PRICE $2.00 THE YEAR

PERSONALS

Mrs. Ola Jones, County School Superintendent, left Wednesday for Albuquerque where she is attending the annual meeting of superintendents for the different counties over the state. A dinner was served by the University Thursday in honor of the superintendents. Today the work will consist of listening to lectures and becoming better acquainted with the program of the year, which has been mapped for the officials. Saturday will be spent in Santa Fe, where work of importance will be had in connection with the duties of the superintendents in general, and the work of the yearly meeting, as regards lining up for the term, will be ended.

Mrs. Alton Hillman and Mrs. John Messer were down from Corona Tuesday, making preparations for moving to the Gran Quivira country, Alton and John who are with the government survey crew having been transferred to that locality.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thornton were here from their ranch home Monday for the first time since Christmas, having been guests at the home of their daughter, Mrs. A. W. Moore, of El Paso, over the holiday period. They will soon begin the spring work of getting the soil ready for planting and care for their orchard, where in both places the yield is abundant and unyielding.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Cleghorn were here from their home in White Oaks Monday.

Mrs. D. X. LaVallee entertained the Wednesday Bridge Club this week.

Mrs. Morgan Lovelace will entertain the Carrizozo Bridge Club at her home Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Rentfrow returned Monday from Albuquerque, where after attending the Stockmen's Convention, they visited relatives over Sunday.

Mrs. Jake Cochran and daughter Mrs. LeNora Charlton were here from Nogal Monday.

County Surveyor L. E. Hunt was here last Saturday from Corona, where he is acting in the capacity of time-keeper for the GWA project in connection with other matters of official nature. While in town, he made this office a friendly call.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Harkey and daughter Earline, were here from White Oaks Monday, doing some shopping and returning home in the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Champ Ferguson of the Nogal-Mesa, spent Sunday here, accompanied by Mrs. Ferguson's brother, Jack Brazel.

Ex-County Clerk, S. E. Greisen of Capitan, was a business visitor here Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Hightower of Ancho were Carrizozo visitors last Saturday.

O. Fred Arthur, genial, friendly, efficient forest supervisor, was here from his office in Alamogordo Wednesday attending to some business matters in connection with the government relief work. While here the Supervisor made this office a friendly call.

LYRIC THEATRE

R. A. Walker, Owner

Thursday-Friday—Rex Bell and Doris Hill in "Crashing Broadway." When a cowboy goes to town, lookout! "The Curio Shop" and "What the Scotch Started."

Saturday-Sunday-Monday—"No More Orchids," with Carole Lombard and Lyle Talbot. A story of a woman who loved to live and lived to love. Beautiful! Talented! "Midbury in Mandalay" and Cartoon.

Hereafter we will run two changes each week with latest and best pictures.

Charles Joyce

Charles Joyce, local laundryman, who was taken ill last Saturday with pneumonia, died Wednesday morning. At different times during his brief illness, hopes were entertained for his recovery, but he grew worse and in spite of careful medical attention, passed on as given above.

The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Methodist Church with Rev. L. D. Jordan of the Baptist Church conducting the services, the particulars of which will be published in our next issue.

Mr. Joyce was a gentleman who was held in the highest esteem by all who knew him. A good citizen, faithful husband, kind father and generous to everybody. He will be sadly missed by our people, with whom he came almost in daily contact. He leaves a wife, three daughters of the immediate family, besides other near relatives who reside in the east, to all of whom the sympathy of this community is tendered.

Flames Take Seven Lives

Roswell Dispatch:

Mrs. C. M. Covel, 38, succumbed at 11:40 last night from burns she received in a fire which took the lives of her husband and five children in their dugout home forty miles north of Roswell early yesterday morning.

With no thought of impending tragedy, six members of this family met their death when flames trapped them inside the dugout and Mrs. Covel though fatally burned ran a half mile to the home of T. C. Redmond for assistance.

According to the story told by Mrs. Covel, she had arisen at 3:30 a. m. in order to see that the children could meet the school bus. Using a two gallon can of kerosene, she poured one gallon of the oil into an old-fashioned wood stove that came in contact with hot coals in the ashes. An explosion followed enveloping the room and the woman in flames. Mr. Covel jumped out of bed and forced his wife thru the door, the only one in the hut and returned in an attempt to save the children, but the six perished in the dugout and the wife died in the hospital.

Mrs. A. O. Rix, of Wilcox, Arizona, came in Tuesday, and will visit for the week with her daughter, Mrs. Hubert Detloff.

Misfortune has fallen heavily on relatives of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Mendenhall. Since Christmas, Bill has lost one of his aunts and Mrs. Mendenhall's grandmother died a short time ago.

Thawing It Out

Game Law Violators

Santa Fe—Game law violations apparently have increased considerably during the last half of 1933, it is the opinion of Elliott S. Barker, State Game Warden. Based upon reports made to the Department, there have been 112 prosecutions since July 1, an increase of 58 per cent over the same period last year, according to the Game Warden. "Either the violators have been more active or the paid and voluntary deputies for the game department have been much more alert and successful," said Barker. The game department records show that 92% of the cases tried have resulted in convictions.

Among the charges filed have been dynamiting fish, killing elk out of season, taking deer out of season, the killing of does, killing in excess of the legal limit, the possession of beaver skins and fraud in obtaining resident licenses. The penalties have ranged from suspended sentences in a few cases to fines up to $100 and costs.

"Sportsmen and citizens of New Mexico should realize," said Barker, "that every time the game laws are violated, the rights and property of law abiding citizens are being destroyed. The game department is also forced to spend thousands of dollars annually policing the state when the money is needed sorely for constructive game and fish projects.

The fish and game of this state are the live baits that attract thousands of visitors each year, adding materially to the prosperity of our people. The department of game and fish appeals to every law abiding citizen to render all assistance possible in preventing and detecting all game law violations.

30 New Mexico Projects Under Examination

Washington, Jan. 17. — Upon the attitude of Congress toward appropriating additional funds for public works projects hinges the fate of New Mexico applications totaling more than $3,000,000, now pending before the public works board.

It was estimated at Senator Cutting's office today that approximately 30 New Mexico projects are still 'under examination' by the public works board.

The largest of the pending applications is for $2,350,700 for the Carlisbad Irrigation project. Cutting said he was "following up" this project and hoped for definite action if funds are made available.

Most of the applications are

Moore—Woods

At the parsonage of the Methodist Church last Sunday with Rev. J. L. Lawson performing the ceremony, Mrs. Lois Woods and B. L. Moore, both of Adobe, about 32 miles west of here, were united in marriage.

We are but slightly acquainted with the bride, having met her the day before the wedding, but she is a pleasant little lady and will make an ideal life partner for the little stockman, who is so well known to us all in Carrizozo as "Shorty" Moore.

They will make their home on the ranch near Adobe and the best wishes of their friends both here and at their future home will attend them.

"New Mexico" Magazine Now On Its Own

"New Mexico," the state magazine, will stand on its own feet from the January issue.

Gov. A. W. Hockenbush announced a separate department was being set up for the magazine, a separate set of books to show its condition and the state highway department has ceased to underwrite the magazine.

Appropriations of $250 a month each from the land office and the game and fish department will supplement $300 a month from the highway department.

These revenues, together with circulation and advertising revenues will bring the income of the magazine to about $33,000 a year, the governor said, with a budget for the coming year of $31,000, leaving a $2,000 surplus.

The magazine will collect its own funds, but the money will be disbursed through the highway department as provided by law. Farmington Times-Herald.

GOP Plans Attack

Washington, Jan. 16. — Seizing upon the economy act as their first issue of the session, senate Republicans decided unanimously at a party conference today to back the American Legion's four-point veterans' relief program and try to correct any inequalities in federal civilian pay.

Prager Miller was here Monday attending to some matters of interest to the State Tax Commission. He left Monday evening for other fields on missions of the same nature.

for funds for water works, sewer systems and irrigation and flood control programs. Others include a $200,000 application for construction of barracks at Roswell.

ANCHO ITEMS

Merdames T. J. Straley and Allen Kile are tremendously enjoying their sojourn in Douglas, Arizona. They have had pleasure of renewing acquaintance with Mrs. Jones Pennington, whose husband, the late Jones Pennington, was a prominent rancher of Lincoln County. His death occurred in Alpine, Texas, a year or so ago. Mrs. Pennington was in Douglas visiting her son Joe, who is a pharmacist in one of the town's leading drug stores. Joe, quite a handsome chap, recently was married to a local girl. Joe's attractive sister, Marcella, is now Mrs. Drury Wood of Alpine, Texas.

One afternoon, Mmes. Straley and Kile were pleasantly surprised by a visit from Mrs. Levin Stewart, a very interesting and charming personage. She is a sister of Jess Vandevort of Ancho and also a former resident of Lincoln County, having resided in White Oaks during its early heyday. Her husband, the late Levin Stewart, was in the mercantile business there for a good many years and that is where their children, Mabel and Eugene, grew up. They now are residents of Douglas. Mabel, very good looking, is Mrs. Fred Eberhardt and Eugene is an employee of Phelps Dodge Corp. Mrs. Stewart owns a lovely home in Douglas and it is filled with beautiful antique furniture, some of it being exquisitely hand-carved.

In reminiscing about the happy time spent in White Oaks, she made mention of Mrs. W. C. McDonald, the Ziegler, Sagers, Gallachers, the late Mr. Hewitt and Mrs. Gimm, Mr. A. H. Hudspeth and others, all familiarly known to the people of Lincoln County. Mrs. Stewart is at present in California, the guest of her grandson, Levin O'Sell.

Miss Margaret Schafer, a teacher and next door neighbor of Mmes. Straley and Kile, is a cousin of Mrs. Doyle Rentfrow of Carrizozo.

Nalda—Bennett

At the parsonage of the Santa Rita Catholic Church, Monday morning, with Rev. Fr. A. Angelo officiating for Father Brady during his absence, performing the ceremony, Mrs. Stella Mae Bennett and Louis Nalda were united in marriage. Miss Adeline Marquez acted as bridesmaid and Albert Kimbrell was best man.

The contracting parties have been residents of Carrizozo for a number of years and are well known to the public. The bride had been in the employ of Mrs. E. H. Sweet at the Carrizozo Eating House and is a sister to Mrs. B. D. Holguin, her husband being Clerk to Roadmaster J. B. Dinwiddie.

The groom is one of our most prominent stockmen, owning and operating one of the best sheep ranches in these parts. Everybody knows "Louie," who may always be found with his same old smile when he meets his many friends. After the wedding, the newlyweds and attendants left for El Paso where they spent two days in looking over the borderland city, returning home Tuesday evening. They are now settled at their home in the Red Canyon country, and the best wishes of their friends will abide with them.

Attend the Lyric Theatre and see some good pictures.

LOCAL MENTION

W. J. Ayers and daughter, Gertrude, were here Tuesday from Three Rivers and made the Outlook a friendly call. Mr. Ayers has an ailment for the treatment of which, he has been advised to go to the S. P. Hospital at San Francisco.

Those expected at the funeral of the late Charles Joyce from the middle east are: Mrs. S. C. Joyce of Atchison, Kansas; Mr. George Joyce of Atchison, Kansas; Mrs. Ed Rahkopf of Lawrence, Kansas, and Mrs. Albert Steinbring of Lawrence, Kansas; A. D. Longfellow, Lawrence, Kansas.

Rev. J. L. Lawson, who underwent an operation for appendicitis the first of the week, is improving, according to latest reports.

Mrs. M. U. Finley is in Clovis, as the guest of her daughter at that place.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Lerner were here from New York City on business this week, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. John Sherman of El Paso.

Mrs. Morgan Lovelace will entertain the Carrizozo Bridge Club at her home tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon.

The male members of the Goufus Club entertained the lady members at the Carrizozo Eating House Wednesday evening.

Civil Service Examination for Postmaster

The United States Civil Service Commission, at the request of the Postmaster General, announces a competitive examination for postmaster of this place.

Receipt of applications is to close Feb. 2, 1934. Applications must be properly executed on Form 10, and must be on file with the Commission at Washington, D. C., by the close of business on the date indicated above.

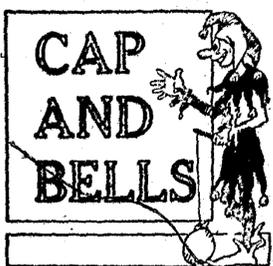

This examination is held under the President's order of July 12, 1933, and not under the civil service act and rules. Apply at postoffice in this place, or to the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., for application Form 10, and Forms 2223 and 2358 showing the places of examination and containing other definite information.

Applicants are warned against paying money or other valuable consideration to anyone in taking an examination or securing an appointment. A person who is found to have given or promised anything of value to anyone for securing his influence or endorsement will not be certified by the Commission as qualified for appointment.

U. S. Civil Service Commission.

40-Acre Farm for $300

According to a visitor here from Arkansas, farms in that state have been offered for sale as low as $300 for a 40-acre tract. These tracts are improved with a home, buildings and trees; chickens are thrown in. The reason given is that the farmers could make a bare living, but no money could be had to pay the taxes or keep the radio running. Many of these farms have been advertised for sale, according to this visitor—Santa Fe New Mexican.

SYNOPSIS

A girl finds herself in a taxicab in New York with a strange man who speaks of "an awful shock." He leaves her for a moment, and she drives on, for she fears him. She stops at the Baltimore, wondering who she is. Her memory is gone. She has a wedding ring. At the hotel a young woman vanishes with the girl's $500. An elderly man, Mr. G. Du Val, cordially greets the nameless girl, addressing her as "Doris," wife of Mr. Du Val's son, Rocky. Rocky is abroad, and Doris is taken to the home of Mrs. Du Val and her sculptor husband, Oscar. Doris falls in love with Rocky's photograph, but cannot remember having met him. Visiting a store, a saleswoman insists she hide from observation. Rocky returns. He demands to know who she is and why his wife sent her to his home. She cannot tell him. They agree, for the sake of his parents, to pretend they are husband and wife. Doris is taken to her New York apartment to confront his wife. He finds the flat empty. Doris sees the real wife's photograph and recognizes her as the girl who stole her $500. Doris finally tells Rocky she has lost her memory. In a newspaper they see a headline: "Gilted Bride's Gun Found; Diane Merrill's Father Identifies It." Doris faints. When she recovers, her memory has not returned. Rocky informs her he is going to take her to Canada by motor. They set out.

As Doris stared she remembered her promise to Rocky that she would keep her face turned away from any people they met. She bent her head, and turned over and over a black leather purse belonging to the real Doris.

The car was coming nearer. In a moment it would be past. But as it approached it slackened. It came almost to a stop. Someone shouted: "Doris!"

Started she looked up. A dark-eyed girl in a green evening dress had called.

"Oh—I beg your pardon!" said the girl. "I thought you were someone I knew."

A blond young man stuck his head forward. "It's Rocky's car."

"There's Rocky! Well, I thought you were in Europe, you dope!"

"He's leading a double life!"

The party, in evening clothes, got down. Rocky, approaching Doris with a clam in each hand, looked at them steadily. If he was surprised and chagrined, he did not show it.

"Have a clam," he said.

The girl in the green evening dress staggered up and seized one of the clams. Two gusty young men supported each other.

"Clams! Jus' what I want!"

"Good old Rocky's got clams!"

Rocky was climbing in the car beside Doris. He was starting up the engine.

"Hey, wait a minute. Where you going? Say, wait a minute, Rocky."

His friends were running after him. The girl in the green evening dress jumped on the running board.

"What's your hurry, Rocky? We're all friends here, aren't we?"

She looked at Doris.

"This is Miss Smith, my father's secretary. I'm just driving her down to my father's house."

The girl closed one of her big eyes. She exposed a dimple in her browned cheek. "Pretty name, Smith."

Rocky frowned. "Go on, beat it, will you, Molly? I've really got to go."

"Rocky, the saint! Rocky—this pure young man." Eyes looked plously heavenward. Then the dimple appeared again. "Never mind, Rocky. I like you all the better for it."

She jumped down from the car. Rocky's face was set and grim. Without a backward glance he started up the car and got away.

Doris was red and angry. The car tumbled on. The red 233 appeared, a wrathful eye in the car.

"I'm awfully sorry about that," murmured Rocky.

Doris fixed her eyes on the flaming sky. Her good humor had gone. She was indignant with Rocky, resentful of her false position.

"That girl, I suppose, is a friend of Doris—the real Doris. And she'll tell her you're gadding about the country with a—"

"With a—"

"With a—is good. She'll make it good, anyway."

"I think you'd better let me out here."

"What for?"

"So you can go and find Doris."

"What do I want to find Doris for? I want—"

"You're not acting very well about Doris."

"I know it. I can't act well about women and I'm acting awfully about you. Better worry about that."

Doris was silent. She was being a fool as usual. She knew that Rocky was acting in this extraordinary fashion for her own safety. Whatever peril threatened her, it was necessary that she get to Canada. Why Canada?

She gave it up. If she was going to trust Rocky she would have to trust him, and stop criticizing. Meantime it was fun being with Rocky. Sooner or later this companionship between them would have to end. He would go back to Doris. Doris would have him all her life!

She sat up very straight. She was being sentimental again. If Rocky was going to be so nice, she would fall in love with him all over. And he did have a wife. It was a good thing these people on the road had reminded her.

Once outside of New York, the car made good speed.

Rocky looked at her abruptly. "Put your glasses on again. They're good for little girls. Come on. Don't make me stop the car so that I can put them on you."

Doris complied when she realized that he meant it. It was a subject she was tired, arguing about. Rocky was managing things, apparently, with a high hand. But as she looked at him now, his warm face gleaming with a pride in accomplishing something that she felt sure was in the interests of her safety, it was easy to forgive him anything.

Rocky had provided food enough to last them throughout the trip, without stopping at inns. He had explained that by picnicking this way, they would save a good deal of time.

"I'd like to see a paper," Doris announced suddenly, as if the question had not been broached before. Rocky munched a sandwich doggedly.

"I'm sorry," Rocky ate hungrily.

"Well?" Her voice with its high note arrested him. She drew his blue, seriously objecting eyes to her face. His half-eaten sandwich was poised for the next bite.

"Well?" He repeated. "You know the answer to that one, don't you?" His tone was playfully hard. "The last time you happened to read a paper you didn't behave very well." He grinned faintly and took another bite, watching her.

"Oh!" Doris flung out an emancipated arm. "Won't you ever forget that? I could read anything today and not lose my health. Besides I have a feeling there is something in this morning's paper I ought to see. Tell me, please, she leaned over suddenly, "what it's all about."

"Put your glasses on."

"Why?"

"The better to see me with."

She put them on, turning her head to look up and down the road. "Who are those people, do you suppose?" A small automobile had opened its doors to let out a crowd of motorists.

Rocky was already looking. He had even brought out a pair of binoculars. Leveling them long and earnestly at the group in question, he answered, "As near as I can make out it's a healthy bootlegger who's taken his wife and family out for a picnic." He laughed, but didn't seem overwhelmingly amused. "Shall we go on?"

They got back into the car, soon making up the time lost in lunching. Rocky's plan was to reach Vermont by nightfall.

In the next town their car went cautiously through the business street. As it passed a news stand, Doris pushed her glasses above her eyes for an instant. There was a headline—

The car lurched forward.

"Don't be a fool, Doris," unreasonable words poured from Rocky: "This is no time to strain your eyes trying to read a paper. If you would only do what I ask!"

Doris, with the glasses slipped back into place, looked at Rocky. His lips were tense in a desperate sort of annoyance. She wondered what had upset him. His eyes moved with a light wariness across the road in front of them. He was quiet for a while.

Towards nightfall, they neared the Vermont border-line. A little before dark, Rocky stopped the car and they got out for a picnic supper. Doris asked him where they were going to spend the night.

"In the car," he answered grimly. "This trip doesn't end for nobody or nothing until we get to Canada."

"You are in a hurry," she answered.

"I think you could at least have asked me if I minded not going to a hotel."

"I could have," he replied cheerfully, "but I had my plans all made to drive right through the night."

"And what you say goes!" She gave him an undiluting glance.

"It's a right!" He began to whistle.

It was evident that he was beginning to feel pleased over the day's work.

Not far behind them, another crazy car was speeding. Rocky sped around a curve, the other car gaining. Rocky's foot came down harder on the gas, but the other one was up alongside of him. It passed him noisily, hitting the front of Rocky's car a jarring whack.

Rocky yelled after him, but the remark was lost in the noise of engines. There was a limp rattle in Rocky's car now. Something besides the fender had been injured. Cursing, Rocky got out.

"H—!" he said after a minute. "I'll have to take this thing to a garage." He peered out at the next sign. They were two miles from a town. He looked sharply at Doris. "And when we stop to have it fixed," he said bleakly, "for G—d's sake, don't speak to anybody!"

CHAPTER VIII

As Doris was beginning to feel sleepy, Rocky's advice seemed hardly as necessary as he thought.

She dozed, vaguely conscious at intervals of tools dropping and the whir of the motor.

Doris started and awoke. She half sat up. An old man who looked as if he might have been one of the founders of the village into which they had strayed was watching her from under his pushed-back hat.

She thought he was going to say something but discovered that he was chewing. He had dark quizzical eyes that drooped faintly at the corners. He must be over eighty. He kept pinching his nose between his thumb and bent forefinger as if he were trying to improve the shape of it, but otherwise paid Doris his undivided attention.

"If you please," she began, "What town is this?"

His eyes glistened at her with such a knowing expression that Doris almost laughed outright. "Don't you know what town you're in?" he finally asked.

"No, I don't," said Doris apologetically. "We were driving through on our way to Canada, when something happened to the car."

"Driving through to Canada, you say?" He advanced slightly, putting one foot on the fender and clapping a velvety hand over the knee. "Been traveling long?"

"Oh yes, ever since this morning." Gradually she was growing less ecstatic over this quickly formed friendship. The place was getting on her nerves. Rocky had taken off his coat and rolled up his sleeves. It looked as if the job were almost too much for the mechanic alone.

"Come from New York I bet," suggested the old man, "didn't you?"

"Yes," Doris looked at him firmly. "What town did you say this is?"

"This is Edgewater Junction."

Rocky looked up now at the sound of their voices. His eye fell on Doris, a short questioning glance. Doris unburdened herself of a weary gesture. Would they never get out of this place?

"Yes, sir! This is Edgewater Junction." A new expression had come into the old man's eyes. "And a long ways from New York." His eyes gleamed steadily. "You got folks up in Canada?"

"No, or—" Doris hesitated. Perhaps Rocky had relatives there. She wasn't sure why he had selected Canada. He hadn't told her that. "That is," she continued after a minute, "I haven't."

Rocky's warning suddenly loomed. "For G—d's sake don't speak to anybody!" She had been talking steadily to the old man! But fortunately she hadn't run into any complications, at least not until now. She smiled at him as if the conversation were practically over.

The smile was received like confidential information of the utmost importance. The old man removed his foot from the fender and started off in the direction of the door.

Doris watched him through the small mirror above the front seat, glad when he actually had gone. From now on she wouldn't open her lips, not even to say good night to the mechanic. She would watch her step. She closed her eyes.

"It's her, all right,"

Southwestern Briefs

The New Mexico state game commission met Jan. 5 to outline a program for 1934.

Arizona federal emergency relief administration officials announced receipt of three carloads of beans which will be distributed among the state's needy.

The Arizona state tax commission reported collections from the state privilege-sales tax during November the largest monthly collection since the law became effective.

The city of Holbrook, Arizona, filed with Howard S. Reed, federal public works engineer, an application for $6,000 federal public works loan to finance installation of a steam heating plant in the county court house.

One thousand men are working for the erosion control service in the Safford and Duncan districts. It is the first unit of the civil works program for protecting 8,200,000 acres of New Mexico and Arizona land from erosion.

Lynn Lockhart, Arizona state airport supervisor, announced that airports at Phoenix, Ajo, Douglas and Nogales have been selected for improvement by the United States department of commerce under the civil works program.

The Holbrook, Arizona, Chamber of Commerce has applied to federal authorities for a loan of $5,000 to finance construction of a municipal airport. Three sites are available and the chamber has asked that the government send an engineer there to select the best one.

A Leicester Hyde of Santa Fe announced recently he would receive qualifications from architects and architectural draftsmen from Colorado, Utah, and New Mexico for employment in the historic American buildings survey as part of the civil works program.

The attorney general's office in Phoenix announced court action would be taken early in 1934 to obtain judicial interpretation of the state law requiring payment of taxes in currency. The suit will be directed against Yuma county to force it to pay $33,449.98 in state taxes in currency instead of in state warrants.

If the state public works board and the national public works administration approve applications for loans submitted from Las Vegas more than $350,000 will be brought into this community to be spent for civic improvements, the money going to relief unemployment and for materials. All materials possible will be purchased locally.

Alleging that valuations placed on grazing lands by the state tax commission were unlawful and in excess of their value, the Fernandez cattle company of San Mateo, N. M., filed suit against the commission in Santa Fe recently requesting an injunction to restrain the commission from certifying the value of the lands to county assessors.

Applications for public works loans totaling more than $200,000 have been filed with the Arizona public works board in Phoenix. The board of state institutions sought $358,370 including funds for construction of a penitentiary for juveniles in connection with the state prison, and Holbrook asked for $48,200 with which to construct a water works system.

T. J. Dempsey, Santa Fe, N. M., business man, has been recommended as state director of the national emergency council for New Mexico. His appointment, originally urged by the Democratic state central committee, also has the endorsement of Representative Dennis Chavez, Democratic national committeeman from New Mexico, and Senator Hatch.

Further government aid for the livestock industry is needed to put the cattle market of Arizona and the nation back on its feet, delegates to a conference called by Governor Moore in Phoenix declared recently. Besides asking for aid that would put them on a parity with other branches of livestock, the cattlemen endorsed President Roosevelt's monetary and reconstruction programs.

The fight over wire fences which disturbed the western cattle country a quarter-century or more ago is reverberating today in the mountains and canons of New Mexico. In the modern drama, however, the position of the cattlemen who formerly opposed fences has been reversed and his "foo" is no longer the big land and cattle syndicates or small settlers, but the United States government.

Prospects for the location of two distilleries, one at Cimarron, N. M., and another at Hobbs, N. M., and a rectifying plant at Albuquerque were revealed recently by S. P. Vidal, internal revenue collector. Vidal said application for a permit to erect a distillery at Cimarron had been received as well as for a rectifying plant in Albuquerque. Information regarding the establishment of a 450-gallon distillery at Hobbs has been requested but no application has been filed.

The mystery surrounding the discovery near the top of Raton Pass of three bushel baskets containing the bones of human beings appears destined to remain unsolved as Colfax county authorities indicated they would not pursue their investigation any further. Sheriff G. R. Fletcher said he was satisfied the bones were those of Indians because of the presence of Indian pottery and other articles in the baskets with the skeletons. He said no further investigation had been made and indicated none would be made.

OTERO'S PEARLS

A glamorous figure of the last century was La Belle Otero, whose jewels and lovers were the cause of much wonder—and envy. When she appeared in Berlin a great deal of publicity was made out of her pearls, which were deposited in the vaults of a bank during the daytime. At the same theater was another dancer . . . Otero, however, was at the top of the bill. One night while Otero was on the stage a string of pearls broke. The performance was stopped while the jewels were gathered up and counted. Later the other artist made her appearance and began her turn, when suddenly she stopped, picked up, or pretended to pick up, what was supposed to be one of Otero's pearls, bit it in two, and tossed the pieces to the audience. . . . The fight that followed is still fresh in the minds of some of the Berliners of the show world.

Wasting Intelligence

Will Rogers re-emphasized in his own humorous homely way over the radio recently an important truth.

America makes no use of its ex-presidents, he said. Just kicks them into obscurity and dooms them to an early death in 'usefulness.'

Only one is living now. And he has dropped from public sight as completely as if he had gone to China.

"Mr. Hoover would be the very man to run for the public works thing," Mr. Rogers said.

Perhaps. He would be qualified in ability to do the job, and he executed the vast Belgian relief program during the war, as he has headed large engineering projects, and he has organized commerce.

Aside from this suggestion, the experience, knowledge and training of Ex-President Hoover is going to waste as an aid to the nation, just as the experience, knowledge and training of every other former president has been wasted after he left the White House, and the abilities of President Roosevelt will probably be wasted when his tenure ends.

The nation has need of this source of intelligence but politics and tradition stand in the way.

Since tradition is being uprooted so freely, and new courses are being set, this custom of waste might well be considered for a change, too.—Albuquerque Journal.

Work for Unemployed

One of the requirements of the Civil Works Administration, is that its funds shall be used for payrolls only. No part of them may be given to buying of materials and supplies. The result is that in many communities with C.W.A. allotments, it is becoming increasingly difficult to find productive employment for the workers, particularly as the majority of cities and towns are without money with which to purchase materials that would make the building and construction activities possible.

Singing in the Streets

"In California and Nevada," says "Time," in reporting to Pres. Roosevelt's decision to remonetize silver, "there was singing in the streets."

That single phrase does a good job of characterizing what the new policy means to the west. It means added payrolls, reopened factories, swelling trade. It means that some of the blackest and thickest of the depression clouds will be lifted. It means a happier day for merchants, farmers and professional men—everyone in the states involved. And the entire country will, through a sifting process, feel it too.

Senator Pittman, long the most persistent advocate of silver stabilization, believes that the world price of silver will be stabilized at 64¢, that United States' buying power will be increased 50%, that the exchange values of the moneys of China, India, Mexico and all South America will be increased 60% with a consequent jump in their trade with us, that millions depending on mining will find prosperity and plenty. All of these will not come true at once—but they are indicative of the possibilities.

From Calf to Shoes

F. E. Elkin, Midland, Texas, cattleman, sold a calf hide for 30c. He did some figuring with the result that he discovered if he sold the hides from 17 calves he would have paid enough money for them to buy one pair of shoes.

But before the hides could be made into shoes, they would have to be shipped east and treated. Then, if his purchase was of Texas-made shoes, the tanned hides would have to be shipped back to Texas, with freight costs both ways, and the tanners' profits added to Mr. Elkin's shoes.—H. S. Hunter in the El Paso Times.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

© 1934, Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for January 21

JESUS BEGINS HIS MINISTRY

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 4:12-25.
GOLDEN TEXT—From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand. Matthew 4:17.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Finds Some Hearers.
JUNIOR TOPIC—How Jesus Began His Work.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Begins His Life Work.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Threefold Ministry of Jesus.

Matthew's purpose was to present Jesus the Messiah as king. Strictly speaking his official ministry began at his baptism. So far as his preaching was concerned the present lesson is properly designated "Jesus Begins His Ministry."

I. The King His Own Herald (vv. 12-17).

1. The reason for this (v. 12). The news of the imprisonment of John the Baptist caused Jesus to forsake Judea and go into Galilee. The fate of John was accepted by Jesus as foreshadowing his own death. This was an act of prudence on his part. When the people reject the truth and attempt to do violence to the messenger, there should be a turning from them unless specifically directed otherwise.

2. To whom the proclamation was made (vv. 13-16). It was to the people at Capernaum in fulfillment of Isaiah's prophecy (Isa. 9:1, 2). This is a section of the country most overrun by the warring nations and therefore most exposed to the blighting effects of war. Thus we see that the darkest and most corrupt of the provinces was first in getting the light. In this we see a foreshadowing of the present age when the gospel of the grace of God is being preached to the Gentiles. It is just like Jesus our Lord to extend his grace to the lowest and most despised peoples. He came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance.

3. His message (v. 17). "Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." This is the same kingdom which John the Baptist and the Old Testament prophets proclaimed. It means the messianic earth rule of Jesus Christ. The time is coming when heralds will again announce the coming of the kingdom and the King himself will come forth from the heavens to establish his mediatorial kingdom. It is for this we pray when we intelligently say "Thy kingdom come."

II. The King Calling to Himself Assistants (vv. 19-22).

1. His command of authority (vv. 19, 20). He did not try to persuade them by the use of arguments but issued a mandate. To command is the prerogative of a king.

2. The station of the servants called (vv. 19, 21). They were men of lowly birth and occupation—fishermen. These men were busily engaged in service when the Lord issued the call.

3. To what they were called (v. 19). They were called to definite service. "I will make you fishers of men." He had previously called them to be disciples (John 1:35-42). He now called them to service. The qualities which made for good fishers of fish—patience, bravery to face the storm and the night, the perseverance which tolled all night though no fish were caught—would make them good fishers of men.

4. Their prompt obedience (vv. 20, 22). They put their trust in him who called, believing that he was able to supply their needs. When the king commands there is no time for delay.

III. The King's Triumphant Progress (vv. 23-25).

He went the whole rounds of Galilee teaching the Scriptures, preaching the gospel of the kingdom and healing all manner of diseases. He did a threefold work.

1. Teaching the Scriptures in the synagogues (v. 23). The revelation of God needed to be explained. This is what he was doing in Nazareth (Luke 4:16-22). Such is the primary business of every Sunday school teacher and minister.

2. Preaching the glad tidings of the kingdom (v. 23). The king who was then present and was heralding his own mission, was ready to establish his kingdom if they had been willing to receive him.

3. Healing all manner of diseases (vv. 23-25). There was no form of disease which he could not cure, and so abundant was his success that "his fame went throughout all Syria; and they brought unto him all sick people that were taken with divers diseases and torments, and those which were lunatick, and those that had the palsy; and he healed them."

The Great Secret
To the man without faith the universe seems to be a gigantic, merciless, grinding machine, but to us who have learned the secret of the Lord it is our Father's House, in which not a sparrow falls to the ground without his notice.

Hold Fast the Faith
Trust and confidence must be exercised where there is silence and darkness. We must hold fast the faith that treat love inspires all disciplines; and justice, mingled with mercy, rules.

Merry Time at Popcorn Ball

Entertainment That Can Be Made Thoroughly Enjoyable at Trifling Financial Cost and Little Labor in Its Preparation.

In these days, when financial problems are so generally harassing, there is a tendency to curtail in entertaining. While this seems a natural result, it is, nevertheless, to be deplored. It is when spirits are low that the heartening of congenial companionship is most needed. These social events that do not drain, or even strain, the purse, are actual investments in good health for host and hostess as well as guests. It has been demonstrated that good cheer promotes well-being, and when a person is well he or she can best compete with problems. So let us not cut down too decidedly on the pleasant means of promoting health and success.

In order to do this with no reaction in the thought of too much money spent which would come on the persons entertaining if it was done too lavishly, let me suggest a new party, the Popcorn Ball, which can be given at trifling cost.

The word ball suggests evening dress, or at least dainty frocks. These add glamor to an occasion, yet no one need get anything new. Before the event, the hostess popcorn, dips some kernels in vegetable dyes of different colors, wires a few kernels with one color, edging them with green, and makes two nosegays of similar colors, and as many nosegays as there are guests. These she arranges in two little baskets. From these she presents bouquets to the men—and the women. Matching bouquets secure partners for the first dance. The music can be on the radio, a victrola, or by different persons whom the hostess asks beforehand to play for one dance. The cost of musicians should be eliminated.

The hostess supplies needles and strong thread, and great bowls of popcorn, which can be ready or be popped as part of the entertainment. The players gather around the tables having these bowls on them, and at the sound of a signal they start stringing popcorn chains. At another signal, each player passes his or her chain to the person next on the right, who proceeds to string on this chain.

PRINCIPLE VS. INTEREST

A man in the "Near" East who had quite a reputation as a skintint lost his pocketbook a while ago, with $200 in cash in it. He put an advertisement in the "Lost" column in the paper but a month elapsed and he had heard nothing on the subject. He had about given up all hope of ever seeing his $200 again when a farmer came in and returned the pocketbook. The skintint looked in the pocketbook and found the money was all safe. The farmer thought perhaps the capitalist might give him a slight reward. On the contrary the skintint gave him a sour look and said: "The money's all here, but where's the interest?"

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong. No alcohol. Sold by druggists in tablets or liquid.—Adv.

Tricycles in Fade-Out

The toy that seems to have gone completely by the board is the tricycle, and by tricycle we don't mean velocipede. We mean the tricycle your sister had, with the two big rear wheels and the one little front wheel and the swayback frame which gave it its ladylike appearance. The 1903 catalogue featured tricycles, but you never see one today. It took little girls many years to discover that the tricycle was a mechanically inefficient device requiring four times the steam to make it go that it ought to, but they finally found out.—The New Yorker.

When the final signal is sounded, the man and woman whose chains measure most nearly the same length become partners for the next dance. Of course, players do not know of this beforehand.

The hostess scatters the remaining popcorn over a cleared space in the center of the room, and at a signal each person picks up one kernel at a time in the effort to gather the largest quantity. The man and woman whose popcorn kernels count up most nearly alike are supper partners.

Popcorn is the chief edible for the refreshments. Popcorn balls and sweet cider or a fruit punch may be the whole menu. Or make an orange gelatine. Top each portion with whipped cream, sprinkle lavishly with popcorn first put through the food grinder, using smallest blade. Serve with rolled oats wafers. Have salted popcorn instead of salted nuts, and large kernels of popcorn dipped in chocolate coating for bonbons. Sprinkle around popcorn instead of minced nutmegs over chocolate frosted cakes.

Cave May Yield Secrets Scientists Have Sought

The records of a possible "thermometer tomb," which indicates roughly the changing temperatures of ages in skeleton symbols, are being studied by Smithsonian Institution paleontologists.

It is a cave in the Alleghany mountains near Cumberland, Md., where the bones of nearly 50 different kinds of animals, several new to science, have been collected. All these creatures lived during the Pleistocene geologic period, the so-called Ice ages, which extended over approximately 2,000,000 years and were marked by alternate advances and recessions of the great glaciers over eastern North America nearly as far south as Maryland.

The remarkable feature of the collection is the wide variety of creatures who found this common grave. Some—notably a crocodile-like creature, bats, a tapir and some peculiarities—represent families which now are tropical or subtropical in their distribution. Others, such as a wolverine and a lemming mouse, now are confined to high latitudes. Furthermore, some seem to indicate dryer conditions than others, although the greater number of forms are suited to a forest environment.

It is believed improbable that creatures physiologically adapted to such a wide variety of conditions could ever have lived contemporaneously in western Maryland. In a report published by the late J. W. Gidley and C. L. Gazin of the Smithsonian staff, it is suggested that the inconsistencies may indicate a period of cave entombment long enough for important climatic changes to have taken place.

They hardly can be due, Gazin says, to a wide variety of topographical conditions in the neighborhood—the close association of warm lowlands and cold uplands. Study of the Potomac river and creek levels of the neighborhood indicates that during the Pleistocene there was probably less topographic relief than is the case today.

It is known that temperatures during the Pleistocene varied widely with the advances and recessions of the ice sheet. During the far northward recessions the climate of western Maryland may have approached

Recalling Time When All Turkeys Were Wild

Entrancing are the accounts of the turkey farmers' modern methods. The "production in line" of more and better turkeys is astounding. It appears the incubators are set at work at the precise moment to bring them to maturity at Thanksgiving, and later ones for Christmas and New Year's.

From pen to pen the gawky bird makes his progress until he is ready for shipment. No doubt, along with the methods of standardization, including branding the turkey with indelible ink, or trademarked like the citrus fruits, they now load him with an endless conveyor belt and whisk him through the dressing processes with elaborate heed to scientific management.

Now let the Idaho turkey farmers read of what our ancestors saw when the world was young. Felix Walker, coming into Kentucky, narrates:

"So rich a soil we had never seen before. Covered with clover in full bloom, the woods were alive, abounding in wild game. Turkeys so numerous that it might be said there appeared but one flock universally scattered in the woods."

Let the mass production experts beat that if they can!

Those who bandy the name of Brillat-Savarin, connoisseur of the pleasures of the table, to shame our American bill of fare would do well to quote his chapter on the American turkey and how he is hunted and cooked.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

FIND HOLE IN PEAK

For years western mountaineers have talked about a "hole in a mountain." They said the passage was large enough to accommodate a load of hay, and pilots for one of the airlines recently substantiated the reports. The flyers identified the tunnel as a hole in Needle rock, a peak about 10,000 feet high.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Here's Quickest, Simplest Way to Stop a Cold

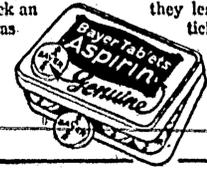

1. Take 2 Bayer Aspirin Tablets.
2. Drink full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 3 hours.
3. If throat is sore, crush 3 Bayer Aspirin Tablets in a half glass of water and gargle according to directions in box.

Almost Instant Relief

in this Way

The simple method pictured above is the way doctors throughout the world now treat colds.

It is recognized as the QUICKEST, safest, surest way to treat a cold. For it will check an ordinary cold almost as fast as you caught it.

Ask your doctor about this. And when you buy, see that you get the real BAYER Aspirin Tablets. They dissolve almost instantly. And thus work almost instantly when you take them. And for a gargle, Genuine BAYER Aspirin Tablets dissolve so completely they leave no irritating particles. Get a box of 12 tablets or a bottle of 24 or 100 at any drug store.

If you want to GET RID of Constipation worries— Science says Today use a LIQUID Laxative

1. Control intestinal action exactly—no "purging"
2. Measure to suit your individual needs to the drop
3. Banish Bowel Fatigue and the laxative habit

Here's Why:

Any hospital offers evidence of the harm done by harsh laxatives that drain the system, weaken the bowel muscles, and in some cases even affect the liver and kidneys.

A doctor will tell you that the unwise choice of laxatives is a common cause of chronic constipation. Fortunately, the public is fast returning to the use of laxatives in liquid form.

A properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement. There is no discomfort at the time and no weakness after. You don't have to take "a double dose" a day or two later.

In buying any laxative, always read the label. Not the claims, but the contents. If it contains one doubtful drug, don't take it.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescription preparation in which there are no mineral drugs. Its ingredients are on the label. By using it, you avoid danger of bowel strain. You can keep the bowels regular, and comfortable; you can make constipated spells as rare as colds.

The liquid test:

This test has proved to many men and women that their trouble was not "weak bowels", but strong cathartics:

First. Select a good liquid laxative. 2. Take the dose you find is suited to your system. 3. Gradually reduce the dose until bowels are moving regularly without any need of stimulation.

Syrup pepsin has the highest standing among liquid laxatives, and is the one generally used. It contains senna, a natural laxative which is perfectly safe for the youngest child. Your druggist has Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Chavez—Warner

Last Saturday evening, Jan. 13, at the Methodist parsonage, with the Rev. J. L. Lawson performing the ceremony, Manuel Chavez and Mrs. Rosa Warner were united in marriage.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Juan Herrera and is very well-known here.

The groom is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Saturnino Chavez; was born, reared, and received his schooling in Carrizozo, having graduated from High School with the class of 1931.

Their friends join in wishing them much bliss and an unending happiness in their wedded life.
