FORT STANTON NEWS

The ladies of Carrizozo staged a wonderful and much appreciated performance in the hospital and amusement hall Saturday night. We extend our thanks to the ladies for the same.

Again our popular sky pilot, Rev. Smith, shone in triumph as a perfect host and sponsor of gay parties. Saturday night his community house echoed with merriment, as the weirdest and most laugh-producing costumes were displayed at a Halloween masquerade ball. Music was furnished by the local band. "The Mystic Knights of the Sea." The leader, Jack "Brigham" Young, is a true rival to Geo. Olsen of the Hotel New Yorker. The hall which was decorated to suit the occasion was packed to the limit when the refreshments were served. Prizes for best costumes were awarded to Mrs. Northrup, Miss Stanette, Dr. McKeeley and Ralph Amato.

Berend Henry Lemkuil, local inventor, has received a patent on his last achievement, which will relieve housewives of much drudgery when opening cans, bottles, boxes; peeling potatoes, lighting stoves, etc., simply by the turn of the wrist.

Fort Stanton hunters are returning loaded down with deer, turkey and other wild game. In addition to being treated with venison steaks the Fort folks are being treated with some of the most fabulous hunting stories that human brains can think up when inspired by "spiritus fermenti" or pre-election cigars. C. Sundberg, taxidermist, is very busy mounting deer heads, but is still able to handle more business.

Former boatswain of the U. S. Coast Guard, Hermanson, returned to the Fort last week after an absence of three years. Mr. Hermanson served in the Merchant Marine recently, and longing to see old friends and taking a rest, he pulled up anchor and set sail for a cruise back to old Fort Stanton.

Mrs. E. F. Gensler returned last week from a vacation spent in New Orleans, La. She reported having had a splendid time, especially as on her trip she encountered a large number of old friends, formerly of Fort Stanton.

Miss Winters returned from El Paso last Monday, where she has undergone a rather serious and complicated operation. She is at present doing well.

An informal coffee party, sponsored by the ladies of the Craft Shop, on the afternoon of the 25th, was enjoyed by many. Dainty cookies and cakes, with coffee were served by Miss Rice.

Dr. and Mrs. H. P. Reid honored the Fort with a visit last Wednesday. Dr. Reid is still in the Veteran service at Fort Bayard.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Peaker will leave next Wednesday for Yorkshire, England, to remain for an indefinite period. They will visit at the home of Mr. Peaker's brother, W. E. Peaker, at Blakelaw Farm near Yorkshire, after which they will visit at principal places in England and Ireland. They have been planning this trip for some time and we wish them bon voyage, pleasant visit and safe return.

Mrs. Grace Hobbie was ill for a few days last week.

The Duty of Every Citizen

To the Voters of Lincoln County

Many statements you have seen and heard during the present campaign about what the Seligman administration has saved the taxpayers of the state are not based on facts.

Primarily the fact must not be lost sight of, that during the Dillon administration every industry was prosperous, everybody was employed at good wages and your taxes were not a heavy burden. At the present time, the Seligman administration, could not, if it wanted to, spend much money. Taxpayers are unable to pay their taxes and for this reason, if for no other, Seligman's administration was forced to spend less. By no stretch of the imagination, however, can this fact be called a saving to the taxpayers as these taxes are due and delinquent and must be paid in the future or the taxpayer lose his property. In this state taxes cannot be cancelled or rebated and the reason the Seligman administration did not spend more is the fact that it could not be collected from you and other taxpayers.

FACE THE FACTS

Here in Lincoln County we respectfully request any taxpayer who wants the truth about tax reduction claims to go to the County Treasurer and find out for himself. Your taxes this year are HIGHER than at any time during the Dillon administration and we believe the 1932 taxes per $1000.00 valuation are the highest in the history of the county.

The following are the actual taxes you have, or will, pay in Carrizozo on each thousand dollar valuation for the past four years:

1929, under Dillon	$36.61
1930 " "	33.67
1931, under Seligman	38.81
1932 " "	41.30

If your valuation was reduced your total taxes may possibly be a little less, but if you will take the trouble to examine your old tax receipts or the Treasurer's tax rolls, you will find that your valuation has not been reduced. The only reduction in Lincoln county was given to the Southern Pacific railroad, about 6%, and this reduction was given after the assessments of the smaller taxpayer had been closed and appeal prohibited by law. There can be no doubt but that this situation was premeditated by the Tax Commission, holding local assessor's values up until the time for appeal had expired and then giving the railroads a cut. If the Southern Pacific was entitled to a 6 percent cut, when they pay less per mile in New Mexico than in any other state through which they operate, is not the land and home owner entitled to at least this amount? Isn't it a fact that your property is assessed at nearer 100 percent value than the railroad, even before the cut?

Mr. Voter, if you are honest with yourself and want the truth as to whether or not you are getting tax reductions investigate for yourself.

LINCOLN COUNTY REPUBLICAN CENTRAL COMMITTEE.

Special entertainment will be assured all who attend and a good time will be had by both young and old. Tickets will be on sale in a few days, so reserve that night to attend the American Legion dance. Music by "The Revelers."

LOCAL MENTION

Mrs. Alice French, County School Superintendent and D. U. Groce, Supt. of the Carrizozo Schools left Wednesday for Roswell to attend the meeting of the Educational Council which preceded the first session of the State Teachers' Association that convened yesterday and is holding its last session today. As far as possible, the teachers over the entire County are attending.

LaMoyné Johnson, who has been attending school in Los Angeles for the past two years, is here for an extended visit with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. F. H. Johnson.

Miller French, who has been stationed in Juneau, Alaska, for the past two years with the Federal Bureau of Roads, has been transferred to this division and will be home in a short time, accompanied by his wife, they having been married in Juneau one year ago, the account of which appeared in this paper.

Mrs. T. A. Spencer and son A. N. have returned from Hollywood, Calif., where they went on account of the illness of Mrs. Spencer's mother, Mrs. W. C. McDonald. Miss Helen Rolland, who accompanied Mrs. Spencer, remained in the capacity of nurse for Mrs. McDonald, whose condition has improved to such a satisfactory extent, that Mrs. Spencer felt safe in returning home.

This office wishes to acknowledge the receipt of two nice, juicy roasts of venison from Dr. R. E. Blaney and Chas. Joyce. Thanks, amigos—they were fine!

Father Brady went to a certain house in the lower valley last week and as he approached the patio he was met with, "What are you running for?" After he made known his identity, he was most cordially received.

Republican Women's Club met at the Court House Monday afternoon, Oct. 31. Due to illness, the president, Mrs. J. V. Hobbie, was compelled to be absent, so the vice-president, Mrs. L. E. Hunt, presided.

Mrs. Blaney, program chairman had arranged an excellent program. Mr. A. L. Burke gave an excellent address entitled "Timely Remarks Concerning a Recent Radio speech by a former Democratic Candidate."

Mr. Ernest Key made brief remarks, and Mr. Key spoke concerning the duties of a public servant.

Mr. French explained very clearly the voting process, using sample ballots and various illustrations.

At the conclusion of the program refreshments were served. The last meeting of the Republican Women's Club will be held Monday, Nov. 7 at 3:30 p. m. This will be the last preceding the election, so we trust there will be a large, enthusiastic crowd. An excellent program is being arranged. Reported by Miss Hazel Melas.

Attention, Masons!

Carrizozo Lodge No. 41, A. F. & A. M., will hold a Regular Communication Saturday night, Nov. 5, for the purpose of conferring the Fellowcraft Degree. All Master Masons are cordially invited. F. L. Boughner, W. M. R. E. Lemon, Sec'y.

REPUBLICAN MEETING

Last Saturday Night

The largest crowd of the campaign greeted the Republican county candidates Saturday night at Community Hall. Long before the appointed time for opening the meeting, the hall was crowded to its capacity. The meeting was called to order and the various candidates introduced by Precinct Committeeman A. L. Burke, and interpreter Judge Chavez, with the exception of Miss Eva Rose, who was introduced by Mrs. Maude L. Blaney, who had for two terms, served the people of the county as School Superintendent. Mrs. Blaney, in her usual pleasing manner, reviewed the qualifications of the candidate and paid a glowing tribute to her as a young lady of exceptional talent which is so necessary for the duties of that important office.

Mr. Sam Bigger, candidate for county commissioner of this district, was unable to be present on account of illness in his home, which word was conveyed to the audience by the chairman. Following the county candidates, state candidates Hugh Williams and Wm. Sutherland made addresses, after which dancing was enjoyed until a late hour to the music of "The Revelers."

Cleto Chavez Passes Away

Tuesday morning, at his home on the east side, Cleto Chavez, father of Probate Judge Elerdo Chavez, passed away from an illness attributed mainly to an advanced age. Mr. Chavez was a pioneer of Lincoln County, having resided at Hondo and at Lincoln for many, many years.

About one year ago, Mr. and Mrs. Chavez, together with a granddaughter, Marylyn and a grandson, Jos Chavez, came to make their home in Carrizozo.

Mr. Chavez was a good neighbor, honest in his dealings and very affectionate to his family, and many of his old friends over the county will be sad to learn of his demise. Funeral services were held at Santa Rita church Wednesday and interment made in the local cemetery. To the bereaved relatives, the sympathy of this community is extended.

"That's his gringo alias, Mrs. Ganby. The first Higuenes to be heard of in Spain was called James Michael Higuenes. But the Spaniards gave it a Spanish twist. With the passage of time James Michael Higuenes, the big Mick, developed into Jaime Miguel Higuenes. When did that happen, Don Jaime?"

"When the first J. M. married a red-headed Spanish woman who insisted on spelling the name as it was pronounced. My ancestor was a good-natured man; having taken on Spain and the Spaniards, he did not object. Anything for the sake of family peace. So the tribe of Higuenes was born. The family migrated to Mexico early in the Nineteenth century, and my great-grandfather married the daughter of an Irishman who owned this rancho. That brought the Celtic strain up a little. My grandfather added to it by marrying a girl who was half Irish, and when he looked at his offspring he was glad he'd done it. He noticed the cross had increased the height, breadth, general appearance, industry and temper of the Higuenes tribe. We looked much more like Black Irish than Mexicans now, and were probably a little more than half Celt. But we had Spanish customs and a Spanish outlook on life and Spanish was our mother tongue. Also we had no reason to be other than proud of our Spanish blood, so we never mixed it with Indian. When we moved to Texas my grandfather fought under the Stars and Bars. He sent my father to the Virginia Military Institute and father married a Carol of Virginia and begot me."

"You have never been married?" the nurse asked.

"Never."

"Aren't you going to be?"

"I fear not. The loneliness here—the coyote chorus on the buttes—all militate against it, Mrs. Ganby."

"The right girl," said Mrs. Ganby, "wouldn't mind it in the least. Go forth and search for her, Don Jaime."

"Impossible," the master of Valle Verde replied lazily. "I have sheep on my hands."

"If I can credit the gossip I heard in Los Algodones, you killed the owner of those sheep trying to get rid of them."

Don Jaime nodded.

"Well, why don't you get rid of them, then?"

"The foreman, Bill Dingle, is still living and in charge of those sheep. He's a bad man and a better shot than old Antrim. Besides if I get those sheep off my range now, where will they go? Why, to somebody else's range of course, and then there'd be trouble and we might lose Bill Dingle."

"So you're putting up with those sheep on your range merely because this Antrim girl is her uncle's heir."

"That's the proposition."

"Why is she a friend of yours?"

"No, I've never met her. But then no Higuenes has ever quarreled with a lady."

"I fail to see how you are going to escape a quarrel with her, Don Jaime. You killed her uncle."

Don Jaime wheeled. "Perhaps she will believe that I had no alternative; that, not until after I had killed him, did I know he was her uncle. In fact, I didn't know I had killed anybody until Ken rode down the draw and informed me of my luck."

"Well, the fact that you are being so excessively nice to her since may mitigate the affair, although one can never predict the attitude a woman will take. A woman is usually guided by her heart, not her head, Don Jaime."

Don Jaime appraised the old nurse with kindly interest. "I take it, Mrs. Ganby, that you are old enough to be guided by your head. You told me you are a widow. Have you any children?"

"One—a boy of fifteen. He has been quite crippled since his twelfth birthday. Infantile paralysis."

Don Jaime considered this. "Suppose you had a comfortable home where you could be with your boy all ways—no necessity to hustle either and you nursing people? I should have a hostess here. For some time I have felt that Flavio's wife is too—well, elemental, for the job. This hacienda should know a gentleman's management—at nurse's wages. There are always some puppies around here, and the boy could play with them. He could raise rabbits and pigeons, I dare say, and if he can sit a horse I'll stake him to a pretty little Sonora pony and a Mexican youth to look after him. I suppose you could carry on with his schooling—you know, it does get lonesome here sometimes."

"Oh, Don Jaime! You mean it?"

He nodded. "I'd like to be able to invite nice people to visit me, Mrs. Ganby. I should like to have my friends from the surrounding country come to dinner often, but I'm never satisfied with the appearance of my board, the menu or the service. I have no time to train maids and housekeepers—and if I did I wouldn't know how."

"Yes, a man is very helpless. I should be glad to come, Don Jaime."

BEGINNING THE STORY, FOR NEW READERS

Roberta Antrim, beautiful Eastern society girl, who lives with her uncle, William B. Latham, known as "Crooked Bill," because of his amusing gynaecology, receives a telegram from Jaime Miguel Higuenes, owner of the Rancho Valle Verde, in Texas, informing her her uncle Tom Antrim has died a violent death. At the advice of Glenn Hackett, who is in love with her, Roberta plans to go to Texas to protect her interests, since she is her uncle's sole heir to thousands of sheep which Antrim had impudently driven to graze on land controlled by Don Jaime. Don Jaime, unmarried and romantic, half Spanish and half Irish, is attracted to Roberta's picture in a magazine. Antrim is warned to take his sheep off Don Jaime's ranch at once. Antrim ambushes Don Jaime. They shoot it out. The young ranch owner is wounded and Tom Antrim killed. On his body are found instructions to notify Miss Roberta Antrim in the event of his death. Another Higuenes telegram tells Roberta her uncle was killed by Jim Higgins (Don Jaime's anglicized name). Latham tells her his fortune is in danger, and she decides to go to Texas to get Antrim's estate for Crooked Bill.

"You are very kind. Ken, you run up to El Paso and get the boy. Mrs. Ganby will arrange that detail with you. Now clear out and let me sleep."

Mrs. Ganby, with tears of happiness in her middle-aged eyes, followed the assistant general manager into the ranch office.

"How long have you known Don Jaime?" she asked Hobart.

"A long time. Went to the state university with him. My father and I had a cow outfit down in the Big Bend country but we went broke during the post-war deflation period. Don Jaime and I enlisted for the World War—and spent two years guarding the border. At that we dodged more lead than some of those who went to France. After the bank closed in on the Hohaberts I joined the rangers; now I've left them to work for Don Jaime."

"He is congenitally magnificent."

Ken Hohart laughed. "Always remembers he's muy caballero, Mrs. Ganby. He does things with a flourish. It isn't easy. His people have always done it. His father died when he was twenty. He's twenty-eight now. His mother died giving him birth, so you see he's man raised."

"Why do you suppose he engaged me, Mr. Hohart? Do you think he suspected he was doing a very wonderful thing for my boy and me?"

"Yes, I think so. Jimmy can see through a ladder. But he engaged you, principally, I think, because he wants the Cans Higuenes to be running in civilized fashion in case his luck holds and he should have the honor of entertaining Miss Roberta Antrim and her duenna."

"She'll not have a duenna."

"Oh, yes, she will. You'll supply that lack. Don Jaime is very tactful and formal."

"Why is he so interested in the niece of this vicious old man he had to kill?"

"Because Don Jaime Miguel Higuenes is a romantic Mick, that's why. He saw a full page rotogravure picture of her in the Suburban Gentleman, and picked her for the mother of his children."

"Oh, dear, he's quite hopeless! She may photograph beautifully even with red hair, freckles and green eyes, but she may also be mean and selfish and irritating; she may be without manners."

"In that event," said Ken Hohart, "she just won't be the mother of his children. Don Jaime doesn't want the Higuenes tribe to vanish from the earth, but he would prefer to have them vanish rather than breed something ignoble. Where will I find this boy of yours?" he demanded, to change the conversation. "I'm starting for El Paso now."

Mrs. Ganby wrote a note to the people with whom she boarded her crippled son and returned to her patient.

"What a charming man your Mr. Hohart is, Don Jaime!" she began.

"He'll do in a pinch"—laconically.

"He is very devoted to your interests."

Don Jaime did not answer. His glance was out through the arched gateway, from which the road ran straight down the valley. A mile away a dust-cloud was gathering on that road.

"Somebody is coming in a hurry," he murmured. "When they hurry it's always bad news."

A solitary horseman galloped up to the gate, threw himself off and hurried up the steps.

"Well, my friend?" Don Jaime queried in Spanish. "What evil message do you bring and from whom?"

"Thirty riders crossed the Rio Grande at daylight, señor. They are rounding up several hundred of the señor's cattle. It is a raid."

"My thanks are due you, my friend. They will not get far. Who sent you here?"

"The American customs agent at Los Algodones, Don Jaime. He bids you send your riders to head them off before they recross the river with your cattle."

"Return and tell him I have but forty men available. The others are attending a balls at the Rancho Verdugo. Forty men will be sufficient, I think. Return to the customs agent with my gratitude for his timely warning and tell him my men will start in ten minutes, perhaps less."

The man touched his hat, swung himself on his horse and galloped away. Don Jaime lit a cigar and smoked contentedly, while Mrs. Ganby watched him with alert curiosity.

Presently Ken Hohart, arrayed in his "town" clothes, came to announce his impending departure.

"Delay it until tomorrow, Ken," his employer ordered casually. "I have a job for you." And he recounted the tale brought by his recent visitor.

"Take forty men and ride for the river. If this man's tale is the truth you will have work there. I think, however, he lies. Have Caraveo arm the other men available and instruct him to have them remain in the barns with their horses until I send him word that he is not going to be needed."

"A plant, eh?"

"I've been expecting reprisal, Ken. I told this messenger I had but forty men available but would send them immediately. Go with them. Then we shall see that which we shall see, I smell sheep."

Hohart departed to fulfill his orders, and Don Jaime stretched himself for his siesta.

Suddenly he opened his eyes and turned to Mrs. Ganby. "Please tell Flavio to assist me to enter my house,"

"Impossible," the Master of Valle Verde Replied Lazily. "I Have Sheep on My Hands."

he said. "There is more dust to the south. We shall have visitors—about ten, I think."

When the Indian came Don Jaime spoke to him in Spanish. The old peon picked Don Jaime up in his strong arms, carried him inside and laid him on a sofa. Then he departed casually.

"You will oblige me by locking and bolting that door, Mrs. Ganby," Don Jaime requested gently.

Presently came the sound of hurrying feet on the veranda, and through the iron-barred tiny window that gave on the veranda Mrs. Ganby saw men standing about. There came a smart rap on the door.

"Who's there?" Don Jaime challenged in a ringing voice. "Quien es?"

"Open the door," a rough voice commanded. "We want you and we're going to have you."

"Ah, so it is my friend Bill Dingle. I have been expecting you, William, ever since you so thoughtfully sent one of your men with a false cry of raiders from below the Border. I sent forty men. Your lookout in the hills saw them ride out, and when they had passed you decided to come to my hacienda, deserted save for the women and children, and kill me in some unpleasant manner. Is it not so?"

There was no answer to this and Don Jaime's mocking laugh floated through the window. "Now, Dingle, my poor fellow, consider the situation. A hundred armed men surround this poor house of mine. Go you, Friend Dingle, to the patio entrance and look."

A murmuring rose among the recent arrivals and one of them ran to the entrance of the patio. A volley of good old Anglo-Saxon curses echoed through the old-fashioned garden, then the man came running back to join his fellows.

"Is seeing believing, Señor Dingle?" Don Jaime called pleasantly.

"You win, Higuenes."

"One by one you will go to the entrance and give up your arms to my riding boss. It would be madness to resist. You shall not be killed and presently you shall all return to your sheeps—I mean sheep. Forward! March!"

A moment's hesitation, more low-voiced colloquy, a curse or two, and the retreat to the entrance commenced. A few minutes later Enrico Caraveo, a little pinkmarked Mexican, thrust a smiling, sardonic face up to the grilled window.

"I have the honor to inform Don Jaime that his visitors await his pleasure."

"Confine them in the barn under guard. Feed them."

"Si, señor," murmured the riding boss, and departed chuckling.

Mrs. Ganby, white-faced, speechless with terror, watched Don Jaime blowing rings. Presently he looked across at her, his eyes filled with musing, his white teeth showing in a gentle little smile.

"It's a great world, isn't it, Mrs. Ganby?" he murmured. "Please call Flavio. I would return to the veranda."

The nurse stood by his chaise longue after Flavio had deposited him once more therein.

"Don Jaime Higuenes," she demanded, "after that exhibition of ingratitude on the part of those sheep men, are you still going to permit them to trespass on your range?"

Don Jaime raised a deprecating hand. "An Higuenes," he assured her, "does not quarrel with a woman."

Mrs. Ganby's eyes blazed. "Now, at least," she declared, "I know why Cervantes wrote Don Quixote. Only a Spaniard could have conceived such a character and only a Spaniard could—could—could—"

"Senora," Don Jaime protested, "my name is Jimmy Higgins."

Roberta Antrim's limousine rolled up the gravelled driveway to the wide portals of Hillcrest, and Haynes, the butler, came down the steps and opened the door.

"Mr. Latham came home an hour ago, miss," he confided. "Something must have happened in the city today, miss. He's worried—walking up and down the drawing room and talking to himself. I'm a bit worried about the master, miss."

"Thank you, Harms. You're very kind."

A foreboding of disaster brought Roberta flying into the living room. Crooked Bill sat huddled in a reading chair, his face in his hands, his attitude reminiscent of profound despair.

"Uncle Bill! What's happened?"

Crooked Bill's old hands merely clasped his features tighter. He wagged his head and moaned.

"I'm through. My brokers sold me out this afternoon. Oh, Bobby, Bobby, what a massacre! I stayed as long as I dared, but when the last jump came I realized that only a crazy man would continue in this crazy market."

Pharaoh and the Egyptians to do his will, before he should be compelled to inflict greater troubles upon them.—Exchange.

Silver as Germ Killer

Although it was discovered in the eighties that water kept in a silver or copper vessel acquired certain germ-killing properties, it was only recently that a scientist in Paris found a commercial adaptation for the phenomenon.

Silver chloride mixed with potter's clay and baked at a high temperature is employed as a filtering medium, says Popular Mechanics Magazine, and it has been found that water passing through such a filter has the property of killing typhoid and other germs, while itself containing no silver.

Previous researchers had demonstrated that, if silver is to sterilize effectively, it must have enormous surfaces. It was therefore converted into minute bubbles, which make it possible to kill all germs in 10,000,000 liters of water.

I declined to invest another dollar—for the reason that I didn't have it. I told my brokers I'd gone the limit and to sell me out. I'm all washed up."

"Must we leave Hillcrest?" Roberta queried in a strangled voice.

"We must," Crooked Bill replied heroically. "I have enough to pay off the servants and maintain us in respectability at some modest hotel until we can look around and see what the future holds for us, but after that—"

"After that I'll take care of you, dear Uncle Bill," Roberta's voice was tender; the touch of her lovely cheek to Crooked Bill's wrinkled jowls was very soothing to that wretched wreck of a financier. "Sheep are up and so is wool, Uncle Bill. Don Prudencio Alvarez writes me that Uncle Tom's sheep are worth at least two hundred thousand as they stand, and he has over a hundred thousand pounds of wool in transit to a wool house in Boston. And good wool is quoted in today's paper at thirty cents a pound. Uncle Tom has a ranch of sorts also. Don Prudencio doesn't think much of it and says it is not of ready sale, but we can live there and carry on in the sheep business."

"You have no conception of what you are proposing to me," Crooked Bill groaned. "Sheep are terrible."

"Well, you've always taken care of me, haven't you, darling? What a poor sport I'd be to desert you when you're down and out. No, no, dear. We'll battle along together to the last sheep."

Uncle Bill Latham sighed and gazed drearily out the window. "If you'd only fixed it up to marry Glenn Hackett—"

"If we didn't have these sheep and the wool I'd marry him and risk learning to love him, just to keep you from worrying about me," Roberta assured him heroically. "But of course, thanks to that odious Jim Higgins, I find myself in rather an independent position. We will sell off all the sheep and wool and live comfortably and economically on the income from that until—"

"Hackett is coming for dinner," he interrupted. "Be nice to him. He's my attorney, of course, and I'll have to tell him what's happened to me. Promise me, Bobby, that if he renews his suit you'll accord him kindly and respectful consideration."

In her great distress at the catastrophe which had overtaken her guardian Roberta was in a mood to promise anything—and did. Crooked Bill appeared to rally immediately.

Roberta was dressing when she heard Glenn Hackett's car rolling up the driveway. She looked out her window and called, "Hello, old Hackett-in-the-mud! How are you?"

He favored her with a not very enthusiastic wave of his hand.

"Still holding his little grudge," Roberta thought. "Well, I don't blame him. Nevertheless I loathe the sulky men."

Crooked Bill received his guest at the door and at once conducted him to the library.

"I've got to talk fast, my boy," he began, "before Roberta comes down. I'm supposed to have gone bust in the market—Hillcrest has been gobbled up by my bankers to meet my notes. I'm down to a couple of thousand dollars. In a word, h—l pops generally."

Glenn Hackett stared at the old gentleman owlishly. Crooked Bill continued:

"I hope I do not have to assure you, Glenn, that in so far as Bobby is concerned I'm for you all the way."

"Thank you very much," Hackett replied. "I have suspected as much for quite a while."

"That girl is too dog-gone high and mighty to suit me," Crooked Bill continued, sipping his drink with meditative pleasure, "so I've cooked up a scheme to bring her fluttering to the ground. Roberta's the light of my eyes and the apple of my heart, but nevertheless, as a reasoning human being, I've got to admit she has her drawbacks. She's got to be yanked out of the clouds of romance to earthly practicalities, and in my feeble way I'm attempting to do it. All of her life I've been busy spoiling Roberta by granting every wish she expressed and a heap she never thought of expressing. That's bad business. Now, then, here's my plan. I came staggering in, play-acting all over the place, and moaned aloud that I was out of the market, that my brokers had sold me out because I didn't dare stay with the game any longer. Well, as a matter of fact I am out of the market. My brokers did sell me out—but on the right side of the ledger, and as a result I've cleaned up about ten millions. I've arranged with a trusted friend to pretend he's bought Hillcrest from the bank to which I had given a deed. Well, I did give the bank a deed, as security for more money to play this crazy market, but I could afford to. I was miles ahead of the hounds—playing on margin. I've leased this place for July, August and September—and Roberta is so sorry for me she's going to sell out her Uncle Tom's sheep and wool and take care of me the remainder of my days."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Minister of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, C. 1932, Western Newspaper Union)

Lesson for November 6 THE CHRISTIAN AND WORLD PEACE

Psalm 27:27, 28; Psalm 68:1-7; Psalm 72:1-19; Isaiah 2:1-4; Matthew 23:16-30; Ephesians 2:13-19.

GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God. Matthew 5:9.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Peace and Good Will Among Men. JUNIOR TOPIC—Our Part in Making World Peace. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Work for World Peace. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Christian Duty to Promote World Peace.

The Scripture selections for today's lesson are vital, but in the settings given by the lesson committee will be decidedly misleading. World peace can only come through the appearing of the Prince of Peace, and the establishing of His Messianic kingdom. Clearness here is imperative.

I. The Lord, the Ruler of the Nations (Ps. 22:27, 28).

The present unhappy conditions in the world are a result of the failure of the nations to recognize Jesus Christ. As long as the peoples of the earth refuse allegiance to Jesus Christ and are arrayed by the gods of their own creation and lust, there will be war and bloodshed.

II. How Gladness Is to Come to the Nations (Isa. 66:1-7).

This is to be realized by the assertion of divine power. When God arises

1. The enemies will be scattered (vv. 1, 2). They shall be put to flight before the Lord God Omnipotent. Two figures are used: Smoke dispelled by the blast, and wax melted by the heat. The wicked shall perish before the whirlwind and fire of divine power.

2. Happiness will prevail among the righteous (vv. 3-6). The rule of the Lord will bring rejoicing on the part of the people of God.

III. The Character of Christ's Reign (Ps. 72:1-10).

This Psalm describes the glorious reign of Christ upon the earth. It is that reign for which we pray when we say "Thy kingdom come."

1. It will be a reign of righteousness (vv. 1-4). Justice and equity shall be meted out to all.

2. It will be an unending reign (vv. 5-7).

3. It will be a universal kingdom (vv. 8-11). All kings shall fall down before him, and all nations shall serve him.

4. It will be a beneficent reign (vv. 12-14). Christ, the King, will have compassion upon the weak who are unable to help themselves.

5. It will be a prosperous kingdom (vv. 15-17). Full blessing shall then come to the earth. There will be no depression at that time.

IV. Israel's Spiritual and National Position (Isa. 2:1-4).

This scripture pictures the place of influence which shall be exercised by Israel in this time.

1. When shall it be? (v. 2). "In the last days." By last days is usually meant in Scripture, the times of the Messiah, for this is the primary subject of all prophecy.

2. What shall it be? (v. 2). The restoration of the kingdom of Judah to the place of pre-eminence among the nations of the world. This vision of Zion's glory refers to the millennium age, at which time other nations of the world will learn the truth of God through the chosen nation.

3. The result (v. 2-4). The return of God's favor to this chosen people shall be "life from the dead" to the nations of the earth (Rom. 11:15).

a. Nations shall flow unto it (v. 2). This pictures the masses of the people moving toward Jerusalem.

b. Nations shall encourage each other (v. 3). Jealousies will be forgotten and each will move to Jerusalem to be taught of God.

c. Peace in the earth (v. 4). When Israel shall be in her God-appointed place with Jesus Christ as King, wars will be over.

V. The King's Great Commission (Matt. 23:18-20).

1. The royal authority (v. 18). By virtue of his divine authority he issues this commandment to the disciples and declares that all power in heaven and earth has been given unto him.

2. The commission itself (vv. 19, 20). a. To teach all nations. b. To baptize them in the name of the Triune God. c. To teach them to observe all of Christ's commandments (v. 20). d. The available power (v. 20). Those who obey Christ in carrying out this commission shall enjoy his abiding presence.

SOME WISE SAYINGS

Occasionally we run across a man who belongs to a D.D.

A mad race for wealth always brings on spiritual heart failure.

The rolling stone gathers no moss, but it picks up some experience.

The habit of anxiety has for its contrary the habit of prayer.—John A. Hutton.

Fifty and Fit

A MAN is as old—or as young—as his organs.
At fifty, you can be in your prime.

Why go along with "fairly good health" when you might be enjoying vigor you haven't felt for years?

There's a simple little thing anyone can do to keep the vital organs stimulated, and feel fit all the time. People don't realize how sluggish they've grown until they've tried it. The stimulant that will stir your system to new life is Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. It will make a most amazing difference in many ways.

This famous doctor's prescription is a delicious syrup made with fresh herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. It starts its good work with the first spoonful. That's all you need to drive away the dullness and headache of a bilious spell, and rid the system of that slow poison that saps your strength. It's better than a tonic for tired bowels, and unlike habit-forming laxatives you can take it freely or give it to any child. And it isn't expensive.

Get some syrup pepsin today, and take a little tonight. Don't wait until you're sick to give your system this wonderful help. You can avoid those spells of biliousness or constipation. A spoonful every now and then is better than constant worry about the condition of your bowels, or fear of auto-intoxication as you grow older. Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin protects the system. All druggists keep this preparation.

London History in Models

For more than 20 years J. B. Thorpe, an English model maker, has devoted all his spare time to modeling portions of old London. At a remarkable exhibition of his work which he had been holding, two of the most interesting models have been his 20-foot replica of London bridge in 1630, and his detailed copy of the lord mayor's show of 1616. Over 200 figures about six inches high had to be made for this model.

Ice Cream Patterns

Martha Louise's family had moved to an apartment that had an electric refrigerator. Her mother told her that when they went to grandma's they would get her receipt for making ice cream in the refrigerator. They had only arrived when she said:

"Grandma, we want some of your patterns for making ice cream."

Second Thoughts

"Fred isn't going to marry Wimple, after all," said the knowing miss. "But I thought he fell in love at first sight," put in her friend. The girl smiled.

"Yes; but Fred took another look."

Safeguards in Bidding for Slams

THE percentage is definitely against slam bids which do not offer better than an even chance of success. But when a small slam bid has more than a 50-50 chance in its favor, the bid is sound.

To try for a small slam, the combined hands of a partnership must show at least 7 honor-tricks with favorable distribution for the suit bid. When partners hold 7 of the outstanding honor-tricks, they can surely account for at least three of the total ace. Thus they are guaranteed against more than one ace being held by opponents.

It is rarely advisable to bid for a grand slam. A grand slam which is set by one trick accounts not only for the loss of a game but for the sacrifice of a small slam as well. Grand slams should be bid only when partners are assured of at least 8 honor-tricks with a number of additional playing tricks and no possible losers in trumps.

Because of the lack of distributional or ruffing values, even a small slam bid at no trumps is an extremely precarious venture. When considering a slam, if possible secure your partner's co-operation in arriving at a suit which will offer a safer road to your goal than the hazardous no trump.

Another warning must be given against a very common fault. That is against trying for slams on distributional values alone. When assisting your partner's declared trump bid, even though you can count sufficient distributional tricks seemingly to cover a contract of six or even seven odd, unless your honor count assures you that your opponents cannot hold as many as 2 honor-tricks (which may possibly be two aces) the slam is too great a gamble.

Slams may be often and successfully bid by a player whose ear is constantly attuned to catch every encouraging note in the bidding. Indirect slam inferences occur throughout all the normal bidding processes of the forcing system. Some indirect slam inferences are:

Opening forcing suit bids of two. Forcing take-out bids. A raise from one to three no trump or a take-out of a one bid with three no trump.

A raise from one to four in a major or one to five in a minor. While a player should be always alert and ready to act upon indirect slam inferences if warranted by his strength, he must understand that they constitute in no sense an "invitation" for slam. They are all primarily game bids and do not require the partner to consider a slam unless the make-up of his own hand suggests such a probability.

Use of the Yardstick in Slam Bidding

With the clear-cut count of honor-tricks shown by all original bids and take-outs, regulation and forcing, which the wonderful consistency of the forcing system makes available, it is not difficult to arrive at sound slam bids.

In all situations where you are considering a slam, because great honor strength between your partner's hand and your own can be precisely accounted for, the use of the yardstick will quickly tell you the most important thing you need to know—that is, the extent of defensive (honor-trick) strength held against you.

Considering that the total number of honor, or defensive tricks in a deal is 8 to 8½, you must realize that if you can account for 7 to 7½ honor-tricks in your partnership hands, you can assume that there is no more than one defensive trick against you.

Coupled with this assurance, if you are bidding a suit, you must have the further insurance of impregnable trump strength between your partnership hands with the added factor of other distributional values. Without distributional values or strong sequence honors, slam bids are not more than 50 per cent successful and therefore should not be essayed.

Our Constitution

James M. Beck, writing on the subject of the Constitution, says that "unfortunately Jefferson was in France, and therefore could not attend the Constitutional convention." He adds: "Although absent, he (Jefferson) rendered no inconsiderable services to the cause of constitutional government, for it was partly through his insistence that the Bill of Rights, consisting of the first ten amendments, was adopted."

Asbestos Production

The geological survey states that some asbestos is mined and some is quarried. For example, the asbestos of Canada is near the surface and is quarried, while that of Arizona is in a pit formation and it is necessary to drive tunnels to mine it.

Air in Coal Mines

Air breathed by coal miners in anthracite or hard coal mines has an average of 133,000 dust particles to the cubic inch of air, or about 231,600,000 to the cubic foot. Bituminous coal miners breathe air about half as dusty.

The second annual Arizona open golf tournament will be held at Phoenix Country Club the last week in January or the first week in February. The dates will be set by the bureau of Professional Golfers' Association.

The Santa Fe railroad's tie-treating plant near Albuquerque has been reopened, with the employment of a full force of 100 men. The plant will be operated indefinitely for six days a week with a payroll of between $10,000 and $12,000 a month.

Sportsmen who have visited the Lincoln National forest in New Mexico said there is an oversupply of deer and they predicted state game officials will permit a second open season after the first one this month. The sportsmen estimated there are 13,000 deer and 2,250 turkeys in the forest.

After five years of intensive work, health officials believe a campaign to wipe out malaria fever in Dona Ana county, New Mexico, has shown results which indicate complete success within a few years. Dr. C. W. Gerber, county health officer and director of the malaria control campaign, said the number of malaria cases has decreased from 335 in 1928 to 40 this year.

Edward Romange, 65, died of injuries received when the car in which he was riding plunged off the highway near Elephant Butte dam, New Mexico, at the same spot where R. J. Schmalhausen, reservoir superintendent, was fatally injured in an auto accident recently. Friends said Romange's car left the road as he looked into the arroyo in which the Schmalhausen car had plunged.

Five of eleven defendants in the state bank superintendent's suit to recover nearly $1,630,000 have filed a motion in Superior Court at Phoenix, asking inspection of the records of the closed Arizona bank. Those seeking access to the records are H. J. McClung, the Northern Arizona Securities Company, the Grand Canyon Sheep Company, the Three V Livestock Company and the Collin Campbell Livestock Company.

The State Game and Fish Commission extended the quail season in eleven counties an additional fifteen days. The counties in which the extension applies are Grant, Luna, Hidalgo, Lea, Lincoln, Chaves, Eddy, De Baca, Quay, Harding and San Juan. The season in these counties, Elliott Barker, state game warden, said, will be from November 10 to December 25. The regular season elsewhere in the state will last from November 10 to December 10.

The second half of the $250,000 granted Arizona by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for relief purposes has been received in Phoenix from the Los Angeles Federal Reserve bank.

Ruling the state had failed to make its case, Judge Fred W. Eckett instructed a Superior Court jury in Tucson, Ariz., to return a verdict acquitting J. F. Brown, former Casa Grande banker, of a charge of forgery. Brown was accused of forging the mark of E. E. Diggers to a $1,000 note and negotiating the note for its face value.

EDITORIAL COLUMN

Smith's 'Rad-dio' Address

It happened on the night of Monday, Oct. 24 and the speaker was Alfred E. Smith, 1928 Democratic candidate for President, who spoke from Newark, N. J., for the Democratic party. In the beginning he said that he was proud of the liquor plank in the National Democratic party, because of the fact that he had written it himself.

Al didn't touch on any of the issues of the campaign except liquor, for he said that in regard to the financial situation, international relations between our own and other countries of the earth, the problems were so gigantic, that they went entirely over our heads. Quite a compliment to the intelligence of the American people. But he did talk for nearly one hour on the difference between the liquor planks in the two platforms.

The Republican plank he characterized as 'silly, wishy-washy and without what he termed as any hope for the American people on the liquor question.

He then turned to the Democratic plank on liquor, and having again reminded his hearers of the fact that he had written it himself, he said that it was just what the people wanted — and by electing the Democratic ticket, they could have it (booze) — and all they wanted. This, he called Democratic doctrine. It was purely a liquor speech.

Al next paid his attention to the different religious societies, the members of which voted against him four years ago.

First he named the Methodist Church, then the Women's Christian Temperance Union, the Federated Religious Societies of the country, and the Ku Klux Klan, all of whom he branded as bigots, short-sighted and non-progressive.

He next assailed the people of the South, especially of Texas whom he classed as intolerant long-horns and religious bigots in general.

Al had in the front rows of his audience, a class that had no interest in the sanctity of the home, for as when he would brand each society as religious bigots and short-sighted crooks, they would "boo" and jeer.

His speech was foul and went from the Atlantic to the Pacific coasts. The 'Happy Warrior's' speech which reeked with filth and fumes of liquor was carried on the sound waves to the fire-sides and even to the cradles of the American homes in a national hook-up.

When a man supposed to be a National character, will hurl vile epithets across our country into the very homes of American people and even into the House of God, it shows what may be expected of his party with him for their leader, and the leader he would be, by virtue of the fact that he wrote the liquor plank in the Democratic National Platform.

This is the man whom the Democrats have been endeavoring to bring to the stump for

3,000,000 FAMILIES
HELPED BY RED CROSS

Distress in All Areas Met by Giving Food, Clothing and Other Aid.

More than 3,000,000 families throughout the nation were given relief of various types by the American Red Cross in the past winter, to aid them in their distress caused by unemployment, disaster or other misfortune.

A major relief task, due to unemployment and other unusual conditions in the bituminous mining counties in twenty states, was met by the Red Cross chapters alone, or participating with other agencies. In these 143 counties, the Red Cross aided 90,000 families through giving groceries, school lunches, clothing, flour and other necessaries to combat privation.

Flour, milled from government wheat turned over to the Red Cross by Congress, was given to 16,000,000 persons in the period from March 8 to June 20, the close of the fiscal year. Flour will continue to be given through the winter of 1932-33, and Red Cross chapters also will give cotton clothing, made from government cotton turned over to the Red Cross for distribution.

"The Red Cross faces the busiest winter since the days of the World War," Chairman John Barton Payne said. "It is organized in virtually every one of the 3,072 counties in the United States, and will co-operate with all agencies to meet distress wherever found. The flour has proved of great benefit, and the cotton clothing will be given wide distribution."

While carrying on nation-wide these unemployment and other relief measures, the Red Cross also was engaged in its regular peace-time activities in public health nursing, service to ex-service men and their families, teaching home hygiene, life saving and first aid. The Junior Red Cross, composed of almost 7,000,000 school-children, also rallied to the support of the society's relief efforts, and the children aided others of their age in practical ways, formed sewing and food canning classes, and were of great assistance in chapter relief work.

While the wheat and cotton were given by the U. S. Government, no money was provided to pay for the necessary work entailed. The Red Cross will meet this expense of almost $500,000 from its treasury. Citizens can aid by joining as members of the local Red Cross chapter during the roll call from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day.

President of Class

Morris, the son of Engineer and Mrs. Geo. Benson, who is undergoing his third year in the study of dentistry at the Washington University in St. Louis, where there are more than 8,000 students, was recently elected president of his class. Morris lived here with his parents and attended our schools until the year of 1921, when they moved to Tucumcari, where they have since resided. Morris entered the above-named University and being elected to the highest office in his class in an institution of so many students, speaks well for him—congratulations are in order.

Harry A. Miller.

BORN -- Thursday morning.

Nov. 3, to Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Eaker, a girl. Mother and daughter are doing nicely at the home of Mr. Eaker's mother, Mrs. Anna Roberts.

Mrs. S. H. Nickels made a trip to El Paso last Friday, accompanied by her daughter Marjorie for the purpose of having an operation performed on Margie's tonsils. But at that time Dr. Brown did not deem it advisable, but had her remain so that the same might be performed some time this week. Mrs. Nickels returned home the following day, after being assured by the physician that the operation would be successfully performed at the proper time.

Mrs. Geo. Young of Vaughn visited Carrizozo friends a few days this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Buford Wrathby and son Buford, Jr., of Belen are the guests of the Beckett and Trimble families for a short time.

The popular Tom DuBois was in Carrizozo a few days last week from Corona. Tom is a candidate for the office of Assessor and wants to be called plain Tom. He is a graduate of Notre Dame University, he told the people at the big Republican meeting held last Saturday night. To know Tom is to like him.

An Open Letter to the Public

Albuquerque, N. M.,
November 1, 1932.
Mr. A. L. Burke,
Carrizozo Outlook,
Carrizozo, N. M.
Dear Mr. Burke:

I am going to ask you to give me an opportunity to say something regarding records of some of our candidates now running for public office. I believe I am well qualified to clear up some questions on account of the position I held for a number of years as Legislative Representative of the Railroad Brotherhoods. During that time I had the opportunity to observe the members of the Legislature first hand, and I believe I should in fairness say what I know. I am not seeking office nor favor, but only want to see fair play and the interests of New Mexico protected.

A certain group organized what was termed a Progressive Party. As I have been considered a progressive and part of that group, I feel that the time has come to disclose the inconsistencies they are indulging in at this time.

They are claiming to be against Dick Dillon because they state he violated his platform pledge regarding the Labor Commission bill, and caused its defeat in the 1929 Legislature. That statement is not true. Gov. Dillon tried for 50 days to get the opposing factions together to pass this legislation, which had tied up all other business of the state. Many of these conferences held for this purpose lasted way into the night. At the end of that time, and with only 10 days left to handle the other state legislative matters, including the Appropriation Bill, Governor Dillon seeing a deadlock had occurred, sent the Legislature a message asking them to lay the Labor Commission bill aside temporarily and get to work on the rest of the state's business so that everything would not be tied up on account of one bill. He never opposed that bill, but only asked that it be laid aside temporarily.

For this reason, these Progressives and others are trying to condemn Gov. Dillon, but at the same time trying to get you to support the very man that really caused the defeat of the bill, Senator Vesley, who is now opposing Oliver Lee for Land Commissioner. Vesley had been for us in this fight and was pledged to give us that legislation, but when the time came where we had to have his vote to win, he changed and voted against us proving that he would be for you when not needed, but against you if his vote really counted.

Oliver Lee has opposed us at times and has been for us at times, but there was one thing about him: We always knew just where he stood on every question. If he opposed us we knew it. If he was for us, it was the same way. He could be depended upon to do just what he said he would do. He was not like Senator Vesley, professing friendship until it was needed, and then turn us down the first time that we had to have his vote to win.

You must know how valuable water is to our land in New Mexico. In 1925, a bill known as the Pecos River Compact, was introduced in the Senate and if passed would have forever deprived our upper Pecos land from getting any more of the waters of that river. This bill was sponsored chiefly by the State of Texas. It went through the Senate, with Senator Vesley voting for it, thereby depriving our people of that much needed water, and he didn't even know what it was all about. But when it got to the House, Oliver Lee caught it, and although in the minority, was able to show that House what a rotten deal New Mexico was getting and caused the defeat of that bill, thereby saving for New Mexico that much needed water. The same thing occurred later when Oliver Lee was in the Senate. A similar bill known as the Canadian River Compact was introduced which, if passed, would have given Texas prior rights to that water, thereby stopping any chances of development of our lands in New Mexico along the Canadian River. While Senator Vesley was wise-cracking in the Senate, Oliver Lee went to work on that bill and forced through nineteen amendments to fully protect New Mexico's interests, with Vesley not knowing what was going on.

Another thing, word has been sent out in such a manner that it would appear that J. D. Lamb, candidate for Corporation Commissioner, has a labor record far superior to that of Hugh Williams, his opponent. Here are some facts for you to consider. Hugh Williams is and has been a member of our Brotherhoods for over thirty years. He has been a public servant for over twenty-two years. During all that time, he has conducted himself so there is not one single thing against his personal or public record. He has at all times responded to help our members and organizations whenever called upon to do so.

His opponent, J. D. Lamb, conducted himself, during his short term as a member in the last Legislature, in such a manner that his own fellow colleagues from Quay County, Mr. O. S. Greaser and T. E. Julien, publicly condemned him on the floor of the Senate for trying to force through a bill which had for its purpose the setting up in business of Lamb's brother. The bill was killed largely by the activities of these colleagues of his from his own county.

These are some of the things that have made it impossible for me to follow with these so-called Progressives, who have endorsed the Seligman State ticket and believe that the most important thing that now confronts us is to defeat Seligmanism in New Mexico, so that our political parties will reflect the will of our people instead of one or two men that would be dictators to us if we will only let them.

Yours very truly,
DAN KELLY,

Formerly of the Legislative Committee of the Railroad Brotherhood,

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank the kind friends and neighbors of Alto for their kindness shown during the illness of little Lloyd Coe.
Mrs. Coe and family.

Mrs. John E. Hall entertained her Methodist Church Sunday School class with a Hallowe'en party at her home last Friday evening. There were eleven little guests present and the evening was spent in hallowe'en plays and pranks, the guests being arrayed in hallowe'en costumes, after which, the hostess served refreshments of Goblin Brew, cocoa, cakes and pumpkin pie.

Mrs. D. X. LaVallee entertained at a Hallowe'en Bridge party last Friday evening. There were four tables bearing hallowe'en decorations and the same prevailed over the entire home, including the refreshments. Mrs. LaVallee was assisted by Mrs. Elsie Charles. Miss Louise Sweet held high score, Mrs. Stebbins, second and Mrs. C. A. Braum, the consolation prize.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ryberg and baby were here from their ranch home near Corona yesterday, attending to some business matters and returning home in the afternoon.
