

OUT-OF-THE-ORDINARY

S. H. Nickels, local Wild West story writer contributes this yarn for the out-of-the-ordinary column:

There once was a half-cracked old man who used to roam back and forth through the Kentucky mountains, preaching and holding religious meetings wherever he could get a congregation together to listen to him. He drove a dilapidated buggy and a bony old mule on his travels and he always carried a bucket of red paint and a brush wherever he went. It was his custom to stop at old barns, rocks and fences along his route and paint quotations from the Scriptures, or short selections from his sermons — anything of a religious nature.

One day, he was driving down the road below Pikeville, Ky., he stopped at an old barn beside the road. There he got out his paintbrush and smeared the following:

WHAT SHALL I DO TO BE SAVED?

A patent medicine drummer happened along a few days later, and was also putting up signs to advertise his goods. He happened to notice the old preacher's sign. He grinned and scratched his head for a moment, then he painted the following just beneath it:

TAKE CRAMP & SON'S FAMOUS CHILL TONIC

The old preacher happened to pass back over the road a few weeks later and saw what had been done to his sign. He stared at it solemnly for a moment, then he got out his brush and paint. Just beneath the offending sign, he added:

THEN PREPARE TO MEET THY GOD!

In Peoria, Ill., last week, two thieves did this:

They were walking down the street and came across a farmer and asked him to join them. Suddenly one asked the other how much money he had. He got out his wallet and showed him. Then the other man showed his, which was considerably larger. "I tell you what, I'll bet you $10 that Uncle has more money than either of us." The farmer being flattered, dug down into his jeans and produced an old style pocketbook that required oiling and dusting out. The farmer proudly displayed his cash which was $1,011.73. One of the thieves grabbed the pocketbook and ran into the horse-woods, followed by the other crying "Stop, Thief!"

Will Rogers says—I see where they are supposed to pick out Cuba's next week's president. Ed. Note—Almost as bad as being president of Mexico.

It happened on the Stokes ranch near Midland, Texas and T. J. Stokes was trying to teach a bone-headed tenderfoot how to throw a lasso. Being busily engaged in giving the instructions and paying no attention to his student, T. J. worked for a long time in order to make his teaching take effect. Suddenly a rock passed him, landing with a "bang!" on the opposite side of the corral. "What's the matter with you?" said T. J. The tenderfoot drawled out: "I've been watchin' that RAT for the last half hour."

NOGAL NOTES

(By "CHICO")

Mrs. Orin C. Davis visited friends here Sunday.

W. F. Peacock was in Carrizozo one day last week, attending to legal business.

School is progressing very nicely under the supervision of Mrs. Byrl Lindsay.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Robinson were here last Sunday.

We had quite a rain Tuesday night; the ranchers and farmers in this locality are highly pleased.

Many Nogal people visit the Bonito Dam every Sunday.

Billy McDonald from the Vera Cruz gold mine was in Carrizozo Monday.

Robert Waltern Dozier

Robert Waltern Dozier was born in Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 8, 1883. He was married to Miss Mary Clements, Aug. 10, 1910, to which union there were born two daughters, Mrs. Montie Gardenhire of Capitan and Miss Dorothy Dozier. He passed away Sept. 8, 1933, in the S. P. hospital at San Francisco, after a lingering illness.

Mr. Dozier had been a resident of Carrizozo since 1905, during which time he was in the employ of the railroad company and was much esteemed by both his superiors and associates on the road, all of whom will deeply mourn his passing. About one year ago, the family moved to Tucumcari where they have since made their home.

Mr. Dozier was a member of the Baptist Church since his early youth. He leaves to mourn his departure, one sister, his wife and two daughters, to all of whom the sympathy of this community is extended. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. L. D. Jordan in the Methodist Church Tuesday afternoon, and the remains accompanied by the many friends of the family and brother trainmen to the Angus cemetery for burial.

Grand Master Will Be Here Next Tuesday

The local lodge of Odd Fellows will be honored by a visit from R. B. Brown, Grand Master of the order next Tuesday night, after which there will be a banquet in his honor at Roy's Cafe.

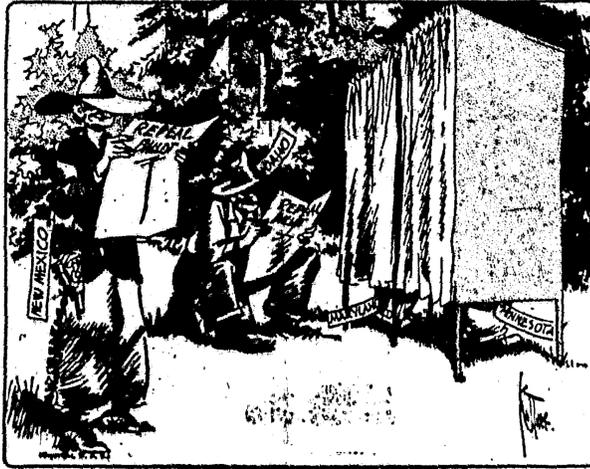

BEER!!! It won't be long, now! Next Tuesday New Mexico will join the parade. Don't forget to VOTE!

The Music-Drama Study Club will hold its annual meeting at the home of Miss Brickley, Thursday, Sept. 21, at 7:30 p.m. There will be election of officers and other important business. All members are requested to be present.—Study Club.

Mrs. John Townsend, daughters Mesdames Percy Welch and Dean Curbello returned last week from a three weeks' visit in Lea County where they have been visiting Mrs. Townsend's two brothers, Dru and Jack Taylor.

John and three other boys went out for a little ride and as they were driving on Main street, Lell turned on the radio in his car, and the boy sitting next to him turned pale and exclaimed: "You've run over him—stop!" —Barnum was right.

Carrizozo Returns Home Victorious

Harry Miller and his strong Carrizozo-ans motored to our neighboring town of Corona last Sunday afternoon and beat those lads by a score of 11 to 5, in an interesting and exciting game of baseball. When we beat them here before, the Corona boys said it would be different when we came there. It was—a difference in the score, only!

A team composed of East-Siders, Outlaws, Bakers, Meat-Cutters, Tailors and What-Not's, tackled the Woodpeckers on the local diamond Sunday afternoon, and the birds literally flew to camp with the game well tucked away under their wings. It was a good game and a thriller, from the standpoint of fine rooting from the sidelines. This alone was worth the price of admission (if any money was involved.)

Fans, at last you'll see the game you have been longing for. The "Rio Grande" from Socorro will be here next Sunday for a tussle with our boys. A tussle it will be; for Socorro has a strong team. According to newspaper dope, a Yankee scout has been looking over the Socorro pitcher. Come out and see the New Mexico major league prospect in action.

Teachers' Reception

A reception welcoming the teachers, held by the Woman's Club of Carrizozo at the High School Auditorium, Tuesday night, proved to be a very enjoyable affair. The inclemency of the weather reduced the large crowd that usually attends this function, but perhaps the lesser number contributed to the cordiality and home spirit of the occasion, for at the close of the program everyone moved out freely into the crowd, seeking friends and stopping to chat with those nearby. A program arranged by Mrs. Lemon was as follows:

Saxophone solo, Miss Thelma Shaver, with Miss Ruth Kelley at the piano; Vocal duet, Misses Jane Kimbrell and Leslye Cooper, with Mrs. Kelley at the piano; Violin ensemble, directed by Miss Louise Sweet. Those taking part: Mmes. Mendenhall and Don English, Messrs. D. U. Groce and Sat Chavez, Jr., with Miss Helen Huppertz at the piano; Talk by Rev. Lawson; Selections by the Mendenhall Orchestra. That the music was appreciated was evidenced by the encores, and the laughs that greeted the humorous flings in Rev. Lawson's talk measured its appreciation.

In behalf of the teachers, Mr.

Oscuro Notes

Miss Arnold, our teacher, visited at her home in Corona the past week-end.

Jack Brazel returned Friday from Oklahoma, where he took some horses to market.

On Sunday, a dog came storming up on the porch at the post-office. He was having fits and foaming at the mouth. Bill Wettstein shot the dog and took the head to Carrizozo to be examined. Dr. Freeman said that the head showed symptoms of hydrophobia. Everyone here is keeping their dogs tied until sure of the outcome.

Mr. and Mrs. Vance Smith returned from Kansas last Friday.

Mr. Heath left last Thursday on a business trip to El Paso and Santa Fe.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Robinson were here from their ranch Sunday and stayed over for the day.

Lillian Brown of Three Rivers visited with the home folks here over Sunday.

The dance Saturday night was well attended, but many Carrizozo people failed to come on account of bad weather.

Postmaster and Mrs. Bill Wettstein were business visitors on Tuesday, returning home in the afternoon.

Orville Luttrell and Thomas Parker made a business visit to Tularosa Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Estanislao Bello were here from Claunch Monday, returning home in the afternoon.

D. U. Groce thanked the club for this friendly occasion and its spirit of cooperation in all school and civic activities. After the program, delicious punch was served by Mrs. Carl Garrison and her committee. There was such an abundance of the beverage that all were again and again urged to renew their attack on the drink and judging from the repeaters, all must have been thankful it was only punch.

ANCHO ITEMS

When the Woman's Club met with Mmes. John Straley and Kile, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Mmes. Belknap, Pres.; B. Hightower, 1st Vice-Pres.; B. Wilson, 2nd Vice-Pres.; S. J. Pruett, Sec.; John Straley, Treas.; Kile, Parliamentarian; T. J. Straley, Librarian. Roll call was responded to by "Is Woman's place in the home?" Most of the members answered in the affirmative. Study leader for the day was Mrs. T. J. Straley; one of national monuments being the chosen subject. During the social hour, contests were indulged in. Mrs. Wilson won first prize. Mrs. S. J. Pruett read a poem on "The Model Club Woman." The Misses Drake gave several vocal selections. Tea, together with open-face sandwiches, cookies and mints, was served. Mmes. Drake and T. J. Straley presided at the tea table which was resplendent with a lace tablecloth over green satin. A low bowl held white sweet peas. This was flanked by tall, green tapers. Tea service was pawter. Special guests were Mmes. Hefren, Poage, Ernest and Harry Straley and Miss Mary Crawford.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Weatherabee were here this week from Oklahoma City visiting the Curtis Weatherabee family.

Mrs. J. M. Frame spent the week-end in Corona with the Bert Penix family.

A good-sized crowd was in attendance at the dance Tuesday night. Stovall's orchestra furnished the music.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest of Amarillo are spending a few days at the Pools Ernest ranch.

Miss Fuller went to Corona to spend the week-end with home folks. On Sunday, her mother entertained with a dinner in celebration of Miss Fuller's birthday.

Barney Wilson was a business visitor in Carrizozo the first of the week.

During the Jenkins' horse hunt, Harry Straley and another man were riding in the Tecolotes. The other man found a trap which Harry had lost 19 years ago when he was trapping in that vicinity. It was recognized by an unusual anchor which was attached to it.

When a can of sour cream blew up at the depot one day last week, J. M. Frame, agent, received a wound on his upper lip.

Appreciation

The Economy Cash Grocery & Market greatly appreciates your response to the opening of the new store. It is our earnest desire to please and warrant the continuance of a portion of your trade. Everything reasonably priced.

J. F. Petty, Prop.

Wayne Zumwalt is assisting at the First National Bank, during the absence of Cashier E. M. Brickley, who is attending the World's Fair in Chicago.

Attorney E. M. Barber was called to El Paso for several days this week, attending to some legal business.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Stimmel arrived home last Friday from the north west, where they went three months ago to attend the funeral of their son Charles. After the interment at Waitesburg, Washington, they remained for a short time at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Clarence Eaton. They afterwards went to Portland, Ore. They went from there to California, where they visited their sons, Ben, George, Roy and Lee, at Stockton and Los Angeles. Mr. Stimmel says the north-west is very nice, but New Mexico is better and he never missed a chance to boost the Sunshine State. While at Long Beach, they met some of our former residents among whom were the S. F. Miller and D. B. Tenniss families.

Waite J. Keeney, State Supervisor of the National Re-employment Commission came over Sunday from Santa Fe and held a meeting with the local board during the afternoon. He was registered at the Carrizozo Eating House, stayed over night and before leaving Monday morning, he made this office a friendly call.

Mrs. Louise Coe spent Monday in Roswell shopping and visiting friends from her home in Glencoe.

Dr. Freeman and J. V. Taylor were over at the Lincoln County graveling project Monday, returning home in the evening.

The Most Rev. Rudolph Gerken, new Archbishop of Santa Fe, made a brief business trip to Carrizozo Tuesday. Father Brady accompanied the Archbishop on a visit to the Catholic missions of Lincoln County.

In last week's paper an error appeared in mentioning the White Oaks Bridge Club. Mmes. J. S. and Tommy Cook were mentioned as hostesses when it should have been Mmes. Barney Ward and Clyde Collier entertained on Sept. 1, and on last Friday, Sept. 8, Mmes. J. S. and Tommy Cook were the hostesses.

Dr. R. E. Blaney informs us that he will move next Monday to the Lutz Building, where he has leased rooms from F. A. English. As soon as some new equipment arrives, he will have an up-to-date office. He has been at his present location for more than twenty years.

Father Brady delivered his illustrated lecture, "The Seven Cities of Cibola" before an audience of 150 patients at the U. S. Marine Hospital at Fort Stanton on Wednesday evening. This same lecture will be given before the personnel of the Fort next Wednesday evening. Any of Father Brady's friends from Capitan who have not heard the lecture are invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Groce returned yesterday from a pleasure trip which took them to the northern part of the state and the southern portion of Arizona. During their absence, they visited their old home near Stanley.

Mr. Geo. A. Titworth of Titworth & Co., Inc., gave a picnic Sunday, Sept. 10, for all his employees and their families. The affair was held in Baca Canyon and all report an enjoyable time.

GOLD-MAD DAYS OF HISTORIC '49

Discovery of rich gold lodes in the old bonanza mining camp of Virginia City, Nev., has drawn its hundreds of fortune seekers from nearby territory; but it is not of a magnitude to start a stampede from the East, such as those that set a large fragment of the nation on the march to California in 1849 and to Colorado in 1859.

"Once only a rumor was needed to lure thousands of men across a continent, or over the seas via Panama and the Horn to the wilderness that was California," writes Frederick Simplich in a communication to the Washington (D. C.) headquarters of the National Geographic society, recalling the stirring, lusty days of California's big gold rush in 1849.

"When Marshall found gold near Sutter's mill, it was the richest strike in history. With their jackknives men gouged chunks of pure gold from hillside seams. Seven Americans, with the help of Indians, took out 275 pounds of gold in a little more than six weeks.

"The migration was so stupendous," says Cleland, the California historian, "as to outrank anything of its kind in the nation's history." A single issue of the New York Herald carried more than 40 advertisements offering to the California-bound crowds every aid, from maps and pistols to "gold finders" and "patent gold extracting engines."

"Steerage tickets via Panama sold for $1,000. Thousands went this way; another army around the Horn; others across Nicaragua or Mexico. Death took frightful toll, especially among those crossing the western deserts. James Abbey, a Forty-niner, wrote in his diary that on one 15-mile stretch of desert trail he counted 750 dead horses, oxen, and mules; in the last ten miles, 362 wagons, besides leather, trunks, clothing, and other things thrown away to lighten the loads.

"Imagine San Francisco then gold crazy. Off on the treasure hunt months ahead of eastern hordes. Its homes, cows, chickens, gardens, goods in stores all were deserted. At excitement's height even the millers quit arriving ships to race for the gold fields, till a vast fleet of silent vessels lay idle and abandoned in the bay.

"Newcomers, pouring in now by sea, made frantic demands at any price, for food, clothing, and mining outfits. In a few weeks population multiplied a hundred times. Thousands slept in open fields. Two streams, new arrivals on their way to the mines and men hastening back to spend their dust and nuggets, brought the young San Francisco smacking with literally millions of dollars poured into it. Some miners brought back gold enough to foot nuggets at the feet of stage singers in the smoke-filled, bolsterous music halls.

Homes couldn't be built fast enough. "Any room 20 by 60 feet," wrote T. W. Sherman, in his "Miner's," would rent for $1,000 a month. A Kentuckian, later famous, got his start selling homemade pies at $10 each. Tents and flimsy shacks spread for miles.

"Mines or camps with such names as Hell's Delight, Hancock, Belirium Tremons, Blue Holly Havine, Poker Flat, Sittell Canyon, and Pelitcoat Slide, hinted at the boisterous spirit of the time. Nobody shaved. Behind the full beards of the miners were the faces of young men. In topboots, flannel shirts, and stouch hats, all miners looked alike as they crowded the El Dorado, Bella Union, and other glittering gambling dens of the day, losing their dust as easily as they had found it.

"Malays, Mexicans, Moors, Australians, Chinese, Nankais, Chilians, Peruvians—all joined with Americans and Europeans to give San Francisco, heart of the boom, that cosmopolitan character it still retains."

The Everlasting Whisper

FROM THE BEGINNING

Mark King, prospector, and his partner, Ben Gaynor, share with a desperado, Sven Brodie, knowledge of a vast store of hidden gold. He is impressed by Gloria, Ben's daughter. He dislikes a house visitor named Gratton. In a spirit of adventure Gloria accompanies Gratton from San Francisco on a "business" trip. At Coloma she finds her father badly hurt. He gives her a message for King. With Gratton she goes to the Gaynor home, but realizes she has compromised herself by her journey with Gratton. He proposes marriage, and Gloria apparently accepts him. King watches the ceremony through a window. At the last moment the girl refuses to utter the requisite "I do." King enters and Gloria appeals to him for protection. Gratton dismissed, reveals knowledge of the hidden gold. King emboldened by Gloria's appeal to him, urges her to marry him. Really in love with him, and seeing a way out of her dilemma, the girl consents. Gaynor's message reveals the location of the treasure, and urges King to go at once, and secure it. After the wedding, Gloria asserting the necessity for Gratton to stay in the Gaynor home, King leaves her and prepares for his trip. Next morning Gloria insists on going with him. On the journey her over-protective nerves give way and she admits to King that she married him only to "save her name from gossip." King, humiliated, renounces her but refuses to take her home, declaring he is under promise to her father to lose no time seeking the gold. She undertakes to find her way alone, and to go with him. Gloria's horse goes lame, and has to be abandoned. King finds the gold. Gloria appeals to him for aid. King decides to start back and return with trusted men, but finds his horse has broken away. Their journey almost gone and King tells Gloria they must start home on foot, despite a raging storm. Gloria refuses to obey him or help him in any way, and in his despair he strikes her with a rope's end. Then he leaves her, bitterly regretting his action. Later, he decides to make his way out alone and send back a party for Gloria. He explains the situation, and leaves her. Alone, Gloria sees Gratton making a painful way through the storm.

"But it is so easy," she cried to him, forgetful of her own terror at mounting up here. "I have done it."

"I can't," he said miserably. "It was all I could do to get this far. I think I am dying."

Again and again she pleaded with him. But he had either reached the limit of his physical endurance or, shaken and unnerved, he had not the courage to attempt the steep climb. He lay still; his eyes were shut, and to Gloria, too, came the swift fear that the man might be dying.

"I am coming to you!" she called. She began making the hazardous descent. She did not take time to ask herself if she could make it; she knew only that she must. After a weary time she came to the base of the cliffs. Gratton was not a dozen paces from her. He did not move but looked at her in a strange, bewildered fashion. Seeing that he made no attempt to move, she made her way to him.

"It's you—Gloria Gaynor!" he muttered. "But I don't understand."

"I came with Mark King. The storm caught us. Just as it caught you. But you must come with me; if you lie here you will be chilled; you will freeze."

He shook his head. "I can't," he groaned. "I am more dead than alive. I tell you. I have been stuck before dawn getting here." He cast a bleak look up along the cliffs and shuddered. "I'd rather lie here and die than attempt it."

Once more Gloria was urging and pleading. But in the end she gave up hopelessly, seeing that Gratton would not budge. And it was so clear to her that he would perish if he lay here.

"There's a hole in the cliffs just yonder," Gratton said dreadingly. "I was going to crawl in there when you called."

Then Gloria saw for the first time the opening to that cave which in Gus Ingle's Bible had been set down as Calve number one. It was almost directly under King's cave, at the base of the cliff.

"Come, then," she said. "Let's see if it's big enough for a shelter."

Gratton heaved himself up with a groan. Gloria did not wait for him, but began the tedious breaking of a path the few feet to the hole. She could see nothing; she heard nothing. Nothing save Gratton's hard-breathing close behind her. She got a grip upon herself and made a step forward, paused, extended her arms to grope for a wall, and made another step. There was still no sound; she breathed more freely, assuring herself that save for herself the cavern was empty. She stumbled over a rock, stopped again and called to Gratton. Only now was he entering.

She struck a match carefully, cupped the tiny flame with her hands, and strove to see what lay about her. There was a litter of dead limbs about her feet. She began gathering up some of the smaller branches, groping for others as her match burned out. It was Gloria's hands which started the fire and placed the bits of dry wood upon it. The flames crackled; the wood caught like tinder; the flickering light retrieved much of the caverns about them from the utter dark.

"Here I stay," said Gratton. He dropped down and began warming his shaking hands. A more abjectly miserable specimen of humanity Gloria had never looked upon. He was jaded, spiritless, cowed.

But he was a human being, and she was no longer alone! She was lifted from despair to a realm bright with hope. King had gone for succor; she had a companion to share with her the dread hours of waiting. She caught up a burning brand as she had seen Mark King do, and holding it high made a quick survey, going timidly step by step further from the entrance, deeper into the cavern. It was much like the one so high above. Gratton could not, or would not, climb to the higher cave; then why should they not make this their shelter? She would have to climb the cliffs again; but she would have to do that in any case. Once up there it would be so simple a matter to toss down blankets and food and cooking utensils; a half-hour would see her camp moved from one cave to the other. Eager and excited, she began to tell Gratton what she meant to do.

"Wait a while," he urged her. "I am terribly shaken, Gloria."

Presently he said: "Do you think we are ever going to get out of this alive?"

"Yes." Her voice rang with assurance. "Mark King has gone for help. All we have to do is wait for a few days."

His pale brows flew up.

"King? He has gone? He has left you alone here?"

Again she said: "Yes." Gratton began plucking at his lip, striding up and down now. It became obvious to her that there had been nothing wrong within him beyond what his frantic terror had done to him. Perhaps, left alone, he would have died out there in the snow; now, having already leaned on her, having her company and the hope she held out, he began to look his old self.

"Now I'll go for the things in the other cave," she suggested. And as an afterthought: "Now that you are feeling better, perhaps you will go up with me and help?"

"You Beasts!" She panted. "You cowardly, contemptible beasts!"

"Why," he said. "Why—of course. Yes, we'll both go."

Having seen that she had done the thing with no mishap, he was willing to do what before he could not do.

"Come," he said. "Let's hurry."

They reached the upper cave. Her fire, though low, still burned. She put on more dry wood from the great heap King had left for her. She began to look about, planning swiftly just how easiest to move the few belongings which must go with her.

He came forward and stood warming his nervous hands at her fire.

"And you," he said, marveling, "you actually came with a man like King into a place like this!"

"I was a fool," cried Gloria. "A pitiful little fool. Oh!"

"You found King wasn't your kind," he announced. "You have quarreled!"

"From the very beginning," she replied quickly. "He is unthinkable. Haven't I told you I was a fool? I didn't know then quite what men were . . . some men."

She was not measuring every word now. She meant simply that she was determined to have done with Mark King, holding bitterly that she would go to anyone to be definitely through with King.

His eyes followed her as she gathere up her few personal and intimate possessions, comb, brush, little silver things of pale pink and blue. A faint color seeped into his usually colorless lips. When she saw the look in his eyes, she stared at him wonderingly.

"What is it?" she asked, her voice purred. "What are you thinking?"

He shrugged. "I was just thinking how superb you are," he replied, not entirely untruthfully. For his ulterior thought had been reared upon the vital fact of her triumphant beauty.

"Gloria!" he said hoarsely, "you are wonderful! And you have come to me!"

Gloria met his rather too ardent admiration with that cool little laugh which had been her weapon in other days. She was not afraid of Gratton. "I came to you," she said frankly, "because I was a woman in distress and had no alternative. You understand me, don't you?"

He hardly heard her. To his mind the situation was clearness itself. Gloria had come alone into the forest with Mark King. She had been with him all these days and nights. But she and King had quarreled; tired of each other already, perhaps. Gratton did not care what the reason was; he was gleefully satisfied with the outcome. He had always coveted her.

He came a step closer and the firelight showed how the muscles of his throat were working. Gloria's eyes widened. But not yet did she fear.

"Mr. Gratton," she began. "Gloria!" he cried out. "Gloria!" His hands, suddenly flung out, were upon her. She tore them away, wrenched herself free from him, and started back.

"Oh!" she cried, shrinking not so much from him as from the thing she read so plainly at last. "Surely, you do not think . . . my being here at all, being with Mr. King . . ."

"No," cried Gratton wildly. "I misinterpret nothing. You gave yourself to him; you saw your mistake; you hated him. You have come to me. I have always loved you; I want you."

Her cheeks flamed red with hot anger. She drew back from him. He followed, his arms out. She was amazed, for the moment shocked into consternation. Then she marked the small stature, little taller, little stronger, than her own; the pale face, the narrow chest, the slender body.

"You know what I mean, what I want," he was muttering. "That sweet young-thing innocence is all right in its place but that place is not here alone in the mountains with a man."

"Man!" she burst out scathingly. "You, a man! Why, you wretched little beast!"

But Gratton, his brain reeling with hot fancy, came on. His arms groped for her. Gloria swept up a dead pine limb that lay by the fire and swung it in both hands and struck him full across the face. He reeled back, his hands to his face.

"You beast!" she panted. "You cowardly, contemptible beast."

His mouth was bleeding. And she read in the gesture and in the man's whole chilling attitude that danger of any physical violence from him was past and done with.

An absolutely new sense of elation sang through Gloria's blood. She was fully mistress of the situation, and had found within her an unguessed strength.

"Mr. Gratton," she said swiftly, "you have made a mistake. Mr. King has never offered me violence of that sort. Remember that, though we are alone and in the mountains, I am the same Gloria Gaynor that you have known. And be sure that you treat me as such."

He nursed his battered lips and stared at her. The blow had dazed him. The stick was still in her hands; a shiver ran through him. His desire went out of him.

"I wish to God I had never seen you," he groaned.

She had meant from the first to take the upper hand. Now she was almost glad that this had happened. For now she was very sure of herself. She dropped the stick and wiped her hands.

"We have other things to think of," she said. She began dragging the blankets from her bed, tumbing them to the floor. "Take these," she commanded.

"I was a fool for ever leaving San Francisco," he muttered bitterly. "You let me think that you cared for me, and now you treat me like a dog. I spent time and money trying to be the one to find gold in these infernal mountains."

Gold! He stopped at his own word, his eyes flying wide open. During these later hours, fleeing from Brodie's men, stumbling upon Gloria, swirled away by mad loggings, he had not thought of gold. But here was King's camp; straight here had King come after Gloria had brought him her father's message and old Honeycutt's secret. Then the gold was here! He began looking about him eagerly. King was gone? Then not for men to bring help to Gloria but to aid him in carrying off the gold. He began questing feverishly, shuffling about in the shadows while Gloria, busy with her plans for moving, wondered at him. Presently, he came upon the bag which King had meant to take out with him that day the horse was lost.

He went down on his knees by the sack, got a heavy lump in his hands, rubbed at it, and finally sat back, staring up at her with new flames of another sort leaping in his eyes.

"It's next thing to solid gold!" he gasped. "There are thousands—thousands—Millions!"

It struck Gloria that there was small justice in Gratton reaping any reward, having done nothing to earn it. "We have the things to move. Come, hurry."

"Why should we move, after all?" he demanded sharply. "Now that I have got up here, why not stay? King would know where to send for us, and—those cursed dogs of Brodie's would never think of looking up here, even if chance did lead them along the gorge. They couldn't follow my trail if they tried to."

"Then, if we go down quickly, if we get your bag of food and put out the fire down there, and come right back up, it won't be very long before our tracks will be gone. Come; let's hurry."

"Coming," said Gratton. "Yes; we must hurry."

"No use whatever," answered Senator Sorghum.

"Then why do lobbyists hang around?"

CADDIE WIT

George Dunlap, Walker cup star, said at a farewell dinner before he sailed for England:

"I'd make a better speech if I were as witty as the average caddie."

"A man was playing on a municipal course called the Common, and his first drive sent a chunk of earth as big as a ball sailing down the field."

"Well, well! Extraordinary!" the man growled.

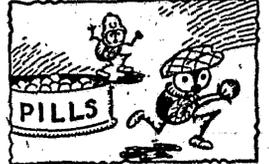

"Yeh," said the caddie, "it is a bit out of the common."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Talker

The man who had been everywhere had been talking for hours about his adventures. "Once," he began a new story, "I saw a man-eating tiger."

"That's nothing," interrupted a weary hearer. "Once I saw a man eating rabbit."

EDITORIAL COLUMN

Beyond Our Understanding

The fact brought before the recent convention of federal employees in the postal service held at Kansas City, showed that salaries of postal employees had not only been cut to an alarmingly low level. Also, that on account of 1 a y-o f s, furloughs and burdensome increases in the working hours, the situation has become unbearable. In many places, workers in the postal service have been compelled to appeal to relief departments for aid. In commenting on the deplorable condition, the El Paso Times (Democratic) says in substance:

We quote.—Protests against the dire condition of postal substitute employees in many parts of the country has been made to the postoffice department by the national organization of substitute postal clerks and apparently by numerous individuals also. In these complaints, attention has been called to the "sweat shop wages" and lack of work but even more to the fact that postal substitute employees have been denied assistance local relief agencies on the ground that they were federal employees.

We are still quoting— Here in El Paso and in other cities also, postal substitutes do not have regular employment, naturally, but they are being used to fill in on furloughs of regular employees as much as possible.

They also are being given the special delivery work. Thus they just about manage a poor living—say $50 a month. This is a bare existence; very hard, very deplorable, but a bare existence is better than nothing.

—What is beyond our understanding is why such a condition should exist among government employees when at the same time the government is insisting that private industries raise the wage scales, reduce working hours, etc. Inconsistency, thou art far from being a virtue.

The P. T. A. Meeting

The Local Parents and Teachers met last Friday night at the High School Auditorium. In spite of the unsettled weather, a good crowd was present.

The president, Mrs. C. W. Young called the meeting to order with the singing of the P. T. A. Song led by Mrs. D. U. Groce. After the business meeting, the program was as follows:

Song—Our Battle Hymn for Children — Led by Mrs. D. U. Groce.

Talk by Supt. D. U. Groce.
Talk by Mrs. N. I. Reites, County Nurse.

Talk on Amendment No. 4— Mr. John Hall

Lesson for September 17

SOLOMON

LESSON TEXT—1 Kings 1:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—Enter into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise; be thankful unto him, and bless his name. Psalm 100:4.
PRIMARY TOPIC—In God's House.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A King Worshipping God.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Learning to Worship God.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Value of a House of Worship.

I. Solomon Anointed King (1 Kings 1:5-40).
The divine choice as to David's successor had not been known (v. 20). David is stirred to action by the combined appeals of Bathsheba and Nathan. At David's command the faithful three, Zadok, Nathan, and Benaiah, speedily anointed Solomon king.

11. Solomon's Acts to Establish His Kingdom (1 Kings 1:41-2:46). He noted certain dangerous elements which if allowed to develop would weaken, if not destroy, his rule.

1. Adonijah placed under surveillance (vv. 41-53). Placing him on good behavior displayed both clemency and dignity on the part of Solomon. Adonijah fled to the altar, not to worship God, but to save his life. His repentance was not real. Solomon ordered his execution (2:13-25).

2. Abiathar removed from the priesthood (2:26, 27). He had joined Adonijah in his plot of usurpation.

3. Joab executed (2:28-35). Joab was a party to Adonijah's rebellion. Besides this, he had treacherously murdered his rivals in the army.

4. Shimei executed (2:36-46). Solomon first paroled him and confined him to Jerusalem, but when he broke his parole, had him executed.

III. The Divine Favor Upon Solomon (1 Kings 3:1-14).

1. God's gracious offer (vv. 4, 5). Solomon made a lavish sacrifice, showing that he had strong impulses toward the Lord. This was followed by the Lord's gracious offer.

2. Solomon's wise choice (vv. 6-9). He was keenly sensible of the difficulty and of the responsibility of his position.

3. God's unstinted gift to Solomon (vv. 10-14). Because Solomon appeared before the Lord in the proper attitude, God gave him more than he asked for.

IV. Solomon Building the Temple (1 Kings 5:1-8:65).

1. Preparation (5:1-18). He secured from King Hiram:

a. Wood for beams, ceilings, etc.
b. Stones for the great foundation.
c. Skilled workmen.

2. The erection of the temple (6:1-39).

a. Located on Mt. Moriah (II Chron. 3:1).

b. Dimensions. Ninety feet long; thirty feet wide; forty-five feet high—this on the assumption that the cubit was eighteen inches in length.

c. Its contents.

(1) The brazen altar. (2) The laver. (3) The golden candlesticks. (4) The cherubim.

3. The dedication of the temple (8:1-66). The dedicatory services consisted of:

a. Bringing up the ark (vv. 1-11). The ark was typical of Jesus Christ. God dwells among his people through Jesus Christ (John 1:14).

b. Solomon's address to the people (vv. 12-21). He pointed out to them that God had chosen David to be king, yet did not allow him to build the temple, but promised that his son should complete the work.

c. Solomon's dedicatory prayer (vv. 22-53). In his prayer, Solomon gratefully acknowledged God's goodness in the past, and plead that the promises made to his father should be verified. He asked that God's eyes might be continually open toward the temple, so that:

(1) In case of contention he would be their judge (vv. 31, 32).
(2) If smitten by the enemy, even though they had sinned, God would forgive and restore (vv. 33, 34).
(3) In famine, upon confession, God would forgive and send rain (vv. 35, 36).

(4) In pestilence and sickness, God would hear and forgive (vv. 37-40).
(5) In case of the coming of the foreigner, because of the news of God's favor toward Jerusalem, his prayer should be heard (vv. 41-43).
(6) In going out to battle, their cause should be maintained (vv. 44, 45).
(7) If taken captive, God would hear their prayers and restore them (vv. 46-53).

d. Solomon blesses the people (vv. 54-61).
e. Solomon offering sacrifices of thanksgiving (vv. 62-66).

WORTH REMEMBERING

Jesus still is life—life and light through truth.

Real prayer is the most intense act a man performs.

Christ incarnates in his own life the perfect precepts, which he taught to men.

In the beginning of created things we find God first and foremost. He it was who created all things.

State and county warrants are taxable under the Arizona state intangible law.

The New Mexico state treasurer's office issued a $5,000 casual certificate of indebtedness to pay expenses of the special election of September 19.

The sixteenth of September, Mexico's independence day, will be celebrated on both sides of the border at Nogales and a patriotic program will be offered.

George D. Corich, garage owner at Clayton, N. M., filed in U. S. District Court a voluntary petition in bankruptcy listing debts of $30,861 and assets of $7,955.

Mrs. John Morrow, 81, wife of former Congressman John Morrow, died at the Miners Hospital at Raton after failing to recover from an operation performed recently.

Arizona highway department officials made plans recently to get under way by December 1—a $4,000,000 road program, estimated to give employment to 4,000 persons.

Irving A. Jennings, Phoenix, was elected commander of the American Legion, department of Arizona, at the annual convention at Bisbee, Tucson was selected for the 1934 convention.

Tony Posey, alleged to have shot and killed his father-in-law, Nevt Pendergrass, 55, Mayhill, N. M., rancher, surrendered to officers and was brought to the county jail at Alamogordo.

Thomas E. Campbell, former governor of Arizona and former president of the United States civil service commission, will resume his former profession of hydraulic mining engineering at Phoenix in October.

Approximately $1,500,000 will be made available soon under the national recovery act for forestry service projects in New Mexico and Arizona. Of this amount, New Mexico forests will receive about $700,000.

Incorporation of the Gallup Oil & Gas Co., for $25,000 has been approved by the state corporation commission. Bruce Vaughn of Wingate, N. M., and Rudolph Yorkovich and Fred Mutto, both of Gallup, are directors.

The Pinon-Avis Angora Goat Association sold its spring clip of approximately 145,000 pounds to a Boston purchaser for $45,195. The sale was made at Roswell, N. M. The growers received 40 cents a pound for kid hair and 30 cents a pound for adult hair.

The federal government ordered State Sanitary Engineer F. C. Roberts, Jr., to inspect all Indian civilian conservation corps camps in Arizona. In addition, he was directed to inspect "water supplies used by common carriers in interstate traffic."

Refunds totaling approximately 18 per cent have been obtained by Finley and Co. and W. H. Driggers from the A. T. & S. F. railway on shipments of cattle which moved prior to January 25, 1932. The shipments were made from New Mexico to Colorado and Kansas.

The Arizona NRA board has appealed to the federal government to place this state in the western instead of the southern district in classification of codes. Such classification, it was said, would place Arizona in a higher wage bracket for each code except agricultural processing.

Warrants aggregating $3,974 for the month of August were mailed out September 1 to Maricopa county's old age pensioners. The board has approved 430 pension applications since the state's old age pension law became effective in July. It is estimated that pensions paid during the current fiscal year will total $74,000.

Representatives of the cotton industry in Maricopa county, Ariz., are endeavoring to establish a sliding scale of wages for cotton pickers. The present wage varies between 50 and 75 cents per 100 pounds, but there is no established scale. The cotton men seek to set a sliding scale in proportion to the market price of cotton.

Forty Allison, N. M., miners who have withdrawn from the National Miners' Union, have organized a local and applied for a charter from the United Mine Workers of America. Officers of the Allison U. M. W. A. are as follows: William Ferguson, president; Claude Wylie, recording secretary; and Charles Barker, secretary and treasurer.

Arizona representatives of organized labor, several hundred strong, will convene in Phoenix September 18, for one of the most significant sessions in the history of the Arizona State Federation of Labor. L. E. Moye, president, Tucson, announced. Due to the activity of organized labor under the National Recovery Act, the twenty-second annual meeting of the state federation will assume unusual importance, Mr. Moye said. Delegates from all sections of Arizona, representing all unions, will attend the session, which will last at least two, and possibly three or four days.

Nearly all departments of the Arizona state government have pledged themselves to purchase supplies and materials only from dealers displaying the NRA blue eagle.

Four attaches of the intangible tax division of the Arizona tax commission were relieved of their duties as the result of litigation which has halted collection of the tax until the courts pass upon the constitutionality of the law. Those relieved were former State Senator Frank T. Pomeroy, deputy director; Ruth McBride, Stella Bernhardt and Margaret B. Martin.

Made Jefferson President

Matthew Lyon, Irish Boy Who Was Sold for a Yoke of Oxen and Was Congressman From Two States, Kept Burr From White House.

Nearly two centuries ago, July 14, 1750, there was born in Ireland a boy destined to become a big business man, to represent two of our states in congress and to cast the deciding vote for a President of the then unthought-of United States of America. Mary Gilbert Smith writes, in the Boston Globe.

His father, a member of a prominent family, was executed for his part in the White Boys' insurrection. His mother married again. Young Matthew Lyon, studious and enterprising, was well treated by his stepfather, who was proud and fond of the boy.

But he had heard of the strange new land beyond the seas and longed to try his fortunes there. One morning when he was fourteen he bargained with a sea captain to carry him to the province of Connecticut in return for his services as cabin boy. He had a guinea which he had saved from his pocket money, and he gave this to the captain for safe-keeping.

The captain hid him in the hold, so that no one would find him before the vessel sailed, and took the precaution to lock him in. Had he not done so, young Matthew's adventure would have ended that same morning. When his stepfather came seeking him, and called to him affectionately, the lad would have responded at once had he not been restrained by the locked door.

When they reached Connecticut, the captain betrayed the boy's trust by selling him into service as a "redemptioneer"—one of those impetuous emigrants who paid for their passage to the New world by serving as bond-servants for a number of years.

Fortunately for young Matthew, his services were secured by Jabez Bacon, one of the wealthiest merchants in Connecticut; he was worth half a million when he died—a vast sum for those early days. His example and precepts did much to set the ambitious boy on his way. Trade at that time was largely by barter. Bacon gave a yoke of oxen for Lyon's services until he was twenty-one.

In after years when the young Irishman was a candidate for office this incident was distorted by his political opponents to show that he was of low origin and unfit to be a representative in congress. Lyon never apologized for the manner of his entry into Connecticut nor told of the deception that had been practiced upon him. Rather, he acted as if it were something he was proud of. He swore "by the bulls that he deemed me" to beat his opponents—and he did.

Of his work here, J. A. Graham, in a book published in London in 1797, says in part:

"Fair Haven joins on Skenesborough (now Whitehall, N. Y.) and is the most flourishing manufacturing town in the state. It owes its consequence to its founder, Colonel Lyon, whose enterprise and perseverance in promoting and carrying on manufactures has been of infinite utility to the public. He has erected a furnace for casting all kinds of hollow iron ware and two forges, a 'sitting mill' for the making of nail rods, a paper mill, a printing press and corn and sawmills.

"It is a curious fact that Colonel Lyon has executed a good deal of printing at his office, on paper manufactured by himself of the bark of the basswood tree, and which is found to answer every purpose for common printing.

"He has held some of the first offices of the state and no man in it can be more qualified to do so, as his knowledge of the finances and situation of the country is scarcely to be equaled; nor does his integrity ever suffer him to lose sight of the real good of the people. His friendship and generosity are as great as his ambition. His passions and all his pursuits are exerted for the benefit of mankind."

Radio May Be Weapon in Pest Extermination

Several years ago the writer made some preliminary tests on small quantities of infested wheat with a view to determining if radio methods could be effectively used to exterminate the eggs and larval forms which may be concealed within the material, as well as the adult insects.

Thirty and six-meter waves were used, the former of low capacity and the latter of high capacity. The 30-meter low-capacity waves were effective in exterminating adult insects in small quantities of wheat within a period of about 90 seconds, but the eggs later hatched out. With the 20-kilowatt, 6-meter waves, an exposure of six seconds was sufficient to exterminate eggs, larvae and adults. The testing plant has been in operation for a year and many kinds of infested materials have been successfully treated, including wheat, corn, flower and garden seeds, tobacco, spices, nuts, beans, peas, cocoa beans, packaged and bulk milled cereals, and so on.

Results of the writer's research work indicate definitely that weevils in all stages of their development, from eggs to adults, can be exterminated without injury to the germinating properties of grain, or appreciably affecting the moisture content, and without adversely affecting the food value. These are indications that the germinating properties of wheat and other seeds treated may be enhanced.

Worms, mites and other infestations of cotton beans, spices, tobacco, nuts, packaged cereals, and so on, can be exterminated without injury to the products treated. Where the equipment is properly installed there are no adverse effects upon persons working or stationed in the vicinity of the apparatus.—J. H. Davis in the Scientific American.

District Court of the United States, District of New Mexico

BANKRUPT'S PETITION FOR DISCHARGE

In the Matter of: James Edward Brown, Bankrupt.

No. 1283, In Bankruptcy. To the Honorable Colin Neblett, Judge of the District Court of the United States for the District of New Mexico.

James Edward Brown, of Carrizozo, in the County of Lincoln, and State of New Mexico, in said district, respectfully represents that on the 28th day of July, 1933, last past, he was duly adjudged Bankrupt under the Acts of Congress relating to Bankruptcy; that he has duly surrendered all his property and rights of property, and has fully complied with all the requirements of said Acts and orders of the Court touching his Bankruptcy.

Wherefore he prays that he may be decreed by the Court to have full discharge from all debts provable against his estate under said Bankrupt acts, except such debts as are excepted by law from such discharge.

Dated this 1st day of September, A. D., 1933.

(Sgd.) James Edward Brown, Bankrupt.

Order of Notice Thereon

District of New Mexico—ss. On this 5th day of September, A. D., 1933, on reading the petition for discharge of James Edward Brown, Bankrupt, it is ordered by the Court, that a hearing be had upon the same on the 23rd day of October, A. D., 1933, before James M. H. Cullender, Esquire, a Referee in Bankruptcy of said Court, at Roswell, in said district, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon; and that notice thereof be published in the Carrizozo Outlook, a newspaper printed in said district, and that all known creditors and other persons in interest may appear at the said time and place and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted. And it is further ordered by the Court, that the Referee shall send by mail to all known creditors, copies of said petition, and this order, addressed to them at their places of residence, as stated.

COLIN NEBLETT, U.S. District Judge.
ATTEST: A true copy. Wm. D. Bryars, Clerk.

Agreement on Hondo-Bonito Water Rights, Reached

In connection with the case which has been pending for so long in the District Court of Lincoln County instituted by the Southern Pacific Railway Co. against the water users out of the Hondo and Bonito stream systems for the adjudication of respective water rights of all parties, it has just been announced that two principal users of water out of the Hondo—the Bloom Land & Cattle Company and The Titworth Company—have reached a n agreement with the Southern Pacific with respect to their particular water rights which will make unnecessary any further litigation on their part in the suit mentioned.

The details of the agreed settlement are not available but it was announced by the attorneys, Messrs. L. O. Fullen and W. A. Dunn, representing the two corporations named, that the settlement reached in their opinion is a very satisfactory one to the clients and they also consider it as fair on the part of the railroad company.—Roswell Record.

This office is in receipt of a message from our old friend, Bert Holland, to the effect that he is now located at Las Cruces with headquarters of the Motor Vehicle Department of the State Corporation Commission. Bert, Jr. is enrolled in school and they are all well pleased with their new location.

R. C. Sowder of Fort Sumner spent Monday in Roswell on business.—Roswell Dispatch.
