

LOCAL MENTION

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wells have moved from Douglas, Ariz., to the old home of Gordon's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Wells at White Oaks, and will make that place their future home. Gordon was among those of our Lincoln County boys who enlisted in the U. S. Navy when war was declared and came home with becoming honors. Before coming here, they spent several days with Gordon's sisters, Mrs. C. W. Coe and Mrs. L. E. Hunt at Tularosa.

O. B. Shook, agent for the celebrated Sieberling Tires, who has his residence at Alto, was here last Friday attending to some business matters. Mr. Shook said the snow in the White Mountains was very deep, but the moisture will give the spring growth a good start. Mrs. Shook superintends the garden at her home and as a result, a fine yield is realized each year.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Sowder were here from their ranch home near Ft. Sumner. After spending a short time at this place grazing many old Carrizozo friends, they went on to their ranch near Ancho, spent several days at that place before returning to Ft. Sumner.

Mrs. Conway Collins, daughter of Mrs. T. E. Armstrong, is here from Tucumcari, spending the week with her mother, sister and brother. She will return when Mr. Collins comes up from "Tucum," which will be about Saturday.

Mrs. L. B. Dow, who came up from El Paso the latter part of last week, after visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Dow, stayed over for a few days, leaving for her home in Lincoln Sunday.

Miss Ruth Brickley and her guests from the "U." Misses Betty and Helen Young, who had spent the major portion of last week at the Brickley home, left Tuesday for Albuquerque.

Mrs. Nellie Branum, who had been visiting at the home of her son, Liza, and family in Los Angeles, for about six weeks, returned Monday, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Oscar Glouse, who went to El Paso to meet her mother.

J. B. French and Sheriff John Brady will attend a meeting of the Republican State Central Committee which will convene in Albuquerque Saturday. They will return home Sunday or Monday.

Miss Marie Brunk, County Health Nurse, was one of the speakers at the Parent-Teachers meeting at Corona Tuesday night.

Mrs. F. J. Sager entertained the Carrizozo Bridge Club last Saturday afternoon, and Mrs. Morgan Lovelace will entertain the club at her home tomorrow afternoon.

Mrs. Claud Branum entertained the Wednesday Bridge Club at her home Wednesday evening. A pleasant time was spent, and at the close of the affair, the hostess served dainty refreshments.

Dr. M. G. Faden,
Carrizozo, N. M.
Dear Dr. Faden:—

Enclosed you will find a copy of the analysis of the water I brought home with me.

You certainly have a very excellent water. The most that it has in it is some gypsum. We are glad to have this analysis for sort of a standard to compare other waters with.

Trusting that you are well and that everything is going as well as can be expected, I beg to remain,

Yours very respectfully,
Willis A. Waite, M. D.

The "Gloom Chasers" Carry Out Pledge

Fulfilling their pledge to give away the sum of $7.50 to the holders of the lucky tickets in the "drawing" at the "Gloom Chasers" dance at White Oaks last Saturday night, the orchestra, at the close of one of the largest dances ever held at that place, the promised drawing took place as advertised. Richard Flores held the lucky number which drew $5.00 and the one for the lady fell to Miss Gertrude Leslie.

At their next dance which will be given Saturday night, Feb. 6, the "Gloom Chasers" will give away a 50-pound sack of potatoes to the man holding the first lucky number, and the lady holding second in the drawing, will be treated to a glad surprise.

Let everyone who possibly can, go to White Oaks next Saturday night, dance on the s-m-o-o-t-h maple floor to good music and get in on the drawing, and have a good time.

The "Gloom Chasers" will present new features at each one of their dances which will be given at White Oaks every Saturday night, as you will notice by their display cards.

S. W. Wells, of Palmdale, Cal., brother of Mrs. Elizabeth Gallacher, came in Tuesday, and after remaining here for a short time, he will return accompanied by Mrs. Gallacher and nephew, Ralph Greeno, of Sandusky, O. They will be guests of the Wells family for the remainder of the winter season, returning to New Mexico in the springtime. Mr. Wells came through by train but the trio will drive to Palmdale in Mrs. Gallacher's car.

Mrs. T. G. Grafton and son Hugh were here last Friday afternoon from their home near Angus. Like others of our mountain neighbors, they predict a splendid spring season as a result of the plentiful moisture we've had. The Graftons have a nice home at Angus, where they raise a choice variety of fruits and vegetables, for which they find a ready market in the spring and summer seasons.

Inspiration

Lincoln County Girl In Rosemary Hall Play

Greenwich, Conn., Jan. 31.—Miss Virginia Pendleton Fuller, of Picacho, N. M., played one of the leading characters in the performance of Aristophanes' masterpiece, "Birds," at Rosemary hall on Saturday, January 30. She portrayed Hercules, an ambassador from the gods to the kingdom of the birds. Miss Fuller is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pendleton R. Fuller of Picacho. She is cheer leader at Rosemary hall, and is also a member of the Kindly club.

Miss Fuller is a Lincoln county girl, and the above complimentary mention identifies her with the highest in dramatic circles in Greenwich, in which we extend our congratulations.

Ernest Key

In this issue of this paper appears the announcement of Mr. Ernest Key, who is the first to make a political card of this nature for the nomination on the Republican ticket for County Clerk, subject to the deliberations of the Republican County Convention. Mr. Key has served as deputy county clerk under the present incumbent for the past two terms, and now seeks the nomination to succeed Mr. Griesen. Mr. Key is well known over the county, and if successful in securing the nomination, would undoubtedly be elected, and on account of his experience would serve the county in excellent manner.

NOGAL NEWS

The new highway between Capitan and Carrizozo is now under construction. Work began last Monday. This will put a few of the idle men to work.

The mining business is slowly coming to the front, but due to the bad weather, it will likely be spring before much is done.

Dr. Johnson was up to see Marvin Peacock, who has been ill for some time. After examination, he brought him back to the hospital for further treatment. The Dr. seems to think Marvin will soon be O. K.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse May and Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Zumwalt made a flying trip to the M. A. Huet ranch, near Oscura, called there by the illness of Mrs. W. T. Peacock.

Mrs. Louis Nixon was over from Ancho for a visit with her mother, Mrs. D. O. Jones, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Mayben made a business and pleasure trip to Ancho and the Gallinas Mountains the first of the week.

Parent-Teachers Association

An interesting program was given last Friday night, Jan. 29, by the pupils of the first five grades. This program included a health dramatization, health songs, negro minstrels and a recitation by A. N. Spencer.

Following this program, Mrs. Wilcox, formerly a teacher in Carrizozo schools, State President of New Mexico Parent-Teacher Associations, outlined the value of a P. T. A. for Carrizozo. Mr. Graham, State Vice-President, also explained the work of P. T. A. and its relationship to school administration. Mr. and Mrs. Simson, of Roswell, spoke briefly in behalf of the P. T. A. movement.

After due consideration, it was unanimously decided by the parents and teachers present that a Parent-Teachers' Association would be organized for this community. The following officers were elected:

- Mrs. Fred Boughner, President.
- John E. Hall, First Vice-President.
- Mrs. Nettie Lemon, Second Vice-President.
- R. R. Gillette, Sec.-Treas.
- Miss Hazel Melas, Parliamentarian.
- Mrs. C. A. McCammon, Historian.

The Parent-Teachers' Association is an educational and social movement which unites parents, teachers, and all good citizens in each community into one great democratic organization, for the sole purpose of conserving and advancing the interests of America's greatest asset—children.

In behalf of our children, in behalf of a greater Carrizozo, every parent and friend of the schools is invited to join this organization. The next regular meeting will be held in the High School Auditorium, February 19, at 7:30 P. M.

V. P. Smith, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Smith's mother, Mrs. Mary Scroggins, were up from Oscura Monday, paying attention to some business matters and returning home in the evening.

She was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Van Felt, of Alto, who drove Miss Rowena as far as Socorro, where she took a bus for the Duke City.

How Hoover Plan Works

A few weeks ago the biggest bank in the state of Mississippi, with deposits of seven million dollars, had occasion to borrow a million dollars. When that fact became known there set in a slow but steady run upon the bank. The managers realized very soon what was happening and applied to the Credit Corporation, recently organized up on the suggestion of President Hoover, for help.

"This bank is entirely sound and solvent," the managers said, "but we must do something to restore the confidence of the people." The Credit Corporation sent examiners who went carefully over all the books of the bank and its notes and other securities, and made so favorable a report that the Credit Corporation notified the bank that it would back it to the full amount of its deposits—thereby making its assets 100 per cent. liquid. The bank took a page in the local newspaper to publish this letter with the gratifying result that the run was stopped immediately and the business of the bank materially increased. Commenting upon this episode a member of Congress from Mississippi, a Democrat of course, declared that if this bank had failed every bank in the state would have gone down, and that it certainly would have failed but for the existence of the Credit Corporation. And that is only another way of saying that immeasurable disaster would have swept over the state of Mississippi had it not been for the wisdom and statesmanship of President Hoover.

Capitan Mountainairings

Otho Bilbo has returned from San Angelo, Texas, where he had been visiting his parents.

Eddie Long of the Titworth Company gave some of his close friends a treat last Sunday by taking them up in his airplane. They flew over Capitan and had a wonderful view of the surrounding mountains and canyons.

The Missionary Society held an interesting meeting last Saturday at the home of Mrs. Perry Sears. This was the Zone meeting mentioned in our last notes. Representatives were here from Carrizozo, Alamogordo and Tularosa. The Capitan ladies served a delicious luncheon at the noon hour for the visitors. Some very interesting talks were made and enjoyed by all present. These Zone meetings are held every three months.

Mr. and Mrs. Northrup and Mrs. Lumpkins were visitors at Roswell last Friday.

Mrs. Chloe Fisher was a business visitor in Carrizozo Monday.

Capitan has its telephone office open again, with Mrs. Beulah Hartley at the switchboard. We are glad to welcome Mrs. Hartley back. She is always pleasant and accommodating.

Tom Wallace and family have moved to this place from Amarillo, Texas. They formerly resided here for a number of years, but moved to Amarillo about two years ago. They were glad to get back to Capitan, and say there is no place like their former home town.

The Capitan basketball teams, boys and girls, went to Alamogordo last Friday, and also played in Tularosa Saturday. The girls won the game at Alamogordo, and the boys lost at both places. The girls did not play at Tularosa.

Mesdames E. L. Madson and W. T. Lumpkins were Carrizozo visitors one day this week.

The new highway project is about to be realized. The Green Construction Company has its machinery on the ground and about twenty men at work, preliminary to starting the work in real earnest.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. French spent yesterday at Corona.

Perry Sears and Jeff Herron, of Capitan, were pleasant visitors at the Outlook office yesterday.

CHILDREN'S STORY

By THORNTON W. BURGESS THE WHITE HUNTER

ABOUT the time that Peter Rabbit had reached the Green Forest that night after the first snow, a slim, trim little fellow yawned, rubbed his eyes, yawned again, stretched, and then abruptly made up his mind that he was hungry, and that it was time to do some hunting.

Now of all the hunters of the Green Forest there is none smarter, none more eager, none more tireless than Shadow the Weasel.

So presently he came to the tracks of Peter Rabbit. For just a second Shadow smelled of the tracks with his keen little nose, than which there is none keener.

It was well for Whitefoot the Woodmouse that Shadow had found Peter's tracks after they left Whitefoot's hiding place, instead of before.

Then he paid no more attention to Huggy Jack's tracks, but kept right on after Peter. Presently he came to the tracks of Jimmy Skunk.

FRANCE'S NEW CANAL

A Smile From the Proposed Canal Route in France.

(Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)—WNU Service.

Two French cities, Bordeaux and Carcassonne, the former a great port and the latter a sleepy ancient inland town, are literally in the way of the canal which France is planning to dig from the Atlantic ocean to the Mediterranean sea, thus affording a new waterway to the Mediterranean from the west.

Bordeaux will be the Atlantic terminus of the canal, which will include portions of the Garonne river and the Canal du Midi which was built in 1631. The canal will be about 260 miles long and will cost approximately $160,000,000.

Bordeaux is seldom in the headlines in peace times, but let Paris be threatened from the north or the east, and Bordeaux would doubtless resume its old place in the spotlight. During the Franco-Prussian war, when the enemy occupied Paris, and again during the early days of the World war, before the Germans had been stopped in their initial rush on the French capital, the machinery of government was hastily transferred to the great commercial city on the left bank of the Garonne. At the time of the French revolution, too, the Girondists used Bordeaux as their chief headquarters.

Geography is Bordeaux' trump card, not only in time of war but in time of peace as well. Although a seaport, the city is 60 miles from open sea on a river that provides adequate docking facilities but is still not deep enough for warships of heavy draft. A few barges, judiciously sunk across the channel, would block everything else at any time desired. Far down in the southwestern part of France, the city has prospered almost undisturbed since it first came into prominence as the capital of Aquitania Secunda of the Romans.

Bordeaux, however, should not be regarded only as a governmental pinch-hitter. It is a thriving commercial city, the fourth in population in France, and has a foreign trade exceeded among French ports, only by Marseilles and Havre. With the province of Burgundy, in the eastern part of France, the district around Bordeaux shares the wine-producing honors of the country.

The Yanks Remember Bordeaux. Bordeaux is largely terra incognita to the average tourist. None of the large transatlantic lines from North America terminates here, although there are many smaller companies, especially those connecting France with South America. Nor is it on any heavily traveled route to other parts of Europe. Bordeaux cannot benefit by way-traffic, as can Marseilles, Nice or Lyons. Travelers to Spain and to the shore resorts around Biarritz generally pass through the city without stopping.

The American doughboy, however, knows Bordeaux. When the United States went into the World war the railroads in the northern part of France were greatly overworked and choked with traffic. The northern ports, too, were menaced by the submarine. The best southward conditions were better. Brest, St. Nazaire, Nantes, Bordeaux and Bayonne thus sprang suddenly into front-page headlines of American newspapers.

Docking facilities, even at Bordeaux, were rather poor at that time. It was necessary for American engineers virtually to reconstruct some of the ports. In the spring of 1917 only two large ships could berth for unloading at the same time in Bordeaux, but a year later there were places for fifteen vessels. Bassec, a small village six miles down the Garonne from Bordeaux, was given the docks and warehouses. A great deal of the supplies and ammunition of the A. E. F. were landed here. Bordeaux was one of the few cities to benefit by the war.

Commercial but Attractive. Despite the fact that it is largely a commercial city, Bordeaux is, in many respects, very attractive. The main part of the city curves around the left bank of the Garonne river, which at this point describes a wide semi-circle. Low white houses take the place of the tenements so characteristic of other French cities, while the public buildings are grouped in the center of the city along public gardens or like the imposing quays of the waterfront. The whole city is surrounded by a circle of boulevards.

The cathedral of St. Andre, started in the Eleventh century, is considered one of the best proportioned Gothic churches in southern France. The Pont de Bordeaux, one of the bridges connecting the city with the right bank of the Garonne, was long considered among the finest in the world. Many of the magnificent private homes of the city were built when the great merchants of Bordeaux were at the height of their wealth and power, and are comparatively modern.

Around Bordeaux are smiling hills and fresh valleys, covered with vineyards. The vines they produce have made the district famous and have sent the names of Medoc, Graves, Sauternes, St. Emilion, etc., around the world. Nearby also is the little town of Cognac, which has lent its name to the most potent of French liquors. It is the center of the brandy trade of the district. South of Bordeaux stretch great pine forests and regions of waving grass, like those of our southern Atlantic states.

Carcassonne is Two Towns. Carcassonne straddles the River Aude about 50 miles southeast of Toulouse. Travelers arriving at the railway station in the so-called new town on the west bank of the Aude scan the panorama for a city of antiquity, but it is not found on that side of the river.

The new town is only about three hundred years older than early American towns. Some of the inhabitants of the old town across the river revolted against the king of France and were driven out of the old town walls. They were allowed to settle on the site of the new town. That was in 1247.

A beautiful, shaded parkway near the railroad station introduces Carcassonne, but a few steps beyond the traveler is hemmed in between walls of stone and brick buildings rising sheer from the sidewalks. The streets run at right angles, forming solid blocks, the monotony of which is relieved only by a few squares and small parks and a wide, shaded boulevard.

The Place Carnot is a combined market place, loafing place, and meeting place in Carcassonne.

Famous Walls of the Old City.

Cross the River Aude, enter the gates of the old town, and you are on a site which was occupied by a settlement somewhere back in the mists of history. You may cross the Aude by a modern bridge or, with the ancient ramparts ahead of you, you might prefer the old Thirteenth century span. The frowning gray walls of the old town were impregnable when battering rams were the "high explosives" of attackers. There are two walls with about 28 feet between them. One glance at these ramparts convinces the traveler that one historian was right when he said that only famine or treason within the walls could cause the capture of the town.

The walls form an irregular oval about the old town and have only four openings. One opening in each wall is large enough to admit horses and wheeled vehicles, and each is guarded by a series of turrets and towers. The other openings are mere holes in the walls, wide enough for only one man to squeeze through.

Inside, narrow, cobbled streets breathe an atmosphere of many centuries ago. There is the venerable St. Nazaire Cathedral with stained-glass windows depicting Bible scenes, and the Chateau, where high walls once echoed with the gay revelry of Carcassonne feudal lords. These old structures look down upon streets almost deserted, for the life of Carcassonne today is in the new town where the wine trade, one of the old trades of the city, still flourishes.

Who Was Who?

By Louise M. Comstock

ALICE BEN BOLT

THERE'S "a slab of granite so gray" in one of those tiny old cemeteries just off the main automobile highway two miles east of Tazewell, Va., under which, they say, "Sweet Alice lies"; the same timid, brown-haired Alice of that familiar song, "Ben Bolt." It doesn't matter that the name carved on the tiny old stone is not Alice, but Olivia, for Olivia Wynne, a girl who lived in an old brick house just up the road from the cemetery and died there early in the Nineteenth century. The countryside has long cherished the legend that Alice and Olivia were the same girl.

The story is an old one, of the country girl of sheltered life who fell in love with the stranger who came to the city ways, this time an itinerant music master, who was engaged to teach her the not unromantic art of playing the melodeon. There were plans for a wedding, the stranger's departure to "make arrangements," the girl's loving dreams over her trousseau and the fatal letter revealing the perfidious music master to be already married and a man of considerable family. Olivia died, as a true heroine of the period must, of broken heart.

In 1842 Dr. Thomas Dunn English of Pennsylvania visited his intimate friend William Edward Peery, then owner of the old Wynne home-stand, was captivated by the legend, and subsequently wrote the words of the familiar ballad. They were later set to music by Nelson Kneass and the song achieved lasting fame when Du Maurier introduced it into his novel, the famous "Trilby."

ABELARD AND HELOISE

IN THE Paris cemetery of Pere-Lachaise, on summer Sundays, the sentimental still lay wreaths on the tomb of two lovers, who died almost 800 years ago but are hero and heroine of a love story which still lives on in the famous "Love Letters of Abelard and Heloise."

Abelard was a brilliant and handsome young professor who by the time he was twenty-five was attracting thousands to his open-air speeches for the rights of the individual to make his own intellectual investigations. In time he came to verbal blows with the venerable St. Bernard himself, who stood for traditional authority and strongly condemned the young radical.

In 1117 Abelard was hired by the canon of the Episcopial school in Paris to tutor his beautiful niece Heloise, then just seventeen. The pair fell madly in love and fled together to Brittany, where there was a secret marriage. The relatives of Heloise followed the couple, found and separated them, and the canon further hired men to invade Abelard's rooms and brutally mutilate him. Abelard in despair entered the monastery of St. Denis, and Heloise, at his instigation, became a nun and foreswore even her memories of him.

Ten years later Heloise learned that his retirement had not brought her lover peace and wrote him the first of five famous love letters in which she revealed the tragedy of two noble souls who tried to forget each other but could not. Abelard died in 1142; Heloise twenty years later.

HARUN AL-RASCHID

ALMOST as thrilling as Sinbad, or Aladdin, or any of the fascinating tales by which Scheherazade through a "Thousand and One Nights" entertained the caliph of Bagdad and saved her own life, is the story of the caliph himself.

The caliph of the "Arabian Nights" was Harun al-Raschid, ruler of Bagdad during its palmy days in the Eighth century. His story is made up of the very stuff of romance: harem intrigues, poisonings, splendid gifts, hideous tortures, with which his high-handed slaughter of many brides after a single night of marriage is quite compatible, though not authenticated by history. Scheherazade, who won his permanent affection by her gifts as a story-teller, was a lady of high birth.

Harun al-Raschid was son of the Caliph Mahdi and a freed slave girl, who ordered his own concubines to kill her eldest son, the rightful heir, in order to set her youngest and favorite in the throne of an empire then extending from Spain to India. At first, under the wise administration of his grand vizier, Yahia the Barmecide, the empire flourished and Harun devoted himself to luxury, pleasure and the arts. Later a quarrel between the caliph and the barmecides led to the execution of Yahia, his four sons and all their descendants, and the ultimate downfall of the empire in rebellious disorder. The caliph himself died in a manner quite unworthy of a fairy story hero—of apoplexy! (© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

Roman Paving

Spain Could Not

Be Allies' Friend

No one could be surprised that Spain preserved a strict neutrality in the great struggle of Armageddon. The historical barriers between Spain and the allied and associated powers were not to be surmounted.

The deepest bitter memory of the Spaniard is the Napoleonic invasion and the agony of the Peninsular war. Even after a hundred years there could be no unity of sentiment between France and Spain. Gibraltar, though a faded cause of irritation, still plays a part in Spanish thought. But the real hatred was for the United States, and the final loss of the last remnants of the Spanish colonial empire left an aching void in the breasts of a proud race.

The aristocracy were pro-German. The middle classes anti-French. As the king said, "Only I and the mob are for the Allies." The best that could be hoped for was that Spain should be neutral in the struggle; and certainly she prospered by her abstention from it.—Winston Churchill in Collier's.

Boa Wasp's Superstitious

When Eladio Grimaldo of New Cristobal, Panama, opened his garage a recent morning, he failed to see the black cat which slept there and always greeted him with a friendly meow. What he did see was something that looked like an inner tube with a bulge in it and even as he looked, it moved. Investigation showed the tube to be a boa constrictor seven feet long. After it was killed the bulge was found to be the black cat, the snake's breakfast. It was bad luck for both snake and cat.—Capper's Weekly.

Cold Insurance

He carries it with him, ready for just such times. That little box of Bayer Aspirin. If he catches cold, what of it? Bayer Aspirin will stop it. If his throat feels sore, he will end the soreness with one good gargle made from these tablets.

Dangerous complications can follow the neglect of "a common cold." Every case of tonsillitis began with "just a sore throat." It's a wise plan to take aspirin after any undue exposure to bad weather, or whenever there is any chance that you've caught cold. If it's genuine aspirin it can't possibly hurt you; and how it does banish the aches and pains caused by colds, neuralgia, neuritis, lumbago, and even rheumatism.

Bayer Aspirin will insure your comfort through the worst cold season. The more susceptible you are to colds, the more you need it. Does not depress the heart.

Conoco Germ Processed Oil Saves Motor

Conoco Germ Processed Oil without this ordeal! Inspection of the motor revealed no damage done.

When Walter H. Freed reached Pueblo, Colorado, after a 41-mile drive from Colorado Springs, his car was so hot it had to be put into gear before it would stop!

Convincing evidence of Germ Processed Oil's stability, of its sure protection under the most trying conditions! Proof that Conoco Germ Processed Oil offers you the safest lubrication for your car.

He had plenty of Conoco Germ Processed Oil in the car. No steam was coming from the radiator, so he did not suspect the cooling system.

The oil that protects motors through such ordeals will lubricate your car better in every-day driving. For peace of mind, for economy and long motor life, change now to Conoco Germ Processed Oil at the sign of the Conoco Red Triangle.

But a garage man found not a drop of water in the radiator! The 41 miles had been driven without water in the radiator—only the oil to keep the motor from burning up.

We neither encourage "dry radiator" experiments nor guarantee success under all conditions. But unselected letters from motorists, now in our files, testify to this and hundreds of other unusual tests of Conoco Germ Processed Oil—most of them over fifty miles with the crankcase empty.

The Bursum Statement

In a statement made to the New Mexico State Tribune recently in answer to a request for the same, Mr. Bursum said:

"The Democrats repudiated Cleveland in 1896. Roosevelt Republicans repudiated Taft in 1912. Harrison nominated himself at Minneapolis over Bisbee. With the exception of Chester Arthur, who succeeded to the presidency after Garfield's assassination, I know of no occupant of the White House, who desired a nomination and failed to obtain it.

"As to the issues, the record of the administration will no doubt, be prominent. The Democrats may attempt to make the tariff, the issue. European loans and moratoriums as issues would be embarrassing to the Democrats. The war loans to Europe were distributed by the administration of President Wilson upon 'I. O. U.'—no terms, no interest or obligation to repay on a given date.

"And as to moratoriums, these 'I. O. U.'s remained in limbo until negotiations were inaugurated. Under the Harding administration which resulted in written debt settlements.

"Prohibition ought not to be a partisan political issue; the bootlegger is not concerned about the brand of politics his patrons pursue.

"As I view the situation, our troubles and the world troubles, are financial; shortage of credit, shortage of available cash, money plentiful, but not working.

"When money is idle, there is no work for labor, purchasing ability for commodities is absent, and on top of these troubles the world is burdened with impossible debt burdens, both governmental and industrial—at least impossible under the present status.

"The dollar has become too valuable. Something should be done to deflate the dollar—some thing which will promote parity of exchange throughout the world, thereby stabilizing and enhancing the purchasing ability of nations which are vitals to the gold.

"Re-monetization of silver on a world basis would greatly facilitate the payment of debts, governmental and private, and also establish the parity of exchange essential to international commerce.

"Temporary credit inflation in this country is needed to get business started and moving again—the wage earner is the basis of all prosperity—no money, no work, no wages.

"The issues of the next election are not made up today but will be largely influenced by events and conditions which may present themselves between now and election day.

"Roosevelt looks like the popular democratic candidate today—although I wouldn't be surprised to see Al Smith the democratic nominee."

No Reason For Hysteria; Use Common Sense

Hysterical reaction, exaggerated expectations or any interpretations breeding faith in an immediate "boom" would be the worst that can attend the prompt action in congress on President Hoover's program for economic reconstruction. In a few days we shall see the creation of the Emergency Finance Reconstruction Corporation, with Charles G. Dawes at its head. It backs the banks, insurance companies, railroads and the basic structure of our finance and business with the enormous sum of two billion dollars.

If the terms of the act creating the corporation did not prohibit it, as they do, the naming of Dawes, a Chicago man, would be enough guarantee that this huge reservoir of money will not be used to protect bad cases in New York due to bad foreign loans. This is a domestic measure purely, and we can believe that the two billion will be spread over the country fairly.

Then, the bill adding $125,000,000 to the immediate resources of the Federal Land Banks also at once is to become law. Companion measures for bank depositors' relief and home loan discounts, through other corporations to be set up on government credit, seem in course of prompt enactment.

This showing of broad, courageous action, wherein Democrats and Republicans in congress, for the most part, have cooperated, justifies an abiding confidence in a certainty. We shall see a gradual return to "good business," an end of "hoarding" and the protection of true values in multitudes of "frozen assets." Yet another thing, nevertheless, is true. No assurances whatever are given of a sunrise over another radiant day of jazz prosperity.

The whole depends upon calm and general public confidence. Towards that, the next support must be the proof by congress and the administration of steps which will reduce expenditures to such an extent that a balanced national budget can be foreseen within a definite time.—Roowell Record.

Combines Many Sounds
A report from Berlin tells the world that a new synthetic instrument has been invented which combines the grand piano, radio, harmonium, spinet and phonograph with a loud speaker. OK for a lodge in the wilderness.—New London Day.

City of Silk
Lyons is the center of the silk industry of France and one of the great silk manufacturing cities of the world. In and around Lyons more than 30,000 silk looms are at work, employing some 120,000 hands.

Peculiar Poison
The insect poison rotenone, which is harmless to human beings, was discovered when scientists heard that natives of the tropics used plants containing the poison to help them in catching fish.

Famous Englishmen's Wills
Wills have been filed in Somerset house, London, since 1882. Among them are the last testaments of Shakespeare, Milton, Admiral Nelson, the duke of Wellington (conqueror of Napoleon), William Pitt, Burke and Dr. Samuel Johnson. A fee of one shilling entitles any person to inspect any one of these wills, with the exception of Shakespeare's, for which the fee is two shillings.

Rodin's Masterpiece
"The Door of Hell," or, as it is more usually called, "The Gates of Hell," is a work by the eminent French sculptor Rodin, on which he originally intended to place his famous statue, The Thinker. We understand that this monument has now been set up in Paris, contrary to the sculptor's original idea.—Washington Star.

Interior Decoration
The Centennial in Philadelphia in 1876 brought an awakening to the possibilities of beauty in the home through harmonious combination of artistic draperies and furniture. Homes of the Colonial period and early American houses were artistically furnished because the furniture in those days was well designed and well made.

Center of "Cold Pole"
The lowest temperatures on the earth occur in winter in the north-eastern part of Siberia, the somewhat indefinite center of greatest cold, being known as the "cold pole." At Verkhoyansk, in this region, a temperature of 50.4 degrees below zero Fahrenheit, was recorded on January 15, 1885, the lowest ever recorded near the ground at a regular meteorological station.

Years Not Important
Ezekias do not take any interest in their own ages or the ages of their children as measured in years, and it is seldom possible to know how old a person is unless his birth can be checked up in comparison with some known visit of an explorer, whaling vessel or some event.

Beginning the Fantastic
In the domain of the fantastic there are no known boundary lines, but they become apparent as soon as you begin, however vaguely, to imitate ordinary human drama.—Jean Morlenval, French writer.

Rabbit Fur Widely Used
Use of rabbit skins in the fur trade is increasing rapidly, due to the disappearance of many of the finer pelts for animals. More rabbit fur is now used than any other kind in the making of fur garments, trimmings, glove linings and felt hats.

Alps' New Attraction
The Alps have produced their first cold water geyser. It came into being during the course of "sounding" operations near the bath resort of Schulte-Tarasp. The geyser erupts regularly every 15 minutes, the jet attaining a height of more than 30 feet.

Lecusts
The periodical cicada, popularly known as the 17-year locust, although it is not a locust, is bright green in color when just mature and then gradually becomes a dark brownish red in color. The 17-year variety often appears in the same year and in the same territory as the 13-year variety, and when large numbers of both of these broods appear together there is a veritable epidemic, such as there was in 1804.

Panama South American
The Pan-American Union says that Panama was formerly a part of the republic of Colombia, which is clearly in the South American zone. None of its affiliations has been with Central America.

Usury in England
It became legal to charge interest for money lent in England in the time of Henry VIII. Before this interest had been charged for generations by legal fictions of partnership, breach of contract, etc. The first English permissive statutes fixed 10 per cent as the legal limit which could be charged.

Constellation Stationary
The constellation known as the Great Dipper seems to move around the North star once every 23 hours and about 50 minutes. This motion is, of course, merely apparent, as it is the earth which actually moves.

Relics of Old London
Glimpses of London's accumulated past are constantly turned up by the spade, according to the Times. At St. Mary Magdalene, the parish church of Fleet Ham, the remains of an anchorite in a wooden coffin have been found, with a cross on his breast—either Saxon or Norman.

Marital Shoals
A Swedish statistician reports that the first year of married life is not so critical as popular tradition would have it, but that the time when marriages are likely to go on the rocks is during the fifth to the tenth years of wedded life.

Dice of Asiatic Origin?
It is not known how, and in what manner, dice actually originated. Wherever dice have been found in the tombs of ancient Egypt, in Greece, or in the Far East, they differ in no material respect from those in use today. They were probably evolved from knuckle-bones. It is certain that dice games were played in times prior to those of which we have any written record. The fact that dice have been used throughout the Orient from time immemorial seems to indicate an Asiatic origin.

Dewey's Business Life
Chauncey Dewey was so well known as an orator and after-dinner speaker that many people lose sight of the fact that he was a prominent lawyer, bank director and railway executive. He served two terms in the United States senate and attended every Republican national convention from 1883 to 1924. In 1924 he was a delegate, but illness prevented his attendance.

Boston Men Pioneers
Those who sit indoors in comfort in the cold New England winters may thank two Boston men, James Jones Walworth and Joseph Mason, who back in 1844 went into business together and agreed to risk their money in a scheme for installing a new heating device in business houses and residences. To this company belongs the early development of steam and hot water heating of buildings.

SONG OF THE WEEK

Old Playmate

HERE'S a fresh idea—a new twist on the "Old Gang of Mine" type of song. It has a sweet, appealing melody, climaxing in a vigorous finish. One of the things that struck me when I first heard it was the sensible way its lyric had been handled, its eulogy of a boyhood chum being achieved without approaching the maudlin or macabre type of sentiment. As far as I know this is the first time a tribute of this sort has found expression in a popular song.

Matt Malneck and Gus Kahn (the old reliable) are the authors. Matt has been associated with Paul Whiteman's orchestra for a long time as violist and arranger, and is also the composer of "I'm Through with Love." He is a talented boy, and has written several lovely violin concertos in the modern manner. White-

Dawes Named Head of Reconstruction Finance Corporation—Laval's Blow to Reparations Conference—'Alfalfa Bill' in Washington.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

INTO the lap of Gen. Charles G. Dawes, or rather onto his shoulders, has fallen another big job, and the country seems to feel confident that this Strong Man of business, finance and diplomacy will be able to handle it competently. He has been appointed by President Hoover as president of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation which is to go to the rescue of banks, railroads and other interests whose assets and operations have been "frozen" by the depression. Two billion dollars supplied by the government will be at the disposal of the corporation and it is fondly hoped and expected that this great piece of machinery will, under the direction of General Dawes, extricate the country from the economic morass.

President Hoover in announcing the selection of Dawes added that Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board, would be chairman of the board of the new corporation.

In a second statement the President announced that Secretary of State Stimson would replace Dawes as chairman of the American delegation to the disarmament conference in Geneva but would not attend the opening sessions, at which Ambassador Hugh Gibson would be acting chairman. Other members of the delegation called for Europe Wednesday, and the delay in the departure of Mr. Stimson was construed in Washington as meaning that Mr. Hoover does not expect a great deal from the conference. Of course Mr. Dawes' resignation as ambassador to Great Britain was promptly offered and accepted.

SENATOR SWANSON and Dr. Mary Emma Woolley called on the liner President Harding and will be joined in Geneva by Ambassadors Gibson and Wilson, who are already in Europe, and by Norman H. Davis, who preceded them on another ship. Our delegates have been instructed not to agree to further reduction of American land forces. As for naval armaments, American officials see little chance that any other powers will be willing to make armament cuts which would materially affect this nation's naval force.

The French government, through Premier Laval, has plainly indicated that its stand at the conference in Geneva will be unchanged. It will insist on what France considers gunning offshoots of security before consenting to disarmament.

At the same time Laval, submitting the foreign policy of his new government to the chamber of deputies, virtually doomed the reparations conference at Lausanne. He declared, in effect, that France would not give up her right to reparations, adding that all France could offer was to try to adapt existing international accords to the present crisis. Great Britain thereupon announced the conference opening had been postponed from January 23 and that further conversations were in progress. It appeared evident the parley, if held at all, would be only a meeting of experts.

CONGRESSMEN and other inhabitants of the National Capital heard a lot about the liquor issue during the week—rather more than usual. Senator Royal S. Copeland of New York, who is a Democrat and a physician, introduced in the senate a bill which would amend the prohibition act to enable patients who need liquor for medicinal purposes to obtain it in any necessary quantities on physicians' prescriptions. It also would enable physicians to prescribe such liquor without recording in governmental offices the disease from which their patients are suffering.

Sen. Copeland

"The Eighteenth amendment does not limit the medicinal use of liquor," Senator Copeland said. "The national prohibition act and related acts recognize its use as proper, but they lay down certain conditions with which a physician must comply when he prescribes and they prohibit absolutely the prescribing of liquor in excess of certain arbitrarily fixed quantities, for individual patients, except such as are inmates of hospitals for inebriates. The conditions long have afforded the professional instincts of the great mass of the medical profession. The Wickersham commission unanimously recommended that these grounds for complaint be removed."

The senate manufacturers subcommittee continued intermittently its hearings on the Diaghram 4 per cent beer bill. One of the interesting witnesses was David Burnett, commissioner of internal revenue. He declined to predict whether legislation of beer would increase consumption over prohibition days, but said beer taxes would create a "substantial increase" in revenues.

Representative Dyer of Missouri testified that states refused to enforce the dry law because the people regarded the definition of intoxicants as unscientific and dishonest. As a result Dyer said, federal judges have become real police judges.

NEWTON D. BAKER having refused to seek the Democratic Presidential nomination, besides having made himself almost out of the question by reiterating his advocacy of American membership in the League of Nations, the party leaders of Ohio agreed to support Gov. George White as Ohio's favorite son. The state's delegates, however, will be "free from any sort of control," which means they can switch to any other candidate.

South Dakota Democrats have declared for Franklin D. Roosevelt, and in Minnesota a movement has been started to secure that state's delegation for Al Smith.

"ALFALFA BILL" Murray, governor of Oklahoma, who was in Washington in behalf of a bill to remove the 10 per cent tax on state bank note issues, addressed the biennial convention of the Anti-Saloon league and rather staggered his hearers by arguing for a "zone control" system for liquor traffic. Though known as a prohibitionist, the governor said that prohibition "possibly is not the final solution of the problem of liquor traffic."

Gov. Murray

Dr. A. J. Barton, chairman of the league's executive committee, replied to Murray indirectly by asserting that "the South will not be misled by the hue and cry about state's rights," and will not support any candidate for the Presidency who is either personally wet or runs on a wet platform. The league went on record as opposing anything that might weaken prohibition—referenda, reabsorption, state control, modification and beer proposals, as well as repeal attempts.

TWO or three weeks may elapse before Secretary of the Treasury Mellon knows whether the house judiciary committee favors his impeachment as demanded by Representative Wright Patman of Texas. The hearings were adjourned Tuesday until the official transcript of the testimony is completed and printed. Just before this Alexander Gregg, counsel for Mr. Mellon, read to the committee a cable denial from President Olaya of Columbia that he and Mellon had ever discussed the Barco oil concession.

"This is the most damaging evidence yet introduced," declared Representative La Guardia. "Mr. Patman has been working for days here to show us that the oil concession was discussed by Mr. Stimson and President Olaya. Why did you get this cable denial and why was it sent? Why should President Olaya show so much solicitude for Mr. Mellon and the State department?"

Mr. Gregg replied that he was certain no one in the State department as asked for the denial.

Mr. Patman read to the committee a list of stocks he declared Secretary Mellon had put up as collateral with a Pittsburgh bank for a $200,000,000 bond issue made by the Gulf Oil corporation.

ONE of the State department's best "career men," Joseph C. Grew, ambassador to Turkey, has been selected by the President to succeed W. Cameron Forbes as ambassador to Japan, and the choice is said to please the minkado's government. Mr. Cameron is anxious to quit Tokyo but may be persuaded to remain there for a time because of the complications of the Manchurian situation.

Mr. Grew, who was born in Boston, has spent many years in the diplomatic service. He has held several important posts and attended various international conferences, and in 1922 he negotiated a valuable treaty with Turkey. He has been ambassador at Angora since 1927. Jefferson Caffery, minister to Colombia, may succeed him there.

For the London ambassadorship vacated by General Dawes, Lawrence G. Phillips, former senator from Colorado, is being urged by his friends.

As was predicted, James H. Beverly of Texas was appointed governor of Puerto Rico to succeed Theodore Roosevelt, promoted to the governor generalship of the Philippines. Mr. Beverly is now attorney general of the island.

CONGRESS received a thorough scolding for the way it has been squandering billions of dollars, bringing the nation to the verge of bankruptcy, in a memorial addressed to it by the Federation of American Business, a national organization with headquarters in Chicago. The document was presented to the senate by Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, and he asked that it be read from the desk instead of being merely filed.

"The very existence of the nation is at stake and your constituents, alive to your every action in this crisis, will accept no excuses and no extenuations," was the conclusion of the demand voiced in the memorial for reduction of government expenditures and reduction of taxation.

"The tremendous increase in the cost of government is the result of three major causes," the memorial contended. "First, government competition directly or indirectly with the business activities of its citizens, and the absorption by increased taxation of losses thus incurred; second, new regulatory or social services not contemplated in our scheme of political administration, but taken on in increasing volume in recent years, and, third, independent boards and commissions, under direction of no established executive department and frequently financed with revolving funds that free them of United States treasury supervision. The whole pattern of government is being changed without approval or even discussion by our citizenship."

Next day a representative of industry, James A. Emery, counsel for the National Association of Manufacturers, appeared before a house committee to warn members that a sure way to delay restoration of the opportunity to work is to divert too great a portion of private funds to public purposes.

Public expenditures—national, state and local—now total some thirteen billion dollars annually. Mr. Emery reminded the congressmen who have before them the task of drawing up the new tax bill with its inevitably higher rates. Of that huge total, Mr. Emery pointed out, only ten billion is met by immediate taxation, the remainder being met by continuous borrowing.

"Nearly one-fifth of the national income is taken for public purposes," he explained, "and we thus face a rising taxation with declining incomes."

LORD WILLINGTON, viceroy of India, is not taking half measures in suppressing the Nationalist revolt against British rule. Having jailed Mahatma Gandhi and most of his chief lieutenants, he followed this up by putting in prison Mrs. Gandhi, the mahatma's wife, and their youngest son, Mrs. Gandhi, a little woman sixty years old, was given six weeks in jail because she had undertaken to carry on her husband's campaign. She asked a longer sentence, promising to resume the independence work as soon as she got out. The judge refusing, she picked up her Hindu Bible and her spinning wheel and entered her cell.

GENERAL HONJO, commander of the Japanese in Manchuria, thoroughly avenged the recent killing of a number of his soldiers by Chinese troops. He sent out three well equipped expeditions which retaliated by slaying several hundred soldiers and "bandits" in engagements at Yental, Tangliac and Yingkow. Heavy artillery and bombing planes were freely used by the Japanese with terrific effect. The Japanese plans for establishing an independent government in Manchuria—that is, independent of all but Japan—went forward with speed. There were renewed reports that Hsuan Tung, former boy emperor, would be set up as ruler of Manchuria, and so the Chinese government issued warrants for his arrest.

DURING the debate in the house on the Agriculture department's $175,000,000 supply bill for the next fiscal year, Representative Wood of Indiana, Republican, made a demand for a reduction in salaries of government employees. Mr. Shannon of Missouri asked whether President Hoover would approve a cut in his salary and what was the extent of Mr. Hoover's private fortune. Mr. Wood replied: "He has made a lot of money, but he has given it away. My information from a reliable source, is that the President today is not worth $1,000,000. I have faith enough to believe that if the salaries of the federal employees are reduced President Hoover will reduce his own salary."

DEMOCRATIC primaries in Louisiana were captured by Gov. Huey Long's hand-picked candidates headed by O. K. Allen for governor, despite the vigorous efforts of Long's brother and other relatives on behalf of George Guston. There were many stories about violence and intimidation by Huey's henchmen, but that statesman, who is also a senator-elect, laughed them off and said the election was quiet.

FLOOD conditions in the Mississippi Delta region grew worse daily throughout the week, and the Red Cross and coast guard worked hard to relieve the inhabitants of the inundated area. One after another the levees of the smaller rivers gave way and the waters spread over many counties.

PAY DAY

By AMY CAMPBELL

(Copyright by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

AS HE neared home with his pay envelope in his pocket, Dick Howard had a sense of depression that he hated to go inside and face the exhilarated mood of his wife. She was always elated on pay days, ready for some new adventure in spending.

To have been married a year and a half, with a baby one month old, and not to have been able to save more than a paltry sum from his fairly good wages, seemed overwhelming tragedy. Most of what they saved had gone to pay the hospital bill. The doctor was yet to be heard from.

Dick couldn't see how he was to stifle as to turn over nearly every cent to Mae from the beginning. He had given her the credit of being able to manage well. He was still terribly in love with her and as for the baby—well, nothing was too good for the little fellow.

That was the worst of this never getting anywhere. There was the baby's future to consider. He ought to have the best. Especially in education. Dick felt ugly with himself for being so soft in acceding to Mae's demands for money. He had never once protested and Mae had taken it all for granted that she could have almost anything she wanted.

He had got so sick of hearing her mention over all the things she would do the minute money was in her hands. He had never once heard her say the word—save. If she had it would have been different. Then they could talk things over.

He hated to spoil the kid's fun. She was lovely in her excitement of getting things together in the house. She must be enmeshed with different deferred payments for various things. He couldn't see how she could be so weak as to fall for that dollar-down stuff. But he hadn't the heart so far to dampen her enthusiasm.

Not that he didn't want to spend. He told himself he got as much kick as the next one out of throwing money for a little fun or spec. But Mae was surely hyped on this installment buying. He wondered where it would bring them if she didn't ease up.

Suddenly he thought of the absurdity of his acceptance of her extravagance. He saw them in debt which they could never meet. If he had any stuff in him, at all he'd tell her. He'd tell her tonight when he handed over the pay. He'd be kind about it but wise and firm. He'd treat her like a fine little kid that just needed advice.

He felt kind of sick about attempting it as he opened the door and called his usual "Hi, you two."

"Oh, Dick, I've hardly been able to wait to tell you what we've got. Baby and I. You know you said you wanted him to have a good education. Well, he's going to begin right here at home with his own lovely library. Look—"

She led the way to the living rooms and displayed the beginning of a group of knowledge volumes for a child from babyhood to—it looked to Dick, like old age. She leaped upon pages with her fingers and pointed excitedly to certain items which attracted her eye.

A slow fury came over Dick. He looked at the baby asleep in the new buggy, and at Mae with her eyes glowing over this new purchase that was to enchain them with new obligations. He tightened his fists to keep them from gripping her shoulders. He felt he could shake and shake her into sensibility with a more keen belief than he had ever known in either kissing or loving her.

But when she went over to the baby, cooling above him, calling back that she had had the money for the down payment so she thought it was a splendid thing to get the books, he took a quick step toward them.

"And so you had to get into more debt, didn't you?" he glowered above her as she bent to pick up his son.

"And now," she continued, without looking at Dick, without seemingly to have heard him, "it's time, Sonny, to tell your Daddy our surprise for him—how busy you and I have been trying to spend the precious money he works so hard for. Even with all the things we've saved a lot more than the doctor's bill which came today. We can pay it and clean up most of our debts and start a bank account for Sonny and some time maybe we'll put our rent into buying a house for us all, won't we?"

She looked at Dick, a veritable glow about her.

"Why, you're all tired out and white. Bet you're hungry. But aren't you proud of us, uh?"

He held her as if forever, the baby between them.

"Proud? I'll show you. I've got something to work for. Something too good for a plug like me—"

Famous Bridgehead

Years ago, Germans crossing the Rhine either to or from Coblenz, had the choice of paddling or using a position bridge. Coblenz, meeting point of the Moselle and Rhine rivers, was the bridgehead occupied by the American troops after the signing of the armistice after the World War. The Germans founded a city there, more than 1,800 years ago, known as Confluentia. After the death of Charlemagne, his grandson came there to divide between them his gigantic empire. Coblenz was the favorite residence of Empress Augusta, wife of Emperor William I. Heremchistateln, the "watch on the Rhine," is opposite Coblenz.

Father LeJeune drew the letter from his pocket and gave it to Robert. It was written in French. The young man read and reread it with a thrill of joy and astonishment. The Father gave him permission to keep it and this is the letter now copied from his diary:

"From a small Trading Post in the wilderness north of Fort Orange on the Lake of the Iroquois.

"December 5, 1636.

"To the excellent Father LeJeune: Last year I heard of your work from your bishop in Paris. First I desire to assure you that the best wishes of myself and my friends are with you in the difficult task you have undertaken. I now seek your kind offices in a matter which involves the happiness of many good people. Six weeks ago a young man of the name of Robert Hebert went into the wilderness with his guide at a point far up the coast from Boston. Since then they have not been heard from. It is feared that they have fallen a prey to wild beasts or been captured by the savages, or that they are lost and starving in the great waste. If news of them should come to you and it should be possible for you to render them any service it would be rewarded not only with our gratitude but with such a share of our substance as would, I am sure, contribute something to your comfort and success. If perchance he should arrive at your residence I beg of you to give him hospitality and what help you can. His father is a gentleman, his mother was one of your own race. I and my brother are with trader Van Brock in near the south end of the Lake of the Iroquois. In about ten days we shall be going south and at New Amsterdam shall take water for Boston, which we hope to reach before Christmas.

"With deep respect and hearty greetings,

"Yours Faithfully,
"Peggy Weld."

When the young man had finished with the letter Father LeJeune asked: "Who is your mother?"

"Catherine de Brebeuf."

The Father's interest in the young man deepened suddenly.

"Of the noble family of Brebeuf in Normandy?" he asked.

"The same."

"You have a relative in residence here—our beloved Pere Uille, Jean de Brebeuf. He is now out feeding the cattle and the swine. I will send for him."

"Jean de Brebeuf! I remember him well. He was with us when my mother died."

When the large gray-bearded Father Brebeuf entered in his soiled, coarse black cassock he greeted the boy with kisses and affectionate enthusiasm. Thus, favored by fortune and the sincere good will of the young man the captives found themselves on a friendly footing in a situation naturally difficult. Robert had brought in his pockets an ample store of English money. This he offered freely to secure what was needed for the ransom of himself and his friend.

"My cousin, you have come to a land where money is of less value than glass beads and seashells and shiny trinkets," said Jean de Brebeuf. "I will give to each of you a hatchet and a double handful of glass beads. That will be sufficient. For this you may give me five pounds. We have been generous with the Algonquians. They are our friends. We have given them many blankets."

Then Robert voiced his urgent feeling:

"We must be going south as soon as possible."

The good Father answered: "You might get down to the Dutch through the lands of the Iroquois—a fierce people. You would need the help of God in this journey."

Father Brebeuf went with Robert and Amos to the trading post, followed by the eager band of savages. Soon the latter were shouting and chattering over their trinkets, as happy as a group of children. The captives were free, and their tools and weapons were returned to them.

This was no sooner accomplished than the red men began to gamble with their new wealth in their favorite dish game. It was played with six plum stones, white on one side and black on the other. The players were divided in two opposing sides. A brave was chosen to shake the dish. They guessed on the number of white or black to appear when the dish was shaken and dumped. They bet heavily. In a little time a noisy contention arose between the opposing sides. Two men were chosen to decide the issue in a fight. They fought like fish-women, grabbing each other's hair,

Each with fists full of hair they struggled and twisted and jerked in a frightful fashion. No work came from either. Being well-matched the encounter continued until the white men turned away wearied by its brutality and went to the house of Madame Hebert, who lived with her daughter and son-in-law Monsieur Couillard. Built of logs and quite weather-proof it was the only real house in Canada. Madame had cleared and cultivated a track of land. Her efforts kept her family and the Fathers supplied with grain, small fruits and vegetables. A cheery, kindly soul she was like a mother to those lonely men who were giving their lives in a fruitless sowing among rocks and thorns.

She greeted Brebeuf fondly as Le Ron Pere Uille, his title at the Residence, and offered the hospitality of her house to the two Englishmen. With soap and towels they went down to the river with the Father for a bath. Returning at dusk by the way of the trading post, they saw the fighters still embraced and writhing and twisting and struggling in silence like a pair of bulldogs on the ground. Only two of the band remained to watch them.

"Let us go to the Indian cabin and find the chief and try to stop this," said the Father.

The cabin was built of poles covered with bark and walled up with boughs at one end. It was for the accommodation of visiting Indians. Clean when the warriors arrived it was now like a pig-pen, ill-smelling and the carpet of boughs covered with litter. Two fires were burning. A part of the smoke went up through holes in the roof, but much of it clouded the atmosphere of the long room and was a torment to the eyes of a white man. On every side were naked bodies, black and overbeaten by the fires, mingled pell-mell with dogs still arrived with a band of hunters. Father Brebeuf found the young chief and prevailed upon him to go and stop the fight.

"They like us not to interfere in their affairs and we do it with restraint," said the Father. "The young chief has been baptized but, alas, their customs and superstitions are the growth of ages. Naturally they are deeper rooted than the new faith. It is more difficult than clearing and planting the wild land. You have seen how stubborn they are. We are patient. Some will yield to us and confess their sins and take on a humble and becoming spirit. We baptize them. A dream or the arrival of an Iroquois captive will turn them back to savagery. Still God can make the mountains to be a plain."

At the table of Madame Hebert the Englishmen sat with her family and three Fathers and two lay brothers. Three other Fathers were then out in the forest with the wild men. They had a dinner of roasted moose meat with wine and baked potatoes and good bread eaten with a conserve of dried berries.

"This is in honor of the kinsmen of our dear Father Brebeuf," said Madame. "We are wont to fare more simply. When the winter is far spent you would find us fasting or dining with a piece of bread and a little wine."

There was much talk of the sweet land of wheat and vines and of the good cooking to be found in Paris. It was a joy to these lonely people to hear Robert tell of the adventures of himself and his friend on their journey.

When they went to bed Robert read the letter to his wise old comrade, asking at the last word:

"What is the meaning of this?"

"That's as easy as lookin' through a window," said Amos. "The sweet gal is in love with ye. The whole town thinks ye're guilty and she don't. If she does she don't think it's anything to be hung for. There's a gal like them in the time o' Queen Bess. She believes in takin' her enjoyment while she's alive instead o' waitin' till she's dead. She's broke with Rosewell and she wants you. I'll tell ye what's behind all this. She coaxed her brother to come with her. That gal has studied the maps o' Hudson and Champlain in the governor's house. She knew that if we got to the big waterways from north to south we'd make for Kebec or New Amsterdam. I reckon she made up her mind that if she could find ye she'd lead ye to New Amsterdam and marry ye right

"Let Us Go to the Indian Cabin and Find the Chief and Try to Stop This," Said the Father.

there, by the grace of God, and ship ye off to Holland with her, and why not I'd like to know?"

"I can think of worse things that could happen to me," said Robert. "I wonder why she has turned against Rosewell. He's a much handsomer man."

"That all depends on the pair o' eyes that's lookin' at him. He was not the man for her. He's half dead—his body in this world, his mind in the hereafter. Argues about what it means to be justified and sanctified. How would a gal like Peggy get along with that for breakfast, dinner and supper? She'd get the cramps quick."

"Well, let's get away from here and try to push down to that Dutchman's trading post," Robert proposed.

"As soon as ever we can," his friend answered. "I'm as anxious as a terrier at a rat hole. Amos is happier than he has been in the last two moons."

The comfort of being out of peril in a good bed was a thing that they loved to recall in the long days ahead. They overslept that night and were not awakened till Father Brebeuf came to the door. He said that a band of Algonquians were soon going over to the Lake of the Iroquois to meet a Dutch trader who came up in the first snow moon to sell them strong water and to get the otter skins taken far north of the great river.

"He will have a shallop on the long lake," said the Father. "You could go with him to their fort in the south. If you do, God help you to persuade him that he is damning his own soul by selling strong water to these wild folk. It is an evil thing and only a son of Satan would be doing it. Our own French people coming on the ships give us sore trouble and put our lives in danger with this vile traffic."

In leaving, Robert rewarded Madame Hebert with a generous gift for the good cause and thanks as sincere as any he had ever spoken.

"Do you see how these heathen have battered the front of our house with stones?" the Father asked as they were going away. "That was done when many were dying of the plague. They thought it due to the anger of their gods for our being here. We nursed them; we gave them food and medicine yet they stoned us, and save for God's mercy, we should have been slain. It is like living thousands of years ago with a people who have neither home nor country nor laws nor possessions."

Father Brebeuf went with them and the band of warriors to the shore. He had given Robert a letter to Father Couvet who was with the Algonquians on an island near the Canadian shore, bounded on the south by impenetrable rapids. In their canoe he put next to the young man an old brave who had been converted and baptized and who had served a summer on the lands of the Residence. He had acquired a smattering of French. His name was Achawat. They set out under a clear sky in warm sunlight.

"I begin to think we'll get through," said Robert with a sigh. "And perhaps in time to meet our friends."

"I have held my tongue so long it is gettin' rusty," Amos answered as he bit off a chunk of tobacco.

"Then it will be a good time to tell me what happened to John Smith," Robert proposed.

Amos began: "We'll take another bite at that cherry and with good luck we'll get it swallowed. It's the right kind o' music for ye. The Turk and Cap'n John rode at each other. It was a pretty sight. We Turk haters were breathin' short. Hell's griddles! It seemed as if the horses would slam each other down. Then we split our throats yellin'. Smith's lance had gone through the right o' the Turk's helmet. The infidel was on the ground kickin' like a beheaded rooster. Then—he lay quiet. Smith dismounted and embraced the dead man's helmet. In a minute he had his trophy. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

"As soon as ever we can," his friend answered. "I'm as anxious as a terrier at a rat hole. Amos is happier than he has been in the last two moons."

The comfort of being out of peril in a good bed was a thing that they loved to recall in the long days ahead. They overslept that night and were not awakened till Father Brebeuf came to the door. He said that a band of Algonquians were soon going over to the Lake of the Iroquois to meet a Dutch trader who came up in the first snow moon to sell them strong water and to get the otter skins taken far north of the great river.

"He will have a shallop on the long lake," said the Father. "You could go with him to their fort in the south. If you do, God help you to persuade him that he is damning his own soul by selling strong water to these wild folk. It is an evil thing and only a son of Satan would be doing it. Our own French people coming on the ships give us sore trouble and put our lives in danger with this vile traffic."

In leaving, Robert rewarded Madame Hebert with a generous gift for the good cause and thanks as sincere as any he had ever spoken.

"Do you see how these heathen have battered the front of our house with stones?" the Father asked as they were going away. "That was done when many were dying of the plague. They thought it due to the anger of their gods for our being here. We nursed them; we gave them food and medicine yet they stoned us, and save for God's mercy, we should have been slain. It is like living thousands of years ago with a people who have neither home nor country nor laws nor possessions."

Father Brebeuf went with them and the band of warriors to the shore. He had given Robert a letter to Father Couvet who was with the Algonquians on an island near the Canadian shore, bounded on the south by impenetrable rapids. In their canoe he put next to the young man an old brave who had been converted and baptized and who had served a summer on the lands of the Residence. He had acquired a smattering of French. His name was Achawat. They set out under a clear sky in warm sunlight.

"I begin to think we'll get through," said Robert with a sigh. "And perhaps in time to meet our friends."

"I have held my tongue so long it is gettin' rusty," Amos answered as he bit off a chunk of tobacco.

"Then it will be a good time to tell me what happened to John Smith," Robert proposed.

Amos began: "We'll take another bite at that cherry and with good luck we'll get it swallowed. It's the right kind o' music for ye. The Turk and Cap'n John rode at each other. It was a pretty sight. We Turk haters were breathin' short. Hell's griddles! It seemed as if the horses would slam each other down. Then we split our throats yellin'. Smith's lance had gone through the right o' the Turk's helmet. The infidel was on the ground kickin' like a beheaded rooster. Then—he lay quiet. Smith dismounted and embraced the dead man's helmet. In a minute he had his trophy. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

Remarkable Low Note on Australian Organ

On the great organ in Sydney town hall, Australia, is a pedal stop of 64 feet. The pipe actually of that length, the lowest G, does not stand upright, but is bent in several places, so that it may be accommodated in the interior of the instrument. The note this giant pipe emits—the stop is a reed stop, a "contra-positone"—is fearsome. It is more like a cavernous growl than a musical note, and one of the little jokes of the tuner when he is showing visitors through the great array of pipes in this organ is to have the famous 64-foot pedal pipe sounded when the visitor is alongside it and not expecting the shock. It is an unfeeling surprise. The vibrations of this low G can almost be counted—in which regard, no doubt, the note resembles that of the basso-profundo whose boast it was that he had always to begin to sing his lowest note 32 beats before it was needed, since it took so long to become audible to the listener!

Siam's National Flower

The chrysanthemum, regent of oriental gardens, but comparatively new in the Occident, is about to have its one thousand six hundredth birthday. Following its arrival in Japan and China from Korea in the early 300's, the little pompos was immediately adopted by oriental royalty. The chrysanthemum still remains the national flower of Siam. In Japan the 16-petaled flower adorns the emperor's crest. The star and collar, emblem of the Imperial Order of the Chrysanthemum, is the choicest decoration the emperor of Japan can bestow and is seldom found on the breast of any save royalty.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

(By REV. F. H. FURZEWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, (C. 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for February 7 THE SLAVERY OF SIN (TEMPERANCE LESSON)

LESSON TEXT—John 8:31-36. GOLDEN TEXT—Jesus answered them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whosoever commiteth sin is the servant of sin. PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Tells Us How to Be Free. JUNIOR TOPIC—How Jesus Makes Us Free. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Fight for Freedom. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Slavery or Freedom?

We are living in a day of boasted freedom. Revolt from authority is almost universal. Anarchy lifts up its vicious head in the home, society, business, state, nation, and the world. It is this spirit which is revolting against the Eighteenth amendment under the pretext of liberty and freedom. Sin which is fundamentally and essentially lawlessness (I John 3:4) is back of all violations of the Eighteenth amendment. The vital truth of this lesson is the only solution of the prohibition question.

1. Discipleship and Freedom (vv. 31, 32). Violators of the Eighteenth amendment are not true disciples of Christ. Some church men may be against this law, but not true disciples. In these verses Jesus indicates the following stages of discipleship:
 - a. Beliefs on Jesus (v. 31). This means not only assent to Christ's teaching, but acknowledgment of his authority. It means to give Christ the place of lordship over the life. All who allow Christ to rule their lives are in sympathetic obedience to the national constitution.
 - b. Continue in Christ's words (v. 31). To continue in his Word means:
 - a. Meditation upon it.
 - b. Confidence in it.
 - c. Prayer over it.
 - d. Obedience to it.

2. The teachings of Jesus Christ constitute the standard of life for every true disciple. His words are adequate for every decision, habit, or duty. The word of God is the sole and adequate rule of authority to the Christian. Indulgence in intoxicating liquor is prohibited by God's Word, even to the extent that drunkards are debarr'd from heaven (I Cor. 6:10).
3. Assurance (v. 31). "Ye are my disciples indeed." Continuance in Christ's words demonstrates the fact of discipleship.
4. Knowledge of the truth (v. 32). Those who obey Christ enter upon higher knowledge. They have an experiential knowledge. Demands made by God's Word are not always apprehended at the first; but those who continue in the ways of obedience come to know God and see that what he demanded was right (John 13:7).
5. Freedom (v. 32). The one who renders implicit obedience to Christ enters upon real freedom (Romans 8:2).

- II. Righteousness and Freedom (vv. 33, 34). Those who practice sin are in slavery. The evil doer is under the mastery of the Devil; "whosoever committeth sin is the servant of sin," Doctor Pierson says that the sinner's slavery is threefold:
 1. Slavery to guilt.
 2. Slavery to penalty or judgment.
 3. Slavery to power or habit.

A little thought shows the abjectness of this slavery. Consciousness of guilt is universal. All know that judgment is coming. In the sober moments of life all men acknowledge coming judgment and have "a certain fearful looking for of judgment." All know that they are helpless to break their habits of wrongdoing. Freedom is possible only in conformity with the divine will.

- III. Sonship and Freedom (vv. 35, 36). Regeneration is necessary in order to obtain freedom from sin. Sin's power must be broken through the salvation of the individual. The works of the Devil can only be destroyed through the regeneration of the individual. Happily Christ can destroy the Devil's works through the sonship of those who believe on him (I John 3:7-9). The only way to secure sonship on the part of man is to get him saved through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. The Eighteenth amendment can no more make a nation sober than the ten commandments can make a man tell the truth and desist from murder. The only way to get the benefit of the Eighteenth amendment is to have a revival. It is in securing the sinner's freedom by bringing him as a child into the family of God. So long as people are ignorant of Christ they will remain in bondage to sin. Sin is a hard taskmaster and has as its end death (Romans 6:23).

POULTRY

SICK HEN HAS NO PLACE IN FLOCK

Disease Prevention Should Be Chief Thought.

"Burning dead hens, or removing them from the poultry house, is not sanitation but proof that sanitation is needed," says Prof. E. L. Brunet of the New-York state veterinary college at Cornell university. "Sanitation," he says, "is built around the knowledge of the manner in which disease enters the flock and how disease spreads after it is in the flock." Treatment is practical in only a few cases. The average life of a chicken is so short that the owner cannot afford to have a hen sick long. She cannot make up for lost time and is then a total loss. So attempts to control diseases should be preventive.

When new birds are added to the flock, Doctor Brunet advises keeping these new birds in an isolated house for at least four weeks. Many flocks have had chicken pox and cholera introduced by new birds. A hospital or isolation pen should be part of the equipment on any poultry farm. The treatment of all diseases, and particularly of colds, should be in the hospital.

Many plants are building manure houses. Tapeworms are spread by insects, principally flies. The insects get the tapeworm eggs from the manure. Roundworms are spread by eggs which get into the bird's food and drink. Anything that can be done to keep down insect life in the manure reduces the number of parasites in the flock. Some poultrymen have found it necessary and profitable to screen the poultry houses and build manure storages to keep out flies and other insects, he says.

Select Only Vigorous Parents for Breeders

As a general rule any young bird of either sex that has been sick and out of condition should be rejected from the breeding pen. Only healthy, vigorous fowls can be expected to be profitable, and there is no more necessary measure for securing such vigor than breeding only from vigorous parents. However, the occurrence of some slight diarrhoeal trouble in growing chicks, due quite possibly to injudicious feeding, need not necessarily condemn it. If the trouble is evidently fully recovered from and the chick develops fully into a healthy individual. Suspicion should rest upon the unfortunate bird, however, and it should definitely show that it has not been injured by sickness before it is chosen to enter a breeding pen.

Corn is the most important fattening grain, but it may be mixed, ground into meal, with such foods as boiled potatoes and table scraps to cheapen the cost of fattening a bird for the table.—Rural New Yorker.

Planning Year's Work

There is no better time to plan your poultry activities for the coming year than now. Start the year right, keep going in the right manner, and snip up in the right way, if you want maximum success from your poultry. Don't overlook the scientific side of the business. You must have a knowledge of the scientific principles related to the many problems of feeding, breeding and management and most important of all, apply them.

Here are four guide posts to successful poultry farming. With the proper management to each of these departments, you can put your business on a better paying basis.

Scaly Leg Treatment

Nicotine sulphate has proved to be a satisfactory ingredient for treating scaly leg, according to Wallace's Farmer. The treatment recommended to rid the fowls of this mite is as follows: Dissolve a quarter of a bar of laundry soap in boiling water, add water up to a gallon and put in one and one-fourth teaspoonfuls of concentrated nicotine sulphate (Black Leaf 40). Hold the legs of the fowls in this solution until they are thoroughly wet.

Poultry Facts

- Use only sound and clean filters and cup flats in the cases. Pack all eggs with small end down. Do not pack extra large or weak shelled eggs, say poultry specialists.
- A poultryman who continuously selects his breeding hens from the late molting group in his flock, may expect a higher egg production from his flock during the late summer and early fall.
- Feeds such as white corn, wheat, buckwheat, and oats, make light yolked eggs.
- Illinois had 20,824,000 chickens on farms January 1, 1931, which at an average price of 73 cents per head meant a total value of $19,982,000.
- Tough quack sod is good stuff to let the hens work over in winter. A lot of it piled under a shed and thrown to them a little at a time interests and keeps them out of mischief.

The Arpeggio of Life—Have you ever ridden on Echo River in Mammoth Cave? If so, did you hear the old guide in the boat three hundred feet below the surface of the earth, as he gave out those resonant tones that echoed and reechoed through the subterranean caverns? He sent out four deep, mellow tones, the tones of the arpeggio, the one, three, five, eight of the scale, and while the tones went out one at a time, as they floated around through the dark passageways, they united and returned to us not as separate tones, but as one sweet, mellow harmony. So it is with life. Our faith, our hope, our love, and our efforts, like the tones of the full chord, going out from us, one at a time, in deeds and words and thoughts, eventually blend together until they form in us the complete harmony of the Christian life.—A. C. Holt.

High School News Notes

First of all this week, we wish to thank Mrs. T. A. Spencer for her recent donation of a small library. These books are all of very instructive and interesting nature, especially the splendid history of New Mexico. We feel that in Mrs. Spencer we have one of the most loyal of our many friends, as she has done so much for the school that we cannot mention it all here. Thank you again Mrs. Spencer, and we take this means of extending you an invitation to visit us at any time.

And another donation, this time for the grades. We wish to thank the Episcopal Church for their generous twenty dollar donation toward buying supplementary readers for the grades. Here is a new friend, and 'tis glad we are to have you.

Twenty per cent of the school, counting teachers as well as pupils, are out on account of colds. Old Man Winter sure is working.

Well, the girls keep piling up the victories, but the boys seem to be playing in very hard luck, or sump'n. Vaughn was host to our teams Friday, and the girls walloped their team with a score of 52-21. The boys lost again, unfortunately, score 19-1. Come on boys, We're pulling for you. And the same old story Saturday, doggone it. This time 30 to 7 in favor of Corona, up there. Corona has no girls' team, so the grade school boys' teams played. Our youngsters lost 28 to 4. Better luck next time.

Yours for bigger and better scores.
Van.

Bryce Ward Injured
By Fall Over Cliff

Alamogordo, Feb 2.—Without food and water for 24 hours and suffering from a dislocated hip, Bryce Ward, of Carrizozo, was found nearly exhausted in an arroyo six miles north of Alamogordo late yesterday.

Ward became lost when he took the wrong road out of Alamogordo for Carrizozo. His car stalled in an arroyo not far from the Southern Pacific tracks, and he started walking toward the tracks in hopes of finding help. Walking in the dark Ward did not notice that he was approaching a cliff and he walked over the edge to fall thirty feet. Stunned and suffering from a dislocated hip, he lay at the bottom of the cliff until Monday afternoon when the crew of a passing freight train saw him. They immediately notified Sheriff Danley.

After a six hour search Sheriff Danley and Deputy Sheriff Crosby found Ward and brought him to Alamogordo for treatment.

—Bryce Ward has a barber shop on El Paso avenue here and Beckett & Trimble at the Carrizozo Bakery have a letter from him. He is resting easier and will soon be home.
