Aims to Retire from Business

By reference to an advertisement in another part of this paper, it will be learned that M. Doering, who has been in business in Carrizozo for ten years, aims to retire as soon as the present stock is reduced to a point to satisfy a prospective buyer he has in mind for the store.

Mike says he is 69 years old, and has applied himself so close to business as to merit a retirement from active service and take a life of ease.

Juvenile Music Club

Six More Weeks of Winter?

Here and There—

There is a grocery price-cutting feud on between Ziegler Bros., Burnett's Cash Grocery and Roy Skinner's Grocery, all of whom have cut prices to the very bone. "Competition is the life of trade" — so goes the old saying. And don't forget, grocery store proprietors, we're in the printing business, too.

Lordsburg Lions to Play Burro Polo in St. Louis, Mo. — Headline! Not the real lions, but the Lion's Club. New thing, this burro polo and we'll venture that it is comical. Why not get up a burro polo team here? We have plenty of New Mexico Nightingales (burros) around Carrizozo. We'd like to see 'Olson's Terrible Swedes' versus a team from the Roswell Military Institute in a game of Burro Polo.

Famous Sayings: "How is your Technocracy functioning?"

A railroad man was asked what he knew about Technocracy. He replied, "Not very much; it seems as if a person should work just a little bit, anyway."

The W. C. T. U. of Nashville has adopted resolutions to write to Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes to protest his administering the oath of office as president of the United States to Franklin D. Roosevelt. The resolutions contended the president elect "by open opposition to a part of the constitution of the United States had disqualified himself to preserve, and defend the constitution." Here is some hope, all you Hoover voters.

Dr. Alfred F. Gilman, head of the chemistry department of the Y. M. C. A. College in Chicago, we note in the Albuquerque Journal, has invented a capsule containing food. Dr. Gilman says one capsule equals a seven-course dinner. It contains food, highly concentrated. But we would like our nourishment in the form of a breaded pork chop, with fried apples, and mashed potatoes, including the trimmings. How about you?

It won't be long now until the spring poets will be asking us to print their stuff. Frank Elliott says there are two seasons in Carrizozo—winter and summer. He says the only way you can tell it is springtime is that the trees slowly become green. And Frank ought to know.

Attend the dance at White Oaks tomorrow night. Music by "The Revelers."

Special Tax Attorneys May Lose Their Jobs

(Albuquerque Journal)

The question of delinquent tax collections is another matter that will be taken up by the Legislature. There is a sentiment for abolishing the special tax attorneys for the tax commission and handing the work over to the district attorneys as another economy measure. The state tax commission has built up quite a patronage list in the appointment of special tax attorneys, scattered through the state.

Marie Cavanaugh of Lincoln County has drawn $156 a month as special tax attorney. J. D. Hudgins of Carlsbad has drawn $200 a month on the tax commission payroll. Other employees have been J. D. Mell, chief attorney, 275.00; A. L. Zinn, Gallup, now on the supreme court, 250; L. A. Taylor, Clayton, 250.00; C. L. Collins, Las Vegas, 250.00; C. L. Higgins, Las Vegas, 250.00; J. H. Crist, Pojoaque, 125.00; George Taylor, Albuquerque, 200.00, but taken off the payroll late last year; E. M. Barber, Carrizozo, $50.00; Cuba Clayton, Alamogordo, 200.00; Herbert Robertson, Silver City, 100.00; David Chavez, Santa Fe, 200.00; L. P. McHaffey, Lordsburg, 168.66; J. H. Paxton, Las Cruces, $100; That was a total of $2,570.06 a month, or $30,840 a year paid to these special tax attorneys.

These tax attorneys succeed the old delinquent tax collectors, who thrived several years ago on the system of fees allowed them for the collection of delinquent taxes. The system was abolished because of the complaints over a system which enabled some attorneys in favored districts to make larger fees off the delinquent tax collections.

But the special attorneys have profited almost as much as the delinquent tax attorneys under the old system. With a little clerical assistance, the district attorney could easily handle the work.

Would Pay Tax With Warrants

Persons holding warrants, debentures, or other certificates of indebtedness by a County would be permitted to remit them in payment for taxes, under a bill which Peterson Martinez, (D. Taos) is drafting.

Martinez said he believed it unfair to Counties to pay individuals with warrants upon which no cash could be obtained and yet refuse the same warrants, and insist upon cash in payment for taxes due from those same persons.

FORT STANTON NEWS

Julius Rice, recognized as one of the foremost trappers in this county, passed away Friday afternoon after a long illness. Rev. Smith conducted the funeral services and the remains interred in the station cemetery. Many friends of Julius saw him off on his last journey.

The construction of the new Material Office is nearing completion. The old building is being torn down to make place for the new nurses' home.

Misses Talby and Black arrived here Saturday from Port Townsend and have taken up their duties in the hospital. Miss Talby replaced Miss Winters as Chief Nurse, the latter having been transferred to the M. H. in New Orleans. Miss Black took the place of Miss Chauvin, who was transferred to Port Townsend, Washington.

Our distinguished personage, Baron Louis von Wallen, violin-virtuoso, litteralist, philosopher, master electrician and proprietor of the Fort shoe hospital, has purchased a motor-propelled chariot, defined as a 1928 Terraplane, super six, monkey-business-coupe, which he intends to convert into a high speed monoplane for use in delivering work finished in his cobbler establishment—the parcels will be dropped down to customers in small parachutes.

Our daring caveman and subterranean explorer, Ronald Reith is making a very lucrative business of guiding big parties of tourists and thrill seekers thru the Stanton Cavern. He has surveyed and mapped a considerable part of the cavern and given each individual room and passage a name. A watchman in his employ is posted at the entrance to sell tickets and take the names of the sight-seers and also of their nearest relatives, to notify in case of accidents. For the convenience of his customers he has built a small steam schooner to facilitate the passage across the big underground lakes located several miles inside the cave. These lakes had previously to be traversed in a small dugout, which, "however," was of too frail construction to withstand the treacherous rapids of "Rio de Salta las Culebras" between lakes Inferior and Eerie. His new craft, when not in use, is lying at anchor in the shallow waters of Whistling Fish's Lagoon, protected from the huge breakers, which, driven by an eternal blizzard, are constantly lashing the shores of lake Inferior. On his numerous exploration trips in the Earth's interior, Reith has encountered all kinds of strange animals and insects, some of which in ghastliness exceed specimens produced by over-worked brains during the most horrible nightmares. Some of Reith's hair-raising adventures in these infernal regions of the earth will appear later in the Outlook.

Our local long-haired author, James Wilbur Smith, who has begun to receive recognition in some of the larger magazines in the West, has received a letter from "New Mexico," telling him that one of his stories will appear in that magazine in the near future. The pen and ink illustrations are by our local artist, George Elmgren, whose work, like Jim's, is beginning to take on. — Just a couple of lads

Farewell Party

Last Thursday evening at the home of her grandmother, the friends of Miss Georgia Lesnett gave a farewell party in her honor, in view of the fact that she was soon to leave for her home in Wichita, Kansas. Dancing and games furnished the evening's entertainment, after which refreshments were served. Those present besides the honor guest, were: Dorothy Wisner, Rhoda Freeman, Lala Joyce, Carl Freeman, Murel Burnett, Otto and Ernie Prahm.

Woman's Club Entertainment and Dinner

Last Friday evening at the Community Hall, the assemblage of over 100 guests witnessed one of the most novel and interesting entertainments given in Carrizozo for a long time and one which will not soon be forgotten. An elaborate program was given, interspersed with refreshments. The place cards which were made by the hostess, Mrs. Glassmire, were made in the form of leaves and tinted yellow and gold and this color scheme prevailed in the refreshments. It would be hard to appreciate the amount of work and time which was put in by the hostess on the neat, tidy and artistic place cards which bore the following words on the cover page: "Turn over a New Leaf for 1933, Woman's Club."

Arranged in folder form, the menu, "Food for the Flesh," appeared on the left page and on the right was "Food for the Spirit," and contained the program as follows: Prayer, Rev. Lawson; Round of Music, Everyone; Toast, "Ladies First," E. M. Brickley; Responses, Mrs. R. E. Blaney; Solo, Father Brady; Meaning of Woman's Club, Miss Melas; Novelty numbers, Miss Helen Frances Huppertz; "Cheer Up," Mrs. Paul Mayer; Orchestra number.

One of the principal objects of interest was a ship, the type of the old sailing vessel, made by Ben Sanchez of Ziegler Bros. Store and equipped with electric lights, it furnished an admirable centerpiece for the banquet table. Ben had put in his spare time of evenings on the ship and it was a beauty, made entirely of cardboard, fully rigged and painted to perfection. On the whole, the entertainment was a grand success and reflects credit on the hostess and her able staff of assistants.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Ed Harris were here from their ranch last Saturday and he was very busy, for we only had time to shake hands with him and say, "Hello, Hiram" and then goodbye!

Congress Votes Independence for the Philippines Over Hoover's Veto—President Again Calls for Balancing of the National Budget.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

SOMETIME between 1933 and 1946 the American flag will be lowered to the Philippine islands and the natives of the archipelago whom we have fostered and protected since 1898 will be left to their own resources. The United States senate, following the example of the house of representatives, overrode President Hoover's veto of the independence bill by a vote of 68 to 26. The arguments against the measure, presented by the Chief Executive and based on the opinions of Secretaries Stimson, Hurley, Chapin and Hyde, were rejected. Therefore the act will go into effect, provided the Philippines legislature accepts it within one year. Dispatches from Manila indicate that it may be accepted, although it is far from being what the leaders there desired. They assert that in passing it congress is actuated by selfish motives, and in a way this was borne out by the argument of Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois in his argument in favor of the measure.

"The United States occupies the place of danger today," he said. "It is the most imperiled of any nation in the world." He reviewed the grievances held against the United States by Russia, China, and Japan. He predicted that British interests in the Orient and the French possession of Indo-Chinese territory would make them cold to any plea for help should this country become involved in a trans-Pacific conflict. He claimed to see the formation of an Asiatic Monroe doctrine. "They will not come to America," said the Illinois senator. "We did not go to Spain. We seized Cuba and the Philippines and told Spain to come and get them. While we hold the Philippines, these nations may seize them at any time and say to us, 'Come and get them.'

"I place my defense of this measure," the senator concluded, "squarely upon the defense of America." Senators Borah and Cullinan, who with eighteen other Republicans helped the Democrats to override the veto, argued that the United States should redeem its promise of independence for the islands. Privately, some of these Republicans had said they would vote for the measure because a worse one might be passed by the next congress—though this seems almost impossible. Only one Democrat, Copeland of New York, voted to sustain the veto, holding that congress has no constitutional right to alienate territory once acquired.

WHAT the nation thinks of the failure of congress to balance the budget was expressed forcibly though politely by President Hoover in a special message which chided the legislators and urged them to bring about economies in government and to adopt a low general sales tax. He warned them that insolvency will follow if the budget continues indefinitely out of balance, for it is a question how much longer the banks will or can carry the government by purchasing its treasury obligations.

The President proposed that the sales tax blanket all commodities except food and cheap clothing. He said there probably would be a deficit between $300,000,000 and $700,000,000 for the next fiscal year, even with reduced appropriations, unless new revenues are obtained. Since the President's criticisms concerning appropriations were aimed chiefly at the Democrat-controlled lower house, Chairman Joseph W. Byrns of the appropriations committee felt called upon to reply. "Was there anything more amazing," said Mr. Byrns, "than that the President, who has been urging economies since the Democrats came into control, should complain that maximum appropriations and economies have not been adhered to? Do we understand that he is out in the position of saying that congress should not attempt to reduce the estimates he has sent up here? That is what the message means; it can't be construed in any other way.

"You have been President nearly four years and secretary of commerce years before that," Mr. Byrns shouted in an imaginary address to the President. "But for more than three and one-half years you have not in the White House totally oblivious to the necessity of consolidation of government agencies for the purpose of economy."

Representative Hapes of Michigan answered this by insisting that, as secretary of commerce and reported by Mr. Hoover, he had urged consolidation of agencies and has submitted "a dozen messages" along that line, but has been opposed by leading members of the Democratic party.

There is no indication that Mr. Hoover's message would spur the senate to any commendable action. HAVING re-written the Collier beer bill so that it would allow the manufacture and sale of beer, porter, wine and fruit juices with alcoholic contents of not to exceed 3.05 per cent, the senate judiciary committee delayed action on it for one week. Although the backers of the senate amended bill expressed confidence it would be reported out in time for passage at this session, house wets expressed apprehension that the bottling up of the measure in the judiciary committee might subject it to a filibuster by the drys. Monday, January 10, was the thirteenth anniversary of national prohibition, and Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, author of the Eighteenth amendment, succeeded in breaking through the Long filibuster long enough to deliver his annual speech on prohibition.

SEN. J. H. LEWIS

PRESIDENT-ELECT ROOSEVELT, having had a long talk with Secretary of State Stimson on international policies, paid another visit to President Hoover Friday at the White House, and while the subject of discussion was not announced in advance, it was taken for granted that they would again study the world situation and perhaps give special attention to the war debt problem. Mr. Roosevelt also met the leaders of his party in congress, and then was to proceed to Muscle Shoals with Senators Norris, Black and McKellar to inspect that huge project.

ONE Democratic senator at least is thoroughly disgusted with the tactics of some of his colleagues of the same party. This is Millard Tydings of Maryland, who declared that if the Huey Long filibuster in the senate were tolerated much longer, and if his resolution to cut more than a billion dollars from the costs of the government were not acted on, he would resign for the remainder of the session as a protest. He would begin his new term on March 4, having been re-elected. "I don't want my constituents," he said, "to assume that I condone or even passively accept what is going on here, that I am indifferent to the crying needs of this nation. Let some one else from Maryland come here to look on if he wants to."

Sen. Tydings

The Louisiana "Kingfish" and his radical associates suspended their filibuster only long enough for the senate to vote on the Philippines bill. Then they resumed their obstructive tactics aimed at the Glass banking bill. The Democratic leaders, however, took the extreme step of filing a petition for cloture. It was signed by 22 Democratic senators. They also filed three amendments to the rules designed to prevent a recurrence of the Long performance in debate on other measures. Senator Glass opened the vials of his sarcasm and told the "Kingfish" what he thought of him. Taking exception to remarks by Long implicating that the Glass measure had been railroaded onto the senate floor, the Virginia senator asserted the implication was "as false as any ever uttered by any human lip." He followed this with asserting that Long's attack on the bill was made up of "scandalous rubbish and misrepresentations."

FOLLOWING his intensive preparation for assuming his office, Mr. Roosevelt made the interesting announcement that he would stand by the American policy of the majority of international agreements in Washington and the other world capitals this was taken as meaning that the United States, under his administration, would continue to refuse recognition of the territorial gains made by Japan in aggression against China. Tokyo was neither surprised nor agitated by this declaration of policy. A foreign office spokesman said: "We are hopeful, however, that while the substance of the American policy will be unchanged, the manner of its presentation will be altered under Mr. Roosevelt and that irritations growing out of Washington's 'spice of the moment' judgments will be removed. That will count for a great deal."

Japanese statesmen were hopeful that the Manchurian issue would be amicably settled in Geneva, but not their forces in the field nor the Chinese armies were helping toward that end. Japanese military planes bombed a concentration of Chinese soldiers at Kaituma, near the northern border of Jehol province, killing an uncounted number and doing heavy damage to the town. Japanese military headquarters in Mukden claimed that the bombardment was ordered after it had been learned Chinese troops stationed at Kaituma were planning to attack the town of Tsungho, which is across the border in Manchoo.

First Germans to Settle in America

The first permanent German settlement in America was that fostered by William Penn at Germantown, founded in 1683. Francis Daniel Pastorius, a leader of the movement of German Protestants to America, took ship in advance of those he had induced to migrate, and landed at Philadelphia, August 20, 1683. On October 8, 1683, the ship Concord, the Mayflower of the German immigrants to America, arrived in Philadelphia, and this date has customarily been observed by Germans in America as the beginning of their history in the United States.

Los Angeles Boy Needed Help

Leroy Young, 1116 Georgia St., Los Angeles, is a "regular fellow," active in sports, and at the top in his classes at school. To look at him now, you'd think he never had a day's sickness but his mother says: "When Leroy was just a little fellow, we found his stomach and bowels were weak. He kept suffering from constipation. Nothing he ate agreed with him. He was fretful, feverish and puny. "When we started giving him California Fig Syrup his condition improved quickly. His constipation and biliousness stopped and he has had no more trouble of that kind. I have since used California Fig Syrup with him for colds and upset spells. He likes it because it tastes so good and I like it because it helps him so wonderfully!" California Fig Syrup has been the trusted standby of mothers for over 50 years. Leading physicians recommend it. It is purely vegetable and works with Nature to regulate, tone and strengthen the stomach and bowels of children so they get full nourishment from their food and waste is eliminated in a normal way. Four million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it. Always look for the word "California" on the carton to be sure of getting the genuine.

EDITORIAL COLUMN

France Is Not the Only Squeezer

Latest advices from overseas, tell of uprisings from outraged taxpayers in France who are absolutely refusing to pay the increased taxation and added penalties heaped upon them by law makers, but while we look with awe upon such conditions we need go no further than our own country to find the same deal being put over right here at home, and what will become of it in the long run.

The increase in postal rates, while designed to create more revenue for the government, has missed its guess - for we find that the income so far, has fallen too far below what was realized on the old 2-cent postage.

While the increase was only 1 cent on first class mail matter, it amounted to so much that big concerns, more especially, have devised ways of using third class matter instead of first. Thus, the income has been decidedly less than before.

It was not the one cent so much as it was the principal of the thing - people failed to see any sense in the increase.

So it goes from the top of the government down to the bottom - the squeezers appear at every turn in the road. Senators and Representatives go to the bat pledged to reduce taxes, but they invariably manage to still further pile up taxes until the people cannot pay them - and that's that.

How are unemployed people, over the twelve million mark, going to pay their taxes, and what will become of things when they are ready to lose their property? Will they submit to having their homes sold from under them? We believe not! They will do as they are now doing in France - meet the situation with a solid front and refuse to be further enslaved by the tax-squeezers.

A careful survey of the books will show that the ones who are increasing the taxes, have reduced their own.

Of course someone will say, "that is good politics," but there's nothing funny about it. People are not going to join in the laugh. The farmers are now revolting against foreclosures, but that is only a starter. Others will follow up.

East Indian Caste Born to Servitude

When the Aryan race invaded India in the fourteenth century B. C. it devised the caste system to perpetuate its position of dominance. At the head was the class of Brahmans, identified with the ritual of the Hindu religion. Next came the fighting class of the Kshatriya, and the mercantile class of the Vaisya. The conquered race became the Sudra, whose duty was to serve the other three.

Because social position was determined by inheritance, on purely religious grounds, the system has endured longer than any other aristocratic rule. The Brahmans and the Rajputs, representing an amalgamation of the middle two castes, control the life of the people. They number about 240,000,000, and are graded into high and low strata among themselves. But all despise the Sudra, or untouchables, numbering 60,000,000 who are relegated to the bottom of society and menial occupations.

Among the Sudra, nevertheless, are some of the most enlightened minds in India. They owe their unfortunate position simply to the chance of birth. But they cannot be emancipated, as other Indians lose caste if they hold any intercourse with them, and are polluted by their touch. The question is religious and can only be settled by the Indians themselves. Gandhi, high caste himself, is fighting their battle, and though his fast brought undeserved odium on the British government, it ought to help emancipate the untouchables from their own race servitude.—Boston Post.

WHAT'S GOING ON IN WASHINGTON

Japanese Situation a Puzzle; Arms Export Treaty; to Revamp Bankruptcy Laws.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART

Washington.—To a greater or less extent, one hears everywhere in the National Capital these days the question: "What about Japan?" And every attempt to answer is stilled because none can say what can be done about Japan.

While Japan has edged further into the long-time Chinese territory of Jehol, the world powers have stood by with poker faces and have given only such support as they have been forced to give to what eventually will come to be known as the "Stimson doctrine." One hears a great deal of criticism of the impotency of the United States in the Japanese situation, but this must be allowed for the United States; it attempted to do something worthwhile, and historians and students of foreign affairs in and out of the government appear to agree that the failure of the effort cannot be laid at the door of our nation.

No one seems to know what the ultimate object of Japan is; no one has been able to divine the purpose of the steady, driving force that Japan has exerted through almost two years, but everyone recognizes the dangers in the situation. Some see one set of possibilities, while others insist that another series of potentialities are more grave.

A review of the circumstances shows that Japan has set her face directly on a program of obtaining more territory into which her crowded millions can pour from the narrow confines of her island empire. The same review reveals that the civil structure of the Japanese government has had little or nothing to say about the policy upon which her armies have launched. Further, the entire course of events has disclosed probably the greatest arrogance of any nation of modern times in respect of the appeals and veiled threats of other nations.

There are rich resources in Jehol and the territory beyond the Great Wall of China, resources sorely needed by Japan.

But Japan Goes Ahead.

The Stimson doctrine, enunciated more than a year ago, said in effect to Japan: "It will do you no good to go ahead, for we will not recognize any of the territory you gain in this way." To quote the words of that diplomatic communication which surely seems to be destined to stand out in history: "The United States refuses to recognize any situation, treaty or arrangement brought about by means contrary to the Kellogg-Briand treaty," which outlawed war.

But that has had no effect. The Japanese civil structure acted like it agreed, but the military did not. The matter got into the League of Nations because the United States virtually forced the league to consider it, and the league made something of the same formal statement to Japan. Yet, Japan, in September of last year, went right ahead and recognized Manchukuo. Thus, the Japanese displayed their conviction: they believe they have no reason to fear the consequences of their acts because, as said at the beginning, what can be done about it?

This Japanese situation is a lot closer to us than the several thousands of miles between the nations would indicate. Congress has been milling around over granting freedom to the Philippine islands. Both major political parties are committed to it, and it will happen sooner or later. That is, the Philippines will be given the right to govern themselves barring that which now seems unlikely, an overt act towards the United States by the Japanese.

Senator Borah, of Idaho, chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations, entertains no fears of the Japanese invasion as the Philippine islands are concerned. He sees the Japanese as "headed the other way." That is, he believes their ambitions lie in the direction of far-reaching domain on the mainland of Asia, perhaps as a counter power against the great Russian bear.

Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, another member of the same committee, says he can envision a whole bushel basket filled with possibilities. He told me that freedom of the Philippines without the strictest sort of protection and arrangements for prevention of trouble would lead directly to trouble with Japan.

So it is to be seen that the policy of the United States with respect to the Japanese invasion of China has more importance than just as it bears on seizure of Chinese territory.

Arms Export Treaty.

Relations between governments always are matters of delicacy. It is difficult sometimes, therefore, to gain naked facts. Weathermen may be observed, however, and one of them is the recent proposal by President Hoover to the senate that it hurry up a bit in ratifying the international treaty forbidding export of arms and munitions of war to nations where there are situations of hostility breeding, or where there is actual war. He proposed, as an alternative, that if the senate did not see its way clear to set on the treaty, it should enact legislation giving the President broad powers to lay an embargo on arms exports from the United States under the conditions set out in the treaty.

Mr. Hoover's message reached the senate one day, and on the next day, Senator Borah called his committee together to consider that message. It acted with unprecedented haste. It did the somewhat unusual thing of drafting a resolution right there in the meeting, agreeing to it formally and voting to submit it to the senate at once. It is in the form of a joint resolution which means, of course, that after the senate has acted, it still must be given the approval of the house of representatives.

It must be remembered, however, that acts of congress are of general application always, and that if the arms embargo authority be delegated to the President, he could employ it to defeat shipments of arms to the Far East as well as to rebellious elements in Latin America.

To Revamp Bankruptcy Laws.

Under conditions such as obtain throughout the nation, it is quite logical that government, both state and national should be searching for ways and means to make the pathway easier for those having financial troubles. That takes in about 95 per cent of the population. So it was to be expected that President Hoover should urge upon congress again, as he did a year or more ago, the necessity for revamping the bankruptcy laws, although they have served with considerable satisfaction more than a third of a century.

Mr. Hoover's message spurred new efforts on the part of two congressional groups—one from the senate, the other from the house—to work out some sort of legislation that would serve the desired ends. They have a rocky road to travel, it must be said at the outset. What they face is the problem of making things easier for the fellow who is being ground under the iron heel of the rights of another.

America's business structure has been built on the sacred rights of individuals to deal freely and to have those rights preserved. In other words, without the right to contract and to have that contract enforced in courts of law, it is recognized business would not get far. But it is significant of the trend of the times that such subjects are under consideration.

The thing at which the legislators are looking with longing eyes is a method of preventing so many individuals and corporations from having the legal stigma of bankruptcy attached to them. It is recognized everywhere that an "Adjudged Bankrupt" written into court records amounts to an economic death sentence, so the search is going to see whether it is possible to arrange a new order in this direction.

While the determination is to arrange for a reduction in the number of bankruptcy decrees, there is a purpose that is of more importance to the average citizen in what the two groups are doing. Basically, what they want and what everyone else wants is to see an opportunity provided for the debtor to "pay out." It is of more benefit to the debtor, to his creditors, and to the whole structure of society in the community where he does business if the debtor can be restored as a "going concern" and repay or rebuild the investment represented.

The question of revising the bankruptcy laws was given attention in the 1931-32 session of the senate, and the Department of Justice, by direction of President Hoover, made a thorough examination of court records and conditions disclosed by them with a view to shedding light on a course which might be developed into a policy. On top of this, Representative McKewen (Dem.), of Oklahoma, introduced a bill in the house at the beginning of the current session in December, which, in effect, seeks to rewrite farm mortgages. So that it is seen the proposal to do something about debtors' inability to meet their obligations is not just a fly-by-night thought.

Give Them a Chance.

Senator Hastings (Rep.), of Delaware, who is chairman of the two subcommittees that have been working jointly on the problem, believes that genuine possibilities exist for establishing a new order in the matter of dealing with men, and with corporations, whose debts have sunk, or are about to sink, them. He points out that literally thousands of formerly sound corporations and many times that number of individuals have been driven to the wall by conditions of the last three years through no fault of their own. Obviously, bad judgment has played a part, but the fact remains that honest, hard-working persons who want to pay their debts should have that chance. And that is the purpose underlying the congressional effort.

From the current perspective, none of the legislators see a way by which they can accomplish the desire wholly to avoid bankruptcy proceedings being forced by creditors where such creditors hold written obligations to pay. Everyone is a creditor who holds the promise of some one else to pay, whether the promise be written or just in the form of an understanding between honest men. The individual who has the written promise, however, has something more, for the Constitution says that a written contract cannot be disturbed by congress. Thus, the real problem is seen to be whether those "secured creditors" can be supplied with an independent through changes in the law that will make them willing to agree to a compromise, called a "composition" in bankruptcy, and thereby open the way for proceedings of a new kind.

Romantic Origin of Package Medicines

Some of the most interesting romances will be found in the march of industry; for back of nearly every product which gains public acceptance is the very human story of somebody's ideal, ambition, ingenuity, enterprise, disappointment, struggle and final achievement of the goal of success.

The privations and hardships which accompanied the early years of the development of package medicines are an important part of the history of our nation. The public seldom appreciates the doubt, the ridicule, the ostracism and the enormous financial risks which were suffered by the early pioneers in medicine. Their faith, determination and pioneering spirit were responsible for developing and bringing to our medicine shelves those well known package medicines which afford economy and convenience, and which are so essential to our everyday lives.

Today we take our family remedies for granted as naturally as we accept the air or sunshine.

Most package medicines were originally prescribed by that beloved individual, the memory of whose self-sacrificing life is most beautiful—the old family physician. Being prescriptions of merit which produced results, they survived. They became much in demand and consequently much prescribed by their originators. Perhaps the demand grew so rapidly that the old doctor found himself unable, with his limited equipment, his modest kit, to fill the need. Often he, sometimes assisted by his kinsmen or friends, prepared to meet the demand by a quantity production, that the meritorious prescriptions might receive the widespread use which their popularity justified. Then came years of toil, hardships, risks, struggles; with life's earnings and life's efforts invested. Eventually the laboratory and the machine entered the picture.

Whether an individual package medicine has been on the market for scores of years, or whether it is the more recent product of medical research, a large proportion of package medicines in general are based upon solid scientific knowledge, and deserve the confidence of the public. Proprietary remedies which can ease human suffering, mitigate human distress, or add to human health and physical efficiency, at a price within the reach of the poor man's pocket book, are indeed worthy adjuncts to American life, as well as American commerce. "They can be safely relied upon," as Lord Bacon expressed it, "to tune the curious larp of man's body."

ODD WAY TO PUT END TO DROUGHT.

African Rainmaker Makes Use of Snake.

Weird myths and strange superstitions concerning snakes, believed in by various native tribes of Africa, are related in "Serpent Worship in Africa," publication issued in the anthropological series of Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago. Wilfrid D. Hambly, assistant curator of African ethnology, who led the recent Frederick H. Rawson-Field Museum-Ethnological expedition to Africa, is the author.

One of the most amusing tales related in Mr. Hambly's book is that concerning the use of a snake to break a drought. When rain is needed a tribe known as the Gagesu sends a rainmaker and a priest to a spring in which a snake lives. Nearly they construct a large trough which they fill with beer. When the snake comes out to attack them it gets drunk on the beer, and while in a helpless condition its fangs are removed by the men. From the well-it has left unguarded they fill pots with water. The water thus drawn is believed to attract rain, which will continue to fall until stopped by the priest. When it is desired to stop the rain the snake is again tempted to indulge too freely in beer, the water pots are then overturned, the rain ceases and, the sun shines to replenish the harvest.

Many of the African tribes attribute to sacred serpents a fondness for beautiful girls, and many instances of sacrifices of the most attractive maidens are cited by Mr. Hambly. Corollary to this was a superstition that once prevailed in Dahomey that the sacred python appeared to the most beautiful girls to induce madness, whereupon they were obliged by tribal laws to enter the service of the snake temple. As a result of this, certain rogish priests of this temple are reported to have persuaded girls to feign frenzy so that they would be sent there.

Among certain tribes snakes are regarded as the reincarnation of the souls of dead people and treated with ancestral reverence. There are also beliefs in the affinity of certain living people's souls with those of snakes whereby the persons involved derive special powers, usually for evil-doing. Large sums are paid to magicians to introduce a python into men and women desiring such affinities.

Left for Home Miss Georgia Lesnett left Saturday for Wichita, Kansas, to join her mother and sister Nadine. Miss Georgia had been here since the vacation period, attending school and residing with her father at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Anna Lesnett. The separation from her sister increased Georgia's homesickness until she decided to return. We regret to see her leave us, as she had been identified in all affairs of a community nature, especially in entertainments where she pleased the audience with her vocal selections.
