The following article should be read only by lovers of hunting; it's true, but no one aside from a hunter would believe it. One hunter, if a gentleman, will believe another's hunting story. I have never met a hunter who was not a gentleman.

Wednesday, Nov. 15, while hunting on the Carrizo mountain for big game, I located in a long canyon, a place where there seemed to be a goodly number of pine squirrels and yellow hammers, either of which makes an excellent pot pie. I resolved that when not hunting big game I would return to that place. On Sunday, Nov. 19, I took a 22 target rifle and left home before daylight. I had gone up the canyon about a mile when it became light enough to see and as I rounded a low ridge that projected to the canyon, I disturbed the slumbers of a big buck, who jumped up, trotted slowly to the top of the ridge, paused for a moment and was lost to sight. When he first arose he was so near to me that I could have knocked off one of his horns with a boarding house soda biscuit. I hope he found another nice place where he could finish his nap.

In due time I reached the oak and pinon country where I felt sure that the squirrels and yellow hammers would be feeding together. I dropped to my knees under a big juniper, close to a dead snag which I felt would be a good place for a flicker to stop for a worm. Something caused me to turn to my left and I thought I saw a rabbit dodge behind a rock very near to me. Presently, around the rock stepped a sleek young doe. At a distance of 15 paces, she straightened up and looked directly into my eyes. I was not concealed, but wore a brown hat and coat which harmonized with the surroundings, so she could not see me. Occasionally she would stamp one of her pretty little feet. In a few minutes from behind the rock, walked baby buck fawn, his little horns not over two inches long. He threw up his ears and gave me the once-over. The doe then saw me and became uneasy. She would trot away for a short distance and as the fawn did not follow, she would return and look me over again.

The fawn was not in the least frightened, neither did he seem to share in his mother's trouble. He had about reached the ripe age of one year and felt that he could take care of himself. This continued for about five minutes when an old buck trotted up seven paces from the doe and just 22 paces from where I was crouching. The instant he caught my scent he performed the "freeze act," exactly what I had been doing with the doe and fawn, a trick I learned from a ruffed grouse in the mountains of Pennsylvania.

He lingered for a few minutes standing motionless much like a bronze statue on a lawn, never looking in my direction, but with his muzzle pointed up the canyon. I could see him plainly with his small horns set well forward, polished so that they were almost white. He was so sleek and dolled up that he reminded me of a "cake eater," about to give the ladies an eyeful. After this had gone on for about two minutes, he gave a loud snort and thinking I might have to stand a charge from him, but with a juniper tree 3 feet away and the buck about 22 feet from me, gave a lot of confidence to yours truly. Experience has taught me that the wild animal does not live that can catch a badly scared man.

When a boy in the mountains of Pennsylvania, it was one of my duties to go to the top of the mountain and escort the milch cows down after they had forgotten the supper hour. One evening when at the top of the mountain, I thought I saw a panther. I had no protection but speed and of that I had plenty to spare. As near as I can recall, I touched the ground at least two times on my way down the mountain; the friction of the atmosphere almost burnt holes in my shirt. Any wild animal trying to catch me on that trip would have been a fit subject for the animal home for the feeble-minded. Since that time my motto has been the same as was with the boys with whom I used to chum, "if we can't lick 'em, we can out run 'em."

To return to the deer story, after the buck had snorted several more times, he turned in the direction whence he came, followed by the doe and fawn; what he said to the doe and fawn, can be easily imagined. One will seldom meet with an experience of that kind in a lifetime. I now know just what happened. The doe and fawn stumbled onto me; the doe was uneasy and trying to get the fawn away; the buck, from a distance, saw something wrong and came, as he thought, to do battle with another buck, but seeing me, he waited. He hadn't the nerve to tackle the unknown, but he did have a sufficient amount to stand his ground until he could get his lady love to follow and of course, the fawn to follow her. The pine squirrels and yellow hammers next occupied my attention. The pine squirrels are like movie actresses and most of musicians. They are temperamental and fly into fitful passions at the least disturbances. If it is stormy, they scold and scold, but when the sun shines, they are cheerful and happy as the birds. As to the yellow hammers, there is an abundance of feed for them in that canyon, mostly pinons and acorns. I saw hundreds of birds, all excited and flying about as they do when discussing the problem of migration. I noted at least 250 robins, 200 yellow hammers and over 100 pinon birds, a few bobolinks and wrens.

I am not signing this article for fear some one should contradict me and I don't want to kill somebody, who might have a family to support until the depression is over.

Roll call was responded to by things we were thankful for, and several worthwhile things were mentioned. After regular business, Miss Kotz, the Red Cross Representative, gave a short and interesting talk on the annual Red Cross campaign. Also Miss Ryder, the county nurse, spoke about the Tuberculosis Seals and stated that the sale of these seals would start soon after Thanksgiving. The chairmen of the various special committees made the following announcements:

That the Amos 'n' Andy supper and program would be Nov. 25, at Community Hall, and the Bazaar Dec. 9, at El Cibola Hotel. It is hoped that both of these be well attended.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Don English, who had charge of the special Thanksgiving program. Then Mrs. Henderson most beautifully played "Etude de Concert," by Sternberg. The last number was a lovely vocal quartette—Mmes. ANCHO ITEMS

The Woman's Club met Saturday at the home of Mrs. S. J. Pruett with a full attendance of all members, except those out-of-town. Mrs. B. Hightower presided. The roll call, 'Thanksgiving Day', was responded to by the majority of the members and some interesting historical facts were brought out, as well as personal conceptions of the meaning of the observance of the day. The verse of the day was recited. Following the business session, the study leader, Mrs. Belknap, discussed the Tamarisk, or Salt Cedar, so commonly grown in the arid sections of the southwest. It was compared with the Tamarack of the northern states, which it resembles in delicacy of foliage only. The social hour was devoted to a Scavenger Race, won by Mrs. Hefren; grotesque figures, won by Mrs. Hightower and a drawing contest which resulted in a tie between these two ladies. Beautiful needlework prizes were awarded these two ladies. Refreshments of home-made hot tamales, bread and butter sandwiches, filled cookies, cocoa and coffee were served by the hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Straley were Ancho visitors last week.

Miss Crawford visited the county seat Saturday morning.

Do this for Your Child in TWO WEEKS

How to rid any boy or girl of sluggishness or constipation and build a big appetite. The trouble with children who will not eat is usual stasis. The symptoms are a tongue that's always coated, bad breath, poor color, dull eyes that are often a billous yellow. No appetite, no ambition—even for play. Hard to get to sleep, hard to wake in the morning.

There's an absolute remedy for this condition. It gives listless youngsters the appetite and energies of a young animal! They eat! They gain! They keep well! It's not the stomach, but the bowel condition that keeps children from eating. But the trouble is in the lower bowel—the colon. California syrup of figs is the only "medicine" that is needed to stimulate the colon muscles. The very next day, your child is eating better and feeling better. Keep on with the syrup of figs a few days and you will see amazing improvement in appetite, color, weight and spirits.

Any drug store has the real California syrup of figs, all bottled, with directions. Nature never made a nicer acting or nicer tasting laxative. (It is purely vegetable.) Remember California syrup of figs when you know a cold or any upset has clogged a child's bowels.

WARNING: Even when it's something to give children, some stores will try to substitute. Be sure the bottle says CALIFORNIA Syrup of Figs.

A pretty young woman finds herself in a taxicab in New York with a strange man who addresses her appealingly and speaks of "an awful shock." When he leaves her for a moment at a drug store she drives on, for she fears him. She stops at the Biltmore, still wondering who she is. Her memory is gone. From her expensive clothing she concludes she is married to a wealthy man. She meets a young woman who speaks of her desire to go to Reno for a divorce. It she can get the money. The woman vanishes with the nameless girl's purse and $200. An elderly woman, Mrs. Oscar Du Val, cordially greets the nameless girl, addressing her as "Doris," wife of Mrs. Du Val's son, Rocky. Rocky is abroad, and Doris, bewildered, is taken to the home of Mrs. Du Val and her sculptor husband, Oscar. Doris falls in love with Rocky's photograph, but cannot remember having married him.

CHAPTER III

"I think I'd like to go into New York," said Doris. She looked away from Mrs. Du Val as she spoke. Below her eyes was a long vista of formal terraces, dropping one below another and ending in a square pool. They were sitting on a grassy floored room set against the house, and walked on one side by a rock garden, and on the other by a lattice of climbing roses. Lunch was spread on a gaily tiled table. They were waiting for Oscar Du Val to come from his studios and eat with them.

Mrs. Du Val's fingers were busy as usual with crocheting. She did not look up, but Doris saw that she was frowning anxiously. "Rocky left orders that you are not to go into New York, you know."

This was rather surprising. Doris lifted her pretty brows. "Why not?" "You know Rocky's reasons better than I. You were with him, were you not, when he spoke to me over the telephone? You perhaps heard him make me give him my promise."

"What harm would it do for me to go into New York?" "Oh, Oscar Rocky," sighed Mrs. Du Val. "Perhaps our boy is a little of the jealous, neat case? What do you think? At the time he made me to promise I had the idea that you were a little—shall we say a little too gay in your habits? But since I know that this is not the case—I rather wonder at that boy Rocky."

"It's certainly rather unusual!" "You find it dull here, little Doris?" "Oh no. You've been so kind. So wonderful, only—" Doris hesitated. "I hate to bother you about it, but I did want to go to New York."

"Why do you want to go to New York?" Doris could think of no convincing answer. "I'd like to do some shopping," she said haltingly. Then she flushed with embarrassment. She had no money. With what could she shop? "What is it you need?" said Mrs. Du Val kindly.

Doris tried hard to think. "Oh some thread. Some red thread to mend a rip in my red dress, and some draining cotton." "But I can let you have those things, Doris. You know you have only to ask."

Doris felt ashamed and desperate. It was impossible for her to go to New York without money. To suppose she were not Mrs. Rocky Du Val seemed now simply marvellous. If she weren't then where was the real Mrs. Rocky Du Val? She would have turned up long ago, surely. She sat biting her lip and looking at Mrs. Du Val who kept busily on with her crocheting.

After a moment the French woman's rich voice began to flow like an organ; pulling out stops of joy and gloom, ecstasy and despair. "I know how is it when you are young, Doris. You want change. You want to see some of your friends. Perhaps the doctor?"

"Or to the dentist?" Doris said in relief. "Oh, yes. I ought to go to the dentist." "We ought all to go and see the dentist regularly," said Mrs. Du Val placidly. "We will go together into town. We will go to your dentist. We will go to the shops. We will buy some things which you need. Will that be good?"

Doris did not know what to answer. She was touched by the evident desire of her mother-in-law to please her. Mrs. Du Val was at once fussy and grand. This paradox made her lovable. But it did not make her a possible companion for Doris on her proposed tour of investigation into her own past. She would not let Doris have a minute alone. And at the same time her dignity of character, her overflowing kindness would make it difficult for Doris to practice the least kind of deceit.

"Where is your dentist?" There. She had already told one little about a dentist. Now she must make up something glib. "I haven't a good one," she said. "Do you know of one?" Could she possibly think of any reasonable excuse to get away from Mrs. Du Val in New York?

Mrs. Du Val was looking pleased. "Yes, I have a very good dentist. She lives and folded away her lace. "I will tell Oscar that we are going to New York this afternoon. He will not miss that. He is like a baby. Always

I must be here. We will leave immediately after lunch and return for dinner. Will that, do you think, give us enough time?"

Doris did not know. It did not seem to her that it would give any time at all, since it took two hours to get into New York, and two more to return. It was after twelve now. If they left at one they would get to New York at three. They would have to leave at five to be back by seven. Two hours was something, of course. If she could find an excuse to go to Tange's and see if she could identify herself through the hat, and dresses and suit she had bought, it would be plenty of time. But could she break away from Mrs. Du Val and get to Tange's?

In a few minutes Oscar had joined them and they all sat down at the little table. Mrs. Du Val told her husband that she was taking Doris into New York that afternoon. He put down his spoon at once. He looked at his wife angrily. "Why?" "Ah well. We have many things to do."

"That is nonsense," said Oscar. "What with all these motor accidents on the roads it isn't safe for you to drive into New York. The last time you went when you went to see Doris, God knows what I suffered!" He rose abruptly and sent the light chair behind him flying into the rock garden. His wife rose. "See what you have done now!" she scolded. "Come, sit down and finish your lunch. Of course we will go to New York." She smiled into Doris' agonized eyes. "She will be all right. He always acts so when I have to go to New York."

After lunch the big car came around in front of the door, and Oscar Du Val gloomily watched them drive away. From the important way that Mrs. Du Val switched herself into the limousine and settled her skirts over her round short legs, Doris knew that the French woman was secretly pleased with the outing. Perhaps married to a less exacting husband she would have loved gaiety and mixing with the world.

Oscar Du Val kissed them both as solemnly as if he never expected to see them again. "I feel rather guilty," said Doris. "Nonsense. It does him good. Let me advise you, Doris, about your husband. In big things, give in to him, yes."

"Yes?" repeated Doris somewhat doubtfully. She did not understand Mrs. Du Val's meaning. "Yes," said Mrs. Du Val firmly, "always give in to your husband in big things, in things that matter. Let him have his own way about his work. He knows best about that. Let him have his way about his home, yes. But in the little things—ah, Doris, in the little things the woman must be the ruler."

Doris said thoughtfully, "Most people seem to think you should do the other way around. Let him have his way about the things that do not matter, so you can influence him in the big things."

Mrs. Du Val's bright face was overcast like the quick wrapping of the sun in a cloud. "I know, I know it is the theory of the play 'What Every Woman Knows,' a theory that has done much harm, much harm, and made every empty-headed little woman think it is she who is the greater and the doer if it happens her husband has done something good. Never let yourself fall into that error, Doris. I know many women like that. Remember, whatever Rocky becomes it will be because he himself had it in him to become that thing."

It felt thrilled and happy. Surely this trip would set her doubts at rest. She must be Mrs. Rocky Du Val. Who else could she be?

As the limousine rolled pompously over the white pavements, her heart was beating more quickly. If she were to go to Tange's and find out that, after all, she was not Mrs. Rocky Du Val—then what would she say to the little French woman?

A silver of ice seemed to go down her spine. But that was nonsense. Nevertheless she must find out for certain. The problem that confronted her was how to leave Mrs. Du Val for a few moments. She had an idea that the French woman meant to stick to her very persistently. "Where do you want to go first, Doris?"

"I would like to go to a shop called Tange's. I bought a dress there that has come out at one of the seams, and I want to show it to them."

This was pure inspiration. Mrs. Du Val clucked sympathetically. "Such robbery. A dress in an expensive shop like Tange's coming out at the seams. Did it not fit you then? Oh yes—yes. We must certainly speak to them. Did you bring the dress with you?"

"No—I didn't think—" "Oh, dear, oh dear. We should have the dress. You remember perhaps the clerk that waited on you. I will give her a talking to. But we must not excite you at such a time," she said with an air of tenderness.

What mysterious ailment was she supposed to have? She saw genuine concern in Mrs. Du Val's small brown eyes. "I feel very well," she said. "Shall we go first to the dentist?"

"Suppose we stop by Tange's and I just run in for a moment while you wait in the car. I'm sure when I tell them about the dress, they'll agree to fix it, and tomorrow I can send it in to them."

"No, no," said Mrs. Du Val, "we will go together. There is plenty of time." Doris felt desperate. Panic was clutching her heart. She wanted more than anything else to prove that she was Mrs. Rocky Du Val. But she had to go in that store alone. She determined on new tactics. "I have a confession to make," she said. "I want you to trust me. You said a little while ago that you did. I have merely made up this silly story of a dress torn at the seams, because I wish to run into Tange's store. I—I can't tell you my business. But I promise you I'll only be gone a minute or two." Mrs. Du Val looked slightly ruffled. Her astonishment was slowly yielding to a faint amusement. "I know. It is some kind of a surprise." Her small eyes wrinkled with fun at the corners. "You want to get away for a moment and I am too much the bad old mother-in-law to let you? Is that it?"

"Oh no. Of course not. You've been darling to me." Mrs. Du Val patted her hand. "All right. You go. I walk outside in the car. But not over ten minutes, not a minute more."

"No, no. Not over ten minutes." "And do not make up any more stories to tell me. Next time I will be angry."

Doris was very excited as Louis slowed the car in front of the quiet front of Tange's. She slid past the doorman hastily, opening the heavy door herself.

Before she could formulate any plan of action a girl came from behind a closed door and came toward her. Then Doris saw that she was recognized. The girl's mouth opened, her brows drew together in a horrified frown. She seemed to scream as if with terror. But instead she slapped a highly manicured hand over her sagging lips.

"Miss—I mean Mrs.—Val—" Then she stopped as if paralyzed. "You know me," gasped Doris. "Oh you poor kid! Oh! I'll help you. Get in here. Come quick!" Doris' amusement deepened. The girl had seized her by the arm and was dragging her across the room as she spoke.

"But listen—" protested Doris. "There's no time." "But why should I—" "For G—d's sake, don't be a fool. Someone's coming!" In spite of herself the girl's terror communicated itself to Doris. The girl was so frightened that she heard nothing Doris said. Her own words came out in short breaths. "I'll help you. I'll help you. Get in here."

PERIOD OF FORTY DAYS HAS POINT IN HOLY WRITING

In the New Testament the miraculous 40-day quarantines of Moses and Elijah are repeated in the fast of the Saviour, and this still survives in the 40-day period of Lent. St. Louis established in France a period of 40 days during which no man could avenge an injury. Under William the Conqueror no man was permitted to remain in England over 40 days unless he was enrolled in some taxable unit.

In Magna Charta it is specifically provided that a widow is entitled to remain in the house of her dead husband for 40 days. This period is known in law as "the widow's quarantine," and it gives a breathing spell during which the widow's dowry may be agreed on.

A man who held land in England under a knight's grant was bound to respond to the king's call and be prepared "well and fittingly arrayed for war" to serve 40 days.

The very word "quarantine" comes from the Latin term for 40. In modern law we have quarantine periods which are not always 40. Children who have been exposed to contagious diseases are quarantined for different periods, depending on the "period of incubation" of the germs involved.

In the Arabian Nights tale of "The Forty Thieves" it was not meant that the gang of highwaymen necessarily had just that number. Forty is regarded by the orientals as a "round number"; it might actually mean more or less than 40 in a particular instance. So, if a senator should charge that Wall Street is a den of "forty thieves," it would not be necessary for him to prove that they numbered precisely 40 in order to make his case out.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Why Children Need a Liquid Laxative

The temporary relief children get from some synthetic, habit-forming cathartic may cause bowel strain, and even set-up irritation in the kidneys. A properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement. There is no discomfort at the time and no weakness after. You don't have to give the child "a double dose" a day or two later.

Can constipation be corrected in children? "Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" say many mothers who have followed this sensible medical advice: 1. Select a good liquid laxative. 2. Give the dose you find suited to the system. 3. Gradually reduce the dose until the bowels are moving regularly without aid.

An approved liquid laxative (one that is widely used for children) is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. The mild laxative action of this excellent preparation is the best form of help for children—and grown-ups, too. The dose can be regulated for any age or need.

Ease Pain, Headache in Few Minutes

1. PEG, I'M FRANTIC, THIS WORK MUST BE DONE—AND I'VE A SPLITTING HEADACHE. DON'T WORRY, GET SOME REAL BAYER ASPIRIN AND YOUR HEADACHE WILL BE GONE BEFORE YOU KNOW IT...

2. LATER. LOOK WHAT I'VE DONE, PEG... BAYER ASPIRIN STOPPED MY AWFUL HEADACHE IN A JIFFY... NEVER FELT BETTER! I KNEW IT WOULD! BAYER ASPIRIN IS THE QUICKEST SAFE RELIEF FROM PAIN KNOWN...

For Quick Relief Say BAYER Aspirin—When You Buy

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headaches, rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia... the fastest safe relief, it is said, yet discovered. Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which a Bayer Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking it. The illustration of the glass, here, tells the story. A Bayer Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And thus is ready to go to work almost instantly.

WHY BAYER ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST. Drop a Bayer Tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches bottom, it has started to disintegrate. What it does in this glass it does in your stomach. Hence its fast action.

Old-Timer Encounters Bad Roads and Road Hogs

To those persons who seem to think that the days of thrills, wildness and hair-raising experiences ended with the killing of Billy the Kid or the trapping of Geronimo, let us assure you that you are wrong — dead wrong. Lincoln County still furnishes as many thrills, and as much (or more) danger of sudden death as it ever did. If you are skeptical, just try a trip over our so-called "Highway" from Carrizozo to Tularosa.

But a word of caution before you start out: If your heart is weak, don't try it. I would also suggest that you leave your loved ones at home, but be certain to kiss them all goodbye. (You might never come back.) When you have made your will, and have seen your family doctor to make certain your heart is functioning properly, you are about ready to start. There is one important thing you have so far omitted, and that is life insurance. Don't neglect that, and you should also insure your car — for all it's worth. Now you're ready for the most hair-raising, blood-curdling, nerve-wracking experience of your life, and one that you'll never forget.

Set your speedometer at Zero. Yea, verily, brother — the zero hour has arrived, and you'll realize the fact before you've gone six miles. Next, cross your fingers, and if you have a rabbit's foot or a couple of horseshoes, or maybe a four-leafed clover handy, take any or all of them with you for luck. You'll need it — if you come through alive. If a black cat should happen to cross the road ahead of you, or you should pass a cross-eyed nigger, I'd advise you to turn back. You wouldn't have a chance. Now if you're all set, step on the starter and say your prayers. You're off! (Anybody is who'll risk such a trip.)

I will skip over some of the sights to be seen along the road. I really should mention them because you won't see them. You'll be so busy hunting the road and trying to keep from being killed that you certainly ain't goin' to have no time for such childish things as scenery. If you should arrive at Tularosa alive, have your stretcher-bearers carry you to the nearest garage where you will be presented with a medal.

I was over that road last Sunday, but I didn't get back with the medal to which I was rightfully entitled. I started to limp over and ask the garage man for it, but I saw a special officer from the State Insane Asylum squinting at me kind of thoughtfully, so I went around through the Apache Indian Reservation and came back to Carrizozo.

Fellow voters of Lincoln county, that road really should be fenced and kept as it is for future generations to marvel — 'at. And I'll bet anybody six bits they'll do some marveling. Yea, sir, that road really should be kept as it is — just a curiosity — along with flat arrow points, stone hatchets, etc. The fellow

Notice of Hearing of Final Report and Account

In the Probate Court of Lincoln County, State of New Mexico
In the Matter of the Estate of Henry Silva, Deceased)
No. 929

TO: Rebecca Artiaga Silva, Francis Silva Peraita, Katie Silva Lealle, Henry Silva, Jr., G. F. Silva, Alfredo Vidal Silva, Susana Silva, Epifanio Tranquillino Silva, Doroteo William Silva, Celedonio Liborio Silva, Rebecca Adelaida Silva, Lorenzo Margarito Silva, and Elmerdo Chavez, Guardian ad litem of the Minor heirs of said decedent, and to all unknown heirs of the said decedent, and to all unknown persons claiming any lien upon, or right, title, or interest, in or to, the estate of the said decedent, and to whom it may concern:

You, and each of you are hereby notified, and notice is hereby given, that Rebecca A. Silva, Administratrix of the Estate of Henry Silva, deceased, has filed in the above entitled Court her final report and account as such Administratrix, and the Court has appointed Thursday, the 4th day of January, 1934, at the hour of 10 o'clock A. M., as the hour and day for hearing of objections, if any there be, to the approval and settlement of said final report and account, and the discharge of the said Rebecca A. Silva as such Administratrix, and at the hour on the day named, the Probate Court will proceed to determine the heirship of said decedent, the ownership of his said estate, and the interest of each, respective claimant thereto and therein and the persons entitled to the distribution thereof.

The name and postoffice address of the attorney for the Administratrix is E. M. Barber, Carrizozo, New Mexico. Witness, the Honorable Manuel Corona, Judge of said Court, and the seal thereof, this 9th day of November, 1933.

responsible for the upkeep of that road should be kept in office. He should be made the official road-wrecker of the state and he should be allowed to hold his office until some peeved citizen shoots him in self-defense.

Of all the rotten, sorry, ill-kept, sorry excuses of a road I ever saw, that miserable pretense of a highway is the worst, and it looks to me like it's getting worse every time some amateur road fixer scrapes it. It was narrow to start with, but when some hombre gets done scratching out the ditch on either side and pulling up dirt into mountains where some unwary tourist can hook a wheel in it and land on the S. P. railroad track. It seems to be about two feet narrower than when it was started. And those road scrapers go away and leave those mountains scraped for days at a time to show they have been at work. They need proof, and they leave miles of it for luckless drivers to swear at.

And those toy bridges along the so-called road! And those road signs — almost everytime you turn your head, you see one staring you in the face that says "Winding Road." We could have saved money on those blasted signs, because any fool would know he was on a winding road. He would know that before he had gone six miles. Other signs read "Narrow Road." Huh! That ain't news, either. We found that out before they told us.

But we must not overlook those bridges. I'll not try to describe them. The editor of this paper won't print profanity, now, — so what's the use of trying.

I passed a fellow on one of those dinky bridges last Sunday. I wouldn't have done it, but he was one of them fast-drivin' hombres who seem to shut their eyes instead of slowing down. I had to swallow seven times before I got my heart back where it belonged.

Go down and take a look at our national disgrace and remember it at the next election. If that confounded road ain't widened out until a man can pass another car instead of running square through it or crawling under it, dog-gone my hide if I ain't goin' to vote some other kind of a ticket at the next election. That goes from the governor down, too, an' I don't mean maybe, I'd even vote for a Socialist—if he'd put some of the money he wastes on the road so I could get over it without gettin' a knot tied in my tail light.

Some hombre had better tell Hoekenhull to send somebody down here to fix that blamed road. And tell him not to select road fixers who can't do anything but swing a few measly votes on election day. Tell him to send somebody who can swing a pick an' shovel, or run a grader. Yours in 'see'-preme disgust, An Old-Timer.

Bronchial Troubles Need Creomulsion

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified crocote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, crocote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to crocote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the crocote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, and attacks the seat of the trouble.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Your own druggist is authorized to refund your money on the spot if your cough or cold is not relieved by Creomulsion. (adv.)

Text: "Offer unto God thanksgiving."—Psalm, 114.

GRATITUDE for favors and blessings received is the warrant for blessings and favors yet to come.

It is to have a thankless child!

Failure to acknowledge gifts and blessings conferred not only chills the heart of the benefactor, but works to the hurt of the beneficiary.

To be thankful for favors big or little is a mark of refinement and an evidence of good breeding.

We have often noted that those who are the quickest to respond to a favor conferred are those who have the finest feelings.

An expression of cordial and deep appreciation is like oil that lubricates the machinery of life.

Like the gift of mercy, "It blesses him who gives and him who takes." To remember daily the gifts that God bestows upon us serves to make us more conscious of the real values of life.

The mere expression in prayer of gratitude deepens in us not only our sense of dependence upon God, but gives us a finer sense of our own place of usefulness in the scheme of life.

When a nation is called, as we are, to recognize a day of thanksgiving, it serves to emphasize our solidarity and the richness of our common heritage, and at the same time brings vividly before us our common dependence upon him who is the giver of every good and perfect gift.

It was the Roman Emperor Constantine who said to the sculptor who was carving his figure, "I wish you to carve the figure kneeling, in the attitude of prayer, for it was from that posture I rose to greatness." As individuals or as a people we never have a truer consciousness of our corporate life and our intimate interrelationships than when we kneel to acknowledge the gifts and blessings that we commonly receive.

Thus, Thanksgiving day, rightly interpreted, places fresh emphasis not only upon the source of all our blessings, but compels us to recognize the closeness of the tie that binds us together in a great fellowship.

It is the family day of the nation. It reminds us that we are bound together "for better or worse, for richer or poorer," and that what affects one section for good or ill affects all.

It is a demonstrable fact that nothing brings us closer together in a great fellowship than a spirit of thankfulness.

When we are over-self-confident and self-assured; when, in the language of the ancient Word, we declare, "My power and the might of mine hand hath gotten me this wealth," we lose our sense of interdependence one with another and the deeper consciousness of our common dependence upon God.

How frequently in households where the patrimony is dispensed to the children do we find that it creates cleavages and the loss of mutual respect and affection.

Again, how frequently in households where adversity and misfortunes have come do we discover the knitting of the ties of kinship and the evidence of deepened affection.

America on this Thanksgiving day must acknowledge with gratitude another year of unprecedented blessings.

Widely scattered as our peoples are, diverse as are their interests, they are the sharers of a common bounty. Surely at such a time and under such conditions it is fitting that we should unite to "offer unto God thanksgiving."

The very act of corporate thankfulness tends to break down that which all too frequently divides us into groups and classes; it effaces distinctions and makes of the nation itself one great family.

Thus the spirit of thankfulness becomes indispensable to our security, our peace and prosperity. We may worship at different altars, we may express our devotions in ways familiar to us, we may have fellowships that have grown dear and helpful to us, but on our national Thanksgiving day we bow as one people before the "Giver of every good and perfect gift" and with humility recognize his bounty and our common dependence upon his goodness.

"We have too many unintelligent teachers in America," Dr. George Willard-Frasler, president of the Colorado State Teachers College, told teachers attending the New Mexico Educational Association convention in Albuquerque. Intelligence, he said, is a primary requisite for the teacher who teaches children character. His subject was "The Education of the Spirit."

The New York auditing firm of Haskins and Sells have started work on the New Mexico Highway Department audit. Gov. A. W. Hockenbush is anxious to establish the exact financial status of the department, its receipts, sources of income, the total amount of its debts, which is admittedly $408,000, and its operating costs. From this information he hopes to work out a plan to put the department on a cash basis.

The Gallup strike zone is gradually settling back to its prior status, with approximately 200 pickets in line at the north city limits under close watch of National Guardsmen armed with Micky rifles. A total of 320 miners went to work recently in three strikes-affected mines and the two mines operating under agreements with the strikers reported normal crews to bring the total well over 450 men at work.

Roy Wayland, Arizona manager of the Federal Home Loan Corporation, has announced, "We will put upwards of $1,000,000 into Arizona during November and December. Putting of this money into Arizona during the next two months," he said, "will be done through refinancing of existing mortgages for a long period. This will relieve the present mortgages, put more money into circulation, and make more ready cash for investments."

Efforts are being made to liquidate Arizona's treasury deficit of more than $2,500,000 by sale of tax anticipation bonds. State Treasurer William Cox disclosed recently. Proceeds to tax anticipation bonds would be used to pay off registered state warrants which now are six months or more delayed in redemption, it was explained. Sales tax receipts and other money expected from the emergency revenue measures would be used to retire the tax bonds.

The Arizona Bankers' Association closed its annual convention in Phoenix with the election of J. B. Crowell of Douglas as president. He succeeds W. C. Weiss, Phoenix.

Gov. A. W. Hockenbush of New Mexico made two appointments to state boards recently. Hiram A. Dow, Roswell attorney, was named to the board of the state hospital for insane at Las Vegas, succeeding Judge George Hay, who resigned recently. Max Nordhaus of Albuquerque was appointed to the State Public Health Board, succeeding Mrs. Nordhaus.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Lesson for November 26 PAUL IN CORINTH

LESSON TEXT—Acts, 18:1-17:1-Cor. 1:1-2:8.

GOLDEN TEXT—For I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified. I Cor. 2:2.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Care for His People.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Work with Others.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Unity in Christ.

The establishment of the church at Corinth is an example of missionary endeavor for all ages. The method employed and the message delivered which resulted in success then will result in success now.

1. The True Missionary Method (Acts 18:1-9).

Paul came to Corinth a stranger in a strange city. His method of gaining a foothold was,

1. Finding a home (v. 2). This he found with Aquila and Priscilla who had recently been expelled from Rome. Being of the same nationality, there was a natural affinity with them.

2. Telling for daily bread (v. 3). Paul was of the same craft as his host. Every Jewish child was taught some trade by means of which he could gain his livelihood, should occasion require. Missionaries should not be above honest toil.

3. Preaching in the Synagogue at Corinth (Acts 18:4-8).

1. Compelled to toil for a living (v. 4). Though compelled to toil for a living, he did not lose sight of his main work. He reasoned in the synagogue every sabbath, persuading the Jews and the Greeks.

2. His activity increased through the coming of Silas and Timothy (v. 5). This was caused by, a. Favorable report from the church at Thessalonica. This report put new vigor into his labors.

b. They brought pecuniary gifts from the Macedonian church (Phil. 4:15; II Cor. 11:9). Being now free from the necessity of toiling for a living, he could devote more time and energy to preaching the gospel.

c. Silas and Timothy became helpers to Paul in the work.

3. Increased opposition (v. 6). Paul's increased activity met with increasing opposition.

4. Paul announces his purpose to turn to the Gentiles (v. 6). This was necessitated because of the opposition and blasphemy of the Jews.

5. Paul in the house of Justus (vv. 7, 8). He remained sufficiently near those whose hearts God had touched that they could easily find him. His success here was such that Crispus, the chief ruler of the synagogue, was converted. Paul departed from his usual custom and baptized Crispus.

6. Paul's Vision (Acts 19:9-11).

This vision was for the purpose of giving encouragement to Paul at this time. His experiences in Europe were most trying.

1. "Be not afraid" (v. 9). The one who is doing the will of the Lord need not be afraid.

2. "Speak, and hold not thy peace" (v. 9). The one who has heard the voice of God cannot refrain from speaking.

3. "I am with thee" (v. 10). All who faithfully carry out the divine commission can be assured of the divine presence.

4. "No man shall set on thee to hurt thee" (v. 10). No harm can come to the Lord's servant until his work is done.

5. "I have much people in this city" (v. 10). The one who goes forth with the divine message can be assured that his ministry cannot fail.

6. Party Spirit in the Corinthian Church (I Cor. 1:10-13).

In this church rival factions were contending against each other. Some were for Paul, some for Apollos, some for Peter, and some for Christ. The cause of this threatened division was failure to see the true headship of the church. Christ is the one and only Head, and the members composing his body cannot be divided. Membership and interest all center in Christ. By one Spirit all were baptized into the one body (I Cor. 12:13). Sectarianism is an evil to be deplored. The factious spirit in the church mars its testimony and retards its growth. Those who understand the oneness in Christ will be joined together in the same mind.

7. The One Supreme Message of the True Preacher (I Cor. 2:1-8).

It is Jesus Christ and him crucified. Prejudice and human limitations prevent men from seeing eye to eye. Christian unity is possible only as the members of his body grow up into Christ.

Christ Uses All

It is amazing what use Jesus makes of frail mediums. None of the Twelve appears to have been a man of outstanding position until Jesus took them and made them men of might and vision. That is what is continually happening.

No Hanging Back

You must cast yourself on God's gospel, with all your weight, without hanging back, without any doubt, without even the shadow of a suspicion that it will give.—Alexander MacLaren.

On the Funny Side

LACKED ROMANCE

Dolly—Wasn't it awful Grace got beyond her depth and—

Daisy—Yes—yes!

Dolly—And was brought to shore by a fat man with a wife and nine children!—Brooklyn Eagle.

Ingenious Norah

There was a crash in the kitchen. The mistress found the maid and little Margaret gazing at something on the floor.

"Oh, mother," exclaimed the child, "just see the lovely jig-saw puzzle Norah has made out of one of the new plates!"

Preparedness

Shoe Shop Proprietor—Here comes a couple of lady customers.

Assistant—Shall I wait on them?

Proprietor—No, I'll wait on them. You get ready to stretch some shoes.

Too Cheap

Casey—All I want is a dollar!

Kelly—Oh, if that's all you want, I wouldn't trust you—you lack ambition.—Brooklyn Eagle.

NAMING THE BABY

Jane, secretary to an attorney, went to call on a dear friend, Mrs. S., and her new-born daughter. She was met at the door by little William, full of news about the new sister.

"Well, what have you named her?" asked Jane.

Suddenly an aggrieved expression overspread his happy face, and almost in tears he replied:

"Oh I wanted to name her Spot, but muvver wouldn't."—Indianapolis News.

KNEW THOSE SMACKS

"Have you seen Jack's flying smack?"

"No, but it must be just too sweet for anything—judging from other smacks of Jack's."

Sally: "Really? Tell me about it, Helen." Helen: "Well, as I use the car most of the time these days and actually buy the oil and gas, Dick thought it a good plan to turn the car budget over to me entirely." Sally: "How does that give you extra money?" Helen: "I have more time than Dick and have learned some surprising things about the cost of car operation. Dick thought all gas and oil sold at approximately the same price were of equal value. When the motor broke down, he considered it just hard luck and paid the repair bill." Sally: "Isn't it?" Helen: "No! It is poor motor protection. More than half the entire motor wear occurs during the few minutes of starting when the motor is cold. Only one brand of oil—Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil—penetrates the metal so that a portion of it, nearly a quart, stays up in your motor, greatly reducing the wear. So checking back on repair bills that were paid before I changed to Conoco, we've saved a lot of money this last year." Sally: "What about gasoline?" Helen: "To me that choice depended on quick starting—Dick used to choke the car until he was wild. It wasted so much gasoline in cold weather—ran the battery down and the nerves, too. With Conoco Bronze, the motor starts at the first turn and has power galore—goes further on each gallon and is anti-knock also. So you see how I did it?" Sally: "I certainly do, Helen—and I think you're a very clever girl!"

Thanksgiving Day is coming. Thanksgiving Day is coming soon. We all like Thanksgiving Day. It is a happy day for boys and girls. We want it to come soon. We are going to have a Thanksgiving program. We are going to have it at the high school Wednesday, Nov. 29 at 7:30 p. m. Admission, 10 and 25c. We hope everybody will come. We want to buy some nice things for our school. Betty has a baby brother. He has no name now. He is too little to have a name.

We made a turkey. His name is Dan. He is a big turkey. He says—Gobble! Gobble! Wanda's birthday is coming soon. She will be 6 years old. We had a party for Vernon. He went to Tucumcari. We liked Vernon very much. We did not like to have him go away. We went to the high school Monday and gave our Safety First program there. The big boys and girls liked it. We made a wigwag. We made it so that we can play Indians. We like to play that we are Indians.

Birthday Party

Community Christmas Tree

At the last P. T. A. meeting the question about a Christmas Tree was brought up. After much favorable discussion the question was put to a vote and passed by a large majority. A special committee was appointed by Mrs. C. W. Young, as follows: Mrs. F. L. Boughner, chairman, Mmes. Nellie Branum and A. C. Hines, assistants. This committee held a meeting and the following is its decision: On Friday, Dec. 22, at 7:30 p. m., there will be two Christmas trees; one in Navarro's Hall on the east side, the other in the High School Auditorium. Interesting programs will be given at both places, where Santa will come with his pack of toys and candy.

The committee is asking the citizens of Carrizozo to help in making this Christmas a merry one for every child in this community. When you see the donation boxes in the local business houses, don't forget the worthy cause for which the money will be spent. Drop in your offering or if the box is too small for your generous donation, give it to the merchant, who will gladly hand it to the committee. Old toys will be re-conditioned by the Manual Arts boys and made to look like new. The girls in the Home Economics class will also do their part in that work. Remember that the dolls must be dressed. Anyone having old toys to contribute or small pieces of dress materials, please send to the Home Economics room in the High School building.
