

OUT-OF-THE-ORDINARY

A queer looking creature has been seen at different times near here of late. Once in the Capitan mountain, another in the Tucsons and again on the highway between Camp Malpais and the approach to the Malpais where the road strikes that solitary, gloomy waste. It walks upright like a man, but is clothed with heavy hair much like a gorilla. Its weird cry is much like a panther, but it is twice as large. Several people have shot at the creature without effect and with a shriek it disappears. What is it?

The oldest tree in Nevada, a pine nearly 1,000 years old, was cut down by the Reforestation Group. It seems to us that a tree of that age should be regarded as sacred. But you know the saying about the old must give way to the new.

A man in Theford, Nebraska, has a pony that suddenly went carnivorous. On four occasions the animal was seen eating chickens. This is an absolute fact, though hard to believe.

We note in the Hobbs News that they have a jumping grass seed. It was discovered by W. Leslie Martin, who has the seed on display at Hobbs. Heat seems to stimulate the movement, much like the Mexican jumping bean.

A hard-downpour of rain, 3 inches, occurred last week in Taylor, Texas. Said rain caused the death of practically every English sparrow in Taylor. We might have one of our sandstorms, a fierce one, to help get rid of these little pests. But to have such a downpour in this section of New Mexico—strikes us as being indeed very humorous.

Doctors find that Lee Chrisman, hollerin' champion of Kentucky, who was heard 8 miles in four states when he yelled off the top of the Cumberland, has a broad high arch in the roof of his mouth, a giant larynx, wears No. 18 collar, and very long, thick vocal chords, as well as a 4-inch chest expansion and a vast frontal sinus cavity. — No use to look any more, Carrizozo Fire Department, for here's yo' man.

Sandy, a cowboy on the ranch of Doyle Rentfrow, did some clever detective work one day last week. A strange woman with an infant had been employed to cook for Sandy and his companions on the ranch. He noticed the woman hide a certain package and putting his wits together, peeked through the keyhole. When she left the house to go on an errand, he crept cautiously to where the mysterious package had been secreted and opened it, making sure that no one was watching. Then Sandy quietly unwrapped the package, but instead of finding money, watch or other valuables, he found nothing but the well, you ask him what he found.

A few days ago in Canton, China, a wedding ceremony was performed wherein a blushing young Chinese girl married a big rooster. The groom, Shih Wang Tung, lived in Singapore, and failed to appear on their wedding day, and Senor Rooster was made the lawful husband.

FORT STANTON NEWS

Dr. H. A. Patterson, who arrived here sometime ago from the Marine Hospital in New Orleans, is the new physician detailed for duty at this station and is soon to take up his duties on the medical staff.

The annual Hallowe'en masquerade ball at the Community House, sponsored by Rev. Smith, proved as usual to be a roaring success. The big hall was tastily decorated with subdued illumination and all the emblems of the season, to represent a weird and beautiful fairyland of elves and hobgoblins. Inspired by his recent journey to the interior of Mexico, the Reverend had added a Spanish-American touch to the festival. Peanut, tamale, enchilada and chile con carne vendors, dressed in native costumes, distributed their wares to the delighted crowd, in lieu of regular refreshments. The excellent music of Celly Sandoval and his "orquesta mejicana," brought an atmosphere from lands south of the Rio Grande, of wine, women and song. Appropriate prizes were given to wearers of the best costumes, the first of which, as usual, was snatched off by Dr. McKueley, who is a true artist at make-up. A special prize consisting of a huge bone was awarded to Capt. Emmertz' pooch hound, Prince, which appeared disguised as a wolf in "cheap" clothing. The climax of the party was reached when one of the guests, Father James A. Brady, sat down at the piano and gave the crowd some beautiful presentations of Spanish and Mexican folk songs, which drew an immense applause.

Inspector John Gow of Scotland Yard, the famous criminologist, is being treated for a nervous breakdown which ensued during his strenuous work on the "Flynn Mystery Case." During a bedside interview with the Outlook's reporter, the inspector revealed that he has dispatched a cablegram per Mr. G. S. Hoover, Western Union agent in Capitan, to his notorious contemporary, Charlie Chan of the Honolulu Secret police, requesting him to leave immediately for the Fort to resume work on the case. Mr. Chan is expected to arrive here in the near future. Heretofore the details of this case, one of the most baffling in the annals of criminology, has, by special request to the press, been carefully guarded from publicity. It will be recalled that sometime ago, Capt. Raymon Flynn, distinguished member of the Stanton Intelligentsia, mysteriously disappeared under circumstances that indicate evidence of foul play. However, it was not until after the surrounding country had been combed by a local posse, and the Rio Bonito together with the water reservoir had been dragged in a futile search for the victim's body, that Inspector Gow, heeding the pleas of an irate public, lent his skill as a sleuth hound for the purpose of solving the mystery, with the meagre clues of a size 17 shoe and a fragrantly scented bottle stopper, found on a dark night by officer Winslow of the Fort Constabulary, in the vicinity of the Stanton cavern. The inspector at once came to the conclusion that, to make any further progress, he must find the source of supply of the liquid with which the bottle stopper was scented.

Friday, Saturday and Sunday —Hoot Gibson in "Spirit of the West." Comedy—"Boys will be Boys." Cartoon—"The Crowd Shoves."

BORN—To Mr. and Mrs. R.E. Berry, Tuesday, Nov. 7, a son. Mother and son are doing nicely.

Messrs. George Elmgren, Captain in Emmertz, Alexanderson, Winther and Melhamer of Fort Stanton were here Monday and made this office a friendly call.

Mrs. L. E. Hunt of White Oaks was here yesterday to meet the surveyor, who had been doing state work at Artesia for the past month.

T. E. Kelley and daughter Ruth, who went hunting in the Sacramento mountains, returned with a deer and a bear. So they have bear in the Sacramentos, too. Scoring again for Ed and daughter Ruth!

As this could only be accomplished by the aid of an extremely sensitive pair of nostrils, and as the inspector was at the time suffering from a severe cold, he was forced to call upon the resourcefulness of Mr. John "Speedy" Swift, whom a good fortune has gifted him with an olfactory organ of rare quality. Mr. Swift's nasal organ led them with uncanny precision to the mouth of the cave, where a container was found (unfortunately empty) which in size and aroma corresponded with the stopper. Exhuming from the black depths of the cave, Mr. Swift detected an odor of a similar, but vastly more potent nature. While Mr. Gow stoutly prepared to enter, Swift imploringly begged to share the dangers of the subterranean inferno by going along. The inspector, although greatly touched by his helper's pluck and courage, insisted on going alone; and, after dismissing his escort with a few last instructions, he bravely stepped forth into the eternal darkness of this horror-filled Hades. When our valiant friend after a period of three days emerged and returned to the Fort his features were those of a man 20 years older. His face was of a whitish hue, his hair had turned slightly gray and his eyes had a glossy, bewildered stare; but his lips remained firmly sealed to all queries regarding his hideous findings in the earth's interior, the sight of which, undoubtedly would have slain an ordinary mortal.

Postmaster Farley's 'Mess'

Postmaster General Farley's "Recovery" candidate, certainly experienced a "Relapse" at the polls in the New York Mayoralty race Tuesday. McKee was Farley's picked candidate to show the people, as he said, that the sentiment of New York City upheld the policies of the National Democratic administration. In their torchlight processions the Farley Recovery demonstrators carried the NRA blue eagle banners until for fear of defeat and embarrassment to the President and his administration, they had to discontinue that practice.

Now, that Farley's hand-picked candidate has been defeated, his manager, who should have been attending to business in Washington instead of campaigning in the slums of New York sulks in his tent and the President suffers the keenest of humiliation—the 'bull in the china store' has done more damage than can be repaired in many moons and the President should put a muzzle on the unruly boy before he gums the cards again.

The Mayor's Request

I hereby request that the public refrain from all labor at 11 o'clock on Armistice day for a period of five minutes in reverence to the spirit of the occasion. The roundhouse whistle will blow at 11 and at the end of the period, 11:05, it will blow again.

Mayor

ANCHO ITEMS

The Woman's Club had the pleasure of meeting with Mrs. Grover Pruett at her home in Carrizozo, Saturday, Nov. 4. Although Mrs. Pruett is no longer a resident of Ancho, she is retaining her membership in the Ancho club in which she has long been an earnest worker. A good number of Ancho members were present and the following were guests of the club: Mmes. Adams, J. E. Frame, the Misses Hightower, Pruett, Warden and Yarborough. In the absence of Mrs. Kile, president, Mrs. Wilson presided. Following the business meeting, Mrs. Warden, study leader for the day, gave a very instructive and interesting account of a week's stay at Niagara Falls a few years ago. Mrs. Warden presented illustrations of the falls and vicinity. The Warden family camped on the Canadian side, finding that side not only more interesting, but less expensive. Mrs. S. J. Pruett was social leader and presented two pencil contests, "Historical Battles" and "Pat and Mike," the latter providing considerable amusement. Prizes were won by Mmes. Hightower and Belknap. Delicious refreshments of sandwiches, cake and cocoa were served by the hostess.

Jim Pruett and Cleo Bell were guests at the S. J. Pruett home over Sunday, being in search of the elusive deer. They found the weather too cold for deer hunting and returned to Pastura Sunday night.

George Straley and Virgil Hall were successful deer hunters and their families are enjoying venison in plenty.

The Frame family had planned a picnic in the mountains for Sunday, the 5th, but finding the weather much too inclement, had a big fire built in the fireplace of their still unfinished new house and turned the outdoor picnic into a housewarming party. The members of the party were Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Frame, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Penix, daughter Mary Catherine, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. SYNOPSIS

A pretty young woman finds herself in a taxi cab in New York with a strange man who addresses her as "Rocky" and speaks of "an awful shock." When he leaves her for a moment at a drug store she drives on, for she fears him. She stops at the Biltmore, still wondering who she is. Her memory is gone. From her expensive clothing she concludes she is married to a wealthy man. She meets a young woman who speaks of her desire to go to Reno for a divorce, if she can get the money. The woman vanishes with the nameless girl's purse, and $100.

The woman turned and scrutinized the girl for a moment slowly. Her face was broad and friendly, her eyes shrewd but kindly. The long gaze was one of appraisal. Then she said, "Ah Doris! How beautiful you are. Doris! I am glad you are here!" And she flung her two fat arms around the girl's soft fox collar and slender throat, and pressed a firm, wet cheek against hers.

Doris! So that was her name. She hardly felt the embrace, not wondering at the tears. Doris! She was grateful that she had found a friend. The woman talked on. Out of the jumble of words, a sentence suddenly disclosed itself: "And so now with your husband on the seas we will have to console ourselves together until he comes back to us!" She listened breathlessly—her husband on the seas!

The bellboy still stood beside the luggage. The fat little woman turned to Doris, "He would not believe I was Mrs. Du Val. He wanted to guard the luggage well." She shook her head. "Louis will carry out the luggage." Doris then noticed that a liveried chauffeur was standing a few feet away. He came forward and picked up Doris' bags. Watching everything, on the alert for some clue that would unravel more of her past to her, Doris followed.

A limousine stood at the curb. Doctily Doris hopped in after the little fat woman. There was not a quail in her heart. Undoubtedly she had known this woman, and perhaps it would soon come back to her when and where. At least she would learn her own name.

"But Mrs. Du Val's bags in front," said her hostess fustily. Doris stared. Mrs. Du Val! The older woman had been speaking of her to the chauffeur. So she was Mrs. Du Val. Du Val. D. V. She did not feel quite satisfied.

The baggage was quickly adjusted and the car started through the traffic-laden New York streets. "Ah, Rocky is sick by now, isn't-cee pass?" said little Mrs. Du Val. "He cannot stand traveling, poor fellow." She tucked a robe anxiously around Doris. "But she mustn't catch cold at such a time," she went on. She clucked in her throat like a worried old hen. "You feel warm? We have a long ride, you know."

Then he folded her close to him, kissed her on the cheek and sought the eyes of his beaming wife.

"Adoree," he said, "you were right." "Our Rocky is no fool!" "Ah yes, our Rocky is no fool, after all."

Doris smiled shyly as Oscar Du Val released her. "You are so nice to me. But how can you tell so quickly?" "Bah," said Du Val, "always I know instantly about people."

"After he sees them, he knows," said his wife with a slight overtone of sarcasm. "Before that, he is not so sure. He believes that our Rocky has not the good sense to choose himself a nice girl. He is sure that our Rocky—" Du Val put his palms together in an attitude that was half prayerful, and half playful. "Ah Doris, you must forgive me. You are going to forgive me all those things which I have said to Rocky about you. I did not know you were such a girl. How could I know? And you too must admit that you have been wrong. To tell us nothing—"

"There, he goes," scolded Mrs. Du Val. "Before our little Doris can step into the house he is already reproaching her." "No, no," said Du Val. "Come we will go in. Where is your luggage?" Louis, the chauffeur, was taking down the bags with their initials D. V. A little maid in a black dress, with a white apron came out of the house and picked up the hat box. Doris felt full of happiness. Surely she had come home. These kind people, were ready to shower her with love, "Come Doris," said Mrs. Du Val importantly. "At such a time, you must get plenty of rest. I will show you to your room."

They went upstairs. Louis came in carrying her bags, and a maid Estelle hovered ready to unpack them. Mrs. Du Val sent her away with a brisk clap of her competent little hands. "She is too tired now. And she wishes to unpack her own things. She is like me, n'est-ce pas?" She looked at Doris. "You wish to superintend your own unpacking?" "Oh yes, oh yes," said Doris eagerly. She was hardly able to wait to see if the inside of the bags might not give her some clue. "And I'm not in the least tired. I can do it now."

"Oh no. At such a time in a woman's life she must rest." Mrs. Du Val looked at her with some mysterious light in her eyes that she could not understand. "You have had a tiresome trip. But look! Look what I have got for your room. As a special surprise."

"Where? What?" "Don't you see? On the dressing table!" In a silver frame the face of a young man smiled with an air of youthful seriousness. "Our Rocky!" said Mrs. Du Val tenderly. Instantly Doris loved his face. She seized the picture and gazed at it hungrily.

So this was Rocky. Rocky, her husband. She gave a long sigh of relief. For the young serious eyes that stared back from the picture weren't the same as the dark strange unhappy eyes that had looked at her from the tense face of the man in the cab. Mrs. Du Val was briskly opening windows. A faint breeze brought in the scent of blooming lilacs. "Maintenance," said Mrs. Du Val, "you will nap, n'est-ce pas? You will have time for a nice little sleep before dinner."

"Oh no, I must unpack." She was eager to explore the contents of her bags. Surely they would tell her something about herself, something about Rocky. "Non, non. Later, out. Then Estelle will help you." Prototyping was useless. Mrs. Du Val's fat jeweled hand was on the bedspread blanket that lay on the canopyed Colonial bed. She drew off the gay patchwork counterpane quickly, and folded it neatly. "You like this little bed? I had it put in here for you and Rocky. This is Rocky's old room—but the bed is not the same. Come now," said Mrs. Du Val. Doris was forced to hop into bed obediently. It seemed the quickest way of getting rid of her solicitous mother-in-law.

"You must not get out of bed, now," warned Mrs. Du Val. She kissed Doris, tucked the covers firmly around her, then left the room on tip-toe as if Doris were already sleeping.

FEAST AND FUN IN BRIDAL RITE

Hungarian Weddings Full of Pagan Tradition.

There is hardly anything more picturesque than a Hungarian wedding celebrated with much revelry and merrymaking, a correspondent of the New York World-Telegram writes. The racial peculiarities of Hungarian peasant wedding customs derive from ancient pagan traditions and from the popular mind. Such weddings usually take place in autumn after the vintage. Customs may vary, but generally they are as follows:

At the feast of the betrothal, a plate covered with an embroidered cloth is presented to the betrothed so that they may collect the so-called "kiss-money." The guests put money into the plate, according to their means, and at every gift the young couple must kiss each other. The money collected is held in high esteem—being the first the two young people have earned together—and it is either saved for the future household or spent on presents they give each other.

On the third Sunday after the betrothal, the master of ceremonies, decorated with gay ribbons and a garland by the bridesmaids and bearing a bunch of flowers on a staff, starts on his round. He calls on all the relations and friends of the couple, pronouncing an invitation to the wedding in verses. On the next day, Monday, they make a great ceremony of carrying the bride's bed to the house of the groom, together with other pieces of the dowry, such as a chest carved and painted, with a brilliant design of tulips, containing cloths and linen, the distaff and the reel, household implements, and, with wise foresight, a cradle. All this is stipulated by the marriage contract.

On Tuesday, the guests go to the bride's home to help prepare and cook the meals for the wedding, which takes place on Wednesday. Early in the morning the guests assemble at the bride's home. The best man and the person giving away the bride huddle in humorous verses over the bride. The splendid humor inherent in the Hungarian people portrays itself at such occasions in witticisms and impromptu rhymes, and finally the guests must put up the money the two demand.

Of old, it used to be gold pieces, but nowadays it is mostly pennies. This is called the "wreath money." Now the party proceeds to the church amid music, cheering and pistol-shots. The young men carry flasks of wine and invite every passerby to drink the health of the young couple.

Weight of Brains Though Oker was only a three-year-old mountain gorilla that died in the National Zoological Gardens of Washington a few months ago, he will acquire a kind of immortality because of the studies of his brain that Dr. C. J. Connolly has made of him. That brain weighed 466.6 grams, or about a pound—heavy, as gorilla brains go. Had he lived Oker might have developed a brain of 1,100 grams, which is 400 less than that of the average honest man. If a human brain weighs less than two pounds (907 grams) its owner is sure to be an imbecile. Three-year-old Oker, therefore, stood fairly high. Still, an intelligent man has brain enough to fill the heads of three gorillas.

Ford Embarrasses NRA

The NRA-Ford conflict has taken a new turn. The automobile manufacturer dismayed and embarrassed NRA officials by announcing he would lay off thousands of his employees in order to bring their average hours down from 40 a week to the NRA code requirement of 35.

He is to lay off 9,000 this week, and a similar number in succeeding weeks. Naturally, the men don't like the idea of a wageless layoff. The government, concerned about total employment, doesn't like it either. NRA has offered to 'consider an exception' if Ford will cancel his layoff order.

So here we have a curious mixup. NRA has been censuring Ford for not signing the Code. Ford has retorted that he was living up to the Code, even if he had not signed it. Now Ford insists on adhering to NRA hours, but NRA doesn't want him to do it when such adherence means a layoff.

But offering to make an exception in Ford's case is a confession of wrong. Either 35 hours a week are right, and Ford should not be allowed to work 40 hours are right and the other motor manufactures should not be held to 35.

If an exception were granted and Ford were allowed 40 hours a week, the result would be an injustice to the manufacturers whose production costs are raised by the 35 hour week. Anyway you look at it, it's a mess.—El Paso Times.

Lamb Wants Financial Reports Kept Quiet, 2 Years

Protest was unanimously voted Sunday by the Albuquerque Typographical Union against the proposal of J. D. Lamb, Chairman of the State Corporation Commission, to Gov. A.W. Hockenull that the annual reports of the state department be not printed for two years.

Copies of the report were sent to Lamb and the governor. The letter stated that, "It is our belief that the proposal is entirely out of keeping with the spirit of the times, as, if carried out, it would deprive many citizens and taxpayers of a portion of their means of livelihood that they can ill afford to lose at this time."

"The annual reports are the only means by which the public is apprised of the activities of the state departments, and we hold that the people of New Mexico are entitled to know how their money is being spent."

"The slight savings in printing expense could be offset many times by extravagances in any department which is not required to give an accounting to the public."

Addressing Lamb personally, the letter said, "It is very disappointing that this suggestion should come from you, as we had regarded you as being friendly to the cause of Labor."—Note: We think that there is a colored gentleman in the woodpile, too.

'Buy Now' a Frost—Berah What are We Going to Use For Money?

Parma, Idaho—Senator Wm. E. Borah of Idaho Sunday demanded restoration and enforcement of the anti-trust laws as a curb on 'prices fixed by combines and monopolies' and coupled it with an attack on opponents of inflation.

He declared the administration's 'Buy Now' campaign is not progressing at all, and asserted the controlling reason is the prices which confront the buyer.

"Many of these prices are high and beyond all reason and conscience. If they were 'blue eagle' prices, it would make this bird one of prey instead of protection; there are in many cases in my judgment, the fixed prices by the combines and monopolies are sheltered by the broad wings of the double-headed eagle."

A LIBERTY TO BE PRESERVED

Two hundred years ago Peter Zenger, publisher of the New York Gazette, was imprisoned by the Royal Governor of the Colony of New York, because he dared to criticize the Governor's actions in his newspaper.

A jury set Zenger free after he had lain in jail for several days, and declared it to be the right of every free man to speak and write his opinions freely on any subject, even the Royal Governor.

From that day on the freedom of the press has been one of America's most cherished traditions. Numerous attempts have been made to place the newspapers of the nation under Governmental control. Under the infamous Alien and Sedition Act, at the beginning of the last century, many editors were imprisoned for saying what they thought of those in authority and their actions. But so greatly was public opinion aroused by these high-handed proceedings, that the very first amendment to the Constitution of the United States was the one guaranteeing the right of free speech and a free press.

Lately there have been renewed efforts in many quarters to control the Press of America. Not only local and state authorities have tried to dictate what shall and shall not be printed, but there have been hints and threats from those high in the Federal Government itself. Not long ago an agent of the Department of Labor threatened to prosecute for treason a newspaper which printed a criticism of the effort to unhook certain industries. His threat was promptly disavowed by his superiors, but since then similar threats to "clamp down" on newspapers and reporters which dare to criticize the NRA have been voiced by General Johnson himself.

The United States has not yet become a despotism. We are not ruled by a dictator. The first act of those who usurp power is always to control the Press. It is time now, when the trial of Peter Zenger is being celebrated as a great historical event, to declare once more that neither this newspaper nor any other newspaper in America will tolerate any effort by authority to say what it may or may not print.

STATE INCOME TAX LAW TAKES EFFECT IN MARCH

Silver City Independent Apparently little or no attention is being paid by the people to the fact that the New Mexico income tax law becomes effective March 14, 1934.

Serious annoyance if not complications will result if the people do not familiarize themselves with the requirements of this act. The new law provides that returns must be filed by every person in the state having a gross income for the taxable year of $1,000 or more, if unmarried, or if married and not living with husband or wife.

Every citizen if married and living with husband or wife, and every widow or widower, with a dependent, minor child or children must file returns, if their gross income is $1,500 or more.

The returns must state fully and specifically whence this income is derived, and itemize exemptions and offsets which are deducted.

The federal income tax law has gross income filing requirements of $5,000. Many are likely to confuse the two, and be fined for delinquencies. Low gross income filing requirements in the state will make it necessary for the owners of small businesses to file returns, who have never had any previous income tax worries.

The law grants an exemption of $1,000 to single persons and $1,500 to married persons. Exemptions will be prorated on the number of months covered. A single person making a return from March 14, 1933, to December 31, 1933, would be entitled to a personal exemption of $333.33 instead of $1,000.

The rates are 1 per cent on net income to and including $10,000; from $10,000 to $20,000, 2 per cent; from $20,000 to $100,000, 3 per cent; and on all incomes in excess of $100,000, 4 per cent.

Corporations will be taxed on the basis of their entire net income. All foreign corporations must make return on that portion of the business conducted in the state.

The law further provides that 20 per cent of all state and county taxes paid for the year 1933 on business property can be deducted as an offset.

If taxes on a home residence do not exceed $200 they may be deducted as an offset. Returns, however, must be filed if they equal or exceed the amounts specified in the law.

Prepared to Save Lives

One of the most valuable services given to the American public by the Red Cross is through its Life Saving and First Aid courses. Virtually all of the life guards at beaches and pools in the nation are Red Cross life savers. Nearly every industry in America supports the First Aid work of the Red Cross because it annually saves lives of thousands of injured persons. These courses are taught by Red Cross experts in both lines. Last year 61,354 certificates were issued to persons completing the First Aid course and 73,795 certificates for completing Life Saving instruction.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

(By REV. F. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, C. 1933, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for November 12 PAUL IN MACEDONIA.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 16:9-15, 28-31. GOLDEN TEXT—And they said, Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house, Acts 16:31.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Happy Preacher. JUNIOR TOPIC—Ambassadors for the King. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Finding and Following God's Way. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Gospel and World Peace.

I. Forbidden to Preach in Asia (vv. 6-8).

The inclination of the missionaries was to tarry in Asia Minor, preaching the Word, but they were hurried along, contrary to this inclination—a fine example of divine guidance.

11. The Call to Macedonia (vv. 9-12). The time had now come for the gospel to begin its conquest of another continent.

2. The vision (v. 9). Paul being hemmed in on all sides, experienced a vision of a man of Macedonia pleading for help.

2. The advance (vv. 10-12). As soon as the divine way was known they moved forward.

111. The First European Convert (vv. 13-15).

The Jewish element in Philippi was so small that they were unable to afford a synagogue. Therefore, the devout people were accustomed to worship by the river side.

1. Attendance at the place of worship (v. 13). Usually those whom God is calling are found in the place of prayer.

2. Listening to the preaching of the Word of God (vv. 13, 14). The instrument used in the conversion of sinners is God's Word.

3. Her heart was opened by the Lord (v. 14). When the gospel is preached the Spirit of God opens the sinner's heart for the reception of Christ.

4. She was baptized (v. 15). Confession of Christ in baptism is the natural desire of those whose hearts the Lord has opened.

5. Hospitality practiced (v. 15). Those who experience God's saving grace are disposed to have part in his work by aiding his ministers.

1V. Paul and Silas in a Roman Prison (vv. 16-40).

1. The occasion (vv. 16-24). As the missionaries went to the place of prayer they were accosted by a young woman who possessed a spirit of divination.

2. Their behavior in jail (v. 25). They prayed and sang hymns to God. In spite of circumstances their hearts went up to God in joyful gratitude.

3. Their deliverance (v. 26). The Lord wrought deliverance by sending a great earthquake which opened the prison doors and removed the chains from off their hands.

4. The conversion of the jailer (vv. 27-34). What he heard of Paul's preaching and through his present experience, made the jailer a humble inquirer after salvation.

5. The magistrates humbled (vv. 35-40).

a. The prisoners ordered released (vv. 35, 36). The earthquake produced fear in them, moving them to order the prisoners' release.

b. Paul's refusal to go (v. 37). The ground of his refusal was that their rights as Roman citizens had been violated.

c. Officially brought out of prison (vv. 38, 39). Because these were Roman citizens, the officers removed them with fear for what they had done.

Fewer When a man receives the Lord Jesus Christ he is to realize that he also receives the power of God to pass through all his being, and to be exhibited in the world for the glory of God and for the salvation of others.

Never Mind How Many! It is fatal to all courage and energy to begin with counting our foes.

These things I have mentioned are things that happen in normal times, normal both politically and economically.

Washington Digest National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart

Washington.—It is a scant two months until Congress will be back here in the National Capital, and each day the inevitable question, "What Will Congress Do?" is heard more and more.

In the minds of Washington observers, as far as I have been able to learn their views, little doubt remains that President Roosevelt will have a highly nervous and bull-headed Congress on his hands.

The walls of the National Press club, that famous rendezvous of writers and those who like to associate with the fourth estate, in Washington, is replete with cartoons and sketches.

But, while the cartoon was directed to bear and beer drinkers, some of the officials of the present administration have taken the thought most seriously in its application to the general liquor question.

Under Secretary Acheson, of the treasury, tells me that it is one of the most delicate problems with which he has had to deal.

Mr. Acheson pointed out how all of these questions were interlinked, and that fact has not made their solution easier.

It is to be remembered, too, that every time Congress convenes for a new session, its members have come back to Washington filled to the brim with problems, pet or general, from a particular section or state.

What the result will be, no one can do more than guess. There are certain phases of the advance showing of the picture, however, which I hear discussed, and I am going to relate some of them in the hope that a better understanding of forthcoming conditions may be had.

In the first instance, the records fail to show many Presidents who have had popular faith behind them to the extent of that accorded Mr. Roosevelt.

Besides these tax questions, there is still another. Mr. Acheson suggested that to get the maximum revenue, the committee is looking around to determine what the difference in rates should be on wines and beer as distinguished from whiskeys and the high-powered stuff.

Under the new amendment, the repealer, it is hoped by government leaders that there can be a measure of control exercised that will rid the country of saloons to some extent.

No End of Problems In the case of senators or representatives, except among a few of the real leaders, a limited group of followers will read what he says or listen to his mouthings, but generally there is the tendency to read a headline and say "it's just Congressman Ump-ta-ump" and read the next column.

In the next place, there is an election facing all of the members of the house of representatives and one-third of the senators, and every day that any one of them balks on Presidential plans, he is just one day nearer the polls.

Besides these few senators or representatives have the courage to defy the President openly on the floor of their chamber if the President be of their own party.

These things I have mentioned are things that happen in normal times, normal both politically and economically.

These things I have mentioned are things that happen in normal times, normal both politically and economically.

These things I have mentioned are things that happen in normal times, normal both politically and economically.

Superficially, it is made to appear that Mr. Roosevelt already has anticipated much of the trouble that will arise after Congress convenes in January.

"I'll pay pretty soon," he promised, "as soon as the bill gets bigger. It costs so much now to make out checks that I hate to pay out money to the government for small amounts when I'm nicked just as much for a bigger sum."

Truly Terrible

"You must have had a terrible experience, with no food to eat and mosquitoes swarming round you," said a sympathetic friend to a mariner who had been cast away upon a tropical island.

"I had a terrible experience," the seaman acknowledged, "My case was worse than that of the man who wrote 'Water, water everywhere, nor any drop to drink.' It was 'Bites, bites everywhere, nor any bite to eat.'"

Washout

"What did you think of the dog show?" "I didn't see a single frock I liked."

REGULAR DEBATE

The conductor and a brakeman on a Montana railroad differ as to the proper pronunciation of the name Eureka.

"You're a liar! You're a liar!" Then from the brakeman at the other end comes the cry: "You really are. You really are."

Woof! Woof!

"I see," remarked Mrs. Grouch, looking up from the paper, "that fellow who married the lady evangelist says he is going to prove he can get along without any woman."

"Hub!" growled her husband, "if he wants to show how smart he is, let him prove he can get along with one. Any fool can get along without one."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The third quarterly executive meeting of the New Mexico Cattle Growers' Association is to be held at the La Fonda in Santa Fe, Nov. 20.

The most important matter coming before the Board at this meeting is the discussion of a just and equitable tax valuation on livestock and grazing lands which will be set by the State Tax Commission on this date.

The date of these hearings are set by law for the third Monday in November and each year the Tax Committee of the association meets with the Commission and discusses various phases of the livestock industry which have a bearing on the tax valuations.

The last Legislature passed a law which states that the tax valuations on grazing lands will be set for 4 years at this time. This makes the hearing of even greater importance for stockmen.

Other problems of interest to stockmen will be discussed and plans will be made for the annual Convention of the American National Live Stock Association as well as the State Convention to be held in Albuquerque Jan. 10, 11 and 12.

All Cattlemen are urged to attend these meetings.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES (By Helen Strauss)

Monday and Tuesday of this week the school was visited by Dr. Diefendorf of the Educational Department of the University of New Mexico, who is North Central Association Supervisor. While here he addressed the H. S. assembly.

Information recently received from the general secretary of the National Honor Society permits our local chapter to accept for membership another Senior. Accordingly, Ardeene McCammon has been elected to membership.

The Junior class entertained the assembly with a short program Thursday morning.

Don't forget that Saturday is our big day in athletics. One of the biggest and best football games of the season will be played, Carrizozo vs. Alamogordo. Be sure to see it. We are backing you, Team. There will also be a basketball game that night and dance, that for the benefit of the Athletic Association. Candy will also be sold at the dance and games. We are planning a big pep rally on Friday night to get ready for the games.

The various class teams and the town teams will hold a girls' volley ball tournament beginning Monday. The public is invited to attend. No charge.

O-oh!
but they're
SMART

They're new Kayser imports—just off the boat. Every one new and decidedly different. Note the superior air of 'Queen Victoria' (as illustrated above) but no wonder it's superior when it's decorated with such a distinctive cuff. Many other charming styles, the most attractive gloves of the season. All "Imperial Leatherettes." All guaranteed washable—no cleaner's bills.
