PRICE $2.00 THE YEAR

FORT STANTON NEWS

Mrs. James of the Craft Shop made a short pleasure trip to El Paso last Sunday afternoon, returning the following Tuesday.

An entertainment sponsored by the Trowel Club last Tuesday night, featuring Alamogordo and Carrizozo talent, was enjoyed by large audience. Miss Wilma Beauchamp executed a couple of exotic butterfly dances and was also accompanied by Miss Helen Frances Huppertz in some graceful duet dances. Miss Louise Sweet kept the audience charmed with sweet tunes on the violin and the viola. Mrs. Don English sang a couple of southern songs which drew a tremendous applause. The event was ended with some nice music by a string orchestra which included two cellos and a base fiddle; consisting, besides some of the artists already mentioned, of Mesdames Mendenhall and Carr, Messrs. D. U. Groce, Muriel Burnett and Sat. Chavez, Jr. We extend our thanks and appreciation to the Trowel Club for this entertainment. And, oh yes, we almost forgot—Mr. Hoover of Capitan starred as master of ceremonies and drew quite as much applause as the different performers.

Last Saturday night, Mr. Parson of the Fort, when returning from a party at Lincoln, met with an accident which could easily have proven fatal. Blinded by the headlights of an approaching car, he drove off the road and turned his car over three times, but escaped with only a few scratches, although the car was badly damaged.

The Craft Shop featured an exhibit last Wednesday of articles made in the course of occupational therapy. Mrs. Genler as usual acted the perfect hostess to a tremendous crowd that jammed within the old picturesque adobe walls of the shop. Refreshments were served, including a punch, which, although very delicious, could have stood a lot more spiking.

Louis (Pat) Johansen made a short trip to El Paso to get his radiator fixed and his battery charged—on his car, of course.

Mrs. J. A. Brubaker and little granddaughter were here from Capitan Saturday.

The dancing of Miss Helen Frances Huppertz at the Woman's Club entertainment last Friday night was clever.

Seaborn Gray and son Jimmy came in from Pecos, N. M., and spent the week-end with Mr. Gray's mother, Mrs. Sarah G. Gray and other close relatives. They left Monday morning for home after a pleasant visit.

Miss Thelma Stevens of Alamogordo is a guest of Miss Edith Dudley for a few days this week.

Mesdames Walter LaFleur, Eliza Charles and Miss Ella Bell were Alamo visitors Sunday.

Mmes. S. W. Wells, L. E. Hunt, sons Eugene and Raymond of White Oaks made a trip to Alamogordo Sunday to witness the confirmation services of a class in which Miss Ella Bell of Carrizozo was a member. During their stay they were guests of Mrs. Coe, another of Mrs. Wells' daughters.

LOCAL MENTION

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Elliott and Miss Dia Herringa spent the week-end in El Paso.

The Misses Ruth Brickley, Jane Spencer and Mack Shaver spent the week-end with their parents here, returning to their studies at the 'U' in Albuquerque Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Rentfrow of their ranch across the Malpais, visited Carrizozo friends last Saturday, remaining over to attend the Jericho Club dance held on that night.

The 6th, 7th and 8th grades held their annual picnic at the Malpais Monday afternoon. Mmes. Snyder and Blaney, sponsors of the affair, appreciate very much the assistance given by Mmes. Barnett, Carl, Albert Snow, Ira Johnson, Strauss, Henry Hoffman, Harmon, Sullivan, McPherson and Messrs. Carl, Blaney and Hoffman. The children are still talking of the good eats and the enjoyable time.

Perry Sears of Capitan was a visitor here Tuesday spending several hours and leaving before noon.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Cox and infant daughter Mary Jane were here from Fort Stanton Monday.

Attorneys Hall and Barber were identified in the District Court at Estancia last week. There was no jury because of lack of funds for such purpose.

The Rainbow for Girls, accompanied by the Mother Advisor Mrs. Pehm and Past Mother Advisor, Mrs. Blaney, attended services at the Baptist Church in a body as is customary each year. Rev. Jordan gave a beautiful illustration of the rainbow in the sky and the hope it offered. Mrs. Kelley had charge of the music and the girls sang two beautiful songs. The services were very much enjoyed and appreciated by all.

Mrs. Raymond Gillette gave several enjoyable vocal solos at the entertainment given at the Lyric Theatre Friday evening. The affair was sponsored by the Woman's Club of Carrizozo.

Attendants at the ball game from White Oaks Sunday were: Miss Ida Cleghorn, Wayne Van Schoyck, Everett Myers, Ed Sullivan, Nonie and Wm. Littell. There may have been more, but these were all we observed. You can always depend upon the White Oaks live-wire baseball enthusiasts to root for the Carrizozo team.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Beckett came over from their home in Artesia the latter part of last week, stayed over until Sunday when they left for Corona, accompanied by Mrs. Joe Trimble of Tucumcari, who had been visiting Carrizozo friends and after visiting relatives at Corona, went on to Tucumcari. The Becketts returned to Artesia Wednesday. During their stay here they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Mosier.

Mrs. Elizabeth Gallacher, Mrs. R. E. Sale, Miss Grace, little Dorothy May and Carl Jones motored up to Eagle Creek and down to Tularosa last Sunday.

Announcement of Coming Nuptials At Enjoyable Entertainment

The home of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Boughner was the scene of a delightful tea Sunday afternoon, April 16, the occasion being the announcement of the engagement of their daughter Beatrix to Mr. J. Verl Groce, formerly of Missouri, but now an instructor in the Carrizozo High School. The wedding will take place in May.

The rooms were truly festive, decorated with flowers in a color scheme of orchid and yellow. In the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. Boughner, Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Groce, Mr. J. Verl Groce and Misses Beatrix and Rhea Boughner. The Boughner sisters were charming, Beatrix in a gown of rose georgette and Rhea similarly attired except in green.

A hundred guests were entertained in three groups, being received from 3 to 6. During the afternoon an excellent musical program was furnished. Mrs. Burns played two piano solos, "Ondolement" by Ferrari and "Waltz in A-flat Major" by Johannes Brahms. Mrs. Gillette, accompanied by Mrs. Burns, delightfully rendered two vocal solos, "Song of April" and "The Sweetest Story Ever Told." Mr. D. U. Groce, accompanied by Mrs. O. J. Snow, played the violin selections, "Souvenir" by Drdla and "Schon Rosmarin" by Fritz Kreisler.

Mrs. Boughner was assisted by Mesdames Spencer, Allen, Hall, Oscar Snow and Burns. Presiding over the beautifully decorated tea table were Mmes. Nellie Branum and Blaney, assisted in the service by Misses Melana, Nellie Shaver, Spencer, Huppertz and Julia Romero. The table was beautiful with cloth of lace and service of silver. Refreshments were dainty and delicious and the announcement was indeed unique as each guest received an Easter chicken wearing a small heart with the names, "Bee and Verl." It was indeed, a pleasurable occasion that will long be cherished in memory.

Treat—Johnson

At the Baptist parsonage Tuesday evening with the Rev. L. D. Jordan performing the ceremony, Lloyd L. Treat of Roswell and Miss Ethel Johnson of Carrizozo were united in marriage.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Johnson. She is a product of Lincoln County, being born and reared here, where she has hosts of friends. After graduating from our High School she entered the teaching profession and has taught at several places over the county, the last place being Picacho, where she met the groom, who has been dividing his time between Roswell and his ranch near Picacho. He is a nephew of former County Clerk Ralph M. Treat.

Both of the contracting parties come from pioneer stock, the families ranking among the early settlers of this section of the state. The families were neighbors at White Oaks during the gold rush. The young couple will make their home on the ranch near Picacho and the best wishes of their many friends for their future welfare and happiness will be extended.

Miss Eta Carter, teacher in the Capitan schools, was here on Saturday, paying this office a pleasant call while in town. She will leave after the school term for her home in Missouri.

Key—Haldeman

At the Methodist parsonage in Santa Rosa, Saturday, April 15, with the Rev. Johnson officiating, Ernest Key, County Clerk of this county and Miss Janie Haldeman of Enid, Okla., were united in marriage.

The bride is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. O. Haldeman of the above named city, where she was reared and her friends are legion. During the terms of 1928-29, she taught school in Capitan, during which time, the young couple formed an acquaintance which resulted in the same old story—matrimony.

County clerks, as we all know, issue marriage licenses, but inasmuch as Mr. Key was compelled to apply for the same in the county where he was to have been married, he saved himself the novelty of issuing and signing his own license.

The groom served two terms as deputy county clerk and after the retirement of S. E. Graisen, received the nomination, braved the storm and was the only Republican elected in the county. We have not, as yet, met the new Mrs. Key, but we extend to her and her genial husband our best wishes for their future happiness. The newlyweds are at home to their friends in one of the apartments in Mrs. Elizabeth Gallacher's residence on Main street.

Little Dorothy May Jones is ill this week.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

It becomes our privilege to announce publicly the Senior Class Honors for 1933. Edith Dudley with a scholarship average of 94.45 is Valedictorian and Ernest Pehm with an average of 94.35 is Salutatorian. Both students deserve congratulations of their classmates and the faculty.

By vote of the faculty, John Jackson will receive the Medal of Award from the University of New Mexico. The selection of a student is based upon scholarship, leadership and participation in student activities.

Last week a social event of interest was the picnic given at White Oaks by the Senior Class play. It was a pleasant informal occasion enjoyed by everyone present.

The High School Annual "The Carrizozo Tumbleweed" will be completed by Thursday, April 27. The Seniors assisted by Miss Melana and Mr. Gillette have spent time and effort on the Annual and we are anxious to see the finished product.

Due to the necessity of painstakingly preparing for semester examinations we have had few student activities this week—hence the brevity of the notes.

Baccalaureate Service

The Baccalaureate service will take place at the High School Auditorium Sunday, April 23, at 8 p. m. There will be special music by a mixed choir directed by Mrs. Don English. Reverends Lawson and Jordan will deliver the message. We trust that there will be a large congregation at this service.

The Flapper Chorus

A large attendance was present at the "Flapper Chorus" given by the Woman's Club of Carrizozo last Friday at the Lyric Theatre. 23 business and professional men took part in the chorus, assuming different screen and radio characters, much to the amusement of the big audience. The cast, directed by Miss Dia Herringa, appears again on an inside page.

Mrs. Florence Ward, teacher in the White Oaks school, put on an egg-rolling contest Friday, which was much enjoyed by the children. Mrs. Hunt and Miss Ida Cleghorn assisted in the exercises.

Rev. J. L. Lawson spent a few days of the week at Hot Springs, returning home Wednesday.

Supreme Judge A. H. Hudspeth spent several days here transacting official business and visiting old friends. The Judge has his headquarters in Santa Fe.

John W. Harkey was down with the flu this week, but is able to be about now.

Mrs. Ben S. Burns officiated at the piano as accompanist for the solos given by Mrs. Raymond Gillette at the entertainment of the Woman's Club Friday evening at the Lyric Theatre.

Dewey Stokes says—"What we need is a Taxpayers' Election."

Mrs. E. L. Mendenhall was at the piano for the dancing act given by Miss Helen Frances Huppertz and also the "Flapper Chorus" put on Friday night at the Lyric Theatre.

LYRIC THEATRE

R. A. Walker, Owner

Friday - Saturday - Sunday - Tom Mix in "The Fourth Horseman," "Strange as it Seems" and "Kid Glove Kisses."

Awards of $10 in Gold

Two five-dollar gold pieces will be awarded at the Methodist church during the Sunday School Day program next Sunday morning. One to the high school boy or girl, and one to the grade school boy or girl, who has revealed best, during the past year, the cardinal points of character—honesty, politeness, kindness.

Tired of Life

One day last week, Mrs. Neatherlee of Roswell, daughter of Mrs. Annie Henderson of Ancho, came to see her mother and with her, came a young lady by the name of Ada Crimm, who had been at the home of Mrs. Neatherlee in the capacity of nurse and came here for the same purpose.

They had been here but a short time when the young lady mentioned became despondent and made an attempt to end her life by shooting herself. The ball entered the left breast and lodged in the back near the spine. She was brought to the Johnson Hospital where the bullet was extracted, and as to the outcome of the case, there is no certainty. She is still conscious, although her condition is critical and she still expresses no desire to live. The cause of her attempt to end her life is not known.

Mmes. Sam Wells and L. E. Hunt of White Oaks were in town this Wednesday.

Mrs. J. B. French entertained the Carrizozo Bridge Club yesterday afternoon and will leave for Albuquerque tomorrow, where she will join Mr. French. Mrs. French will remain at the Duke City for an indefinite period, during which time, the R. E. Lemon family will occupy the the French residence.

John Scharf of White Oaks was a Carrizozo business visitor Tuesday of this week.

The dance given by the Jericho Club last Saturday night, while not as heavily attended as others given, was, nevertheless, one of the best given since the series began. The reason for a lighter attendance was, that there were several dances—at Ruidoso, Capitan, Lincoln and Oscura. The Revelers played snappy music and the patrons had a splendid time.

Little Frank Abel, Jr., who has been ill for the past week with scarlet fever, is much improved at this writing.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church held a tea at the Elizabeth Rooms Wednesday evening. A musical program was carried out after which tea, punch and cake were served. There were about 40 people present. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Albert Snow, Wednesday afternoon, April 26, at 2:30. This will be a social meeting and a good attendance is desired.

Dr. F. H. Johnson returned Wednesday from his business trip to California.

"Not quite that bad. But it was pretty dreadful."

As she spoke there came the crack of a gun from somewhere on ahead, and then another and a third. Betty put her hands to her ears and said, "Dear me are we going to get into more of it?"

"I guess not," said Smith. "I'm inclined to think that was Harding, trying to stop those fellows."

A mile or more farther on they found the sheriff and two of his deputies standing in the road. Markham pulled up and waited, and Smith got out of his car and walked on to speak to the sheriff.

"My guess was right," he said, when he came back. "They went by here, merely hitting the high spots, and Harding tried to stop them; shot at their tires but apparently missed the mark. Anyway, they didn't stop. I told Harding what they did to you, and he says he'll try to trail the scoundrels and bring 'em to book. I guess we're safe to go on to town, now."

A few minutes' fast driving brought them to the bridge over the Timanyon; and Smith's car turned off to the railroad station. The fast drive had been made in silence, but after Markham had helped his seatmate out at the curb the young woman broke it.

"Wally, where could I find you or Owen quickly, if I should need to?" she asked.

"Why, we are at the Hoppla house, as you know."

"Yes; but you are not there all the time."

Markham did a bit of quick thinking. "Are you asking seriously, Betty?"

"Yes. Don't ask me why. I can't tell you—yet. But—"

"I'll promise that one or the other of us will always be within reach of the hotel phone. Will that do?"

"Yes, thank you. Good night."

He waited until he had seen her mounting the porch steps before he drove away toward the business district. On the way he was wondering why she had made her singular remark, and he was still wondering after he had put his car up and was entering the lobby of the hotel.

Looking for Landis, he crossed to the counter. The key to their suite was in its pigeonhole, which meant that Landis had not gone upstairs. Markham spoke to the clerk.

"Seen anything of Mr. Landis?"

"Why yes; he was right here a little while ago."

"You don't know where he went?"

"No, I—hold on, yes I do, too. Mr. Starbuck phoned for him from his office across the street, and he went over there."

"What's that?" Markham snapped. "Mr. Starbuck isn't in town. He went to Copah last night to meet his wife and daughter."

"He must have returned," said the clerk. "The operator said the phone call was from him."

Markham turned away vaguely disturbed. An attempt had been made to kidnap him, and only the opportune appearance of Smith's car had made it fail. Had a similar attempt been made to trap Landis? As he hesitated, he saw Smith talking to three of the lately arrived guests at the cigar stand. He turned to the clerk and asked if he knew the names of the three who were with Smith.

"I do, for a fact. They are the three gentlemen you were asking about when you came a week ago; Mr. Fleming, Mr. Cantrell and Mr. Martin, from Louisville. They have just come in on the Nevada Flyer."

"Not driving?"

"No; they started out to drive and came part of the way by motor. But they had had luck with their car and left it at one of their stopovers."

Markham looked again at the three men. Not in any single particular did they resemble the three who had been registering under the same names halfway across the continent, and whom he and Landis had seen leaving the lobby of the Copah hotel in company with Canby.

CHAPTER XI

The Surgeon's Kit

At the discovery that the three men talking with Smith were by no means the three who had traveled in the Fleetwing, Markham's first impulse was to introduce himself promptly, for the purpose of telling Smith's friends what he knew. Then he remembered that he had no proof to offer, since the three name forgers had disappeared.

His next thought was to go in search of Landis. As he went toward the hotel entrance, he saw Canby step out of an elevator and go quickly to shake hands with the new arrivals, and noticed that Smith waved the three a good night and turned away—a bit of byplay that seemed to say that he did not care to be identified with Canby. Markham stepped out upon the sidewalk and glanced up at the miles office windows. They were lighted, and he crossed the street and climbed the stair to the second floor suite.

The door was opened by an elderly man in his shirt sleeves.

"Mr. Starbuck," said Markham; "is he here?"

"Not now," was the prompt reply;

and then, "Xot are Mr. Markham? I'm glad to see you. I was just going to phone the hotel to find out if you had come in. You are needed. Word came a little while ago that Professor Lawson had been hurt by a landslide up at those fossil beds, and Mr. Starbuck got Mr. Landis and a doctor and started up there in his car. A few minutes ago they phoned and asked me to find you and send you after them with this," picking up a black bag. "It's the doctor's instruments. Must have left them here when he came up with Mr. Starbuck."

Markham was deeply shocked at the news of the professor's accident.

"How badly is Doctor Lawson hurt?" he asked.

"Pretty badly, I judge."

"Has his daughter been told? She is stopping with the Stillings."

"They didn't call her up, Mr. Starbuck and Mr. Landis both agreed that it was better not to tell her until they found out just how bad it is."

"Where is this fossil place? Can I find it in the night?"

"Maybe you won't need to; maybe you'll overtake the other car. I can show you how to go so you can't very well miss the way—that is, if you don't overtake Mr. Starbuck," and upon a sheet of scratch paper the elderly man sketched a rude outline map, penning in the road that Markham should take with the various right and left turns indicated by guiding arrows. "Not much of a map," he apologized, "but maybe it will do."

"Somebody's Done Played a Mighty Mean Joke on You, I Reckon."

Markham picked up the black bag, saying, "If they telephone again, tell them I'm on the way and will try to overtake them."

At the hotel garage he called for his roadster and told the night man to fill the tank. He got in to place the car for the filling, keeping his seat until the man finished and came around for his pay. For this reason a dark figure had its chance to slip unseen from the shadows of a nearby doorway, to stoop for a brief moment at the rear of the car, and thereafter to vanish as swiftly and silently as it had come.

Once across the bridge and headed northward, Markham let the roadster out. He was glad the bookkeeper had told him that Starbuck and Landis had not passed the distressing news on to Betty; thus saving her a long and heartbreaking interval of anxiety and uncertainty before the worst could be known.

For a time nothing intervened to make him slacken speed. With the paved road left behind, however, Markham's difficulties began, and he had to get out the scratch-paper map and follow its markings. But after he had made the first two or three arrow-indicated turns a speed slackening became strictly obligatory. The road was now degenerating into a country cart track among the hills.

Spurred on by the sharp necessities, Markham kept the roadster in motion, shifting gears only when he was obliged to. In this manner he had made something over twenty speedometer miles of the bad going before he came to the end. "On one of the rockiest of the hills the motor coughed a few times and stalled, and not for any switchings-on of the starter would it yield another explosion.

He got his flashlight and climbed out to investigate. So far as he could determine, the ignition system was in perfect condition. Next, he tested the fuel feed by trying to flood the carburetor—but it wouldn't flood. With a malediction on his ill luck, he took off his coat, got out the tool kit, and began to take things apart to probe for the trouble.

Though he was a fairly good mechanic, the probing process proved to be a glut of time, and a long period of what he could well imagine might be a life and death delay for Betty's father was wasted before he had satisfied himself that neither the gas line nor the vacuum tank was responsible for the power failure. It was, only as a last resort that he went to look at the gas tank gauge. But a single aiming of the flashlight at gauge was enough. Though he was assured that he had left Brewster with a supply of gasoline which should have taken him five or six times the distance he had traveled, the tank was now empty. The small drain cock in the tank bottom was partly open, with the last residue of the liquid fuel still dripping from it.

Under other conditions, and in view of what had already happened to him and Landis since leaving Carriage, his suspicions would doubtless have been awakened at once. But laboring under the burden of his responsibility as a doctor's messenger he thought of nothing else, and the half-open drain cock merely suggested one of the many road accidents that may happen.

Obsessed by the thought that the life of Betty's father might be hanging in the balance for the lack of the instruments in the surgeon's bag, he snatched it and the penciled map out of the car, and with the flashlight for a lantern, started on afoot.

Hour after hour he pushed over a road which finally became no road at all, but upon which he could occasionally see the tracks of an automobile.

It was these faint tire marks that kept him going, and it was not until the graying dawn found him halting to stare at a way-worn car drawn up in front of a log cabin beside the road, which here ended abruptly, that the suspicion that he had been cleverly victimized struck him.

Before he could recover from the blow the cabin door opened and an unshaven, gray-haired man came out to voice astonishment at finding that he had a visitor.

"Well, stranger! Where on top of earth did you tumble from?" he called out.

Briefly, and hurriedly, Markham explained, and the gray-haired one laughed.

"Somebody's done played a mighty mean joke on you, I reckon. There ain't nothin' the matter with old Doctor Bonehunter, as we call him. He was down here yist'day to see if I wouldn't drive the Lizzie to town and fetch him out some more picks and shovels. The place where he's bone-diggin' is only about six miles on through the hills. He ain't hurt none. No! I reckon it's a joke, and I'll say it was a mighty mean one. You been trampin' all night?"

"A good part of it," said Markham, convinced now that he had been gotten out of Brewster by subterfuge. Then, overwhelmed by a sudden realization of what the plot might mean not only to himself, but also to Landis and possibly to Betty, "it isn't a joke; it's the way a bunch of crooks took to get me out of town and lost in these hills. You've got a car and it will be worth a hundred dollar bill to you to get me back to my car and give me gas enough to run me to Brewster. Will you do it?"

"If I had the gas I wouldn't hold you up for no robbin' deal like that. But I ain't got it; don't reckon I got more'n enough to run to some place where I kin borrow enough to get it with. More'n that, I got to do a little tinkerin' on the Lizzie afore she'll run. You come on in an' we'll see what-all we kin do with the lit' ol' bus-wagon."

Markham entered the cabin with his host and helped him cook a breakfast of bacon and pan-bread. He learned that his entertainer was a prospector, and that his name was Jackson Griggs; also that he knew Starbuck well. "Sure, I know Billy," was the way he put it; "knewed him when he used to punch cows in 'other end of the Park." After breakfast they fell upon the outworn flover. The old machine was little more than a wreck; overhauling killed all of the forenoon before it was completed; a period in which Markham's anxiety became a maddening thorn in the flesh.

What had the plotters, whoever they were, been doing in his absence? What had they done to Landis? That Owen, too, had been put out of the way, he could not doubt for a moment. That was the meaning of the telephone call which had taken Landis out of the hotel—a call doubtless sent by the gray-haired accomplice who had gained access to the Little Alice office and had posed as the bookkeeper. Then there was Betty. Wasn't her danger as great as that which menaced Landis and himself? For she knew—she must know—that she was the one who, at Owen's instigation, had opened Canby's safe for the abstraction of the black box.

At the long last the car consented to run, and the return to Brewster was begun. It was a slow business over the wretched road, and Markham's need of sleep was so overpowering that he slept in his seat most of the way.

As Griggs had predicted, he had barely gas enough to enable them to reach the first house on the paved road; but here they borrowed enough to make the run to town. At the hotel entrance Markham pressed a liberal reward upon the old prospector and hurried in. As he passed through the revolving doors a man accosted him. It was Stillings; and before he spoke, Markham had read the story of anxious worry in his face.

"Miss Betty?" said the lawyer quickly. "Do you know what has become of her?"

"I left her at your house last night about nine o'clock. Do you mean to say—"

"She didn't go into the house," Stillings interrupted sharply. "You didn't see her go in, did you?"

"No; but I saw her go up the steps to the porch."

Stillings explained rapidly. "We were out for a call on one of the neighbors, and when Miss Betty telephoned to say that you were staying at Hillcrest for dinner, Mrs. Stillings told her to look under the mat for the door key if she returned before we did. We were back by half-past nine, and the key was where we left it and there was no one in the house but the servants, who had gone to bed. The natural supposition was that Miss Betty was staying the night with the Stillings; but when we tried to call up and find out, we were told the Mac was out of order. Then we tried to get you here at the hotel, and were told you'd been in and had gone out again."

Southwestern Briefs

A prospector in Albuquerque from Golden, N. M., recently reported that about 200 men are in that section of the mountains washing for gold.

Federal salary cuts amounting to a flat 15 per cent will take $185,000 a year from the income of the 660 federal employees located in Albuquerque.

District Judge M. A. Otero, Jr., has ruled that sheriffs, under a law passed by the Eleventh Legislature of New Mexico, may compel prisoners to be fingerprinted.

Excepting in cities of 10,000 or more population, the New Mexico State Corporation Commission has absolute control and regulation of utilities, according to Chairman J. D. Lamb of the commission.

Generosity on the part of the Santa Fe railroad in the advance payment of salaries will pay at least part of the salaries now due rural school teachers of San Miguel county, N. M., it was announced recently.

Pupils in the grade schools of Sandoval county, in New Mexico, have put away their school books until next fall. The seven-month term of schools in that county ended last week. Lack of funds caused the short term.

Mrs. Jessie W. Chapman, noted woman filer of Los Angeles and Chicago, was killed April 1 in a collision between a truck and her automobile on the coast highway near Liberty, thirty-five miles west of Phoenix.

More than 3,000 men will be thrown out of work by the New Mexico State Highway Department unless Congress continues federal aid after July 1, according to Gov. Arthur Seligman. The present appropriation expires June 30.

Temporary receipts, or "licenses," permitting the sale of beer and wine in Arizona under the new federal law, are being issued by the internal revenue department for Arizona in lieu of the special tax stamps required under the act.

A contract for a complete engineering survey of the city of Roswell, N. M., to determine the feasibility of construction of a municipal light and power plant was favored unanimously by a committee of the City Council recently.

A trio of Pennsylvanians, who, Sheriff Arthur Vandever said, apparently derived their ideas of cattle rustling from Western fiction magazines, have been lodged in the Coconino county jail in Flagstaff to await trial on cattle theft charges.

Members of the men's and women's debate teams of Arizona State Teachers College of Flagstaff, Ariz., went to Stockton, Calif., recently, where they competed in the Pacific Coast Forensic tournament, held there the latter part of March.

The Arizona 1933 wool clip will fall about one-third short of last year's clip, but is better quality, Jerry W. Lee, secretary of the Arizona Wool Growers' Association, announced recently. Last year's clip was close to five million pounds.

J. D. William of the University of Arizona has asked New Mexicans who saw the meteor which passed over New Mexico, to send reports of their observations to him at Tucson. The data is being collected on behalf of the American Meteor Society.

Applications as candidates in the New Mexico constitutional convention election in September will be received by Mrs. Marguerite P. Baca, secretary of state, until July 25 under provisions of the White bill, enacted by the Eleventh Legislature.

Sheepmen in the section around Arizola, N. M., have already started the lambing season. Prospects, according to reports, are very good this year. Last year there was only a 50 per cent crop in many sections, whereas this year sheep growers anticipate a crop of from 80 to 90 per cent.

The Magua Copper Company has proposed to the State Tax Commission that the 1932 valuation of the company's mine at Superior, Ariz., be fixed at approximately $5,000,000. The valuation has been placed at about $7,000,000 by the tax commission. The mining company has brought suit to have the valuation reduced.

Grant and Sierra counties, in New Mexico, have pledged $40,000 to support the construction of a forest type road over Black range. State highway engineers have reported that with a few changes in the original survey a good road can be built for $10,000 a mile and $180,000 will be adequate to complete the project.

One silver dollar that has been in hiding for many a year came back into circulation in Albuquerque recently. A merchant received several dollars. One of them, he discovered, was larger and heavier than the rest and on examining it found it had been coined in 1795. The coin has fifteen stars around the edge, an engraving of an eagle on one side and the goddess of liberty, with flowing hair, on the other side.

Ernest McCollam, 31, Arizona State Teachers College student, died March 28 from wounds inflicted, investigators said, by a Tempe police officer who mistook a group of students for automobile thieves.

All three of New Mexico's congressional representatives are taking an active interest in opposing an application for a $2,000,000 R. F. C. loan to build a gas pipe line from Douglas, Ariz., to Phoenix and Tucson, George Karsman, president of the Albuquerque & Cerrillos Coal Co., announced recently.

Simple Method of Estimating the Distance of Coming Thunderstorm

Two questions enter most people's minds at the approach of a thunderstorm. One is how fast the storm is approaching. The other is the distance away of the lightning flashes. It is easy to estimate the distance from the observer at which a flash of lightning has taken place by counting the seconds which elapse between the sight of the flash and the sound of the accompanying thunder.

Light travels with a speed of 186,000 miles a second. A beam of light could encircle the earth's equator seven times in less than a second. For all practical purposes, therefore, the observer may assume that he sees the lightning flash at practically the second it occurs.

Sound, on the other hand, travels much more slowly than does light. The speed of sound is measured in feet rather than in miles. Its speed is about 1,066 feet per second.

This means, therefore, that if you hear the thunder one second after you see the flash, the flash took place 1,066 feet away. Since the method is fairly crude, it may be assumed for the sake of simplicity that every second elapsed denotes 1,000 feet. Therefore, if you count three seconds between flash and thunder, the flash was 3,000 feet away.

Estimating the distance away of the lightning flashes will help one to estimate how fast the storm is approaching. Obviously, as the storm draws nearer, the elapsed time between flashes and thunder will grow shorter and shorter.

Occasionally thunder may be heard when the storm is ten miles away. In that case the lapse of time between the flash and the sound would be fifty seconds.

When a thunderstorm is observed in the distance, the first thing to do is to ascertain its course. If the storm is retreating, the clouds will appear to dwindle in size.

If the storm is moving at right angles to the observer, the motion of the clouds will be visible. If the storm is approaching, the clouds will appear to be growing larger and larger.

Thunderstorms travel with an average speed of twenty-five miles an hour. It is possible, however, to time a storm fairly well by the method described.

Let us suppose that you note the time between flash and thunder and that it is forty seconds. That means the storm is eight miles away.

Five minutes later, let us say, the time between flash and thunder is thirty seconds. The storm is now six miles away. In other words, the storm has traveled two miles in five minutes.

Since the storm is then six miles from where you are, you have exactly fifteen minutes in which to seek shelter before the storm breaks.

Benjamin Franklin, though probably not the first to suggest that lightning was electrical in its nature was the first to suggest a reasonable mechanism for lightning. He first suggested that lightning resembled an electric discharge in November, 1740. In 1750, he speaks of "the fire of electricity and that of lightning being the same."—David Dietz, in the New York World-Telegram.

AFTER 40 bowel trouble

Constipation may very easily become chronic after forty. And any continued constipation at that time of life may bring attacks of piles and a host of other unpleasant disorders.

Watch your bowels at any age. Guard them with particular care after forty. Whenever they need any help, remember a doctor should know what is best for them.

"Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin" is a doctor's prescription for the bowels. Tested by 47 years' practice, it has been found thoroughly effective in relieving constipation and its ills for men, women and children of all ages. It has proven perfectly safe even for babies. Made from fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other harmless ingredients, it cannot gripe; will not sicken you or weaken you; can be used without harm as often as your health is bad, or when your tongue is coated; whenever a headache, bilious, gassy condition warns of constipation.

The Community Hall's Misfortune

After the tornado had done its work of destruction last Thursday, some might have thought the damage to be beyond repair and that the pride of the town for the benefit of the community was a thing of the past. But no sooner had Mr. Brickley summed up an estimate of the cost of restoring the building to its former condition and had made such figures known, than the people responded, in the most liberal manner. And within the space of several hours, enough funds were subscribed to more than cover the amount of expense necessary to replace the damage done by the twister.

Those who had subscribed amounts before and whose notes had not been retired, came forward and doubled the amounts, so that now the work is going ahead of restoring the building—and it will be better and stronger than ever.

Moreover, the local societies, clubs and business houses have come forward with unselfish offers of assistance, and everybody is interested in seeing the work done quickly and in the best of order. The work is progressing nicely under the direction of Phipps & Langston.

On April 29 there will be a big Community Dance for the benefit of the Hall fund. Mrs. Garner will furnish sandwiches and coffee, others will attend to the serving, and the Jericho Club will handle the receipts for the occasion.

Let's all give a hand and help to get the pride of the town out of misfortune.

Dems. Are Wondering What Happened to the Pie

There is a great deal of consternation over the state as to the distribution of offices.

The situation has been greatly complicated by several things, First, Sen. Cutting disavows any desire to control any patronage whatever, and has issued a statement to that effect.

Dennis Chavez, member of Congress from New Mexico, it is said, may be shorn of his patronage privilege, because he didn't stay with the administration economy program.

This situation, therefore, makes Sen. Bratton the chief dispenser of New Mexico jobs, with a considerable shift in the probable winners.

It does not seem likely that many of the offices will be filled until after the administration program is safe in its important features.

So there will be a great many candidates on the anxious seat for some time to come.—Alamosgo News.

Woman's Club Notes

The Woman's Club of Carrizozo will hold its next regular meeting at Fort Stanton on the afternoon of Saturday, April 22. Those who are desirous of attending this meeting and have no means of conveyance, please notify Mrs. Zoe Glassmire.

Here and There

The ball game last Sunday was more of a practice game for the local team; (you may as well call it that). The Mountainair boys played an excellent game of ball, besides being good sports. One thing was noticeable about the playing of the Mountainair team, and that was when they made a winning play, they didn't pull the old stuff of spectacular throwing from base to base. And we tell you we were beat, not defeated; just beat. But you can't win all the time, so the old saying goes, "We'll be seein' the Mountainair team poco pronto," and we hope the next time we will have a different story to relate.

"Come to Chicago and see the World's Fair," runs an advertisement appearing in the daily papers and magazines. How about paying the school teachers their back salaries? It is a very nice thing to have a World's Fair, but is this the opportune time? The teachers claim they have worked eight months and received seven days pay.

We note that the baseball fans at Wrigley field in Chicago are to have real comfort in witnessing the game. How come? Real beer will be served to all wishing the same.

20 Dogs Poisoned in Fort Collins, Colo. A reward of $25 is offered for the arrest and conviction of the poisoners. Just let "Thirteenth" our Poodle Pup, meet with such a disaster, we'd nearly cry. And we know others who have dogs would feel almost the same.

We note in the Scott Scrapbook that Charles Henri Sanson, the chief executioner of France during the Reign of Terror or the French Revolution, was a busy Hombro, chopping off 3,918 heads. They can have the job, so says we. We want to lie down and sleep, without having a guilty conscience. How about you?

Babe Ruth is starting early as King of the Swat. He hit home run No. 1 in a game a few days ago. The Bambino is an ex-pitcher, and pitchers are, as a rule, poor hitters. They all throw 'baseballs' at the Babe, and can he h-i-t, we're tellin' "youse!"

"Japs Claim More Victories," news item. —Who cares?

"Tis an ill wind that doesn't blow some one some good," thus runs the old saying.

The twister of last week caused a force of workmen to get busy repairing the roof and cleaning up the debris around the Community Hall. A stranger or passing this way was heard to remark that the building looked like a cyclone had struck it. Yes, verily! But not a cyclone, just a twister. We have been in this place for 15 years and the wind of last week was the strongest yet.

The Carrizozo High School Football Team, under Coach Hubert Detloff, ever on progressive and rarin' to go, had a Spring football game last Saturday. Wish we knew something about the game, so a detailed description could be written up about it. — Bah! Bah! Bah!

"Cheer up. There won't be any more political speeches on the radio for nearly two years," Louise Basot remarks.

S. H. Nickles wants to know if you've heard Walter Smith and his band over the radio lately?

"Wasn't the twister of last Thursday something awful?"

Eugenie's Grandfather Was an American

It's a high-sounding name, Marie-Louise Eugenie-Ignace-Augustine de Montijo, Empress of the French, wife of Napoleon III, but few people know her mother was the daughter of William Kirkpatrick, American Consul at Malaga, Spain. The great ladies who attended social functions in France's magnificent palaces didn't like the little upstart. Finally Eugenie complained of an insult from the wife of a high official at a New Year's Eve ball at the Tuilleries Palace in Paris. The Emperor heard of the insult and calmly said to Eugenie, "I will avenge you." Three days later he proposed. Eugenie's beauty and charm set the style in the gay French capital. Sixty years later she is again setting the style, for Eugenie hats are sweeping the country. Eugenie smoked cigarettes and broke down many ancient prejudices just as the American woman taking advantage of the removal of certain harmful irritants from cigarettes by such modern methods as the toasting process including the use of ultra violet rays has broken down the prejudice against smoking by women. Modern science has achieved many wonders and the creative mind is always at work to devise such aids to smokers as the notched-tab cigarette package which allows one to open the moisture-proof package by simply holding down one tab and tearing off one corner by pulling on the other tab.

Mirages Seen No More
 Certain parts of Kansas were formerly noted for the number of mirages to be encountered there at rather frequent intervals, but in recent years these interesting sky pictures have disappeared and the reason is said to rest in the fact that the state has been largely planted with wheat and the lack of variety in the landscape gives no opportunity for the formation of a mirage.

Scorpion Drugs Make Arrows
 When it comes to scurrying, the male of the scorpion family takes the initiative, picking out his own mate and dragging her around until he finds a place that satisfies him as a dwelling place. But once established in a home of her own, the wife soon assumes the upper hand, in fact, by the time she has finished her breakfast in the morning there are only a few fragments of the male scorpion left as proof that she ever had a husband.

A New Word, "Conservator"

Is "Conservator" another term for "Receiver"? (One may ask the First National Bank of Albuquerque).

Sheriff A. S. McCamant picked up an old recluse in the outskirts of town Monday morning, who being scantily clad and with a growth of apostle hair and beard in his physiognomy, the sheriff took pity on the man and took him to jail where after a general clean-up and a hearty meal, the quiet, unassuming stranger came out of his trance, gave his age as 58, of French descent and related some of his many adventures all over the globe. He gave a demonstration in the art of boxing and attributed his good health to living outdoors, to hiking and abstaining from tobacco, coffee and intoxicants.

Mrs. Mary C. Marquez of Tucumcari spent the week here visiting the Saturnino Chavez family, Mrs. Petra R. Gonzales, brother, Joe Chavez and other relatives.

T. G. Grafton of the Angus country was a Carrizozo business visitor this Monday.

The young Spanish-American set of Carrizozo gave a big party at Baca's Hall last Sunday afternoon. Dancing was indulged in until late in the afternoon and the participants report a very enjoyable affair.

Miss Gertrude Ayers and father W. J. Ayers were here from Three Rivers Monday.

T. J. Slmer of the Capitan regions was a business visitor here Monday and while in town, made this office a pleasant call.

Smiling A. P. Jones, ranchman from across the Malpais, is on a business trip to Texas, so we are informed by his son 'Curly.'

W. R. Lovelace, prominent stockman of Corona, was a business visitor in town Saturday, remaining over to attend the Jericho Club dance held on that night.

Some people think that because a man is in jail he should not be treated humanly. But thanks to the Almighty that there are still many broadminded and conscientious men representing the laws of our country.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wells, Mrs. Henry McFadin, Miss Foraythe, Mrs. Lillian Lane, small daughter Sarah Lee and Mrs. Ray Sipple were visitors from White Oaks the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ellison of Gran Quivira were business visitors here Tuesday.

Dance at White Oaks

'The Revelers' announce their next big dance for White Oaks on Saturday night, April 22. Dancing until 1 o'clock.

News to Us

We heard over KOB radio station, the day after the twister, the statement that 18 houses had been unroofed around Carrizozo.—Believe it or Not!

Methodist Church

Some more than 100 were in attendance at the Easter Sunrise service on the Malpais. And all proclaimed it an inspiring and worthwhile service. We hope to repeat it next Easter—and ever after—with increasing crowds. Two infants and two young ladies were baptized. There were large congregations at Capitan and Angus. There will be no preaching service at the Methodist church next Sunday. Come to Sunday School for the Sunday School Day program. This might well be called the Parents' and Children's Day. Come and see what is being done for your children in Sunday School. Each teacher will have a 2-minute talk telling of the work and plans of his or her class. There are some of you parents whose children have been coming to Sunday School for a year or more and yet you have never been there with them. Shame on you. Change that next Sunday and be there with your children. No evening services because of the services at the High School.

Legislature Not So Hot

The federated taxpayers of the state want the governor to call the legislature back in special session to undo what it did at the regular session and do all the things they failed to do.

This includes raising revenue to run the state and reducing state expenses to the size of the revenue.

They ask a sales tax in place of the chain store tax, a board to study and report on re-organizing government, revision of the state income tax law which is driving taxpayers out of the state, repeal of the lubricating oil and severance taxes, slash in county pay, that the salons kill the central purchasing agency act which makes the state finances a political sinecure, revise the chaotic and conflicting school laws.

The legislature is asked to admit it was a failure, and to come humbly back and do what it failed to do before.

If it does meet, there is no hope save in the governor and the party organization giving it a complete program in advance and instructing it to pass prepared bills, whose constitutionality and legal form have been passed on by a group of qualified lawyers. If the governor and party leaders with such aid and with that of the federated taxpayers submit the bills and order their passage, the program agreed on might get over. Incidentally, the session would have to correct nearly every measure it passed and which is to be left on the statute books.

Our fear is, the legislature would return mad and resentful and make faces at the taxpayers at further heavy expense of $35,000 to $50,000. Meanwhile, its members have been bragging of how they saved the state and the governor has sent each one a letter praising him for his part in the state's salvation. Altogether, it looks hopeless.—Santa Fe New Mexican.

S. O. Sproles was a business visitor at El Paso this week.

Candido Chavez and Eulogio Gallegos, San Patricio deputies, were here Wednesday night to deliver two prisoners to Jailer Hubert Reynolds.

Representative and Mrs. J. V. Taylor were Carrizozo visitors from their ranch home near Oscura Monday.

Rest-Proof Solution
It is stated that outdoor mail boxes will not rust if coated with a solution made by dissolving enough celluloid in amyl acetate to form a slurry. The solution should be applied with a brush and the box completely covered, inside and out.

Think It Over
There is no disgrace in being "kicked," but it is a disgrace to stay "kicked."

"Beer, Won't Affect Coffee Drinking"

Chicago.—What effect will the advent of beer have upon the consumption of our most popular beverage—coffee?

In commenting on this question today, Diego Jose Fallon, consul here for Colombia, E. A., world's leading exporter of the coffee, quoted U. S. Government figures to show that the advent of prohibition, which became operative Jan. 18, 1920, has not affected coffee consumption.

"Coffee consumption has not noticeably increased following the advent of prohibition, except for the normal increase in popularity which has been evident over the last 25 or 30 years," stated Mr. Fallon. "I do not anticipate that the return of beer will affect coffee drinking."

"In 1919, the year immediately preceding prohibition, the people of the United States consumed between 12 and 13 pounds per capita. Eight years later, in 1927, with prohibition in full force, the consumption was still between 12 and 13 pounds per year per person. In 1932, the last complete year during which prohibition was in force, there was little change, the per capita consumption being 12 and a fraction pounds. These figures take into account the increasing population of the country and increases in coffee imports as reported by U. S. Government agencies.

"Now that beer has returned, I have no fear that it will cause a decrease in either the amount consumed or the fastidious quality of the American taste which causes a demand for about 90 per cent of the richly flavored coffee which comes from my country of Colombia."

Egg Is Two Foods

The egg, from the standpoint of nutrition, really is two foods instead of one. The white provides proteins of high biological value for body-building and maintenance. The yolk supplies concentrated fuel for the body, protein and an unusually rich store of minerals and vitamins necessary for growth and development.
