-Piedmont region of northern Italy, announces plans for a metropolitan underground railway system which, when completed, will have a total length of 50 miles. The announcement follows another telling of the completion of Italy's largest railroad station in Milan, a huge structure which compares favorably with the great terminals of the world.

Italy's first subway system and the biggest railway station are but milestones marking the progress of this modern, wide-awake city, which had the first public library in Europe and was the first city on the continent to light its streets with electricity. Viewing the rich and interesting history of this metropolis of the upper Po valley, its outstanding leadership among Italian cities, its virility through centuries, and its varied accomplishments, the observer may be inclined to give serious consideration to the boast of the Milanese that "what Milan thinks today, Italy will think tomorrow."

Milan, in the matter of a new subway, is hurrying its plans because Rome also is planning a subway system. But Rome must hesitate and discuss. Underneath the streets and buildings of modern Rome are foundations of ancient imperial Roman monuments, and parts of the Catacombs. Milan faces no such obstacles, and will radiate five lines from the center of the city as conditions require. All five of the lines, two of which will reach points 20 miles away, will have stations within a few yards of each other in the Piazza del Duomo. A population of more than 3,000,000 people will be served by this new system, up-to-date in every respect.

Lombardy and Piedmont comprise the plains of the upper reaches of the great Po valley, the Alpine foothills, and the southern and eastern slopes of a large part of the alps themselves. Milan, on a fertile plain near the southern terminus of some of the most important of the Alpine passes, was a town of considerable importance even in the dim historic days of 222 B. C. when it was captured by the Romans. It was then, as it is today, a close second city in point of population in Italy.

Leader in Many Respects.

Milan early earned a position of leadership among surrounding cities, a leadership, however, which did not go unchallenged. The city has been destroyed many times, once by a league of neighboring towns, and at other times by alien conquerors. After each destruction it has sprung up on a seemingly firmer foundation to achieve greater popularity and a more far-reaching influence.

Apart from any reputation Milan may have gained as an index to industrial unrest, it is a leader among Italian cities in other respects. Indeed, the Milanese insist that their city, their "capitale morale," is the very heart and head of Italy's modern life and activity—"first in industry, first in municipal progress, first in political importance."

Even at the beginning of the Eleventh century Milan was of some importance industrially, its handicraft workers turning out textiles, arms and jewelry. The innumerable wars to which Italian cities and provinces were subjected slowed up its industrial development even after the introduction of the factory system, but since the unification of Italy in 1870, and the relative political calm that has followed, the growth of the city's industries has been marvelous. Textiles, locomotives and electrical apparatus are the leading products and a long list of metal manufacturers could be added.

The industrial plants of Milan have fairly burst the confines of the old city and many are to be found in numerous populous suburbs that have sprung up, especially since 1895. The population of Milan itself now numbers close to a million. Its population is exceeded only slightly, if at all, by that of Naples, and is considerably in excess of that of Rome.

Water Power Development.

Interesting is the fact that all industries in this section of Italy are not dependent on the importation of coal. Piedmontese and Lombardian industry has been turning more and more during recent years to the use of electric power generated from the great falls and rapids of the many streams that, tumbling down from the heights of the Alps almost at the walls of the cities, may be made to take the place of the expensive fuel for which Italy is dependent on foreign countries.

Milan is today a half-way house for people rushing up and down the earth, from the Mediterranean to the Alps, from Venice to Como; it is so very well known, so very crowded, so busy, so bustling, one feels there is nothing more to be told of her. Perhaps because she seems so entirely modern, because she bears so few traces of her earlier years, because while her sister cities point so proudly to Etruscan, Greek, or early Roman remains, she invites the visitor to contemplate her Galleria Vittorio Emanuele, one feels she does not appreciate her past.

It is not so, she has been literally trampled into the dust so often she would have nothing but scars to show but for the invincible courage which made her instantly build on her ruins the foundations of yet greater things.

Gian Galeazzo, who made the Certosa possible, did much for Milan. To him we owe the cathedral, one of the largest in the world. What joy must have been his to see these wonderful structures growing, to know that from his care they came.

Milan cannot hold anyone long who remembers that Lake Como is but two short hours away, with open-air pictures far lovelier than any that Milan's rich museums hold. The little town of the same name at the southern end of the lake is quaint enough; it has a charming cathedral; it looks straight up to the snowpeaks, but it is not a place to linger; choose rather some quieter place further up the lake—Cadenabbia, Menaggio, Bellagio.

Beauties of the Lakes.

When people speak of the Italian lakes it is usually Como and its neighbors that are meant; Como, which is all Italian; Lugano, which is largely Swiss, and Maggiore, which is largely Italian; but there are others, very tiny, perhaps, but also lovely; Orta, Varese, and to the east Isèo, Idro; above all, beautiful Lake Garda, whose upper end was Austrian. So many poets have sung their charms for twenty centuries, so many artists depicted their beauties, what remains for un-gifted lovers to say? So much of history is sleeping in their shining waters, so many world-known names connected with their shores, what could one summer bring to all their memories?

Which is the loveliest? Who knows? Undoubtedly Lake Como is the most popular. And does any visitor fail to row across its blue, satiny surfaces to the marble steps of the Villa Carlotta to see the Thorwaldsen Frieze and Canova's Cupid and Psyche? One does not need eyes to know which is the favorite. The "oh's" and "ah's," the sighs and silences tell it; but, then, love is immortal, while war is transient.

Lugano is quite a different lake from Como, although so near—but a single rocky ridge, an outlying spur of the great Alpine chain between. It is wonderfully picturesque, with its steep, wooded sides and quaint towns, pink and yellow and mauve, staged upward from the lake like galleries at a theater. If there are fewer luxurious villas, fewer over-rich gardens, there is more of romantic naturalness.

On Como one senses luxuriously a civilization two thousand years old; on Lugano one feels ageless nature's unmatched loveliness. If largely Swiss politically, in appearance Lugano is wholly Italian—the half-wild Italian which recalls the ancient freedom-loving Celt, not that which reminds us of polished Rome.

Lake Maggiore is almost as well known, as much traveled, as Como. Its individuality is just as strong as that of the other two; to see one is by no means to see all. One must travel up and down it by boat in the morning light and in the sunset glow. One must make excursions along its shores and to the Borromeo Islands, which float so picturesquely on its surface. One must climb the rocky hillsides about it and get new and surprising views of its size and splendor. One must see it in storms as well as sunshine; see the white snow to northward sharply defined against the blue sky; look in vain for peaks that are hidden in swirling masses of mist and cloud.

Name Well Earned

The French Foreign Legion is called the Death Legion because it has been employed in many of the hardest and most dangerous campaigns.

DOLLAR TRACED TO "PIECES OF EIGHT"

American Currency Since the Days of 1792.

In the fifteenth century the counts of Schlick, in Bohemia, minted large silver coins from metal found in the vicinity of Joachimsthal, in that country. These coins were known as "Joachimsthalers," abbreviated to "thaler." In the low German this became "daler," and to the English "dollar."

Before the nineteenth century coins often circulated with little regard for national boundaries. Some types of coins, because of the quality of their manufacture, came to be especially well known and to be accepted as an international standard. The florin, for instance, first minted in Florence in 1252, was later adopted as an Austrian, a Dutch and an English coin. It is in this same manner that a little valley in the recesses of the Bohemian mountains came to give its name to the monetary unit of Prussia, before the establishment of the German empire. Other countries adopted dollars in their currency, and the name was next applied to other coins of weight and fineness similar to the dollar. The famous Spanish "piece of eight"—eight reals—came to be called a dollar, and this became the most widely circulated of all the early dollars.

It is the Spanish "pieces of eight" which gave us our standard coin. In the days of the Spanish colonial empire in America, the "Spanish milled dollar" circulated as freely in the English colonies as in the Spanish, and became the principal medium of exchange throughout the western hemisphere.

The United States adopted its dollar currency under the coirage act of 1792. The United States wanted to be independent of Great Britain even in its currency, and it turned to the Spanish example rather than the British, and a decimal system was decided upon instead of the British calculation of shilling and pence.

The Spanish dollar had been divided into eight, but that of the United States was divided into a hundred fractions, "cent" being from Latin and French words for "hundred."

More and More

Publisher George Doran said in a literary talk: "Novels get more and more passionate, don't they? A novel like 'Three Weeks' was considered terrific when it came out, but the girl of today would consider 'Three Weeks' dull."

"A class of coeds were asked to make out a list of subjects that they'd like to write essays on. One girl began a list with:

"My Ideal Man," "A Divine Hour," "Moonlight Love," "One Hour of Love," "Desert Love," "Life's Happiest Hour." Then she broke off. "I'm not satisfied with this list," she said. "It seems so darn practical."

Oyster Culture

The sow-and-reap method so common to agriculture is on trial in the oyster industry. An enterprising company operating at Padilla Bay on Puget sound will plant seed oysters from Japan about the first of each year and harvest them the following fall. Fifty million oysters are now growing in the Padilla beds and will be ready before long. Cns will be taken not to let the oysters reach the gigantic, "beefsteak" size they would if allowed to attain their full growth.

Heron Collection

Perhaps the biggest colony of blue herons on the Atlantic coast is at Bartlett's Island, near Bar Harbor, Maine. The island, a four-acre tract off Indian Point, is owned by Augustus P. Loring, Boston lawyer. On it there are some 600 blue heron nests and, in addition, many nests of the black-crowned heron and of osprey.

Explorer Sets Forth

Sahara as Man's Cradle

Upon his return to the United States after an 18,000-mile exploration trip through Africa Dr. Arthur Torrence, Los Angeles explorer, announces his belief that the southern Sahara desert was the cradle of the human race. Not only did he make extensive investigations of the primitive tribes and the geological history of the Sahara, but he claims to have found evidence refuting the Darwinian theory of the origin and perpetuation of new species. While he does not deny that man evolved from a lower type of animal, he thinks this evolution took place in the southern part of the Sahara.

Mining in New York

New York is not usually considered a mining state, largely because it does not contain any gold or silver, yet its sub-surface deposits yield returns greater than those of many states with popular reputations for their mineral resources, according to a recent publication of the New York State museum. More than thirty substances are mined in the state, including iron, zinc, pyrite, salt, calcium sulphate, stone and clay.

A monogram is one of those things nobody can decipher except the man to whom it belongs.

THE "HIDDEN QUART"

That Stays up in the Motor and Never Drains Away

— is Worth its Weight in Gold to Any Motorist!

It's not the mileage your speedometer shows that makes your car wear out quickly, lose power and need costly repairs. It's motor wear, caused by friction, that does it! And almost half of all this motor wear occurs while you're starting. Cut down starting wear and you'll give your motor longer life.

That's just what the "hidden quart" of Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil does! It stays up in your motor and never drains away and then cuts down starting wear! Ordinary oils drain away, leaving working parts unprotected until oil is pumped from the crankcase through the motor, which takes several minutes. Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil penetrates and combines with metal surfaces of working parts, stays there and never drains away. The "hidden quart" softly lubricates every cylinder, piston and bearing the instant you touch the starter.

The "hidden quart" is worth its weight in gold to you! From the first fill with Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil, you'll have this "hidden quart" up in your motor, giving safe lubrication at all times, lengthening your motor's life. Drain your crankcase now. Fill with Germ Processed Oil at any station displaying the Conoco Red Triangle.

Light from Star to Start World's Fair Machinery

LIGHT from a star 240 trillion miles away will throw the switch for the official opening of the science exhibits of a Century of Progress, Chicago's 1933 World's Fair, exposition officials announce today.

Moving at the rate of 186,000 miles a second, this light has traveled from the giant star Arcturus since 1893, the date of the World's Columbian Exposition—Chicago's first world's fair.

At 9 p. m. of June 1, 1933, this light will fall through powerful lenses of the 40-inch telescope of the Yerkes observatory at Williams' Bay, Wis., and be focused on a tiny photo-electric cell.

The light's impact will cause an electric effect on the photo-electric cell. This amplified, will send an impulse over wires to the exposition grounds, which will throw the necessary switches to open the science exhibits, turn on brilliant illumination and start ponderous machinery whirling.

The plan to use light energy from Arcturus rather than the push of some dignitary's hand has been developed by exposition scientists in co-operation with Prof. Edwin B. Frost, the blind director of the Yerkes observatory.

It will be the first time that man has reached into void beyond our solar system to harness the energy of a heavenly body to such a mundane task.

The harnessing of Arcturus will symbolize the victory of mankind over nature through the application of science—a victory which forms the general theme of the exposition.

Selection of Arcturus for the role of throwing the switch is particularly appropriate. The forty years since the light which will act on the photo-electric cell left Arcturus, marks Chicago's spectacular rise to rank among the world cities.

In the forty years since the light started earthward, Chicago has increased three-fold. It has developed its great park and boulevard system, its schools and universities, its centers of art and music.

In those forty years, mankind has made most of the scientific advances recorded in an amazing century of progress.

Fort Dearborn, first exhibit building of Chicago's 1933 World's Fair and an exact replica of the log stronghold in which the first Chicagoans settled the savage redskins from 1804 to 1812, will be the scene of colorful ceremonies during each week.

Noted Indian Chief

The Indian name "Miwatha" means "the maker rivers." Miwatha was a legendary chief, about 1600, of the Ojibwa tribe. The formation of the League of Six Nations, known as the Iroquois, is attributed to him by Indian tradition.

"A Candle in the Wilderness"

By IRVING BACHELLER

Here is a glorious story and a matchless color plate of a proud old day—colonial times. The author regards it as his finest romance of American history. And when one recalls "The Light in the Clearing," "A Man for the Ages" and "In the Days of Poor Richard" much may be expected.

"More genuine satisfaction than any car I ever owned"

THE FORD is good-looking. It is safe. Comfortable. Speedy. Reliable. Long-lived. Economical. Everything a good car should be.

There is, too, an added something about it that brings enthusiastic comments from every one who has ever driven a Ford . . . the joy it puts in motoring.

"I have been a car owner continuously for nearly 20 years," writes a motorist connected with a leading university. "During this period I have bought eleven new automobiles. Eight of the eleven were in the middle-price field, one cost three thousand dollars, and the last is a Ford I purchased thirteen months ago.

"In the light of this experience I can say in all sincerity that I have derived more genuine satisfaction from the Ford than any car I ever owned. In saying this, I am thinking in terms of comfort, safety, driving pleasure, ease of control and economy. My next car will also be a Ford because it will give me what I want at a price I can afford to pay."

When you get behind the wheel of the Ford and drive it yourself you will know it is a truly remarkable car at a low price. You will like it when you first buy it. You will become more and more enthusiastic the longer you drive it.

After thousands of miles of driving you will say "It's a great car." Its economy will save you many dollars.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

France and Germany Create Joint Trade Commission— Young Chinese Clamor for War With Japan— Hoover's Economy Plans.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

BETTER in Europe, worse in Asia. A little change in America. So might be summarized the political and economic weather report of the week for the world. First place among the events in Europe goes to the friendly visit to Berlin of Premier Laval and Foreign Minister Briand of France. They were in the German capital two days, and out of their conversation with President Von Hindenburg, Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius grew a permanent mixed commission to pool the economic activities of the two nations. This body will be consultative and will include both employers and employees, and according to the official communiqué its general purpose is "to fight the economic crisis and to call for co-operation from other nations whenever necessary. This action will be the first step to co-operation which has become the need of the hour and in which all are called to participate."

When one considers that France and Germany have been bitter rivals for centuries and often active enemies, this result of the Berlin visit is remarkable. The commercial entente that is being forced may well make future wars between the two nations impossible. The commission will seek to promote trade and export agreements that will bring on a joint search for new markets. Its sponsors aver that no increase of customs tariffs is expected and that no third party is aimed at by the pact. The immediate object is co-operation in finance, industry, shipping and aviation.

When President Von Hindenburg was told the French statesmen were to call on him, the old warrior at first balked because his name is still on the allied list of World War "criminals" second only to that of the ex-kaiser. Finally Bruening and the French ambassador, Andre Francois Pontet, persuaded him to receive the visitors, and the meeting passed off without friction.

Premier Laval when he comes to Washington in October, will submit the Franco-German agreement to President Hoover. It was intimated in Berlin that Chancellor Bruening also may come over to see Mr. Hoover and lay before him Germany's viewpoint on war debts and reparations.

THREE in armaments for one year, beginning November 1, is the present aim of the League of Nations disarmament committee. Modifying the Italian proposition to meet the objectives of the majority of the league members the committee adopted this resolution.

"The assembly requests the governments invited to the disarmament conference (to be held in Geneva next February) to prepare for this event by means of an armaments truce and accordingly requests the council of the league to urge the governments concerned to said conference to give proof of their earnest desire for a successful issue of efforts to insure and organize peace, and without prejudicing the decision of the conference, or the programs of proposals submitted to it by each government, to refrain from any measure involving an increase in their armaments."

"It likewise requests the council to ask the governments to state before November 1 whether they are prepared for a period of one year, as from that date, to accept this truce in armaments."

OUT in the Far East the dove of peace was getting hard usage. Prospects for warfare between Japan and China were little lessened by the efforts of President Hoover and the decided flashy doings of the League of Nations council.

OUT in the Far East the dove of peace was getting hard usage. Prospects for warfare between Japan and China were little lessened by the efforts of President Hoover and the decided flashy doings of the League of Nations council.

Neither does the Chinese government want war, apparently, but the Chinese people, especially the students, are clamoring for hostilities and for a nation-wide boycott of Japan as a preliminary. Because they thought Foreign Minister C. T. Wang had failed in the effort to get help from the League of Nations, the students in Hankow invaded the foreign office and attacked Mr. Wang, inflicting him severely. After this outrage the stu-later carried out his long cherished desire to resign. Alfred Sze was appointed to succeed him. The young Chinese, gathered in big mobs, assailed Japanese civilians in various cities, the worst of these outbreaks being in Hongkong. The British garrison there was called out and charged the mobs repeatedly, killing and wounding a number of the rioters. Throughout the country the students were organizing and volunteering to serve at the front against Japan. Meanwhile the Canton rebel government continued its negotiations for the union of all factions to meet the emergency.

NOW coming home to the United States, we read that President Hoover is hard at work pruning down the cost of the federal government in the effort to meet the prospective treasury deficit of between a billion and a half billion. According to Washington dispatches, his program contemplates a limited increase in taxes, rigorous economies in government expenditures and congressional appropriations and continued borrowing at lowest interest rates in many years. The interest rate on the public debt, it was pointed out, is much higher than the rate that can be obtained on treasury paper at the present time.

On Tuesday it was announced that Mr. Hoover had decided to eliminate the naval building program laid out for the 1933 fiscal year and, in addition, to cut down the destroyer program, already appropriated for, from eleven ships to five. Reductions for the navy over the next three years, it was stated, stand to run as much as one hundred million dollars.

This certainly will be a terrible blow to Senator Frederick H. Isaacs of Maine, chairman of the naval affairs committee, and those of his colleagues who belong to the "big navy" class. Whether they can do anything about it remains to be seen. Navy officials, without wishing to be quoted, point out that if Mr. Hoover's economy plan is carried out, our navy will sink to third place by the end of 1932, when it will rank below that of Japan in all but capital ships. It may be remarked, too, that it doesn't do much good to the steel concerns, the shipyards and their employees.

SENATOR JAMES E. WATSON of Indiana, majority leader of the senate, has called to the attention of President Hoover the fact that higher tariff rates may be necessary to protect American industries from the depreciated currencies of nations that have abandoned the gold standard, these now including Denmark, Norway and Sweden. Mr. Watson says he believes that if the devaluated currency program continues for any length of time, the tariff rates of the Hawley-Smoot tariff act will be obviated and it will be absolutely necessary to raise the rates from 20 to 25 per cent to overcome the lower production costs in countries now on the double currency standard. Canada already has taken such action.

There is still a lot of agitation for the sales tax which Senator Reed of Pennsylvania advocates, but treasury officials are quoted as saying there is small chance for congressional approval of the plan this winter, though they admit it might be workable. The treasury is opposed to balancing the budget through borrowing over any extended period of time, or to even temporary suspension of the sinking fund, which provides for an "orderly retirement" of the public debt.

FOLLOWING the example of United States Steel and other big corporations, the Aluminum Company of America announced a 10 per cent reduction of salaries and wages effective on October 1, throughout the company and all its subsidiaries. This concern is owned almost wholly by the Mellon family. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, still a stockholder, is said not to have been informed that the cut was coming. He declined to make any comment.

This action by the Aluminum company further aroused Congressman Wright (atman of Texas, who already had announced he would seek during the next session of congress to have Mr. Mellon removed from office because of his stock ownership in corporations. Patman says he has been working all summer gathering data to support his resolution for the impeachment of Mr. Mellon. The secretary, he asserts, is "directly interested in the business of trade and commerce" within the meaning of the old law he will cite.

"Mr. Mellon relinquished his position on the board of directors of the Aluminum company," Patman said, "but, as a stockholder, he directs the board. His brother represents him." Among the other large concerns that have just reduced salaries or wages or both are the Delaware, Lackawanna na & Western railroad, the United States Develops company and Fairbanks, Morse & Co. The Norfolk & Western railroad has taken a step that will win wide approval. Hereafter it will not employ any married women, and any woman employee who marries will automatically lose her job.

Black Hawk's Ride

THE stage coach was a white man's "infernal machine" to Black Hawk, the Sac Indian chief who led the savages of the Northwest on the warpath against the white invaders a century ago.

Black Hawk was an imposing, warlike Indian, who struck terror into the hearts of the white families flying west of Lake Michigan until he was captured in 1832. The government realized that permanent peace could be established so long as Black Hawk lived, only by convincing the Sac leader that his white brothers were destined to rule the country and that further warfare by the Indians would be useless.

The representatives of "The Great White Father" in Washington conceived the idea that the best way to teach the proud chief that the white man was his master was to show him the wonderful progress the whites had made, to open the savage's eyes to the wonders of civilization.

The stage coach a century ago was to civilization what the airplane is today. It was the fastest, most comfortable mode of travel then devised. Despite the fact that stage coach riding was little more than a severe jolting, with progress sometimes of only two miles an hour over almost impassable roads, it was the last word in methods of travel where the early railroads had not as yet been built.

The National road, stretching between the Atlantic seaboard to St. Louis by way of Cumberland, Md., Wheeling, W. Va., and the Ohio river valley was the pride of the nation. All freight and passenger traffic between the East and Middle West, moved over this highway, as many as 30 or 40 stage coaches and hundreds of enormous freight wagons moving in each direction every day.

So it was decided to take Black Hawk and his lesser chiefs and retinue to Washington, the home of "The Great White Father," and make him peaceable by showing him the wonders of the white man's civilization, and the facility of engaging in war on the whites.

The large party, which numbered a score of Indians and their captors, traveled east on boats on the Ohio river to Wheeling. There they were transferred to stage coaches, and set out over the National road for Washington.

When Black Hawk first saw the stage coaches, he was convinced they were a "white man's death trap" and he protested gutturally against what he believed was a scheme to kill him and the Indians with him.

Daniel Leggett was driving the coach carrying Black Hawk. An Indian was on the seat beside him, and inside the vehicle were six other Indians and a half-breed interpreter, besides Black Hawk.

Black Hawk had ridden in stolid silence, but with wary eyes, until his coach reached Washington, Pa. As the coach rattled down Main street in that city, a strap on the harness of a wheel horse broke. The horse plunged, and threw the Indian riding with the driver to the ground. The Indian, in falling, grabbed the driver and pulled him off the coach with him.

The horses promptly ran away, with Black Hawk and his companions inside the swaying, careening coach. The frightened steeds made straight for the barn of the National house, where the coaches stopped on their trips east and west. At the corner of Main and Maiden streets, the coach upset, pinning Black Hawk and his traveling companions inside.

Black Hawk was the first to emerge from the wreckage. He came out of the overturned coach with fire in his eyes, and for a time it looked as though the mission to establish permanent peace with the Indians in the Northwest had been smashed.

He delivered a tirade which onlookers later said must have been a masterly oratorical effort. He spoke at length and very cogently, with all the dignity of an outraged Indian chief. Unfortunately, in the excitement no one made a record of what he said, and what probably was an epic of Indian oratory was lost to succeeding generations.

The gist of it was, according to his listeners, that he did not care for this phase of the white man's civilization, and that he had been convinced from the start that the stage coach was a white man's death trap. He said just what a white man probably would have said under similar circumstances.

The angry Sac chief did not cool off until several hours later, when he was persuaded to partake of a sumptuous white man's meal at the National house. The next morning Black Hawk appeared to have forgotten the events of the afternoon before, and meekly obeyed another coach to resume the trip to Washington.

STAGE COACH TALES

Black Hawk's Ride

THE stage coach was a white man's "infernal machine" to Black Hawk, the Sac Indian chief who led the savages of the Northwest on the warpath against the white invaders a century ago.

Black Hawk was an imposing, warlike Indian, who struck terror into the hearts of the white families flying west of Lake Michigan until he was captured in 1832. The government realized that permanent peace could be established so long as Black Hawk lived, only by convincing the Sac leader that his white brothers were destined to rule the country and that further warfare by the Indians would be useless.

You Can Stop that Rheumatic Pain

The constant nerve-racking pain that spells rheumatism or neuritis can be relieved, often stopped entirely. The new treatment which gives quick results where old methods have failed calls for two or three daily applications of B. & M., The Penetrating Germicide. Used externally, this preparation seldom fails to stop the intense pain in a few hours. Also, where the trouble is caused by germ infection, the B. & M. treatment will destroy the germs, making it possible for Nature to restore normal conditions. Your druggist should be able to supply B. & M. If not, send us his name and $1.25 for a full-size bottle. Or ask for free booklet. B. & M. Rollins Co., 53 Beverly St., Boston, Mass. (Adv.)

RESTFUL SLEEP for FRETFUL, FEVERISH CHILD

When your child tosses and cries out in his sleep, it means he is not comfortable. Very often the trouble is that poisonous waste matter is not being carried off as it should be. Bowels need help—mild, gentle help—but effective. Just the kind Castoria gives. Castoria is a pure vegetable preparation made especially for children's ailments. It contains no harsh, harmful drugs, no narcotics. Don't let your child's rest—and your own—be interrupted. A prompt dose of Castoria will urge stubborn little bowels to act. Then relaxed comfort and restful sleep! Genuine Castoria always has the name:

Youthful Frankness
"Would you like to play and sing the way I do?"
"Oh, please, no, ma'am," quickly responded the child. "I wouldn't like people to say things about me."

Sophisticated
"How do you like her acting?"
"I hardly know. She plays a simple village maid with plucked eyebrows."

Main business of politics is to get re-elected. After that, attention may be paid to public affairs.

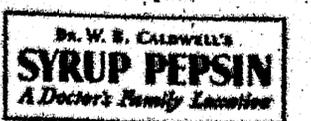

BOWELS need watching

Let Dr. Caldwell help whenever your child is feverish or upset or has caught cold. His simple prescription will make that bilious, headachy, cross boy or girl comfortable, happy, well in just a few hours. It soon restores the bowels to healthy regularity. It helps "break-up" a cold by keeping the bowels free from all that sickening mucus waste.

You have a famous doctor's word for this laxative. Dr. Caldwell's record of having attended over 3500 births without loss of one mother or baby is believed unique in American medical history.

Get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin from your druggist and have it ready. Then you won't have to worry when any member of your family is headachy, bilious, gassy or constipated. Syrup Pepsin is good for all ages. It sweetens the bowels; increases appetite—makes digestion more complete.

Sabra probably was the only woman of her own generation and social position in Osage who still wore on the third finger of her left hand the plain broad gold band of a long-past day. Synchronous with the permanent wave and the reducing diet the oil-rich Osage matrons of Sabra's age cast sentiment aside for fashion, quietly placed the clumsy band in a bureau drawer and appeared with a slim platinum circlet bearing, perhaps, the engraved anachronism, "M. G. K. L. 1884." Certainly it was much more in ease among its square-cut emerald and oblong-diamond neighbors. These ladies explained (if at all) that the gold band had grown too tight for the finger, or too loose. Sabra looked down at the broad old-fashioned wedding ring on her own gemless finger. She had not once taken it off in over forty years. It was as much a part of her as the finger itself.

All the Oklahoma millinery houses had libraries. Yards and yards of fine leather libraries, with gold tooling. Ike Hawkes' library had five sets of Dickens alone, handsomely bound in red, green, blue, brown, and black, and Ike all unaware of any of them.

Moving picture palaces, with white-gloved ushers, had all the big Broadway super-films. Gas filling stations on every corner. Hot dogs, chili con carne, and hamburger stands on the most remote country roads. The Arverne Grand Opera company at the McKee theater for a whole week every year, and the best of everything—Traviata, Boheme, Carmen, Louise, The Barber of Seville. The display of jewels during that week made the diamond horseshoe at the Metropolitan look like the Black Hole of Calcutta.

The snubnooks had triumphed. Still, oil was oil, and Indians were Indians. There was no way in which either of these native forces could quite be molded to fit the New York pattern.

The Osages still whirled up and down the Oklahoma roads, and those roads, for hundreds of miles, were still unpaved red prairie dust. They crashed into ditches and draws and culverts as of old, walked back to town and, entering the automobile saleroom in which they had bought the original car, pointed with one dusky finger at a new and glittering model.

"Nothor," they said, succinctly. And drove out with it. It was common news that Charley Vest had smashed eight cars in a year, but then Charley had a mysterious source through which he procured fire water.

Sabra Cravat had introduced a bill for the further protection of the Osages, and rather took away the breath of the house assembled by advocating abolition of the Indian reservation system. Her speech, radical though it was, and sensational, was greeted with favor by some of the more liberal of the congressmen. They even conceded that this idea of hers, to the effect that the Indian would never develop or express himself until he was as free as the negro, might some day become a reality. They were the reformers—the long-hairs—fanatics.

Oklahoma was very proud of Sabra Cravat, editor, congresswoman, pioneer. Osage said she embodied the finest spirit of the state and of the Southwest. When ten of Osage's most prominent millionaires contributed fifty thousand dollars each for a five-hundred-thousand-dollar statue that should embody the Oklahoma pioneer no one was surprised to hear that the sculptor, Maja Krbecek, wanted to interview Sabra Cravat.

Osage was not familiar with the sculpture of Krbecek, but it was impressed with the price of it. Half a million dollars for a statue!

"Certainly," said the committee, calmly. "He's the best there is. Half a million is nothing for his stuff. He wouldn't kick a pebble for less than a quarter of a million."

"Do you suppose he'll do her as a pioneer woman in a snubnook? Holding little Cim by the hand, huh? Or maybe in a covered wagon?"

Sabra received Krbecek in a simple (strapped) dress. He turned out to be a quiet, rather scanty little Pole in apron, who looked more like a tailor—a "little" tailor—than a sculptor. His eye roamed about the living room of the house on Kinetic. The old wooden house had been covered with plaster in a deep warm shade, the color of the native clay; the black crack porch and the unpaved back yard were a great square veranda and a terrace built at the side, away from the street and screened by a thick hedge and an iron grille. It was new, in fact, much the house that Yancey had planned when Sabra first built it years ago. The old pieces of mahogany and glass and silver were back, triumphant again over the plush and brocade with which Sabra had furnished the home when new. The old, sculpted stone pioneer figure was again the nucleus in Osage. There was the Dedication statue; the cake dish with the carefree cupids, the mantelpiece figures of china.

"You are very comfortable here in Oklahoma," said Maja Krbecek. He pronounced it syllable by syllable, painfully. O-kl-a-ho-ma.

"It is a very simple home," Sabra replied, "compared to the other places you have seen hereabouts."

"It is the home of a good woman," said Krbecek, dryly.

Sabra was a trifle startled, but she said thank you, primly.

"You are a congress member, you are editor of a great newspaper, you are well known throughout the country. You American women, you are really amazing."

Again Sabra thanked him.

"Tell me, will you, my dear lady," he went on, "some of the most interesting things about your life and that of your husband, this Yancey Cravat who so far preceded his time?"

So Sabra told him. Somehow, as she talked, the years rolled back, curtain after curtain, into the past. The Run. Then they were crossing the prairie, there was the first glimpse of the mud wallow that was Osage, the church meeting in the tent, the Fegler murder, the outlaws, the early years of the paper, the Indians, oil. She talked very well in her clear, decisive voice. At his request she showed him the time-yellowed photographs of Yancey, of herself. Krbecek listened. At the end, "It is touching," he said. "It makes me weep." Then he kissed her hand and went away, taking one or two of the old photographs with him.

The statue of the Spirit of the Oklahoma Pioneer was unveiled a year later, with terrific ceremonies. It was a heroic figure of Yancey Cravat stepping forward with that light graceful stride in the high-heeled Texas star boots, the skirts of the Prince Albert billowing behind with the vigor of his movements, the sombrero atop the great menacing buffalo head, one beautiful hand resting lightly on the weapon in his two-gun holster. Behind him, one hand just touching, his shoulder for support, stumbled the weary, blanketed figure of an Indian.

CHAPTER XIV

Sabra Cravat, congresswoman from Oklahoma, had started a campaign against the disgraceful condition of the new oil towns. With an imposing party of twenty made up of front-page oil men, senators, congressmen, and editors, she led the way to Howlegs, newest and crudest of the new oil strikes.

Cities like Osage were suave enough in a surface way. But what could a state do when oil was forever surging up in unexpected places, bringing the days of the Run back again? At each newly discovered pool there followed the rush and scramble. Another Bret Harle town sprang up on the prairie; fields oozed slimy black; oil rigs clanked; false-front wooden shacks lined a one-street village. Dance halls. Brothels. Gunmen. Brawls. Heat. Fires. Dirt. Crime. The clank of machinery. The roar of traffic boiling over a road never meant for more than a plodding wagon. Nitro-glycerin cars bearing their deadly freight. Overall, corduroys, blue prints, engines. The human scum of each new oil town was like the scum of the Run, but harder, cruder, more wolfish and degraded.

The imposing party, in high-powered motor cars, bumped over the terrible roads, creating a red-dust barrage.

"It is all due to our rotten Oklahoma state politics," Sabra explained to the great senator from Pennsylvania who sat at her right and the great editor from New York who sat at her left in the big luxurious car. "Our laws are laughed at. The capitol is rotten with graft. Anything goes. Oklahoma is still a territory in everything but name. This town of Howlegs. It's a throw-back to the frontier days of forty years ago—and worse. It's like the old Cimarron. People who have lived in Osage all their lives don't know what goes on out here. They don't care. It's more oil, more millions. That's all. Any one of you men, well known as you are, could come out here, put on overalls, and be as lost as though you had vanished in the wilderness."

The Pennsylvania senator laughed a plump laugh and with elbow nearest Sabra made a little movement that would have amounted to a snudge. In anyone but a senator from Pennsylvania, "What they need out here is a woman governor—er, Lippmann!" to the great editor.

Sabra said nothing. On the drive out from Osage they stopped for lunch in an older oil town hotel dining room—a surprisingly good lunch, the senators and editors were glad to eat, with a tender steak, and little green onions, and bear bear, and steamed, and coffee served in great thick cups, hot and strong and refreshing. The waitress was soft and friendly; a tall angular woman with something frank and engaging about the two circles of vermilion on the parchment of her withered cheeks.

"How are you, Nellie?" Sabra said to her.

"I'm grand, Mis' Cravat. How's all your folks?"

The senator from Ohio winked at Sabra. "You're a politician, all right."

Arrived at Howlegs, Sabra showed them everything, pitilessly. The dreadful town lay in the hot June sun, a scarred thing, flies buzzing over it, the oil drooping down its face, a slimy stream. A one-street wooden shanty town, like the towns of the old territory days, but more sordid. A red-cheeked young Harvard engineer was their official guide; an engaging boy in bone-rimmed glasses and a very blue shirt that made his pink cheeks pinker. That is what I wanted my Cim to be, Sabra thought with a great wrench at her heart. I mustn't think of that now.

The drilling of the oil. The workmen's shanties. The trial of a dance-hall girl in the one-room pine-shack that served as courtroom. The charge, nonpayment of rent. The little room, stifling, stinking, was already crowded.

"Wife and Mother—You Stainless Woman Hide Me—Hide Me in Your Love!"

Men and women filled the doorway, lounged in the windows. The judge was a yellow-faced fellow with a cud of tobacco in his cheek, and a single law book on a shelf as his library. It was a trial by jury. The jurors were nine in number, their faces a rogues' gallery. There had happened to be nine men loafing near by. It might have been less or more. Howlegs did not consider these fine legal points. They wore overalls and shirts. The defendant was a tiny rat-faced girl in a soiled green dress, that parodied the fashions, a pathetic green poke bonnet, down-at-heel shoes, and a great ran in her stocking. Her friends were there—a dozen or more dacco-hall girls in striped overalls and jockey caps or knee-length gingham dresses with easies. Their ages ranged from sixteen to nineteen, perhaps. It was incredible that life, in those few years, could have etched that look on their faces.

The girls were charming, hospitable. They made way for the imposing visitors. "Come on in," they said. "How-do"—like friendly children. The mid-afternoon sun was pitiless on their sick eyes, their bad skin, their unhealthy hair. Clustered behind the rude bench on which the jury sat, the girls, from time to time, leaned a scabbed elbow on a juror's shoulder, occasionally endeavoring the judicial proceedings by a spirited comment uttered in defense of their sister, and spoken in the near-by ear or aloud, for benefit of the close-packed crowd.

"She never done no such thing!" "He's a d—n liar, an' I can prove it!" No one, least of all the tobacco-chewing judge, appeared to find these girlish informalitys at all unusual in the legal conduct of the case.

In the corner of the little room was a kind of pen made of wooden slats, like a slable chicken coop, and in it, on the floor, lay a man.

"What's he there for?" Sabra asked one of the girls. "What is that?" "That's Bill. He's in jail. He shot a man last night, and he's up for carrying concealed weapons. It ain't allowed."

"I'm going to talk to him," said Sabra. And crossed the room, through the crowd. The jurors had just filed out. They repaired to a draw at the side of the road to make their stand. Two or three of the dance hall girls, squatted on the floor, were talking to Bill through the bars. They asked Sabra her name, and she told them, and they gave her their own. Teets. Pewes. Bee.

The face of the boy on the floor was bettered and blood-caked. There was a festering sore on his left hand, and the hand and arm were swollen and nasty looking.

"You were carrying a concealed weapon?" Sabra asked, squatting there with the girls. A senator or two and an editor were just behind her. An injured look softened Bill's battered features. He peered like a child. "No, ma'am. I ran the dance hall, see? And I was standing in the middle of the floor, working, and I had the gun right in my hand. Anybody could see. I wasn't carrying no concealed weapon."

The jury filed back. Not guilty. The rat-faced girl's hysterical lawyer said something in her ear. She spoke in a dreadful raucous voice, slithering. "I sure thank you, genta."

The dance-hall girls cheered feebly. Out of that fetid air into the late afternoon blaze. "The dance halls open about nine," Sabra said. "We'll wait for that. In the meantime I'll show you their rooms. The rooms—she looked about for the fresh-cheeked Harvard boy. "Why, where—"

"There's some kind of excitement," said the New York editor. "People have been running and shouting. Over there in that field we visited awhile ago. Here comes our young friend now. Perhaps he'll tell us."

The Harvard boy's color was higher still. He was breathing fast. He had been running. His eyes shone behind the bone-rimmed spectacles.

"Well, folks, we'll never have a narrower squeak than that."

"What?"

"They put fifty quarts in the Gypsy pool but before she got down the oil came up—"

"Quarts of what?" Interrupted a editorial voice.

"Oh—excuse me—quarts of nitro-glycerin."

"My G—d!"

"It's in a can, you know. A thing like a can. It never had a chance to explode down there. It just shot up with the gas and oil. If it had hit the ground everything for miles around would have been shot to h—l and all of us killed. But he caught it. They say he just ran back like an outfielder and gauged it with his eye while it was up in the air, and ran to where it would fall, and caught it in his two arms, like a baby, right on his chest. It didn't explode. But he's dying. Cheat all caved in. They've sent for the ambulance."

"Who? Who's he?"

"I don't know his real name. He's an old-bum that's been around the field, doing odd jobs and drinking. They say he used to be quite a fellow in Oklahoma in his day. Picturesque pioneer or something. Some call him old Yancey and I've heard others call him Slim or Simeon or—"

Sabra began to run across the road. "Mrs. Cravat! You mustn't—where are you going?"

She ran on, across the oil-soaked field and the dirt, in her little buckled high-heeled slippers. She did not even know that she was running. The crowd was dense around some central object. They formed a wall—roustabouts, drillers, tool dressers, shooters, pumpers. They were gazing down at something on the ground.

"Let me by! Let me by!" They fell back before this white-faced woman with the white hair.

He lay on the ground, a queer, crumpled, broken figure. She swung herself on the oil-soaked earth beside him and lifted the magnificent head gently, so that it lay cushioned by her arm. A little purplish bubble rose to his lips, and she wiped it away with her fine white handkerchief, and another rose to take its place.

"Yancey! Yancey!"

He opened his eyes—those ocean-gray eyes with the long curling lashes like a beautiful girl's. She had thought of them often and often, in an agony of pain. Glazed now, unseeing.

Then, dying, they cleared. His lips moved. He knew her. Eyes then, dying, he must speak in measured verse.

"Wife and mother—you stainless woman—hide me—hide me in your love!"

She had never heard a line of it. She did not know that this was Peer Gynt, humbled before Solveig. The once magnetic eyes glared, stared; wet eyes no longer.

She closed them, gently. She forgave him everything. Quite simply, all unknowing, she murmured through her tears the very words of Solveig.

"Sleep, my boy, my dearest boy."
[THE END]

Population of Babylon Has Been Overestimated

There have been various attempts, by comparing its area with the area of modern cities, to estimate the population of ancient Babylon. On the lowest calculation it would be found, supposing it to have borne any considerable resemblance to a European city, that it had a population of 600,000. The map of Asiatic Turkey shows that the extent of country around Babylon available for agricultural purposes must have been quite inadequate to supply the necessary demands for anything like such an immense population. Perhaps, on the whole, says a recent writer, one may estimate the population at from 1,000,000 to 1,500,000. This supposition derives support from the fact that Seleucia, with a population of 600,000, is situated by Strabo and Ptolemy to have been about half the size of Babylon in the days of her greatest glory.

Turn Wheat Into Pork, and Profit

In Some Ways Better Than Corn, According to Expert.

Wheat can be converted into pork more readily than into any other meat, although it can be used in almost any live-stock ration, says H. B. Osland, associate in animal investigations at the Colorado Agricultural college.

What is equal to corn in feeding value, pound for pound, many experiments have shown, while several experiment stations report that it is even more valuable than corn in the hog-fattening ration. Shrivelled and shrunk wheat is usually richer in protein than plump wheat, and if not too badly damaged, is fully as valuable for feed as sound wheat, it is stated.

"Tankage should always be added to the wheat ration for maximum gains and economy of production," Osland says. "Wheat is somewhat richer in protein than corn, but it requires the addition of protein to balance the ration for pigs in the dry lot."

"Wheat should always be coarsely ground or rolled for swine. Experiments indicate that this type of preparation saves 15 to 20 per cent of its feed value. If ground too fine, wheat becomes a pasty, indigestible mass when fed. Soaking wheat may increase its value slightly, but not enough to justify that practice."

"It is possible to use wheat as the only grain in the ration, but where corn is available, a mixture of corn and wheat, equal parts, is very desirable for fattening hogs. Barley or millet can also be used in the ration as a part of the grain feed along with wheat. It will take from 450 to 550 pounds of wheat or its equivalent to produce 100 pounds of pork, depending on the ration fed."

Take Steps Now to Avert Hopper Plague in 1932

Farmers of Canada and the United States are being urged to co-operate to check a threatened grasshopper plague in 1932, using man-made devices to destroy the millions of eggs. A rainy season would keep down the pests to normal, it is asserted, but preventive work is advocated.

Two methods have been suggested. One is to plow the land so deep that eggs now being laid in the ground will not hatch. The other is to cultivate the surface of the ground late in the fall so as to expose and destroy the eggs.

Eggs are now being laid in millions upon millions, experts state. Almost the entire area today, from the Rockies to the Great Lakes, and from the north Saskatchewan river to the prairies of the south-west United States has become fertile breeding ground for hoppers and locusts. In some of the country districts this year visitation of the insects has been so heavy that they have plucked up radiators of motor cars driving through.

Use Ground Barley for Fattening Steer Calves

Ground barley in the fattening ration in the place of shelled corn gives very good results, it was found in a feeding experiment with fattening steer calves at the University of Minnesota in 1930. Other checks from a companion feeding experiment showed that when two pounds of cane molasses replaced two pounds of shelled corn in the ration of shelled corn, linseed meal and alfalfa hay, the molasses failed to equal corn pound for pound in feeding value and resulted in lower profits. By substituting two pounds of molasses for two pounds of ground shelled corn in the ground mixed ration the consumption of feed was slightly increased and the profit was also slightly increased. Adding two pounds of molasses per steer per day to the ration of ground barley (soft fed), linseed meal and alfalfa hay failed to improve the ration in any way except to increase total feed consumption and resulted in lower profits.

Hogging Down Corn

On some dairy farms spring litters of pigs are turned into cornfields where they may help themselves to as much corn as they want. Other dairymen who also raise swine could well consider the economies in this practice.

One can make mistakes in hogging down corn. It is not good economy to turn a few hogs into a large field of corn. They will get too much of it on the ground and not clean it up. Small fields or fenced off portions of large fields are better.

One can waste corn in another way by not having the proper protein supplement available. It takes too much corn for 100 pounds gain in this way. A simple mineral mixture is also helpful in reducing the feed for 100 pounds gain.

Help Your Own Business

The price of soybean meal is now on a comparable basis with linseed oil-meal and cottonseed meal. Dairymen and cattle feeders who usually use either linseed or cottonseed in their feeding programs will be doing service to the soybean growers if they will substitute soybean meal for the other protein concentrates during the fall and winter. Calf and heifer tests have proved that soybean meal is equal in feeding value to either linseed or cottonseed meal.—Frazier Farmer.

PAUL IN THESSALONICA AND BEREIA

GOLDEN TEXT—Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 17:1-15; 1 Thess. 1:1-12.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How We Ought to Hear.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Two Kinds of Hearers.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Two Kinds of Hearers.

TWO KINDS OF HEARERS AND ADULT TOPIC—Winning through Love.

I. Paul Preaching in Thessalonica (17:1-10).

1. His method (vv. 1, 2). He observed the divine order, to the Jew first, and was exceedingly anxious for his kinsmen in the flesh, but when they proved themselves unworthy, he turned to the Gentiles.

2. His message (v. 3). It was that Jesus is the Christ, he expounded unto them the Scriptures. Concerning Christ he set forth three propositions:

a. That Christ must needs have suffered (v. 3). The suffering Christ was not welcomed by the Jews. They had explained away such positive assertions as are set forth in Isaiah 53. They were looking for a Messiah of a different type. This is common today in our churches and Sunday schools. The cross is an offense.

b. "Risen again from the dead" (v. 3). This he also proved by the Scriptures.

c. "That this Jesus whom I preach unto you is Christ" (v. 3). He declared that the historic Jesus whom he had proclaimed had suffered and risen from the dead. Therefore, he is the predicted Messiah.

3. The attitude of the Jews toward his preaching (vv. 4-10). While some Jews believed and many Greeks, the envy of certain Jews was so aroused at Paul's success that they gathered together the worthless fellows of the town and set on foot a riot. They said, "These have turned the world upside down." It is true that the gospel is revolutionary, but not treason to right government. They turned the preaching of Paul into a specious lie. He preached the kingship of Jesus (v. 7). Jesus is most assuredly coming to reign on this earth.

4. The Character of Paul's Ministry at Thessalonica (1 Thess. 2:1-12). In this section we have exhibited the temper of the apostolic ministry. It becomes an ideal for such as would follow in his wake.

1. It was courageous (vv. 1, 2). In spite of shameful persecution, Paul persisted in his ministry, demonstrating his devotion to the Lord.

2. Honest and guileless (vv. 3, 4). He had no ulterior motive. As one sent of God, he faithfully ministered unto them.

3. Without flattering words (v. 6). Regardless of the difficulty of his positions, the prominence of the persons faced, he never resorted to flattery.

4. Without a cloak of covetousness (v. 6). The impelling force of his life was devotion to God and interest in lost men. Opportunity for personal gain he waived aside.

5. He did not seek glory from man (v. 6), his supreme aim being to honor God.

6. He was gentle and affectionate (vv. 7, 8). So visibly did he enter into the lives of the people that he displayed gentleness, even as a nursing mother with her children.

7. Unselfish (v. 9). In order that his motive be not questioned he labored night and day for his support.

8. Inevitable and blameless (v. 10). He did not claim to be faultless, but he boldly challenged them as to his blamelessness.

9. His lofty aim (vv. 11, 12). It was that they would walk worthy of God in keeping with their high calling.

III. Paul Preaching in Berea (Acts 17:10-15).

1. His method (v. 10). He entered the Jewish synagogue and preached Christ unto them.

2. The reception of the gospel by the Bereans (vv. 11, 12). It was with gladness of heart. The message was just as new to these Jews and just as counter to their way of thinking as it was to the Thessalonian Jews, but they had a more noble disposition. Two things are said of them:

a. They received the message gladly.

b. They searched the Scriptures daily for the truthfulness of the message which they had heard.

3. The wicked action of the Jews from Thessalonica followed the missionaries and stirred up the people against them, making it necessary for them again to flee.

4. Sin sprang into life, and I saw myself a dead man. It is remarkable that Christianity is the only religion that produces this effect. There is no word in any non-Christian language for sin as moral evil.—D. M. Faister.

5. Making to the Finish. Character is developed by fighting a plan through to success and triumphing over obstacles. Anyone can start, but only a person with character will stick to the finish.—Watchword.

Special Training Given to German Farm Girls

In Germany, where modern farm machinery is prohibitive to cost, one sees the farm girls not only as assistant housekeepers, but working in groups in the fields. For such girls training schools have been established, of which the one at Wusterhausen an der Dose is a good example. This school is in the province of Brandenburg, not far from Berlin.

The school trains girls in various branches of agriculture and housekeeping by providing practical experience in both. An agricultural commission of the Brandenburg province founded the institution in 1908. It has 12 acres of ground, part of which is on the shore of a pretty lake.

Special attention is given to cooking and baking; the various methods of canning and of storing vegetables and fruits are taught, as well as the preparation of fruit wines, the salting and smoking of various meats and even dining-table service. In the kitchen one sees the girls at work at these tasks dressed in their blue and red-striped aprons, blue dresses and white headgear—which add to the immaculate appearance of the glistening white-tiled walls and floor.

The work changes with the seasons and so in the winter comes the hor-killing and dressing, sausage-making and poultry dressing. Cheeses, of course, are made the year round. Then there is the apriary. The girls at Wusterhausen don their bonnets and rob the hives. During the winter months the girls have their lessons in health and hygiene, nursing the ill, care and training of the infant, buying, bookkeeping and art for the home.

Special Water Provided

for "Residents" of Zoo

The merchant ships that move about the world's seas carry a variety of queer things in their holds. One may arrive at Hamburg with a consignment of elephants for the world's circus; another may discharge at Santander tons upon tons of ancient uniforms for the adornment of native chiefs. But perhaps the quaintest cargo ever borne at St. Katherine's dock, in London, from the Philomel. She was loaded with sea water. Alas! ships pump out sea water as fast as it makes its way in, but this one pumped it into special tanks and carried it all the way from the bay of Biscay to London. In fact, she makes a habit of doing it. The water is for the fish in the aquarium at the zoo, and only in the bay of Biscay can the required crystal-clear water be obtained. It comes from a small stretch of ocean between Bordeaux and Vahant. Each tank is sealed as soon as it is filled, and on arrival in London it is tested in the zoo laboratories.
