HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The following students, Juniors and Seniors, are participating in a State and National Essay Contest: Mrs. Sullivan, Al He Hadden, John Jackson, Edith Dudgeon, Rafanie Gonia, Lawrence Smith, Frank Jones, Ruby Smith, and others. The topic is "The Influence of the Mosquito and other Insect Life in relation to Human Health and Industry."

The Finance Club has been unable to schedule a debate with neighboring towns. A local debate will be held on Feb. 17, at 7:30 p. m. The topic: "Resolved that at least 50 percent of the taxes should be collected from intangibles." The affirmative will be upheld by Edith Dudgeon and John Jackson and the negative by Dorothy Nickels and Helen Strauss.

We appreciated the excellent concert given by Celestina Sandoval Thursday morning. It shows what ambition can accomplish in spite of a physical handicap.

Lura Leslie's name was inadvertently omitted last week. She was, we think, our star performer at the assembly program.

The Religion Study classes are well attended and truly show that our schools are progressive.

The Seniors' Play cast is now being selected. The play is entitled "Beads on a String" and is being coached by Miss McLean.

Saturday night the Grizzlies beat Hondo 16 to 9. The week before they beat Capitan 22 to 17.

In a talk to the H. S. assembly Coach Dettloff pleaded with the school to support the team. At the last game $6 were taken in, $3 of which went to the Community Hall and $3 to the Athletic Fund. There is some excuse for not supporting a losing team, but this season we have a winning team. Capitan plays here tonight. We should like to find out just how much of Coach Dettloff's plea sunk into the hearts and heads of students and town citizens.

The Physical Ed. lecture was unusually interesting. Mrs. Sullivan gave a demonstration lecture on First Aid.

ANCHO NOTES

The Woman's Club met with Mrs. Drake Saturday. Meeting was called to order by Mrs. Henderson, vice-president and opened by reading of the collect. Roll call was "Two Boys' Chances." After business the quilt was raffled off, the lucky number being 12 and the holder of same being David Venegas. After the meeting adjourned Mrs. Pruett, study leader, took charge and an interesting discussion of the Carlsbad Cavern followed; talks by Mmes. Wilson, Henderson, Pruett, Mrs. Miller, social leader arranged music by Misses Lucile and Lela Lee Drake, which was much enjoyed. The hostess served refreshments, assisted by her daughters. Next meeting with Mrs. Henderson, Feb. 11.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Pruett and son spent Sunday visiting relatives in Pastura.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Kile returned home Wednesday. Mrs. Kile is much improved and we hope she will soon be able to walk. They were accompanied by Mrs. Walter Silvers, Mrs. Kile's sister.

LOCAL MENTION

Unfortunate Accident.

Mrs. Kitty Allen suffered a badly burned portion of her back Monday, which accident happened in an unusual manner. In attempting to lift a sauce pan from the stove which contained boiling potatoes, she dropped the cloth and on stooping to pick it up, the handle caught in the neckband of her dress, causing the boiling contents to pour down her back. She hastened to Dr. Johnson's office as quickly as possible where the burns were treated and are healing nicely. Mrs. Allen was alone at home, otherwise first aid could have been administered and some intense suffering avoided.

Merry Party at Elizabeth Rooms

Tuesday evening, there was a merry gathering at the Elizabeth Rooms, when the proprietress, Mrs. Elizabeth Gallacher, was hostess to about fifty guests. A splendid vocal and instrumental program was given as follows: Star Spangled Banner, by all present; Duet, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Adams; Piano solo, Mrs. Mendenhall; Cello solo, Mrs. Don English; Duet, Miss Herring and Mr. Hale; Song, Old Folks at Home, all present; Musical reading, Jane Gallacher; Song and dance, LaMoynne Johnson; Piano solo, Mrs. Ben S. Burns; Song, O, Fair New Mexico, by all; Reading, Miss Ella Brickley; Duet, Mmes. Charles Young and F. L. Elliott; Piano solo, Miss Meisau; Song, Long, Long Trail, by all; Violin and piano solos, Otto and Ernie Prehm; Vocal solo, Mrs. Beck; Piano solos, Misses Leslye Cooper and Helen Mae Young. Refreshments were served by the hostess after the program.

Golden Wedding at Tacoma

Last week in Tacoma, Wash., Mr. and Mrs. John L. Shields, parents of Mrs. R. L. Willingham of Corona and Thos. Shields of Coyote, celebrated their golden wedding at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Bea Willingham, where a sumptuous dinner was served, in the center of which was a large wedding cake to mark the anniversary of the occasion. Only members of the family at Tacoma were present, the group being I. D., Virgil and Jack Shields and families. Mr. and Mrs. Shields were married in Texas 50 years ago and came to Tacoma 14 years ago. A Tacoma paper gave preferred space to the event, together with the pictures of the couple, paying them the highest of compliments.

Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Lovelace were guests at the home of Mrs. Lovelace's brother, J. W. Bennett, at Alamogordo last Sunday.

Mrs. John McCourt will entertain the Carrizozo Bridge Club tomorrow afternoon.

Geo. Simpson and Marion Jolly were down from Corona yesterday. They spent the time while here on business, George paying this office a friendly call. Basketball was the chief topic of the conversation, George being an ardent fan at this game. He reports they are having severely cold weather of late in the Corona district.

A Lesson in Americana

Arrest Three For Holdup Near Tinnie

C. F. Hogue, K. H. Sheets and Billy Green, all of Roswell, were arrested by Chaves county officers Sunday in connection with the holdup of W. M. Smith near Tinnie last Thursday evening.

Following the holdup, Smith said he had been robbed of $840 and Hogue reported that he had been robbed of $40.00.

Smith, Hogue and their families went out on a day's outing together and as they were playing cards by their tent, two masked men robbed them of all their money. Officers believe Hogue was a party to the holdup. Mr. Smith and his family came to New Mexico from Mississippi for health reasons. The money of which they were robbed was every cent they possessed. They had been here two weeks and were staying at the Hondo Auto Camp.

Sheriff McCamant and his deputies brought the three prisoners to Carrizozo Wednesday and placed them in jail. A fourth party is sought.

Watch Your Cars!

Last Friday night, while the basketball game was going on at Community Hall, the car belonging to Roy Shafer was rifled and several hats taken. Mr. Shafer's car was unlocked. Another car belonging to Helen Miller was locked, but the lock was broken and several Chimayo rugs and other articles were taken.

Three parties, Delfin Zamora and George Chavez of Lincoln and Robert Swan, Jr., of Carrizozo were arrested that night and jailed on charges of being intoxicated. After their arrest the sheriff's force located their car and in it they found the stolen property. On being arraigned, they claimed no knowledge of the theft and told officers that other parties must have put the goods into their car, but they were bound over to the district court in the sum of $1,500 each.

Mr. and Mrs. M. U. Finley left the latter part of last week for Dallas, after receiving word of the serious illness of Mrs. Finley's mother, Mrs. J. M. Davis, 90, and one of the old pioneers of that locality. Mrs. Davis died on Feb. 2, shortly after her daughter's arrival. Mrs. Davis had resided in that city for so long and was highly esteemed by the many who knew her, and the funeral was largely attended. The Finleys left after the funeral and returned by the way of San Antonio, reaching here Wednesday evening.

Nogal Notes

(Too late for last week)

Quite a large crowd gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Zumwalt last Friday evening where they were entertained with good singing and music. Songs by Mr. Zumwalt with guitar accompaniment and yodel was one of the features of the evening.

The Nogal people held a meeting at the schoolhouse last Sunday for the purpose of organizing a Sunday School. Mrs. Martin was elected Supt.; Mrs. A. E. Zumwalt, Vice-Supt.; Mrs. Leora Zumwalt, Sec'y - Treas; Three Teachers - one for Bible class, one for Intermediate or Junior class and one for Card class. There were about 30 present. We hope we will be successful and appreciate the assistance of all.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stacy and son Allen of Roswell visited relatives here and at Carrizozo this week.

Mrs. Jesse Peacock, who was stricken with a severe attack of appendicitis, was rushed to a hospital in Roswell and on arriving there, she had improved to the extent that she decided not to undergo an operation and she was returned to her home.

Jesse May made a business trip to Roswell and Hagerman this week and reports that the farmers are busy breaking land and preparing to do big farming. Gardening of spinach, onions, peas, cabbage, beans, etc., has already started. Several thousand head of sheep are being fed out for market, also.

Frank Peacock, wife and mother are here visiting relatives.

The Peacock twins, Aileen and Madeline of Hagerman are guests at the home of their aunt and uncle, Viola and Jesse May.

A large number of friends attended the funeral of Geo. Whitaker last Friday. Our sympathy goes out to the bereaved family.

Capitan P. T. A.

The people of Capitan enjoyed a real musical treat in the program given by Misses Beatrice and Rhea Boughner, Mmes. H. H. Cowan, Snow and E. L. Madison. Every number was enjoyed, especially the xylophone numbers. This program was one of a series being given under auspices of the P. T. A. for the benefit of the school library and the domestic science department. About $14 were added to the treasury. The committee wish to thank those who donated their time and talent.

FORT STANTON NEWS

Friends of Henry P. Murphy were greatly alarmed about his welfare when they received a note stating that he had been kidnapped and was being held for ransom. Afraid to notify the police, lest their friend should be 'put on the spot,' they employed the services of a notorious private sleuth, Inspector John Gow, formerly of Scotland Yard, who recently gained fame in the "Cider Barrel Torso" case and who is now residing at the Fort.

The Inspector soon found a clue and stated that Murphy, who had left on horseback for a visit in a neighboring town, had been dragged from his mount and dragged with mountain dew. The work, he said, looked as if done by the notorious bandit chief, Fernandez Caramba and his gang who recently escaped from Mexico and are now at large in this vicinity. Mr. Gow at once borrowed a bloodhound which he hoped would follow the strong scent of the 'dew' which the villains had spilt along their route. The odor was so pungent that the 'pup' refused to follow it; and, crawling on his hands and knees, the inspector was forced to depend on his own well-trained nose to trace the trail of the bandits. In the meantime, Murphy, who had refused to comply with the demands put forth by Caramba, was dropped by the robbers through a hole in the roof of an old shack where a mad bull was kept. In this, the outlaws made a mistake that proved to be their undoing, for little did they know about the captive's ability to handle the "toro."

He soon had the giant brute eating salted peanuts out of his hand. After a while he mounted the bull, dug his spurs into its sides and with a terrible force the beast charged through the wall which broke into a million fragments. Continuing his wild ride, our friend did not stop until he was back at the Fort. The inspector, upon reaching the rendezvous of the 'bandidos,' was disappointed to find that they had 'taken it on the lam,' but to his consolation he found that they had forgotten to take along their supply of conversation water. Later, Mr. Murphy was interviewed regarding his adventure by the Commanding Officer, Dr. Allen, who expressed his regret over the unfortunate happening and congratulated him on having so luckily escaped the clutches of the kidnapers.

Ronald Reith left last Tuesday to accompany a shipment of fossils to the Museum of Natural History in New York. His work on exploring the Stanton cave will be held up until he returns next fall. In an interview with the correspondent, Reith related how he and a few visiting scientists on a recent exploration trip in the cave, nearly met with a serious accident or death. Equipped with moving picture cameras, searchlights, rifles, ammunition and other supplies, they had descended into the dark recesses of the earth's interior. For hours they made their way, climbing and crawling until they finally arrived at lake Inferior where they beheld as a greeting ahead of them the red and green port lights of S. S. "Suomi" which was to carry them across the subterranean lakes. At the gang plank, Capt. Hermanson informed them that the "team

Special Features of the Oldsmobile

Oldsmobile owners may now have their cars equipped with a specially designed and built radio set that is declared to be far superior to any that has heretofore been available for Oldsmobile closed cars. It is announced by R. M. W. Shaw, Sales Manager. This is the new B. O. P. all-electric superheterodyne radio set, designed and built especially for the Buick-Olds-Pontiac Sales Company of Detroit.

All Oldsmobile closed models are wired for radio at the factory, the new radio can be installed at slight cost. The dial control unit of the set is so built that it can be installed without injury to the instrument panel, and can be easily removed if desired.

A leading feature of the new set is its fine tone quality. The advanced superheterodyne circuit, with new type tubes, produces a tone pleasing to people accustomed to the best home sets. Only seven tubes are required to do the work of many ordinary tubes. An automatic volume control provides constant volume and eliminates fading while driving.

Unusual depth, brilliance and resonance is provided by a full electric dynamic speaker. This reproduces a complete range, from deep bass to high treble. A tone selector in the control unit permits adjustment to emphasize either low or high pitch tones, as desired. Quiet tuning is another feature, sounds usually heard between stations being reduced to a minimum.

The entire set operates at high efficiency, with a minimum of current consumption. No batteries are required except the regular car battery, an exclusive type of "B" power unit being located in the speaker housing. This minimizes the tendency toward interference from the car's electrical system.

Farewell Party

Mr. and Mrs. Chatlle Jordan entertained at a farewell party for Mr. and Mrs. Joe Trimble, who left Wednesday for Tucuman where they will make their future home. Joe has purchased a bakery at that place which he will operate and we wish him success. Music was furnished by a four-piece orchestra and dancing was indulged in until 11:30, after which refreshments were served.

was up and the 'chooper was ready to make the 'rip.' With the rattle of the whistles the last of the equipment went down into the holds. The stern line was dropped and with a shrill blast of the siren and ringing of the engine telegraph the "Suomi" sped away from the shore, her screw churning the black water and leaving a streak of foam behind her stern. - To be continued.

New Thrill for Winter Sports Enthusiasts

Complying With the Law at Berea, Ohio

The town council of Berea, Ohio, a suburb of Cleveland, recently passed an ordinance requiring any animal, driven or ridden through the streets, to be equipped with tail lights. Miss Marion Boehm is pictured here as she started on a late afternoon ride equipped in compliance with the latest edict of the town's solons.

Chancellor Chamberlain Says Great Britain Wants War Debt Cancellation—Inflationists Lose in Senate—Lame Duck Amendment Ratified.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

Chancellor Chamberlain

GREAT BRITAIN has been invited to discuss with the United States the war debts with a view to revision and possible reduction, the invitation having been extended by the Hoover administration with the almost certain concurrence of President-Elect Roosevelt. The conference, if the British accept, will be held in March; and it will be followed immediately by similar conferences with the nations that are not in default in payment to this country, namely, Italy, Lithuania, Czechoslovakia, Finland and Latvia.

But Secretary of State Stimson, in sending out the invitations, omitted France, Belgium, Poland, Hungary and Estonia, the nations that have defaulted; and this, too, it is understood, met with the approval of Mr. Roosevelt, who will be President when the negotiations are under way.

However, there were indications in Washington that Mr. Roosevelt will have arranged separate conferences with the defaulters. England is especially interested in having France included in such arrangements as may be made, believing a final settlement of debt and economic subjects cannot well be reached unless France is taken into account.

Representative Rainey of Illinois, Democratic floor leader in the house, seemed to be roused by the news. "The conferences won't amount to anything, in my opinion," Rainey said, "because the American people are not going to stand for a reduction in the debt."

"The debt conferences should be linked with the world economic conference. The thing to do is to bring about a removal of international trade barriers so that trade can be revived. The conferences already projected hold only a possibility of opening up trade routes and giving the debtors a chance to pay."

England accepted the invitation, and her stand on the war debt question was stated plainly by Chancellor Neville Chamberlain in an address before the Leeds Chamber of Commerce. Briefly, the British government will ask either cancellation or reduction so drastic that it will almost amount to the same thing. If this cannot be obtained, said Chamberlain, the settlement reached must be final and must not involve resumption of the German reparations. "To disturb the Lausanne agreement," he said, "would be to reopen old wounds and to destroy for an indefinite period all prospect of agreement on matters affecting the happiness and prosperity not merely of Europe but of the whole world."

Undertaking to explain the matter to "the farmer of the Middle West," the chancellor said that if the war debt payments were to be resumed they could not be made by loans or by further shipments of gold. "Effective means of paying," he continued, "would have to be found and they could only be found by increasing sales of foreign goods to America or, what would come to the same thing, by diminishing purchases from America."

THERE will be no more lame duck sessions of congress, for the Twentieth amendment to the Constitution has now been ratified by more than 30 states and will go into effect October 15 next. Action by the Missouri legislature clinched it and several other legislatures came into line the same day. Under this amendment both senators and representatives assume office on January 3 following their election. The President and Vice President take office on January 20 following election. The newly elected congress is automatically called into session on January 3 and on the same date one year later. The changes do not affect the terms of Hoover and Curtis or any member of the present congress.

Adoption of the amendment is something of a personal victory for Senator Norris of Nebraska who fought for it through many years. It was passed by the senate several times but always previously was blocked in the house.

INFLATIONISTS are becoming more vociferous and apparently more numerous daily in Washington, but at this writing they have not got anywhere. Their first big effort was put forth during debate on the Glass banking bill in the senate. Wheeler of Montana, Independent Democrat, offered an amendment providing for the free coinage of silver at the rate of sixteen to one—the old formula of William Jennings Bryan—and Huey Long of Louisiana proposed another amendment authorizing the government purchase of silver and stabilization at approximately 14.35 to 1.

After violent discussion both these schemes were defeated, by a vote of 50 to 13 in each case.

During the debate Senator Tom Connally of Texas increased the perplexity of the senate by announcing he was preparing a measure to debase the gold content of the dollar by one-third and perhaps, if it were constitutional, to forbid individuals making contracts calling for payment in dollars of current weight and fineness. Both Senator Glass and Senator Fess argued strongly against all the inflation proposals, as did Reed of Pennsylvania.

After being badly mangled by amendments the Glass banking bill was passed by the senate. Its fate in the house is problematical.

FARMERS are to have the opportunity of borrowing $90,000,000 from Uncle Sam with which to produce this year's crops, unless the bill passed by congress is killed by a Presidential veto. The measure makes available the sum named of the unused balance of $200,000,000 of U. S. C. funds allocated to agriculture. The loans will be made for planting, fallowing and cultivation, and the secretary of agriculture is empowered to exact from borrowers agreements to reduce acreage not to exceed 30 per cent. One million dollars is allocated for feed for farm live stock in drought and storm stricken areas.

Farm bloc members of congress defended the bill, asserting there would be widespread suffering on the farms unless such loans were authorized. Many members, however, attacked it as paternalistic, socialistic and bound to increase farm product surpluses. Snell of New York, minority leader, declared it was utterly inconsistent with the pending domestic allotment measure, the purpose of which is to increase farm product prices and decrease acreage.

The senate agriculture committee began hearings on the domestic allotment bill Wednesday, hoping they would be completed in a week or so. The same arguments for and against it that were heard in the house were repeated.

MR. ROOSEVELT, in Warm Springs after his inspection of Muscle Shoals, was busy studying the problems that will come before him and conferred with many notable men of his party and a few who are not of that persuasion. Among his callers were several who, according to the cabinet makers, have good chances of being offered portfolios.

Among these was Bronson Cutting, the senator from New Mexico who bolted the Republican ticket last fall and helped elect Roosevelt. The gossip was that he would be made secretary of the interior if he were willing to accept the place. Senator Cutting was accompanied on his visit by Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, another "rebel" Republican.

Bernard M. Baruch of New York, chairman of the emergency national transportation committee, also was in Warm Springs helping the President-Elect prepare his program and giving advice especially on the railroad situation. There was talk that he might be appointed secretary of state, probably the only cabinet position he would take, though many still thought that position would go to either Senator Walsh of Montana, Owen D. Young or Norman Davis. Mr. Roosevelt told the correspondents he might announce one cabinet choice before going on his yacht trip, but no more than one. Presumably that will be Jim Farley, who it is conceded will be postmaster general.

PRESIDENT HOOVER vetoed the first deficiency bill, carrying appropriations of $31,000,000 and the house upheld his action, the vote being 192 to 159. The President disapproved of the measure because he and Attorney General Mitchell held unconstitutional a provision placing control of all substantial refunds from income, gift and inheritance taxes in the hands of a joint congressional committee. Senator McKeellar indicated that he would make another attempt to remove control over refunds from the treasury.

ELIMINATION of the citizens' military training camps as an economy move was rejected by the house, which added $2,500,000 to the War department appropriation bill to insure their continuance. Also $500,000 was added to the appropriation for the reserve officers' corps. The measure was then passed.

The senate finance committee reported the house beer bill amended to include wine and to provide 2.05 per cent alcoholic content. This measure may get through congress before adjournment but probably will be vetoed if it does.

Beware the Cough or Cold that Hangs On

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified crocote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, crocote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to crocote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the crocote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

SYNOPSIS

Owen Landis, young inventor, in the little town of Carthage, has developed an extraordinary "silencer" which is stolen from a safe in his laboratory. Landis tells Wally Markham, his chum, the only person beside himself, knowing the combination of the safe, is Betty Lawson, daughter of a college professor, with whom the inventor is in love. Markham takes a plaster cast of a woman's footprint, found beneath the window of the laboratory, and takes an opportunity to fit it to one of Betty's shoes. They are identical.

"I was a perfect dshrag! It made me furious. To think that I can play my eighteen holes of golf and come up smiling, and yet be wrong dry by a few hours on the stage!"

"Action and reaction," he suggested. "Nothing is more stimulating than playing to an appreciative audience, especially when the player makes such a cracking success of a part as you did of yours last night. And the aftermath of any stimulus is apt to be a let-down that leaves you flat and with a dark-brown taste in your mouth. You ought to have had a bit of supper after the play."

"I did that very thing. Bert took me to Pizzoni's."

He marked the familiar "Bert" as applied to Canby, setting it down as a measure of the distance Canby had come on the road of the rusher, though a moment's reflection told him that it might mean little in Betty's mouth. She was nothing if not modern.

"And after the supper Canby drove you home in his car?"

She nodded. "If had to, I was so sleepy I could scarcely hold my eyes open."

"Still, I suppose the long way-around was the shortest way home, at that, wasn't it?" he thrust in, with his good-natured grin.

"It might have been," she admitted. "To tell the truth, I was so tired and sleepy that Bert may have been driving circles around the block for all I knew, or cared."

"Bert," he said; "it's 'Bert' and 'Betty' already, is it?"

"Whoops!" she laughed. "Is that the way you feel about it? But what do you expect? You home boys are so slow. Bert signed me up for last night nearly three weeks ago, and you didn't ask me until day before yesterday. A girl has to take what she can get, doesn't she?"

"I suppose so," he yielded. In all of this lighthearted give-and-take she was the Betty he knew best; teasingly vivacious, altogether frank and friendly, wholly unembarrassed. If she were wearing a mask for him it fitted faultlessly.

His thoughts whipped back to the performance of the night before; to her almost inspired interpretation of her part in the play. Was she acting a part now?

"Some girls can reach out and take anything they have a fancy for," he said, answering her query; "you, for one, Betty, dear. You'll have a lot to answer for by the time you're a woman grown."

"I like that—a woman grown!" she retorted. "Am I not white, free and—well, perhaps not quite twenty-one, but near enough to take the curse off Never mind; if you think I'm a menace to the peace of Carthage, the menace will be removed after Commencement. Daddy is going out to the wild and woolly for the summer, and he is threatening to take me along."

"Fossil hunting, I suppose?" Though the professor filled the chair of physics in the college it was well known that his hobby was paleontology.

"It wouldn't be anything else. But he promises not to take me into the wilds unless I want to go. We have friends in Brewster, in the Timanyon, and I'm to visit with them."

"You'll have a good time, wherever you are, trust you for that," he averred. "All the same, we shall miss you, or we'll say Bert Canby will miss you."

"What makes you say that so spitefully? You shouldn't be narrow, Wally, dear."

"No," he agreed mildly, "nobody should be narrow. But I don't care so awfully much for Canby; for one thing, his eyes are too close together."

"And for other things I suppose you'd say he is too good-looking, dresses too well, is too successful in business, plays too good a game of golf and bridge. I'm afraid you are hopeless, Wally."

"Hopeless, and rather proud of it," he laughed, getting up to go. "Would you like to take a little spin this fine morning?"

"Too busy, thank you. I've a world of things to do before we close the house for the summer."

"All right," he acquiesced, "I'll vanish and let you get at it." And with that he took his leave, with the mystery of the black box's disappearance as dense as it had been when he alighted from his car at the Lawson door.

CHAPTER IV

Broken Threads

During the four days which intervened between the disappearance of Landis' black box and the college Commencement, Markham burrowed patiently—and alone. If the footprints under Landis' laboratory window had been made by Betty Lawson, her companion, and accomplice, must have been Herbert Canby. Hence, during the four-day interval, Markham spent most of his time keeping the promoter of real estate schemes under quiet surveillance.

Nothing definitely helpful came of this. So far as outward appearance went, Canby ate, drank and slept the Greater-Carthage scheme to the exclusion of most other interests; also, he was gradually overcoming the obstacle of small-city conservatism—to the substantial increase of his deposits in the Carthage Saving Bank & Trust, of which Markham senior was the president.

Wally dropped in upon his father at the bank for a word of counsel. The young man had inherited a comfortable competence from his grandfather, the bulk of which was invested in a local flour and implement factory, the future expansion of which was threatened by one of the ramifications of Canby's schemes.

"About that tract adjoining the shops," Wally began. "I was told that Canby is trying to get an option on it. Do you know anything about it?"

"Nothing definite. Gaultney—he's taken over the handling of the estate—was here yesterday, and he said nothing about it. I'm reasonably sure he would give us a chance if anybody else were trying to tie the tract up."

"I hope he would. But Canby is pretty engaged in his deals, and he knows how much we're going to need that piece of ground some day."

"You needn't worry a bit about Canby, Wally. He's nothing but a noisy false alarm—as a good many people in this town are going to find out before they are through with him. As yet, nobody can put a finger upon anything he has done that you could call crooked, or even shady. Just the same, I shan't be surprised any day if the bookkeeper comes in to tell me that Canby's account has been checked out, lock, stock and barrel. When that happens, if it happens, I'm thinking we shall have seen the last of the young man who says he's from New York."

Markham sought Landis in his backyard workshop, and found the robbed inventor a prey to the most gloomy forebodings touching the use to which his stolen invention might be put.

"It's a total loss, Wally," was the way he described his condition; "can't work—can't even think straight. And now Betty tells me she's leaving Carthage for the entire summer."

Markham laughed. "Which is another way of saying that the worst is yet to come, eh?" Then, "When did you see Betty?"

"Yesterday. She came to the house to tell the folks goodbye. They are leaving for the West tomorrow, she and her father."

"Did she come out here to your shop?"

"Oh, she couldn't well do less than to include me in the goodbyes."

"Well, what did you talk about?"

"Shucks! I wasn't fit to talk about anything. She saw it and tried to jolly me up. Wanted to know if I couldn't take the summer off and go out to the wilderness with her and her father. Of course, she didn't mean it."

"Of course not," Markham agreed brutally. "As you say, she was merely trying to jolly you up a bit. But what about the black box? Any new developments?"

"Nothing; less than nothing. I've been buying newspapers from all around and reading them for the crime news. Plenty of crime, of course, but nothing to hint at any mystery. But it will come, you mark my words!"

"Good stunt, that—watching the papers. Keep it up."

"I shall, I suppose you haven't learned anything?"

"Nothing that you could give a name to," Markham evaded. Obviously, he couldn't tell Landis the length to which he had gone in checking up the scoured shoe. Neither could he make any mention of his suspicions of Canby, since Landis knew that Canby was Betty's escort on the night of the play. It was a mess, any way one chose to look at it.

Later that afternoon Markham learned from the room clerk of the Collier house, where Canby had his rooms, that the promoter had left town, to be away overnight. Whereupon he took another lawless step in the path which, up to the present, had led nowhere. Ormsbury, manager of the hotel, was a time-tried friend, and to him Markham appealed.

"You know me pretty well, John, and I'm going to ask you to break all hotel traditions for me," was the way he began on Ormsbury. "I want to borrow the master key to the rooms on the third floor for a few minutes. Do I get it?"

"You've got your nerve, Wally," Ormsbury chuckled. "What's your lay this time? Are you posing as a room thief? Or are you playing around as an amateur detective? Whose rooms do you want to break into?"

"Can't we let the room number hang up in the air for the time being? I don't want to point a suspicion unless there is something to point it at."

"Then you are sleuthing? Why not turn it over to the police, and so stay on the windward side of the law? I suppose you know what will happen if you should be caught out between bases?"

"Of course. But I'm not going to be caught out. The rooms I want to break into are unoccupied just now, and you may be sure I'll leave them exactly as I find them."

"You've given yourself away," said the manager, with a laugh. "There is nobody away on the third floor excepting Mr. Canby. What have you got on him, Wally?"

"Nothing at all, I merely want to see how he lives when he's at home."

"All right," Ormsbury agreed, producing the coveted passkey. "It's smashing the traditions, as you say, but I'm banking on your discretion. Don't you want an authorized witness along?"

"No; you'd better not come. What you don't know you can swear you don't know. If anything develops, I'll promise you'll be the first to know it. Won't that answer?"

"I guess so—for this one time. But, for the Lord's sake, be careful!"

With the pick-lock key in his possession Markham made sure there was no one looking on in the corridor when he opened the door of Canby's sitting room and let himself in. The sitting room, bath, and the adjoining bedroom were all in-order, and it took him but a few minutes to make a rapid but thorough search in every nook and corner large enough to conceal Landis' black box. He didn't find the box; he had scarcely hoped to.

It was when he was shutting the doors of the clothes closet wardrobe in the bedroom that he made a discovery. One of the several suits of clothes had fallen from its hook, and when he reached down to prevent it from interfering with the closing of the door he found that the bottom board of the piece of furniture was loose.

Laying the fallen suit aside, he lifted it. Underneath there was an enclosed space of a few inches in depth. At the farther end his groping hand came in contact with a leather bag lying flat. When he tried to lift it, it was so heavy that he had to take both hands.

Taken from its hiding place and opened upon the floor, the case contained nothing to throw light upon Landis' loss; still, its contents were surprising. First, wrapped in a chamomile skin, there were two large caliber automatics, new, well oiled and with the magazines filled with cartridges. Next came a larger piece of leather which served as a wrapping for a set of tools, drills, files, steel saws, cut-nippers, pliers, a bunch of objects that he took to be skeleton keys, and, lastly a short steel bar drawn to a chisel-end at either extremity and beautifully tempered; each piece looking to be as new and unused as the automatics.

Having, as he believed, plenty of time at his disposal, Markham drew up a chair and sat down to consider his prize thoughtfully. Of course, there was no doubt as to its nature. It was a complete kit of burglar's tools, with the guns to back it up, a spare kit, as it appeared, since there was every indication that the tools had never been used or the guns fired. What was Canby, figuring as an energetic young promoter intent upon making Carthage grow, doing with a burglar's kit hidden in his wardrobe?

During the four days in which he had been quietly pursuing his investigations Markham had found the circumstantial evidence, based on clues revealed the morning following the robbery, gradually losing its hold. Apart from the fact that Betty Lawson had demonstrated, or had seemed to demonstrate, her innocence of any part in the robbery, Markham was reluctantly compelled to admit that, up to the present moment, he had discovered nothing upon which to hang an assumption of Canby's guilt. Moreover, if Betty were innocent, her acquittal necessarily cleared the young promoter, since the two were together from the close of the theater performance up to and including the return to the Lawson house. Yet here was this burglar's kit, cunningly hidden in Canby's bedroom, to muddy a pool of his thoughts.

Deep in a maze of doubt, Markham restraped the bag and returned it to its hiding place. Clearly, the first thing to do was to tell Ormsbury of his discovery. Possibly the hotel manager might be able to indicate the next step to be taken. In replacing the bag he tried to leave everything just as he found it, rearranging the fallen suit of clothes so that it might appear as if it had not been disturbed, and turning the key in the lock of the wardrobe door.

Five minutes later he was handing the passkey to Ormsbury and congratulating himself upon an exceedingly narrow escape. For, as he emerged from the elevator he had seen Canby getting his own proper key from the clerk.

"If I had delayed a few minutes longer," Markham said to Ormsbury, "he would have caught me red-handed!"

Ormsbury grinned. "It would have served you right. I don't quite see how you could have ducked out of it."

"Neither do I. At the same time, I found something that needs an explanation quite as much as my presence in Canby's rooms would have, if he had found me there."

"What was the something?"

"A pair of man-size automatics wrapped up in a complete outfit of burglar's tools, hidden under the bottom board in Canby's wardrobe."

Lesson for February 12

JESUS TEACHING BY PARABLES—FOUR KINDS OF HEARERS

LESSON TEXT—Mark 4:1-20. GOLDEN TEXT—Hearin is my Father glorified, that ye hear much fruit; so shall ye be my disciples. John 15:8. PRIMARY TOPIC—A Story Jesus Told.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Right Way to Hear. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Hear. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Fruitful Christian Living.

In order to understand why Christ at this time began teaching in parables, we must consider the nature of the hour in his ministry. Opposition to him was becoming more definite and hostile. The parabolic method was not employed by Jesus until the rulers had set their hearts against him. When in the light of his wonderful works they turned against him and attributed his works to the devil (Mark 3:22), he denounced them in scathing terms and began to teach in parables in fulfillment of Isaiah 6:10.

A great multitude gathered to hear him at the seaside (v. 1), so that in order to escape the pressure of the crowd he was obliged to enter a boat. From the boat as a pulpit, he taught many things in parables. In the parable now under consideration, the sower and the seed are the same in all instances, but the results are entirely different. The difference lies in the condition of the soil. The central purpose of the teaching of this parable is to show that the results of preaching the Word of God depend upon the condition of the human heart.

i. The Wayside (v. 4:15). The wayside means not the road but the tract between the fields beaten down by the hoofs of animals and the feet of men. Because the soil was unbroken and uncultivated the seed could not get underneath the surface; and therefore was devoured by the fowls that came along (v. 4). The great truth taught here is that the heart unbroken and hard is not fit soil for the gospel. Such a heart it penetrates not, but lies loosely upon its surface. The gospel is not given recognition by such hearts as God's means for restoring them unto himself. Because of this condition the evil one finds some way to snatch away the truth (v. 15).

ii. The Stony Ground (v. 5, 6, 16, 17). This means not stones mixed with soil, but stones with a thin layer of soil on top of them. With such condition the seed springs up quickly and likewise scorches quickly because it has not depth of earth. The great lesson is that hearts superficially impressed receive the word with joy, but when affliction or persecution arises, for the word's sake immediately they are offended. They wither away and die.

iii. The Thorny Ground (v. 7, 18, 19). In this case the ground is good but has thorns in it. It is mellow enough and has sufficient depth but has not been cleared of the thorns. Such really hear the Word, but the cares of this world, and the lusts of other things entering in, choke the word, and it becometh unfruitful" (v. 19). The thorny ground hearers of this world are those:

1. Who are so immersed in worldliness, business and anxious cares that the good seed cannot come to fruitage.

2. Who are rich. Anxious care in business brings riches and the effect of riches is to blunt the spiritual perception of men and women, thereby rendering them unamenable to God's call to higher things in life.

3. Who are running after the pleasures of life. Many of the enjoyments of the world may be innocent in themselves but they attract so much attention and consume so much energy and time that Bible reading, meditation, and prayer are crowded out. All these things choke the Word.

iv. The Good Ground (v. 8, 20). This ground is different from all the rest. It is soft and mellow, and deep and moist. Therefore, it is capable of bringing forth fruit—some one hundred, some sixty, and some thirtyfold. This indicates that even the good ground, the honest hearer, gives forth different degrees of fruitfulness. In the measure that the heart is kept free from worldliness, riches, and pleasure, the good seed matures.

Continuing Love One cannot think that any holy earthly love will cease, when we shall be like the angels of God in heaven. Love here must shadow our love there, deeper because spiritual.

Trust in God God will not take away our immortality, because we have so little enjoyed the hope of it. Rest your head, childlike, on the one visible arm of the paternal Deity, though you cannot see distinctly where the other and outstretched arm is pointing. That leads not wrong.—W. Smith.

The Sabbath I feel as if God had, by giving the Sabbath, given fifty-two springs in every year.—S. T. Coleridge.

WHY NOT AARON? The circus was doing badly and funds sank lower and lower. At last the cashier pinned up a notice announcing that in future salaries would be paid as funds permitted, and that artists would be paid in the alphabetical order of names.

Next day Zero, the strong man, called on the cashier. "I have come," he said, "to tell you that I have changed my name." "Oh!" replied the cashier. "And what are you going to call yourself now?" "Achilles."—Tit-Bits.

Mother of 7—Still Young

THE woman who gives her organs the right stimulant need not worry about growing old. Her system doesn't stagnate; her face doesn't age. She has the health and "pep" that come from a lively liver and strong, active bowels.

When you're sluggish and the system needs help, don't take a lot of "patent medicines." There's a famous doctor's prescription for just such cases, and every druggist keeps this standard preparation. It is made from fresh laxative herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. Just ask for Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. Take a little every day or so, until every organ in your body feels the big improvement.

The next time you have a bilious headache, or feel all bound-up, take this delicious syrup instead of the usual cathartic. You'll be rid of all that poisonous waste, and you haven't weakened the bowels. You'll have a better appetite, and feel better in every way. The constant use of cathartics is often the cause of a sallow complexion and lines in the face. And so unnecessary!

Would you like to break yourself of the cathartic habit? At the same time building health and vigor that protects you from frequent sick spells, headaches, and colds? Get a big bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin today. Use often enough to avoid those attacks of constipation. When you feel weak and run-down or a coated tongue or bad breath warns you the bowels need to be stimulated. Give it to children instead of strong laxatives that sap their strength. It isn't expensive.

Women Branching Out Women in the United States are succeeding in increasing numbers in such trades as plumbing, paperhanging, carpentry, forestry, and dentistry.

THEY HAVE FOUND A 3-MINUTE WAY TO RELIEVE SORE THROAT

All Pain And Soreness Eased In Few Minutes This Simple Way

Proves Only Medicine Halps A Sore Throat

Modern medical science now throws an entirely new light on sore throat. A way that eases the pain, rawness and irritation in as little as two or three minutes.

Results are among the most extraordinary in medical science. On doctors' advice, millions are following this way... discarding old-time "washes" and "antiseptics." For it has been found that only medicine can help a sore throat.

Simple To Do. All you do is crush and dissolve three BAYER Aspirin Tablets in half a glass of water. Gargle with it twice—as pictured above. If you have any indication of a cold—before gargling take 2 Bayer Aspirin Tablets with a full glass of water. This is to combat any signs of cold that have gone into your system. Keep on taking if cold has a "hold." For Genuine Bayer Aspirin will not harm you. Your doctor will tell you, it does not depress the heart. Get a box of 12 or a bottle of 100 at any drug store.

Reduces Infection, Eases Pain Instantly. Gargling with Bayer Aspirin will do three things: Relieve soreness at once. Alleviate inflammation. AND—reduce infection; which is the important thing in fighting a sore throat.

It requires medicine—like BAYER ASPIRIN—to do these things! That is why throat specialists throughout America are prescribing this BAYER gargle in place of old-time ways. Results are quick and amazing.

Be careful, however, that you get real BAYER Aspirin Tablets for this purpose. For they dissolve completely, bringing to gargle without leaving irritating particles. Watch this when you buy.

NO TABLETS ARE GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN WITHOUT THIS CROSS

A Helpful Hint

Give your skin the protection of the best and safest soap. The experience of millions, during the past fifty years, tells you that your best choice is Cuticura Soap. Use it regularly every day; it not only cleanses but keeps the skin in good condition, freeing it from all causes of irritation.

For Skin Health

Farmers and Stockmen Organizing

Dr. and Mrs. Carl E. Freeman returned Monday from Portales, where Dr. Freeman attended a meeting of the farmers and stockmen of Curry County.

At a meeting held last Saturday, a moratorium of farm mortgage foreclosures was discussed and resolutions drafted, condemning graft in the offices of delinquent tax collectors, and requesting a holiday in the 12 and 18 per cent penalties assessed.

Another meeting was called for Clovis, to be held Saturday, Feb. 11, and others to be held in the near future at different cities over the state.

R. C. Sowder, who spent last Saturday here from his ranch near Fort Sumner, also told of the organization of stockmen and farmers in DeBaca County, of which organization he is president. At their last meeting similar resolutions were adopted as were in Curry County, and the same measure of contempt was expressed at graft in the offices of delinquent tax collectors.

Other counties are rapidly falling into line and the movement to eliminate graft is spreading, not only in New Mexico, but all over the country.

It will be remembered that certain public officials have said, "tax until it hurts"—and it has been hurting too long now.

It would seem that with all the talk and agitation about reduction in taxes, as soon as we get our offices filled, they begin increasing taxes and adding penalties until the people are aroused for action.

OLDSMOBILE • CHEVROLET DEALER

the First Public Showing of the
NEW OLDSMOBILE 6 and 8

STYLE LEADERS FOR 1933

THE NEW SIX

THE NEW EIGHT

We take great pleasure in announcing our appointment as dealer for the Oldsmobile 6 and 8 in this community.

These two new style leaders for 1933—a roomier, more powerful Oldsmobile Six at $745, and a larger, more luxurious Eight at $845—are now on display at our salesrooms, where we cordially invite you to see them and have a demonstration.

They are entirely different from anything you ever saw. New Fisher bodies—radiators—lamps—hoods. New fenders and wheels. New rear contours. Everywhere, a striking new smartness that would win acclaim at double the price.

And with all this style appeal, the 1933 Oldsmobiles are brilliant, dependable performers, greatly advanced in engineering. Both the 80 h.p. Six engine and the 90 h.p. Straight Eight engine are cradled in rubber with a three-point mounting of new scientific design, making these inherently smooth power plants quiet and smoother throughout the entire speed range. Fisher No Draft Ventilation, Individually Controlled, beyond question the greatest contribution to comfort, health and safety since the introduction of the closed body, is built into all 1933 Oldsmobile closed cars.

In addition to our display of the new Oldsmobiles, we invite you to inspect our facilities for servicing Oldsmobile cars. Our service department is already stocked with genuine Oldsmobile parts and equipped with factory-approved machines and tools, in charge of expert mechanics, assuring a high standard of prompt, efficient service. We will also continue to provide Chevrolet owners with the same complete service they have enjoyed in the past.

See the new Oldsmobiles at your earliest convenience, and arrange a trial ride for a demonstration of the balanced excellence now available in these cars, at the lowest prices in ten years—$745 and up, f. o. b. Lansing—bumpers and spare tire extra.

Prehistoric Life in Kentucky Uncovered

Here are some of the skeletons and relics brought to light during the excavations near Wickliffe, Ky., now being carried out by Vain W. King, retired Paducah lumberman, which archeologists agree furnish the best pictures ever discovered of prehistoric life in the United States. From the great number of skeletons found, they believe this may have been the site of a metropolis 3,000 years ago.

American Heroines

Polly Merrill

FATHER—and Mother Merrill had gone off to a neighboring plantation on business, leaving at home their three children, with sixteen-year-old Polly in charge, under careful instructions to keep Peter, aged three, out of mischief, put the bread-in to bake at ten, and not to be afraid of Tories, as none had been seen thereabouts for some time. For this was in the year 1780, when the Revolution was nearing its close, and North Carolina was overrun by the British.

Father and mother were scarce gone from home, however, when a band of the dreaded Tories were sighted approaching the house. Polly was wise enough in the ways of these marauding bands to know they were probably after father's money, of which he had received a fair sum in payment of a debt some days before. Quick as a thought, sending her younger sister to get the wallet which held the money out of its hiding place, she molded the bread dough into loaves. Then, pouring the gold into the bottom of her pans, she pressed the dough over it, and pushed her morning's baking into the hot oven.

The British were indeed after the money. When Polly, with red cheeks and beating heart, defied them to find it, they commenced ransacking the house, and soon found Mr. Merrill's wallet, which had been emptied in such haste that a few coins remained in it, and rolled out on the floor. Polly watched with her heart in her mouth. Then up ran little Peter, to pick up the money, give it to the officer, and crow delightedly, "Pretty money. More in fower!"

Polly's heart sank. Apparently Peter had seen her hide the precious gold. In terror she watched her little brother take the British officer's hand and lead him, out to the kitchen, and then, curiously enough, out the back door to the flower garden. Then she sighed in relief. She knew what Peter had in mind.

Out in the garden the Tories commenced digging, ruthlessly uprooting rose bushes and alysum. Finally their shovels hit something hard. In triumph they dug up a wooden box. Opening it, they found the body of Peter's pet rabbit, which had died to his inconsolable grief, and been buried in the garden the day before. A few minutes later, alarmed at the reported approach of American troops under Marion, the chagrined Tories mounted their horses and rode away.

Mary Lindley Murray

A CENTURY and a half ago it was a woman's part to mind her home and children and leave the making of history to the men. But Mary Lindley Murray not only minded one of the most splendid homes in early New York city, was a popular hostess and mother of two charming daughters and of Lindley Murray, the famous grammarian, but it has been claimed that but for her, "The history of the United States might easily have been different!"

Mrs. Murray was the wife of Robert Murray, the Quaker merchant after whom Murray Hill was named. Although her husband was known to have Tory sympathies, she was an ardent rebel. In fact General Washington at one time made her home his headquarters during an important council of war.

After his defeat at the hands of the British at the Battle of Long Island, in August of 1776, Washington retreated across East river and into lower Manhattan. By September 13 the British had gained control of both the East and Hudson rivers, so that Washington felt his position in New York city untenable and commenced a retreat northward, to a more strategic location on Harlem Heights. This move was only partially completed, and General Putnam with 4,000 men, nearly one-fourth of the Colonial army, still remained in lower Manhattan, when the British decided to throw a line across the island, cutting off further retreat.

From her home at the corner of what is now Park avenue and Thirty-seventh street, Mrs. Murray watched the retreat of the Americans and the coming of the British with anxious eyes. She planned her campaign. In view of her husband's Tory sympathies it was but natural that the British leaders, Generals Howe and Clinton and Governor Tryon, should stop by the Murray house for a chat. Moreover, their trap for the Americans was almost set: General Putnam and his men were practically there. So they satgated the house gladly, leaving their men loitering impatiently outside. For two precious hours Mrs. Murray kept them there, plying them with wine from the famous Murray cellar, with compliments and witticisms. Meanwhile, aided by the young Aaron Burr and under cover of a nearby wood, General Putnam moved his entire troops northward and out of danger. The following day the Colonists won the Battle of Harlem Heights.

At the present time plans are afoot to commemorate the services of Mrs. Murray by erecting an imposing monument over the Thirty-fourth street portal of the subway tunnel on Park avenue.

RADIOTIC

AFTER HALF CENTURY

In 1874 a traveler named Rohifa crossed the Libyan desert in the direction of Kufra, which the Italians recently captured from the Senussi tribes. Rohifa wrote a message giving his own name and the date, enclosed it in a bottle, buried it in the sand at a place called Regnid, and returned to civilization. The bottle and the message have now been discovered. The Arctic embalms its secrets for hundreds of years, the bodies of men in the ice, their writings, their foods, their property; but who would expect such oddity in the burning sands of the wilderness, where wood and horn and glass and even fingernails split in the heat, and hair falls out?

TRY THIS! When children won't eat—and won't gain weight

The youngster who has no appetite, probably has stasis. A little syrup of figs will soon correct this condition—then watch the child eat—and gain!

Mothers should never coax a child to eat. Nature knows best. Remove the cause of a youngster's poor appetite—get rid of stasis. Children who don't eat are sluggish. Read what the "California treatment" is doing for sluggish, listless children in every part of the country!

A POUND A WEEK. Your child will eat well from the day and hour you conquer sluggishness. But that girl or boy with furry tongue and a bad breath should not be dosed with salts!

Begin tonight, with enough pure syrup of figs to cleanse the colon thoroughly. Less tomorrow, then every other day, or twice a week, until the appetite, digestion, weight, complexion, tell you the stasis is gone. When a cold or other ailment has again clogged the system, syrup of figs will soon set things to right.

When appetite fails, tongue is coated white, eyes are a bilious yellow, California syrup of figs will gently stimulate the colon muscles—and the child you used to coax to eat will fairly devour his food.

The claims made for California Syrup of Figs are true and it will do the same for you—if you get genuine CALIFORNIA Syrup of Figs. Don't accept any substitute.

WHAT'S GOING ON IN WASHINGTON

Congress Headed Straight for Long Extra Session; Many Weighty Problems.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART

Washington.—The wish of a great number of senators and representatives to stay in Washington at least a part of this coming summer is going to be fulfilled. They are headed straight into an extra session of congress, and unless all signs fall it is going to be a long-drawn-out affair.

It always has been the case that a goodly number of the national legislators prefer to stay around the Capital after a furlough, rather than to go home and see the folks. Constituents have a habit of asking embarrassing questions as to why nothing was done about this, that or the other. So, except for a short period between the retirement of Mr. Hoover and the date which President-Elect Roosevelt fixes for the extra session, representatives and senators are likely to be here on the job through much of the summer.

The incoming Chief Executive thus far has kept his own counsel about the extra session, but the wisecracks among the hundreds of volunteer assistants who have tied themselves to him, or have attempted to do so, claim that the extra session will be called around April 20. That will give Mr. Roosevelt roughly seven weeks of the seven months "honeymoon" in the White House for which he asked during his campaign.

Mr. Roosevelt was not the only one who desired to have that honeymoon period at the beginning of his administration. The expressions from business leaders were of the same tenor. They thought, and still believe, the absence of congress from Washington for a while would serve as a tonic for the country by allowing business to move along undisturbed during that time.

Heavy Work Ahead.

There is no better way to depict what kind of a job confronts the extra session than to set down some of the things pressing for decision. Here are just a few of them:

The unbalanced federal budget, with its family of related questions like taxation, economies in government, abolition or consolidation of government functions and the policies necessary to carry out those decisions.

Unemployment relief, with the further call for federal funds for loans to financial houses, railroads, cities and states, and now it is even proposed to make loans to school districts.

War debts, to which is inseparably linked proposals for a world economic conference involving tariff policies, economic restoration, monetary standards (involving valorization of silver), and re-establishment of foreign trade.

Inflation of the currency and its Siamese twin, domestic mortgages, both farm and city. Allied with these two questions necessarily is the question of ways and means to pull our own country out of the depression, and legislation revising national banking and federal reserve laws. The demand for immediate payment of the veterans' bonus has a place in the same picture.

Prohibition in its various phases. The whole category of agricultural problems and prices of commodities and questions of production and distribution.

These are not mentioned in the order of their importance, but they all are with us, and they all must be dealt with.

No one doubts that the extra session will continue for a good many weeks. There is much to be done. A considerable portion of the work to be faced results directly from Democratic party pledges upon which victory was won. But, important as those are, the things that will be left over from the present do-nothing session of congress probably are equally, if not more, important.

That is to say the Democrats have added to their burden by being unable or unwilling to formulate and pass a definite program of legislation in the current session. Take the question of the treasury's finances, for example. Majority Leader Rainey, of the Democratic-controlled house, has abandoned any attempt to balance the budget, or even take steps to do so, in the short session. Taxes and government economies are all tied up in a neat bundle in that one question. It will not be easily solved.

Of course, it must be stated that any program which the house puts through under present conditions will be torn to tatters in the senate, where an even division of membership makes direct action impossible. That is one of the reasons cited, or suggested by Speaker Garner and Mr. Rainey for dropping a financial program until everything is under the control of the Democrats. Yet such a course obviously adds to the load of the extra session and there are many observers who feel also that it increases the possibility of Democratic factional fights.

The rows which the Democrats will have to settle will not arise in all legislation. The tremendous majority will make for reasonably smooth sailing for instance on such things as prohibition repeal and lesser legislation. But when money questions are up, questions of taking more taxes from a tax-ridden electorate, the varieties of views will number at least half as great as the number of representatives and senators.

Mr. Roosevelt campaigned on promises of economy. He proposed to the voters to do away with a truckload or so of government functions. Most of the Democrats in congress made the same sort of arguments. Now, however, it seems as though some of them had their tongues in the cheeks. Economies are necessary, judging from the argument one hears in both house and senate, but make it apply to the other fellow, first.

Farm Relief and Banking.
Among other things due to face the extra session are farm relief and banking legislation. If the senate takes the house "farm parity bill," the domestic allotment plan under another name, it faces a certain veto from President Hoover. The bill over which Senator Carter Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, has worked so long and ably to revise the national banking and federal reserve laws, is going nowhere in this session.

So it is easy to see what gigantic forces will be exerted against two measures which it appears Mr. Roosevelt favors. Each of these bills has opposition spreading from coast to coast, but it remains to be seen whether that opposition is strong enough to break the unit of Democratic strength.

The character of the fight that is to come over the Glass banking bill has been thoroughly demonstrated by that which took place in the senate recently. It is no game at which children can play. There are tremendously big bankers against it, and there a goodly number of little bankers against it. Their objections are not to the same sections, but that is immaterial.

This banking legislation links right into the problems of domestic debts, and that, in turn, is tied like a knot about the use of the Federal Reserve system as an aid to economic restoration.

Back of it all obviously are the two camps, one urging inflation of the currency even to the point of abandoning the gold standard and the other group preaching sound money and retention of the gold standard. This phase of the problem that will be left on Mr. Roosevelt's lap provides an entree into the picture for all of the varied patent medicine legislators who have their own plans for curing everything from the hives to an economic breakdown.

Into this picture also is seen the probable advent of leaders in the movement to pay the soldiers' bonus immediately. Many of them want to pay in currency that has just come from the government presses, and with nothing behind it.

The domestic debt situation also gives the self-appointed type of economic doctors another opportunity. There are farm debts and debts of city home owners over whose heads mortgages hang. Plenty of words will rend the atmosphere about these conditions.

Probably some legislation will come out of the situation, centering around debts. Changes in the bankruptcy laws are now impending, as I explained in an earlier dispatch. The consensus is that this legislation is moving in the right direction and that something worthwhile will eventuate.

That legislation, however, has only a very slight connection with the general farm problem. It may, and probably will, result in help in the case of mortgages of city property, but it will not deal with mortgages on farm lands. Those mortgages are so great that distinctive and separate consideration must be given them.

Complex Foreign Questions.

Mr. Roosevelt lately has given much thought to the whole category of foreign questions, too. Some of them are in a situation at present that indicates they are growing in complexity. I refer to the Japanese-Eastern condition, particularly, but there are disturbing elements in South and Central America as well.

It can be seen, without recourse to imagination, that these are closely related to war debts. Any mention of war debts connects up at once with international tariff policies, and Mr. Roosevelt is proposing some sort of an international new deal with respect to the high tariff walls erected in so many countries.

Congress has said it would have nothing to do with any proposals for war debt revision, but it is going to have that subject before it whether it likes the idea or not. It is extremely improbable that there will be any revision, yet it must be recalled that such men as Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, have said they would not be averse to a scaling down of the war debt, provided they can enforce a limitation on the other nations also to cut down on their expenditures for arms and munitions of war. Let it not be forgotten, the Borah view is gaining.

Then, too, it must be recalled that Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, a Democrat and an astute leader, is promoting an idea about world-wide agreement on tariffs and is seeking to enforce reduction in arms expenditures along with it.

These are all of uncertain form at present. But the ideas are not without merit in the opinion of leaders everywhere. They must be reckoned with, and in the extra session, too.

Thus, when one studies the picture and observes all the detail, it can hardly be doubted that the extra session is in for a peck of trouble. The nature of the problems and the conditions of the people of this nation and of the world preclude any evasion.

LIVER'S HIGH VALUE IN ANEMIA CASES

Reasons for Its Use in the General Diet.

Pernicious anemia is a disease quite different from simple anemia, from which we can be protected by a diet high in iron salts. In pernicious anemia the red blood cells are destroyed too rapidly by some, at present, unknown toxin in the blood. There is always accompanying the disease a condition of low hydrochloric acid in the stomach, which may be a cause or an effect.

A specialist on this disease states that in tracing the history of the cases of pernicious anemia which he has treated, he has invariably found that this condition of hypo-acidity has existed for some time, sometimes as long as ten years before pernicious anemia develops, and even after the disease is cured; the non-acid condition continues. Although we are uncertain of the exact relationship between the two conditions, let me remind you that every digestive disturbance that is more than temporary should be diagnosed by a physician and not self-treated. Sometimes the symptoms of hyper-acidity and hypo-acidity are much alike and the home dosage of soda which is harmless and possibly helpful in the first case, has the opposite results in the second case.

The treatment which has produced cures of pernicious anemia consist especially of liver which apparently has the property of stimulating the building of red blood cells. Other organs of animals show this property to some extent. A diet high in red meat of various kinds is recommended. Recently a liver extract has been developed, which allows the diet to be less monotonous.

At the University of Michigan hospital, where a complete plant is devoted to the treatment and study of pernicious anemia, it has been found that dried hog's stomach is fully as effective as liver in the treatment of this disease.

The publicity given to the cure of anemia by means of liver has caused it to be used in general diet to a much greater extent than ever before. While it is not known to be a preventive of either anemia or pernicious anemia, it is a food which should be appreciated because of its large content of iron and vitamins and should be used occasionally.

Other foods high in iron, which guard against simple anemia, are eggs, spinach, bran, lentils, beans, potatoes, meat, prunes, raisins.

ACID STOMACH

Denver, Colo. — "Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a good medicine," said John W. Dodson of 1290 W. Cedar St. "I have used it on several occasions for my stomach and liver, when I was troubled with acid stomach and indigestion, and also when I was run down and lacked energy and it soon got to the seat of the trouble, rid me of the stomach complaint and I had more strength."
Fluid or tablets. All druggists.
Write to Dr. Pierce's Clinic, Buffalo, N. Y., for free medical advice, using the symptom blank found in the package.

BIG JOB OF MOVING
Sole parallel to a remarkable "moving day" undertaken by a railway in Wales, is Noah's ark. A complete farm was moved, "lock, stock and barrel," from Whithand to Watlington—218 miles—in 12 hours. The work was done for the owner, and the train consisted of 15 cars.

Put Mentholatum in the nostrils to relieve congestion and clear the breathing passages.

WOMAN LOST 20 POUNDS IN 4 WEEKS

Mrs. Mae West of St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I'm only 28 yrs. old and weighed 170 lbs. until taking one box of your Kruschen Salts just a week ago. I now weigh 150 lbs. I also have more energy and further more I've never had a huzzy moment."
Fat folks should take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—it's the SAFE, harmless way to reduce as tens of thousands of men and women know.
For your health's sake ask for and get Kruschen at any drugstore—the cost for a bottle that lasts 4 weeks is but a trifle and if after the first bottle you are not joyfully satisfied with results—money back.

U. S. Coffee Consumption 29% Higher Than in '21

Washington.—The United States is today using 29 per cent more coffee than it did in 1921, according to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the United States Department of Commerce.

From 1,340,970,776 total pounds imported into the United States in 1921, the demand has grown to 1,741,585,500 total pounds for 1922, a gain of 400,553,733 pounds, or an increase of 29 per cent.

While the coffee imported into the United States in 1921 was furnished by twenty-nine different countries, Brazil and Colombia, the two leading world coffee producers, furnished 89 per cent of the total amount.

Of this amount, Department of Commerce statistics further show that while Brazil supplies the bulk of United States coffee requirements, Colombia is not only the second largest world producer, but also the largest world provider of those grades of coffee "milds" but known for their better, rich flavors.

The United States total coffee imports from Colombia in 1921, amounting to 324,908,905 pounds, represented a 30 per cent increase over its 1921 coffee imports from that country, and were 70 per cent greater than the combined imports of all other countries furnishing similar fine grades. The United States imports over 90 per cent of Colombia's total coffee production for American use.
