PRICE $2.00 THE YEAR

LOCAL MENTION

This office received a card on Thursday morning from His Honor Mayor Geo. T. McQuillen. It was from Raton, where "his worship" and a group of delegates have been attending the Firemen's Convention. It was a pretty card, too; on it was a picture of the Raton Pass, 'n' everything.

F. L. Zumwalt, who has been home from his school at Malaga, N.M., since the closing of the term, was a Carrizozo visitor this week from his home in Nogal, where he has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Zumwalt. F. L. will soon leave for Las Vegas to attend the State Normal, so we understand.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hendren of Fort Stanton took a fishing trip to the south fork of Eagle Creek last Sunday and in crossing the stream, Mrs. Hendren sustained a badly sprained ankle when a rock turned under one of her feet. She is able to be about at the Fort, but with the assistance of crutches.

The dance given by George Cooper and his string orchestra at White Oaks last Saturday night was one of the best given at that place for some time. The string orchestra furnished a diversion to the general ruff of music for such occasions. The orchestra has been augmented by Mike Brady and Celestino Sandoval and they will give more dances with this style of music in the near future, so we understand.

Billy Bamberger, who came the latter part of last week from his home in Dulhart, Texas, to visit his grandfather, Henry Lutz and aunt, Miss Belle Lutz, is having his usual good time while here, from the fact that he is the boss of the house during his stay at the Lutz home.

The Vega sisters, Otila and Sarah of Capitan were here last Saturday, accompanied by their cousin, Eugene Harrison of Los Angeles and Edward Abeyta of El Paso, both of the young men being here on their vacations. They will remain at Capitan for a week or so as guests at the E. V. Abeyta home. Eugene is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Harrison, former Carrizozo residents, during most of which time, John was a printer at the Outlook office.

Mrs. Chloe Fisher was here from Capitan yesterday. From her, we learned that Mrs. R. L. Hale, who has been ill for some time past at the home of Mrs. Fisher, was gaining nicely and will soon be able to be about her home.

Mayor McQuillen, Fire Chief J. M. Beck, Fay Harkey and Tennis Bigelow, arrived home yesterday from Raton, where they attended the State Firemen's Convention. The convention was well attended and many new demonstrations were made in fire fighting which were highly instructive.

Charles Cree came in Tuesday from his ranch near Yeso, N. M., and went on to the Ruidoso country to attend to some business matters in connection with his interests which will keep his time occupied for the remainder of the week.

FRENCH PASTRIES

THE beautiful small cakes and pastries which are so attractively decorated and so expensive when we come to purchase, may be prepared at home with little work.

There are several kinds of foundations, the puff paste, chow paste (this is the kind used when making cream puffs), then the cake foundation and short bread pastry.

Almond Biscuits.

Spread the entire sheet of cake with a tart jelly or jam beaten to a paste, then cut it into strips three to four inches long and one-half inch wide. Spread the sides with jelly. Top each with a heavy meringue made with two egg whites, eight tablespoonfuls of sugar and one fourth teaspoonful of almond extract. Arrange with a pastry tube, then sprinkle with powdered sugar and top with shredded almonds. Place in a slow oven to lightly brown.

Neapolitan Squares.

Cut the cake into two-inch squares, spread half the squares with apricot jam, currant jelly or orange marmalade, cover with the squares and press together between boards until firmly joined. Now spread the sides with jelly beaten to a paste with a few drops of water and dip each into finely chopped coconut. Ice the tops with a thick chocolate icing and in the center place a halved maraschino cherry, cut side down; add stems and leaves of citron or green icing.

Fruit Pastries.

Use the cake foundation, cut into strips, squares or rounds, put together with a custard cream of orange, lemon or jelly. On top of each place a halved pear or peach which has been cooked until transparent in a heavy strap, using one cupful of the juice and three fourths cupful of sugar. While cooling baste with this strap as this will give a nice glaze. When the fruit is arranged pipe a border of whipped cream, sweetened and flavored, all around the sides and top.

For early spring days the elegant black taffeta Eton jacket made with double capes is the latest thing.

Children's Story

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

To do a thing that must be done There's usually more ways than one.

THIS means, of course, that if one way fails you shouldn't give up and think the thing cannot be done. You should try to find some other way. Often it will be a most unexpected way, a way that you discover by accident. There was the case of Busy Bee and her fellow workers when Buster Bear found their storehouse and began to rob it of their honey. They had done their best to drive him away. They had used the sharp little lances in their tails for all they were worth. If it had been anyone but Buster Bear they would have succeeded in driving the robber away. But though they fought as hard as they could, and stung with all their might, they couldn't drive Buster away from that honey. To Buster's way of thinking that honey was worth all the pain of the stings. And then, quite by accident, they discovered a way of getting rid of him. Some of them flying about found Farmer Brown's Boy watching what was going on, and in the blindness of their anger mistook him for another enemy, and promptly treated him as they had treated Buster Bear. Now Farmer Brown's Boy has no such thick skin as has Buster Bear.

Down He Came to the Ground With a Thump That Would Have Knocked the Wind From Anyone but Buster Bear.

At the first sting, which felt as if a red-hot needle had been thrust into him, he jumped from his hiding place. Before you could say Jack Robinson half a dozen bees had stung him and a cloud of them were about him. He forgot his interest in Buster Bear. In fact he forgot all about Buster Bear. He had but one thought, and this was that he couldn't get away from that place quick enough. It had suddenly become altogether too hot a place for him. He let out a yell. Yes, 'sir, he let out a yell, and it was a good loud yell. Then he started to get away from there as fast as his legs would take him, and he didn't care how much noise he made in doing it.

Now Buster Bear had been so greedily stuffing himself with honey that he had had no thought for anything else. He had no idea that Farmer Brown's Boy was anywhere near. Usually his ears and his nose are ever ready to warn him of the presence of others, but this time his ears were filled with the angry hum of the bees, and his nose was clogged with honey. So he had not heard Farmer Brown's Boy approach, and he had not smelled him. They right into the middle of his enjoyment broke that wild yell. He couldn't help hearing that.

Now, as you know, the one thing Buster Bear fears is man. He knows all about the dreadful firesticks which no one but man carries, and at the least suspicion that man is about Buster runs away. If he were cornered and couldn't run he would fight as bravely as the bravest, but he is a firm believer in the old saying that he who runs away will live to fight another day, when man is concerned.

The instant he heard that wild yell he forgot everything but that he was caught in a bad fix. He was caught up a tree and there was no place for a bear to be with a man about, even though that man were only a boy. He lost all interest in honey. He had but one thought, and that was to get away from there as quickly as ever he could. So Buster just simply let go and dropped. Yes, sir, that is what Buster Bear did, he let go and dropped. Buster's bones are not like other bones. They are not brittle and easily broken. The branches below broke like fall somewhat, and he broke the branches. Down he came to the ground with a thump that would have knocked the wind from anyone but Buster Bear. And the instant he touched the ground he rushed through the Green Forest as if the Old Nick were at his heels.

Sammy Jay and Drummer the Woodpecker saw it all. Farmer Brown's Boy running for all he was worth in one direction, stumbling as he ran and slapping at angry bees, and Buster Bear tearing off in the opposite direction with a little whimper of fright with every jump, his face and coat all smeared with honey, and dirt and leaves sticking all over him. It was so funny that they laughed until they almost made themselves sick.

But Busy Bee and her fellow workers wasted no time chasing either Farmer Brown's Boy or Buster Bear. They promptly fell to work to save what honey was left and take it to another storehouse which they knew of. And this is how it happened that Buster Bear got only half a feast after all.

"Marriage is a risk," says meditating Meg. "And a girl doesn't have to marry a human skeleton to have a slim chance."

ON BEING A BORE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I AM not what you'd call a clam; I don't know what to do about it. I am at times the great I Am, Not merely say it, fairly shout it, And fill the family with shame, A self-made man of self-made fame.

The things I know, or think I know, It seems I'm always telling someone.

It seems I am a Dora, though I must admit I'm not a dumb one. I think I am a wit so bright, And people say that I'm half right.

My little jokes I like to crack, And people always laugh politely, And yet they say, behind my back, I should converse more eruditely. Last night, invited out to dine, I swore no more I'd try to shine.

So, when there came a painful pause, I kept as silent as I meant to; And I must say the dinner was About the worst I ever went to. I didn't say ten words, I guess, And all the others even less.

Modern Contract Bridge

By Lella Hattersley

No. 4. The Rule of Eight

DURING the play of the thirteen tricks of a hand, four tricks will be won by aces, about four or five with other honor cards, and the remainder with lower cards. Thus we get a yardstick for the trick measurement of a hand.

The Yardstick of Tricks.
Honor-Tricks 8
Low Card Tricks 5
(possibly 8½)

In suit bids these low card tricks are won by trumps, or by end cards of set up side suits. At no trumps, all tricks are won either by honors or by end cards of suits.

In measuring your total trick expectancy, in accordance with your honor-tricks you may use the following count:

The 4-5-5½ Count
(At No Trump)
Honor-tricks Will de- So that the held between develop low contract ex- partners card pectancy is tricks. GAME.

When you and your partner are bidding a suit, it is highly improbable that against your trump defense the opponents will be able to win any low card tricks. So you have only the definite fear of their defense in honor-tricks. Therefore a partnership holding of 5½ honor-tricks with strong trumps puts you in the game zone with a major suit bid. To carry you over the long hard road to game at a minor suit, where the opponents must be held down to two defensive tricks, some additional honor strength is usually needed.

To give a brief outline of the specific use of the yardstick in the most generally recurrent situation, let us assume that you are in the position of responding to your partner's original suit bid of one. If he has bid first or second hand, you know that he has at least 2½ honor-tricks. He may have more than 2½ honor-tricks, even, possibly, as many as 5. If so, these surplus tricks will be shown in subsequent rounds. For the present you must assume that he holds the minimum, an unbreakable rule in this system.

We will suppose that you have counted your honor-tricks immediately upon sorting your hand so as to be ready for any emergency. How you have only to add your number to the minimum of 2½ shown by partner to know whether or not your partnership total of honor-tricks (5½) puts you in the desired game zone. If you find this to be the case, you must serve prompt notice of the important fact on your partner. This notice may be served in any one of three ways which you deem advisable. First, by an immediate bid for game at your partner's declaration; second, by a bid for game at no trump; or third, by a jump forcing take-out, of one more than necessary, in another suit.

If your partner has opened with a major suit in which you have length or strength, and you have a short side suit that gives you the probability of making some separate use of your trumps, it is usually best to choose your partner's suit for the game try.

Lacking trump assistance, or another biddable suit, a three no-trump bid would, naturally, be your only recourse. But when you hold with your 3 honor-tricks a long or strong suit of your own, the game probability should be announced by a forcing take-out. This forcing take-out is the most important and the most often employed of the three unconditional forcing bids of the forcing system. It will be fully outlined in a later article.

Learned to Leave Fire Alms

One of the most amusing incidents of the early days of anthracite was when a firm of wire manufacturers, early in the Nineteenth century, attempted to substitute anthracite coal for soft coal in their rolling mill. After working for two days and using two cartloads of coal they were about to give up. The attendants of the fire, who had done a lot of work with pokers, laid down these tools and went to lunch. When they returned they were astonished to note that the furnace was red hot. Opening the door they found the interior glowing with intense white heat. So, accidentally, they found that the way to make an anthracite fire burn was to leave it alone!

Remarkable Tide Ranges

The United States coast and geodetic survey says that the largest periodic range of tide on the coast of the United States proper occurs in the St. Croix river, Maine. In this locality there is an average range of 20 feet and a spring range of about 22 feet. In Turnagain arm, Cook Inlet, Alaska, there is a mean range of approximately 80 feet and a spring range of approximately 22 feet. The largest known periodic tides in the world occur in Minas basin, Bay of Fundy, Nova Scotia, where a mean range of 42 feet and a spring range of 45 feet have been reported.

Camper of Experience

Talks About the "Eats"

Camp cooking is a highly artistic talent that can only be developed through practice and experience, says a writer in Field and Stream. This sage camper lists several rules to follow in preparing the meal excellent in camp.

"Let one man do it. Don't take turns. Don't hold conferences. Let one man do it, and if he doesn't do it right, hang him, quarter him, toss him in the lake—but don't give him any advice. An amateur cook is more temperamental than an opera singer of long press-agent experience. Meddling simply confuses him and cramps whatever style he may have.

"Let the camper follow some rules: Never bake biscuits if you can carry bread. Camp biscuits are not nearly so good as ordinary bread. They merely sound better.

"Carry fresh potatoes. The same goes for onions. Desiccated carrots and corn and all sorts of soup stocks are as good as the fresh kind. I believe they are better.

"Don't believe that a square of chocolate is worth a pound of steak. Or that a malted-milk tablet is worth a peck of potatoes. Don't rely on calories to keep you alive and happy. Food supplies based on calories may keep you alive. They'll not keep you happy. You aren't taking your vacation merely to be kept alive. On the second day out you can sell a big, juicy corned-beef sandwich to the 'condensed food' man for $50 plus his shirt and boots."

She Reduced 38 Pounds The Safe Way

"I have been taking Kruschen Salts for 4 months and I think they are wonderful. I am 52 years old and 5 ft. 2 in. tall. I was very fat. I weighed 165 lbs. and now I weigh 127 lbs. and feel fine. If I get up taking the Salts one morning I feel lazy and heavy," Mrs. Florence Loftus, Boston.

This is just one of hundreds of letters we get every month—Kruschen not only causes you to lose fat but while you are losing it you gain in health—in vivaciousness—you lose fat where fat is most prominent and at the same time keep stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels functioning naturally.

Any drugstore in the world will sell you a jar of Kruschen for a trifling sum—take one-half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water every morning—go light on fatty meats, potatoes and sweets. But for your health's sake demand and get Kruschen Salts—imitations are numerous. It's the little daily dose that does it.

Especially Fish Stories

"Can any of you," the teacher asked, "tell me what 'amphibious' means, and give a sentence to illustrate?"

A bright little negro held up his hand. "I know, sah! It's fibbing! Mos' fish stories am fibstous!"

The Bait

"I'm sure Dolly will make an ideal wife. Whenever I go to her home I find her busily darning her father's socks."

"I fell for that, too, until I noticed it was always the same sock."

Senate Passes Its Revenue Bill, Rejecting Sales Tax After Hearing President Hoover—Von Papen Becomes German Chancellor.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

SPURRED into action by President Hoover's warning that government credit was endangered and foreign raids on the dollar were imminent, the senate in a night session passed its tax bill designed to bring in a total revenue of $1,121,000,000. The Chief Executive unexpectedly appeared in person before the senate, for the first time in his administration, and read a statement of the serious condition. He urged the inclusion of a sales tax, and restated his position regarding relief measures and his opposition to the huge public works program fostered by Speaker Garner.

There was no chance for the sales tax, most of the Democratic senators having signed an agreement to defeat it. It was rejected by the finance committee, 12 to 8, and just before the bill was voted on by the senate it was defeated by that body by a vote of 53 to 27. Then, in the midst of great confusion due to relief from the strain, the senators adopted their measure. The vote was 72 to 11. Having been informed by Secretary of the Treasury Mills that their committee bill was still some $275,000,000 shy of the amount needed to balance the budget, the senators provided for most of this by a gasoline tax of 1 cent a gallon, the restoration of income tax rates to the 1922 level and a 3 per cent tax on sales of electricity by private power companies.

It was believed the senate and house conferees would speedily adjust the differences between the senate and house bills and then the measure would go to the President. One amendment to the bill adopted by the senate is worth especial mention. Proposed by Senator Glenn of Illinois, it puts a 100 per cent tax on incomes earned through violations of state or federal laws, thus taking the government out of what has been called its partnership with crime.

NECESSARY in balancing the budget, the national economy bill providing savings of $230,000,000 was reported favorably by the senate appropriations committee. Among its features is a flat 10 per cent cut in the salaries of all government workers except the enlisted personnel of the army, navy and marine corps, and those whose salaries are specifically protected by the Constitution, such as judges. There is also a saving of $49,000,000 in the amount given to veterans. The economy bill passed by the house carried reductions in expenditures of only $52,000,000. Both measures authorize the President to reorganize the executive departments.

SPEAKER GARNER himself appeared as a witness before the house ways and means committee to advocate his $2,300,000,000 federal relief bill, which was assailed by the President as a pork barrel raid on the treasury because it listed a multitude of post offices to be built all over the country. Garner defended the measure and reminded the committee of Mr. Hoover's endorsement of a $2,000,000,000 advance public works recommended by the conference of governors in 1923. Both his bill and the program favored by the President increase the capitalization of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and empower it to make loans for non-federal construction.

HEINRICH BRUENING chancellor of Germany, and his cabinet were forced to resign by President Von Hindenburg because the latter did not agree with their program to save the country from further financial collapse and to provide work for the unemployed. This was really a considerable triumph for Hitler's Nazis but they decided to permit a stop-gap government to function until autumn, when it is expected there will be a general election in which they will have a chance to make good their claim of controlling the reins.

The aged president selected for temporary chancellor Lieut. Col. Franz von Papen, a man of whom the United States has heard little since 1915. At that time he was military attaché of the German embassy in Washington and became involved with Karl Boyer, naval attaché, in plots that violated neutrality. Both of them were dismissed by the American government for "improper activities." Returning to Germany, von Papen became a general staff officer. He is a Catholic Centralist, as is Bruening, and is editor and principal owner of the Catholic organ, Germania.

Von Papen's government, largely rightist, is called a "feudal" cabinet by the Berlin press because it is dominated by members of the old German nobility. The new chancellor is expected to be a stern ruler for he has often demanded a "national dictatorship freed of parliamentary trimmings." He is known to favor a Franco-German union against Russia.

C. E. HUFF, head of the Farmers' National Grain Corporation, recently filed charges against the Chicago Board of Trade because it denied membership to the corporation. In a communication to the Department of Agriculture Huff alleged the board was violating the grain futures law. Secretary Hyde took up the matter and announced that the grain futures commission would investigate the complaint, the hearings to begin in Washington on June 8. The commission is composed of Secretary Hyde, Attorney General William D. Mitchell and Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lammont.

WRITING of the Republican national platform was entrusted by President Hoover to James R. Garfield of Ohio, son of President Garfield and secretary of the Interior under President Roosevelt. He is to be chairman of the resolutions committee and has been busily gathering together the various planks proposed by party leaders and building the structure on which Mr. Hoover and the party will stand. Some days ago he took a rough draft of the platform to the White House and it was edited by the President who deleted some portions and made several additions.

So far nothing is known to the public of the manner in which the controversial questions will be handled. Mr. Garfield is not known to have made any statements concerning prohibition, but he has already conferred with Senator Borah, an inveterate dry, who had drawn up a plank dealing with that subject. The senator had a talk with Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, chairman of the woman's national committee for law enforcement, who afterward said the senator "agreed with me that the voice of the people is in congress and that other matters do not concern us deeply."

Representative Bertrand H. Snell of New York, minority leader in the house, told newspaper men he is certain the prohibition plank in the Republican platform will be "liberal." Snell said he was expressing his own opinion but that "if anybody tells you the plank won't be liberal, don't believe them."

For two days immediately preceding the opening of the Republican convention the Crusaders, an organization favoring prohibition repeal, and the Republican citizens' committee against national prohibition will stage a big demonstration in Chicago. On Sunday there will be great parades of airplanes and water craft and a mass meeting under the auspices of the American Federation of Labor; and on Monday there will be a ground parade and another big public meeting.

HERBERT HOOVER having expressed a desire to be placed in nomination by a man from California, the grateful job has been given to Joseph Scott of Los Angeles. Mr. Scott, who was born in England, is one of the state's most eminent lawyers and also is widely known in Roman Catholic circles. He was awarded the Lactare medal by the University of Notre Dame in 1918 and was created a Knight of St. Gregory by the pope in 1920 for work during the World war.

It is not likely the Republican convention will last more than five days, and nominations probably will be made on Friday night. The platform will be submitted on Thursday and there may be a day of open debate on prohibition and some other controversial questions. Democratic managers also are now hopeful that their convention will be short, for they naturally wish it to have an appearance of harmony that would be ruined by a deadlock. Franklin D. Roosevelt probably will start in with more than a majority both of delegates and of states. At this writing he has 419 pledged votes from 27 states and territories. His camp claims he will have on the first ballot 685 delegates to 486 for all others. And he believes a few ballots will bring over enough votes to give him the 770 required for nomination under the two-thirds rule. Of course there will be a recurrence of the attempts to abrogate that ancient rule.

PROF. NICHOLAS JORGA, once tutor of King Carol of Rumania, has resigned as premier and may be succeeded by Nicholas Titulescu, now minister to London. Which means that the semi-dictatorship of the country has been found a failure. The resignation of the government was the result of financial difficulties. Rumania is broke and the treasury is empty.

WASHINGTON'S police force had a problem when the hitch-hiking army of 1,500 war veterans reached the capital city to present their demand for immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus. The men had been coming most of the way from the Far West in trucks supplied by state authorities eager to get rid of them, and Senator Costigan of Colorado introduced a bill calling for immediate appropriation of $75,000 to feed and house them.

Senator Lewis of Illinois, in a Memorial day address at the Washington Soldiers' home, declared that by adopting a course based on threat and coercion these veterans were causing their fellow countrymen in this time of national distress to wonder whether their soldiers served for patriotism or merely for pay. "I warn you as your fellow soldier and friend," Senator Lewis continued, "that you risk the defeat of the relief measures you now have a right to hope for by placing yourselves where the charge can be made that you have come here to terrorize the public servants and force their surrender through weakness or cowardice."

JAPAN'S new coalition government under the premiership of Admiral Viscount Makoto Saito is naturally finding its chief problems in China, and especially Manchuria. They planned early recognition of the new Manchurian state of Manchoukuo, but surprisingly this is earnestly opposed by Count Uchida, president of the South Manchurian railroad, and perhaps the most influential Japanese on the mainland. He says recognition should be delayed until the new state proves its ability to stand alone, and that Manchoukuo with its tremendous natural resources will continue to exist even if no nation is prepared to recognize it as an autonomous state. Uchida, who may yet become foreign minister in Saito's government, feels that Japan should continue to pour money into Manchoukuo and that other nations should be given equal opportunity of commercial and financial penetration. Japanese military forces continued their drive against the rebels in Manchoukuo, forcing them toward the Siberian border. Hallun was bombarded from the air and set on fire. Isewalia, organ of the Soviet Russian government, charges certain Japanese elements with seeking an invasion of eastern Siberia to "facilitate Japan's preparations for war against the United States by making available for the Japanese military machine the rich natural resources of Asiatic Russia."

In a sharp warning to Japan not to try to lay her hands on Siberia, the vigorous editorial pronouncement called attention to "recent demands in certain sections of the Japanese press for war against Soviet Russia." It is true that Far East newspapers of Japan have been demanding that Siberia be conquered now to preserve the future of Manchoukuo.

M. M. NEELY, Democratic senator from West Virginia, seldom speaks in that august body, but the other day, after listening to his colleagues, he raised his voice and for fifteen minutes told them in scathing language what he thought of them and their verbosity which, he said, was losing the government more than $83,000 an hour. He quoted the Bible and lambasted the Congressional Record, and in conclusion he read into the record a 34-line poem on the value of terse speech. If, as he maintains, senatorial speech costs nearly $200 per heart beat, the rhyme he recited must have set Uncle Sam back about twenty-five hundred bucks. And the whole speech, based on his estimate of $83,000 per hour, cost $20,000. However, the lay citizen will sympathize with Mr. Neely's indignation, though with no hope that the senators can be persuaded to talk less and do more.

FORMER members of the marine corps living in the Middle West gathered in Chicago for a colorful reunion commemorating the valiant deeds of the corps in the Battle of Belleau Wood. In the way of entertainment the ex-leathernecks were taken on a tour of the Century of Progress exposition grounds and were given theater and baseball parties, and in the evening there was a big banquet with Maj. C. L. Fordney, U. S. M. C., as toastmaster.

"STONE AGE" MONEY ON ISLAND OF YAP

Coins That Are Somewhat Hard to Steal.

Yap, you may remember, is a tiny, almost microscopic island that is part of the Caroline group, lying between Guam and the Philippines. An insignificant spot of land as far as size goes, it caused quite a pother after the allies took it from Germany after the war. It is valuable as a cable station and as a relay point for radio, and a great many fists were shaken over it until its status finally was settled. This was done in 1922 by a treaty signed by the United States and Japan, recognizing the Japanese mandate over the island, but securing to the United States certain cable rights.

Nothing much was heard about Yap again until about five years later, when the immigration bureau announced that the inhabitants of the island were snubbing us. At the time when immigrants from everywhere on the globe were trying to crash our gates, the haughty Yaplanders joined with the moody folk of Muscat, Nauru, Ruanda and French Togoland and would have none of us.

The Yaplanders are now back in the news again under somewhat picturesque circumstances. The Chase National bank, of New York, maintains in its main office one of the largest collections of moneys of the world. The big-hearted Yaplanders and their coins weren't represented, and so to overcome this defect the bank a few coins—three specimens of their money, which is called "fel."

The money arrived a day or so ago practically in the form of bowlders. It seems the innocent Yaplanders are also a conservative outfit and they still stick to the old Stone age standards. One coin sent is about 200 years old, is 20 inches in diameter and weighs 120 pounds. It is reported this coin has the value of an 18-foot canoe, one-quarter of an acre of land, or about 10,000 coconuts. It is said, for instance, that when a Yaplander transaction involves too great a sum to be moved conveniently the new owner simply chisels his mark on his money and leaves it in his neighbor's yard until he can round up enough help to take it home. Sometimes the money is never moved, and there is a record of one coin remaining at the same place for more than a century. Most of the Yap money is in the form of disks of quarried limestones. Some resemble millstones in shape, and they weigh anything up to five tons. There is no mint on the island. All the money comes in the rough from the Pelew islands, and the Yaplanders then shape it up and give it a value. Discovering limestone on Yap would be just like discovering gold anywhere else.—Baltimore Evening Sun.

Questions and Answers about Conoco Germ Processed Oil

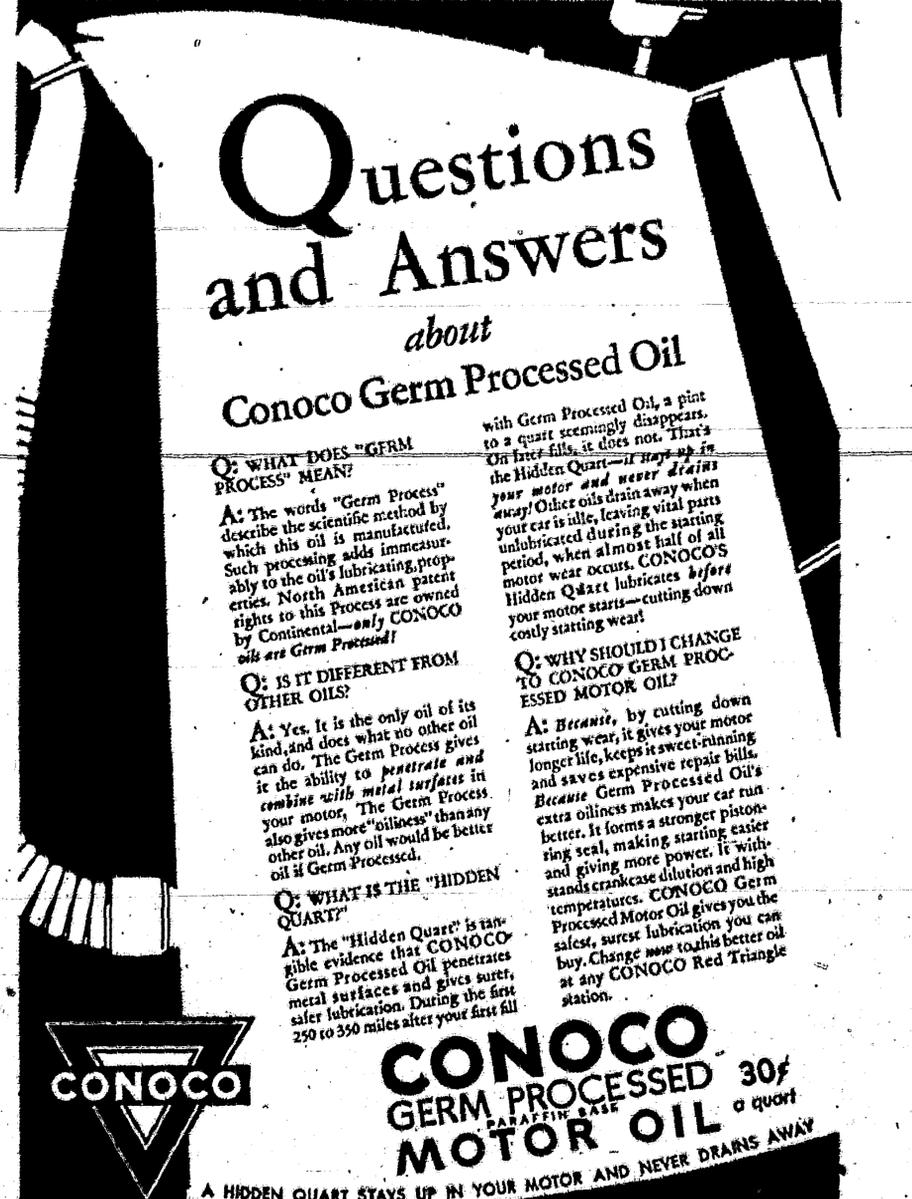

Q: WHAT DOES "GERM PROCESS" MEAN?
A: The words "Germ Process" describe the scientific method by which this oil is manufactured. Such processing adds immeasurably to the oil's lubricating properties. North American patent rights to this Process are owned by Continental—only CONOCO oils are Germ Processed!

Q: IS IT DIFFERENT FROM OTHER OILS?
A: Yes. It is the only oil of its kind, and does what no other oil can do. The Germ Process gives it the ability to penetrate and combine with metal surfaces in your motor. The Germ Process also gives more "oiliness" than any other oil. Any oil would be better oil if Germ Processed.

Q: WHAT IS THE "HIDDEN QUART?"
A: The "Hidden Quart" is tangible evidence that CONOCO Germ Processed Oil penetrates, metal surfaces and gives sure, safer lubrication. During the first 250 to 350 miles after your first fill with Germ Processed Oil, a pint to a quart seemingly disappears. On later fills, it does not. That's the Hidden Quart—it stays up in your motor and never drains away! Other oils drain away when your car is idle, leaving vital parts unlubricated during the starting period, when almost half of all motor wear occurs. CONOCO's Hidden Quart lubricates before your motor starts—cutting down costly starting wear!

Q: WHY SHOULD I CHANGE TO CONOCO GERM PROCESSED MOTOR OIL?
A: Because, by cutting down starting wear, it gives your motor longer life, keeps it sweet-running and saves expensive repair bills. Because Germ Processed Oil's extra oiliness makes your car run better. It forms a stronger piston-ring seal, making starting easier and giving more power. It withstands crankcase dilution and high temperatures. CONOCO Germ Processed Motor Oil gives you the safest, surest lubrication you can buy. Change now to this better oil at any CONOCO Red Triangle station.

EDITORIAL COLUMN

Hail to Her Bravery!

In olden times, there was a common slogan which ran like this: "Frailty, thou art woman" - but long ago women have demonstrated the fact that in most cases and amid the most trying circumstances, they are more cool, sensible and conservative than men. In many instances can this be proven. In making this statement there are some exceptions, among whom of course, is Lindbergh, who flew the Atlantic with nothing to eat on the trip but a bean sandwich. But in most cases, men encounter dangers in parties and with carefully arranged protection from all kinds of snares which they may encounter.

Take the young lady school teacher, who made the attempt to cross the big stream alone, but was never seen after her departure. On leaving this country, she made this statement: "If I succeed, there will be no thing to worry about in the future; if I fail, it will be all right anyhow and the battle will be over." She failed and the only thing seen after she left America's shores to tell the story, was a fragment of the plane far out in the ocean, sighted at a great distance by a passing steamer.

Take the brave little wife of Stanislaus Hausner, the Polish flyer, who stood by her radio through the long nights when no word had been received after he was long overdue on the other side.

Her calmness, they say, was something wonderful; she betrayed no emotion of grief as she stood at vigil by the radio, hoping for some message from over the face of the deep - but none came. Hour after hour, day after day, and week after week did she wait and pray.

When the news finally came that he had been picked up - at sea, more dead than alive, she was still calm, expressing no regret that he had failed, but was satisfied in knowing that the ocean had not been his grave. Brave to the last minute, and in face of the strong evidence that the flyer was lost, she never gave up. Vague rumors failed to change her attitude, with her ear to the radio and her lips moving only in silent prayer. Was this frailty? No, it was 100 per cent bravery.

Damn the Depression

Can you beat this one? A man appeared at the Burnett Cash Grocery Tuesday morning and asked for assistance, where-upon the proprietor said "What would you like to eat?" And the applicant replied "I can't eat anything for it doesn't set well on my stomach - I want money." The proprietor couldn't see it that way and the wayfarer went out, cursing the storekeeper and the depression.

HOUSES of the FUTURE will have SMALLER KITCHENS and LARGER BATHROOMS

Dishwashing is one of the daily monotonous tasks

Coffee and toast in today's breakfast nook without effort

The vacuum cleaner abolishes the tiresome and dirty task of sweeping

Modern bathrooms are attractive, well lighted, ventilated and frequently equipped with health exercisers and weighing machines

Automatic Refrigeration helps every housewife to achieve economies

ARCHITECTURAL exhibitions this winter emphasize an overwhelming trend toward smaller kitchens and larger bathrooms. There is no particular connection between these opposite tendencies, except that both have a sound scientific basis and are interesting illustrations of American leadership in everything that makes for efficiency and good living.

Small kitchens are in general more convenient than large ones. Fifty years ago the average American kitchen was often the largest room in the house, an expanse of vast open space frequently used as a general sitting room, as a laundry, and as a playroom for the children. Distances from one point to another were so great that food preparation became a task requiring the combined efforts of several persons. An inquisitive husband who strapped a pedometer to his wife's wrist found that she walked more than a quarter of a mile while making a custard pie in such an old-fashioned kitchen.

The modern kitchen is designed for the utmost conservation of time and energy, and the ideal size for the average home, according to scientists, is an oblong room no more than 8 by 12 feet. The oblong shape is better than the square because fewer steps are required in crossing the room from one work center to another.

Science also dictates the arrangement of the equipment. Everything is arranged for purposes of saving. Most women work in a right to left motion. The order of their kitchen is fixed. First, gathering up the raw food from cupboard and refrigerator; second, preparing it for the stove; third, cooking it and serving it; fourth, removing the dishes, washing them and putting them away. This fixed order is reflected in the arrangement of the kitchen furniture. First, refrigerator and food cupboard; second, work table; third, stove; fourth, serving table, fifth, sink and dish cupboard.

The scientists prescribe that the walls shall be lined with all the equipment in the order named, so that work proceeds exactly like the assembling of an automobile on an endless belt. And the kitchen of the future will be as small as it can conveniently be and meet these requirements.

Digger and Better Bathrooms

On the other hand, bathrooms just naturally tend to increase in size and importance. The modern bathroom has come to be one of the most attractive rooms in the house, well lighted, well ventilated and luxuriously equipped and decorated.

The American bathroom has no precedent in the lives and customs of people of other lands. There are no "potted styles" in bathrooms to copy. The bathroom is a development of the past 35 years, and architects have only recently begun seriously to study the equipment and decorative treatment of this modern American room.

Originally in bathroom architecture was held back for a long time by the casual and undistinguished beginnings of the room itself. A generation ago, when a home owner became converted to its importance as a factor in health and comfort, he would order one installed in his house, usually converting another room, a large closet or a back hallway into a bathroom. And this attitude toward the bathroom has left its mark upon architects and builders up to very recent years. In planning new houses, or remodeling old ones, they gave the least possible consideration to the bathroom. It was tucked away in any old corner, and grudgingly given a small obscure window.

Times are changing, however, and today architects and builders have begun to realize that the bathroom is an essential to the well-being of the whole family that from the very starting of the plans for a house it should be a part of that home and should receive special attention.

In the houses of the future this particular room will be planned and built as a bathroom, with more light, more air and more sunshine than ever before. It will have plenty of space, and will be frequently equipped with such machinery of health as exercisers, weighing machines and sun lamps.

Magic of Machinery

Science and invention have worked so many miracles in the daily life of the Twentieth Century that people sometimes fail to realize their supreme contribution to the noble task of abolishing household drudgery. In an hour, the modern home maker can accomplish things that required days and weeks in the days of her mother and grandmother.

First came the electric iron, and the steps it saved from the stove to the ironing board and back again amounted to several miles a year for every home maker. Next came the washing machine, not only saving time but also contributing to human happiness by abolishing aching backs and cracked knuckles. Then the vacuum cleaner, which at one stroke abolished the tiresome and dusty task of sweeping. Finally the automatic refrigerator, whose possibilities are only just beginning to be realized by home makers, for it not only saves time and energy, but actually takes a part in the preparation of food, adding a long list of intriguing contributions to the daily menu.

The automatic refrigerator has brought a new touch of luxury and attractiveness to the home table. It has added a note of color and zest to all departments of domestic hospitality. With its aid, the technique of food preparation approaches perfection.

We have discovered that cold is just as important in the kitchen as heat. It improves many fruits and vegetables. It makes meats more healthful and appetizing. It enables the home maker to keep her prepared dishes longer and to do her work further in advance. It brings to the ordinary family hundreds of recipes never before within their command. It helps every housewife to the achievement of new successes and new economies.

The importance of a good refrigerator is unquestionable. Annual yearly waste of foodstuffs in the United States is 20 percent of the total, and half of this is waste in the home due to spoilage.

Frozen Desserts

The first Englishman to taste a frozen sherbet was Richard the Lion Hearted. In the year 1191, while he was crusading in Palestine, he was treated to this delicacy by the Mohammedan leader Saladin. Richard could hardly believe his tongue when he tasted so delicate a dish.

One of the "tall tales" told by Marco Polo when he came back from his travels was about a frozen pudding that tasted like sweetened snow. Nobody believed him until he showed a Vienna cook how to do it. About 300 years later one of his recipes was used by Catherine de Medici as the climax of her wedding feast. Today with the aid of the automatic refrigerator the humblest home may have with slight effort and expense dishes which 200 years ago were served only to kings and emperors, and to them only on the most important occasions. Today it is no more trouble to make a biscuit tortoni than a rice pudding.

Housecleaning Made Easy

The bugbear of housecleaning has been practically driven out of American life by the modern spirit of efficiency and labor saving. New tools and machines have been developed, old implements and materials have been improved, and houses are built so that it is easy to keep them clean. The modern washing machine, the vacuum cleaner, the self-wringing mops and chemicalized dust cloths are instruments which make it a practical working principle to keep clean rather than to make clean.

If the daily household routine is carefully planned, if the kind of furnishings that are easy to keep clean are chosen and handled in the right way, and if provision is made for keeping all the dirt possible out of the house, there is no longer any need for worrying about those periodic upheavals which used to be known as "housecleaning time." The modern woman is a great believer in "preventive house cleaning," which means a study of where dirt comes from, and an effort to stop it before it enters.

Another household invention which is just beginning to find a wide following among architects and home makers is the electric dishwasher. In a questionnaire mailed to 1000 housewives asking their opinion as to the most disagreeable and monotonous task in housework, 920 mentioned "dishwashing." It is a task, of course, that must be faced three times a day, seven times a week, 1095 times a year. No other task in housework consumes the time required by this one operation.

Somebody has estimated that an electric dishwasher actually saves the average woman 40 working days of eight hours each out of every year. A scientist has figured that old-fashioned methods of dishwashing cost $232 a year for a family of four people; when done electrically the cost is $141.

Importance of Soft Water

Among household inventions which have not yet gained universal recognition, architects are now emphasizing the value of water softeners. Water is so essential in every phase of modern life, and it bears such an important relation to health and personal comfort, that everyone should know more about those characteristics of water that make it desirable or detrimental for household and personal use.

Water is the greatest solvent known to man. That is, it will dissolve readily a greater number of substances than any other liquid, and for that reason always contains many impurities. As water falls from the sky in the form of rain, it gathers up all the particles of dust, smoke and gases that have risen from the ground and are floating about in the air. Water from springs, wells or rivers gathers up mineral impurities.

Probably the time will come when all water used in homes will be filtered through a water softener, to remove the impurities that harden the water and hamper the lathering qualities of soap.

In the laundry, soft water imparts a snowy dry fluffiness and a sweet smelling cleanliness to the wash that is absolutely unknown to hard-water users.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for June 19

JACOB THE AGED FATHER

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 46:1-7, 28-30; 47:7.

GOLDEN TEXT—Honor thy father and thy mother; that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Joseph Honors His Father.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Joseph's Father Blesses the Kings.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How May We Honor Our Parents?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Our Obligations to Our Parents.

1. Jacob Journeys to Egypt (45:16-46:27).

1. Joseph sends for his father (45:16-24). At Pharaoh's request Joseph sent an urgent invitation to Jacob to come to Egypt, promising to give him the "good of the land."

2. Jacob consents to go (45:25-28). The news that Joseph was alive and "lord of all Egypt," backed up with the sight of the "wagons which Joseph had sent to carry him," induced Jacob to consent to go.

3. Jacob's vision at Beer-sheba (46:1-7).

a. He offered sacrifices unto God (v. 1). As he was now about to leave Canaan, Jacob sought God's guidance and blessing. His soul, no doubt, was moved with great emotion.

b. God's response to Jacob (vv. 2-4). He bade him go to Egypt without fear, assuring him of the divine presence and blessing and his ultimate return to Canaan.

c. Arrival in Egypt (vv. 5-7). Jacob was accompanied by his sons, their wives, their children and cattle. With the meeting of Joseph the family circle was now complete, seventy souls in all (v. 27).

11. Jacob Meets Joseph (46:28-34).

Though the journey was now over, they were faced with perplexing problems. God had promised to be with Jacob, and Pharaoh had promised to Joseph that they should "eat of the fat of the land," but the details were not known.

1. Judah sent before (v. 29). He was sent perhaps to direct them to the Land of Goshen.

2. Met by Joseph (vv. 29, 30). Joseph, being the lord of Egypt, properly traveled in his royal chariot. Though he was Jacob's son, it was proper that he should extend a royal welcome.

11. Joseph Presents His Father and Brethren unto Pharaoh (47:1-6).

1. Pharaoh's invitation (45:16-10). Jacob and his sons were in Egypt by the king's invitation. Joseph, though occupying an exalted position, was not ashamed of his father.

2. Joseph's tact (47:1, 2 cf. 40:50-34).

a. In introducing his father and brethren in a personal way, thus capitalizing his own influence in favor of his kin.

b. In having his father and brethren come to Goshen (45:10). Since possession is "nine points of the law" they were already in Goshen before asking Pharaoh for permission to occupy it (v. 4).

c. In coaching his brethren (46:34). He taught them beforehand what to say because he knew how awkward they would be before the great king.

d. In choosing five, not all (v. 2). In all probability he chose the five who would make the best appearance.

3. Their request to Pharaoh (vv. 3, 4). Joseph anticipated Pharaoh's questions and put the proper words into their mouths to be used in making their desires known.

4. Pharaoh's response (vv. 5, 6).

a. His gracious offer. They were to enjoy the best of the land.

b. Position of trust offered to capable men among them. He knew how capable Joseph was and surmised that some of his brethren might be likewise gifted.

IV. Jacob Blessing Pharaoh (47:7-10).

Here is an appraisal of true dignity. Though Pharaoh was the great king and Jacob now a suppliant at his feet, receiving natural blessings, yet morally Jacob was above Pharaoh and therefore conferred blessings upon him.

V. Joseph Nourishes His Father and Brethren (47:11, 12).

1. He placed them in the best of the land according as Pharaoh had commanded (v. 11). They were thus ready to go forward in business as soon as the famine was ended.

2. He nourished them (v. 12). Since there was no bread in all the land to be obtained except as dispensed by Joseph, he distributed to them according to their needs. Our Joseph, Jesus Christ, supplies all our needs according to his riches in glory (Phil. 4:10).

SYNOPSIS

Haggard and starving, a boy of about sixteen is befriended by a camping party. He has fled from his brutal father, Bat Morrison. The boy, Shad (Sheridan), is sent to Canton, with a letter to Colonel Blake. The colonel, his wife, and their daughter, Ruth, are impressed by the boy's manner. He goes to work in the village of Amity Dam, and meets a youth of his age, "Bony," and Bumpy Brown, a tinker, considered a drunkard because of his periodic lapses from strict sobriety. Bat Morrison comes, determined to take his son back to his own dissolute life. He is overawed by Colonel Blake, the district attorney, and his father passes out of Shad's life. A girl, young and pretty, comes to Brown's shack, inquiring for him. Shad applies himself diligently to his neglected education. Love for Ruth Blake takes strong hold on his heart. In an attack made on the Perry family, Oscar Perry, the father, and his daughter, Mrs. Doolittle, wife of Cyrus Doolittle, prominent citizen, are shot and seriously wounded. Circumstantial evidence points to Bumpy Brown as the assassin. He is arrested. Shad loses his job, and goes to live with Bony, at Miss Spenlow's. The two boys seek and find fugitives the murderer had worn. Colonel Blake is almost convinced Brown is not the murderer.

"There's the greatest man I ever knew," said Bony. "He's no gold-durned smart an' kind o' solemn I'm always a little scairt when he talks to me."

"If it's possible to love a man, I love him," Shad answered, but Bony never praised so lavishly.

In the morning the boys get out on the familiar road to Ashfield. They went behind Doty's barn and back to the highway. They searched the thickets and culverts along that thoroughfare. They came to a stone wall on the east side of the highway. Shad took one side of the wall and Bony the other. They looked into every hole and crevice. They had surveyed a long stretch of wall when Bony on the side toward the fields shouted:

"Here it is!"

He leaped over the wall with the colored handkerchief and a small, light-colored slouch hat in his hand. He held them up before him. There were the eye-holes in the handkerchief.

There was a touch of awe in the excitement of the two boys. Shad looked off at the river.

"This don't do Bumpy any good," he remarked. "His place is below here. He might have hid the hat and the handkerchief and then cut across to the river and got into his boat."

"But he didn't. You forgit the man in the broad-brimmed hat. He was seen away below here. I know it ain't the best place for these things to be hid, but we can't help that. Facts is facts. The murderer went on down the road, I tell ye."

Bony put the hat and handkerchief in his coat pocket. They went on down the road. Bony suggested:

"Supposin' they thought I had killed Oscar Perry an' they come an' took us up an' found that hat an' handkerchief in my pocket. I couldn't prove no alibi. I was down settin' on the ol' dam all 'lone studyin' astronomy an' stealin' a smoke. I heard the shot. I didn't stir 'cause I thought Deacon Meriwether was out shootin' at a 'coon in his chicken yard. I didn't come up to the store till I heard the women bawlin'. I couldn't prove no alibi."

"Well, it washes my hands. I left the Dayton's at just five minutes of seven by their clock."

"Then I guess you better keep these things," said Bony as he passed them to Shad.

They passed the Benson mansions on their way into town. They were just outside the village of Ashfield.

"You're better dressed than I be," said Bony.

"Go on an' see if you can find that hired girl. Tell 'em you're a friend of ol' Bumpy Brown; the tinker, an' that you're tryin' to help him. I'll bet they know the ol' man an' his bird."

Shad dreaded the task but did not hesitate. Such grandeur as loomed before him when he feared the lawns, he had never seen. Shad considered what he would say to those grand people. He decided first to speak of his friends, E. C. Converse and Colonel Blake. He went to the nearest of the big houses and rang the bell at the front door. A servant opened it. The boy asked for Mr. Benson. He explained that he wished to see him about Bumpy Brown. He was shown to the library, where sat one of the distinguished Benson brothers. Shad trembled with awe when the man arose and asked:

"Boy, what can I do for you?"

The tone of the man's voice was reassuring. Shad had learned that a gentleman was welcome anywhere.

"My name is Shad Morrison," he said as he stood bending the visor of his cap in his nervous hands. "I am a friend of E. C. Converse, sir, and of Colonel Blake."

"Good! I know them both. That establishes your standing."

Shad was getting better control of his breath. He made a new start.

"I have been working in the store up at Amity Dam. I know Bumpy Brown. He has been arrested for the murder of Oscar Perry. He is not guilty, sir."

"Good! I'd like to agree with you. What are your reasons?"

Mr. Benson was now deeply interested.

"I met the guilty man in the road that night. Two men saw him. He wore a broad-brimmed hat. He was walking fast on the road to Ashfield. He hid this hat an' handkerchief in the stone wall beside the road."

Mr. Benson spread out the handkerchief and carefully examined it.

"When did you find them?" he asked.

"Today, sir."

"You must give them to Colonel Blake."

"I'm going to."

"Until you see him, don't show them to anyone."

Shad was now at the point he sought.

"I hear that your hired girl met the man down in the road beyond your gate."

Mr. Benson smiled as he rang a bell on the table near him. The butler came. His master spoke:

"Tell the maid, Celestia More, to come here."

A cheery-faced young Irish woman came from the kitchen. She had been visiting down near the bridge in the edge of the village, the evening of the murder. She started for home a little after eight. It was dark and she was timid. Her friend came with her. They entered the road beyond the turn that leads to the village. A man approached them in the darkness. He was walking fast. He passed them on the opposite side of the road. He was tall. He wore a cap. She and her friend both agreed that he wore a cap.

"A cap!" Shad exclaimed. "I see. He was getting near the village. He had the cap in his pocket. Up the road within half a mile, we're going to find the broad-brimmed hat. He hid it somewhere."

Mr. Benson laughed.

"You're a good-hearted boy and rather level-headed. I wish you luck. I have not been able to believe that the old tinker was guilty."

Shad rejoined Bony who was waiting for him on the road. Within an hour the boys had found the broad-brimmed hat. It had been crowded into a hollow stump beside the road and was covered with rotten wood. Elated, they hastened into the village.

"We'll go over to Canton and see Colonel Blake," Shad proposed.

They went to the Westminster hotel and learned that the next train going west left at six forty. They decided to telephone and learn if the colonel were at home. They learned that he had gone to Kildare pond hunting. The pond was about five miles back in the woods.

They went to a store. Shad got some paper and twine and wrapped the hats and handkerchief in a snug package and tied it to his belt.

"I'm hungry," said Shad. "Let's get our suppers and walk home and have a talk with the doctor."

When they came out of the supper room a number of men sat around the fireplace. They were talking of the murder at Amity Dam. Among them were Robert Royce, Ellery Anderson, James Everts, a commercial traveler, the proprietor of the hotel and a stranger of about thirty, rather shabbily dressed. The stranger had red hair, a freckled face and abnormally large ears. Anderson had spoken of the excellent work of the district attorney in promptly solving the problem.

"The problem ain't solved yet," said Bony. "I happen to know that they're barking up the wrong tree."

"Huh! You must be a rather smart boy," said the hotel man.

"No, but where there's so many that do all their work with their tongues a feller that uses his brain once in a while kind o' stands out. The game was put up on Bumpy Brown. He was a drunken ol' pup of a man. Nobody supposed that he had any friends. He hated the Doolittles. He lived all alone a mile from anybody else. It would be hard for him to prove an alibi. The man that does the shootin' put on that limp. He wore a slouch hat in Mr. Doolittle's house and a broad-brimmed hat when he was runnin' away."

With the rashness of youth Bony told of the different points in the road where the man with the broad-brimmed hat had been seen in the darkness escaping toward Ashfield. A mile below Amity Dam he had hidden the colored handkerchief which had masked his face and the slouch hat in a stone wall. Half a mile out of Ashfield he shoved the broad-brimmed hat in the hollow of an old stump and put a cap on his head. In the edge of the village he was wearing the cap.

Tense with interest, every one was leaning forward in his chair gazing at the boy. The landlord was first to speak, asking:

"How do you know he hid the handkerchief and the hats?"

"We found them today."

"Where are they?"

"We've got 'em."

"Let us have a look at them."

"No sir-ee. We ain't goin' to show 'em to nobody till we see the district attorney. He's up at Kildare pond huntin' deer. One of us is goin' up there tomorrow to find him."

They went out-of-doors and hastened toward the bridge.

The tavern gossip of Ashfield had something new to talk about. Mr. Everts said that he thought that the boy had told the truth. The drummer was also of that opinion.

"He's a notorious young liar," said Robert Royce. "There isn't a lazier an' more harum-scarum chap in this county."

In a few minutes he and Ellery Anderson and the stranger arose and put on their overcoats and went over to the Kensington barroom.

When the boys arrived in Amity Dam they saw a light in the study windows of the doctor. They rang his doorbell. The doctor gave them a hearty welcome. They told him of their success.

"We have made quite a step toward the truth," said the doctor. "Shad will go into the woods to take these things to Colonel Blake tomorrow."

"Yes, sir," was Shad's answer.

"I suggest that you leave those things in my care," said the doctor.

"I want to take them with me," Shad answered.

"I advise against it, but you are entitled to have your way. It occurs to me that Hubbard's store has become a point of some interest. There you will remember Bumpy bought his rubbers. I wonder if somebody had learned of the exact shape and size of the rubbers Bumpy had bought. You know rubbers are rather accommodating. They stretch. Suggest to the district attorney that he go to Hubbard's store and find out, if he can, who bought rubbers of that size and shape on or before the tenth of November. People do not forget Bumpy's calls. They'll be sure to remember all about the rubbers they sold him."

The doctor walked with the boys to Miss Spenlow's house and left them at the door.

Miss Spenlow was a lady of undoubted probity. Her notion was that the Flesh and the Devil were conquering the world. The wildness of the quiet village of Amity Dam worried her. She was an active local worker for the Home for the Friendless in Ashfield. She served on a committee of the Home with one of the Benson sisters. The Home and the sayings of Miss Benson was the main topic of her conversation.

Miss Spenlow was the only lady in the village who took boarders. She had agreed to take Shad at four dollars a week if he would sleep with Bony and promise to be a good boy. She rather enjoyed the mothering and correcting and bullying of these two boys. She was often threatening to send them away, but would have wept if they had left her. She had a curious interest in their talk and perversity.

Duelists Barred From Office in Many States

South Carolina has a provision in its constitution requiring a man taking oath of office to declare that he had not challenged anyone to a duel nor fought a duel since being nominated. Virginia required an oath of this kind until 1923, when this particular provision was eliminated. Other states have in their constitutions sections forbidding office holders or legislators to participate in dueling. While the practice of dueling has been practically dead in this country for many years, there was a time when it was most popular, particularly among legislators. Henry Clay, of Kentucky, fought two famous duels, one with John Randolph. A Kentucky congressman named Graves fought and killed a Maine congressman named Cilley in 1838. Political arguments a hundred years ago often ended in challenges to duels. To prevent scandals of this kind at least during their terms of office, many of the states passed laws against dueling, some inserting prohibitions in their state constitutions and oaths of office.

Snuff at French Court
In France snuff was first used by Catherine de Medici, and was freely taken at court during the latter half of the sixteenth century. It was the nobility of the French court that initiated the fashion of snuff, plus the luxurious scents and lavish boxes. A story is told of the royal physician, Monsieur Fagon, denouncing snuff taking in an impassioned, public oration, and losing his effect because he became so excited that he forgot himself and took a huge pinch at the height of his rhetorical outburst.

FARM POULTRY

REMOVE BIRD WHEN OUT OF CONDITION

May Check Spread of Coccidiosis in Flock.

Chronic coccidiosis in adult fowls cannot be distinguished by external symptoms from other wasting diseases, and only by the use of the microscope after death, says a writer in the Rural New-Worker. Unlike the acute form occurring in chickens, the ceca do not display the evidences of the infection, which are to be found in the intestinal contents or in scrapings from the intestinal walls.

Either in chronic coccidiosis or other diseases showing the loss of appetite, dirty plumage, gradual loss of flesh, paleness of comb and wattles and perhaps paralysis of the legs found in such disorders, all affected birds should be removed from the flock and watch kept for new cases. The quarters used should be placed in good sanitary condition and the old ruins discarded.

The parasites causing coccidiosis and other infections of like incurability if their ground that has been used for a considerable length of time by poultry flocks, and healthy birds must be kept from such ground if avoidance of infection is to be expected. Chronic coccidiosis spreads slowly in an adult flock and removal of sick birds with sanitary precautions to prevent infection of the healthy members should be observed.

No Raiser Can Report Profit From Dead Hens

Dead hens make the largest item of flock depreciation, and this depreciation is the third largest item, next to feed and labor, or about one-fifth, of the total expense of the laying flock, says Prof. E. G. Mimer of the New York State College of Agriculture, after a study of ninety-two New York state flocks in 1930.

The percentage of mortality varied from 3 to 73 per cent of the average number of laying birds. The mortality averaged 23 per cent, with no difference between large or small flocks. When hens are valued at $1 each at the beginning of the laying season and are worth 75 cents at the end of the year, a mortality of 10 per cent makes the depreciation 34 cents to the hen. If the mortality were 40 per cent, the depreciation to the bird would be 60 cents. Professor Mimer warns poultrymen to give close attention to disease and parasite control.

Use Judgment in Mating

It is poor policy to mate up any fowls, least of all male birds, that have previously shown any signs of disease or weakness. It is unwise to mate up underized females to oversized coarse males, or vice versa. The mating seldom "clicks" and it is almost impossible to secure medium sized, normal healthy progeny. Born poultry breeders know by intuition just how many males a certain flock of females will need to get best results. As a general rule, in flock matings, not more than eight or ten lightweight males are required to 100 females. With heavyweight varieties, ten males are about right, providing there is little fighting among males. Otherwise it were best to make smaller flock matings.

Birds Carry Diseases

Birds such as the English sparrows should be fenced out of poultry houses, says the Idaho Farmer. These pests travel far and wide and visit everybody's poultry yard in a community, and if possible, carry diseases from the insanitary yards of one poultryman to clean yards of another. Careful poultrymen also make it a point to keep miscellaneous human visitors away from their poultry houses and runs, as they, too, readily carry troubles from one poultry yard to another. When visitors are allowed in the well-kept poultry yard they should be provided a box of litter or sawdust, thoroughly disinfected, into which to step before entering the premises.

Don't Cut Down on Feed

This is no time to cut down on the flock's feed even though egg prices are low. In fact, low egg prices make it all the more necessary that birds be fed generously and thus be kept at the height of their ability to produce. The laying flock should have a summer before it all, the time during the summer months. In addition it should be given some grain. The only feeding change should be the cutting down and finally the elimination of the morning feeding of scratch grain.—Exchange.

Hens Averaged $4

Hens averaged this net profit over feed cost last year for Mrs. John Niblo, Muscatola, due to careful feeding, culling and breeding. A hatcheryman had an order for chicks from eggs of a profitable flock—he had to know the record of the flock. Mrs. Niblo had this information—she has kept records three years. Chicks from her flock satisfied the customer so well a second order was placed and other orders have followed. Quality gets the best price.—Kansas Farmer.

MT. ETNA'S ISLAND

Sicilian Boys Pressing the Essence From Lemon Rinds.

(Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)—WNU Service.

SICILY goes back to work as the summit of Mt. Etna, famous landmark of the Mediterranean island, resumes its peaceful, eternal steaming. Recent rumblings and explosions within the mountain have preceded devastating lava flows in the past.

The present "threat" recalls the eruption of the huge volcano in 1923 when a lava stream, flowing like a 2,500-foot ribbon from one of its craters, flooded the eastern slope, one of the island's most fertile regions.

Orchards, vineyards and forests were destroyed; also the villages and towns that thrived on their products. More than a quarter million people live on the slopes of Mount Etna. The eastern slope is the most thickly populated with one town almost adjoining another. Almost every foot of ground not used for dwellings is cultivated, yielding abundant crops.

Etna has terrorized this district many times before. Whether the traveler goes by train or automobile down the east coast of Sicily, he passes slow after slow of lava. Some of them are centuries old; others more recently deposited from some of the two hundred craters that pepper the side of the cone-shaped mountain. The town of Acreate perches on a 300 foot cliff formed of seven distinct layers of lava.

Within the Christian era, Mount Etna has boiled over its crater rims more than a hundred times. It has wiped out cities, towns and villages and spelled doom to thousands of homes. Almost daily Mount Etna rumbles, and its summit constantly emits steam, but it takes more than these "suggestions" of action even to arouse the Sicilian's curiosity. The homes of their ancestors are sandwiched between two of the lava flows, and many of the present generation, like those of Mascati and Nuziatina, chief sufferers of the last decade, have watched their homes sink beneath a new molten bed.

Catania, Birthplace of Bellini.

Catania, lying at the foot of the mountain, has been destroyed and rebuilt many times. Catanians know Mount Etna so well that the famous volcano has to spit fire and boil over its rim before they seek shelter.

To the Catanian who loves his modern city, Etna has been a benefactor. To the traveler in search of antiquities it has been a despoiler, for ancient Catania of Greek, Roman, Saracen and Norman days is buried, save for a Greek theater, a Roman amphitheater, some baths and a few unimportant monuments.

Catania is more interested in its wide thoroughfares, public squares and parks, and in honoring her illustrious sons than in digging up ancient relics of a restless past. Bellini the composer was born there in 1802, and Catanians are not allowed to forget it. A statue of the composer adorns villa Bellini, one of the city's finest parks where on summer evenings one can sit and listen to Italian melodies played by a fine Sicilian band. The vine-clad slopes and the white head of Mount Etna form a magnificent background.

Another statue of the composer adorns the Piazza Stesicoro through which runs the Via Etnae, Catania's main street from the southern part of the city to the foot of the great mountain. A third statue stands among those of kings and great Italian and Sicilian patriots in the cathedral. There is also a Bellini theater, once the finest in Italy, and the Catania guides point with pride to the tablet which marks the house in which the composer was born.

The cathedral, and a lava elephant atop a tall marble base at its front door, are two of the most popular monuments of early Catania. The elephant's origin is unknown but the cathedral is credited to the prosperous reign of the Norman King Roger. Built in 1001, it was badly damaged by successive earthquakes and eruptions of Mount Etna, but each time it has been restored and used.

Agatha, the Patron Saint.

More honored than even the king's monuments in the cathedral is that of St. Agatha, Catania's patron saint. The head of her statue is said to contain the head of the saint who in defense of her virtue was tortured by a Roman praetor in the third century. Among her relics is a veil which is said to have miraculously diverted a lava stream that menaced Catania in 1000.

Once a year, in February, Catania turns out en masse to honor her. The statue, mounted on two long poles, is borne through the streets from church to church by white-robed men. The route of the procession is jammed to suffocation, old balconies groan under the weight of humanity and every roof has its quota of spectators. At night there are torchlight processions which brilliantly light up the city, and in nearly every window a candle or two throws feeble beams. The yelling and whistling and confusion of the day continue, augmented by the booming of colorful fireworks, the toll of church bells and the occasional roar of a cannon.

The St. Agatha celebration is only once a year. Before and after, Catania is busy with its commerce and industry. The harbor is filled with commercial craft whose flags add a colorful touch to the view from the Flora della Marina, a narrow but beautiful parkway near the water's edge.

Catania is not only the second largest city in Sicily but one of the island's chief gates of export through which some 600,000 tons of merchandise pass annually. Sulphur, fruit and wine have made fortunes for Catanians, and these and other industries keep many of the city's 271,000 inhabitants employed.

Attractive to Travelers.

Interest in Mount Etna's moods is not entirely confined to the volcano's immediate neighborhood. All Sicily feels the death-dealing blows of lava flows as much as all America feels the lash of a hurricane sweeping Florida.

Normally, however, Sicily is an island garden spot which nature has endowed with a warm sunny climate and all the charm that might go with it.

Its wild mountain scenery, ancient history, and picturesque inhabitants make it a mecca of European winter tourists. Travel in the interior was formerly considered unsafe because of brigandage. Such conditions, however, have long since been eliminated. Now the visitor is safe, and in addition to native inns, comfortable pensions are conducted by French, German and English landlords of many years' residence in the country.

Provincial towns of Sicily are famous for their situation, high up on picturesque hillsides or on rocky promontories jutting into the blue waters of the Mediterranean. Many of these towns are built on Greek foundations and contain ruins of Roman, Saracenic and Norman origin. A few Greek temples and theaters are practically intact.

Natives Are a Cheerful Lot.

Racial types among the peasantry vary from classic Greeks and swarthy Arab to blond Norman and haughty Spanish. In spite of his mixed ancestry, however, the Sicilian of today is distinctly a Latin product in matters of disposition, culture and religion. Travelers unite in testifying to his cheerfulness, quickness of perception, and hospitality. Stable government and education are said to be doing much to stamp out superstition and secret vengeance and terrorism. This movement for better conditions is exemplified by wholesale prosecutions against outlaw gangs now taking place at the old Roman bathing resort of Termini Imerese.

In Roman times the Island of Sicily was called the granary of Italy, and, while no longer specializing in wheat it is one of Europe's mainstays in the production of citrus fruits. Only California rivals Sicily as a grower of lemons. A part of the lemon crop is marketed in the form of citrate of lime and lemon extract.

For thousands of years this football at the toe of Italy has been the melting pot of many races. Its early inhabitants, the Sikels, who gave the island its name, were conquered by Greeks, whose great cities such as Syracuse dominated the land for five hundred years. Next came the rising power of Rome, during whose heyday Sicily was given over to the plunder of successive governors. Roman oppression grew so cruel that gangs of plantation slaves twice rose in revolution. Succeeding centuries saw Saracenic conquests, Norman kingdoms, and Bourbon misrule. Finally, a freed by Garibaldi, Sicily became a part of the kingdom of Italy.

During the last half century industrial conditions and political relations have not always been to the liking of the Sicilians, so that the island has been called the "Ireland of the South." Many thousand sons of the racial melting pot emigrated to America, some districts being stricken bare of men of working age. One town whose present population is 25,000, has sent 15,000 emigrants to the new country.

HEARD ABOUT TOWN

Tom Jones of Glencoe was a Carrizozo business visitor Tuesday of this week and while in town, paid this office a friendly call. Tom said that everything in his neighborhood looks extremely promising; in spite of reports to the contrary, the fruit yield will be plentiful. Come again, Amigo Mio.

The American Legion is trying to locate and identify the grave of every dead American soldier or sailor in Lincoln County, and will appreciate any information anyone will give relative to unmarked graves of soldiers or sailors of any war. This information is wanted that we may secure from the War Department a suitable marble headstone to erect over the grave. Notify any member of the Legion, or Carl E. Freeman, Commander, Carrizozo.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Boston and Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Walker made a fishin' trip to Nogal Lake Monday of this week, and reported very good luck. Mrs. Walker distinguished herself by killing two large rattlesnakes while there.

BORN - To Mr. and Mrs. Juan Baca, Monday, June 13, a girl. Mother and daughter are doing nicely.

Mack Shaver, Frank James and Alfredo Lopez came home from the University at Albuquerque, where they had been attending school. They are glad to be home, but they are seen in groups and joy riding, reviewing college days.

Maurice Lemmon, Truman Spencer, George Young and Tommy Nye arrived here last week from the Roswell Military Academy, showing the upright and firm-chested results of the military training they have undergone. George now resides at Vaughn and Tommy, the son of former County Clerk and Mrs. O. I. Nye, at Ventura, Calif.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Trimble and Mrs. Alice Sultemeyer of Corona made a trip to old Juarez last Sunday and visited places of interest, including the old church, the arena where the bull fights are held, and other places (no' sumpin') like used to exist in this country before slavery days.

There will be two big dances at Lincoln on the nights of June 23 and 24, the latter being St. John's Day. Geronimo Pino and his orchestra will furnish the music, and all are invited.

Lell C. St. John, chef at the Carrizozo Eating House, is on his annual vacation and together with Mrs. St. John and children will leave for Albuquerque for a visit with Mrs. St. John's parents and Lell's sister, Elvira.

Andres Lueras, Sr., stationery fireman at the local roundhouse, has been retired from the S. P. service on pension. Mr. Lueras entered the employ of the old E. P. & S. W. at Alamogordo over thirty-one years ago.

A. P. Jones and son "Curly" were here last Sunday from their ranch home across the Malpais; Curly doin' his share in winning the game from Hondo and A. P. helping to root for the home team. Curly, by the way, is one of the best players on the Carrizozo team.

George Elmgren and A. Stamm were here Tuesday night from Fort Stanton and attended the meeting of Carrizozo Lodge No. 30, I. O. O. F. They returned to the Fort after the meeting, but George came over again on Wednesday, accompanied by Baron Gerlich and after transacting some business, they returned in the afternoon.

Twenty to Sixteen!

The baseball game between Hondo and Carrizozo at the local ball grounds last Sunday afternoon was hotly contested in the first few innings, but later on Carrizozo took the lead and so continued until the close, which resulted in a score of 20 to 16 in favor of Carrizozo.

We wish to throw Hondo a bouquet, as they were the most agreeable bunch of fellows that have come to our grounds since the season began. In reverse as well as in places where it looked tough for Carrizozo, they displayed the same friendly manner, from which one couldn't tell as to whether they were losing or winning. Glad to see you, boys! Raymond Price umpired and Wayne Van Schoyck officiated around the bases; their decisions were most satisfactory to all concerned.

Mountainair vs. Carrizozo Sunday, June 19

Next Sunday, Carrizozo will play the crack team of Mountainair at the local ball park and a close game will be witnessed, judging from the good game they played at Mountainair.

Let's all turn out and give the boys the proper encouragement they need so badly at this time. Let's all keep this slogan in mind "Beat Mountainair!"

Letter from 'Nick' to 'We-uns'

This office is in receipt of a letter from our ol' Amigo, S. H. Nickels, the popular western story writer of Carrizozo. Nick is now in Silver City with his family, Mrs. Nickels and son Bill attending the Normal University at that place. On the way to Silver City, the family made a stop to view the White Sands and according to Nick's story, a pesky lizard crept up his pants leg. Said varmint kept himself very quiet until they reached Deming, where Nick approached a lady at a popcorn stand. Nick, with his usual politeness, was in the act of buying some popcorn, when Mr. Lizard began to wiggle just below Nick's belt line. He excused himself pronto and made a hasty retreat to where he relieved himself of the unwelcome stowaway.

Nick said that he believed that cussed critter sought that means of gettin' rid of his mate; if such were the case, he certainly succeeded. The family is comfortably located for the term and send best regards to their many friends in Carrizozo.

Jailer Sam Farmer has purchased the ranch home belonging to Mrs. Petra R. Gonzales, situated in the highlands on the east side of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Ortiz and family arrived from Superior, Ariz., last week and will make their home on the Ortiz homestead at the head of the Malpais.

East-Siders Defeat Lincoln in Slugfest

The Spanish-American ball team came from behind last Sunday to overcome an 8-run margin and win from Lincoln by a score of 20 to 17. At their time at bat in the 5th, the boys were trailing Lincoln 3 to 11, but in that frame the Carrizozoans almost tore down the coal chute with a barrage of 1, 2, 3 and 4 base plays and evened up the score.

Lincoln forged ahead again and changed pitchers, but it did not take the boys long to find his measurement and scored 9 more runs off his delivery. Alfredo Lopez went the entire route for the locals and did some good tossing, considering that this was his first game of ball in two years. A return game will be played at Lincoln on St. John's Day, June 24. - By Attending Fan.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Mendenhall, daughter Dorothy Faye and mother, Mrs. E. C. Mendenhall arrived here last Saturday from Port Arthur, Tex., and will visit for a short time with Mr. and Mrs. Bill Mendenhall. They will be taken to our scenic resorts in the mountains, such as Eagle Creek, along the Ruidoso, etc. Their first trip was on Tuesday evening, when they were taken to see the White Sands; the entire family partaking of a delicious dinner at that wonderful place of interest.

Paul Wood and sister, Cora, who had been visiting the John Wilson family at their ranch home near Ancho for the past several weeks, left last Monday for their home in Lovington, Ill., a short distance from Decatur. The young people are the niece and nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Ellison.

Attention, Ex-Service Men!

The American Legion monthly magazine, which comes to all members of the American Legion free, will edit a booklet on government laws with relation to ex-service men and all disabled soldiers or disabled ex-service men. This booklet cannot be bought and will come free to all members in good standing on June 30. The editor of the Legion magazine, together with his staff has compiled these laws in booklet form and it is the only book of its type in print. It would pay every ex-service man to own one of these books and as they come free to all members in good standing on June 30, it is urged that all eligible men join our local post before June 30 and get their copy free.

It will act as a guide to them in their dealings with the Veterans Bureau and other government agencies and is an invaluable booklet in every sense of the word. It is therefore hoped that we will get 25 additional members to the Benjamin I. Berry Post, No. 11 before June 30. See any member of the post or call Dr. Carl E. Freeman, Commander, or E. M. Barber, Adjutant.

Word reached here from Lincoln Wednesday, that Martin Baca, a member of one of the pioneer families of the county, had passed away at that place. Despondency over ill health is supposed to have hastened his death. Mr. Baca was an uncle of Mrs. Agnes St. John, formerly of this place, but who now resides near Orogrande.

Operator J. Devine left Wednesday for Ancho, where he will operate the second truck at that station for the S. P. railroad company.

Come over and dance tomorrow night at Baca's Hall, to the music of Sat Chavez, Jr., Emiliano McKinley and Marcelino Herrera.

Earl Carl, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Carl arrived here today from Los Angeles, where he has been residing for several years past. Earl was accompanied by Mrs. Esther Lundeen and children, Mrs. Orin Bixler and Miss Bessie Bixler, all of whom will visit relatives here and in Tucumcari for a short time.

"Heaven on Earth"

If you have never experienced "Heaven on Earth" (and darn few of us have) go to the Lyric Theatre tonight and see it; the picture is under the auspices of the local lodge of Rebekahs, L. O. O. F. It is a great drama; full of life interest. Featuring the well-known Star, Lew Ayres. A picture has to be good or Lew won't play in it. Get your tickets from the Rebekahs or from any member of the local lodge of OddFellows. Patronize a good cause.

Alvie Price of Iola, Kansas, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Luckey and brother to Raymond Price, the baseball umpire, is here, and will remain for an indefinite period. We hope he will stay and also hope he is as much of a baseball umpire as our friend Raymond, for we certainly need them just now.
