OUT-OF-THE-ORDINARY

The following story comes from one of our old-timers, who lives in the mountains near Nogala: When a young man, he called to see the girl of his dreams one evening, at which time it happened that the mother of the young lady was churning and the little 5-year old brother was playing with a kitten.

One night in northern Canada, Knute Munsen was driving his sledge team over a lonely waste of snow and ice.

Here is a letter from an Oklahoma man who moved to Texas and wrote back to an old friend: "Well, since I sold the old farm in Arkansas, I have prospered.

Believe It or Not

Just because Mrs. Geo. Dingwall and Mrs. Tiffany were running around for 1-oz. bottles, doesn't mean they had a good purpose ahead.

Just because Mrs. Pete Johnson, and Mrs. C. A. Snow were looking for old sheets, washing, ironing and tearing them into bandages one afternoon, doesn't mean that they didn't have an object in view.

Just because Mr. Verl Groce and his typing squad were running around in circles, doesn't mean they can't put out the work for the First Aid Book.

Just because Mrs. Ola Jones is swamped with many things to do, doesn't mean that she can't find funds for mercurochrome for the one room school.

Basketball Game

At Community Hall, Saturday, Dec. 16, 1933. Carrizozo High School vs. Capitan High School Boys. Curtain Raiser by Boys of the 8th grade.

Dates to Remember--

"COHENS and KELLYS in CANADA" and Two Comedies on the 23rd. "BEST of ENEMIES," with Marion Nixon & Buddy Rogers and Two Comedies on the 30th.

The "REVELERS" will open the picture shows each night with a short concert. A committee from the schools will assist at the picture show, and dances that will follow.

Immediately after the picture shows the audience will adjourn to the Community Hall for Christmas and New Year's Dances.

The entire net proceeds of dances, and a percentage of the picture shows will go to the Community Hall Fund.

Road Matters

Incoming people from below Carrizozo report that the stretch of bad, sandy road between Oscura and Three Rivers which has caused such comment from our citizens, and which was the subject of an editorial four weeks ago.

We can only get our just dues in this or any other locality by exposing the same and making our wants known.

You only get results when you go after them and visitors from other parts need have no fear of traveling the road between here and Three Rivers in safety.

ATTENTION, STARS!

There will be a special meeting of Comet Chapter No. 29 at Masonic Temple, Wednesday evening, Dec. 20.

Mary O. McCammon, W. M., Maude L. Blaney, Secretary.

Transient Relief.

The following, from the State Headquarters for Transient Relief, is self-explanatory:

With the transient relief program which is now in effect in New Mexico, there is no longer any need for private citizens and business men to give aid to transients.

Women's Missionary Society of the M. E. Church met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. T. A. Spencer. It being a regular meeting, matters of a business nature of interest to the society, occupied the time.

Mrs. R.E. Lemon was a White Oaks visitor yesterday, being the guest of her sister, Mrs. Ed Queen.

FORT STANTON NEWS

Carl Mammers, who for two years has been employed in the property office in the capacity of material checker, has tendered his resignation and is leaving Friday for Arizona where he has accepted a position as mining engineer.

Martin Repka, famous for his skill in the art of violin making, passed away last week after a long period of illness.

At an informal gathering sponsored by Mrs. Lambert, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hebert, on Dec. 4, in the Community House, the elite of Fort Stanton society rubbed elbows and played bridge.

Mrs. Blanche Rothrock

At her home in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Monday morning, Mrs. Blanche Rothrock, sister to Mrs. R. E. Blaney, passed away after an illness of several months.

Clint Brannum left for Albuquerque last Saturday night and returned Sunday night, accompanied by Mrs. Brannum, who had been a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Gere for a week.

Pat Murphy of the White & Murphy ranch near White Oaks, was in town this Thursday, and while here, was a pleasant caller at this office.

Their Paradise

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart

Just a Little Smile

GOOD IDEA

The club bore had just returned from a trip to India, and insisted upon describing the rope trick.

Man of Experience

"That's the second time today I've seen that man following that woman in another car, yelling at her all the time."

Foxy Youth Mother—Who's the brightest boy in your class, Tommy?

Hojack—What do you do with your dull old razor blades?

THE DIFFICULTY

The man shook his head sadly. "See that plot of land over there?" he said to his companion.

Exercise of a Kind They were discussing the spoiled son of a mutual friend.

ONE OF THEM, SURELY

"Brown has offered to sell his automobile at a low figure."

No, Not as a Rule "You use a lot of yardsticks," said the principal to the teacher.

Washington—History shows that many years are required for the accomplishment of a transition in politics.

Because things move so slowly in political transitions, I believe we are generally prone to dismiss each little incident as without particular significance.

There is developing, according to the best political judgment available in Washington, a definite trend among party men and women toward affiliation with one party or the other solely on the basis of economic views.

The contributions reached by many of these observers is that perhaps an early in the national campaign of 1933 there will be shifts from Republican rolls to Democratic rolls, and shifts of others from Democratic rolls to Republican rolls.

That brings me to the present situation (the circumstance that has come over the question of what sort of money we shall have).

When I said there would be partisans leaving their old political haunts to ally themselves with what had been their opposition party, I cannot include such men as Alfred E. Smith.

Observers here contend that it is quite possible that the La Follette group of Wisconsin and its stepchildren in other states and the Norris faction in Nebraska with its kindred, the Brookhart group in Iowa and the Johnson Republicans of California.

It would seem to be a situation, therefore, in accordance with the way seasoned observers size it up, namely, that the Republican party eventually will be the completely conservative party and the Democrats will carry the banner of the liberal thought of the country.

Pursuing this reasoning further, it is made to appear that eventually we may see the party divisions formulated sharply in accordance with the type of commerce and industry in each section of the country.

There can be no honest doubt that "chiseling," as Mr. Roosevelt described it, is taking place in almost every community to a greater or less extent.

So, as I see the problem, perhaps General Johnson is right in demanding that business be policed.

Then, there is another phase of the problem, a difficulty as applicable to prohibition as it is to General Johnson's plan.

Washington newspaper correspondents who devote their time to writing of financial affairs

The battle lasted, as a matter of fact, only three days before the acting secretary called the correspondents to his office to invite them to "agree" to a modification of his gag rule.

The Cabin Boy's Night Before

by Elizabeth Strother

WHILE the they forecast of the cabin boy, the winter weather was having its way with the little boy.

"We're Goin' to Have a Bit of Christmas Around Here!"

teen years old, and desperately homesick. He tried not to think of his small home far away, his mother probably trimming a tree for the younger children.

"The men growled a little, but gathered up their traps. Willie gave one great gulp and nearly let a tear fall.

the cook, as each man stilled over a tin, a pocket-knife, a belt, or large gaudy handkerchief.

The last to poke a finger in was Willie (the cabin boy) who was feeling around inside there he had to remember he was fourteen years old and was expected to act like a man.

This was more than Willie could stand. He cried right there before them all, and didn't mind a bit.

"Thank you, thank you, and Merry Christmas," he gulped. And Captain Arqua, standing the doorway said, "Same to ye all, boys. Many of 'em!"

"Silent Night"

OF ALL the Christmas carols the Christian world will sing the best known and undoubtedly the best loved is that one which we know in English as "Silent Night, Holy Night."

Not until 1834 was any inquiry made into the origin of the Christmas song, which was popularly attributed to Michael Haydn.

The Teutonic race has given to the observance of the great Christian festival as we know it the tree (also celebrated in a German Christmas song, "O Tannenbaum"), the legend of Kris Kringle and many other charming legends.

The Surest Way

We still believe that the surest way out of our present difficulties is to leave people alone to run their own businesses, for we believe that the man at the helm understands his own business and its problems best, and is better equipped to meet whatever problems come.

The line should be drawn at the point where one business may begin to interfere with the rights of another. At that point the government should step in and prevent imposition upon the innocent party. This is the extent to which government has any business interfering in the affairs of the people who compose that government.

The sooner we require our government to get out of the meddling business, and to attend strictly to the business of governing, the sooner we shall begin to emerge from our present difficulties.

Government meddling at the best is tremendously expensive, and the cost must be borne by citizens who comprise that government. That means more taxes, and taxes are to a big extent stifling our people.—Unionville, Mo., Republican.

NEW FORD V-8 for 1934

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The New Ford V-8 for 1934 is now on display at the showrooms of Ford dealers. Surpassing even the great Ford of 1933 in economy, beauty and comfort, it is truly the car of this modern age—the culmination of thirty years Ford progress. It combines the proved performance of the V-8 cylinder engine with two important new features—Dual Carburetion and perfected Clear-vision Ventilation. See this car today and drive it at the first opportunity.

OUTSTANDING IMPROVEMENTS IN THE NEW FORD V-8

BETTER PERFORMANCE. Greater power, new speed, quicker acceleration, smoother performance, more miles per gallon especially at higher speeds, and quicker starting in cold weather—all these result from the new dual carburetor and dual intake manifold. New water-line thermostats enable the engine to warm up more quickly and to maintain an efficient operating temperature. Added engine refinements reduce oil consumption, further improve operating economy and reduce maintenance costs.

NEW VENTILATION SYSTEM permits clear vision, prevents drafts and provides desired amount of fresh air in any weather. Individual control for front and rear side windows. When ventilation is desired the window glass is raised to the top. Then the handle is given an additional half-turn. This slides the glass back horizontally to form a narrow slot. Through this slot air is drawn out by the forward motion of the car. This simple ventilation system maintains draft-free circulation, insures passenger comfort, prevents fogging windshield in cold or stormy weather. Both windshield and cowl ventilator can be opened to supply additional air needed for comfortable warm-weather driving.

DISTINCTIVE NEW APPEARANCE enhanced by the newly designed chromium-plated radiator shell and grille, new hood louvres, new hub caps. Interiors are attractive, with new tufted upholstery, new mouldings, new cove-type headlining, new instrument panel, new arm rests, new hardware. Swivel-type sun visors in De Luxe bodies prevent glare from front or side.

FENDERS IN COLOR. On De Luxe cars fenders are in color to harmonize with body colors—wheel colors optional. New enamel finish on all bodies and fenders has greater wearing quality and more enduring luster.

GREATER RIDING COMFORT results from increased spring flexibility. The spring leaves are newly designed for quieter and easier action. Shock absorbers are improved. Seat cushions are deeper, with new, softer springs. New type, individual bucket seats provide increased comfort for front-seat passengers in the Tudor Sedan. Adding to comfort is the new driving ease of the 15-to-1 steering gear ratio.

PRICES REMAIN LOW—Tudor Sedan, $535. Coupe, $515. Fordor Sedan, $585. De Luxe Tudor, $575. De Luxe Fordor, $625. De Luxe Coupe (5 windows), $555. De Luxe Coupe (3 windows), $555. De Luxe Roadster, $525. De Luxe Phaeton, $550. Cabriolet, $590. Victoria, $610. (All prices f. o. b. Detroit.)

ADDS ONE MORE DIVORCE QUIRK

Decision Made by Referee May Be Good Law, But—

The dowager duchess of Manchester left her residuary estate to her son, the present duke, and his wife—$1,950,000 in trust with an annual income of $188,000.

The referee, attempting to interpret British law, holds that the rights of the former duchess ended with her divorce.

So the dowager duchess is in the legal picture as bestowing half benefits in an estate of nearly two millions, not on the "wife," the mother of her grandchildren, whom she knew, but on some unknown woman whom the duke might later marry.

Apparently the mother had some idea of the marital instability of her ducal son, for she granted the use and enjoyment of a lot of family jewels to "the wife for the time being" of the duke during her marriage with my son.

SYNOPSIS

A pretty young woman finds herself in a taxicab in New York with a strange man who addresses her as "Rocky" and speaks of "an awful shock." He leaves her for a moment, and she drives on, for she fears him.

Doris breathed deeply. Was all this really to end in the police court? His mocking smile came again: "She registers terror!" he said unpleasantly.

"Very good, Lifelike. Go to the head of the class." He sat down beside her. "Come on, Baby, come clean! What's the story?"

"I do care—Oh please believe me, I feel terribly about her—" "You should have thought of that when you were tricking her."

"I didn't trick her." He meditated. His gray eyes on the pretty carpet. "You've got her a—d fond of you—" "It's awful," said Doris miserably.

"I didn't plan this. Truly I didn't." "No," said Rocky satirically. "I suppose it just happened by accident." A hot sense of injustice came to Doris.

"No, really you don't understand. As soon as your mother saw me she took me in her arms. She was glad to see me. She said I was her daughter. I thought—" She could not go on. Tears were choking her voice.

Rocky said coldly. "You seem very good at falling in someone's arms. So is your friend Doris." Twisting her handkerchief reproachfully, she said, "You seem perfectly heartless about Doris. It's a nice way to talk about your wife, I'm sure. And you didn't even write to her while you were away."

He flushed uncomfortably, threw himself down on the couch. "Look here. It's no good going on fighting like this. At least you're decent about Mother, and she's all I care about really—mother and father. I don't get your game exactly, but—" It was intolerable. "I have no game," she rose and went to the closet. "I don't have to stand being treated like a criminal." She deposited her small suitcase on the bed. "I'm packing."

He stood up with a roar. "Not by a d—n sight. If you think you can rope me in like this, you'd better think again." "I'm going, since I don't belong here." She walked swiftly to her dressing table, gathering up her cold cream, her hair brush.

His lips looked thin. They twisted sarcastically. "What am I supposed to do if you leave?" "I don't know." "And you don't care! Well, I'll tell you, Miss. I'm going to go on playing your game. I'm going to go on playing Doris' game." He smiled. "We're married. See?"

"Don't worry. You'll be quite safe from my brutal attacks." She flushed. "I'm not afraid of you." "You've got no reason to be." Suddenly Doris collapsed in a heap of helpless laughter. Rocky looked at her blankly. "What's so funny?" "What is this all about?"

He sat down smiling ruefully. "I'm sorry, I guess I'm a little excited. My point is simply that I haven't the face to go downstairs and tell my father and mother that I am not married to you. They're crazy about you." Doris' anger dripped away. "I am sorry. It's a rotten situation." "Then help me." "What can I do?" "Well listen." He walked to the window and looked out. "Gosh, it's beautiful out tonight. I don't mind admitting that my family would've way, I have a wife. Take care of her while I go to Europe. She is a wild one—that wife, so do not let her get away—she might go down to the village and get drunk if you don't watch her very carefully. Bah! Such talk. I tell you there is something wrong with that boy Rocky to say such things about a beautiful young girl like Doris."

Mrs. Du Val's voice mourned: "Doris is a beautiful young girl." She looked a sly and secret tenderness at Doris. "So you have found a house—a nice little house in Larchmont. You did not tell me, Doris."

"No, I did not tell you." Rocky spoke. "It's on the Sound. It has gardens at the back." "It sounds expensive," said Oscar Du Val. "Your business is looking up, isn't-ce pas?" His eyes gleamed maliciously.

"It is too expensive for us, of course," said Rocky. "It's just one of our dreams, isn't it, Doris?" "H'm" said Doris. "It is such a pity," said Mrs. Du Val. "What is such a pity?" "That Doris should set her heart on this nice little house, and she shouldn't have it."

Doris' eyes were large with embarrassment. "No, that isn't it at all." Mrs. Du Val's colorful voice sounded a diapason of sad tones: "Of course, Oscar. Now she is afraid that you are going to give her that nice little house. The little house they have picked out together. Isn't it true?"

"Hand in hand," said Rocky. "Please don't say that." "Doris," said Rocky, "was especially crazy about the cupids on the bathroom ceiling, weren't you, Doris?" "Of course I wasn't."

"Oh—he tries to tease. But all the same he wants that little house. Oscar, you must give them that house for a wedding present." Rocky knocked over a glass of water. "Just to put us all at our ease, Mother," he explained. "What is that?"

"Nothing. It's a stupid joke. But to change the subject," he went on, mopping up the water with his napkin. "I can't tell you how good those warm socks you knit me felt, crossing the ocean." Mrs. Du Val's face opened in a wide smile. "You wore them."

"Naturally. What do you take me for?" Having diverted the conversation Rocky tried to keep it away from himself and his supposed wife. He talked about his trip, and business conditions in France. He told anecdotes and stories feverishly.

Doris' cheeks were hot. Her eyes felt strained and anxious. Where could all this folly end? Why had she promised to go on? Her hand shook as she reached for the salt. Surely the Du Vals must see through this. Could they be blind?

"Oh—oh Doris. You have spilled salt. That is bad luck," wailed Mrs. Du Val. "Throw some over your left shoulder. That will ward off the bad luck." Doris shrugged.

Oscar Du Val said, "Her bad luck is over, since her husband has returned. Isn't that so, Doris?" Doris was hating Rocky so violently at that moment that she found it difficult to answer. Why couldn't he have introduced his wife to his family himself instead of letting them meet in the Biltmore in that silly way? And now he was thinking that she was trying to force her way in where she didn't belong. She had a strong impulse to tell the whole thing, but it out right now. But if she did, what would the Du Vals think of her? Perhaps they wouldn't even believe that she had lost her memory. They were nice to her now, but if they found out— She closed her lips. She would have to have time to think about what to do.

They rose from the table at last, and Mrs. Du Val slipped her hand under Doris' arm. "You must go upstairs right away, Doris. This is your first night down and you must not overdo it." Doris felt thankful of the opportunity to slip away. She kissed Mrs. Du Val, thinking, "this is the last time perhaps that I shall ever do this. Tomorrow you will find out the truth, and hate me."

"Good-night, my child," said Mrs. Du Val fondly. "Shall I come up with you?" "Oh no. You must stay with Rocky." "Ah, I know you want Rocky. We won't keep him long." "Though half way up the stairs Doris turned in horror. "What did you say?"

Mrs. Du Val smiled. "Rocky will soon come to bed." "But not—but not in my room?" A shadow crossed Mrs. Du Val's face. "Ah? You have all the small quarrel—you and Rocky? These things blow over. I will send the dear boy up to you very soon." "But I can't—" Mrs. Du Val raised a protesting finger. "You are being a very naughty little girl. And tomorrow you will be sick again. Come, I will take you upstairs to bed."

Doris was pale and determined. If Mrs. Du Val came upstairs there would be more kindly nursing than she could stand. She would have to settle this with Rocky himself. If he thought he was going to sleep in her room he was mistaken. "All right. I'll go to bed." She fled up the stairs. The door was shut. She put her hands against her hot face. What a tattoo her heart was making. And her hands were trembling. She would sit and wait for Rocky to come upstairs. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for December 17 PAUL IN ROME

LESSON TEXT—Acts 28:11-31. GOLDEN TEXT—I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. Philippians 3:14. PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Has Guests. JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul's Journey to Rome. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Goals to be Reached. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Finding and Fulfilling God's Purpose.

Rome was the center of the world's power and influence. Paul expressed a longing to see Rome (Romans 1:11). His object so far as the Roman church was concerned was twofold. First, that he might impart to them some spiritual gift, to the end that they might be established. Second, that he might be comforted by their fellowship.

His vision no doubt extended beyond the Roman church. His hope was that from that metropolis the gospel might find its way to all parts of the world. 1. Paul's Voyages to Rome (Acts 27).

The ship (vv. 1-6). It was a vessel of Alexandria sailing from Myra to Italy. The company (vv. 1, 2). Two of Paul's friends, Aristarchus and Luke, were permitted to go with him. Besides these three there were two hundred and seventy-three in the ship (v. 37).

Overtaken by a storm (vv. 7-20). Paul had advised that they spend the winter in Fair Havens, (vv. 8-12) but his advice was not heeded. The gentle south wind deceived them so they loosed from Crete, only to be overtaken by the tempestuous wind called Euroclydon. They did everything possible to save the ship.

Paul's serene faith (vv. 21-28). (a) His rebuke for failure to heed his advice (v. 21). This was more than a taunt, it was a reminder of the wisdom of his former advice urging them to give to him a respectful hearing. (b) Bids them to be of good cheer (v. 22).

(c) Promises them safety (v. 23). He assured them that though the ship would go to pieces, every man's life would be saved. (d) The source of his information (vv. 23, 24). It was revealed unto him by the angel of God.

(e) The reason for Paul's faith (v. 23). The consciousness of having been chosen by God and being engaged in his service enabled him in the midst of the most violent storm to rest in God. 5. The ship's crew all safe on land (Acts 27:27-31:10). This was exactly as the Lord had promised.

(a) The hospitable reception by the natives (v. 2). They built a fire and made the shipwrecked people as comfortable as possible in the cold and rain. (b) Paul gathering sticks for the fire (v. 3). In this he was like his Master, ministering rather than being ministered unto.

(c) Paul bitten by a poisonous serpent (v. 3). Among the sticks gathered there was a serpent. When warmed by the fire this serpent darted at Paul and fixed its fangs upon his hand. At first the natives thought he was an escaped murderer and that retributive justice was being meted out to him. When they saw he was not harmed they concluded he was a god.

(d) Paul heals Publius' father (vv. 7-10). He now reciprocated the kindness of these people. Others came also for healing. 11. Paul's Arrival at Rome (28: 11-16).

1. Tarrying with the brethren at Puteoli (vv. 11-14). 2. Met by brethren from Rome. (v. 15). They came some forty miles to meet him. This greatly encouraged him and moved him to give thanks to God. 3. Living in his own hired house (v. 16). He was treated with great leniency, being allowed to live apart in his own hired house even though he was constantly under guard.

11. Paul's Ministry in Rome (17-31). 1. His conference with the leading Jews (17:22). He did not wait for the Sabbath day to speak to the Jews, but after a three days' rest he called the chief Jews together in order to have a fair understanding with them. 2. Paul expounding the kingdom of God and persuading concerning Jesus (23-31). He pointed out a real kingdom with the historic Jesus as King. To Paul the kingdom meant a definite reign of a definite person, not merely an improved state of society.

Sweet Saver of Christ It does not consist so much in what we do as in our manner of doing it; not so much in our words or deeds as in an indefinable sweetness, tenderness, courtesy, unselfishness, and desire to please others to their edification. They are in God. He is the Father of mercies and the God of all comfort. As a father pitieeth his children, so the Lord pitieeth them that fear Him.

Never-Ending Search for Safe Insecticides

Largely through the research of the Department of Agriculture, many improvements in insecticides, and fumigants have been perfected. The welfare of the American apple industry is dependent in considerable measure upon lead arsenate, more than 30,000,000 pounds being used annually. Calcium arsenate has proved to be the most effective insecticide in checking the cotton boll weevil. New fumigants have been developed by the department for eradicating insects in stored grain, which avoid the fire hazard connected with the use of carbon disulphide.

Dr. Henry G. Knight, chief of the bureau of chemistry and soils, explains that one of the serious problems connected with the general use of insecticides is the possible effect of their residues upon human health. Restrictions as to the arsenic content in products for both domestic use and for export have been met by improved methods of washing fruit, but these methods add to costs and may cause storage losses. Department experts constantly are experimenting to develop more effective insecticides that are harmless to man.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong. No alcohol. Sold by druggists in tablets or liquid—Adv. Printing Postage Stamps Rotogravure, which goes by the name of photogravure in England and heliogravure in France, is the latest process of printing to be adopted by the postage stamp manufacturers. This photo-mechanical intaglio process reproduces the design with all the fidelity of a photograph and at a fraction of the cost of line engraving. On the other hand, it is easier to counterfeit than other forms of recess printing.

End Serious Coughs With Creomulsion Don't let them get a strangle hold. Fight germs quickly. Creomulsion combines the best helps known to modern science. Powerful but harmless. Pleasant to take. No narcotics. Your own druggist is authorized to refund your money on the spot if your cough or cold is not relieved by Creomulsion. (adv.)
