The crowd numbered about 70 and there are 40 families now residing in and about the new town. There was no evidence of depression and all had a good time. STORY FOR BEDTIME

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

IT WAS very hard for Peter Rabbit to believe what Jerry Muskrat had told him about the harmlessness of Plunger the Osprey, better known as Plunger the Fish Hawk. Peter wouldn't have believed it if he hadn't seen for himself how Jerry had no fear whatever of Plunger. You see, it was very, very hard indeed to believe that there could be any member of the Hawk family, at least any large member like Plunger, who was not to be feared by all of the little people of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest. But Peter remembered the mistake that had been made in regard to Old Mistah Buzzard, how for a long time he had been needlessly feared, and this made it a little easier to think that possibly Jerry Muskrat might be right in regard to Plunger the Fish Hawk.

Of course, Peter hurried to tell Danny Meadow Mouse and all his other friends what he had learned at the Smiling Pool. Each was as doubtful as Peter had been, but each hoped that it was true. After this they all watched Plunger whenever they had a chance, and not once did anyone see him try to catch any of the little meadow and forest people. In fact, he never seemed to notice them at all. He always flew straight from the Green Forest across the Green Meadows to the Big River and back. Often when he was returning from the Big River they would see something shining in his great claws. It was a fish.

So it came about that after a while no one feared Plunger the Fish Hawk save the fish in the Smiling Pool and the Big River. Presently, from where no one knew, appeared Mrs. Plunger, and it soon became very clear that they had decided to make their home in the Green Forest. They made no secret about it. They didn't seem to care who knew where it was. Peter saw them carrying sticks and once or twice flying from the Big River with water weeds. Peter knew what that meant. It meant that they were building a nest. Right away Peter's curiosity got the best of him. He wanted to see that nest. He wondered if it was like Redtail's. The first chance he got he went over to see. He had watched Plunger and Mrs. Plunger so often that he knew just about where to look for their nest. He found it quite as easily as he had expected to, for it was only a little way in from the edge of the Green Forest beside the Laughing Brook as it makes its laughing way to the Smiling Pool. It was in a partly dead tree, a mass of sticks, and weeds and dead rushes, not at all neat. Indeed, Peter thought it was a very clumsy affair, though he didn't say so when Plunger spied him and asked him what he thought of their new home. Peter was very polite. "I think it is quite an affair," said he. "It isn't as big as I had thought it might be, but I don't doubt it is very comfortable." "This is only the beginning," chuckled Plunger. "It is good enough for

"I think it is quite an affair," said he. This year, but next year we will make it bigger, and the year after that we will make it still bigger." Peter opened his eyes wide. "Oh, you mean that you will use this same nest year after year?" he asked. "Certainly," replied Plunger. "Why not?" "I don't know any reason why you shouldn't," confessed Peter. "I've always wondered why most birds seem to prefer a new house every year. I never could see why an old house, repaired if necessary, isn't just as good as a new one."

"It is better when it is treated as we treat it," declared Plunger. "We just make it bigger and more comfortable each year. You see, Mrs. Plunger and I are great lovers of home. Where do you live?" "Over in the dear Old Briar Patch," replied Peter.

"Ever intend to move?" asked Plunger. "Certainly not!" replied Peter. "It is the best place in all the Great World."

Plunger chuckled. "You've got the right idea, Peter Rabbit," said he. "Mrs. Plunger and I feel the same way about our home. We've found a place we like and we have begun house-keeping in a small way. As long as no one bothers us, we'll keep right on living here year after year and making our home bigger and better. Can you guess why?"

"Why?" asked Peter. "Because it is home, and in all the Great World there is no place like home," replied Plunger.

As He Ranked Them To show his idea of the relative importance of things and things in the Ivory coast of Africa, a bushman artist living in a bush village painted a series of paintings in which the government officer comes first, the huntsman second and the coco farmer third.

HILLS AND VALLEYS

By Douglas Malloch.

THE world is hills and valleys, and plains, There's sorrow and rejoicing, our losses and our gains. I never knew a country that didn't have the two— A little bit of valley you had to travel through, But now, and then a mountain that you could climb and see The river far below you, up where you want to be. I never knew a lifetime that hadn't joy and care, But had its hills and valley, about an even share.

The shadows in the valleys, I've walked 'em like the rest, But I have seen the mountains, the mountains at their best. The sun was on the summits, the stars were bright and clear, And earth was far below me, and heaven almost here. The time she said she loved me I stood upon the height, The time she'd up and left me I walked the vales of night. I know I'll never journey as high as that again, Or walk the sort of valley I had to travel then.

And so I have my sorrow, but sometimes I rejoice; I'm up upon a mountain, and then I hear her voice. There's gladness on the hilltop, there's sorrow down below, For life is hills and valleys, and women make it so. But sometimes I imagine, and lots of times I pray, She yet will come returnin', the way she went away. And I shall take her to me, forget about the past, And we shall live forever among the hills, at last.

APPETIZING DISHES

THE French masters of the culinary art have applied their skill to all the simple foods with results that delight the epicure. These may help the housewife to introduce variety into her menu, using just the everyday things.

Scrambled Eggs Taruffs.

Simmer two cupsful of canned tomatoes to which two teaspoonfuls of sugar has been added. Fry a slice of onion in four tablespoonfuls of butter. Remove the onion, season the tomatoes with salt and pepper, and add six eggs lightly beaten. Cook until the eggs are creamy.

Omelette Pant Neuf.

Beat separately the yolks and whites of three eggs, add three tablespoonfuls of milk, one-half teaspoonful of vanilla, one tablespoonful of powdered sugar and a little salt. Put one-half tablespoonful of butter in an omelette pan and when melted pour in the mixture; cook, fold and serve on a hot platter.

Roquefort Dressing.

This is a delightful departure from the ordinary and is delicious on firm head lettuce, quartered or cut into eighths. Mix six tablespoonfuls of olive oil, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, one teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper, a dash of cayenne and sugar and one-fourth cupful of creamed Roquefort cheese. Beat until smooth. Chill and serve.

Spicy Salad Dressing.

Mix together one-half cupful of vinegar (get the grapefruit vinegar if possible), add two tablespoonfuls of olive oil, one-half cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, a dash of paprika, one teaspoonful of minced onion, two tablespoonfuls of minced celery and two tablespoonfuls of minced sweet pepper. Chill for several hours, then beat thoroughly and serve with lettuce in a bowl that has been rubbed with a clove of garlic.

Get the genuine tablets, stamped with the Bayer cross. They are of perfect purity, absolute uniformity, and have the same action every time. Why experiment with imitations costing a few cents less? Test Vote in House Encourages Wets—Sales Tax Meets Strong Opposition—Two Famous Men Take Their Own Lives.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

WET leaders in congress, greatly encouraged by the test vote in the house, have started a vigorous campaign to compel the major parties to place in their platforms planks declaring for resubmission of the prohibition question to the people. The motion before the house was to discharge the judiciary committee from jurisdiction over the Beck-Linthicum resolution for amendment of the Eighteenth amendment, which had been defeated in the committee by a vote of 14 to 6. The test vote was forced under the liberalized rules by 145 petitioners.

On call of the roll, 227 members voted against the motion, 187 for it, and there were 38 not-voting. Following the custom, Speaker Garner did not vote. The strength shown by the wets was greater even than many of them had expected and they were correspondingly jubilant. Their cause had gained 50 votes since the house voted December 17, 1917, to submit the Eighteenth amendment.

Beck and Linthicum, co-authors of the resolution, declared the fight was all but won and that all that was needed was one more election. Mr. Beck said: "This vote makes it plain that if the Republican party adopts a dry platform in June it will court disaster." He predicted it would not be necessary to wait for the meeting of the next congress for action to modify the dry law, believing that this congress at the session next winter, as a direct result of the November election, will submit the anti-prohibition amendment.

Leaders of the drys, for their part, though admitting wet gains, declared they were undismayed, calling attention to the fact that the wets were still far from having the necessary two-thirds majority.

Both sides, in the Republican party, have been hoping that President Hoover would declare himself, but there was nothing to indicate that he would depart from his neutrality in the pre-convention contest. A close associate of the President was quoted as saying Mr. Hoover has not changed his belief that the country is still preponderantly dry.

Representative Fred Britten of Illinois introduced in the house a bill for repeal of the Jones "five and ten" law which stiffened the penalties for violation of the Volstead act.

DEBATE on the billion dollar revenue bill continued in the house throughout the week, and the opponents of the sales tax sought to form themselves into a bloc. Their determined fight against this big feature of the measure at least resulted in changes, for the ways and means committee agreed to accept an amendment omitting certain canned goods and press telegrams from the list of articles upon which a 2.25 per cent sales tax is proposed. The committee also was considering amendments exempting cheap clothing, electricity used for irrigation projects and radio company leased wires.

Prospects for adoption of the sales tax were lessened in mid-week when leaders of organized labor and of the farmers came out in opposition to it. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, declared "labor will call on its friends in congress to defeat that section of the taxation measure"; and Fred Breckenman of the National Grange said imposition of the sales tax would meet "the unqualified disapproval of the 27,000,000 people upon the farms of this country."

Should the bill substantially as it stands get through the house, its sales tax feature will face strong opposition in the senate. A group of senators is ready to junk it, these including the men who are classed as progressive Republicans. Some of the more liberal Democrats want a substitute bill providing for selective sales taxation and possibly for increased surtaxes on incomes above $100,000. The house surtax is 40 per cent from $100,000 up.

TWO of the world's famous men decided that life was no longer worth living and so committed suicide. George Eastman, internationally known as the developer of the camera and the photographic film and also as one of the country's greatest philanthropists, put a bullet through his heart at his home in Rochester, N. Y., because he was in ill health and, as his farewell note said: "My work is done. Why wait?" Mr. Eastman, who founded the Eastman Kodak company and was chairman of its board, had made a vast fortune but had given away all but about $20,000,000. His philanthro-pies, estimated, at $75,000,000, were scattered over the world, the recipients including universities and schools and dental clinics in many cities in this and other countries. He was seventy-seven years old, a bachelor and a lover of music and art. Mr. Eastman's many friends mourned his death but none was found to criticize his decision that it was time for him to go.

Ivar Kreuger, head of the great Swedish match trust and one of the world's most noted industrialists, was the other notable suicide. For months his numerous interests had been hammered on the exchanges of Europe and his losses were supposed to have been heavy though his remaining fortune was very large. He had just failed to obtain a $10,000,000 loan in New York, where he had always been able to obtain vast sums for the asking, so he sailed to Paris and there ended his life with a revolver. Like Eastman, Kreuger was unmarried. His death created a sensation in financial circles, especially in Europe, and the shares in his companies declined sharply. The Swedish government obtained from parliament in special session permission to declare a moratorium on the debts of those concerned to prevent a raid by creditors, and the Stockholm exchange was closed for a time.

MANAGERS of the Republican party are busy making the arrangements for the national convention in Chicago, and many of them in their informal talk in Washington felt certain that Hoover and Curtis would be the nominees, on a liberalized platform which would serve to conciliate the wets without outraging the drys. The members of the national committee charged with selecting the presiding officers of the convention at first thought it would be well to have Charles G. Dawes for temporary chairman and "keynote," but it was said he was unwilling to accept the honor. For permanent chairman it was virtually agreed that Bertrand H. Snell, congressman from New York, would be the best man available. He is one of the party's strong men and a skilled parliamentarian. However, both posts were left unfilled, the final choices to be made at a meeting in Chicago on April 9.

The arrangements committee decided that four radio broadcasting booths should be put in the Chicago Stadium. It also named Dr. A. M. Harvey of Chicago chief of the staff of physicians and nurses, and George L. Hart as official stenographer.

Democratic managers also are slowly completing the details for their convention, but have made no announcements. In general, they will take over the Stadium as the Republicans leave it.

RUMORS, rumors, and more rumors, all proving false. Cléws leading nowhere. Theories swiftly exploded. Investigations and negotiations that have no result. Such has been the course of the Lindbergh baby kidnapping case up to the time this is written. Toward the close of the week the authorities were inquiring into a story told by Charles Oliver, a prisoner on Welfare Island, New York, to the effect that the plot to steal the child was hatched in a jail, being proposed to him by one William Gleason of Cliffside, N. J. The latter was taken into custody and denied everything Oliver said. An ingenious theory originated in Philadelphia—that henchmen of Al Capone stole the baby for use as a lever to pry that gang leader out of jail.

PAUL VON HINDENBURG maintained his place as idol of the German people in peace time as well as in war. In the Presidential election he soundly beat his chief rival, Adolf Hitler, leader of the Nazis or Fascists. But the aged President failed by one-half of 1 per cent to get a majority of the total votes cast, so there must be a run-off election on April 10. At that time, it is admitted by nearly everyone, he will triumph.

As against nearly 19,000,000 votes for Von Hindenburg there were about 11,500,000 for Hitler. Ernst Thaelmann, Communist, polled almost 5,000,000; Duesterberg, Nationalist, got 2,000,000, and Winter, independent, 1,111,000 odd. Hitler's vote was so far ahead of the Nazi vote in the re-licensing elections of 1930 that he decided to remain in the contest.

Toward the close of the week the Prussian government claimed it had discovered plans for a civil war, and therefore raided Nazi headquarters throughout the state.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT and Gov. W. H. Murray of Oklahoma were the contenders in the Democratic primaries of North Dakota. The returns from the rural districts were slow in coming in, but on the basis of partial returns, it appeared certain that the state's delegation would be instructed for the New York governor. However, Alfalfa Bill had captivated the imagination of many of the farmers and was making a fair contest.

On the Republican side those seeking the preference of the voters were Dr. Joseph L. France of Maryland and Jacob S. Coxey of Ohio. France was well in the lead. Mr. Hoover's name had not been entered but he received some votes.

Mississippi elected a new congressman to fill out the term of the late Percy E. Quinn. He is L. Russell Ellzey, Democrat, superintendent of a college at Wesson.

NEGOTIATIONS between Japan and China for the withdrawal of Japanese troops from the Shanghai area were reported about to open, after conversations engineered by the representatives of the United States and Great Britain. It was understood the Japanese forces should be withdrawn gradually and that the Chinese should not enter the evacuated territory until final agreement was reached. The operation will be supervised by a commission with neutral members.

Under this agreement China abandons the point that Manchuria must be considered simultaneously with the Shanghai problem, and Japan abandons the point that the status of Shanghai must be fixed prior to her withdrawal.

Meanwhile the Lytton commission sent to Shanghai by the League of Nations, with Maj. Gen. Frank McCoy representing the United States, began investigating the doings of the Japanese in and about Shanghai. Mayor Wu Teh-cheng of the Chinese municipality was guide and chief informant of the members and after telling them of the outrages committed by the invaders he took them on a tour of inspection through many miles of devastated areas where, as he said, "you can see for yourselves how thoroughly the Japanese war machine has accomplished its mission of wanton destruction."

That new Manchurian state of Manchoukuo, established by the Japanese and headed by Henry Pu-yi, is in trouble already. Dispatches from Tokyo said there was revolt in the province of Heilungkiang which is ruled by Gen. Ma Chan-shan, war minister of Pu-yi's government. The Chinese troops there declined to transfer their allegiance. From Changchun, capital of the new state, word came that a strong Chinese force, equipped with artillery, had captured Fu-yu, a city of 80,000 people 100 miles southwest of Harbin.

ADJOURNMENT until April 11 was taken by the international disarmament conference at Geneva. Correspondents there relate an interesting incident during the discussions in the naval commission. Vice Admiral D. P. R. Pound of Great Britain naively proposed that they eliminate from the draft convention of the conference an article in the Washington treaty providing that a nation engaged in war shall not seize a war vessel of another country being constructed in its own yards. He said it was not logical to expect a country at a moment when it is straining to the utmost not to lay its hands on all available material.

But our own Senator Swanson was on the alert at once, declaring this would not do at all. Ships constructed in time of peace for another power should not possibly be considered available to the builders in time of war, he said. Otherwise, there would never be a chance for the governments to agree on their relative strengths. Mr. Swanson exclaimed.

Other delegates supported Senator Swanson's argument, and later the British admiral smilingly intimated that his proposition had been misunderstood, and withdrew it.

POSTMASTER GENERAL W. F. Brown, in a memorandum submitted to the special economy committee of the house of representatives, pointed out many ways in which the cost of the postal service can be reduced, but said all of them require legislation.

He admitted that the postal service is overmanned for the handling of the present reduced volume of business due to the depression. He suggested that economies could be achieved by reducing the force, reducing pay, consolidating rural free delivery routes and providing government buildings for post office stations, branch post offices and garages which under the law are now leased.

Such economies, however, said Mr. Brown, would not balance the Post Office department budget which can be effected only by increasing postal rates also.

Mr. Brown submitted for "careful consideration" the proposal of Senator W. H. King that rural free delivery routes be let to the lowest bidders, although the postmaster general recorded himself as opposed to such change because "it would be likely to result in a substantial impairment of the general excellent service which is now rendered to rural patrons."

VANDALS NOT SOLE WRECKERS OF ROME

An unanticipated by-product of the wholesale excavations undertaken in Rome by order of Mussolini has been to clear the barbarian invaders of much of the stigma formerly attached to their name. As a result of the discoveries in the vicinity of Trajan's forum, Corrado Vivanti, director of excavations, has formulated the conclusion that earthquakes, internal strife, sheer carelessness and indifference wrought far more destruction in ancient Rome than did the barbarians.

One of the latest discoveries is a long colonnade of heavy pillars all toppled, leaning against each other like trees bent by a strong wind. Their destruction was not due to human vandals, but was traced to an earthquake in 801, when the city was under the papal rule of Pope Leo III. As the excavations have revealed increasing evidence that the barbarians were malign, the director's work has intensified their study of the old historical records and they have been able to demonstrate that many buildings and temples supposedly destroyed in the "sack" of the city, were standing long after the last barbarian departed.

Much of the bad name of the barbarians may be due to the prejudiced reporting by the early Christians, who, as was amply demonstrated in the reports of persecutions under the empire, never let accuracy stand in the way of giving their enemies a bad name. Even without support from the most unprejudiced records to be found the archeologists in charge of the present work have become convinced by the massive size of the structure uncovered that the destruction of buildings by the invading armies was out of the question.—Washington Star.

OIL LINE Broken...

He Drove His Loaded Truck 45 miles with a DRY CRANKCASE

When Jack Edmondson halted his 2 1/2-ton Chevrolet truck in a Conoco station in Des Moines, New Mexico, the attendant discovered a broken oil line and an empty crankcase!

But inspection of the motor revealed that no damage had been done!

When Edmondson returned home, he discovered, from oil spilled on the road, that he had driven about 45 miles after the oil line broke on the "Hidden Quart" of Conoco Germ Processed Oil.

You may never break your oil line and drive with an empty crankcase. But remember that if you use oils not Germ Processed, which drain away during idle periods, you are running your motor under "dry crankcase" conditions every time you start. Only Germ Processed Oil actually penetrates and combines with metal surfaces. And only Germ Processed Oil gives you the protection of a "Hidden Quart" that stays up in your motor and never drains away.

The "Hidden Quart" cuts down starting wear, saves gas and gives your motor longer life, with fewer repair bills. It assures safe lubrication at all times.

Change to Conoco Germ Processed Oil at the sign of Conoco Red Triangle.

We neither encourage "dry crankcase" experiments nor guarantee success under all conditions. But unsolicited letters from motorists, now in our files, tell of this and hundreds of other runs with empty crankcases but without damage.

The Santa Fe Convention

The overwhelming vote of confidence given to Senator Bronson Cutting when the convention gave him its unanimous vote for National Committeeman for the Republican party of New Mexico, is the forerunner of a complete change in party management procedure.

In spite of the fact that there still remains a sullenness on the part of an element of the Old Guard, time, which sometimes heals many differences, may change their opinions before the election comes on.

To those who differ with the procedure at Santa Fe, which was so decisive as to leave no doubt as to what the party wanted, let us point to the example furnished by ex-Senator Holm O. Bursum, "The Noblest Roman of Them All," when he escorted Senator Cutting to the platform after his unanimous selection as the party's Committeeman.

If Mr. Bursum could do that with his usual becoming smile and dignity, those of the Old Guard who are sulking in their tents can well afford to come out and join the ranks.

Foremost among other things of interest this paper has always advocated for the good of the party is harmony, which if not maintained, means defeat—and above all times of the past, this one virtue must be promoted in 1932. This is no time for juvenile tactics, but for strong thinking and active work.

Senator Cutting said that he was a Republican and that he would stand by the principles of the party, which are the principles of the people.

With the assurance from him, factions of the party can well come together, side-track their differences and go forth to victory. This must be done. New Mexico is Republican; if the party men and women will stand together. If not, we shall witness another defeat as we did two years ago.

New Hope For Copper

The price of copper recently advanced, due to reports that the world's leading producers had virtually reached an agreement to cut output to 20% of capacity from the existing 28% per cent.

This was made necessary by the steady accumulation of stocks of the metal, which reached a new high record of 800,000 tons a fortnight or so ago. Copper executives felt that the outlook for the metal was brighter as the result of a series of conferences held by the producers.

Anything that will help place the mining industry on a sounder status will benefit the nation—and particularly the western, metal-producing states. The industry is passing a crisis and the hopes of the West will be with it. The mines made the West and its future depends largely in the industry.—The Manufacturer.

Candido Martinez

The untimely passing of Candido Martinez, 22, who died at his home Tuesday afternoon, March 22, came as a shock to all, as he had been ill only about six days.

A Faded Summer Love

Leaves come tumbling down, Round my head, Some of them are brown, Some are red; reproduced by permission of the copyright owners.

I WAS very skeptical when some one told me that Phil Baxter, composer of "Piccolo Pete" had authored a ballad of great promise. Two more widely divergent songs can scarcely be imagined. But the reputation of this talented Kansas City bandsman, achieved with "Piccolo Pete" proved to be enhanced by this second effort, for "Faded Summer Love" is certainly a beautiful song, and one that is rapidly capturing nationwide popularity.

It has an unusual idea, well developed lyrically, and a lovely, flowing melody. Soon after I heard it, I was one of the first to use it on the air. Since I first sang it on my programs, I have had hundreds of requests to repeat it. This is especially remarkable, inasmuch as listeners don't usually enthuse over a song until they have heard it several times. "Faded Summer Love" has only been in circulation a few weeks, and already it's passing other favorites with a rapidly that's a bit amazing, even in these days of over-night hits.

In singing or playing this number I take the tempo fairly slow, but anyone performing it has to be careful not to "drag" the tempo, for it has a melody that loses some of its effectiveness if the swinging quality of its rhythm is lost.

Sometimes, when I start to select my "Song of the Week," I have had hard time deciding, but this week it's easy—"Faded Summer Love."

The House of the Three Ganders...

by Irving Bacheller

In this story the "North Country" comes into its own. Even in the villages the Adirondacks press closely about; white birches shimmer in the sun; still, dark waters reflect pursuer and pursued. The country store which is the clearing house for gossip; the blacksmith's forge; the office of the country lawyer, Angel Alley where the tombstones are cut, the Sunday snoring match in the Sob Works; canoes, camps, ferry-boats; deer, trout, wild geese—the local color is strong and convincing, as might be expected from the pen of a man who was born and reared in the region he describes.

Humor and wisdom shine through the tale, often in homely phrase.

With the same quiet mastery that marked Eben Holden, The Light in the Clearing and A Man for the Ages, Mr. Bacheller proves again that a story rooted in the soil needs no surface trickery to make it compelling.

This well-worth-while story that will appeal to every reader of good American fiction will appear serially in these columns. Be sure to read it.

The Man Who "Brings 'Em Back Alive"

Frank Buck Holding a Tiger Cub

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

A few years ago, a certain mother down in Texas had been more successful in performing the ceremony of "laying on of hands"—a ceremony familiar to innumerable mothers of innumerable active, venturesome little boys than thousands of visitors to certain zoological parks in various parts of the United States would ever have had the thrill of looking upon the only authentic man eating tiger ever brought to this country, the biggest king cobra ever captured alive, two of the exceedingly rare Indian rhinoceroses and the tiniest baby elephant (just two feet and ten inches at the shoulder) ever brought across the sea.

But that statement appears to be too paradoxical let it be explained at once that who was the mother of Frank H. Buck, who as a collector of live animals, reptiles and birds, is without a peer in the world today. She had discovered her young son busily engaged in the capture of a big, angry, buzzing rattlesnake near the Buck home on the outskirts of Dallas, Texas, and the "laying on of hands" ceremony was observed forthwith to convince him that there were less dangerous ways for a lad of his years to earn money. (He was collecting rattlesnakes because an old doctor in Minneapolis, Minn., who manufactured a "magic snake oil," was in the market for the reptile).

Frank Buck will tell you that the ceremony was performed in a most thoroughgoing fashion. But it failed of its purpose. For from his earliest childhood wild animals and birds fascinated him and the desire to possess them was his mastering passion. So the mother who tried to shape the destiny of the foremost exponent of the art of "bringing 'em back alive" was doomed to be foiled from the beginning.

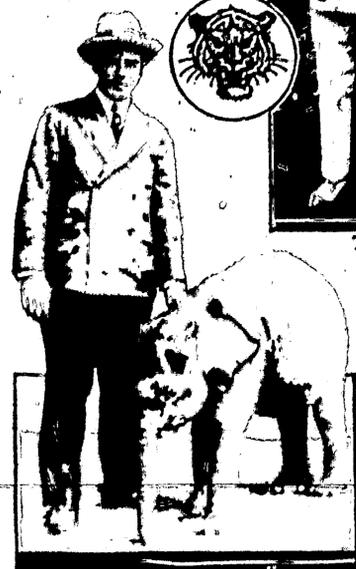

When the Buck family moved to Chicago, the boy no longer able to capture small wild animals and birds as he had done on his native soil, hunted the Lincoln Park zoo and the pet stores in the big city, focusing his eyes on strange new animals and birds from far-off corners of the earth. What money he was able to save he invested in owning some of these birds—paying for one pair, incidentally, a price ten times as great as he himself could charge when years later he became a collector.

When he grew older Frank Buck's hobby took him to South America in search of rare birds. This was followed by a second trip to the scrubland continent and when he sold his collection of live birds he found the deal so profitable that he resolved to go in for wholesale bird and animal collecting. And that was the beginning of a unique career.

Today Frank Buck can go into almost any zoo in the United States or walk through the menagerie tent of any circus and, looking through the bars of the cages, greet the inhabitants thereof as an old friend. For it was he who brought that inhabitant from his native haunts to this place so that the thousands of Americans who have before only heard of the existence of some strange animal can see the animal in the flesh.

Obviously a man with such a record has had more than his share of thrills and narrow escapes from death. Obviously, too, an account of them could not be told within the space of this article any more than a full account of them could be told in the book "Being 'Em Back Alive," written by Frank Buck with Edward Anthony and published by Simon and Schuster. But there was space in that book to tell of the time Frank Buck found himself alighting into a pit with a man-eating tiger which he and his helpers were trying to get out of the pit into a cage; of the time one of his leopards escaped aboard ship and how he went into a cabin where the leopard was at bay and roped him; and of the time when a king cobra escaped from its cage and cornered him in a hut in his compound at Singapore.

Those are only three of the times when Frank Buck stared death straight in the eyes. There were many others. Perhaps the strangest of all of them was the time a tapir, ordinarily the meekest of all animals, tried to crush him to death with its six hundred pounds of weight and all but succeeded. Then there was the time when an orang-utan, the giant jungle-man of Malaya, was just ready to draw him into a death embrace with his powerful arms and then tear him to pieces with his teeth. There was just one chance to escape alive and Frank Buck took it. He's not a professional boxer, but when the orang came at him with outstretched arms, Buck simply walked in and gave the jungle-man an up-kick on the point of the jaw that was an effective k. o. as was ever demonstrated in the prize ring.

Frank Buck and "Baby Boo"

"Yes, I have had more than my share of thrills," Frank Buck will tell you. "But I am frank to say that these close calls do not represent a love of looking death in the eye. I am not that kind of adventurer. I take no unnecessary risks. When a man operates on as big a scale as I do he doesn't have to look for trouble. No matter how careful one is, something is bound to go wrong when live animals and reptiles are handled wholesale. It is then that experience counts."

And he might add that experience counts in other times than when something goes wrong and an adventurer such as he is looks death in the eye. A big game hunter has to think of saving only one life—his own. But a man who collects wild animals, as Frank Buck does, has to think of saving his own life and the animal's too. For the biggest king cobra, a giant orang-utan, an Indian rhinoceros, or a man-eating tiger is utterly valueless to a zoo or a circus if it is dead.

Experience counts, too, in keeping the animal alive after it has been captured. It may seem strange to call Frank Buck a dietitian. But that's exactly what he is and he is an expert in matters of diet to the most finicky epicures in the world. He can't guess how to accustom a wild animal to the change from the food which it eats in its wild state over to "civilized fare." He has to know! The capture of some rare wild animal may represent a great outlay of money and time, plus the ever-present element of danger to the collector. But if, after the beast is captured, its captor doesn't know how to keep it healthy, both physically and mentally, the whole investment of time and money and the potential value of the animal when it is delivered to the zoo or circus may be an entire loss.

Typical of some of the dietetic problems which Frank Buck has had to solve was the case of Baby Boo, the two-foot-ten-inch elephant which he brought back on one of his trips. So far as is known there has never been written any book on "The Care and Feeding of Infant Elephants." So when Frank Buck bought one from a party of hunters in Sumatra and it was delivered to him in a half-starved, weak and wobbling condition there were no precedents for him to go by in determining what to do to keep from having a dead baby elephant on his hands. Here is what happened, as he tells it: "My problem had just begun. I had to get some food into that elephant's belly—and without much loss of time. I sent Al (his native assistant) out to scout around for a milk-goat. He brought one back and hurriedly milked it. I tried to pour some milk down the stubborn pachyderm's throat but I couldn't get her jaws open. Once or twice I managed to get them partly open but before I could pour the milk down she closed them again.

"I considered five or six different plans for feeding that animal, dismissing them as impractical as fast as they popped into my head. Then I got an idea that I thought was worth trying. The first step was to send Al to a nearby clump to cut me a length of bamboo. As is commonly known, a stick of bamboo is made up of a series of joints, the wood being hollow between joints. All brought back exactly what I had sent him for, a piece of bamboo about two inches in diameter. I cut off a piece about nine inches long, leaving the joint to form the bottom. This gave me a device which I planned to use as a feeding tube. I sharpened the opening till it came to a point, and satisfied that I was on the right track, I proceeded with the next step.

"Before this could be carried out we had to get our elephant (we practically carried her) to the shack where we had arranged to spend the night. I instructed Al to boil some rice in water. When the rice was cooked, I mixed some goat's milk with it, the result being a thin but nutritious gruel. Then I proceeded to fill my bamboo with this substance.

"This done, Al got his shoulder right under the elephant's forequarters till she was almost standing on her back legs. Then I forced the point of the bamboo tube between her tightly closed jaws, gradually working it in until I could tip it up and dump the contents down her throat. Stubborn to the last, she tried to keep from swallowing, giving in after a few seconds of gurgling. A second tubeful was prepared and the operation was repeated, this time the task proving less difficult. In all, I fed her three tubes of gruel that session.

"An hour later I put the obstinate little girl to bed, covering her up with some old gunny sacks. The following morning there was a definite improvement in her condition, some of the wobbliness having disappeared. We gave her her breakfast, repeating the performance with the tube. This time it was unnecessary to prop her up.

"A little later in the morning we put her on a bullock cart and took her back to Doml, from where she was transported, along with my other specimens to Singapore. We had no trouble feeding her en route, the bamboo feeding tube working perfectly."

One other item which a wild animal collector needs to have in his psychological equipment for following his profession is diplomacy. That Frank Buck has that is shown by the fact that some of his rarest specimens have been obtained because of his friendships with oriental potentates and his skill in handling the native peoples of the jungles where he has had to go to find his animals. Among these people Frank Buck is a great "tuan" (chief) and he is that to coolies in the Malay peninsula and to Indian rajahs. If he hadn't been he would never have been permitted to penetrate the forbidden jungles of Nepal, which is closed to white men, and bring back with him those two Indian rhinos which now have their homes in the New York and Philadelphia zoos.

If he hadn't been, it is doubtful if he would have been able to make the remarkable moving pictures which resulted from his last trip to the Orient. For it was a faithful coolie who came speeding to tell his "tuan" that a python was lying near a trail used by a tiger and that resulted in an epochal film record of a python-tiger fight, the like of which few white men have ever seen and none has ever before photographed.

For to cap his career of "bringing 'em back alive" Frank Buck has lately brought back a movie record of life in the jungle, which is as unique as the record of his career as a collector of wild animals. He also has brought back the memory of one of his narrowest escapes from death—the memory of being stalked by a tiger, of tripping and falling backward when the big cat hurried itself at him and of looking up and seeing the striped belly of the animal passing over him. "Yes, it was a rather close call," said Frank Buck in talking me over this incident. "But—well, you see me here, don't you?"

"Your excellency, he struck me." In a calm voice, standing with his hat in his hand, Todkill spoke...

Governor Vane turned to the prisoner with a look of inquiry, whereupon Robert said: "Your excellency, I struck only because in ill temper he called me a vile name..."

He turned to Robert and told him that he was accused of adultery with one Mabel Hartley, then deceased...

Robert answered: "Your excellency, I shall need only the counsel of my own conscience, but I have just arrived here. I am weary and in need of rest..."

His plea was granted and Robert was sent to the prison house for the night. His purpose was to see William, if possible, and be apprised of what had come to pass...

"I thought that I would be braver than this," said Peggy as she wiped her eyes. "Come, let us sit down together..."

"Have you new evidence?" "New evidence," she answered. "And it is of such a nature that I shall ask you to allow me to present it to the court in my own way..."

The governor lighted his pipe and said: "Why should not women be heard in such a democracy as we aim to establish? There is no man in the colony who is the equal of Anna Hutchinson in wit or diction..."

"Do not expect me to be brilliant. I am no Anne Hutchinson. But I promise to be honest and well behaved, and I shall pray God to help me to show the women of Boston that crickets in idle gossip is a poor kind of business to be doing..."

Peggy was shown to a room beyond the warden's office where prisoners were brought to see their counsel and their friends. The servant stood erect in a corner, his halberd at his side...

"I thought that I would be braver than this," said Peggy as she wiped her eyes. "Come, let us sit down together..."

"I have already determined to plead that I am not guilty," said Robert. "I suppose that they will hang me..."

"I suppose that they will hang me," said Robert. "I suppose that they will hang me..."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.) (C. 1932, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for April 3

GOD IN CREATION

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 1:1-5, 26-31. GOLDEN TEXT—In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth. PRIMARY TOPIC—In the beginning...

Genesis, the book from which the lessons of the quarter are taken, as its name indicates, is a book of beginnings. It contains the only reliable information we have of the origin of the heavens and the earth...

I. God (v. 1). He was before all things. He had no beginning. Everything but God had a beginning. God, the uncaused cause, is the cause of all things...

II. The Origin of the Universe (v. 1). It was created by God. All things came into being by the will and act of a personal God. The Hebrew word translated "create," according to reliable authority, is the strongest word which the Hebrew language has to express the idea of the origination of substance...

III. The Degeneration of the Earth (v. 21). Between verses one and two is a clearly marked interval of perhaps long duration. The earth which was created by God was later overtaken in a cataclysmic judgment. The Hebrew word for "was" might just as well have been translated "became..."

IV. The Regeneration of the Earth (vv. 3-25). As previously noted, the second verse of Genesis does not describe the state of the earth when it first came from the Creator's hands, but a changed condition which took place subsequent thereto...

V. The Origin of Man (vv. 26-31). He was created by God. This precludes the foolish idea that man ascended from or through the brute. He came into being through a special creative act of God...

Song of Peace. The bellies of all Christendom now roll along the unbroken song of peace on earth, good-will to men!—Long-fellow.

Paths to Triumph. "God's trials nobly borne in obedience to his righteous will are the paths to victorious triumph!"

A Favorable Light. Faith takes in a favorable light even what seems adverse.—Bengel.

Double Purpose Served in Odd Statue Designs

On a nobleman's estate in Silesia there is a collection of some of the most curious statues in the world. The statues are carved in linden wood and are slightly more than life size...

All of the statues are hollow and each one of them is a beehive, openings in the backs of the figures providing for the entrance and exits of the honey-gathering insects.

The records of the manner show that the first of the wooden statues was put in place in the year 1600.—Philadelphia Record Sunday Magazine.

"TARGET hits the bull's-eye on every count. It's the new idea in roll-your-own tobaccos... real cigarette tobacco, blended just like ready-mades."

"And the smokes you roll from Target look like ready-mades. They stay plump, and don't roll out at the ends. You get 40 gummed papers free with every package..."

"And the saving you make is a 1932 idea. Just think of it, I get thirty or more swell smokes from each pack of Target. And I pay only one dime. Yes, sir, I'm for Target."

AND GET THIS: The U.S. Government Tax on 20 cigarettes amounts to 6c. On 20 cigarettes you roll from Target Tobacco the tax is just about 1c. No wonder you get such value for a dime!

Passing of Henry Silva, Sr.

Last Thursday morning, Mar 24, 1932, Henry Silva, who was brought to Johnson's Hospital from his ranch in the Tucson mountains, suffering with pneumonia, passed away at 4 o'clock. Henry Silva was born December 1, 1874, at Lincoln, and was a member of one of the pioneer families of Lincoln County. Henry was a successful stock raiser and farmer.

Henry was an honest, charitable and conscientious man; a good neighbor and a loving father and husband. His friends were many and it is said that he never turned down a friend in need or ever backed on his word.

The remains were conveyed to his ranch home last Friday and interred in the family plot in the Tucson cemetery.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife, eleven children, namely; Meadames Ward Leslie, Democio Peralta, Misses Esste, Adelaide, and Henry, Jr., Fred, Alfred, Tranquillino, Willie, Livorio and Margarito and one sister, Mrs. Gregorio Pino, to all of whom the sympathy of their many friends over the county is extended.

Rev. Walter Griffith Died at Barry, Texas

On Tuesday afternoon, March 22, Rev. Walter Griffith, prominent minister and Masonic leader in Texas, died as a result of an automobile accident sustained when he was crossing a street. Rev. and Mrs. Griffith were here on a visit last summer. Mrs. Griffith being the mother of William and Herman Kelt. During their visits here they made many warm friends, all of whom will be grieved to learn of the unfortunate circumstances connected with his death, although from the testimony of those who witnessed the accident, the sad occurrence was unavoidable.

Rev. Griffith was active in Masonic circles and had held a number of high offices in the order, being a member of most of the Masonic branches, including the shrine. The funeral was held Wednesday, March 23 and conducted by the Masonic order. His popularity led his many friends to induce him to announce his candidacy for the office of treasurer of Navarero County in which he resided and would have been elected by a large majority, had he lived. To the survivors of that esteemed gentleman, friends of the family extend their sympathy.

Fred Neighbauer, veteran woolgrower, was in town on business last Saturday from his Angora ranch near here.

Thos. Ninos, proprietor of the Star Cafe, spent a few days this week in El Paso.
