Improvements to be Made at Fort Stanton

The Government expects to construct the following new buildings at Fort Stanton in the near future:

Ward Unit - To accommodate 50 patients and to contain Dental offices, X-ray department, two operating rooms (surgical), and out-patient department. This building will probably be erected upon the site of the present power house and laundry which are to be rebuilt.

Power house and Laundry Building - This building will not be located upon the Parade, as at present, but on a site near the Creek. It will house new power house, laundry and refrigeration plant. It is believed that the new equipment for this building will all be new.

Nurses' Home - To accommodate twenty Nurses. Will probably be built on the Parade on the site at present occupied by the property office and building.

Quarters - Two double sets of officers' quarters (four sets in all.) One set will be built upon the site at present occupied by the Nurses' Home. One set to be built upon the site at present occupied by a cottage. The cottage will be moved to another site.

The quarters and nurses' home will probably be started within a few months, using the same plans that have been used at other Marine Hospitals.

The ward unit and power house will require special plans and study and may not be started for some months.

These buildings will all be of modern fire proof construction and involve an expenditure of about $350,000. The work will probably all be done by contract, using local labor where available.

The contract to lining the reservoir has been approved and work will start in a week or two. This expenditure is separate from the one above and will cost about $7,000.

Trujillo-Montoya

On Monday morning, Sept. 26, in the Santa Rita Church, Eulalio Trujillo and Miss Josefa Montoya of Encino were united in marriage by Rev. Fr. James A. Brady, newly appointed pastor of Santa Rita Mission. Immediately after the young couple pronounced their marriage vows, Father Brady celebrated nuptial mass in the presence of the bride, groom, their relatives and friends. The bridal couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Pedro Paralta of Capitan, to which place the whole party went after the ceremony to attend a wedding breakfast.

R. E. Lemon Announces For County Clerk

In this issue of the Outlook, appears the announcement of R. E. Lemon, who is so well known among our people, that he needs no introduction. Mr. Lemon was born and reared in the state of Kansas, but came to Lincoln County 24 years ago, since which time, he has made this place his home. Clerical work has always been his profession and being especially qualified in that particular line of work for so many years, he asks the consideration of the Republican county convention for the nomination for County Clerk.

During his residence here, he has never at any time asked his party to place his name on the ticket, and if nominated and elected, he would make the county an able public servant. His clerical work in the offices of our business houses here and elsewhere is a standing recommendation and one which would prove a valuable asset to the county for the above named gentleman who seeks the office.

Lincoln County Honored

At the recent Republican Convention at Albuquerque, John E. Brady, our esteemed County Sheriff, was unanimously nominated for Senator from the 15th Senatorial District, composed of Dona Ana, Otero, Lincoln and Torrance counties. Johnny did not seek the nomination, but the same was tendered him from the four counties with best of congratulations. "Viva el Johnny!"

The Hobo Dinner

The Hobo Dinner scheme as advertised in last week's paper was carried out in extraordinary and unique fashion Wednesday night. The soup course was served at the home of Mrs. Morgan Lovelace, the salad course at the Elizabeth Rooms by Mrs. Gallacher, the meat course at the home of Mrs. F. L. Boughner, and the dessert at the Roy Shaffer home, at which place a splendid musical program was given. The event furnished much merriment for the patrons who attended in large crowds to this unusual affair which was sponsored by the Woman's Missionary Society.

Mrs. French on the Microphone

Mrs. Edna Rousseau of Estancia was the nominee at the Republican convention for the office of Supt. of Public Instruction, and our County School Supt., Mrs. Alice French, was chosen to make her nomination, which she did from the big platform in a graceful and becoming manner. Mrs. Rousseau has many educational qualifications and will be a winner in the November election.

A correction - Father Francis Mitchell went to Mora; N. M., instead of Socorro, as was stated in this paper last week.

Mmes. Belknap, Pruett, J. M. Frame and small grandson Bill were Carrizozo visitors Wednesday; during their stay, Mr. Frame and Giant Bill made this office a friendly call.

The Republican Situation

(Roswell Record)

The Republican party of New Mexico has split into two different parts. The Cutting faction calls itself the Progressive wing of the party, for lack of another name, was unwilling to abide by the decisions of the great majority of the party as manifested at the state convention, and walked out and set up another party. In one sense it is to be deplored that such a thing has happened. In another sense it is a good thing. It will determine, once and for all, whether a party leader, because he has inherited wealth, can use wealth to run the state of New Mexico through contributions to both political parties.

Perhaps it is a good thing that this split has come. Perhaps it is a wise thing to have the test and show - down just now. It had to come. New Mexico cannot continue with one man, who professes no political belief or no political ideals, maintaining control of both political parties. It was a situation that could not endure, as the Record has often said. American leaders have been men of force, men of ideas and beliefs, not merely men of money.

And it will prove to be so in New Mexico today.

The Record regrets exceedingly the position that has been taken by Prager Miller in the present controversy in the Republican party. Miller has always been an ardent Republican. He has been active and prominent in Republican politics in the state and in the county. He has been honored by the party with nominations to state and county offices and has served as state chairman.

Prager Miller is popular in Roswell, and deservedly so. He has run well on Republican tickets here and was elected state senator during the Hoover swing in 1928. Mr. Miller will not and cannot be elected governor of New Mexico. The fight will be between Dillon and Seligman. Miller was nominated to draw votes from Dillon, not to be elected. He is to be sacrificed by the Cutting faction in an endeavor to elect Seligman.

The Record regrets that a man like Prager Miller has been placed in such a position. He is too fine a man, and at heart too good a Republican to be made the sacrifice in such a contest.

Miss Mabel Mackey has been assisting in clerical work at the New Mexico Light & Power Company and at other business firms ever town, of late.

ANCHO NOTES

The Woman's Club met with Mrs. Kile, Sept. 24. Due to delayed arrival of the president, Mrs. Drake, Mrs. Kile presided. Mrs. Belknap was appointed secretary pro tem. The response to roll call, "Ways and Means of Using Money," occasioned considerable debate, tho all agreed that charitable use of money was the ideal distribution. Mmes. S. J. Pruett and Drake will go as delegates to the state convention at Alamogordo on Oct. 3 and 4. The hostess was presented with two beautiful bouquets, the donors being Mmes. Belknap, Drake. The nicest feature of the meeting was the miscellaneous show-er planned for Mrs. John Straley, a recent bride. Numerous pieces of needle work were received. On Saturday evening, Oct. 1, the club will honor the Ancho and Jack's Peak teachers with a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Hightower.

The social hour was opened by reading of an article on "Shall I vote for Hoover?" by Mmes. Henderson, Pruett and Belknap. At next meeting a paper on Roosevelt will be discussed. This was followed by a song, "Sweetheart of the Mountain," by the Misses Drake, accompanied by guitar. And a reading by Mr. T. J. Straley, "No Excellence Without Great Labor," a reading recalled from his young school days. In an author's contest, Mrs. Belknap was awarded first prize. Mrs. Kile was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. T. J. Straley and sister, Mrs. Joe Roscoe of El Paso. Refreshments consisted of sandwiches, cream puffs and coffee. Next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Frica Miller.

The E. W. Shelton and Ray Hobbs families enjoyed a picnic in the Jicarillas last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Hightower, children, Miriam and John Allen spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lamb at Gran Quivira.

Prof. and Mrs. George Turner were week end guests at the J. V. Taylor home near Oscura.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hall were in Carrizozo on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Wagner have arrived recently from Tulsa, Okla., to visit with the Ralph and Fred Sweet families.

Heavy Hand of Misfortune

It would seem that some people have more than their share of misfortune, and as an evidence we point to the recent troubles of the Earl B. Rountree family of Capitan. On August 5, Mr. Rountree underwent an operation for the removal of one of his eyes, an injury which befell him when a piece of steel flew into his eye. Since that time, his two boys were operated on for appendicitis and last of all, Mrs. Rountree underwent an operation, all of which was at St. Mary's Hospital in Roswell. Mr. Rountree was here last Friday after the paper was out and in spite of his misfortune, he was possessed of a cheerful frame of mind that was wonderful. "We will be all right soon and will start all over again," he said. The family have our keenest sympathy in their recent misfortunes.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Our publicity staff is at last organized. The number of workers makes it seem as though we were trying to monopolize all of the space. But this is not our intention. We merely want efficiency. Editor in chief, Helen Strauss; Home Ec., Beatrice Romero; Athletics, Leslye Cooper; Grant Miller; Social events, Ernie Prehm; Manual training, Jack Snow.

There seems to be a great deal of confusion as to who's what in the classes. We really should know to whom we can take our suggestions and complaints. Class Officers - Seniors: Pres., Laura Sullivan; Vice-Pres., John Kelt; Sec'y, Ralph Hall; Treas., Lala Joyce; Sponsor, Mr. Gillette. Juniors: -Pres., Dorothy Pratt; Vice-pres., Marvin Peckham; Sec'y-Treas., Leonard Sanchez; Sponsor, Miss Davis. Sophomores: Pres., Murel Burnett; Vice-pres., Dorothy Wisner; Sec-Treas., Leslye Cooper; Sponsor, Miss Stover. Freshmen: Pres., Vaden Elliott; Vice-pres., Manson Hicks; Sec'y, Grant Miller; Treas., Opal Cranshaw; Sponsor, Miss Melas. Mr. J. V. Groce is the Post Graduate sponsor.

Last Saturday, our football boys put up a losing fight against Tularosa. It was a good game, and we admire their spirit. Better luck next time, boys.

The loud explosion heard during the first period last Friday was not an attempt of the Freshmen to blow up the schoolhouse; but a more violent reaction than was expected in a General Science experiment.

Carrizozo 11; Alamogordo 2

The Carrizozo Ball Team made it three in a row by walking away with an 11 to 2 victory over the Southwestern Lumber Co. Team of Alamogordo last Sunday. Pitcher "Red" had the opposing batsmen at his mercy throughout seven innings, allowing only a few scattered hits. His teammates accorded him excellent support in the pinches, and aside from a little collision between two of the outfielders, when both went after a fly ball, there was nothing to mar the machine-like rapidity of the entire team, but more especially of the "million-dollar" infield.

"Skeeter" Perea worked on the slab for the last two innings and demonstrated that he, too, could make them 'eat out of his hand.' He struck out three or four men during the two innings and didn't allow a hit. Umpire Gallacher twisted his ankle and had to retire in favor of "Mountain Man" Meyer Barnett.

Believe it or Not - There were four fellows by the same name out at the park last Sunday. Joe and Joe Chavez, playing with Alamogordo and the other two rooting for Carrizozo. Quite a coincidence, no?

The team goes to Alamo next Sunday to play a return game.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gallacher and children came in Wednesday from the Indian Tank ranch and stayed over until yesterday. Billy is suffering from rheumatism in one of his legs, as evidenced by his limp. But you can't keep a good man down, eh Bill?

Ex-Commissioner Rich Huest of Nogal was a business visitor the first of this week.

"In desperation you made a plan. On the tenth of November you drove to Griggsville. You arrived in Ashfield soon after noon and put your horses in the stable of the Westminster hotel. About four-thirty that afternoon you came to this shop. You told your stepson that you were ill and wished to lie down. He took you into the little office built against the side of the shop in the rear where there was a desk and a lounge. You told Royce to let you sleep and not to call you. Then you closed the door and locked it. A loaded revolver and some shells to fit it lay on the desk. You had often seen it lying there. You put Royce's rubbers in your coat pocket to disguise your tracks. You knew that Bumpy Brown wore a pair of the same size. You took the revolver. You put on Royce's overalls. At five-twenty or thereabouts Royce had closed the shop and gone upstairs where he lay reading a paper. You put the revolver in your pocket, opened the window and climbed through it. You crossed the bridge going west with a package under your arm walking fast. The package contained a broad-brimmed hat which you had borrowed from Algryre. A man I know saw you. You wore a cap on your head. You carried in your pocket the rubbers, the revolver and cartridges, a light-colored slouch hat and a colored handkerchief.

"You hurried up the road in the darkness. You left the broad-brimmed hat at some point not far from the bridge in Amity Dam. You reached your home about seven. You covered your face with the handkerchief. You put on the light-colored slouch hat and the rubbers. You rapped at the door. Your son opened it. You had expected that your wife would be standing before you. It was her habit to open the door. She was the one you had come to kill. You were facing not her but your son. You had to see it through now. You couldn't turn back. You entered, limping like Bumpy Brown, the boy fleeing before you. You began to shoot. You wounded your wife. You came close to her. Your weapon was pointed at her face. You did not shoot then. You were still pulling on the trigger. You did not know that you had to release the trigger to cock the weapon. Therefore your wife escaped. You had to kill her father to get away.

"Now the rats began to gnaw. They smelled blood. You fled in the darkness. You put on the broad-brimmed hat. You were seen at different points on the road burrying through the darkness. You tucked the handkerchief and slouched hat into a wall-hole. Opposite Brown's cove you met the crook Algryre. He had helped to make the plan. He took the revolver and cartridge from your hands. He crossed the river and planted them on Bumpy Brown. He was to get a thousand dollars for helping you. He got only half of it because you were afraid to draw so much money out of the bank at that time. I have Algryre's confession in my pocket.

"You went on. You hid the broad-brimmed hat in a hollow stump and covered it with rotten wood. You put a cap on your head. You reached the Ashfield bridge about eight-thirty. You threw the rubbers and overalls into the west channel. You entered the open window of Royce's office. You unlocked the door and called him. He let you out of the front entrance. You crossed the east channel on your way to the hotel. A little beyond the bridge a man told you of the crime which had been committed at your house. You hurried to the stable and got your horses. You told different men around you that Bumpy Brown must have done the shooting—that you had put him off your place once and that he had sworn to get even. You drove rapidly up the road.

"Now, when you got home you did not drop the reins and run to find your stricken wife as an honest man would have done. You went straight to the stable to see that the colts were properly cared for. That one circumstance was like a millstone tied to your neck. It set a man thinking in your village, and his thinking has helped me to surround you with a chain of evidence that no power can break. When you saw your danger you tried to kill this boy and destroy certain links in his possession. You failed, and your failure pushed you a mile nearer hell. You were getting close to the red gates. The deep-laid, cunning plot against Bumpy Brown crumbled.

"You lived in a growing, blistering heat in that house of burning with your good wife and son whose faith in you must have been like a crown of thorns. But the worst was to come. Here was the girl who must have been nearer to you than all else. Home and son and wife and honor and good repute were as chaff compared to her. She was in sore trouble yet you dared not lift a hand to help her. My G—d! What a thimblecrew that must have been!

"Doolittle was trembling. His mouth was open. He covered his face with his hands. Dumb with remorse and astonishment he was an abject and uprooted figure.

"My story is near its end," the colonel went on. "When the girl was at Betsy Spenlow's with her child you went by night to comfort and reassure her. When you were with her in the spruce thicket a witness of mine heard you say to her that you would kill anyone who came between you and her and that you would take her to Australia."

"These words came in a hoarse whisper from the lips of the murderer: 'It's a lie.'"

"No, it isn't. That instant we took a photograph of you and the girl. Here it is. Do you want to see it?"

The query was scarcely spoken when Doolittle pitched forward out of his chair. He lay sprawled, face downward on the floor, a limp, quivering, helpless, shrunken mass of ruined manhood.

CHAPTER XIV

Shad's Appeal to a Higher Court.
Doolittle recovered from his fainting fit. He did not confess, as the colonel hoped he would do. The sheriff took him to the county jail that day. Colonel Blake and Shad went to the hotel for dinner and waited for the evening train. As they were sitting together in their room the colonel said:

"Tomorrow is Christmas. Bumpy Brown and your friend Bony are coming down to spend the day with us.

They Embraced and Kissed Each Other.

Do you realize how old Bumpy has been growing? He's a whale of a man."

The colonel lighted his cigar and smoked a moment. In the silence Shad wondered what was behind the words of his chief.

"These are the facts," Blake began. "Bumpy had learned that Doolittle—a married man—was making love to his daughter. He warned her against him. Then he warned his daughter's seducer and probably in rather hot language Doolittle pushed him off his place. Bumpy may in his anger have sworn to get even. After that whenever he was in his cups he d—d (y) Doolittle. When he was indicted for murder and his life was in peril he must have suspected the truth that Doolittle had tried to get rid of his wife so that he could have Carrie. But old Bumpy held his peace. Why? Not even to save his life would he bring discredit on his daughter. To him death was better than shame. I doubt if in all the records of human action we may find a nobler sense of chivalry. It is curious that this shabby old flinker, often tpsying about the countryside, should now have us all sitting humbly at his feet. Of course he wanted the girl to marry Royce. Now, Royce is an honest but rather stupid fellow—a good deal of a dunce, I would say. I don't wonder that the girl wouldn't have him. Doolittle and Algryre made a fool of him in one way and another—notably in buying the rubbers, in building up the alibi of the guilty man and in misleading the detectives. I have never thought that his brain could create the mystery we have had to solve."

That Christmas day at Colonel

Blake's house was never forgotten by those who had a part in it. The reward of five thousand dollars was distributed according to the plan of Shad and his chief.

To Bumpy Brown the income on two thousand five hundred dollars for life.

To Bony a sum sufficient for one year's board and schooling.

To Shad a certificate of deposit for the balance.

Bumpy cooked the oysters and the turkey and by request prepared the mashed potatoes with unlimited allowances of cream and butter. Then the cook was called to the table. He said:

"No, sir; by Jee-dix, I'm too scared an' nervous to take a place in the front ranks. Besides I'm liable to bust out a-cryin' any minute—you've been so good to me. I'm goin' to keep close to the cellar door so I can retreat if I have to. I s'pose I'll get used to bein' rich an' happy, but you'll have to give me a little time."

Bony said that Miss Spenlow had "mellered up" a good deal—that she was not so anxious to keep him from being ruined.

Bumpy was finally induced to come and drink his coffee with them. Colonel Blake arose and with characteristic humor reviewed the career of Shad Morryson. He told of the adventures at Center Pond and Morris-town and introduced him as an expert detective. He was curious to see what the boy would say.

It was then that Sheridan Morryson made the little speech now quoted from his memoirs:

"Colonel and Mrs. Blake: The little things I have done are partly due to your faith in a homeless lad and to your interest in his welfare. For all that I thank you. I must also thank Bony for his help and friendship. I do not forget the friendship, the kindness and the good heart of Mr. Brown. I may know handsomer men, but I shall never know a better man. There is one whose name you know to whom I am more indebted than to all others. That is a debt which I can only pay, which I shall gladly pay, with my life and my devotion if I am allowed to do so. I hope that I am not breaking the rules of the court in saying this much. I fear that I am like a bee that has been forbidden to trespass in a flowery meadow."

The colonel laughed. Then he turned to Mrs. Blake and said: "Mother, this boy is not like other boys of his age. He's really quite a man. If he and Ruth want to be engaged I suppose that we may as well take down the trespass sign."

"Doesn't read, anyhow," the gentle lady answered with a smile. "They would better part, if they have to, before they are married than after they are."

Shad went to Ruth's side. They embraced and kissed each other. A gale of merry laughter had arisen. In the midst of it Colonel and Mrs. Blake and Bumpy and Bony came and embraced the happy youngsters.

Again a scrap from the memoirs: "Yes, it was unusual. I say only that it was good for us. We were in the same school and college until we were twenty-two. Our love filled the years with happiness and inspiration and mutual understanding. We helped each other. We knew each other. We had learned the gentle art of keeping step. We were in no danger of falling out when we were married the day after our graduation—a trouble that comes too often of slight acquaintance. Bumpy Brown came with his parrot and a handsome gift of money. Robert Royce and his wife Carrie, and Bony, then an able law clerk, and Betsy Spenlow and Doctor Gorse and Mr. and Mrs. Smithers were at the wedding. We were a famous pair and people came from far and wide to greet us.

"For twenty-five years we have lived and wrought together. Time has been kind to us. There is still glow in her hair and the glow of the corn-flower in her eyes and the tint of roses in her cheeks. I—well, I am still a lover. Have we not seen enough of the peril of straying to keep us in the straight way?"

(THE END.)

Temple Built to Honor Great Egyptian Goddess

The temple at Denderah is one of the most famous temples in all Egypt. According to the historical facts which the scientists have been able to dig out of the hieroglyphic records, it was restored by Pharaoh Ptolemy I, who lived four thousand years ago in the Sixth dynasty.

There is a high wall round the temple, with a majestic gateway, and to walk through this gateway is to be awed by the majesty of the columns of the entrance hall. The capitals of these columns are graven in the image of Hathor, the goddess to whom the temple is dedicated. She is represented as a woman with the ears of a heifer and with her flowing down both sides of her head.

A center aisle leads through the Hall of Columns to the shrine proper. On each side of this aisle are chambers which are identified by hieroglyphic inscriptions denoting their particular uses. Also there is a gallery encircling the shrine and from this still other chambers open.

On the roof of the temple is a shrine to Osiris and here there are hieroglyphics describing the ritual of the Osiris cult.

What Illinois Has

On the Illinois River Above Alton.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

When the opening of the Century of Progress exposition at Chicago in 1933, the city and the state of Illinois will be hosts to thousands of visitors.

Not many decades ago all Illinois was forest-clad; her roads were Indian trails; her buildings tepees and pioneer huts.

Then the pioneers and woodsmen pushed from the east in growing numbers. They came in flatboats and covered wagons. Later they came by steamboat and railroad. Today the old routes of the earliest pioneers echo with the hum of airplanes.

Nature endowed the state with a fertile soil to nourish mankind and stored treasures of minerals beneath to feed man's machines of travel and industry. More than all, it blessed the state with a rugged, healthful climate, which plays so large a part in fixing the temperament and destiny of peoples and nations. What man has made of these factors is the story of Illinois today.

Glimpse it for a moment as from an airplane winging northward, over crisscrossed arteries of concrete and steel and water, with towns and villages knotting them into a network. Forests and orchards of fruit give way to somber mines of coal. The earth is carpeted for miles with waving corn. Cities and tall stacks of mills become thicker. There is a broad belt of green pastures alive with dairy herds. Then comes a great, throbbing city under a pall of smoke, with humanity snuggling closer and climbing higher. Here acres of emerald parks intersperse drab-roofed squares, and finally a burst of graceful towers edges an inland sea.

Every village, every hamlet, has its story, some in the dim past, others in the thriving present. Traces of colonial days are few in Illinois, and towns show true to type, as one rolls over the smooth concrete highways. But each adds its mile of story, and there is no easier way to see them than by jogging north, over the aptly named Meridian highway, through the center of the state, 385 miles from southern tip to northern border.

From South to North.

In the course of this journey the traveler will see the aspect of nature change as in few other states. In "Egypt"—so named by the pioneers because of its fertility—peaches, cotton, tobacco, magnolias, bald cypress, and lotus are growing; in the north sugar beets, hickory, tamarack, and forests of white pine brave the biting winter. Most of Kentucky and Virginia are north of Cairo, while Boston is farther south than Zion. In the north the frost is usually gone by the end of March; in the north it keeps the farmer guessing until May.

The proposed trip will be an easy one, for no other state has more miles of concrete roads. The automobilist who starts his car in New York, heads across the continent to Seattle, down the Pacific coast to Los Angeles, over the wide open spaces to New Orleans, and then back through Richmond and Washington, will have covered less than 8,000 miles that are paved with cement concrete in Illinois. In one year more paved highway was added than the distance from Chicago to Portland, Maine, and 2,500 men and 10,000 horses were employed at the task.

Cairo is both the southern tip and within a few miles of the lowest spot in Illinois, only 279 feet above sea level. It is a city rich in memories. There Gen. Ulysses S. Grant had his headquarters from September, 1861, to April, 1862.

When the Illinois Central railroad pushed across the state, Cairo, satisfied that the Ohio river never could be bridged, saw itself a metropolis where trains and boats would always meet. Charles Dickens was one who bought a lot in the city of dreams. Before he crossed from England and made the journey west to see it, the temperamental river had moved and it was far beneath the water. He blamed Cairo, and Cairo has never forgiven him for what he wrote.

Cairo a Transfer Point.

Few of the graceful old river steamers remain, both rivers have been bridged, and Cairo lives in another age. It is a transfer point between water and rail for the government barge line to New Orleans and, in winter, the northern terminal. A single tow of long, squat barges with a powerful tug can carry the grain produced on 18,000 acres. They bring up the products of the Southern states and of distant lands—sugar, coffee, benzoin, sulphur, barium, steel—and carry back the grain and manufactures of the Middle West. Like the pilgrims and flatboats from Illinois, which 80 years ago drifted down the river with flour, smoked meat, and corn juice "moonshine," these steel barges plod eight miles an hour—no faster than Marquette paddled in his birch canoe. But the rattle of the electric truck has replaced the song of the roustabout, and one close-tied fleet of barges carries the freight of a dozen splashing river boats.

The highway leaves Cairo, curving through the Ozarks. Back in the hills, families are living in primitive log cabins. "Egypt's" fields of cotton, which dare frost but escape the boll weevil, change around Anna into orchards of apples, peaches, and pears and beds of asparagus and strawberries.

Beauty spots are preserved as state forests and parks. Bald Knob, 1,080 feet high, crowns a hardwood tract. Another reserve contains the only stand of short-leaf pine in the state. Fern Cliff park has a wealth of fern-covered boulders and waterfalls, and in Giant City park nature has lined great square rocks like streets. At Tunnel Hill the Illinois Central has bored a 7,000-foot tunnel as part of the 100-mile cutoff between Edgewood, Ill., and Fulton, Ky.

Crucible clay of the highest grade comes from around Carbondale, north of Anna, and 54 of the 102 counties in Illinois produce coal, most of which is mined in adjacent Franklin and Williamson counties.

Through the Coal Fields.

Marion, where Robert G. Ingersoll studied to be a lawyer and where Gen. John A. Logan made the speech which kept southern Illinois in the Union, is 19 miles east. Near it is the town once known as "bloody" Herrin. Politics has changed and the barber shops and stores now have signs in their windows, "This place will be closed at noon for prayer."

Benton is farther north, over a straight seam of coal from 7 to 14 feet thick, estimated to contain two and a half billion tons. It is the center of vast mines, five of which in different years have held world records for production. Orient No. 2, at West Frankfort, often bringing to the surface between 14,000 and 15,000 tons a day, is one of the largest coal mines in the world. It is electrically equipped, and its lock rooms and baths for miners, a requirement under the state law, could have a regiment from black to white without overcrowding. The deepest bituminous mine shaft in the country, more than 1,000 feet, is near Assumption.

Adventurers searching for gold have settled continents, but the lasting prosperity of nations rests on structural material and baser ores—coal, iron, oil, copper, limestone, and the humble clay and sand. Pennsylvania and West Virginia, and in some years Kentucky, produce more coal than Illinois, but they rank below it in untouched deposits of bituminous.

Our automobile highway now crosses the almost-forgotten trail followed by Col. George Rogers Clark in 1778. Patrick Henry sent this youth of twenty-five and a band of Kentucky frontiersmen to establish the vast Northwest territory as part of Virginia. They came down the Ohio and unfurled the Stars and Stripes, for the first time in Illinois, over Fort Massac, now a park.

Grain and Oil.

Fields of wheat and oats alternate with corn, and oil replaces coal under the surface, as the road runs north through Centralia. Oil was discovered in Clark county 26 years ago, and once the state produced more oil than Pennsylvania. It still produces some 6,000,000 barrels a year, but it is as a refining and distribution center that Illinois is most important to the oil industry. The pipe line radiate to the Atlantic, the gulf, and Canada, from Wood river and Roxana.

One of these lines follows the old trail of the covered wagon between Vincennes and Cahokia. The first mail in Illinois came along this route in 1806. Towns were spaced off every 25 miles, which then was a good day's journey.

At Olney is one of the five game havens in the state and the home of the late Robert Ridgway, formerly curator of the division of birds in the United States National museum, and a world authority on these feathered creatures. With 305 varieties, he rated Illinois rich in bird life.

Returning to the north-to-south highway, we come to Vandalia, due north of Centralia. Here is the old State Capitol building of 1820-1827, later a county courthouse, and now a museum. Its architecture of a past age contrasts with the drab two-story buildings around the Vandalia city square.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Startling Victory of Democrats in the Maine Election— Hoover Calls for Big Budget Cuts—Von Papen Triumphs Over Reichstag.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

GREAT rejoicing among the Democrats, and corresponding dismay in the Republican camps. Maine, normally a rock-ribbed Republican state, has gone Democratic, and everyone is quoting the old adage: "As Maine goes, so goes the Nation." Whether or not that is true, this September election certainly gives immense encouragement to the supporters of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Nor did the Hoover forces attempt to minimize its importance.

For the first time in 18 years Maine chose a Democrat for governor. He is Louis J. Brann, mayor of Lewiston, whose plurality over Burleigh Martin was nearly 1,400. The Democrats also elected two out of three congressmen the victors being Edward G. Moran, Jr., Rockland insurance agent who twice ran for governor, and John G. Ufferback, an automobile dealer who was once reform mayor of Bangor. Congressman Carroll L. Beedy, Republican, was re-elected in the First district.

Republican National Chairman Everett Sanders sent a reassuring telegram to President Hoover, but the Chief Executive was not to be deceived. His reply was said:

"The result of the election in Maine imposes need for renewed and stronger effort that the people may fully understand the issues at stake. We have known all along that, owing to the ravages of the world depression, our fight is a hard one; but we have a strong case and a right cause. Our task is to acquaint every man and woman in the country with the facts and issues which confront the nation."

"We are greatly disappointed," admitted Vice President Curtis. "But it will only make us work the harder, and we will carry Maine in November."

Democratic Chairman Farley grinned exultantly as he said he was impatiently awaiting a Republican explanation of the Democratic victory in Maine.

"The Democrats do not concede a single state," he added. "I think it must be admitted by Mr. Hoover's supporters that in this particular commonwealth the Democratic prospects were no better, to put it mildly, than in the least promising (from our point of view) of the so-called doubtful states. Maine was no harder hit by the depression than the rest of the country and had no more reason to resent the evasive policies of the administration."

PRIMARIES were held in various states during the week. In Michigan Gov. Wilber M. Brucker, Republican, easily won renomination and Representatives Walcott and Person also were victors. The Democrats named W. A. Comstock for governor. Senators George H. Moses of New Hampshire and Horner Dale of Vermont were renominated by the Republicans, as was Senator E. D. Smith by the Democrats of South Carolina. Cole Blaise being rejected. In Louisiana Representative John H. Overton, friend of Senator Huey Long, defeated Senator Broussard who sought renomination.

for this was adopted by a vote of 1,167 to 109 after a noisy debate. The delegates thus disregarded the warnings of President Hoover and General Hines, director of the veterans' bureau, that the payment would cost the treasury between two and two and one-half billion dollars and impose an intolerable burden on taxpayers.

Other resolutions adopted called for repeal of the Eighteenth amendment and immediate modification of the Volstead act, opposed cancellation of the foreign war debts and favored adequate national defense. Chicago was selected for the 1933 convention, and Louis A. Johnson of Clarksburg, W. Va., was elected national commander.

HOW the problem of intergovernmental debts may best be solved is the puzzling question that is now being considered by a new organization of business leaders of the nation, seventy-six men prominent in industry, agriculture and labor. Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, is the chairman, and the vice chairmen include Henry A. Wallace, farm paper publisher of Des Moines; Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university; James M. Cox, former governor of Ohio; John W. Davis, former ambassador to Great Britain; Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois; E. A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, and Louis Tabor, master of the National Guard.

Mr. Sloan's new forum, it is announced, will devote itself to "mobilizing practical opinion" on the international debts question.

PRESIDENT HOOVER started off the week well by calling on the heads of departments and the executives of all other federal activities to cut out all non-essentials from budget requests for the next fiscal year. The President said he had requested Director of the Budget Hoop "to make every effort to secure a reduction of at least $300,000,000 in the estimates of appropriations for the next year from the appropriations made for the current year, and the co-operation of the responsible administrative officers is necessary to achieve this end. A part of this can be accomplished in reduction of construction, activities which have been so greatly speeded up during the past few years as an aid to employment."

From administration sources it was learned the President hoped the total budget reduction might be $900,000,000.

Just before sending his message to department heads, the President announced that the government would go ahead with that portion of the construction program which the relief act made contingent on the ability of the treasury to raise the necessary money. He said he had instructed the various departments to speed up the program by the amount of slightly less than $200,000,000.

On Tuesday the War department, to advance the government's employment relief efforts, approved a great construction program that calls for the expenditure of $41,577,200 on food control and rivers and harbors projects. The department expects these activities will provide work for 25,000 persons now jobless.

THOUGH supported by only one-nineteenth of the reichstag, the government of Chancellor Von Papen of Germany remains in power, for it has the backing of President Von Hindenburg who seems to agree with the chancellor that parliamentary government in the reich is a failure.

When the reichstag met Monday Von Papen tried to read the command for its dissolution given him by the president, but Herman Goering, the Nazi president of the parliament, refused to recognize him until after a vote of non-confidence in the government had been moved by a Nazi and carried by an overwhelming majority.

AN WAS forecast a week ago, France rejected the German demand for equality of armaments, though in a conciliatory way, asserting that the other allied nations and also the United States would have to assent to the proposal before it could be granted. Chancellor Von Papen thereupon announced that German delegates would not attend further sessions of the disarmament conference, which reassembled Wednesday.

FROM Riga comes the interesting statement that Josef Stalin, dictator of Soviet Russia, has lost his influence and before long will be replaced as secretary of the Communist party—the only office he holds—by M. I. Kaganovich. This latter man, however, is a devoted disciple of Klem E. Voroshilov, commander of the Soviet armies, so it is taken for granted that Voroshilov will thereafter direct the policies of the Communist party and of the nation.

Stalin's reign, it is said, is being brought to a close because of failure of the five-year plan to industrialize the country, coupled with the growing shortage of food, which is causing workers everywhere to desert the industrial undertakings and return to the villages.

Another reason for the fall of the dictator is said to be Moscow's hope to obtain American recognition by a radical change of internal policy. Voroshilov is anxious to obtain America as an ally against Japan, whose plans, Russians fear, threaten Siberia.

MANCHOUKUO, the "independent" state set up by Japan in Manchuria, is now a full-fledged nation for Japan gave it recognition by signing a protocol Thursday at Changchun, which city was renamed Hsincing, meaning "New Capital." There was great rejoicing in Tokyo and a display of intense resentment in Chinese cities.

CHILE narrowly escaped another revolution during the week. A military clique led by Col. Arturo Benitez, air force commander, served notice on Carlos Davila, the Socialist President and former ambassador to Washington, that unless he resigned the Presidential palace would be bombed or attacked by troops. The clique already had forced the resignation of the cabinet, and the men and planes of the air corps gathered at Santiago ready for action. So Davila gracefully stepped down and out, saying he would leave Chile and probably would seek a job in journalism in some other country.

GATHERED in Sioux City for the purpose of considering the needs of the farmers, governors and other representatives of nine middle western states outlined a proposed federal program for financial aid to farmers. Among other things they suggested tariff revision to protect farm products, "sound" expansion of currency, Reconstruction Finance corporation loans to farmers, a moratorium on farm mortgage foreclosures and crop surplus control legislation.

This program seemed fairly satisfactory to the farmers who were on "strike," and there was an immediate decrease in the picketing that had kept much farm produce out of several large cities, especially in Iowa.

FOR several days it was believed the "Flying Family," made up of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Hitchinson, their two small daughters and a crew of four, had perished off the coast of Greenland on their flight by stages to Europe. Their huge amphibian plane was forced down and smashed in the ice, but all of them were found alive and unhurt in an Eskimo settlement and were taken to Angmagalik by the British trawler Lord Talbot. The projected flight of the Hitchinsons over Greenland and Iceland was not approved by the Danish government, and the taking of the children has been severely criticized.

RECEIVERS for the Insull Utility Investments, Inc., report to Federal Judge Lindley in Chicago that the concern is hopelessly insolvent, its assets being $27,473,364 and its liabilities $233,984,341. Aside from the $148,000,000 which 51,678 persons invested in the stock of the corporation and lost, there still remains a deficit of $73,474,408.

That apparently wipes out the purchasers of $33,645,023 of debenture bonds in the company, with still a deficit of nearly $20,000,000. That is nearly half of what the bankers loaned the corporation.

FOUR years ago John D. Rockefeller, Jr., conceived the idea of restoring the old town of Williamsburg, Va., to the conditions of colonial days. The first step in the project, the restoration of the historic Raleigh tavern, has been completed, and the structure, rebuilt on the original site and furnished in the style in vogue 150 years ago, was opened to the public on Friday. This one item has cost more than $200,000 of the $5,000,000 Mr. Rockefeller has contributed for the entire work.

Find Records of Stern Greek Law

Two pieces of pottery on which votes were inscribed which sent Aristides and Themistocles, Greek political and military leaders, into temporary exile 240 years ago have been found in the ancient market place at Athens, Greece.

Citizens of Athens during the Fifth century B. C., were privileged under the constitution of the city to meet in public assembly and vote for the temporary banishment of any of the citizenry. If as many as 6,000 votes were cast in the ballot, the citizen receiving the largest number was exiled for ten years but not deprived of the enjoyment of his property.

At least eight Athenian leaders are known to have been ostracized, but votes cast in the ballots have only been found for four of the proceedings.

The above mentioned "ostrakon," Greek term for the ballots so used, which was cast against Aristides is the first of its kind ever discovered but the one with the name of Themistocles is the second found. Ostraca have now been found for the votes against Megacles in 457 B. C., Xanthippos, father of Pericles in 485 B. C., Aristides in 483 B. C., and Themistocles in 471 B. C.

Los Angeles Boy Needed Help

Geroy Young, 1116 Georgia St., Los Angeles, is a "regular fellow," active in sports, and at the top in his classes at school. To look at him now, you'd think he never had a day's sickness but his mother says: "When Geroy was just a little fellow, we found his stomach and bowels were weak. He kept suffering from constipation. Nothing he ate agreed with him. He was fretful, feverish and puny."

"When we started giving him California Fig Syrup his condition improved quickly. His constipation and biliousness stopped and he has had no more trouble of that kind. I have since used California Fig Syrup with him for colds and upset spells. He likes it because it tastes so good and I like it because it helps him so wonderfully!"

California Fig Syrup has been the trusted standby of mothers for over 50 years. Leading physicians recommend it. It is purely vegetable and works with Nature to regulate, tone and strengthen the stomach and bowels of children so they get full nourishment from their food and waste is eliminated in a normal way. Four million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it. Always look for the word "California" on the carton to be sure of getting the genuine.

Penalty of Success

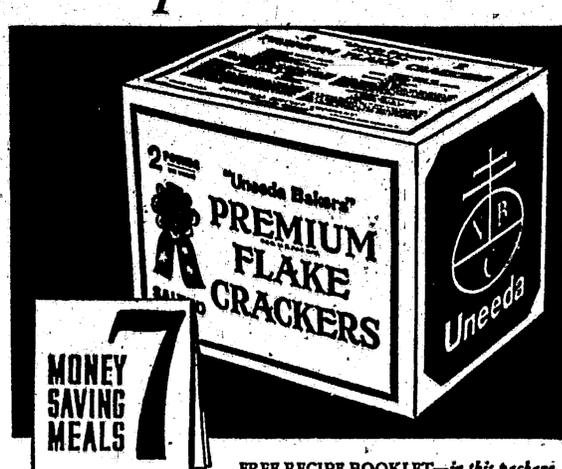

"Success knows no eight-hour law." William C. Durant, the automobile magnate, was speaking on success at a Kiwanis picnic in Boston. "Yes," he went on, "success, like failure, has its penalties. The Slinksons, for instance, ran a small boarding house, Wave villa, at Ocean City last year, and their success was very great. One afternoon when Mr. Slinkson came home from the fish market Mrs. Slinkson said to him: 'I've rented the comb to old Jake Hodge, Joe. The rest of the season you'll have to sleep in the chickenhouse. I'm sure you won't mind the chickens.'"

Want "Ad" Jags Memory

Unusual was the public announcement that appeared in the London papers recently. The Hungarian minister, Baron Ivan Rubido-Zichy, inserted this advertisement: "The Hungarian minister regrets that, having lost his engagement book, he is unable to remember his engagements for next week, and would, therefore, be grateful for reminders." Luckily three persons who had invited him to dinner on various nights telephoned to remind him of the dates, and as for the rest of the engagements he remembered them.

Democratic Aid Society

The El Paso Times takes great pleasure in rejoicing over the fact that Senator Norris of Nebraska will take the stump for Roosevelt along the Pacific coast - but while the Times claims to see such a great benefit to the Democratic candidate in this act, it must remember that this is not the first time this traitor to his party has worked against the Republican ticket.

Four years ago, Norris took the stump for Al Smith - and in the places where he made his speeches, there was the heaviest loss for the candidate.

People of both political parties are getting tired of bolters, traitors and violators of confidence placed in them by those who voted for better and higher things than stabbing them in the back.

As an evidence of this fact, let us remember that Brookhart and the LaFollettes of the same brand of political 'Bull Moosers' have been relegated to the rear, shorn of their former positions and their places given to party men who can be trusted. We have our share of this troublesome element as evidenced in the recent Republican state convention, when after that body refused to bow to the golden calf, a bolting element met and nominated a "progressive" ticket with no other purpose in view but that of drawing votes from the Republican ticket. We are disappointed in the head of that ticket, for from him we expected better things.

As the situation now is, the 'Bull Moose' party is nothing short of a Democratic Aid Society which will hold its knitting parties now and then until election. The fight this year will be between the man and the dollar; between principle and the golden calf in the state of New Mexico. Which side are you on?

No Gag Rule There

If over a Chairman of a big convention acted with unusual fairness, Dan Kelly of Tucuman certainly did at the recent Republican Convention at Albuquerque.

Besides knowing his 'frjoleros,' Dan exercised the best of judgment, saw that everybody had a square deal, kept his head cool and was commended on all sides for his level-headed methods in which he handled the big convention to the satisfaction of all concerned.

We have heard indirectly that Alice Roosevelt Longworth and Senator Bronson M. Cutting were engaged to be married.

Said item was heard over the radio by two parties, but of course we missed it - we never hear anything good.

The World's Series baseball games are now on and being broadcast by radio station KGUM at Albuquerque.

Fall Fashions - 1932 vs. Gay 90's

FASHION now reports from style centers pertaining to the new autumn mode say that the cigarette silhouette is to rule in new fall frocks for the modern miss, with the full sleeve created to accentuate the cigarette silhouette. As this study in styles indicates, a full sleeve is just as full of shirred texture under one name as another. The Victorian vamp of the gay 90's was proud of her leg o' mutton sleeves and this autumn Miss America of 1932 will simply dole on the dolman sleeve. The dolman sleeve is in fact a healthy juvenile balloon-sleeve well on its way to full-blown maturity. Of course, forty years ago, when the leg o' mutton sleeve was all the rage, cigarettes would never have been mentioned in connection with styles. The belief of that era did not smoko since the raw tobaccos used in making old fashioned cigarettes did not have the mildness which the toasting process gives to the modern cigarette which Miss America of 1932 prefers. But the descriptive term seems applied quite naturally to the modern straight and youthful silhouette which is inspiring the fall mode. The dolman sleeve in its design permits the style creators to narrow the bodice lines by crowding the shirred sleeve-top in toward the center of both front and back, thus giving the effect of an eight-inch wide front and back and creating the straight line essential in the cigarette silhouette.

Spines Protect Globefish - The body of the globefish is studded with numerous spines. In times of danger this fish inflates itself with air until the skin of its abdomen is so distended that it turns over and floats, back downward. With the skin thus tautly stretched the spines become a prickly armor.

The Hedges of England

The hedges, yes, the hedges, the very synonym of Merry England - are yet there, and long may they remain. Without hedges England would not be England. Hedges, thick and high and full of flowers, birds and living creatures, of shade and flecks of sunshine dancing up and down the bark of trees - I love their very thorns. You do not know how much there is in hedges. - Richard Jefferies in "Notes on Land-Scape Painting."

Then and Now A century ago the Maumee river at Toledo afforded more fish, and in greater varieties, than any other river in that territory. The most numerous and valuable were the walleyed pike, the muskellunge, catfish and bass. Fishing was done with hooks, spears, and dipnets. The fish were so numerous, it was quite common for the Indians to spear from one to three at a single stroke.

No Substitute

Your neighbor's telephone is no substitute for one of your own. Here is a statement from a farm user illustrating one important service his telephone performs:

"My telephone is not a luxury, but a necessity. Most of my marketing is done by telephone. I get prices daily and keep in touch with customers by telephone."

For a few cents a day the telephone saves many trips to town, keeps you in touch with neighbors and in emergencies, when minutes count, it is instantly available to summon help.

THE CHRISTIAN'S DEVOTIONAL LIFE

GOLDEN TEXT—But grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. To him be glory now and for ever.

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 6:15-18; Daniel 6:10; II Timothy 3:14-17.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Talking to God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—What Real Prayer Is.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Christian's Devotional Life.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Means of Christian Growth.

The Christian's growth is by means of his devotional life. It requires the symmetrical development of his understanding and heart. Bible study and prayer go hand in hand. The believer's affections need proper direction and exercise.

1. The Christian's Prayer Life (Matt. 6:9-13).

In Christ's teaching in this passage on prayer we note:

a. False prayer (vv. 5-7). This consists:

1. In one praying to be seen and heard of men (v. 5). Many prayers, uttered in public are false, for the supreme consideration is what the people think rather than what God thinks. Men who thus pray get a reward but not from God.

2. In using vain repetitions (vv. 7, 8). This does not mean that we should ask but once for the thing desired, for we have examples of Christ and Paul praying three times for the same thing (Matt. 26:39-40; II Cor. 12:7, 8); but rather that the use of meaningless repetitions, reiterations of empty sentences be avoided.

3. True prayer (v. 8). Real prayer is communion of the child of God with his heavenly Father. Life for its fullest development needs both solitude and companionship. God, our Creator, knew what our natures require. Therefore, he commands both public and private prayer (Heb. 10:25; Matt. 6:6).

4. The model prayer (vv. 9-13). This was given in response to the disciples' request that the Lord would teach them to pray (Luke 11:1).

a. A right relationship—"Our Father" (v. 9). Only those who have become children of God by faith in Jesus Christ can pray aright.

b. A right attitude—"Hallowed be thy name" (vv. 9, 10). When one realizes that he has been delivered from the power of darkness and translated into the kingdom of his dear Son (Col. 1:13) by being a child of God, he cannot help pouring out his soul in gratitude and praise, intensely longing for the kingdom, the righteous rule of Christ on the earth.

c. A right spirit (vv. 11-13). This spirit involves:

(1) Trust which looks to God for the supply of daily need. We are dependent upon him for our daily food. With all man's boasted progress he cannot make a harvest.

(2) The spirit of love which results in forgiveness of others. God will not listen to the prayers of one who has an unforgiving spirit.

(3) That of holiness which moves one to pray and not to be led into temptation and moves him to long to be delivered from the Evil One.

(4) Regular prayer (Dan. 6:10). Though prohibited by royal decree from asking a petition from any god or man except the king, Daniel did not depart from his regular custom of prayer to God three times a day.

11. The Christian's Bible Study (II Tim. 3:14-17).

This scripture exhibits the value of the Holy Scriptures. Devotional life undirected by the Scriptures will develop in a wrong direction. The affections need to be disciplined through the understanding.

1. The Scriptures able to make one wise unto salvation (v. 15). Salvation is in Christ alone. It is secured through faith in his finished work on the cross. True wisdom leads to Christ crucified since "there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved" (Acts 4:12), "and without shedding of blood is no remission" (Heb. 9:22).

2. The Scriptures discipline the life (vv. 16, 17). In the Scriptures doctrine is set forth, the standard of conduct which is absolutely needed. The only place to find God's standard of life is in his Holy Word. It not only exhibits the divine standard, but it reproves; that is, refutes error. The way to deal with error is not denunciation, but the positive presentation of truth. Then, too, it corrects; that is, sets straight many of the dislocations of personal and social conduct. The Word of God not only sets straight, but instructs in righteousness and equips for service.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

If you expect to get to heaven you must go in that direction.

Do not pray for easy lives; pray to be stronger men and women.

If I take care of my character, my reputation will take care of itself.

It is one thing to see the way you should go, and quite another to go the way you see.

Modern Contract Bridge

By Lella Hattersley

No. 10

Responding to High, Strength-Showing Bids

WHEN your partner makes an opening bid of three in a major or four in a minor, he tells you that he has a powerful trump suit needing no support, and outside strength as well and that his total of playing tricks count within two of game. In short, he says, that with very little assistance in either honor or playing-tricks, he is practically sure of his game. Such a strong plea for assistance should rarely go unanswered. One supporting trick plus is a sound raise for such a dynamic bid. Unless your raise is based on ruffing values, you need not bother about your trump holding. Even a singleton will do.

When you find yourself with three supporting tricks of which two at least are high honor-tricks, you may give your partner a "slam suggestion," by jumping his major suit three-bid to five.

A bid in another suit is classed as an indirect raise. Such a declaration does not necessarily show a long suit. It is not really offered as a take-out, but rather to reveal to your partner where your support is concentrated. He may be able to use the information for a slam bid.

Unless the opponents should overcall your partner's opening game bid, you would rarely need to consider a response. In such a situation a slam bid should not be contemplated unless you held three or four honor-tricks with, perhaps, other support.

The Triple Valuation of a Hand

The danger of driving your opponents into a successful slam bid is always present in high competitive bidding. And, at lower stages of the bidding we are frequently called on to consider the danger of pushing the opponents into a successful game contract.

With such a possibility in mind, as well as when you must consider a penalty double, your hand must be viewed from an entirely new angle, you must appraise it defensively.

Hitherto we have discussed only aggressive valuations, that is the appraisal of bidding and assisting hands. But as a matter of fact, during the course of the bidding the same hand often has to be valued from three different angles.

First—At your own bid. Count honor-tricks and long suit tricks both in trumps and side suits.

Second—In support of your partner's bid: Count honor-tricks, long suit and short suit tricks.

Third—Against opponents' bid: Count honor-tricks and trump tricks only. Count no long suit tricks or short suit tricks except rarely a singleton or void.

Simple Defensive Bids

A defensive bid is a bid made by the side opposing the player who opens the contracting. A simple or regulation defensive bid is always just high enough to cover the previous declaration. A defensive bid does not necessarily show the strength in honor-tricks that an original bid implies, nor can it ever give the same type of exact information.

A hand which would suffice for an original bid of one is almost always sufficient for a defensive bid of one; and a sound original bid of one with a strong five-card suit is sufficient for a defensive bid of two if forced by the opponent's declaration.

Sound defensive bids may be made on hands which contain biddable suits with no more than 1½ honor-tricks if with this minimum holding of honor-tricks there are sufficient playing-tricks to promise a favorable chance of making the contract.

The best way to be assured of the soundness of your defensive declaration is to use the rule of "two and three." In making a defensive overcall when vulnerable, count on your partner for two supporting tricks and bid accordingly. When not vulnerable, count three supporting tricks from your partner.

To illustrate the working of this rule let us assume that you are not vulnerable and hold the following hand:

S-A-3

H-Q-J-7-6-4-2

D-J-8-7-6

C-3

You have 5 playing-tricks including 1½ honor-tricks, and so, using the rule of gambling on three supporting tricks from your partner's hand you would be justified in overcalling an opponent's one spade bid with two hearts. Vulnerable, in the same situation, you would have to pass as your total of 5 playing-tricks, with the 2 you are permitted to expect from partner, would still be insufficient to cover your declaration for 3 tricks.

A defensive over-call of two, or higher, should not as a rule be ventured on four-card suit lengths. Therefore, the partner can support such over-calls with but three low trumps although even here caution is needed.

When in over-calling it is necessary to bid three, or higher, (assuming, of course, that the opening bid is not a forcing two-bid) your trump suit must be very strong.

A simple defensive over-call usually ranges in strength from 1½ to 2½ honor-tricks.

Gran Chaco Known as Land of Death

Where Bolivia, Paraguay and Argentina join on the map of South America lies the Gran Chaco, a steaming, insect-swarmed triangle 600 miles by 800 between the Paraguay and Pilcomayo rivers.

Julian Duguld, British explorer, has described the Pilcomayo as "a vast, foul-smelling, oozy stretch of bog with as much movement as an unsqueezed sponge. . . . An Englishman may obtain some insight into the discomfort of penetration into the Chaco if he locks himself into a hothouse, waters the flowers, closes all the windows, and allows a blazing sun to shine through the glass while he rides a stationary bicycle. Even then he will not be bothered by insects."

The worst insects are the small, vicious black flies that hang in dark clouds in the air. There are also poisonous snakes, jaguars and piranhas (carnivorous fish). Despite the dampness, water holes are 15 to 40 miles apart.

This is the land over which Bolivia and Paraguay have squabbled since 1879. Paraguay wants the Chaco because the district is larger than the rest of their country and its jungles contain great growths of the quebracho tree, whose bark yields 30 per cent tannin.—Time Magazine.

Luck is against some men; and laws cannot change it.

Explaining the Sign

Near Cleveland, Ohio, a man noticed a store with a neatly painted sign on the front window reading: "We dress all our own poultry." Below this sign in the window were displayed summer dresses, hostery and other women's apparel. The mystery was solved when it was discovered that a meat store had just moved out and dress shop had just moved in.

"A man who has no cares," said Hi Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "must eventually feel that he has been useless because he was entrusted with nothing."—Washington Star.

WARNING to PROPERTY OWNERS

TODAY a letter came to my desk that deeply impressed me. It was written by a woman—the mother in a typical American family. Her little home had been saved from foreclosure by a coat of new paint, for which a part of their meager savings had been paid.

Those few gallons of fresh paint had so revived the appearance and enhanced the value of the property that the mortgagee had consented to renew the loan . . . and the little home was saved.

I could not help thinking of the thousands of homes and buildings that are shabby and unattractive today due to several years of neglected painting; of the millions of home owners who, because of reduced incomes and enforced economy, have been obliged to sacrifice painting for taxes, interest, assessments, to say nothing of food, clothing, heat and other essentials of comfort and health.

You have seen these paint-starved houses and buildings, as have I. They are everywhere about you. Perhaps your home is included.

Do you understand what they signify? Do you realize what will happen to wood or metal that is literally naked of paint if these houses and buildings face the attack of another season of rain, snow, ice, and frost?

Never in the history of our country has the situation been paralleled. Property owners face an added burden of expense amounting to millions of dollars for repairs and replacements next spring.

And the crisis, in my opinion, will be reached this coming winter when paint of four, five, and even six years exposure to the weather will be unable to resist the elements—when badly weathered wood and metal will be easy prey for rot, rust and decay.

Today the big question facing thousands of property owners is plain. It is "paint or pay." Either you must invest a little this fall in new paint or you must take the risk of paying many times the cost of paint to repair the damage done by rot, rust and decay this winter.

Even at the sacrifice of other things, have your house or buildings completely repainted now. No investment you can make will pay better dividends. And nothing you can buy will make you and your family feel so uplifted and cheerful.

If you cannot arrange to do a complete repainting job now, at least give the badly weathered places a coat or two of protecting paint.

Look especially, to the window sills, thresholds, outdoor porches and steps; the joints of porch railings and palings; the bases of pillars; the edges of eaves; the roof; the gutters and down spouts. These are the vital spots where water lodges—where ice and frost settle—where rot and rust attack first.

A few dollars' worth of good paint, applied now, will protect these vital spots—will tide you over this crucial winter. And it will probably save you a much greater expense for repairs and replacements next spring and summer.

Under existing conditions, you may be tempted to buy a cheap paint because of its low price. I hope you will not make this costly mistake.

Even on sound lumber, inferior paint is a poor bargain. But on weathered wood, which is very porous, such paint is worse than useless. It gives you a false feeling of security and leaves you without protection.

Prices of well-known, established brands of paint are now the lowest in fifteen years. Enough good, dependable paint can be purchased for a few dollars to protect all the badly weathered surfaces on your building.

Again I repeat, do a complete job this fall if you can. But at least do the vital exposed places before it is "too late."

"De-lighted"

Gov. Franklin Roosevelt, in his radio speech last night, made the assertion, "After I am inaugurated, I'll do this and that." Rather counting the chickens before they're hatched, we think. "De-lighted," a favorite expression of the beloved Theodore Roosevelt, was used by Gov. Franklin Roosevelt recently. "Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery," in other words, "For the love of Mike, Frank, get something new."

Summing It Up

The chief business of any human being is the search for happiness.—American Magazine.

Help a Worthy Cause

Everyone in the Community is familiar by this time with the effects of the general depression on the material well-being of many of our foremost citizens. Many families are obliged to cut down on their food supply and other necessities to a minimum either on account of a reduced or an utterly depleted income. That these unfortunate conditions should merely effect the home-life of our citizens is hardly plausible. As a matter of fact we who are engaged in school work both in the Carrizozo Public School and the Santa Rita Parochial School, know that this economic crisis is threatening the very cause of Education itself. We have discovered that many children are being impeded in their studies and courses because they are unable to buy the required books.

At the suggestion of our Honorable Mayor of Carrizozo, we have decided to ask the people of this community to alleviate this shortage of books either by donating used books or by financial aid for the purchasing of new books.

We cannot imagine any more noble form of charity than assisting our school children in their present distress. Donations either of money or books will be most gratefully received by the members of the undersigned committee at the Carrizozo High or the Santa Rita School or at the Village Office.

Committee:
Supt. D. U. Groce,
Rev. James A. Brady.

Elephant No Longer Venerated

Now that Siamese princes go to Oxford and Siamese girls bob their hair, the so-called sacred white elephants no longer command the veneration of former days. They were once thought to embody the spirits of wise princes and heroes and the happy discoverer of one had his mouth stuffed with gold as a reward.

Atrocious Punishment

Inscriptions found on the Great Wall of China are said to state that whenever one of the millions of laborers who were building it was found to have made a mistake in his work, he was imbedded alive in the wall at the place of his error.

Methodist Church

Rev. S. E. Allison, Presiding Elder, will be with us next Sunday. Preaching at Capitan in the morning; at Angus in the afternoon, and in Carrizozo in the evening. The Fourth Quarterly Conference will be held following the evening service, 145 in Sunday School last Sunday; 44 at Epworth League. Sunday School promotion service was very impressive with the little folks in caps and gowns. A good congregation heard the male quartette Sunday night. The quartette is composed of the Groces, father and sons and P. L. Boughner, with Miss Beatrix Boughner at the piano. They'll be with us again next Sunday.

Baptist Church

Somewhere we have read the following striking analogy:

The shellfish on the sand of the seashore live without water while the tide is out, but they depend absolutely on its regular return. When one of them is tossed by the waves beyond the reach of the later tides, it dies. The weekly day of rest and worship is the spiritual tide that refreshes our inner lives and gives them strength to progress for another week, to be of the world and yet not of it. That nobler life has waned and died in many a man because he has given up his holy day. The temptations to the neglect of the Lord's Day are now very numerous. We need not enlarge on these temptations or even name them, but we do declare that to yield to these temptations is perilous to the spiritual life. The place for the Christian on the Lord's Day is in His Church. When a man is constantly or even frequently absent from his place in the Lord's house, you can depend on it that his heart is growing cold, even if his life is not becoming worldly or sinful. Remember the analogy of the shellfish.—Watchman-Examiner.
