CARRIZOZO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1932

PRICE $2.00 THE YEAR

P. T. A. Minstrels Dec. 9, 1932

Reporter: 1.-Coming out song, "Look Who's Here." They've decided that they have kept you in suspense long enough. 2.-"Gentlemen, be seated." If you are not a gentleman, you can get by sitting down. 3.-Musical reading. Dia Herringa and Mrs. R. E. Lemon. It may be a "lemón" but it surely will be sweet. 4.-Gags. Not the accepted gangland or underworld gags, by which one's mouth is kept closed. These gags will keep many, so many, mouths wide open in reverberating (boy, what a jaw-breaker) laughter. 5.- Song by Mrs. Frank Abel and Raymond Price. They are both very able and the price is right. 6.-More gags and they are the cat's whiskers. Inter. and Bones. 7.-A dawnce. Jeanne Branum and Mrs. W. W. Walker. 8.-Some What-a-Man jokes by Inter. and Tambo. Come with artificial respirators. 9.-Song. Mrs. Don English. It will take the sleeves off your vest. 10.-More jokes. Just a bit better than the best ones you've ever heard, or if you have never heard any, wash your ears and come on along. 11.-Song. Hale and Hearty. Oh, we mean Hale and Price. 12.-Jokes; this is getting to be a joke. But as long as they keep us laughing, we shouldn't kick. 13.-Song. Merle Burnett, the deep-voiced home-town boy who some day is going to the city and make 'em good. 14.-Oh Lord! Joketel 15.-Finale. Chorus, Dixie parody.

Between the acts, a dark, mysterious something is going to occur. Bring your body-guards. Nature unknown.

Part Two, Minstrels

Chorus.-Parody. They just can't seem to keep together. 2.- Skit. Mrs. McCammon and Miss Dia Herringa. It's supposed to be satirical. 3.-Selection. Male quartet. They are worth the price of admission themselves. 4.-Dialogue and dance. Hale and Johnson, assisted by Dia Herringa. 5.-Dialogue. Burke and Mendenhall. You've seen them together previously, don't fail to see them this time. 6.-Finis. Closing Chorus.

County Teachers' Convention

The Lincoln County Teachers' Convention is at Capitan, Wednesday, Nov. 17. I am Chairman of the Primary Section; I have arranged a program that is interesting and instructive to parents and friends of education, as well as teachers. I wish to take this opportunity to invite and urge you to attend our meeting. Let us all work together in the program of education. We have no asset more valuable than the youth of our land.-Mrs. S. H. Nickels.

Mr. and Mrs. L. P. McClintock will spend next Sunday at the home of Mac's sister, Mrs. Matt Mitchell in Duran.

ANCHO NOTES

The Woman's Club held a very interesting meeting Saturday at the home of Mrs. S. J. Pruett. In the absence of the president, the vice-president, Mrs. Bryan Hightower, presided. Roll call for the meeting was "Health Hints." Everyone responded-plenty of fresh, cool water, fresh air, exercise, correct eating and warm clothing were the main subjects discussed. After business, bridge was played, Mrs. Kile winning first prize and Mrs. Wilson the booby. Delicious refreshments of chili con carne, sandwiches, cake and coffee were served.

Miss Effie Dale spent a few days in Alamogordo this week. Mrs. T. J. Straley left Monday night for Arizona where she will spend the winter. She was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Walter Silvers. As a farewell courtesy, members of the Woman's club gave Mrs. Straley a handkerchief shower.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Drake and R. H. Peters, Mrs. Drake's father, have gone to Willington, Texas. After a brief visit with friends and relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Drake will return home. Mr. Peters will remain there for the winter.

Added Insult to Injury

On the morning after election day, Joe Vega went to turn out his chickens and to his surprise he found that out of a dozen, only one (the smallest one) made the exit. "It was hard to lose the election, but just think of some electioneer cleaning out your chicken coop," said Joe.

Attempted Hold-up

Robert Silva was here Monday from the Tucson mountains to attend the funeral of the late Preciliano Pino, and told of an attempted hold-up there Saturday night when a masked man went to the home of Mrs. Isidora Chavez, and when she opened the door she faced a gun and a demand for her money. Instead of complying with the request, she grappled with the intruder and managed to knock the weapon from his hand, which when it hit the floor was discharged and the culprit fled.

Attended Recital

E. M. Brickley of the First National Bank, sister, Miss Ella Brickley and Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Kelley attended a recital of the music department of the University of New Mexico at Albuquerque last Sunday afternoon, at the Alpha Chi Omega House, when Miss Ruth Brickley was presented in a piano recital, sponsored by Pat-Yat-Ya-Mo, with Miss Olive Lamb as soprano. Following is the program:

- Scherzo Scarlatti
Sonata, F Minor, Op. 2, No. 1
First Movement Beethoven
Miss Brickley
Come Unto Him Handel
Du bist wie eine Blume Litz
Villa nelle Del Acqua
Miss Lamb
Nocturne, Op. 54 No. 4 Greig
Valse Badinge, Op. 32 Liadlow

LOCAL MENTION

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Wells, former residents of White Oaks, but now located near Yeso, N. M., came in Monday and Tuesday, spending these days attending to business matters. Mr. and Mrs. Wells have many friends in Carrizozo and vicinity who are always glad to see them.

Mrs. C. A. McCammon and daughter Ardean, made a trip to El Paso last Sunday and returned, accompanied by Conductor C. A. McCammon, who is running between Carrizozo and El Paso.

Mrs. W. C. McDonald, daughter Mrs. H. B. Parker and granddaughter Miss Helen Rolland came in last Sunday from Hollywood, Cal., where Mrs. McDonald and Helen had been for several months. Mrs. McDonald is regaining her former health, and Mrs. Parker will visit Carrizozo friends for a short time.

Albert Kimbrell and Albino Guebara were successful deer hunters this week.

Pioneer Stockman Passes Away

Last Sunday morning at the hour of 9 o'clock, at the home of his son, Gregorio Pino, Preciliano Pino, 76, veteran stockman and one of Lincoln County's best citizens, passed away after a lingering illness of about two years' duration.

Mr. Pino was born at Los Jarales, Valencia County, in 1856 and moved to this county with his parents when only a boy of 15, settling in the Capitan country, what was then known as "Mugado." In 1883, he married Miss Donaciana Chavez, to which union three children were born, namely: Estefana, Gregorio and Carmelita.

In his early manhood, Mr. Pino worked as a cowboy for the Bar W and VV cattle outfits. When the gold boom was at its height at White Oaks in 1892, Mr. Pino moved there with his family, where his wife died, and in 1905 he entered into the stock business, which occupation he followed for the past thirty years. Mr. Pino knew Billy the Kid well.

Preciliano Pino was a man in every true sense of the word; a Christian gentleman, an upright citizen and a good neighbor. It has never been said that Preciliano Pino ever parted his lips to hurt the feelings of a fellowman. Such was his mode of living and death came the same way. Lincoln County mourns the passing of one of its best and most useful citizens.

Funeral services were held Monday morning at Santa Rita Church with Father Brady conducting the same, after which the many friends of the family accompanied the remains to their last resting place in the local cemetery. He leaves to mourn his death, his step-mother, Mrs. Maria Chavez Pino; a daughter, Mrs. Benigno Gallegos; a son, Gregorio Pino; a brother, Abel Pino; a large number of grandchildren and other relatives, to all of whom the sympathy of this community is extended.

A. D. Salcido of Tucumcari went thru here Wednesday enroute to Tularosa for a short visit with relatives. During his short stay here, he called on his brother-in-law, Joe Chavez, at this office.

The Bishop Killing

Last Friday afternoon at about 3:30, four men were on a hunting trip and in the vicinity of Tinnie, came into a clearing and saw an object moving some 300 yards from them and thinking it to be a deer, John Nelson, one of the party, fired two shots, killing Vernon Bishop. According to the testimony of Candido Chavez, deputy sheriff of San Patricio, the four men, Nelson, McLeod, Gibland and Gifford, made for their car without investigating what effect the shooting had.

He tracked the car to Escondida where he arrested two of the men and going on to Tinnie, found the remaining two, bringing the four to Carrizozo where they were questioned by officials. Nelson, it is alleged, admitted to the shooting, but said he could not see what the shot had done, and claimed it accidental. The men were released pending investigation.

Röbbery at Carrizozo Auto Company

At an early hour Wednesday morning, officer Lutz passed the Carrizozo Auto Co. and noticed that the light had been turned off and on further investigation, found a glass broken in one of the front doors of the office. He reached in, unlocked the door and scoured the office and finding no one, he phoned the sheriff, who came at the call and the investigation began, after being certain that the thieves had made their escape.

They broke open Bill Mendenhall's tool box and with the aid of a stilson wrench and other tools, they battered up the safe door so badly that with a little more effort, they would have had it opened, but evidently were scared away. They took the cash register which contained 50c in pennies and the officers found it in front of the Lyric theatre. They also took 6 auto tires and 2 truck tires and as a conveyance for these, they confiscated S. P. Detective Hodges' car which was standing in front of the place, which officers afterwards found standing in front of a residence on the east side of town. Finger prints were taken and sent to El Paso, where photographs were made and will be returned as soon as developed.

Wallace Merchant Dies

On Nov. 9, Wallace Merchant, father of the Merchant brothers, J. L. and L. D., ranchers of the Capitan country, died at his home in Pilot Point, Texas. The funeral was held on Armistice Day and was attended by a large gathering of friends from all parts of the country surrounding his home town. His sons mentioned above, attended the funeral and returned home Monday.

An Appreciation

I wish to take this opportunity to express my sincere thanks to the citizens of Lincoln County and to all of my friends for the confidence placed in me at the polls and I will endeavor to carry the things which are expected of me. Again I wish to thank each and every one.

Yours respectfully, Ernest Key.

AUTOCRAT OF THE DAY

Come, gallant bird! Come, emperor of your kind,
And in your prostrate fortunes we shall find
The juiciest joys that ever palate felt,
Most fragrant odors that e'er nostril smelt!
And, in the gravy of thy soul, we'll sense
The fullness of misfortune's recompense—
For though you die, give all you have to give,
You die, that we, your worshippers may live!

GIVING THANKS IN DARK DAYS OF REVOLUTION

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S Thanksgiving day proclamation at Valley Forge took great pains to put before the soldiers "the tremendous reason for this most special acknowledgment of the divine goodness." We of today, looking back with a full knowledge of the great trials and sufferings placed upon the Continental army in that winter of misery at Valley Forge, may perhaps wonder at the faith thus unfolded. There is, however, one fact which we, accustomed to observe the last Thursday of November as Thanksgiving day, should not overlook. It is Thanksgiving day as we know it, with a definite place upon our calendar, did not come into existence until 1863. Thanksgiving day originated with the Pilgrims, who set aside a day for thanksgiving at Plymouth immediately after their first harvest, in 1621. The Massachusetts Bay colony first observed such a day in 1630 and frequently thereafter until 1650, when it became an annual festival in that colony. Connecticut also had a similar festival annually from 1647 on ward. Usually these days for thanks giving followed the harvest, and were set aside primarily to give thanks to the Lord for the blessings he had bestowed upon the Colonists. During the Revolution, the Continental congress appointed one or more days for thanksgiving each year, except in 1777, when not even a congressman could find any blessings to point out to his constituents as reason for rejoicing. These Revolutionary Thanksgiving days usually were founded upon some military success and fortune smiled wanly, indeed, upon the Continental army in 1777—the winter of despair at Valley Forge.

Valley Forge Observation.

Washington's Thanksgiving day proclamation at Valley Forge came after the snows and the hunger and the sufferings of that terrible winter of 1777-78 had departed and spring smiled again upon the fertile valleys of Pennsylvania. The occasion was the entrance of France into the war as an ally of the Colonies. The Valley Forge Thanksgiving May, 1778, was a military celebration, with the chaplain of brigade directed "to offer up thanks and deliver a discourse suitable to the occasion." Then there was cannon fire and huzzas, and cries of "Long Live the King of France!" "Long Live the Friendly European Powers!" and finally a general running fire and the huzzas, "The American States!"

Celebrations of Peace.

Another special Thanksgiving day was ordered by General Washington at Newburgh on the Hudson, April 19, 1783, eight years to the day from the shot fired at Lexington. Ultimate peace had been assured ever since the surrender of Cornwallis, but the question had become alarmingly acute ever since: How was it possible to keep even a remnant of the army alive to receive the treaty of peace? Six months more of this starvation, this utter discouragement as to the use of it all—the harassed general dared not think of what his poor boys might be driven to do to end it all.

The joy with which the information was at last received from Sir Guy Carleton that a cessation of hostilities was announced can scarcely be imagined. Immediately, the commander in chief issued his proclamation and directed that a public religious service, and thanksgiving should take place on the same evening, April 19: This was probably the happiest Thanksgiving America has ever experienced, writes Estelle Harris in the Bicentennial News, published by the Alexandria, Va., Gazette in co-operation with the United States commission for the celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of Washington's birth. A country gained glory and honor, and home around the bend of the road. December 11, 1783, the gloriously solemn day appointed by congress, Dr. John Rogers preached his famous sermon, announcing . . . "We have taken our place among the nations and empires of the earth."

Presidential Proclamation.

The first Presidential Thanksgiving proclamation named November 26, 1789. As far as the people were concerned, they could join in with any and all services, for they felt the nation was saved again now that the great Washington was at the helm. As for Father George himself, he was entirely too busy to write much in that diary of his, that is such a precious legacy to his people. Here is all he says: "November 20. Being the day appointed for a Thanksgiving, I went to St. Paul's chapel, though it was most inclement and stormy—but few people at church." The signing of the confederation articles was the especial occasion.

Quelling the insurrection in Pennsylvania was again a deliverance from danger, and cause for great rejoicing on the part of all the people, and a proclamation was made, appointing a day of thanksgiving, for the general welfare and stable condition of the Union. This was issued from Independence hall, and February 19, 1795, was thus set apart, on which day the nation was "with devout reverence and affectionate gratitude, to return thanks for its national blessings and implore their continuance." As with all of George Washington's papers, this proclamation abounds in patriotism and counsel of the highest order, both as worthy of emulation today as yesterday.

Much Reason for Thanks. In looking back to these special Thanksgiving days of early American history, no patriotic heart can help feeling the beauty and appropriateness of these gatherings. Also, the part they played in keeping the little nation as one ideal family, until it could walk alone, the American fathers holding before it the truths on which the foundation rests, liberty, equality, integrity. For whatever else has or has not happened, the foundation of this nation still rests securely and there is much to be thankful for on Thanksgiving day. The stars have not faltered in their course and freedom still reigns. The good earth has blossomed and fruited for her overlord, man, as in 1607 and 1776, and now that autumn has marked the finish of her harvest for this year, old earth is drawing back her sap, her chlorophyll and her chemicals into her storeroom, to be covered with snowy blankets instead of green grass—conserving and renewing all her power, making ready for next summer's spread of glory.

Spiritual Significance

The Thanksgiving dinner may be, as it often has been, hallowed, and take on a sacramental character. If it is not more than a mere feast it is wholly out of keeping with the true spirit of the day, which is one of profound spiritual significance, emphasizing as it does the relation between God and man. It is possible to spiritualize the most commonplace, and even material things, as one meal in "the upper room" was spiritualized twenty centuries ago, and has survived both as a sacrifice and a thanksgiving.—Philadelphia Ledger.

First Proclamation

The first Thanksgiving day proclamation ever issued by a President was signed by George Washington, in 1789. The original is said to be in the possession of Rev. J. W. Wellman, who inherited it from his grandfather, William Ripley, of Cornhill, N. H.

Southwestern Briefs

There were 1,194 men employed on federal aid road and bridge construction work in New Mexico during September.

Mrs. Elizabeth M. Gregory of Santa Fe died as the result of injuries received in an auto accident seven miles south of Santa Fe on the Lamy highway.

The 1933 automobile license plates for New Mexico are being mailed by parcel post to all the distributors this year instead of being shipped by truck as has been the custom in the past.

John G. Wooten, a prospector, has reported discovery of a gold bearing vein 25 miles west of Hillsdale, Arizona. He said assays showed the ore was worth from $20.50 to $150 a ton.

Farmers on the Storrie Project in New Mexico are shipping their sugar beets to Swink, Colo. The acreage of beets on the project this year was not large, but the general yield was good.

Jose Ortiz y Pino of Kentucky, N. M., filed a petition signed by residents of the community served by the Santa Fe railroad protesting against the railway application to close the agency at Kennedy.

The city of Albuquerque will receive a gift of $200,000 for a municipal auditorium to be known as the "Albuquerque Public Forum" under the terms of the will of Nell B. Field, attorney, who died recently.

The Texas company, whose wholesale plant in Lower Miami, Arizona, was destroyed by fire September 16, will build a new plant adjoining the Southern Pacific Company's railroad near Grover canyon within the near future.

The New Mexico state corporation commission cancelled the blue sky permits of the following companies: The United Royalties, Inc., of Albuquerque; Your Food Stores, Inc., of Santa Fe, and the Albuquerque and Santa Fe Oil Company.

New Mexico growers of pinto beans, who have government loans maturing November 30, will be allowed to place beans in storage as collateral until they are marketed. Dallas will be a concentration point for storage if it is found advisable to market beans from there.

Falling 2,700 feet when the cage in which they were working was torn through by a timber. Hazen Brown, 21, well known in the Globe-Miami, Ariz., district, as a prize fighter, and Tom Dominguez, 38, were killed instantly in an accident at the Magma mine in Superior.

A. H. Kneale, superintendent of the Pima Indian reservation with headquarters at Sacaton, Arizona, announced the United States Indian service was considering plans for expenditure of approximately $600,000 in development of 23,000 acres of fertile land in the San Carlos project.

C. C. Cresser, 50-year-old mining man who had been employed on the Apache Maid property of D. M. Loscy in the Jersey Lily district, lost his life when the truck he was driving to the mine from Prescott, Arizona, got out of control and rolled over and down a canyon side a distance of 300 feet.

Warrants have been drawn by Mrs. Ana Frohmler, Arizona state auditor, for the second quarterly apportionment of state school funds amounting to $493,456.72. The amount apportioned to the counties includes: Cochise, $48,762.25; Pima, $61,763.37; Santa Cruz, $11,803; Yavapai, $40,193.57; and Maricopa, $187,737.14.

The New Mexico state corporation commission granted charters to the following companies: The Sanolind Oil and Gas Company of Delaware with authorized capital stock of $50,000,000. The company will maintain headquarters at Santa Fe and with J. O. Seib as legal agent. The Dudley Stone Products Company, Inc., of Texas with authorized capital of $100,000. The Liberty club of Albuquerque, a no stockholders liability benevolent and charitable organization. The incorporators are Alfred Naunes, Max Gutierrez, J. T. Sanchez, J. B. Zamora and Ed Milligan, all of Albuquerque.

Commercial companies operating private cars in Arizona will pay the state a tax of $90,510.99 for 1932 according to a statement issued by the tax commission. The cars owned by the companies are valued at $2,277,097 and the tax has been computed on the average tax rate for all purposes in Arizona which is $3.75 per each $100 of assessed valuation. The tax will be collected by the state treasurer. Two companies pay the bulk of the tax or approximately $33,000. They are the Pacific Fruit Express and the Pullman Company. In all, 105 companies will pay the tax. The next four highest taxpayers on private cars are the General American Tank Car Company, the Texas Company, the Union Oil Company of California, and the Union Tank Car Company. Most of the companies are paying taxes less than $50.

Arizona has expended more than $58,000,000 in construction, betterment and maintenance of its highways since statehood.

County school boards in New Mexico have broad powers in awarding school bus contracts and are not bound to accept the lowest bid on transportation contracts, the state supreme court held in affirming judgment of the district court of Chaves county in the suit of Allen Doyle versus V. H. Waldrop, E. L. Williams and the Chaves county board of education.

INDIAN NOT GIVEN HIS DESERVED DUE

World Indebted to Red Man for Many Things.

It is the digging down in ancient rubbish heaps, unearthing unintentional records, that marks the student of archeology, and not the collecting of arrowheads and stone axes and cracked pottery, says Dr. Carl E. Guthe, associate director of the museum of anthropology at the University of Michigan.

Doctor Guthe is a great booster for the first "reds" in American history. He says they have made as great contributions to our civilization as have any of the ancient peoples who are receiving most of the credit. He explains that "more than one-half of our farm products are what the Indians gave us—not in a wild form but already domesticated. The greatest of these farm gifts are corn, potatoes and long staple cotton."

He said they also gave us tomatoes, beans, squashes, artichokes, tobacco, cocoa, quinine and cocaine. This is only a part of the list of farm and forest gifts the Indians made to modern civilization, Doctor Guthe says, but the products named show that the red men made most important contributions to our modern life.

"The Indian has not been given the credit that is his due for his great contributions to civilization. But he has given our modern life as much as have any of the other ancient peoples, such as Egyptians, Hebrews, Greeks, Romans and others. All have contributed their part to make up the complex life which we call civilization. Heretofore, the Indian's contribution has simply been taken as a matter of course, and no credit given. We want to change the books in this respect."

"And the red man was wise in another way, where again he has not been credited by the men who write the textbooks and histories. When the early settlers came rolling over the Alleghenies to populate the rich Mississippi valley, they are said to have found a vast wilderness. This is not altogether true. What they found were vast forests, but all through them were trails and paths made and used by the Indians. These natives knew where they wanted to go, and they found the best trails for this travel. They knew the salt licks, the best places for village sites, the finest hunting grounds."

"The early white settlers used these trails, and later many of them were transformed into main highways. Some of our greatest national roads follow the Indian highway builders. For example, a large part of the Santa Fe trail and the main highway between Detroit and Chicago is the old paths used by the Sauk warriors long before Miles Standish and John Smith were born."

Doctor Guthe holds that the Indians came to North America from somewhere in Asia. They were a crude lot when they arrived, but worked out their own civilization, until it reached a very high point. "The Indians, according to the best evidence we can locate, came from Asia over Bering straits," the Michigan professor said, starting their trek from 10,000 to 20,000 years ago. They came in little groups, all simple people without much civilization. They were entirely independent of the old cultures of both Europe and Asia, working out their high state of living for themselves in their new homes.

"This native civilization reached its highest form in Central America in what are now Guatemala and Yucatan. From there it spread north and south, reaching its lowest stages on the northern and southern fringes of inhabited sections of those cold wildernesses. This first American civilization was all dependent on agriculture, which began over here about 4000 B. C. This sort of life compelled the people to live for a time in one place, thus starting village life."

Trail for "Hikers"

As conceived by its proponents and already partly realized, the Appalachian trail is a footpath for hikers in the Appalachian mountains, extending from Maine to Georgia, a distance of some 1,800 miles. To the end of 1929 approximately 500 miles of this trail have been constructed, for the most part in New England, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Virginia. The trail shuns automobile roads and lowlands, the purpose being to provide access to mountains and wild country of the eastern highlands for tramping, camping and outdoor recreation. Its route is the crest line of the Appalachian system, providing a skyline trail over mountain summits wherever the outlooks warrant and the ground permits the climb.

Marconi Not First?

Marconi is famous as the inventor of the radio and the discoverer of the wireless waves that make it possible. Actually, the man who did much of the spade work, and, indeed, sent the first wireless message, was Sir Oliver Lodge. But Marconi's results were published first and beat Sir Oliver by a few hours.—London Answers.

BEGINNING THE STORY, FOR NEW READERS

Roberta Antrim, beautiful Eastern society girl, who lives with her uncle, William B. Latham, known as "Crooked Bill" because of his amusing slyness, receives a telegram from Jaime Miguel Higuera, owner of the Rancho Valle Verde, in Texas, informing her her Uncle Tom Antrim has died a violent death. At the advice of Glenn Hackett, who is in love with her, Roberta plans to go to Texas to protect her interests, since she is her uncle's sole heir to thousands of sheep which Antrim had impulsively driven to graze on land controlled by Don Jaime. Don Jaime, unmarried and romantic, half Spanish and half Irish, is attracted to Roberta's picture in a magazine. Antrim is warned to take his sheep off Don Jaime's ranch at once. Antrim ambushes Don Jaime. The young ranch owner is wounded and Tom Antrim killed. On his body are found instructions to notify Miss Roberta Antrim in the event of his death. Another Higuera telegram tells Roberta her uncle was killed by Jim Higgins (Don Jaime's anglicized name). Latham tells her his fortune is in danger, and she decides to go to Texas to get Antrim's estate, to save it. Don Jaime invites Mrs. Ganby, his nurse, and her crippled son Bobby, to stay at his ranch with the idea of preserving the properties if Roberta, as he hopes, visits the ranch. "Crooked Bill" tells his niece believe he has lost his fortune, furthering a scheme he hopes will forward Hackett's courtship. Hackett, despite misgivings, "plays up" to Uncle Bill's scheme for inducing Roberta in his favor. Don Jaime, actuated chiefly by his romantic interest in the pictured Roberta, allows the Antrim sheep to continue to graze on his ranch.

CHAPTER V—Continued

"I know you're not, dear Uncle Bill. You're a perfectly good old sport. I have just had a long telegram from my lawyer in Los Algodones, Texas. He informs me that the affairs of Uncle Tom's estate are in excellent shape and that he died leaving even more sheep than was at first suspected. There are about ten thousand lambs that will soon be ready for market and which should bring ten dollars a head and there are upwards of a hundred thousand pounds of excellent wool worth thirty cents a pound—why, it would seem that Uncle Tom's estate will run close to half a million dollars. We should worry and grow wrinkles and gray hair, darling."

"The butler announced dinner—and between the fish and the roast, as per agreement, Glenn Hackett commenced to question Crooked Bill admittively as to the exact nature of his operations in the market. Roberta noted a grim little smile playing across Hackett's Puritanical face from time to time, so presently, with her customary impulsiveness, she asked him to share the joke with them."

"It's on your Uncle Bill," he replied. "It is my duty to inform you, Bobby, that your Uncle Bill is an antediluvian idiot who can't see the woods for the trees. If he could he'd see a path out of this mess he's in—a path as wide as the boardwalk at Atlantic City. Let us eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow Uncle Bill will no longer be a financial corpse. He will have commenced his resurrection."

"How are you going to save Uncle Bill?" Roberta demanded. Hackett proceeded to outline to her, patiently and in words of one syllable, his plan for the salvation of Crooked Bill.

"I understand perfectly, Glenn," Roberta said when at last he finished. "You're a wonderful, wonderful friend."

"The plan is vetoed," Crooked Bill declared virtuously. "Friendship will be up under anything except the endorsement of notes or the swift heavy touch."

"But, Uncle Bill— Uncle Bill raised his leonine head and his cold, steel-gray eyes flickered murderously at her. "There will be no further discussion of this unpleasant subject," he informed her coldly.

When Crooked Bill looked and spoke in that tone of voice, Roberta knew from experience that obedience was incumbent upon her. Her eyes filled with tears; in a tremulous voice she begged to be excused and withdrew.

Crooked Bill's wild eyebrows went up as the girl left the room. "She's as big a crook as I am," he declared proudly. "She isn't at all distressed. She's just pulling the old stuff—not on me this time, but on you, my boy. She expects you to follow her out and comfort her. Do not disappoint her. Forward!"

Thoroughly disgusted he returned to the house. He had a presentiment that Fate was, in a manner of speaking, stacking the cards against him. Next morning Crooked Bill caught an early train to the city, explaining that the sooner he swept up the fragments of his scattered fortunes the better for all concerned.

Roberta motored in a little later and went at once to Glenn Hackett's office, where he prepared and she signed a formal assignment of all of her right, title and interest in and to her Uncle Tom's estate to Hackett, for and in consideration of certain moneys to be advanced to her by Hackett.

"Now, then, Roberta," Hackett said when the document was signed, "you understand that this is a business deal from first to last. Not a speck of sentiment in it so far as I am concerned. While you have given me security for the funds I am to advance, it may be that I will be called upon to advance a sum in excess of the total value of your Uncle Tom's estate. Consequently, it is of the utmost importance that the estate should be administered wisely and conserved. I have looked up your lawyer at Los Algodones, Don Prudencio Alviso, and he appears to have an excellent record for probity but is a poor business man. If I—"

"He assures me Don Jaime Miguel Higuera is most reliable and is doing all that anybody can do to conserve the estate," Roberta hastened to assure Hackett.

"I know. But the thought occurs to me: Why is Don Jaime Miguel Higuera taking all this trouble? What do you mean to him? He is a cattleman, so why should he bother with your sheep? My dear Bobby, I am highly suspicious of that fellow."

Bobby's lip drooped. She had not thought of Don Jaime in that light before, and her common sense warned her that there might be more than a modicum of truth in Hackett's suspicions. He saw the doubt he had planted burgeoning, and hastened to aid its growth.

"As I told you before, it is impossible for me to go to Texas to look after your affairs, Bobby. Your unfortunate uncle dare not leave New York at this time either. His creditors might think he was endeavoring to flee the country. Consequently, I think it is of the utmost importance that you go to Los Algodones immediately and investigate everything thoroughly."

"But, Glenn, I don't know a thing about business, and I'm afraid it's too big an order."

"I disagree with you. You have a feminine intuition of the highest degree of development. If you go there, get acquainted with your lawyer and Don Jaime and, after a few weeks, discover that you have absolutely no mental reservations regarding either or both, I shall think it quite safe to leave your affairs in their hands for the present, at least."

This adroit speech flattered Roberta, since it was corroborating a belief she had always entertained, i. e., that she could look through men as if they were glass. Her respect for Hackett's intelligence and ability increased at once. "I'll go to Los Algodones just as soon as I can get ready," she declared.

"That's fine, Roberta." He escorted her to the elevator and upon returning to his office pressed a buzzer three times, whereupon his secretary ushered in to him from an adjoining room no less a person than Crooked Bill.

"Well, have you sold her the idea that she should go to Los Algodones?" he demanded of the lawyer.

"I have. She promised me she would go as soon as she could get ready."

Crooked Bill rubbed his hands pleasantly. Hackett handed him the assignment which Roberta had just given him, and Crooked Bill set fire to it and dropped it into Hackett's metal waste basket.

"Have you confidence in this Jaime Higuera, Mr. Latham?" Hackett queried.

"How do I know? He's a perfect stranger to me. However, his father and grandfather were both may caballeros to the nth degree and never cared enough about money to get it by crooked or unfair means. And I'm a great believer in heredity. I have a strong suspicion that Don Jaime is equipped with a complete set of Hibernian inner works, and I have never known a highly courageous man who was a weak man. The crooks of this world are recruited from the weaklings, my boy. However, why should I worry about a smear of sheep? I don't care two hoots in a hollow if they all starve to death. I'm solely interested in promoting for Roberta a journey to Los Algodones, in order that she may see the other side of the picture. Don Jaime is unmarried (I've discovered that) and if he fails to fall in love with Roberta he's fit for treason, stratagems and spoils. If she doesn't quarrel with him about that, they're bound to fall out over business, because no man ever managed a woman's business affairs without discovering in the long run that he had performed a thoroughly thankless task."

"I wish I didn't have to mix in her affairs. I dislike deception—even innocent deception, Mr. Latham."

"You ungrateful pup! Why, I've placed Bobby under a tremendous obligation to you and made it possible for you two to share a delightful secret in common—all of which is equivalent to scattering six inches of tanbark on the hard, macadamized road of true love. By pretending to lose my fortune I drive off about 90 per cent of your competitors and shoo Bobby out of her set, in which she might find other competitors for you. As a promoter I think I'm just about the bee's knees myself."

"But you're giving Don Jaime a free field."

"And why not? He's short and fat, weighing about two hundred pounds. If he isn't, the scientists are all wrong about heredity."

"I have known tall, graceful and extremely charming Irishmen, Mr. Latham!"

"But the Spanish blood predominates in Higuera. At least it did in his father. They were originally Asturians, and Asturians are all medium-sized and stocky. But to return to Don Jaime. In all probability he takes a bath after the fall round-up and has never seen a bathtub except in a hotel. He will have a luxuriant, Niagara falls type of black mustache and use perfume. He will talk with a strong Spanish accent and four-fifths of his life is undoubtedly spent in his shirt-sleeves. He's just a husky Border cowboy, I tell you. Do you see Bobby falling for a man like that?"

stick at Hackett. "Remember, your battle-cry is 'On to Texas!'"

CHAPTER VI

Roberta shopped for two weeks, spent another two weeks on a houseboat party among the Thousand Islands, and departed for Los Algodones.

"Where shall I address you, Bobby?" Crooked Bill queried. "At the Mansion house, in Los Algodones?"

"No, dear. Address me in care of Don Jaime Miguel Higuera."

"What?" Crooked Bill started as if he were stung. "You going to put up at the Higuera hacienda? Why—why, the man's a bachelor?"

"How do you know?"

"I've been making inquiries about him."

"Well, his housekeeper, a Mrs. Ganby, has written me, inviting me to be his guest. Don Jaime was ill at the time and couldn't write me personally, but he did write, at the bottom of Mrs. Ganby's letter, 'Official: J. M. H. Mrs. Ganby says they have a lovely place and that I'll be much more comfortable at the Rancho Valle Verde than at any hotel in that country.'"

Crooked Bill was assailed by the feeling that, in some inexplicable way, his well-laid plans were doomed to go awry. "You'll write me frequently and tell me all about it, won't you, honey?"

Roberta promised and kissed him good-by.

Five days later she and Mignon, her maid, with three huge trunks and five pieces of hand baggage, were deposited on a lonely, sun-warped platform at the little flag station of Valle Verde.

"So this," said Roberta, looking around her after the train had resumed its journey, "is Texas. Good gracious, Mignon, what is that noise?"

"It sounds like a zoo at feeding time," said Mignon apprehensively, and looked behind her. "Oh, it's cattle," she added, relieved.

A quarter of a mile out on the plain, in a compact mass, a huge herd of white-faced cattle were milling slowly and bellowing continuously.

"Why, there must be thousands of them!" Roberta gasped, and was grateful that the station platform, which was at least five feet off the ground, appeared to offer reasonable sanctuary from attack.

From around the corner of the station a man appeared, hat in hand. "Miss Antrim?" he queried.

"Yes, indeed," said Roberta gratefully, and waited for him to name himself.

"I'm Bill Dingle, your Uncle Tom's general manager. I got your letter telling me you'd arrive today and instructed me to meet you at the Higuera rancho tomorrow."

"Who warned you?"

"Don Jaime Higuera."

"Indeed, why, I had no idea Don Jaime Higuera was such a blood-thirsty man! Is the trouble between you something that cannot be rectified? I should be happy to act as peacemaker, Mr. Dingle."

Bill Dingle, remembering his offenses, was honest enough to declare that the trouble could not be rectified and added something about the easiest way out of trouble being to go around it. Then he was silent for quite a while, meanwhile scuffing his toe and gazing a bit helplessly around the horizon. Finally he said: "I reckon you didn't think as much of your Uncle Tom as he used to let on you did. Don't you feel no resentment agin the man that murdered him?"

"Not the slightest. From all that we can learn, officially, Uncle Tom was not murdered. The sheriff of this county wrote that Uncle Tom made the mistake of taking in too much territory, which is a fatal error and tantamount to suicide. It seems he ambushed Jim Higgins and shot him three times. Then Higgins got under cover and stalked Uncle Tom and killed him. I am informed that he didn't know the identity of his assailant until he saw the body."

"That's the story, but it ain't true! This killer ordered your Uncle Tom to quit grazin' his sheep on the free range or he'd kill him. A warnin' a warnin' in this country, an' if a feller don't choose to obey it he's justified in arguin' the matter in the smoke the first time him an' the warnin' person meet up. Your uncle didn't see no valid reason why he should have his liberty restricted by a private citizen. He considered his life in danger, so when they met up on the range it was a case of who could get into action quickest. It was a case of an old man agin a young man, an' the young man won as usual. But your Uncle Tom never tried to kill nobody. He just naturally defended his own life an' failed to do a good job. An', of course, a sheepman ain't in good standin' in a cattle country. Personally, I'm only a hired man, but I got my private opinions, an' I'm here to say it just naturally don't look right for you to be the guest of—"

Mr. Dingle raised his glance from the station platform and gazed across toward the approaching herd of cattle. He appeared alert, poised for flight; whatever had been in his mind to say remained unsaid, and he was profoundly interested in a horseman who was galloping around the flank of the herd, evidently with the intention of passing on in front of it.

"I reckon I'll be moseyin' along, ma'am," said Mr. Dingle. "We can discuss our business when you come to the Antrim ranch."

The horseman had cleared the herd and was coming on at an easy gallop; behind him a boy on a small pinto pony labored to keep up.

"There's the man that killed your Uncle Tom," Mr. Dingle almost hissed. "I reckon I don't care to meet that hombre until I can choose the time and place myself." And without standing upon the order of his going Mr. Dingle went—in a flying leap off the station platform. He lit running and continued on to a disreputable old automobile; in an incredibly short space of time he was on his way home.

The horseman, observing Mr. Dingle's departure, spurred his mount to a furious gallop; apparently it was his intention to intercept the latter as he fled down the dusty road that ran parallel with the tracks.

"He's going to shoot," Mignon screamed. "Oh, the brute!"

Six pistol shots rang out and Roberta saw little puffs of dust leap up beside Dingle's right rear tire. A pause of about two seconds—then six more shots and six more puffs of dust beside the same tire. Then the horseman pulled up, turned and jogged quietly up to the station. He dismounted a little stiffly, dropped the reins over his horse's head, and advanced limping to the station platform, upon which he climbed laboriously and disappeared into the station.

"This is exactly like the movies," Mignon quavered. "It's wonderful. So thrilling! Oh, I'm so glad you brought me with you, Miss Roberta!"

"When that man emerges you'll experience some more thrills," Roberta warned her maid. "I'm going to tell him some things about himself he has not, in all probability, been told before."

"Do be careful, Miss Roberta. He's so desperate—"

"I'll reduce him to pulp. I'm not afraid of his guns. I intend to protect my foreman. That is the duty of an employer. We can testify to his effort to kill Mr. Dingle. I shall have him arrested and tried for attempt to commit murder. The blood-thirsty wretch!"

This Mother Had Problem
As a rule, milk is about the best food for children, but there are times when they are much better off without it. It should always be left off when children show by feverish, fretful or cross spells, by bad breath, coated tongue, sallow skin, indigestion, biliousness, etc., that their stomach and bowels are out of order.
In cases like this, California Fig Syrup never fails to work wonders, by the quick and gentle way it removes all the souring waste which is causing the trouble, regulates the stomach and bowels and gives these organs tone and strength so they continue to act normally of their own accord. Children love its rich, fruity flavor and it's purely vegetable and harmless, even for babies.
Millions of mothers have proved its merit and reliability in over 60 years of steadily increasing use. A Western mother, Mrs. May Sweeney, Montrose, California, says: "My little girl, Edna's, tendency to constipation was a problem to me until I began giving her California Fig Syrup. It helped her right away and soon her stomach and bowels were acting perfectly. Since then I've never had to have any advice about her bowels. I have also used California Fig Syrup with my little boy, with equal success."
To be sure of getting the genuine, which physicians endorse, always ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name.

"Individualism" in Ants and Mankind Compared

Social evolution among ants stretches back at least one hundred million years, while human society could hardly be said to have existed two million years ago. Thus human society is a much more recent evolution, and we would expect the individual human to exhibit a greater degree of individualistic behavior compared to social behavior than in the case of the individual ant. Human society has had to build mechanisms for controlling prevalent anti-social tendencies. We all undergo rigid training through the activities of parents, teachers, and other ers which tend to stimulate the social responses and suppress or redirect the anti-social responses. Even after we reach adulthood, we have need of policemen, lawyers, governments, and ministers to force or persuade us to conform to the social pattern. Ants do not need such mechanisms, for they are born perfectly socialized. They do not need to be taught or persuaded or forced to react socially, for their anti-social tendencies were eliminated long ago through natural selection.—Boston Herald.

Lantern Decorations
The vogue for lanterns as house decorations, spread from France to England early in the Eighteenth century. They were made of glass with frames of copper, brass, or walnut, and were most frequently used as ceiling fixtures. Aside from their practical qualities, they were highly decorative, and gave added interest to the rooms in which they were used.

The President's Special

Early as the hour was, 5:40 Monday morning, several Carrizozo Republicans met the President's Special when it pulled in at the local station. The main train was preceded by a pilot train. Then came the big special with nine coaches, and the completeness of this caravan would be impossible to describe, so perfect was the entire make-up of the same. One car was a fully equipped Western Union Telegraph office then came the dining cars, in the rear of which was the one which attracted the most attention.

This was the lounging car. The windows reached to the height of the entire body of the coach and the heavy steel ribs which held the large plate glass together, were made as narrow as possible so as to preserve the most of light effects; in fact it was a moving living room much like may be seen in most American homes with all modern conveniences. Where it came from and from whom it was donated, we do not know, but on the right hand side of the coach stood a bouquet of unusual size containing flowers of enormous magnitude and arrayed with beauty beyond compare.

The President's private secretary appeared on the platform of the President's sleeping car and courteously conversed with the visitors, in which he described the trip and gave us all information as to when important points would be reached and the hour the train would arrive at Washington, and thanked us for the early call.

The little party of loyal Republicans who left their beds at that early hour, were well repaid for their visit and those who were not present missed something they might well have treasured in the future—a look at the President's train announces that a special season on does and antlerless deer on a restricted area 15 miles southeast of Alamogordo has been authorized by the State Game Commission to relieve a congested over-stocked condition there.

The State Game

The season will be from Dec. 1 to Dec. 15 and applications for permits will be received at the office of the State Game Department up to Nov. 22. Permits will be issued to the first seven hundred persons filing applications. If seven hundred applications are not received by Nov. 22, permits will be issued thereafter until that number is reached. Only 700 permits will be issued, and these to holders of regular 1932 hunting licenses only. The permittees will be authorized to enter the area in 3 separate groups for a period of 5 days each. The date each permittee may hunt will be specified upon the permit. Where parties are going together the applications should so specify. The first group will enter the area on Dec. 1 and check out not later than Dec. 5. The second group may enter on Dec. 6 and check out not later than Dec. 10. The third group may check in on Dec. 10 and must check out not later than December 15.

Hunters will be required to check in to the west side of Alamogordo, to the north side at the Woods' Ranch and to the south side to the forks of the road to Shelton's Ranch.

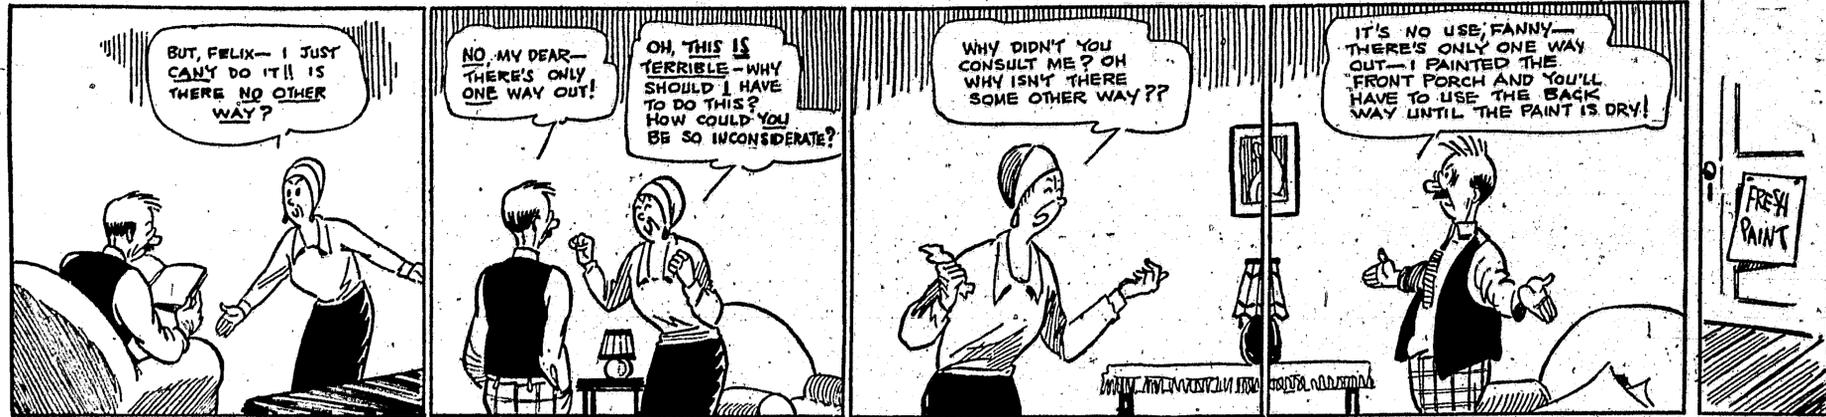

Deer with antlers must not be killed, as a sufficient number of bucks will have been removed during the regular season. No turkey may be killed.

No charges for the permit will be made, but applicant must hold a regular 1932 hunting license. Only persons actually intending to go there to hunt should apply, and it will be expected that everyone to whom a permit is issued will go and get a deer.

ROASTS 'EM IN PARIS

First Lady—You shouldn't have reproved those two flappers in one another's presence.
Second Lady—I always roast chickens in pairs.

HE KNEW WHAT TO DO

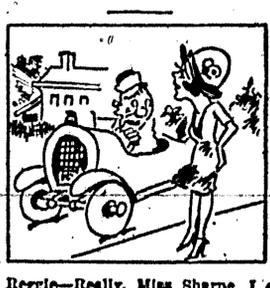

"When the meek inherit the earth, what do you think they'll do?"
"I know what they'll have to do."
"Add what's that?"
"Get the fiercest man they can find to run it."

NO DOUBT

Monk—I'm going into the shoe shining business.
Snake—More monkey-shines, eh?

WHEEL TRACKS WON'T DO

Reggie—Really, Miss Sharpe, I expect to make footprints on the sands of time.
Miss S.—You won't make them by riding in an automobile, Mr. Rapp.

Doctors Give Creosote For Dangerous Coughs

For many years our best doctors have prescribed creosote in some form for coughs, colds and bronchitis, knowing how dangerous it is to let them hang on.

Creosolium with creosote and six other highly important medicinal elements, quickly and effectively stops all coughs and colds that otherwise might lead to serious trouble.

Creosolium is powerful in the treatment of all colds and coughs no matter how long standing, yet it is absolutely harmless and is pleasant and easy to take.

Your own druggist guarantees Creosolium by refunding your money if you are not relieved after taking Creosolium as directed. Beware the cough or cold that hangs on. Always keep Creosolium on hand for instant use. (adv.)

Magnificent Rio

A Street Vendor of Rio.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service. RIO DE JANEIRO, which recently has been disturbed by political strife involving several Brazilian states, basks on the golden sands almost astride the Tropic of Capricorn.

To enter this great world port you walk down the gangplank and straight out into a formal garden with a big bronze fountain. This leads off into a Fifth-avenue-like boulevard, which in turn flows into a wide, world-famous beach drive, past embassies, clubs, and palms and geometric gardens.

Out in the bay, the startling profiles of singular peaks rise in their bulk like elephants sitting in grotesque pose. They include the much-photographed Sugar Loaf, and the oddly-shaped Corcovado, or Hunchback.

Rising fully 1,200 feet and almost straight out of the sea, Sugar Loaf is easily Rio's outstanding landmark. Incoming air pilots, if half lost in fog or rain, hail its familiar outlines with grunts of relief.

Look at this spectacular city from Sugar Loaf, Hunchback, or any high angle, and you see how smoothly in mass, form, and color it harmonizes with the shape and shades of its terrestrial environment.

You observe that it is cohesive, one work of art; yet it is not a solid city, with a checkerboard pattern of blocks and squares squeezed into rigid "city limits," like Leipzig or Indianapolis.

Something easy, loose, and fluent in its multicolored distribution makes you feel that Rio is simply flowing down the mountains about it in graceful architectural streams, then coming to rest in quiet valleys and on sandy beaches.

Fly over it and its marvels multiply; it has so many parts, sections, and suburbs; and in its pattern, from the sky, it looks like a great paint-spotted easel of blue water, yellow sand, green trees, red roofs, pink and blue walls. Think of all these colored parts turning round and round, like the odd-formed bits of colored glass in an old-fashioned kaleidoscope.

Back to earth, on the famous Avenida Rio Branco, the Unter den Linden or Fifth Avenue of Rio de Janeiro, you meet the city at its best; also, familiar big-town sights, sounds, and smells make you feel normal here and much at home.

New York papers, any popular North American magazine, chewing gum from Chicago, your own favorite brand of safety razor, cigarettes, fountain pen, writing-or-talking machine, sport roaster, ice-box, or outdoor motorboat—all are here, with all their familiar show-window placards that greet you on Main street anywhere from Syracuse to Seattle.

This wide, resplendent avenue, one and an eighth miles long, lined with beautiful trees, and piercing the city from the Betra Mar to the piers, was boldly opened only two decades ago in the ambitious plan for a better city.

To cut it through, nearly 600 buildings were razed. One of its startling aspects is its sidewalk, made up of small stones of different colors, laid in zigzags, in waves, and in other dizzy patterns.

Interesting Street Crowds. But it is the people who interest you most, especially the crowds who promenade late in the afternoon. Coffee shops, cafes and tea rooms line the Avenida Rio Branco, many with wide colored awnings that reach out over the pavement.

Although prohibition is unknown in Brazil, very few seem to daily walk with the cup that cheers. Cosmopolitan seaport though it is, Rio is a most orderly and abstemious place. But it drinks coffee to excess.

What we call lunch is breakfast in Rio. After this meal the brokers, bankers, merchants and clerks all flock to their favorite resort to drink coffee. Late in the afternoon they all go again, and perhaps at various other times during the day they drop in for the tiny cup, if they happen to be near a cafe.

Coffee is taken very strong and sweet, as in the Near East. In the cheaper cafes an automatic bowl of granulated sugar is on each table. By means of a trigger, it shoots a man's allowance into his cup at one dash. Often you see men try it first toward the floor, to see if it is working!

By his dress alone you can seldom tell an upper-class Brazilian from a well-groomed European. You seldom see a man without a vest, even on hot days. Derby hats and canes are everywhere; some men carry fans; and bootblacks and barbers could almost claim an "essential occupation" to avoid the draft in wartime!

Here, along the Rio Branco, is the voice of the city. Around these sidewalk cafes you hear town talk, which may be in any one of three or four languages. It is a gossip's free-for-all. And here conversation is an art—as much enjoyed as music. All the lounging coffee drinkers and the groups standing about wave their hands and wobble their heads in Latin-American emphasis, each anxious to make himself heard. Passing by, you hear scraps of talk on every theme, from the coffee crop and the Sao Paulo snake farm to the identity of the pretty girl who just went by in a roadster.

United States Visitors Welcome. Nowhere, from the Rio Grande to Cape Horn, is the visitor from the United States more welcome than in Rio. Whether he comes as tourist, salesman, scientist, diplomat, artist, student, teacher, resident engineer, merchant, or delegate to an international highway conference, he soon senses that Brazilians hold our country in high esteem.

Between the two capitals, Rio and Washington, friendly diplomatic intercourse has been unbroken for a hundred years. When we entered the World War, President Braz of Brazil said in his message to congress: "With our elder brother, the United States, at war, it is impossible for Brazil to remain neutral."

Rio—rich, leisurely, and at ease—is not "Americanized" in dress, manners, or in methods. Probably she never will be, for here a new race is in the making—a racial amalgamation new to the world, possessing unique social, industrial, and cultural possibilities.

But Rio is tolerant and wise. From us, as from Europe, she takes what she can use, whether it is ideas or goods. This is fair play among nations. Brazil buys about one-fourth of all her imports from us, and we buy perhaps 45 per cent of all she exports. If she feels that her young men can learn more about engineering, agriculture, or dentistry in the United States than in Europe, she sends them here to school. If she thinks North American capital and managerial talent can improve her public utilities, she invites their aid; and, co-operating vigorously, she sets her public-health officials to work side by side with American "rocketeer-doctors" in yellow fever control.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Lesson for November 20 STEWARDSHIP OF MONEY

Deuteronomy 8:7-18; I Corinthians 15:1-4; II Corinthians 8:1-15; II Corinthians 9:1-15.

GOLDEN TEXT—And he said unto them, Take heed, and beware of covetousness: for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth.—Luke 12:15.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Sharing God's Gifts. JUNIOR TOPIC—How to Use Money. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Christian's Use of Money. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Christian's Use of Money.

I. Wealth is from God (Deut. 8:7-18). What we possess is God's gift.

1. The natural resources from which wealth is gained were prepared by God (vv. 7-17). This is true whether it be the fertile soil which produces our products, or the minerals, which are hidden away in the earth.

2. Ability to get wealth is from God (v. 18). The resources hidden away are valueless until seized; upon and changed into usable commodities by man. The failure to recognize divine ownership of ourselves and possessions has wrecked the world. The sure way back to prosperity is to give recognition to God.

II. Obligation of Regular and Orderly Giving (I Cor. 10:1-4).

1. Everybody should give (v. 2). "Let every one of you lay by him in store." Giving of one's means should be engaged in by every believer. It is a grace which reacts to the benefit of the giver.

2. Giving should be systematic—every week (v. 2). The giving of small gifts weekly is easier than of larger gifts at less frequent intervals.

3. There should be proportionate giving (v. 2). "As God has prospered him." No one is obliged to give that which he does not have.

4. The impelling motive (v. 2). "The first day of the week." The first day of the week is designated because it is the day memorializing the resurrection of Christ. The reality of Christ's resurrection is the dynamic for Christian giving.

III. Examples of True Christian Giving (II Cor. 8:1-5). The liberality of the Macedonian churches exhibits practically every grand principle and motive which enters into the giving which has God's sanction.

1. The source of true giving (v. 1). This is said to be the grace of God, by which is meant that the disposition to give freely of our money has been created by the Holy Spirit.

2. They gave from the depths of their poverty (v. 2). Their limited means did not cause them to stint in their giving.

3. Their willingness surpassed their ability (v. 3). God's gifts are reckoned by the degree of willingness, not by the amount given.

4. They were insistent upon being allowed the privilege of giving (v. 4). Christians ought to be taught that to share in the work of the Lord by giving money is their high privilege.

5. They first gave themselves to the Lord (v. 5). The only right method of raising money for the Lord is first to induce men and women to give their lives to the Lord, and then to give their possessions.

IV. Emulation in Giving Urged (II Cor. 8:15). Moved by the generosity of the Macedonian churches, Paul desired Titus to commend to the Christians the same grace.

1. Not as a command (v. 8). Giving should be spontaneous.

2. As a proof of the sincerity of our love (v. 8). 3. As the completion and harmony of Christian character (v. 7). The Corinthian church abounded in spiritual gifts such as faith, knowledge, and utterance, but the grace of liberality was needed for the harmony of their lives. The stingy man is not symmetrical in character.

4. The self-sacrificing example of Christ (v. 9). Christ's example of self-denial and sacrifice is the supreme example of love.

5. The true principle of acceptable giving is a willing mind (vv. 1-12). God does not estimate the value of a gift on the ground of its intrinsic worth, but the underlying motive prompting it.

6. Because of a common equality (vv. 13-15). Every Christian should give something. The law governing the gift is his ability.

V. Inducements to Give (II Cor. 9:7-9). 1. The volume of reaping is based upon the sowing (v. 6). 2. There should be a heart purpose (v. 7).

RANDOM THOUGHTS Hate kills everything that it touches. In every sea of trouble Christ calms the waves. The whole of human life is of interest to Christ. God's great purpose in wanting men to give to him is that he may be enabled to give more abundantly to them.

Get Rid of a Bad Headache in Few Minutes

Because of Quick Dissolving Property BAYER ASPIRIN Starts "Taking Hold" 3 or 4 Minutes After Taking

Due to important, scientific developments in the world-famous Bayer laboratories, almost INSTANT relief from headaches, neuralgia and rheumatic pains is being afforded millions.

Because of a unique process in making and tableting, Genuine Bayer Aspirin is made to dissolve almost INSTANTLY in the stomach. Hence it starts to work almost instantly. And thus "takes hold" of the average pain or headache in as little as three or four minutes after taking. The fastest, safe relief, it is said, ever known for pain.

NO TABLETS ARE GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN WITHOUT THIS CROSS

Landed Record Bass The world's record small mouth bass, weighing 33 pounds 3-ounces, was captured recently by "Red" Kennedy in Lake Gertrude, Lake county, Florida. The word "captured" is used advisedly, since Kennedy's line broke as the fish was being hauled into the boat. Fortunately he was able to grab his prize and get it aboard, although he lost his rod overboard in the process. Kennedy attributes his luck to the fact that, in addition to being red-headed himself, he was fishing with a red-headed plug.

Its Value Patient—Do you really do much good with that X-ray machine? Doctor—Oh, yes, a great deal of good! We see the money in a patient's pocket with it.

Women said: A soap that soaks clothes clean without rubbing can't be safe

BUT they hadn't tried the amazing New Oxydol then!

Richer, longer-lasting suds—50% more suds—that's why the New Oxydol can safely soak dirt out of clothes so no rubbing is needed—and still be kind to hands and dainty things. Use it for dishes too. Rinses clean, leaves no scum, softens water, never balls up.

Oxydol THE COMPLETE HOUSEHOLD SOAP

Aha! The comedian smiled roguishly, "When," he said loudly, "is an actor not an actor?" "Nine times out of ten," retorted some one in the gallery.

Too Few "Your husband seems to be a man of rare gifts." "He is. He hasn't given me one since we were married."—Stray Stories.

For Your Child's Tender Skin USE Cuticura Soap

And know that you are laying the foundation for a healthy skin in later life. Pure, gentle and delicately medicated, it protects the skin of young and old.

John Carl Stanton
At his ranch home near Grif-in, across the Malpais, Nov. 18, occurred the death of John Carl Stanton. Mr. Stanton was a member of the Loyal Order of Moose of Oil City, Pa., also a member of the Order of Eagles of Rochester, N. Y., and a member of the Welfare of Eagles. He leaves a wife, father and brother, the latter two residing at Oil City. The remains were taken in charge by Undertaker Kelley and interment made in the local cemetery. Rev. Jordan conducted the funeral.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES
Hi School Reporter:
The football game was a big success—for us at least. The crowds were larger than usual, which helped the boys to win.
Last Wednesday the road to Nogal was crowded with girls. Strangers thought we were probably hitch-hikers. But it was only the girls' Physical Ed. class out on a hike.
The Home Economics Club has been organized and is well under way. Keep your eye on that Club. It will do something worth while.
The English classes have been revising the Ten Commandments. They appear in another column.
Harvey O. Garst, Associate Grand Patron of Grand Chapter O. E. S. and former instructor in the Engineering Department of the State College at Las Cruces, was a business visitor in Carrizozo yesterday.

Alamogordo Bank Closes Doors
Alamogordo—The State Bank of Alamogordo closed its doors this morning and a notice was posted that the state bank examiners would take charge.
Heavy withdrawals caused the officials of the bank to decide to close it, they said.
A statement the officials issued said all deposits would be paid.

Football Notes
Coach Detloff's Grizzlies came out of their slump with a rush last Saturday and beat the strong Weed team that has conquered Capitan and Alamogordo almost at will, the score being, Carrizozo 19, Weed 7. The Weed team put in the best material it had, but like animal whose name they bear, the Grizzlies always drove forward, functioned smoothly and were never in danger. The most spectacular and brilliant play of the game was made by Louis Baca, who intercepted a pass and ran 40 yards for a touch down.
On the whole, the entire team played brilliantly and was at their best. The next and last game of the season will be with Capitan on the latter's home grounds, Thanksgiving Day.

E. M. Brickley, Grand Sentinel of the Order of Eastern Star of New Mexico, attended a meeting of Chapter No. 10 O. E. S., at Roswell Tuesday evening, the meeting being called on account of a visit from Grand Matron Fay Parrish. At 6:30 p. m., a banquet was held in the coffee room of the Hotel Gilder in honor of the distinguished visitor. Other Grand Officers present, were: Mesdames Iona Jones, Zoe Lusk, Past Grand Matrons, Lt. Col. Lusk and Mrs. Lucius Dills. The meeting was well attended and the Grand Matron made a splendid address.
Estanislao Belio, the everlast-ing smiling ranchman from the Gran Quivira country, was a caller at this office Wednesday.

HEARD ABOUT TOWN

Mr. and Mrs. John Dale of Ancho were Carrizozo visitors last Saturday, and while in town, paid this office a pleasant call.

William Nickels, who is teaching in the Jicarilla school, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Nickels and sisters over the week end.

Mesdames Ed Pfingsten, Chas. Pfingsten and C. E. Smith, all of the Nogal-Mesa, were here Saturday and were pleasant callers at this office.

This office is in receipt of a letter from H. E. Carter, at one time a resident of Ruidoso, but now a resident of Montrose, Cal. Mr. Carter wants to know how the election came out in Lincoln County. Well, there is nothing much to tell you, more than all the Democrats were elected, and that Ernest Key, County Clerk-elect, was the only Republican victorious.

Mr. and Mrs. Sid Jones were Carrizozo visitors to have Mr. Jones' hand dressed by Dr. Johnson Monday of this week. Sid has a severe case of blood poisoning in that member.

We are in receipt of a letter from Mr. and Mrs. Jake Cole, former residents of Carrizozo, who are now located at Shelton, Washington. They like Shelton and send their best regards to their old friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Rustin, Roscoe is a brother to Mrs. Claud Branum, spent four days at the Branum home last week, while on their way to Chicago. Roscoe is an agent for the Neon advertising company, selling electric signs.

"The melancholy days are here, the saddest of the year." Thus sings the poet. It is time for us to all pull together and forget politics and party differences.

FOR SALE—New, beautiful, small type Player Piano from a bankrupt stock — $150 cash. H. E. Alden, 820 W. Missouri, El Paso, Texas. 2t

A. D. Taylor of Ruidoso and Mr. Page, storekeeper of that place, were here Monday attending to business. They returned home in the afternoon.

Mrs. Elsa Charles, daughter Virginia, and niece Letty Baker, who had been visiting her aunt for a week, went to Alamogordo to visit the J. E. Farley family last Sunday.

An Expression of Thanks

I wish to take this opportunity of expressing my appreciation and thanks to the loyal friends and to the voters of Lincoln County, who gave me their support at the polls on Nov. 8. I will endeavor to administer the affairs of this office in an efficient and honest manner, so as to hold the confidence, which has been shown me.

Again I thank you,
Ola C. Jones.

Ten Commandments of Good English

- Hi School Reporter—
- 1.—Thou shalt not have no other language before me.
  - 2.—Thou shalt not take the use of the English language in vain, for the English authorities will not hold him guiltless who misuses the English language.
  - 3.—Remember the English language and keep it free from errors. Five days shalt thou study me; on the sixth use me well, and on the seventh, rest—but don't forget me.
  - 4.—Honor thy diction and thy grammar that it may be well with thee, and thou mayest live long among people of distinction.
  - 5.—Thou shalt not murder the English language.
  - 6.—Thou shalt not dwell in sordid subjects, neither think, speak nor write of things that are not clean and chaste.
  - 7.—Thou shalt not steal thy neighbor's methods of expression. Seek for originality in speech and writing.
  - 8.—Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy language. Thou shalt always uphold it and if necessary, suffer for it.
  - 9.—Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's vocabulary.
  - 10.—Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's dictionary, nor his papers, nor his text book, nor any of his private property, especially during the time of examination.
