Tuesday evening, Herma Kelt, postmaster appointee, had his bonds returned from Washington, properly approved and after closing time, the office was invoiced, inventories taken of everything after which all funds were handed over to him, in return for which he issued receipts to the clerks, making out his reports of the same to the postoffice department.

On Wednesday morning the smiling face of the new postmaster made its appearance at the window and began the work of his office in regulation form, as though nothing had happened. As to the future policy of the office, Mr. Kelt has made no announcements and we presume, he has made no promises. One thing is certain - the office will be conducted in a proper manner and no favoritism shown. Everybody will have an even break and of that fact, the public, mainly, was assured.

The above was the verse of the day when the Woman's Club met at the home of Mrs. Belknap on Saturday, May 20. Roll call was "Say it with Flowers," which brought forth some beautiful thoughts from various members. After a brief business session, the study leader, Mrs. Hightower, took charge. The subject for study was Capulin Mountain, a national monument situated in northern New Mexico. In the absence of the social leader, Mrs. Straley, Mrs. Kile served in her place. Several floral contests were enjoyed. Mmes. Hightower and Lemaster won first and second prizes. Refreshments consisted of strawberries and whipped cream with delicious Gelsha cake and coffee. Memorial Day

Jones-Gallacher

On Friday evening, May 19, at the Elizabeth Rooms, occurred one of the most beautiful weddings of the season, Mrs. Elizabeth Gallacher and Carl Jones being the contracting parties. The wedding came as a surprise to the many friends gathered for an evening of entertainment. The spacious parlor and living room were beautiful with potted plants - red roses and ferns, making a most beautiful setting.

A program of music, dancing and readings was arranged and as the same started, the bride-to-be asked one of her friends to kindly take charge of the affair, during which time she slipped away to change from her evening gown to her wedding dress, and at the close of the program our songbird, Raymond Lackland, sang "I Love You Truly" and as the last sweet notes faded away, his accompanist, Mrs. Burns, softly took on the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March and the bridal party entered from the hall. First entered the Rev. Lawson, taking his place in front of the bank of ferns and roses. Mr. Garrison, acting as best man, escorted the groom and were followed by Mrs. Garrison, matron of honor, in lovely green embroidered organdy with corsage, and the bride, who was beautiful in a white silk lace gown and carried a bridal bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley.

The beautiful ring ceremony was very impressive and after the words pronouncing them man and wife were read, the guests, who had partly recovered from the surprise, made a rush for the happy couple and were delighted that they are to be among us and a part of our community where the bride had lived for several years and endeared herself to many of our people. The groom needs no introduction to our town, having lived here several years ago and is a brother to Mrs. R. R. Sale and Miss Grace Jones.

Delicious refreshments were served to more than one hundred guests, with Mesdames Garrison, Lemon, Elliott, Rentfrow and Beck acting as the bride's hostesses.

The happy couple left for Albuquerque Sunday where Mr. Jones is attending to some work for the Santa Fe. They will be at home to their many friends at the Elizabeth Rooms in about a week or ten days. - Contributed by J. L.

S. H. Nickels and son Bill left for Elephant Butte Dam Monday to spend a few days in fishing.

Carrizozo Beats Mountainair in 13-inning Game

Last Sunday afternoon at the local ball park, the Carrizozo Baseball Team handed a 9 to 8 defeat to the strong Mountainair aggregation in one of the best and most colorful games that has ever been played in these parts. For eight innings the teams battled neck and neck and when Carrizozo went to bat in the last of the ninth, they were trailing behind 5 to 7 and badly needed two scores to tie the count. The boys got set in this instance and displayed such a marvelous fighting spirit that they proceeded to find the invincible 'Mountaineer' for enough base hits to tie the score and snatch the game out of the fire.

Pat Dolan was pitching his usual deliberate game, but when the game went into extra innings, he gave way to "Red," who allowed but one score to cross the plate in four innings. Walter LaFleur came home from third base with the winning run when the Mountainair pitcher threw wild in an attempt to nub him off the bag. "Pee-Wee" Tony Pera demonstrated to the fans that Chapman of the New York Yankees has nothing on him when it comes to pilfering bases. As hard as the pitcher tried to keep him on the bag, Tony was half-way to the next station with the wind up of his antagonist. Tony cut off a rally at the home plate with a very spectacular catch of a grass-burner and throw. Catcher Bob Whitey hit for the circuit once and from then on drew several free passes. "Red" left particles of his shirt on the fence, and some skin, we presume, when he went after a hard hit ball which he could not reach.

The team plays at Alamogordo next Sunday and here's hoping they will come home with the bacon. Umpires were; Pete Frame, home plate; Lawrence Rowland, bases.

The American Legion will have Memorial services in Community Hall at 2 o'clock, on Tuesday, May 30. There will be patriotic music, songs and an address. Rev. Jordan will deliver the address. After the services the Legion will decorate the soldier graves here and at White Oaks with impressive and fitting services. Legionnaires and all are urged to attend. - E. M. Barber, Adjutant.

E. V. Abeyta, one of the clerks at the popular Titworth Store in Capitan, was here last Friday transacting some business.

PERSONALS

R. W. Dozier, daughters Dorothy and Mrs. Montie Gardenhire came down from Tucumcari Monday to try their luck at trout fishing and are now in the mountains near Bonito Dam. Mrs. Gardenhire had been visiting at her parents home in Tucumcari.

E. M. Brickley and sister, Miss Ella Brickley, were in Albuquerque last Sunday to attend Ruth's Recital, the program of which will be found in this issue.

Monday evening at her home, Mrs. Claude Branum entertained with three tables of bridge in honor of Mrs. M. U. Finley on her (7) birthday. The party had been arranged by a group of friends of the honor guest, and the refreshment table was adorned with a large birthday cake. After bridge and refreshments, each lady presented Mrs. Finley with a beautiful handkerchief.

Frank James was here Wednesday from Ruidoso, where he is again preparing to edit the Ruidoso Herald for the summer season. Good luck to you, Amigo Frank. He publishes quite a new way sheet.

Mrs. Helena Anderson of Reserve, N. M., is a guest of her sister, Mrs. Pete Frame. She will go to Reserve about Sunday or Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Beck are in receipt of word from their son Marshall to the effect that he will be home from the Westinghouse Electric Corporation at Pittsburgh, Pa., on a three-months' furlough.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Renick were Carrizozo visitors from Socorro the latter part of last week. They went from here to White Oaks, dividing their time between that place and Carrizozo, visiting friends at both places. They returned to Socorro Sunday evening.

R. E. Stidham and niece, Miss Cleone Oney, arrived here from Tempe, Arizona, Tuesday and remained but a short time, R. E. going from here to Tortolita Canyon where he has a mine in connection with other Carrizozo men. The company has been in existence for many years and the mine is now down to a depth of over 1000 feet and the ore at the present time, has a valuable showing. Miss Oney is a teacher at the school in Kirkland, near Tempe, where Mrs. Stidham and her two daughters are also teaching. They left on their return trip Wednesday morning.

On Tuesday evening at the home of Sidney Goldston, the Misses Vivian Gore and Mildred Goldston were pleasantly surprised by a party of friends numbering about thirty. Games and dancing were the order of the evening, after which refreshments were served. Miss Gore is a niece to Mr. Goldston; Miss Goldston is Mr. Goldston's sister, the young ladies being here on a visit.

T. J. Calbough and little daughter of Corona, who have been guests at the Malpais Camp for about one week, when the daughter became ill, have returned home when her condition showed improvement.

THE STAR CAFE

Wednesday afternoon, a deal was consummated whereby Roy Skinner purchased the Star Cafe, lately vacated by Thos. Ninos. Roy will conduct the cafe in first-class manner, having the same counter and table service which has been the custom of this place of business for years. For the present, only the cafe service will be maintained, but later on, he will put in a stock of groceries, fresh and salt meats in connection with the business. The cafe is now open and Roy invites the public to call and will appreciate the patronage of the people at the old stand. Best of service guaranteed.

Business Men's Club

At the regular six o'clock dinner at the Carrizozo Eating House Wednesday evening, after the business session, the club listened to a short but interesting talk from James Lamb, Chairman of the State Corporation Commission. The attendance was 24. County Treasurer Louis Adams was admitted to membership and Paul C. Reeves was a guest from the Carrizozo Bakery.

Lincoln County Horses Make Good Records

J. R. Jenkins, well-known ranchman and race horse fancier of Corona, has some fine race horse stock, as we have heretofore mentioned. Mr. Jenkins had five of his horses at the recent races in Juarez, four of which won first prizes and one took second money. There were 200 horses booked in the races, some from Tijuana, others from Colorado and other western states. This speaks remarkably well for Lincoln county and we may expect to hear of many more races won by the good stock belonging to Mr. Jenkins.

Charlotte Emerson, Ula, Ralph and Edith Dudley motored to Albuquerque Saturday morning, the former to enroll for the six weeks' summer school session at the "U." They returned home Tuesday morning.

Mr. Arrell Posey of Tularosa and Miss Katherine Pendergrass of Mayhill were married at the Baptist pastor's home Wednesday, May 24. They will make their home in Alamogordo.

Mrs. J. E. Farley, son Albert, granddaughters Frances and Virginia Charles came up from Alamogordo Sunday. Mrs. Farley and Albert returned Monday and the girls remained to spend the week with their mother, Mrs. Elsa Charles of the postoffice.

Last Thursday night, Mrs. Morgan Lovelace entertained with a bridge party and enchilada dinner in honor of the birthday of Mrs. Elsa Charles. There was a good-sized gathering of friends on that occasion and the affair closed with wishes for many happy returns.

Messrs. Keller and Davis of San Antonio, Tex., have purchased the Col. Bender mine in Nogal Canyon and are now operating the same.

Mrs. O. B. Shook of Alto was here last Saturday on a brief business visit, during which time she was a welcome caller at this office.

Lest We Forget

MEMORIAL day is one of memories and dedicated to those we lost—a day on which to remember, lest we forget.

The "Bloody Angle" May 12, 1864 have surpassed Gettysburg. Neither side won. The losses, about the same on each side, footed up the frightful total of 30,000 men.

The "Bloody Angle," which Elson describes, is known to British military historians as the Salient. It was an almost octagonal bulge in Lee's battle line, protecting Spotsylvania Court House.

Orderly survivors have replaced the ominous breastworks in some parts of the battlefield, and farm produce is growing where once death swept by.

At the tip of this wedge now stand three small granite monuments as tributes to the bravery of the New York, New Jersey and Ohio regiments that were mowed down by buckshot and mine balls from the guns of Lee's men.

The "Bloody Angle" is now a peaceful breastwork covering four acres, and has been given to the United States by Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Stewart of Philadelphia.

Memories and Resolves

EACH recurring Memorial day ought to impress upon Americans anew not only an appreciation of what they owe the survivors of the fighting men of sixty years ago, whose ranks are now only a dim memory, but a determination to avoid if possible in the future every influence calculated to lead the republic into new conflicts.

Memorial day, and every other patriotic holiday, may well be dedicated to thoughts of peace present and future as well as to thoughts of wars past. We have seen the devastation and tragedy of conflict. It remains for us, as a nation devoted to the arts of husbandry and industry, so to meet the issue of the hour as to make unnecessary the repetition of such sacrifices as come to every American mind at this time.

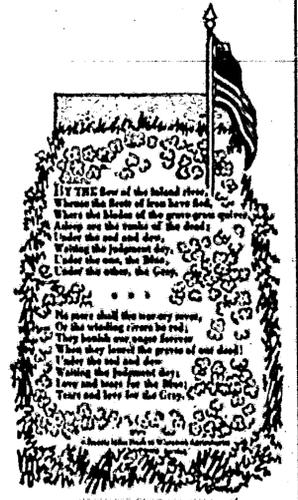

This means striving for peace by every device approved by experience as sane. It does not mean, however, dwelling in a fool's paradise. It cannot mean that one nation shall adopt a policy of non-resistance, while the rest of the world arms. Armies and navies may become superfluous when policemen are superfluous; when, in other words, humanity has advanced to a degree of perfection not yet at hand.

So the sun rises on another day sacred to memories undimmed by time. A day on which every American, while honoring our warriors alive and dead, should "highly resolve" that so far as his influence goes it shall be directed for the prevention of future wars.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Heroes of North and South Live in Memory AS THIS war between the states dragged out its tragic length, women in the North began decorating the steadily multiplying graves of their loved ones with the flowers that brightened the countryside. After the war the Grand Army of the Republic made the decoration of the graves of the Union dead a part of its ritual; and Gen. John A. Logan, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., designated May 30 for that purpose. This was the origin of "Decoration day," which is now known more appropriately as "Memorial day."

The southern states also set apart days for decorating the graves of the Confederate dead. Spring unlocks the flowers earlier down in Dixie; and because of this a number of the southernmost states hold their memorial ceremonies on April 26. This day observed in North Carolina and Kentucky in May 10, while in Tennessee it is June 3. Alone among the states that succeeded, Virginia lays her floral tribute on the graves of the Gray on the same day that the graves of the Blue are decorated in the North, and the ceremonies are equally impressive.—Detroit Free Press.

THE BLUE and THE GRAY

Lee's Surrender Put an End to the Civil War

LEE surrendered to Grant at Appomattox on April 9, 1865, virtually ending the Civil war, though Johnston's army did not formally surrender until April 20 and Kirby Smith's until just a month later. If a boy of eighteen enlisted shortly before the end of the war is living today he is well beyond the span traditionally allotted to man and much farther beyond the actual average length of human life.

The Grand army is surrendering, as the Old Guard did at last. One foe, if foe he is, and one alone is too much for them.

Fight on, brave old men! Stay with us as long as you can! And when at last the odds become too great and you bow your brave old heads, know that you leave behind a nation whose heart beats high with gratitude that you kept the faith and fought the fight.

An Old Soldier

By Katherine Edelman

HE WAS an old man, with the weight of many years upon his shoulders. Yet, as he walked along the busy, crowded street, he held his head high and walked as straight and erect as a younger man. There was a quiet pride in his bearing that made itself felt by all who saw him, a sort of inward satisfaction and content that reflected itself in his face. Mingled with it, a look of half-wistful sadness was there, too, but it took a keen observer to see it.

The little pin that he wore in his coat lapel told his story. He was a soldier of his country. But this was not all that he had given—his own doing and fighting was as nothing compared to what he had given when his son went to the far-off battlefield never to return. But although it had been hard beyond telling, he had been glad when he watched him go, had been proud that another of his race was willing to give his all for his country. Now, he was nearing the end himself—soon he would meet with those who had gone before. And he was happier than most men in the sunset of life, for he felt that he had done his duty; and more, that he had done it through love.

As he looked aloft to where old Glory fluttered in the breeze, the look of pride upon his face deepened and he whispered softly to himself: "May the little I and mine have done help others to keep you all through the years as bright and shining as you are today—a true emblem of the cause of liberty and freedom as you are now."

Old Confederate Flag Presented to Museum

THE famous Confederate battle flag of the First Virginia regiment, made by the women of Richmond from their silk dresses, and which led the noted command from Bull Run to Gettysburg, came to the Confederate museum and now rests with other southern trophies. The museum is in the old White House of the Confederacy. The blood-stained and battle-torn banner saw its last service in Pickett's charge at Gettysburg, when the southern troops swept up the slopes of Cemetery hill to virtual annihilation. Preserved by the late Col. Charles T. Loehr, historian and custodian of the First Virginia, the flag was presented to the museum by his children, William A. Loehr, Charles E. Loehr, Mrs. Oscar L. Kent and Mrs. Bernard L. Dickinson.

Colonel Loehr, as historian, described the fate of the flag on the day of Pickett's charge in these words: "The color guard is dead and the color sergeant has lost his arm; our colonel lies dying on the field—the regiment lost 120 men out of about 100 who went into that charge."

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart

Washington.—As the special session of congress washes up preparatory to quitting, it seems experimental to me that interest centers chiefly on two pieces of legislation coming from the great mill of laws. Singularly enough, each must be denominated as experimental. I refer to the farm bill, with its inflation powers, and the measure designed to transform the Tennessee river valley into a gigantic laboratory for development of partially-tried plans and experimentation with theories, with the Muscle Shoals nitrate and power plants as the center.

The special session has worked at top speed. Seldom has so much been accomplished, if the measure be by volume, as has resulted from the labors of congress under the lash and complete domination of President Roosevelt. But we are concerned now with an aftermath, with a continuing force. Hence, the two enactments mentioned stand out, for the effect of the farm bill will be direct and that of the Tennessee river experiment may mark an economic milestone in the nation's history.

President Roosevelt declined to assure success for the farm bill. He termed it a gigantic experiment, an effort offered in search of relief for downtrodden agriculture, a hope for better conditions. The so-called Muscle Shoals legislation is experimental by its own language.

The provision of the farm bill delegating to the President authority to use inflationary measures with the currency, is, of course, vital to every one. It has been analyzed in this column heretofore and while every one is interested in what the President may do with those powers, it does not partake of the same conditions or circumstances as the farm or Muscle Shoals legislation.

While each of these measures is designed to aid agriculture, there is a point of striking dissimilarity between them. The farm relief measure is designed to have an immediate effect. No such thought is entertained respecting the Muscle Shoals development proposal. Its purpose is predicated on a belief by those who fostered it that it will be of lasting benefit to the human race. If the theories prove workable and partially-tried plans can be carried on to successful conclusion, the hope doubtless can be realized.

President Roosevelt told congress when he asked enactment of the farm relief bill that he deemed it emergent and untrod path necessary to take constructive steps in aid of agriculture.

"Deep study and the joint counsel of many points of view," the President said, "have produced a measure which offers great promise of good results. I tell you frankly that it is a new and untrod path, but I tell you with equal frankness that an unprecedented condition calls for the trial of new means to rescue agriculture."

The President added that if it failed to develop those results "I will be the first to acknowledge it and advise you." It appears then as a hope. We are starting on a new road.

The first principle of the bill is most peculiar. It would have cotton farmers purchase government-owned cotton at the present market price to whatever extent they will do so and reduce their acreage this year in accordance with the amount so bought by them and which will be held by the secretary of agriculture in trust for the purchasers until 1935, if they desire. The purchases therefore can be made on credit.

The purpose of this, of course, is to reduce production and thereby reduce the surplus in one and the same contract. The farmers cannot buy the government cotton without there being a resulting decrease in acreage. Simply stated, then, this principle is designed to shorten the supply and cause an increase in price. Of course, the farmer takes the chance that there will be no increase in price, but here again, it is "a new and untrod path" and that chance may win.

The second section of the measure has been attacked by its critics as "robbing Peter to pay Paul." It gives the secretary of agriculture authority to lease agricultural lands, paying the owner agreed sums as rental, to accomplish a reduction in acreage by removing those lands from crop production. That, as is readily discernible, will be an expensive proposition. The government could not do it without having funds come from somewhere to make such payments. So the sponsors of the bill laid a tax on the processors of agricultural commodities to obtain needed revenue.

It hardly need be said that the processors—the packer of meats, the miller of flour, the spinner of cotton, etc.—are going to fight this section.

Then, this complex piece of legislation also provides for use of the allotment plan, and other consumers taxes on the processors and use of the tariff against imports to drive the prices of farm commodities higher. This section like the others has been questioned as to its constitutionality, and it has perhaps the strongest array of opponents, for the consumers will help pay the bill in a big way. That is, all except those who are unemployed and without funds. They cannot buy now, and charity or public relief sources will pay the added costs.

The amount of the tax to be levied on the processor, and paid the farmers who agree to reduce acreage—and that agreement must be made—is a thing which must be worked out by the secretary of agriculture. Never before, as far as my research has disclosed, has an official of government in this country had such wide powers. But the President justifies them on the ground of the necessity for preservation of agriculture.

The processor's tax is to be added to the price the farmer receives for that portion of his crop consumed in the United States. Normally our exports as a whole are only about 10 per cent of the total. The bill, however, is not applicable to all commodities. It takes in cotton, wheat, rice, tobacco, sugar beets, sugar cane, milk and its products and hogs, but the secretary of agriculture has power to make it inoperative as to any one or all of them if market conditions are such as make the use of the law inadvisable.

The processor's tax is being levied under the guise of what is called "parity of prices." It is the purpose to lift the returns which the farmer receives to a basis where compensation for his labor shall be proportionately the same, in relation to the prices he pays for things he buys, as the ratio between the sale and purchase stood in 1914. That is involved. It is complex in the extreme.

But there is no need of services of a soothsayer in pointing to the tremendous organization that is going to be necessary in carrying out such legislation. A thousand and one things must be considered, inspected, guarded, negotiated, enforced. Government employees must do that work. The machine can be made to click and run smoothly, say supporters of the plan. It is the most gigantic political machine in history, say opponents of the program. Whichever view is correct, it remains as a fact that there will be government agents in every county to tell farmers who enter into the agreements on acreage reduction what they shall do and what they shall not do; there will be inspectors galore in processing plants and accountants checking books when necessary, and there will be taxes collected in whatever amount the secretary of agriculture decrees to be needed to pay the cost.

It is in the appointment of the personnel for carrying out the act that opponents of the plan insist there is the greatest danger. They hold that it will be impossible to obtain men and women who will construe the law in the same way or who will use their discretionary power to the same extent.

Now to give consideration to the Muscle Shoals legislation:

Senator Norris, of Nebraska, has been promoting a program of development of the Tennessee river since the national defense act of 1916 provided for an experimental production of nitrates with water power at Muscle Shoals. The late President Wilson obtained legislation in 1917 for construction of two dams there, and for power plants and laboratories for the fixation of nitrogen from the air. That was for military purposes, but as soon as that need passed, the atmospheric nitrogen was to be used for fertilizer. Senator Norris has argued for years for utilization of the country's water resources in development of electric power, and the use of that power in providing cheaper fertilizer for farms. He is known as an especially bitter foe of power companies, and times unnumbered he has charged on the floor of the senate that the power companies are a trust. He has accused them of constantly bleeding the public who have to buy those products.

But the present Muscle Shoals program, as enacted into law, goes far beyond the original Norris dream. It is, indeed, the dream of a future Tennessee valley as a man-made paradise, a laboratory for the good of the human race, a public benefaction on the part of the government.

In addition to completion of the nitrate plants and the great power program, the new law prescribes continued tests of various kinds, improvement of navigability of the river itself, reforestation of the cutover hillsides and "proper use of marginal lands." In that later authority, it is conceded, lies permission to accomplish a great many things. Marginal lands is, of course, an economic term. It means lands, the use of which for certain crops is questionable. Determination of the proper use of such lands, therefore, is undoubtedly a matter of great moment. The Tennessee Valley Authority, the official name of the government-owned corporation that will direct the great experiment, can and probably will find ways and means of using marginal lands.

As Psychologists Sum Up "Mind and Matter"

Mind is nothing but the unobservable, delicate movements of bodily parts. There are those who may dispute this fact to some extent. Your day dreams include your ideals and your generosity, as well as your flights from reality. You will find more prodigies in the realm of music than anywhere else.

Pythagoras inaugurated the superstition that uneven numbers are lucky numbers. Uneven things have always seemed more mysterious than even things.

You really have three vocabularies: One each for speaking, writing and reading. They increase in size in the order named.

The average male brain weighs three and one-half pounds. Perhaps this is merely a physiological fact. The size of the brain is not always an indication of psychological abilities.

The dreams you remember are the ones you have just as you go to sleep, or just when you are waking.

Twins are more alike mentally between the age of nine and eleven than they are between twelve and fourteen. Individual differences show up at adolescence.

Girls mature mentally earlier than boys.

An adult at the age of forty-five learns as easily as he ever did.

Leisure Must Be Earned If we had no work to do there would be little fun in loafing.

How to get to SLEEP

When you can't sleep, it's because your nerves won't let you. Don't waste time "counting sheep." Don't lose half your needed rest in reading. Take two tablets of Bayer Aspirin, drink a glass of water—and go to sleep.

This simple remedy is all that's needed to insure a night's rest. It's all you need to relieve a headache during the day—or to dispose of other pains! Get the genuine tablets of Bayer manufacture and you will get immediate relief.

Bayer Aspirin dissolves always immediately—gets to work without delay. This desirable speed is not dangerous; it does not depress the heart. Just be sure you get the genuine tablets stamped thus:

Advice to Daughters

YOUNG women who suffer from monthly pain, or headache, side aches, and women of middle age who suffer from heat flashes, nervousness, should take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This is the advice of Mrs. J. A. Tobey of No. 320 7th Ave., St. Paul, Minn., who says: "At one time I was very nervous and irritable. I had sick-headaches; was sick to my stomach, too. But Dr. Pierce's Prescription cured the stomach complaint. I had more strength and energy and it drove away those awful headaches."

One Hundred Years of Scientific Progress

On Saturday, May 27, the greatest exposition ever held in the world, will be opened at Chicago. The strangest part of the opening will be that the starting of that vast amount of machinery will be left to a ray of light that started from the giant sun, Arcturus, 40 years ago.

Without a knowledge of scientific research, one making a statement of this nature would be regarded as a wandering nitwit in search of cheap publicity, but when viewed from a scientific standpoint, the fact is quite easy to comprehend.

In the year of 1898, the year the last world's fair in Chicago, that little ray of celestial light left Arcturus, and wending its weary way through space, will arrive at Chicago, light up the glories of that beautiful and wonderful world's exposition.

The ray of light will be magnified by the photo-electric cell, and made to throw switches in every direction—it will also start the wheels of one hundred years of progress, but while we dwell on the magnitude of this great undertaking, we must also count the cost of the same which runs into figures that almost stagger the intellect.

When all things are in working order, the teachers of the city will want to know why we are making such a grand display which will run into millions, their claims have been not only neglected, but absolutely ignored while this vast amount of money is being spent to entertain the world. Certainly, Chicago will not allow the teachers and other employees of Kings County to go without that to which they are justly due, while money is spent recklessly in other directions. In other words, allowing the workers to starve while we entertain the world in revelry and useless expenditure of money. At the great exposition, progress and poverty will go hand in hand. Today in the city of Chicago, teachers, and many of them at that, were without funds with which to pay for their daily upkeep and unless this is remedied, our visitors from abroad should be made acquainted with the facts.

Make Taxes Fit Incomes

Back in the palmy days of the pre-depression era, extravagance in any form of business was responsible for their subsequent failure. They had built up expenses and an overhead that could not be met when sales dropped.

Extravagance on the part of individuals, in buying luxuries they could do nicely without, was likewise the cause of great hardship later on. Salaries were cut, jobs were lost—and it was impossible to maintain the old inflated standards of living.

By the same token, government extravagance now is laying the seeds of even greater trouble. Business and individuals have learned their lessons—they have cut their sails to fit their finances. The government has not. It has broadened its functions and raised its operating costs in the face of gigantic drops in national income. It is maintaining itself in a state of luxury that private citizens can't afford.

Unless the government retracts, the capital that provides jobs, opens new opportunities and creates productive enterprise will be stifled.

The farmer will be crushed beneath a burden of costs that he can't pay—in various states, more than 50 per cent of farm taxes are in arrears, and thousands of acres have been taken over by the states. The individual is faced with tax payments out of all proportion to the average income.

Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.
May 15, 1933

Time and again I am told—by my own organization and by others —that I penalize myself by quality.
Friendly critics protest our putting into the Ford V-8 what they call "twenty-year steel." They say such quality is not necessary; the public does not expect it; and that the public does not know the difference anyway.
But I know the difference.
I know that the car a man sees is not the car he drives—he drives the car which the engineer sees. The car which is seen, comprises beauty of design, color and attractive accessories,—all desirable, of course. The best evidence that we think so is that they are all found on the Ford V-8.
But these are not the car. The car proper, which is the basis of all the rest, is the type of engine and its reliability; the structure of chassis and body, ruggedly durable; the long thought and experiment given to safety factors; the steady development of comfort, convenience and economy. These make the car.
A car can be built that will last two or three years. But we have never built one. We want the basic material of our car to be as dependable the day it is discarded as the day it is bought. Ford cars built 15 years ago are still on the road. It costs more to build a durable car—but two items we do not skip are cost and conscience. A great many things could "get by"—the public would never know the difference. But we would know.
The new Ford V-8 is a car that I endorse without any hesitancy.
I know what is in it. I trust our whole thirty years' reputation with it. It is even better than our previous V-8. It is larger, more rugged and mechanically a better job all round.
I readily say this in an advertisement because I know the car will back it up.

George Elmgren was over from Fort Stanton today, making arrangements for the B-I-G 4th of July entertainment given at Fort Stanton on that day. The Committee, we understand, is composed of Messrs. Hendren, Boyd and Elmgren, who do things (and how!) Come to Fort Stanton the 4th if you want a day of real enjoyment, something doing all the time. Something for everybody—baseball, broncho riding, calf roping, wild cow milking, fireworks, dancing, etc.

The Carrizozo firemen will give a ball on June 3, at Lutz Hall and the proceeds are to be used to defray the expenses of the boys while at the Firemen's Convention at Las Cruces on June 5-6-7. Patronize the dance and help the boys. See their ad on this page.

Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Nickels, daughters Marjorie, Dorothy, son Bill, the Misses Hazel Melaaas and Helen Mae Young, were on a fishing trip to the Bonito yesterday.

Miss Hazel Melaaas, one of the teachers in the Carrizozo High School, will be a week-end guest at the Keller ranch on the Nogal Mesa.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wysong and new daughter Mary Jean arrived home from Ralls, Tex., Thursday evening.

R. A. Walker and Sidney Goldston spent a day in Albuquerque the first of this week.

B. W. Wilson, prominent rancher of the Ancho country, was a Carrizozo business visitor on Thursday of this week; while in town, was a caller at this office. B. W. says winter isn't over yet in the Ancho regions by a long shot; he reports a severe frost that occurred one night the first of the week. Come again, Amigo Mio.

O. J. Snow, who has been very ill with pneumonia recently, is now on the road to recovery.

CITY GARAGE, V. Reil, Prop. CARRIZOZO, N. M.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Comrey were here Wednesday on a business trip from Capitan; combining business with pleasure, shook hands with a portion of their many friends. Harry has been seriously ill of late, but now is as spry as the well-known cricket.

Yesterday's shower aroused John Doering to activity and he could be seen in the street, making trenches to carry the water off to the different culverts so that it would not stand in puddles. John certainly "knows his onions" when it comes to street work.
