

OUT-OF-THE-ORDINARY

Mrs. Estelle Goebel was hostess at a birthday party given in honor of the 18th birthday of her nephew, Gordon Skinner, last Friday evening. Cards and dancing were features of the evening's entertainment, after which, refreshments were served. This entertainment is out-of-the-ordinary from the fact that Gordon was 18 on the 18th of August, on the eve of the repeal of the 18th amendment and the guests at the party numbered eighteen.

George Stapleton, baseball pitcher of M'Donough, Ga., was a wonder and as such, had visions of striking out Babe Ruth. He gained in popularity and he had the steam and curves that were really wonderful. But alas! He wound up so tight to send in a hot one, that he broke his arm. The physician who set his arm said that George would never be able to pitch again.

Mrs. Estelle Ginger of Chicago has filed suit for divorce on the grounds that her husband had only spoken two words to her in two years. She testified that he spoke the only two words during the first year and had spoken none in the next year. She was asked by the judge as to what the two words were, but she refused to answer. Those who were well acquainted with the husband fully believe that the two magic words were, "Double Check."

The meanest thief we have heard of is the fellow who stole a saxophone and was sentenced to a reformatory for the act. In these days when that instrument is banned in professional musical circles, most anyone can have one as a gift by calling at a second hand store.

In a certain portion of Japan, mothers carry their children in large washtubs. A mother will leave home with two or three, as the case may be, place them in a tub, raise the tub to her head and in that manner she goes about her everyday shopping. To offset the weight, she wears a heavy soft pad on her head. Of course, this freight does not include the husband.

John Anson, 23, Los Angeles, who weighs a quarter of a ton, fainted on the street and the ambulance was too small to admit his body. Two big cops exhausted their strength in trying to raise him up. He finally survived and walked away under his own steam. The officers recommended that the city purchase a derrick so that if anything again happened to John, the derrick would come in handy.

Red gum drops are more valuable among the Eskimos than gold. White men visiting the Arctic regions say that a wife may be obtained with two big juicy gum drops and you may have your choice. When a wife is wanted, all you have to do is to go to the father of the girl and hold up two big juicy drops. The dad bows and says "boah wa," which means O. K. The parent then as a parting blessing, gives his new son-in-law several good strong kicks as he leaves the house. If you are thinking of going north, boys, be sure to take plenty of gum drops.

PERSONALS

County Clerk and Mrs. Ernest Key visited relatives and friends in Capitan last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mayer of Hollywood, N. M., were here as guests of Paul's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Mayer Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Mayer are on a visit to the World's Fair in Chicago, leaving the first of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood Corn were in town the latter part of last week from their ranch about 50 miles from Carrizozo, visiting relatives and friends. They report nice rains of late.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Bostian were in Roswell last Tuesday, for the purpose of taking Mrs. Bostian's brother to that place for medical treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Nickels, daughters Marjorie, Dorothy and son Bill were the guests of the Bryant family at their ranch home above Corona Sunday.

Mrs. Ernest Dingwall was in Carrizozo from Tucumcari for a few days the first of the week, visiting relatives and friends.

Attorney and Mrs. E. M. Barber returned Saturday from the Biloxi, Mississippi country, where they spent about two weeks of their vacation period. Mr. Barber says that the fishing around that state can't be equalled. They remarked they missed the cool, crisp nights while down South, and are glad to get back to the "Land of Perpetual Sunshine."

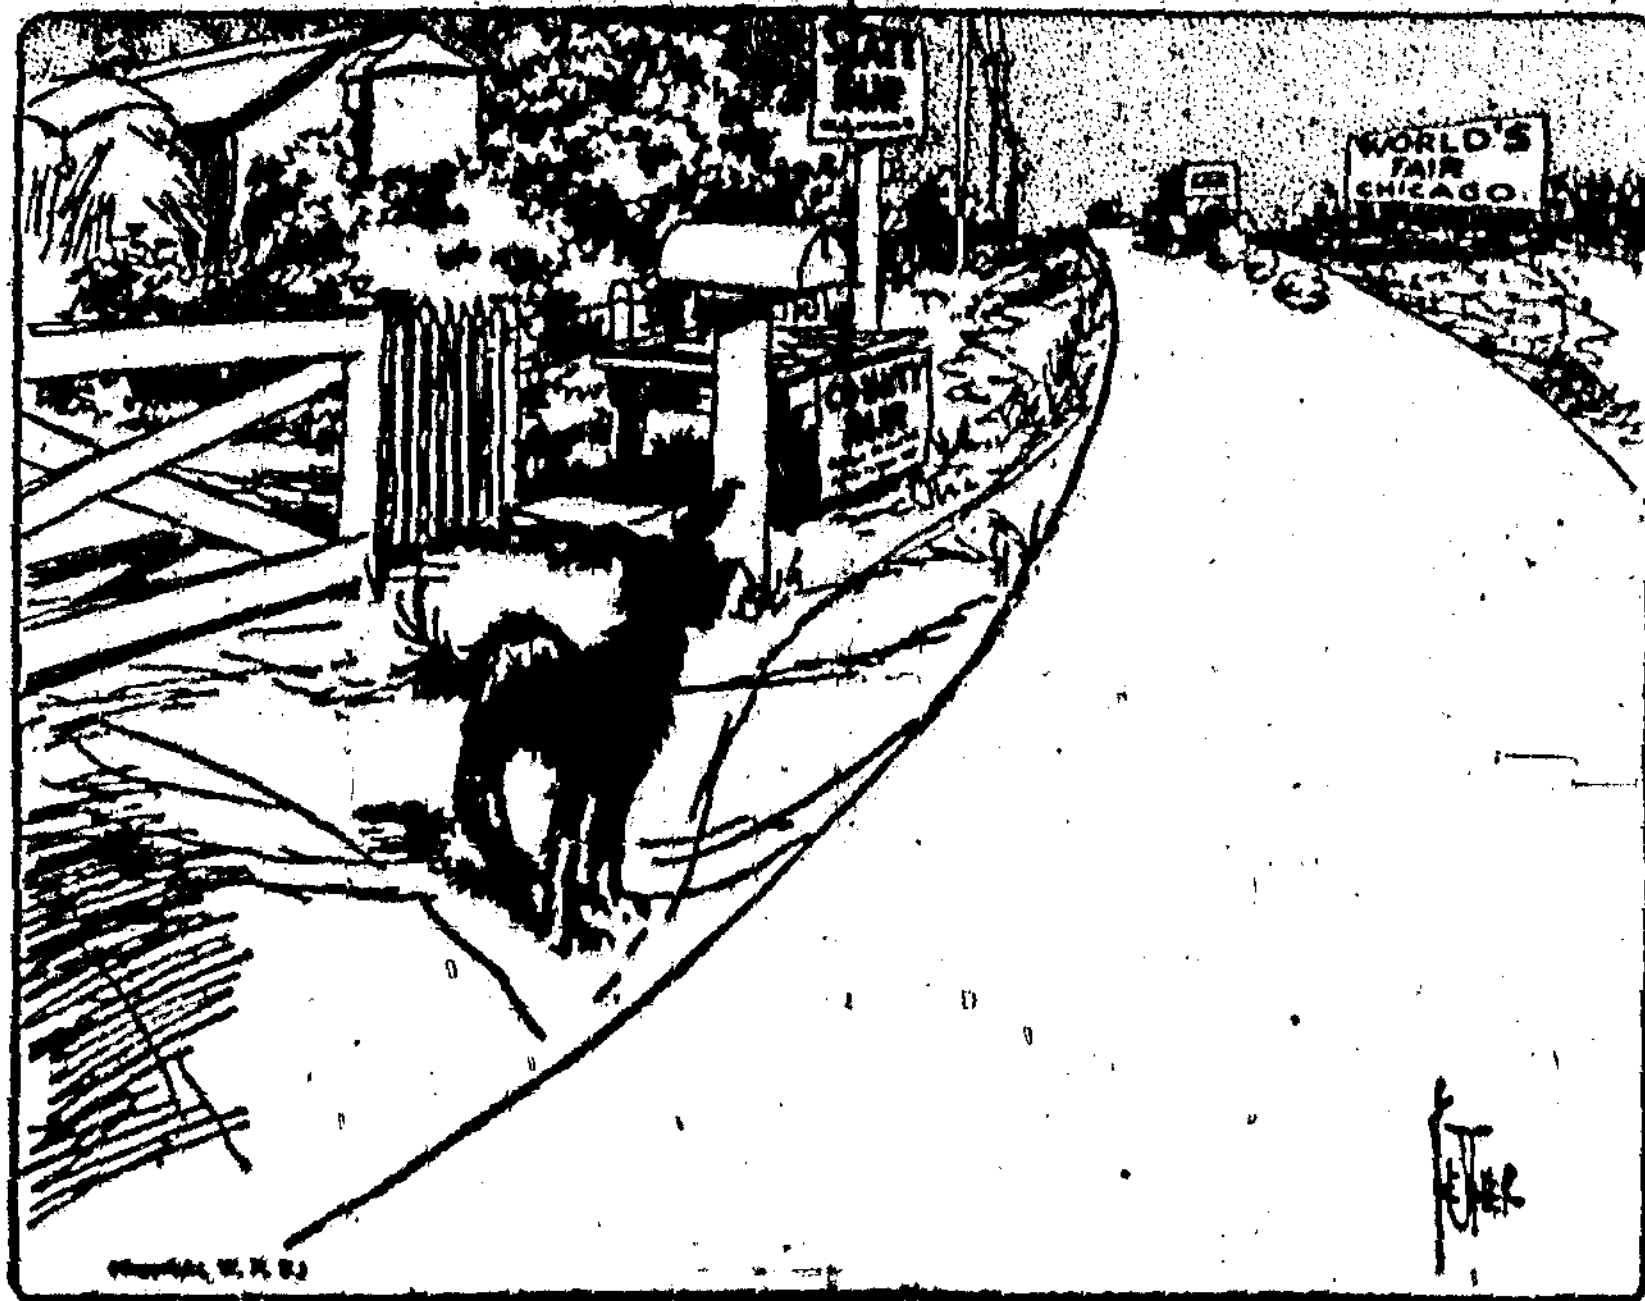

Mrs. Dewey Stokes, baby daughter Adelyn Frances and son Dewey, Jr., were in from the ranch Tuesday doing some shopping and returning home in the afternoon.

Mrs. P. C. Reaves, sons John and Dan of Fort Worth, are here for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Reaves of the Carrizozo Bakery. Paul, Dan and John resemble each other so much that customers in looking for the good things in the display cases, often go to John or Dan, instead of Paul.

Miss Katherine Kelt is recovering nicely from her recent appendicitis operation.

Once-upon-a-time there was a young lawyer in the small town of Maude, Okla. His first case was one in which a man was arrested for horse stealing. The fellow was placed in the town jail, which was a small, flimsy, one-room shack. The young lawyer went about to secure an appearance bond. He was about to effect the thief's release when, in looking across the street, he saw the supposed prisoner loafing on the sidewalk. "How did you get here?" demanded the lawyer. The culprit drawled, "I made a hole in the wall and crawled through it." "Now look here," angrily retorted the attorney, "I can defend you on the charge of horse thievery, but I refuse to defend you for breaking jail — so get back into the calaboose before I serve this appearance bond. The prisoner obeyed and crawled back into the jug. But after the trial when he was sent to the penitentiary, he swore he'd kill the lawyer on sight.

It's Fair Time

Carrizozo Plays Double-Header Next Sunday

The Carrizozo Ball Team will play a double-header on the local diamond next Sunday afternoon, August 27. In the first game they will take on the Corona bean farmers and in the nightcap they will peck away on the Woodpeckers from Forest Camp C. C. There will be action and thrills galore in these two fray's — maybe a fist fight or two on the side — so don't miss being present and then be sorry afterwards. You'll get a $'s worth for a quarter, and HOW! Tailor Edwards' team beat the Woodpeckers last Sunday. We were unable to attend the game and up to this writing we have failed to get any dope on the same.

Supreme Judge A. H. Hudspeth of Santa Fe was in town a few days the first of this week, attending to legal matters and visiting his many Carrizozo friends.

Mrs. J. M. Penfield, daughters Ruth, Joan and son Edward, were here from Lincoln, Tuesday and were guests of the F. J. Sager and Albert Ziegler families, returning home in the evening.

Mr. and Miss Charles Spence, daughter Virginia and son Charles, Jr., who had been visiting at the F. J. Sager home, left Wednesday morning for Santa Fe, to arrange for the opening of the fall school term.

Miss Rhea Boughner will leave about Sept. 10 for a two weeks' vacation, during which time she will visit the World's Fair in Chicago.

J. Verl Groce has been ill this week, but is now able to be around.

Mrs. L. E. Hunt and Miss Verda Coe of White Oaks were Carrizozo visitors Thursday, and while in town, were pleasant callers at this office.

Frank Gurney and Park Wilbanks of El Paso were Outlook office visitors last Saturday while on their way to the Bonito Dam and Ruidoso country. Frank will be remembered by many old-timers here, when he and his mother, Mrs. Julia Gurney, operated the Carrizozo Eating House, afterwards selling out to Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Sweet.

Miss Rhea Boughner acted as Chief Operator at the local telephone office during the absence of Mrs. Lillian Richard.

The local organization of the National Re-Employment Commission met at the Outlook office last Saturday afternoon and elected officers as follows:

Vice-Chairman, Roy Skinner
Sec'y, Dr. C. E. Freeman
Field Man, George Strauss
Assistant, Hilario Gomez
Mrs. J. V. Hobbie, Member
Herman Kelt, Member

Regular meetings will be held in the room adjoining the office of the County Assessor every Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Members of the commission will please take due notice and attend.

A. L. Burke, Chairman
C. E. Freeman, Secretary.

Bids Were Close

The local Re-Employment agency for the government has an order for 45 men to work on the road surfacing project between Hondo and Roswell. On Aug. 22, bids were opened at Santa Fe, the lowest bidder being Skonson Brothers with a bid for the 15.9 miles of base course surfacing, $52,629.05, and the highest, $93,837.30. The contract will undoubtedly be let to the low bidder, as there is a difference of $40,000 in the bids. The work will begin in several weeks and from the list of unemployed now in the office at the courthouse, the most needy and the more deserving will be the first to have relief. The 45 men will be picked out from over the county at the meeting of the local commission tomorrow afternoon.

Government Employees Ask For Living Wage

At the national convention of federal employees to be held at Kansas City, Sept. 4, congress will be asked for the elimination of wage cuts, furloughs and an equitable living wage in the federal service. The request will be made on the grounds that the employees are suffering from wage cuts, pyramiding furloughs to a point where the federal scale is reduced to a mere pittance. The resolutions to be presented will call the attention of the President to the fact that the deflationist policy of the government with respect to its own employees is completely out of harmony with the government's constructive efforts with respect to private business and industry.

In further making known the tenor of the resolutions on the subject at national headquarters in Washington for submitting the resolutions to the coming convention, President L. C. Stewart, head of the organization, said: "The inequity of forcing upon workers who are already underpaid, further reductions and furloughs, is obvious enough and equally obvious should be the inconsistency of the situation in which the federal government finds itself with respect to this aspect of the 'economy' program."

"On one hand the government is urging business and industry to raise wages, reduce hours and add more employees, while on the other hand the federal government is dismissing workers, continues to cut the pay of the force, and insofar as hours of labor are concerned, employees frequently work from 12 to 14 hours a day with working weeks of from six and a half to seven days, which is by no means infrequent."

The 20 Mill Bone-Head Act Bitterly Opposed

Seeing that it will add to the ruin already predicted for state democratic party, the democratic state central committee has been openly advocating the killing of that bone-headed act passed by last democratic legislature, known as senate joint resolution No. 21, which to the shame of that body, passed the senate by a vote of 22 to 0 and by the house, 41 to 4.

It is the final proposition on the ballot for decision of the state electorate at the special election Sept. 19, and if the ruinous measure is not killed it will leave but 2 mills for county schools under which they cannot keep open but one month out of the year. The proposition is this, says the Santa Fe New Mexican: Tax revenue for the state shall be limited to 4 mills on each dollar of assessed valuation, except for schools, penal and charitable institutions, interest and payment of public debt. The state's share shall not exceed 10 mills of the 20 mill limit, except for necessary levies for state debt. For all purposes except special levies on specific classes of property, the tax levy shall not exceed 20 mills, but laws may be passed authorizing additional taxes to be levied outside of this limitation when approved by at least a majority of the electors of the taxing district voting such a proposition. The report has been current at the capitol that if this amendment carries, a special session of the legislature will be necessary to find some means of raising the difference between the 20 mill limit and the levy of as high as 55 mills required in some places to operate such as in Albuquerque.

Chautauque
The name, "Chautauque," first applied to the lake in western New York, is from the Seneca language and is said to signify "big tied in the mid-which the region gets its name. "It became the name of the summer edu-shores of that lake in 1874, and then of the educational and entertainment

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart

Washington.—No one can watch Washington these days and not be amazed at the tremendous driving force that is being put behind the several schemes to awaken the nation and get business going again. It is as though the war engines of a powerful foreign enemy were pounding at the fortifications marking the threshold of our country which, indeed, is true, except that the enemy, depression, is and has been among us through almost four years. I think I can say without fear of successful contradiction that governmental activity is as feverish, as wildly unsystematic, if you please, as any we observed during the trying days of the great World war. Though it is along different lines, the activity is none the less as direct and as positive, and in some respects as militaristic.

In such an analogy as this, it should be stated that the federal forces are now being subjected to more severe influence throughout the land than they faced during the preparation for and prosecution of the World war. Then, there was a physical fear which could be held up before the people as a reason for united action. That threat cannot be employed now. In its absence the government is unable to overcome the innate selfishness that must be largely overcome to make the general recovery program a success.

In the beginning of the World war, it was necessary to strike quickly and hard at the enemy military plans. In the current campaign, it is necessary to strike quickly and hard or else some business interests will wait to see how the picture is going to look in order to gain some advantage for themselves. Thus, the campaign is at least partially spoiled. The reason for the thunderous drive, the mental and muscle strain of these days becomes apparent. If the objections of those who are hesitant about signing are broadly heard, others who had wanted to conform get suspicious about the concessions they have made and begin to shy away.

Therefore, throughout the government one finds today weary-eyed executives, tired clerks, near exhaustion from the endless hours of labor. For example, in the agricultural adjustment administration and in the national recovery administration, clerks are working in three shifts, and the executives may be found in their offices anywhere from sun-up until long after the following-midnight. Whether you are completely convinced of the efficacy of the various plans and programs, or whether you just hope they may be successful, your admiration and respect for those who are trying to construct this new machinery certainly is warranted.

As a sample of the driving force that has been exerted and is being exerted every day to the President's greater or less extent, was the solution of the wrangle presented in the Pennsylvania strike situation. That was not an ordinary strike. Its portents were nationwide. It involved questions the answers to which meant the making or the breaking of the basic recovery principles.

In the first instance, the most powerful corporate unit in the world—the United States Steel corporation—was the government's adversary. I say the government's adversary because unless the recovery administration was able to reconcile the differences between the corporation and the union workers, the program of blanket codes and group codes and everything else was imperiled. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, could not get the warring groups together. He was ready to throw up the sponge. But he had one more trick in the bag and that was to call for help from the President of the United States. Somehow, that trick worked. Whether the merits of the case were with the corporation or whether they were with the government, the power of the government was and had to be supreme in the emergency.

While observers here are not inclined to defend the steel corporation fully for taking the position it did, it can be said with equal force that most of them believe there was real danger of infringement of private property rights. In this sense, therefore, the corporation was within its rights in resisting. When it yielded, it appears, it yielded not to the labor unions which had stirred up the trouble, but to the sovereignty of government.

The basic controversy involved in the steel corporation case was the question of so-called company unions. Labor leaders, the professionals, naturally want to have all workers in the national organizations. Otherwise, the strike as a weapon is ineffective. Being quick to see a vulnerable spot, labor took advantage of the situation to lick the steel corporation which heretofore has permitted its employees to belong only to company unions. In other words, it has been an open shop. In view of these facts, it seems to me that organized labor is as much entitled to criticism in the circumstance as is the greatest corporation in the world. Organized labor has been wielding too much influence in the recovery organization according to the consensus here, and its insistence on advantages promises further difficulties.

The Department of Agriculture has set for itself the big job of establishing fair prices for the consumer while giving what is tantamount to a guarantee of higher prices for the things the farmer produces. Through a series of statements, Secretary Wallace has repeatedly affirmed that the returns to the farmers must be increased in every direction. Simultaneously, Dr. Fred C. Howe, who as the consumers' counsel represents the side of the buyers in the government's agricultural set-up, made the announcement that he was going to compile weekly lists of prices for publication as a means of protecting against the profiteer.

From this arrangement it would be made to appear that there will have to be reasonable prices maintained everywhere on food commodities. But observers here have been picking up numerous angles of the situation which they believe contain elements of trouble. Doctor Howe, of course, will be able to gather price lists at whatever rate and in whatever volume he desires, and he can get them distributed through the press and through the radio to the bulk of the people of the United States. But the question that is being asked here is, what method is Doctor Howe going to employ that will fix a price just and reasonable everywhere and provide the farmers with all of the return promised them? Some of the more critical say there is a likelihood that Doctor Howe is going to run into a difference of opinion, what with farmers demanding more, added expenses forcing the retailer to charge more and the ultimate consumer with limited means of buying the things concerned.

Of course, there can be no doubt but that some retailers are going to try to capitalize on the situation and profiteer on prices. Doctor Howe is set to defeat them by the weight of public opinion which must be regarded as a commendable course. Yet, according to the consensus one finds in Washington, that which Doctor Howe announces as a fair and reasonable price is unlikely always to fit the situation.

In the course of negotiations between the recovery administrators and industrial representatives, one of the great problems was how to arrange a fair basis for competition when different factories had such widely different costs of production. The highly efficient plant could produce at much lower cost, obviously, than could the plant that was obsolete in equipment and managed in haphazard fashion. The same situation obtains with respect to retailers. Chain stores with great buying power and the resultant advantage of lower prices are naturally going to be able to sell at a lower price than the independent store owner who buys in small quantities and has higher overhead costs. Now, say the critical-minded, if Doctor Howe fixes as a fair price that for which the chain store is able to sell its goods, what is going to happen to the independent? If, on the other hand, the price level quoted by Doctor Howe approximates the price charged by the independent, then the chain store can and undoubtedly will get all of the business. It will make use of those figures in advertising the fact that the chain store prices are "below the government price." Manifestly, that will be unfair to the independent. But, I am prompted to ask, what can Doctor Howe do about it?

In announcing his program to establish fair prices, Doctor Howe said there were consumers' councils being organized in scores of cities and towns. These, he averred, would help in seeing that no merchant profiteered. There can be no doubt of the fact that these consumers' councils will exert a tremendous influence. Old-timers here, however, recalled that the fight against profiteering during the World war developed many hasty situations. Overzealous individuals, conscientious in their efforts, but sometimes a bit shy of horse sense, made a personal matter out of such things as patriotic action.

Prof. Raymond Moley has been detached as assistant secretary of state to have charge of the federal government's campaign against crime, especially kidnaping and racketeering. It was the first break in the "brain trust" that group of professors with whom the President surrounded himself. Some weeks ago I wrote in these columns the prediction that such a result had to come. It was obvious. The professor and his theories can be used by the statesmen and practical men only so far. Professor Moley was of no use to Secretary Hall in the Department of State after his adventures in connection with the London economic conference and the unfavorable publicity that the professor caused. In asking Professor Moley to the job of banishing crime, the President said later he would put him back as assistant secretary of state.

Ever since the days of Cicero's "De Senectute," which we labored over in junior high, as they call it now, men have been fretting about old age, a writer in the Indianapolis News comments. It is generally considered a time of life to be dreaded because of the sadness connected with declining activity. But sometimes the window opens upon a new vista, and we follow Vida T. Scudder's pages in the Atlantic with joy because they seem so sane.

Having suddenly found herself arrived at the age of seventy, Miss Scudder is inspired to take up her pen for the benefit of those in like predicament. She regards it as a matter of triumph, rather than discouragement, to have reached a time when one may be glad to be left off of committees and like responsibilities, and spend the remainder of her days in the enjoyment of the scenes of life from the shelf to which she has been relegated, when one may read, not classics or any prescribed course, but just what has long been coveted as desirable or particularly restful.

New Vistas for "Old Age"

The Philosophically Minded Person Will Discover Numerous Compensations and Enjoyments for That Period of Declining Activity.

Continuing, Lady Mary writes: "As I approach a second childhood, I endeavor to enter into the pleasures of it. Your youngest son is perhaps at this very moment riding on a poker with great delight, not at all regretting that it is not a gold one and much less wishing it an Arabian horse, which he would not know how to manage. I am reading an idle tale, not expecting wit or truth in it, and am very glad it is not metaphysics to puzzle my judgment or history to mislead my opinion. He fortifies his strength by exercise; I calm my cares by oblivion. The methods may appear low to busy people, but if he improves his strength and I forget my infirmities, we both attain valuable books, they are almost as rare as valuable men. I must be content with what I can find." (What would she have thought of the output of books, today?)

Back in 1800 a lonely Moravian monk discovered the laws of heredity which now stand as the bedrock of the life sciences. No one in 1800 cared to take a look at this discovery, for every one was arguing about some incidental gossip which grew out of Darwin's "Origin of Species," published in 1859. By 1900 they were tired of the incidental and rather spectacular gossiping about Darwin. This gave the scientists a chance to resurrect the monk. And so the world of fundamental information took on new life.

Here we are today wrangling about economic questions. Specifically, about dollars and taxes. Such things are incidental and more or less spectacular. We will, of course, keep on with such subjects until some one finds a way to focus our attention on unemployment. The man who succeeds in focusing the public attention on this point will be calling us back to something fundamental. There are those who seem to think that discovery is soon to be made.—Washington Star.

Really Big Thing

The great thing in the world is not so much to seek happiness as to earn peace and self-respect.

very desirable ends." How Lady Mary would have enjoyed a jig-saw puzzle!

The typical old lady of a generation but lately gone, sat by the fire with white cap and spectacles, knitting socks for the whole family. Today, she dons a stylish stout, wears the new Oxford, in lieu of the somewhat passeé lognette, and sallies forth to solve problems of politics or contract bridge. A dear young Hoosier friend sent me the following original verse:

GRANDMOTHERS
When'er I think of grandmothers,
I think of cherished things;
Of creamy, delicate old lace,
And dear remembered dreams.
I think of modest mignonette,
Dew-drenched at new day's dawn;
Of perfumed sweetpeas' pastel tints;
Of shade upon a lawn.
I think of Artemisia gray,
Like Niagara of silver hair,
Of lips that speak of troubled hearts,
Love's words of wisdom rare;
Of fragile Dresden china in
A corner cupboard old,
Of Eden hours of new-wed love,
Too sacred to be told;
Of shaded lights on autumn night,
And sound of summer rain;
Of new-born baby's lips against
My breast that stings with pain;
Of work-worn hands, that yet are soft
That minister with loving care;
Of love that makes e'en drudgery
A shining halo wear.
Oh precious, priceless grandmothers!
Without you, how great dearth!
Oh grandmothers! Life shows in you
True beauty on the earth.

JOY TO BE HAD IN "WORD BOOK"

Eighteenth-Century Idea This Modern Age Will Find Worth While.

Our language is a superb inheritance, blessed with richer variety of expression and implicit with a more ranging music than most other living tongues. Its flexibility and scope are enormous—as might be expected from a tongue dowered out of the precision and beauty of Greek, the rolling vowel music of Latin, the northern strains of Celt, Angle and Saxon. Surely, as heirs to this bequest and as living contributors to it, we should not be content without exploring it. To do so would be like emulating the beggar, who, coming into a fortune, was satisfied with a few worn counters when the gold coin of the realm was his for the seeking.

In a century now long forgotten men and women were accustomed to keep what they described as "commonplace books"—notebooks in which one entered any quotations of prose or verse which seemed apposite, wise or endowed with beauty and felicity of expression. It was a happy idea. Any who desire to discover what effect it had upon the mind of an age might do well to explore a bit into Eighteenth century letters.

A word book, wherein one jots down any unfamiliar word he meets with in the reading of good books, together with its verified meaning, will go far to rescue him from present afflictions that beset our language as it is written. Only one who has tried this expedient knows the fun it offers, the renewed sense of vitality in thought, the sharper edge given ideas, and, simultaneously, the rapid growth of discriminative taste in reading.—Boston Globe.

A Small Twister

It was only a small whirlwind, but it grew in velocity as it whirled down Alamogordo avenue. At the corner of 4th street, it made a turn as neatly as a careful driver could have done as it started up towards the depot. It passed the Waffle House, the Carrizozo Bakery and the Carrizozo Cleaners, where it snapped out one of the window lights, carrying a portion of the glass as far as Roy's Cafe. There it dropped the glass, and the last we saw of the little twister, it shambled around the corner of the S. P. depot.
