A man by the name of Jack Holliday, who lives on the old Helm place near Nogal, last Saturday engaged in a quarrel with another man by the name of Lowden, which terminated in a fight. Lowden being the victor by using a heavy stove poker with which he put Holliday out of business. The defeated warrior, who was under the influence of "Conversation Water" came to Nogal and began to shoot up the town. He made an attack on water superintendent F. L. Skinner and also fired into the door of Mr. LeBaron, who refused to let him in. He was arrested by deputy sheriff Pete Johnson and brought here, where he was given ten days to get out of the state.

A Spectator's Point of View

(Contributed)

Mr. Editor:— I found four bits last Saturday, and as it had been so long since I had had that much money, I didn't know what to do with it. But while I was trying to decide, whether to buy out the S. P. railroad, the First National Bank, or Ziegler Bros. Store, I happened to see an advertisement of a show to be put on that night by the Carrizozo Entertainers. So, I just went over and bought me a ticket to the show, thus ending my financial worries.

Well, you know, when I got inside the theatre, I was surprised; I didn't know that there were so many people in Lincoln County. That house was just simply packed full of people.

From 7:30 to 8 o'clock the "Sunshine Serenaders" entertained the audience with musical selections, and exactly at 8:00 o'clock, the lights went out (just like they do in the theatres in the big cities) and the show started. There were no speeches, and even the stage director didn't try to make a speech.

The first two numbers were 'proxy' numbers (whatever that is) of the old-time Carrizozo Entertainers, and if the girls of old were as good as the proxies, they were going some. And then one act right after another, the Chorus Girls of the 'long ago' and the 'Girls from the Cotton Fields' came on and did their 'stuff'—and it was good stuff, too. Then Senorita Viola Kimbrell and two honores, Senora Albert Kimbrell and Perfecto Sandoval, Jr., gave us a couple of songs and a dance or two right straight from Hot Tamale Land—and they were H-o-o-t Numbers.

One of the high-lights on the program was the black-face act by Amos Burke and Andy Kendenhall. The "Amos 'n' Andy" of Carrizozo have proven that they can score a close second to 'Amos 'n' Andy' of radio fame. The act in itself was original from start to finish, being an impromptu repartee on the part of the performers. Their songs, dances and jokes, in which they were at home behind the footlights were clever.

Mr. E. M. Brickley is responsible for the show being put over, since it was in his brain that the idea was hatched; his think-tank made a very good incubator. At time—but he had to have some help to get the idea to work, and there's where the Misses Herring and Evrad came onto the scene. They are to be highly commended for the splendid manner in which they developed the talent of the high school boys and girls who had parts on the program.

After the show, a dance was held at the Community Hall, with the "Gloom Chasers" furnishing the music. The "Sunshine Serenaders" and the "Gloom Chasers" gave their services without charge.

I know the show was good, for wasn't I one of the guys in the audience?

The Fort Stanton Cave

Considerable curiosity has been aroused at the Fort concerning news that another entrance has been found to the giant cave near here. An old tale dating back to pioneer days, relates that once a squadron of cavalry were pursuing a horde of Indian outlaws who were on the warpath, stealing cattle, horses, etc. The Indians took refuge in the cave, leaving their horses go. The entrance to the cave was carefully patrolled by soldiers, but in vain. The Indians failed to reappear. Finally the same braves, who apparently knew of a secret opening in the cave, thru which they escaped, were found rampaging in other parts of the country. Although the cave has been explored time and again, the location of the other opening has always been a mystery.

Recently a man by name of Ronald Reith entered the cave, equipped only with two flashlights and some extra batteries. By accident he happened to strike a crevice, hidden by a big rock, which led him into parts never visited by others. Mr. Reith has related how he crawled through narrow passages for long distances, and how he waded, with water up to his neck and at times was nearly sucked down by treacherous whirlpools into boiling infernos of the earth's interior. Through giant chambers, decorated with most grotesque and fantastic rock formations, he made his way with much sacrifice. A number of times he slipped and narrowly escaped falling into the bottomless pits. In a level place he stumbled over pieces of charred wood, the remains of a fire built centuries ago, surrounded by ancient pieces of Indian pottery together with remnants of other articles made of bone, stone and wood. The rays of his flashlight fell upon a row of grinning skeletons, seated up against a huge rock. Reith, who seems to have nerves of steel, did not let this terrifying sight stop him.

On he went, and in another place he discovered, imbedded in the clay, some giant bones and a skull which conformed to be the remains of a prehistoric beast. After about nine hours of wandering, Reith, who had depended solely upon his memory to find his way back, found the daylight shining in through a hole through which he could hardly squeeze his body.

Reith left two weeks ago for California to get in touch with archaeologists and other parties interested. He has absolutely

John A. Haley, Editor of Lincoln County News Died Last Friday

After the Outlook had gone into the mail last Friday afternoon, the news reached this office by phone that John A. Haley, editor of Lincoln County News, who had been ill for several months past, had died at his home in the western part of town.

Mr. Haley was a veteran New Mexico journalist. He was a prominent Democrat and for years was postmaster here. A native of Johnson county, Texas, he was the grandson of Thomas Haley, who settled in Texas in 1812, when that locality was far out on the Indian frontier. John A. Haley grew up in west central Texas and was graduated by Howard Payne college of Brownwood. He was a teacher and newspaper man in Texas. In 1893 he came to New Mexico and located at White Oaks and earned his first dollar in New Mexico setting type for the "Old Abe Eagle" which succeeded the "Interpreter," and which in turn was succeeded by the "White Oaks Eagle." This paper was moved to Capitan and its name changed to "Capitan News," Mr. Haley being one of the publishers and associated with S. M. Wharton, who was later identified with the "Tucumcari American."

While Mr. Haley went to White Oaks and set type for a time, he arrived there primarily to teach school. He taught until 1903 when he resumed newspaper work and became proprietor of the "Capitan News." In 1908 he moved the paper here and called it "Carrizozo News" (now Lincoln County News.) Mr. Haley was appointed to fill the unexpired term of W. M. Clute as county school superintendent and in 1908 was elected to that office, serving until 1912. As head of the school system it was said of him that he awakened the county to the importance of an up-to-date school system, increasing the attendance at county institutes and got better teachers with better salaries, and better living conditions. Always was Mr. Haley a booster for a liberal education.

As a Democrat Mr. Haley was prominent, serving as chairman of the Lincoln county Democratic committee and also as its secretary. He was a delegate to several conventions. He was named by President Wilson postmaster at Carrizozo in 1918, serving to 1922. He also served as county chairman of the Red Cross committee. He was a booster for good roads.

Mr. Haley was deputy treasurer and collector of Lincoln county from 1896 to '99; he was a member and treasurer of the New Mexico bureau of immigration from 1907 to '11. As a fraternal man Mr. Haley was prominent. He belonged to the Knights of Pythias and rose to be grand chancellor of the state grand lodge and has been a member of the national supreme lodge.

Mr. Haley married Miss Jennie M. Lenett in 1897 at Lincoln. She died in 1914. Of four children born to them two survive: Mrs. W. H. Hamilton and Miss Aileen Wanda Haley of El Paso. Mr. Haley's second wife was Miss Meda West of Alamogordo, whom he married in 1922. She survives him.

Interment was made in the local cemetery last Sunday.

Rev. Ben Rowland and Mrs. Rowland arrived in town Monday afternoon and despite the cold and windy weather which we have been having for the past few days, has been preaching some very interesting sermons at the Baptist Church. The meetings will continue throughout this week and possibly through next week.

The services will begin at 7:30 each evening. Mrs. Rowland conducts a story half hour for the children, telling some very interesting stories of China, and the years she and Mr. Rowland spent in that country as Missionaries.

The Pastor expects to fill his regular appointment at Capitan next Sunday, but Mr. Rowland will preach at both hours Sunday.

In Memoriam

It is indeed hard to realize that one of the most popular members of the student body passed away. We were all grieved to hear of the death of Candido Martinez. Candido was a jolly, good-natured boy and popular with the faculty and students. He was a bright student and a good athlete; also a very valuable member of the Boys' Quartet. Members of his class, his football teammates and the Carrizozo schools in general are saddened by his departure and the sympathy of the whole school is tendered to the bereaved parents and other relatives.

Meal That Lingers in One Doughboy's Memory

Your discussion of breakfast as a possible contender for the position of "best meal of the day" (writes G. W. R.) reminds me of a breakfast I had in the army once that was a best meal. I had been out driving an ambulance over muddy French roads between Bar-le-Duc and Marquenterre for a day and a night, with nothing to eat but a can of sardines and a spare tank full of frog beer. I got back to camp about ten in the morning and found the cook away getting ravaillattement for dinner. Well, I was so empty I could see my skeleton without an X-ray, so I rummaged through the trailer kitchen for solid grub. All I could find was a big pan of cold baked army-and-navy beans. Also a quart of mule sirup. Together they went and down they went and that was my best meal that day or any day.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

First Name Unknown

Daniel J. Dempsey, Jr., Boston and Worcester attorney, was examining a French-Canadian witness a few days ago.

"My name is Beauvais," he said, in answer to the usual opening question.

"And what is your first name?" asked Mr. Dempsey.

To a flabbergasted attorney and court he replied, "I don't know."

"You don't know your first name?" asked Dempsey.

"No. It was this way. We were twins up in Canada, and our names were Pete and Joe. Well, one of us died. My mother says it's me. My father says it's him. So I don't know whether I'm Pete or Joe."—Boston Globe.

Bad Language

A new family had moved into the neighborhood and Jack, accompanied by his dog, made a call. He came home disgusted and said:

"Mother, I wouldn't have anything to do with that lady, she says cussing words. When I went on the porch she said: 'Don't let that dirty cur come on my clean porch.'"

A Second Census

"That's a nice pup, son," said the caller. "Police dog, isn't it?"

"No, sir," replied the little boy. "A fireman gave it to me."

John's Mother Praises Doctor

There isn't a mother living who won't agree that no half-sick child should be the subject for an experiment with medicines of uncertain merit. When your child is bilious, headachy, half-sick, feverish, restless, with coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or energy, you know that nine times out of ten it's a sign his little stomach and bowels need purging. And when you know that for over fifty years leading physicians have endorsed one preparation for this condition, there doesn't seem to be any reason for "trying" things.

Rich, fruity California Fig Syrup clears the little stomach and bowels gently, harmlessly and in a hurry. It regulates the bowels, gives tone and strength to them and to the stomach; and helps to give your child new strength, energy and vitality. Thousands of Western mothers praise it. Mrs. Joseph W. Hill, 4506 Bedford Ave., Omaha, Nebraska, says: "I'll never forget the doctor who got me to give my baby boy, John, California Fig Syrup. Nothing else seemed to help his weak bowels. That was when he was just a baby. He suffered a good deal before I gave him Fig Syrup, but it stopped his trouble quick. I have used it with him for colds and little upset spells ever since. I consider him a Fig Syrup boy."

Insist on the genuine article. See that the carton bears the word "California." Over four million bottles used a year.

STORY FOR BEDTIME

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

PETER HABBIT had run over to the Smiling Pool for a bit of gossip with Grandfather Frog if he were in sight, or with anyone else who might happen to be there in case Grandfather Frog was not. He had just reached the bank of the Smiling Pool and had time to see that Grandfather Frog's big green lily-pad was quite lonely looking without Grandfather Frog sitting on it, and that Jerry Muskrat was sitting on the end of an old log which was half in the water and half out, when he looked toward the Green Forest and saw the stranger who belonged to the Hawk family headed toward the Smiling Pool.

"Hello! Good by!" shouted Peter to Jerry Muskrat and scampered for a hole between the roots of the Big Hickory Tree which grows near the bank of the Smiling Pool. Once in the hole he drew a long breath of thankfulness. Then he turned and watched the big stranger, whose broad wings were bringing him straight over the Smiling Pool. "Queer I never have seen him try to catch anyone, nor have I ever heard anyone complain of perfectly still for a second, and then with his wings closed he shot down, down, down, so fast that it quite took away Peter's breath just to watch him.

Peter's first thought was of Jerry Muskrat. Of course that must be who this great stranger with the ugly great claws was after. From his hiding place he couldn't see the Smiling Pool, although it was so near. And so, of course, he couldn't see Jerry Muskrat. With all his heart he hoped that Jerry saw the danger, and he listened for the splash when Jerry dove into the water. But there was no splash—that is, there was no splash by Jerry. Down plunged the stranger, and Peter watched for him to spread those great wings and stop himself. But he didn't do anything of the kind. He kept right on down and disappeared! Yes, sir, that is just what he did, and when he disappeared there was splash enough. Oh, my, yes! There was such a splash that Peter could see the water flying higher than the banks of the Smiling Pool.

"Why! Why-ee! Something must have happened to him and he has fallen into the Smiling Pool," gasped Peter, staring round-eyed at the place where the stranger had disappeared. As he stared there was another great splash, and up in the air rose the stranger sending a shower of sparkling drops in all directions. With heavy wing beats he rose and then Peter saw that in his claws was clutched something—something big. For just a second Peter feared to look lest he should see his old friend Jerry Muskrat clutched in those great, cruel claws. But he did look, and when he saw that that something was shining and silvery he knew that it wasn't Jerry. It was a fish, a big fish!

Up, up rose the stranger and then turned, and with great beats headed straight back for the Green Forest, taking the big fish with him. As soon as he felt that it was safe to do so, Peter came out of his retreat and hurried to the bank of the Smiling Pool. There sat Jerry Muskrat on his old log quite as if nothing surprising and unusual had happened. He was munching away on a tender lily root.

"What did you run away for?" he demanded of Peter as soon as Peter came in sight.

"Why, to hide from that fellow, of course," replied Peter, pointing to the direction of the big stranger. "Where did you hide?"

"Hide! Me hide?" exclaimed Jerry, and stopped eating to stare at Peter to see if he were in earnest. "What should I hide for? For that matter, what did you hide for? Do you mean to say you were afraid of that fellow? Ho, ho, ho! That's a joke. Why, he wouldn't harm a hair of your head or mine."

Peter looked doubtful. "Who is he?" he demanded. "He's a Hawk isn't he? I wouldn't trust a Hawk as far as I can see one."

"That just shows how ignorant you are," retorted Jerry. "That is Plunger, the Osprey. He is a Hawk, it is true, but he lives wholly on fish and you haven't a thing in the world to fear from him."

Roosevelt Defeats Smith in New Hampshire Primaries— Billion Dollar Tax Bill Under Debate in the House.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

FIRST blood in the contest between Franklin D. Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith for the Democratic nomination for President goes to the governor of New York. The opening round of the battle was provided by the New Hampshire preferential primaries, and Mr. Roosevelt captured the Granite State's eight delegates for his forces in the national convention.

Unofficial returns showed the Roosevelt pledged candidates were elected by a margin of approximately 4,500. Since the candidates were voted for separately, the individual totals varied slightly. Four district delegates were elected, two from each congressional district, and each of these delegates will have a full vote.

Franklin D. Roosevelt

A lighter vote than was expected in the cities to which the Smith forces looked for their greatest strength, together with a rural vote generally favorable to Roosevelt, combined to make the result. The vote of the state's eleven cities was divided almost evenly between the Smith and Roosevelt slates and the 224 towns furnished the majority by which the governor's ticket carried the state.

The Smith candidates for delegates at large carried only three cities, Keene, Berlin and Manchester.

An unopposed Republican ticket, pledged to President Hoover, was elected. It consisted of seven delegates at large and four district delegates.

The Roosevelt victory was expected to have an important bearing on the Massachusetts primary on April 20. Smith has given consent to the use of his name there and a ticket of candidates for delegates has been prepared. Roosevelt supporters predicted a Roosevelt ticket would be entered against the Smith slate in Massachusetts.

Next came the Minnesota Democratic state convention to choose delegates to the national gathering. Smith and Roosevelt supporters quarreled fiercely and the former, finding themselves in the minority, bolted and held a convention of their own which picked a delegation that will vote for Smith in Chicago though unrepresented. The regular delegation was instructed to support Roosevelt.

COLONEL LINDBERGH'S baby has not been returned, at this writing, nor has the identity of the kidnapers been made known. This despite the efforts of all agencies in the land, from the federal government down to leaders of the underworld. Negotiations for contact with the criminals are reported to have been put in the hands of Morris Rosner, a mysterious figure of New York, and current stories say the restoration of the child and payment of the ransom have been delayed by fear of the abductors that they would be trapped. Officials in charge of the case declared they were "still making progress," and privately some of them said they were sure the baby was safe and well and would be returned to his parents after the excitement had subsided.

IN THE opinion of the war policies commission, congress should have authority in time of war to fix prices in order to prevent profiteering. This was a vital part of the report made to the President by the commission and a constitutional amendment to that effect was introduced in the senate by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, a member of the commission. It was referred to the judiciary committee.

Senator Vandenberg

The proposed amendment calls for an addition to the existing fifth amendment, providing that "in time of war congress may regulate or provide for the regulation of the prices, rent, or compensation to be exacted or paid by any person in respect of the sale, rent, or use of any real or personal property, tangible or intangible, without regard to any limitation contained in this article or any other article of the Constitution."

Should corporations or persons succeed in evading such a price fixing regulation, the commission suggests a further check on profits by recommending a 5% per cent tax on all income in time of war in excess of the average income of the preceding three years.

WHEN the new tax bill designed to raise $1,100,000,000 in increased revenues had been presented to the house, several complications arose that promised considerable debate. Three Democratic members of the ways and means committee submitted a minority report urging that about one-third of the sum be obtained by legalizing and taxing 2.75 per cent beer. These congressmen were T. U. Cullen and C. D. Sullivan of New York, and J. W. McCormack of Massachusetts. They said they failed to understand a point of view which complacently accepts the taxation of illegal brewing and wine making through the levies proposed in the present bill on malt sirup, wort, and grape concentrate, yet refuses to agree with a legal tax on legally made beer. Restoration of the brewing industry, they argued further, would put thousands of jobless back to work.

Representative J. W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, a Republican, presented strong objections to the proposed import levy on gasoline and oil, and he indicated that his opposition to this feature was shared by many representatives from states along the Atlantic seaboard.

WITH only thirteen opposing votes the house passed the La Guardia anti-injunction bill after seven hours of debate in which but two men spoke against the measure. The La Guardia bill differed in minor particulars from the Norris bill passed by the senate, so the legislation went to conference.

When it becomes law the "yellow dog" contracts which bind workers not to organize will no longer be recognized and federal judges will be limited stringently in their powers to quiet labor disputes by injunction. Above these mandates the act declares the policy of the nation is to favor labor's right to organize and bargain collectively.

PUSHED off the front page by the Lindbergh baby kidnaping, the Sino-Japanese imbroglio still held first place among international affairs. The truce at Shanghai did not last more than a few hours, and though Gen. Tsai Ting-kai and his army had been pushed back further than the Japanese originally demanded, the invaders, strengthened by fresh troops and more guns, insisted on further Chinese withdrawal. They extended their lines day by day, and some of their officers declared it was their intention to move toward Nanking at least as far as Changchow, which is 120 miles northwest of Shanghai. Meanwhile, it was reported, large numbers of Chinese soldiers were being added to General Tsai's forces, and in consequence General Shirokawa, Japanese commander, issued a warning that he would reopen hostilities if the Chinese attempted to enter the 40-mile line held by the Japanese.

Gen. Tsai Ting-kai

As was foreseen, the smaller powers in the League of Nations assembly tried to force the league to take drastic action against Japan, and were blocked by the great powers, which would be the ones directly affected by such a course. For them Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, proposed the league should again remind Japan of her treaty and covenant obligations, restating Secretary Stimson's declaration that advantages gained by force cannot be recognized; should take the stand that Shanghai will be cared for by the great powers, and that the Manchurian problem should be shelved for the present. The debate was rather warm, but finally a committee was appointed to draft a resolution expressing the league's attitude and intentions.

PRESIDENT HOOVER, recognizing the popular demand for economies in government expenditures, announced that the entire administrative staff was co-operating with congress in trying to cut down federal costs by reorganization, but the house Democrats working on the economy plans were not satisfied. Chairman Byrns of the special economy committee called for more specific suggestions from the President. He said the only administrative official who had volunteered assistance was Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the veterans' administration, who proposed "reductions in payments the bureau is now making to certain classes of disabled veterans."

"Surely the President," said Mr. Byrns, "has had this information for some time and the question naturally arises why he did not take the responsibility in his message last December of recommending this legislation which he would now have the country understand he approves without stating just what it is."

The senate didn't help the economy plans much, for it passed the agriculture bill after adding $2,015,054 to the appropriations authorized by the house. The total of the measure as it left the senate and went to conference was $177,424,768. Senator McKellar, King and Tydings tried in vain to knock large sums out of the figure; even the $1,450,000 item for grasshopper control was retained.

EAMON DE VALERA is now the president of the Irish Free State. He was elected to succeed William T. Cosgrave by the dull election and took office at once. Of the seats in the assembly De Valera's Fianna Fail party holds 72. The Cosgrave party has 53, the Laborites 7 and the Independents, who usually vote with Cosgrave, 17. So De Valera governs only with the help of the Labor party, which demands that economic and social legislation be given the precedence. Cosgrave retired from power gracefully, stating that he and his party would go into opposition but would not unduly hamper the new president. It appeared that De Valera was still determined to try to expunge the oath of allegiance to the British king. Whether the Cosgrave following would vote against this or merely refrain from voting was uncertain.

W. T. Cosgrave

MAHATMA GANDHI'S civil disobedience movement has received strong reinforcements, having been joined by the Jamiat ul Ulama, an organization that embraces the entire Moslem priesthood of India. The priests decreed a country-wide picketing of liquor shops to deprive the British government of revenue, and decided to close all Moslem higher institutions of learning so the students can join in the anti-British movement.

INSTIGATED. It was alleged, by William Z. Foster and other Communists, more than three thousand jobless men and women tried to storm the Rouge River plant of the Ford Motor company in Detroit. With rocks and clubs they fought fiercely with the police and firemen called out to restrain them, and tear gas bombs did not avail to stop them because a high wind carried off the fumes. Forced back to the gates of the plant, the police finally fired three volleys from riot guns, and the mob took to flight. It was found that four persons had been killed and more than fifty injured. Among the latter was Harry Bennett, chief of the Ford service department, who was severely beaten. Foster and the other Communist leaders took no part in the riot and afterward could not be found by the authorities. Prosecutor Harry S. Toy of Detroit said he was considering placing criminal syndicalism charges before the grand jury, and would bring murder charges if any of the injured police officers should die.

FRANCE and the world lost a great figure in the death of Aristide Briand, foremost European apostle of international amity. Worn out by his long years of arduous labor, he succumbed to uremic poisoning. He was accorded a state funeral but in accordance with his last wish he was quietly buried at Cocherel, his country place. M. Briand, who was nearly seventy years old, had been premier 12 times, and over and over again had held the post of foreign minister. He was for long a brilliant and active figure in French and international affairs, and his efforts to establish friendly relations between his country and Germany were untiring. He led in the forging of the Locarno pact in 1925 and co-operated with Frank B. Kellogg in creating the anti-war treaty that bears their names. Being an idealist, he proposed the "United States of Europe," which is still a matter of discussion among the nations of the Old world. Germany recognized that in Briand's passing her best friend in other lands had gone.

Aristide Briand

The United States mourns the death of John Philip Sousa, its most famous band master and "march king," whose music has been an inspiration and a delight to several generations of Americans. For twelve years he was leader of the Marine Corps band, and then he organized his own noted band with which he toured the world. During the war he was in the naval service, being musical director at Great Lakes.

CONSIDERABLE interest was aroused by the marriage, in Colorado Springs, Colo., of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormack, former congresswoman-at-large from Illinois, and Albert G. Simons of Albuquerque, N. M., former member of congress. After the ceremony the couple left for Albuquerque, where they will reside. The marriage was not a surprise, for their friends had for several years suspected it would come about.

FINLAND'S rebellion came to a sudden end with the surrender of the leaders of the Lapua movement. This would-be revolutionists evacuated Mantsala, marched to the garrison town of Turku and laid down their arms. Their chieftains were put in prison and probably will be tried for high treason. As is so often the case, it is suspected that the rebellion was financed by the Communist International.

REPORTS from all parts of the country tell of the success attending the efforts of the Citizens' Reconstruction organization, headed by Frank Knox of Chicago, in getting hoarded money back into trade channels and thus helping to restore public confidence.

Old and New Faith Blended in Japan

When you understand Japan, "heathendom" will never have quite the old significance again. The future of Christianity there lies not above other faiths, but beside them, intricately entwined.

When Japan takes on the new, she never utterly neglects the old; and just as Christianity made her own the ineradicable superstitions of ancient countries, so Buddhism and Christianity alike incorporate customs and beliefs held too tenaciously to be rooted out.

A friend has told me, out of long and intimate experience with the Japanese, the story of a young man of noble blood who very early became a Christian. He married the daughter of a samurai and she embraced her husband's faith.

Years followed of happiness, then of deep anxiety and death. Their eldest child, a beautiful girl not seven years old, died after a devastating illness. My friend, bound to the young couple by bonds of old and close affection, went to the house of death. The stricken father met him at the door, the smile of welcome as ever on his lips, while in silence he drew back the shoji of the inner room.

There was the mother, kneeling, and beside her the dead child, "white as the pear blossoms without. In the child's right hand the mother had placed her Bible, and across her breast lay her father's sword, naked and shining.

The Word of God was there, to guide her to a better world. But while her spirit groped through mortal confines the rusted blade of the samurai made everything of evil keep its terrified distance.—Ellery Sedgwick, in the Atlantic Monthly.

The traditional site of the Garden of Eden, says a U. P. dispatch, is now visited by many American tourists. "This remote region was formerly reached only by caravan, but is now traversed by modern tourist railroad trains. It is a region of great natural beauty with rich vegetation and a profusion of animal life."

Just a word to American tourists visiting the garden. Do not permit yourselves to be duped by unprincipled guides. The apple tree they show you there is not the original one. It is probably only one grown from a shoot.—Detroit News.

The oil that protects a motor under such conditions will give you better, safer lubrication in every-day driving! To prove his point, Mr. Morgan had the Germ Processed Oil drained from his crankcase and, accompanied by the doubter, started for Checotah, 27 miles away.

EDITORIAL COLUMN

Playing Politics

Democratic spellbinders are becoming feverishly excited over the presidential campaign. The party's foremost wisecrackers have been enlisted to derive Pres. Hoover and his record. Less than a fortnight ago, Democratic leaders in both the House and the Senate at the command of their constituents were hustling to enact a relief legislation proposed by the White House.

Now they seem to have gone into a panic for fear the administration's program which they helped to translate into law will start the country back on the road to prosperity before next November.

In the Senate, Pat Harrison emptied his peanut bag full of gibes and witticisms. The occasion was the third birthday of the Hoover administration.

The senator did his best to provoke a reply from Republican leaders in the Senate but they remained silent. It is for the Democrats and not the Republicans to worry over the country's approval of the Hoover program.

With characteristic inaccuracy, Speaker Garner recently declared that "President Hoover led us into the greatest panic the country or the world has ever known." Jouett Shouse, mudslinger of the Democratic national committee, called the President a "monumental failure." These attacks are inspired by a gripping fear that President Hoover has accomplished what they have failed to do. For months the Democrats have been calling for leadership from the White House. Since Congress assembled the President has overwhelmed them with leadership, and every measure he has proposed has been so necessary that they dared not oppose it.

Small wonder that the Democratic leaders are beginning to worry over the record that goes before the voters.

The country was promised last fall that when Congress met the Democratic party would formulate a constructive program of relief. That program has not materialized. With the exception of the tax bill, which has not yet been acted on, the Democratic leaders have done nothing, except foster a $750,000,000 handout for the States, and pass through the House a $132,000,000 road dole to the States.

Instead of coming forth with a program upon which the people might be able to base some hope for the future, the Democratic leaders have done nothing. The complete failure of the Democratic party to come forth with any constructive measures leaves it only the alternative of abusing the President.

Where Italy Led

Italy is frequently given as the cradle of the art of dining as well as the art of cookery. Thomas Coryate writing his "Crudities" in the time of James I was among the first to mention forks in England, although they had been used there in the Middle Ages as an article of luxury for eating fruits and preserves. He says that his friends mocked him and called him "Furcifer" because he used those Italian utensils called forks.

EASTER - A Day of Many Meanings

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

IT'S an "early Easter" this year, for Easter Sunday falls on March 27. Last year it came on April 3 and next year it will come on April 16. For all the red letter days on our calendar Easter is the most variable. The only thing certain about it is that it always comes on a Sunday and it is limited to either one of two months, March and April. Then there are other things, too, that is, it cannot come earlier than March 22 nor later than April 25.

Why all this variation in such an important annual festival? The reasons go back into ancient history.

The festival now known as Easter was celebrated by ancient Israel as the Passover for many centuries before the birth of Jesus Christ. It was based upon the events which took place when the Hebrews were saved from the destruction which was visited upon the Egyptians, as given in Exodus 12-27. The first Christians, being in the main Jews, continued for a long time to observe the Passover, as well as other ancient ceremonies. But gradually these early followers of the Cross began to substitute the Christ for the paschal lamb of Israel in the Passover ceremonies.

Eventually there arose a difference of opinion between the Christians of Hebrew descent and those of Gentile descent as to the time when these ceremonies should be celebrated. Those of Hebrew descent declared that the day of the death of Jesus should be the date of the ending of the paschal fast, which in Hebrew rites, always was on the fourteenth day of the moon in the evening. Therefore the Easter festival, which followed, might fall on any day of the week. Those of Gentile descent, however, wanted the first day of the week, Sunday, to be the first day of the resurrection festival. Thus the Friday preceding would be observed as the date of the crucifixion without paying any attention to the day of the month, the fast continuing until midnight of Saturday.

The dispute over this point was complicated by the irregularities of the time of full moon in relation to the year. The Hebrew sacred year began at the instant of the vernal equinox, but this time is subject to slight changes due to the astronomical fact of perturbation of the motion of all bodies in the solar system. The Hebrews based their years on lunar changes, whereas we now determine the exact length of a year by the sun and stars, which is more accurate. It is notable that the ancient Hebrews always had trouble with their chronology because they based the beginning of each month on the first sight of the new moon.

The trouble was principally due to the fact that the moon revolves around the earth in 27 days, 7 hours, 43 minutes and 33 1/2 seconds, and the earth around the sun in 31,558,149 seconds. Therefore the moon makes 13.3687 revolutions to the earth's one. Full-moon times are also out of harmony with the spring equinox, and this fact caused trouble in determining time in ancient times. The result of all these complications was that by applying the Jewish rules to Easter, the dates of the crucifixion and the resurrection, two days which were supposed to be fixed for all time, varied constantly.

For 323 years the difficulty between the Christians of Jewish descent and those of Gentile descent continued. Not being able to decide the recurrence of Easter, the council of the early Christian church finally appealed to the astronomers in Alexandria, Egypt, for aid. However, the scientists were not of much assistance, for they had no lunar tables such as we now have, computed by master mathematicians. They attempted to make rules, but the variations of the full moon in reference to the year would not cause Easter to fall on Sunday any more than any other day. All wanted it to come on Sunday, so each nation celebrated to suit itself so that it would come on that day. Thus in A. D. 357 the Gauls celebrated Easter on March 21, in Italy it fell on April 13, and in Egypt it fell on April 23.

Eventually the selection of a certain Sunday was definitely fixed during the sixth century A. D. It was designated as the Sunday between the fifteenth and twenty-first days of the moon in the first month of the Jewish lunar year. It was directed that the computation should be made according to the tables of Victorius of Aquitaine, introduced in 457 A. D. Because of the fact that Britain had ceased to be a part of the Roman empire, the sixth century decree did not affect the British church at first, and it continued to calculate Easter on a basis previously approved at Rome. The matter was finally disposed of at a synod held at Whitby in Yorkshire in 664 A. D., after which the clergy of the British Isles conformed to the general practice of the western church.

2. Sunrise services on Easter morning in the Garden of the Gods, near Colorado Springs, Colo.
3. The Easter lily, one of the loveliest of all Easter symbols.
4. The Hollywood Bowl, Hollywood, Calif., where an impressive Easter morning service is held every year.

Accordingly Easter is now observed by both the Roman Catholic and Protestant churches on the first Sunday after the full moon (or fourteenth day of the moon) on or next after March 21. So it cannot be earlier than March 22 nor later than April 25. Thus it is possible for the astronomers and mathematicians to tell in advance on what dates Easter will come each year, and they are now known for more than a century in advance.

That, of course, is based upon the assumption that our calendar will continue unchanged. But there is a possibility that some time within the next few years a new calendar system will be adopted and in that case Easter Sunday will be a fixed date instead of a variable one.

So, in case you're interested in knowing what will be the Easter dates for the next few years, here they are:

1933	.....	April 16
1934	.....	April 1
1935	.....	April 21
1936	.....	April 12
1937	.....	March 29
1938	.....	April 17
1939	.....	April 9
1940	.....	March 24
1941	.....	April 13
1942	.....	April 3
1943	.....	April 25
1944	.....	April 9
1945	.....	April 1
1946	.....	April 21
1947	.....	April 6
1948	.....	March 29
1949	.....	April 17
1950	.....	April 9

Just as Easter is now a variable date, so has it a variable meaning to many different people. To the child, who cannot grasp its religious significance, it means a day whose symbols are rabbits, little chickens and Easter eggs. To those children, too, who like to think of any festival time in terms of something good to eat, Easter time means candy eggs, candy rabbits and other candy symbols of the day, not to mention those fragrant, sugary piles of the mystically marked confection, known as hot cross buns.

How did a bakery product come to be associated with Easter anyway? It goes back to the days of the ancient Saxons who worshipped Easter as goddess of the dawn and bringer of new life with the coming of the vernal equinox. That was long before they had ever heard of Christianity and the Resurrection. In their joy at the return of new life in the springtime they brought the Easter goddess their sweetest cakes, at the same time eating great numbers of these themselves.

They clung to this custom even after they had embraced Christianity. Some of the early Christian leaders were a bit dubious of preserving such a relic of a heathen religion but some tolerant person who was also a genius for compromise, suggested to the priests that they bless the pagan cakes, marking them with the cross. Thus the Saxon Easter biscuit was made at for Christian consumption and for centuries afterwards it was felt that they were endowed with some special spiritual qualities. A few cross-buns baked on Good Friday not only would not mold, as would other bread, but if kept throughout the year they would be an efficient medicine for various ills when crumbled in a cup of water and thus taken into the body.

To most people Easter means a time for coming forth in new clothes and although some of our philosophers have bewailed the extravagance of the "Easter style parade" as a sign that we have lost the spiritual significance of the day in reality it is in keeping with the essential spirit of Easter, which is shared by Christian and pagan alike. It is the idea of "resurrection," of revived life after apparent death. It marks the climax of the year when all nature awakes from sleep, throws off the death-like chill of winter and begins to live anew. With all nature pointing the way by bedecking herself in new raiment, it is only natural that mankind should celebrate the surge of new life by putting on new apparel.

So when midday appears at church on Easter Sunday in a new frock and a new hat, it is not mere human vanity expressing itself. She puts them on because she must! She has responded to the fundamental instinct by responding thus to the call of spring, to the message of renewed life. There is an old British tradition that it is "good luck to wear something new on Easter day" but that is a mere outgrowth of the essential idea of the Easter tide.

For as some of the symbols of Easter and their meanings for different people may seem to be removed from the essential spirit of Easter, they are in reality not so far removed. For all of them are based upon the idea of "resurrection" and if "resurrection" is the spirit and the message of Easter, then the utmost essence of that spirit can be summed up in the one word "immortality." If man can find an answer to the old, old question that has troubled him through the ages, the question "Does death end all?" he can find it in the message of Easter. It is resurrection that he does not face a hopeless task. Even if he did not have the comfort of his religion to help him arrive at that belief, he finds it in the mere fact of living.

Each day, each year and each lifetime he sees the cycle repeated. The sun comes up in the morning and goes down into darkness at night. But he knows that it will come up again the next morning. Each 24 hours he sees the miracle of resurrection. New life is manifest in the animal and vegetable kingdoms with each recurring spring. It ripens in the heat of summertime and mellow into maturity in the autumn, only to die in the cold of winter. But he knows that life will begin again next year. Each 12 months he sees the miracle of resurrection. A baby is born, passes through childhood, grown into youth, reaches man's estate and then declines into old age. What if the darkness of death is only a matter of a few years away? He has seen the recurring miracle of resurrection every 24 hours and every 12 months. Why should not man, reasoning logically from this evidence of which he is aware every day of his life, believe that the cycle of a lifetime includes a resurrection just as does the daily cycle and the yearly cycle? He does so believe and from that belief comes his belief in the life everlasting, in immortality.

Perhaps it would be more accurate, to say he chooses to believe. For few men, of any, have ever solved the riddle of life to their utter satisfaction. They constantly grope for the truth, seeking, always seeking, the answer to the unsolved problems of life. They have the never-ending longing in their hearts for everlasting life and they choose to believe, and take comfort from the belief, that they shall have it.

So whether he be primitive man or modern, civilized man, whether he be Christian or heathen, the essential spirit of Easter, the message of Easter is the same—it is a message of hope, a message of joy and a promise and a fulfillment in God.

ran upon John Samp—the Boston constable, who immediately seized Robert and disarmed him. "I began to see it as soon as you told me," said Amos. "We've stepped into a trap. Rosewell got it all set and ready before he left the island."

The constable showed his warrant. "Well, I'm glad to see you," said Robert. "You need look for no resistance. I'm tired of this matter and am ready to see the end of it, whatever it may be."

His friend put in a word here: "And before it ends Amos Todkill will have something to say. Hang on to your courage."

The ample Samp with a look of wise severity thus admonished his prisoner: "Make a clean breast, and throw yourself on the mercy of the court. It will be better for ye. If ye don't I wouldn't give a cat's whiskers fer yer life."

"Do ye think that ye can scare this boy, ye old nincompoop!" Amos answered. "He'll throw himself nowhere. He'll just stand still and keep still and let 'em prove it if they can."

The last entries in the diaries of Robert and Amos were written while they waited in the rude house of a settler as the constable was storing his pack with food for the journey. It is likely that they followed the Pequot path, but the historian has no knowledge of their adventures on the way.

CHAPTER XIII

Peggy Weld Takes Charge of the Case of Robert Heathers. Peggy had bought a bit of wild country that pleased her. She had built a house on it. She and her brother—an amiable youth much devoted to his sister and two years younger than she—would be moving into it soon...

When Rosewell, having returned from his quest, came to see her at the house of Ex-Governor Winthrop he gave her a dark account of Robert's look and behavior.

"He is a scapegrace—a roynish clown," Rosewell said. "We have evidence to hang him. He will try to get across the sea, but I think that the righteous arm of the law may prevent it and bring him to the punishment he deserves."

"The keen-minded Peggy answered: "If anything pulls him here it will not be the righteous arm of the law, it will be the jealous arm of James Rosewell."

"Will you never come to your right mind in this matter?" he asked. "I am trying to save you from disgrace. Have you no thought of your soul?"

"Yes, but it is not like a sore finger. It gives me time to think of others. You have a kind of inflammation of the soul. You mistake it for righteousness, but where is your charity?"

"I have no charity for proved adulterers." "Yet you are very human and I have a fancy that you could slip and fall as easily as any man I know. You ought not to be judging other men so freely. I have no faith in your evidence."

Rosewell was irritated. He arose and said: "Peggy, I think that I shall be able to show you that I do not misjudge the man or the evidence. He asked me to give you this love token which you sent to him the night of his escape. You were then engaged to me."

He put the medallion in her hands. "True, but I had learned that I could not love a man worshipping a God of iron related to the Tudors and the Stuarts. I frankly confess to you that I had begun to love Robert Heathers."

Rosewell's handsome face was red with indignation. He behaved with admirable restraint. His British temper could not accept defeat.

"Well, Peggy, I love you in spite of all this," he said. "What I have done has been for your sake. You will know soon that this man is not worthy of your love. Then, if you will let me, I shall try to show you that I am not so stern as you think me."

With that he left her. The drama began to quicken its pace. While this talk was going on, William, sitting by the fireside with Margaret Hooper, who had mothered him through his troubles, was unconsciously weaving threads for the curious pattern of the last act. The woman told him of events which had come to pass aforetime in England. She told how her grandfather, John Hooper, the bishop of Worcester, had been burned at the stake by Mary Tudor, how her mother and uncle had fled from home and hidden in the greenwood, how at last they had been captured by the horsemen of the bloody queen and driven before them in a storm, like cattle, and shut up in dungeons all because they had been identified as members of a conventicle. These recitals came in a melancholy, monotonous tone as she sat knitting by the fireside.

JESUS RISES FROM THE DEAD

LESSON TEXT—John 20:1-29. GOLDEN TEXT—But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept. PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus—Living Again. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Conqueror. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Loving and Serving the Risen Lord. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Fact and Meaning of the Resurrection.

I. The Empty Tomb (vv. 1-10). John does not enter into a description of the resurrection of Christ or give any proof other than that the tomb was empty, and that Jesus had repeatedly manifested himself after the tomb was found empty. To see the body of Christ with a spear-thrust and nail prints and the empty tomb was all that faith needed.

1. The testimony of Mary Magdalene (v. 1, 2). This woman, out of whom Jesus had cast seven demons (Mark 16:9; Luke 8:2), announced the fact of the empty tomb to Peter and John. Prompted by great love to him for his kindness to her, she went early to the tomb even "when it was yet dark."

2. Personal investigation by Peter and John (vv. 3-10). The news of the empty tomb which Mary brought with breathless haste so moved John and Peter that they both ran to investigate. When John came to the empty tomb, he gazed into it, but when Peter came he entered it. This investigation convinced them of the reality of the resurrection. The removal of the stone from the sepulchre, the arrangement of the grave clothes, convinced them that the enemy could not have done this.

II. The Manifestations of the Risen Lord (vv. 11-29). 1. To Mary Magdalene (vv. 11-18). a. Mary weeping at the empty tomb (v. 11). Peter and John went home, but Mary could not. She stood weeping. Home was nothing to her while her Lord was missing. Earnest love need not to weep long for Jesus is found of those who love him. She should have been rejoicing that the grave was empty, for the empty tomb was eloquent proof of his messianicship and deity.

b. Mary questioned by the angels (vv. 12, 13). Through her tears, she saw angels at the tomb, who inquired as to the cause of her sorrow. c. Jesus revealed himself to Mary (vv. 14-16). She first saw the angels and then her eyes lighted upon the Lord. She did not recognize him in his resurrection body, but his voice was familiar to her. As soon as he called her by name, she recognized him and fell at his feet weeping.

d. Jesus forbade her to touch him (v. 17). This showed that she was coming into a new relationship to him. e. Mary's testimony (v. 18). She told the disciples that she had seen the Lord.

2. To the disciples (vv. 19-29). He appeared to several of his disciples at different times during the day. This is the first appearance to the disciples as a body. The rumors of his several appearances on that day caused the disciples to assemble to talk over the matter. For fear of the Jews, they met in a private room and barred the door. While they were discussing the strange happenings of the day, the Lord mysteriously appeared to them.

a. When Thomas was absent (vv. 19-23). (1) His message of peace (v. 19). This revealed his attitude toward them. He did not come with censure for their failure and desertion. (2) He showed his hands and his side (v. 20). Having calmed their fears, he gave them unmistakable evidence of his resurrection.

(3) He commissioned them (v. 21). "As my Father hath sent me even so send I you." This commission was not simply to a class, as the eleven, but to all Christians (Luke 24:33). (4) He bestowed the Holy Spirit upon them (v. 22). This was their equipment. Only as empowered by the Holy Ghost can one go forward as a successful witness for Christ.

(5) The disciples' authority (v. 23). This authority was not by virtue of office, but by virtue of having the Holy Ghost. This spiritual gift gave spiritual discernment to know who had or who had not repented and consequently to pronounce pardon or withhold it. b. When Thomas was present (vv. 24-29). (1) The victory of sight and touch (vv. 24-28). The Lord graciously supplied the evidence which Thomas needed. The Lord does not rebuke those who sincerely seek light.

(2) Greater blessing for those who believe, not having seen (v. 29).

WORDS OF WISDOM

Kind words produce their own image in men's souls, and a beautiful image it is.—Pascal.

In the home: Order is its beauty, contentment is its blessing, hospitality is its glory, Godliness is its crown.

Blessed is the man who, having nothing to say, abstains from giving us wordy evidence of the fact.—George Elliot.

BABY FRETFUL, RESTLESS?

Look to this cause

When your baby fusses, tosses and seems unable to sleep restfully, look for one common cause, doctors say. Constipation. To get rid quickly of the accumulated wastes which cause restlessness and discomfort, give a cleansing dose of Castoria. Castoria, you know, is made specially for children's delicate needs. It is a pure vegetable preparation; contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics. It is so mild and gentle you can give it to a young infant to relieve colic. Yet it is as effective for older children. Castoria's regulative help will bring relaxed comfort and restful sleep to your baby. Keep a bottle on hand. Genuine Castoria always has the name:

Bandits, Look Out! Jenn didn't want to go to Sunday school so mother was explaining to her that many times the boys and girls who turned out to be undesirable citizens and bandits were the children who did not go to Sunday school. Jenn's eyes danced and she replied: "Well, mother, if a bandit gets in our house I will take him to Sunday school instead of calling the police."

Stiff, Aching, Sore!

Get quick relief this simple way. Here's the way to relieve painful lumbago without blistering or burning. Rub on good old St. Jacobs Oil. Quickly it draws out inflammation and pain. Wonderful relief comes in a minute! St. Jacobs Oil is just the remedy for aches and pains of Rheumatism, Neuritis, Lumbago, Backache, Neuralgia and sore, swollen joints. Getting Interested. "Mother, I think Jack really intends to ask me to marry him." "What makes you say that?" "Well, last night we were looking at catalogues and when we came to baby carriages he asked which one I liked."

An Only Chance. "I'd like to get off this afternoon to get married." "Can't you wait till Saturday?" "No, she's going away for the week-end."

Is Your Rest Disturbed?
