OSCURA NOTES

The dance Friday night was a big success.

Miss Nettie Brown of Oscura and John LaMay of Nogal were married Friday evening at the home of the bride. Both young people are well-known here and are highly thought of in this community.

The Dillard family spent Sunday with the Wooten family.

Mr. and Mrs. Claud Holcomb, Mr. and Mrs. Coy Frazier of Tularosa attended the dance last Friday night.

The McDonalds have moved to the ranch for the summer.

Oscura was visited by a good shower Tuesday evening, which was badly needed.

DIAMOND DUST

Those who failed to see the game last Sunday between Carrizozo and Vaughn, missed a good one. From start to finish, the game abounded with brisk plays, but frequent errors were made by both sides. In the 6th, first baseman Garrison suffered an injury by being accidentally hit by a ball thrown by catcher Whittis, but Dr. Johnson being present, he was taken to his office, where three stitches in his lip fixed him all right and he was soon back at first. The game ended with a score of 10 to 8 in favor of Carrizozo. Vaughn changed pitchers once, while Red worked through the nine innings, unassisted. Bob Whittis, as usual, wore the harness behind the plate.

White Oaks lost to Tularosa in an 11 inning game by a score of 15 to 14.

The Carrizozo East-Siders (Charas) came from behind last Sunday to win their ball game from the Alamosordo Wildcats by a score of 15 to 9. The boys unloosened their war clubs at the most opportune time and from then on they sailed along at a fast clip. Ted Brusuelas was Captain St. John's choice to fling them over for the yellow birds, and this boy hurled good ball with Sanchez on the receiving end. Little Fred Martinez wielded the club like one of the old school. Councilman Juan Martinez, a baseball veteran of days gone by, umpired the game.

Next Sunday, Carrizozo plays the Alamosordo Trojans on the local grounds and the East-Siders will go to Alamo for a return game. Kayo, boys, let's hang up two more rags!

The baseball dance was a success both financially and socially.

Jack Walker and his Rhythm Kings

The above named and popular musical organization will give its grand opening dance for the summer season at Wingfield's Hall in Ruidoso, next Saturday night, June 2. On next Wednesday night, the orchestra will give a big Decoration Day dance. For more definite information, read the ad where Jack Walker, the Leader of the Rhythm Kings, will talk to you and tell you more about it. Better yet—after being fully informed, go up and give the boys a break.

Mr. and Mrs. J.M. Shelton and children will leave for Texas next week to spend J. M.'s vacation period with relatives and friends. They will be absent about one month.

The Woman's Club

The last meeting of the Woman's Club for the year was held Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Nellie Branum. Miss Ella Brickley, the president, presided, with Miss Thelma White, Sec'y, also present. The meeting was opened with songs, Mrs. Kelley at the piano and Mrs. Lemon leading the singing, followed by the Flag Salute. Roll call was well responded to with Mother's Day quotations, after which Mrs. Petty beautifully sang "That Wonderful Mother of Mine," accompanied by her daughter at the piano. Mrs. Blaney, in appreciation of her time spent in preparing an accurate history of the club at the birthday meeting of the club, was made Historian and a committee was appointed to assist her in figuring out a financial report of the club's money.

With Mrs. Branum as chairman, the club voted to outfit and furnish 10 kits during the summer, in answer to a request from the County Health Board. The usual $10 donation to the Harriet Donahue Scholarship Loan Fund was given. Also a $5 contribution to the sanitary movement was made. Mmes. LaVallee and Lemon gave very interesting reports on the district convention held at Ruidoso two weeks ago. The standing committees and officers gave their final reports. An auditing committee consisting of Miss Melaas, Mmes. Beck and Glassmire was appointed to audit the books of the secretary and treasurer. $75 was voted upon to be transferred from the checking account to the savings account, which meant to every loyal member, another bit toward our "dream," a Club House, which some day we hope to have.

Installation of the new officers was the last thing on the program, which was conducted by Miss Brickley. She asked each of the old officers to come forward and receive a rose in appreciation of their loyal support to her during her year.

New officers are: Mesdames C. W. Young, Pres.; J. M. Snyder, 1st Vice-Pres.; Miss Thelma White, 2nd Vice Pres.; Lemon, Sec'y; Miss Nellie Shaver, Treas.; Miss Ella Brickley, Parliamentarian. They came to the front for their installation and were also given a beautiful rose, and responded with many well chosen words. Mrs. Glassmire installed Miss Brickley. To close the installation service, Mrs. Beck very appropriately sang "I Love You Truly," accompanied by Mrs. Kelley. The club then gave a rising vote of appreciation to Miss Brickley for guiding the club through its 13th year and year of depression so successfully. Dainty refreshments were then served by the co-hostesses, Mmes. Taylor, Clouse, Rolland, Boughner, C. A. and Clint Branum.

Lep Ortiz broke the course record at the Golf Course Thursday afternoon when he shot 4 under par, 32. He was playing with Leonard Sanchez.

Clyde Barrow, notorious Texas outlaw and his sweetheart companion, Bonnie Parker, were ambushed and killed by officers near Arcadia, La., Wednesday morning.

Miss Helen Frances Huppertz held a dance recital at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Beck.

The Economy Grocery & Meat Market is making preparations to furnish the town of Carrizozo and vicinity with ice. A new addition is being made for the new enterprise.

Sam Bigger of Capitan was in town today, paying this office a pleasant call while here.

Secretary Ickes has earned a trust as chairman of the brain trust by comparing the Roosevelt administration to the advent of Christianity. It is such goofy statements as that which should be a boost for a national institute for the feeble-minded.

"We counted three (3) drops of rain that fell in the town of Carrizozo Tuesday afternoon," says Ralph Petty.

"We are all anxious for the new building on the Carrizozo Country Club to be completed," remarks Billy Gallacher.

ANCHO ITEMS

Last Wednesday evening, the Ancho school auditorium was filled to its capacity by a crowd from Jicarilla, Coyote and Ancho, who came to enjoy the graduation exercises of the 8th grade. The program was very interesting and showed that quite a bit of time and effort had been put forth. Due to the illness of Ola C. Jones, County School Superintendent, who was unable to attend and give her address, Miss Ruth Brickley of Carrizozo gave the address, which was followed by the presentation of diplomas by G. T. McQuillen, to the following: Bernice Brown, Miriam Hightower, Doree Ferguson, Edward Haskins, Corinne McMillan, T. J. Youngblood, Alpha Gravlee, Evelyn Ellison, Kathleen Shields, Wm. Alsop, Edgar Bell, Rosa Lueras and Elmo Dale. Prof. Bright presented the following with honor certificates for perfect attendance: Thelma Storey, Evelyn Ellison, Corinne McMillan, Ted Hobbs, James Torres, Myrtle Hobbs, Angel Ferguson and Sylvia Gresham. The Ancho Jicarilla school picnic was held in the Jicarilla hills. After a bountiful dinner, the balance of the day was enjoyed with a may-pole drill, races and a ladies' baseball game.

Bryan Hightower was surprised last Friday evening, when members of the Bridge Club rushed in and reminded him that he was still having birthdays. In games of bridge Mrs. Belknap was winner of high score. At a late hour iced punch and cake was served. Mr. Hightower received many gifts.

Mrs. Harry Straley was hostess to the Woman's Club at her ranch home last Saturday, for one of the most interesting meetings of the season. As the ladies assembled, Mrs. Kile announced she had quite a surprise in store for all. After the announcement, Master Tommy Knight walked in with a gavel in his hand and made the following speech: "It is with much pleasure that I present this gavel to the Ancho Woman's Club through the courtesy of Hon. John Garner, Vice-president of the United States." Mrs. Belknap responded with a word of thanks, for the club has been in need of a gavel for sometime. A rising vote of thanks was extended Mrs. Kile for her efforts and success in securing this gavel from the vice-president. Mrs. Belknap then called the meeting to order and the usual business session followed at which time definite plans were made for the Memorial program and clean-up day at the cemetery on May 30. Mrs. Bryan Hightower was in charge of the study hour and it being another home project, she gave a quite lengthy and thorough demonstration on various methods of canning pickles. A short social hour followed with Mrs. S. J. Pruett winning the prize. A palatable plate consisting of salad, bread and butter sandwiches, sliced peaches, cup cakes and lemonade was served to a large attendance of members and one guest.

Mrs. Bryan Hightower takes Mr. Bright's place as Sunday School superintendent.

Mr. and Mrs. R.R. Gillette and children have gone to their old home in Kansas where they will remain until the opening of the fall school term.

Big 20-Stamp Mill Burned At White Oaks

Tuesday afternoon about three o'clock, the stamp mill of the South Homestake gold mine at White Oaks burned to the ground. The fire, in spite of the watchfulness of D. L. Jackson, gained such a strong lead before it was discovered, that all efforts to save the building proved of no avail. The origin of the fire is not known, but happening in the middle of the afternoon would, it seems, appear as ample proof that it was not incendiary. As soon as the news reached here, Fire Chief Beck rushed up fire extinguishers and saved the cyanide tanks.

The mill was the property of the El Aviator Gold Mining Co., and was erected in 1887 at a cost of $50,000. It was operated until 1918. The fire was a severe loss to the mining interests of White Oaks. The loss was complete, as there was no insurance.

Cedars of Lebanon Are Planted in U. S.

Good Will Offering to People of United States.

Washington.—Sent by the American University of Beyrouth, Syria, as a good will offering to the people of the United States, 13 living cedars of Lebanon from the Phoenician coast at the eastern end of the Mediterranean were recently unloaded in America. At the direction of the President they were planted in the grounds of Arlington National cemetery, overlooking the Potomac river.

In the Bible these majestic trees are called "the trees of Jehovah, the cedars of Lebanon, which He hath planted." Their most famous appearance in history was when King Hiram of Tyre transported Lebanon cedars to Jerusalem for the building of Solomon's temple.

Famous Trees Never Numerous.

Scholars differ as to how many cedars of Lebanon there were in antiquity, according to the National Geographic society.

It is probable that at no time were the limestone ridges of the Lebanon completely clothed in these majestic trees. In ancient times the wood was already valued, not only for its great strength and resistance to rot, but also for its rarity.

Some decades ago, with the encouragement of Queen Victoria, the small remaining cluster of giant trees was inclosed by a stone wall. The trees had long been considered sacred to man, and Hadrian issued an imperial order that the groves should not be harmed. Later the Maronites, who have a small chapel amid this tiny forest, threatened excommunication for anyone who harmed the trees. But herds of goats have showed less respect than man, and by nibbling at the saplings have prevented new growth.

A count of tree rings, made on small branches, indicates that the Lebanon cedar has a slow growth and a long life. The cedars are not nearly so tall as sequoias, but they have thick trunks, as large as 47 feet in circumference. A notable feature is that the horizontal branches are so thickly carpeted with needles that the heavy, firm cones appear as though up-ended on a well-kept lawn.

On Republic's Flag.

The site of the chief cedar grove is one of rare beauty, the stage of a massive amphitheater miles across and 4,000 feet high. Immediately behind them the long line of the Lebanon rises to its culminating ridge, more than 10,000 feet above the Mediterranean.

The famous cedars are in the Lebanese republic, at the eastern end of the Mediterranean, just north of the Holy Land. Although the Lebanon is included in the French mandate with Syria, it has its own government under a Syrian president. The flag of the republic is the flag of France with a green cedar of Lebanon in the center.

The cedar of Lebanon also appears on the seal of the American University of Beyrouth, donor of the group of cedars to America, and lapel buttons bearing the university's insignia are worn by graduates throughout the Near East. The cedars have been studied by specialists of the university. Dr. George E. Post of the faculty, authority on Syrian botany, made the statement, "There is not and never has been a rotten Lebanon cedar. The wood is incorruptible. The imperishable cedar remains untouched by rot or insect." The wood, like that of the cypress and the sequoia, is close grained and aromatic.

Eye Expert Says Eight Proper Age for School

Boston.—Children should not be permitted to go to school until they reach the age of eight, in the opinion of Dr. Laurence P. Folsom, president of the New England Council of Optometrists. "The eyes of the human being," he says, "do not reach the state of maturity until the child is eight years of age, and much of the unnecessary strain to which we subject the eyes of children in the classroom should be avoided to insure healthy eyes among the future generations."

Christianity and Civilization

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

In a recent issue of a metropolitan newspaper appeared a cartoon in which our Capitol building at Washington was securely embedded in a huge rock which rose from an angry sea. The waves dashing against the rock were variously named: Marxism, Red Revolt, and Leninism. But the rock was named Christianity. That picture was more than a cartoon. It was a preachment of the highest order. In it rushes for expression, history, nationalism, patriotism and experience. The Gibraltar rock upon which all civilization safely rests is Christianity. This is the final verdict of history.

By Christianity, however, is not meant a traditional creed or an ecclesiastical tenet. It has no reference whatever to the "isms" which for so many centuries have given rise to the

Record Shot Put

John Lyman of Stanford university photographed as he was breaking the world's record for the shot put by throwing the shot 54 feet 1 inch.

"splits" in denominational organizations. It has no reference to the divisions which even now seem to make an organically united Protestant world impossible. Christianity as pictured in the cartoon, harks back to those fundamental virtues and beliefs to which every person can give assent, and upon which the entire Christian world can build a permanent civilization. Principles among these virtues is brotherhood—a condition of society in which the spirit of mutual helpfulness dominates and not the Epicurean philosophy "every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost." The principle of liberty is important, but it is in danger of being misunderstood. Liberty is not license. Liberty is always limited by the sanctions of the moral law. Christianity also eliminates the ultimate domination of that spirit of selfishness which always destroys. It emphasizes the importance of "service" without which neither nationalism nor business can succeed. Christianity has always emphasized the importance of education. Very near the church has always been located a school.

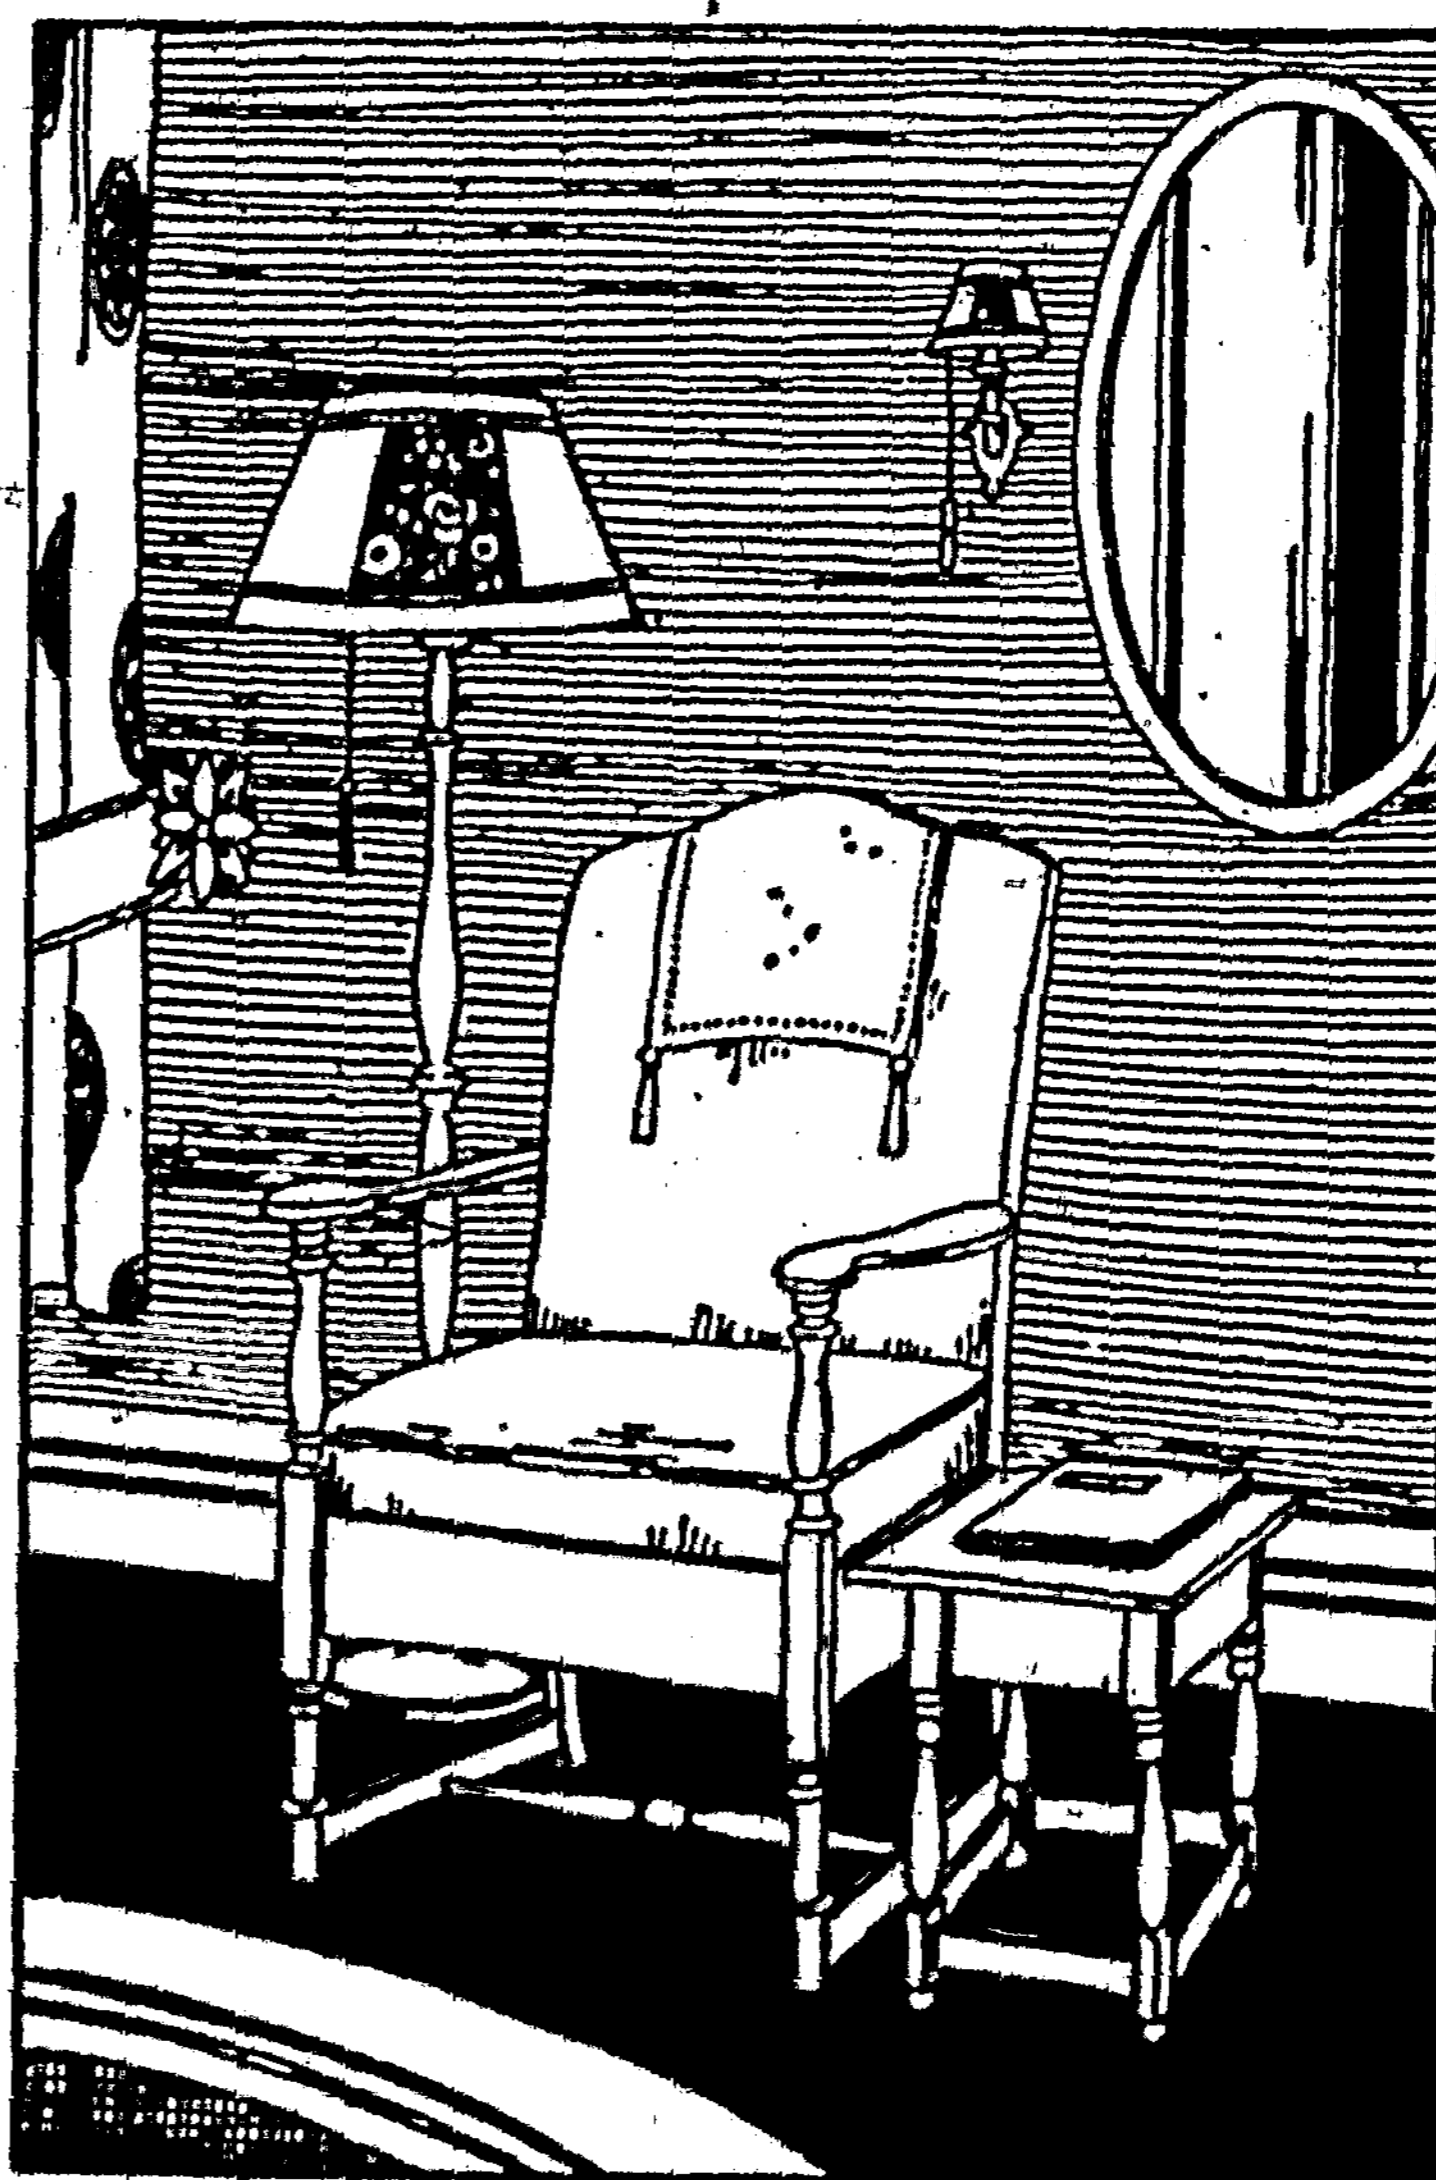

Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness will never perish from the earth if fortified by Christianity.

Sun Dogs and Halos
A sun dog, or parhelion, to use its technical name, is a bright spot which appears near the sun when sunlight shines through a thin cloud composed of ice crystals floating in the atmosphere. Halos are the result of the refraction of the solar rays by these crystals. Sun dogs are sometimes tinged with color, and may appear at all times of the year, because even in the warmest weather the temperature of the upper atmosphere is below freezing.

An Arrangement of Furniture and Furnishings to Accent Good Outline Decoration.

IF YOU wish to have your rooms attractive you must consider outline decoration. This is not confined to shapes of furniture and articles in the room, although these play a part. It chiefly consists in the imaginary lines which are subtly registered on the vision by the linear contours of articles against or close to the walls. For example some articles are high, some low. The eye takes in these differences almost as clearly as if a line were drawn on the wall up and down and across the tops of the things. If there is a continuity of high or low pieces the outline decoration is monotonous. It is inartistic.

It is essential, therefore, to introduce variety in heights of articles and also in sizes but any length may be a beauty of decorative outline. Fortunately there is in most persons an inherent, if unconscious appreciation of this essential detail of interior decoration.

Breaking Up Wall Spaces.
There is the expression, breaking up the wall space, which in effect, brings about much the same desirable result. However, the decorative outline has nothing to do with depth of articles but of their flat silhouettes, while the bulkiness or lack of it comes into the equation when breaking up wall spaces.

In the consideration of outline decoration there immediately springs to mind built in bookcases, with their long even line across the tops. Good decoration not only sanctions these shelved walls, but recommends them, notwithstanding the unbroken wall outline. There are two ways of breaking the monotony until it actually dissolves from the picture. One is when bookcases are from floor to ceiling, and the other when they end part way up.

Variety in Effect.

In the first instance the varying heights of shelves are restful to the eye, and couple this with the infinite variety in kinds and colors of bindings, and no monotony exists. In the instances of low bookcases, the shelves have the variegation of heights just mentioned, and the tops provide excellent opportunities for decorative ornaments. The difference in height of these things and the open spaces left between them relieves the evenness of the outlines. Care must be used in positioning the ornaments so that good outline decoration, the result desired, will be achieved.

It is well to study the treatment of rooms already decorated and furnished, and see whether the outline decorations are good or whether changes should be made for improvement. Do not sacrifice comfort to decoration, but so manipulate the things to produce good outlines without diminishing other necessary and desirable qualities and characteristics. It is the combination of comfort with artistry that distinguishes good decoration.

Some of the nations will gladly receive the message of the kingdom and most kindly receive the King's messengers. Others will persecute them, thrusting them into prison. Here those who receive the message will visit the messengers of the King and provide for their wants. At this time the Judge will separate the nations, placing the sheep on the right hand and the goats on the left. The sheep are those who give proper treatment to Christ's brethren, the messengers of the gospel of the kingdom. The goats are those who reject the message and mistreat the messengers. If these three classes, the sheep, the goats, and the brethren be kept separate in our thinking all confusion will be avoided. The sheep will enter upon the inheritance of a prepared kingdom. The goats will go into everlasting fire prepared for the devil and his angels (v. 40).

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart

Washington.—The Republicans are giving some indications that they intend to fight for election of their partisans in the next congress on the ground that the emergency is over and that President Roosevelt and his administration are continuing on a spending spree just to afford deserving Democrats with pie from the government counter. The tipoff as to the direction from which the attack will come across the other day without attracting a great deal of attention. It came from Representative Snell of New York, the Republican leader in the house, who opposed one of the newer brain-trust creations because he declared, unequivocally, "the emergency is over."

After Mr. Snell had made the statement, I inquired of a number of persons, astute in politics, what they thought of this anomaly. Here is a leader of the opposition party declaring that the emergency is over, and if that condition exists, the leader of the opposition, by inference at least, has admitted that credit for the job must be given the Roosevelt administration. I find as well that the Democrats can hardly admit the correctness of the statement without admitting at the same time that there should be an end immediately to the countless emergency agencies that the Roosevelt administration has set up. It seems to me, therefore, that we are witnessing one of the most ridiculous situations that has ever occurred in politics where peculiar things are the rule. Succinctly, it amounts to this: each side actually is contending that the other is right.

Of course, it should be said, much water will flow under the bridge before the votes are counted in November; indeed, many changes will have come before the congressional campaigns in the various states get stirred up to a white heat, but unless the course of battle now indicated is altered, I predict the campaigners will have to do some fancy high rope walking. It surely appears that getting one's own legs tangled up in those arguments is about the easiest thing in sight.

Curious possibilities are offered by the situation. For example, are the Democrats going to go out on the hustings and say to their mass meetings in effect that "we have not succeeded; we must keep the AAA and the NRA and others? And, at the same time, are we going to hear from Republican spellbinders that "the Democrats have licked the depression and they must now put an end to their orgy of spending and running up bills which the taxpayers must meet?"

Neither side, of course, will say it in those words. But, if the argument goes ahead as it has started, that will have to be the substance of their tale to the voters. There will have to be some very careful, as well as very quick, thinking before the campaign's end. One political observer here suggested that this may turn out to be a most confusing campaign because of the anomaly that is now presented by Mr. Snell's declaration.

There is considerable discussion here as to how far-reaching the effect may be if the Republicans stress, with sufficient vigor, the contention that the Democrats are trying to hold on to the extra jobs and that they are continuing to spend taxpayers' money for repayment of political debts. There is always something sinister about that kind of thing. Whether the charge is right or wrong, many voters get suspicious when campaigners persist in talking about raids on the federal treasury. They always think of it in terms of theft of money from the local bank or stores and not in the terms of political maneuvering, although I confess I can see little difference. It always has happened that the political party in power has controlled the flow of public moneys into the spots where the funds will do the most good, politically, and when either side kicks about that, it seems to me it is exactly like one mule calling another "longear."

I won't even suggest that I can guess what the ultimate effect of these strange arguments is going to be. Anyone who tries to predict the result at this time is just being silly. The best judgment I can get is that the results in the various congressional districts are going to vary. The difference likely will be dependent entirely upon how many mistakes—plain bonedhead statements—the various candidates make in their attempts to follow arguments and analyses laid down for them by the national political committees. My belief is that there will be plenty of them and there ought to be, therefore, a considerable amount of surprise when the votes are counted.

It is quite apparent to the Democratic leaders, and they say so, that a number of house seats, now held by Democrats, will be turned over to the Republicans next fall. There are seats occupied by Democrats who have no reason on earth to be in the house except by virtue of the tremendous landslide that placed Mr. Roosevelt in the White House. Districts normally Democratic are more than likely going to continue to elect Democrats, but the "political accidents" that elected many others of the vast majority in the house are going to send many home because they come from overwhelmingly Republican communities. The Republican leaders are asserting they will pick up eighty or ninety seats from the Democrats next November. There can be no doubt that they will gain some, but eighty or ninety is a high figure in anybody's language.

It seems to me that Representative Mark Wilcox of Florida has won a rather signal honor in his first term as "First Term" member of the house of representatives by obtaining passage of the legislation that has come to be known as the municipal bankruptcy bill. It is something like twenty years since a "freshman" member of the house of representatives has sponsored a piece of legislation of national scope that was passed and became a law. Plenty of new members have introduced bills, nationwide in their effect, but as far as my research has disclosed, none has been successful in the last twenty years.

Mr. Wilcox won membership in the house by defeating Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of the famed William Jennings Bryan, for the Democratic nomination in his district where the nomination is tantamount to an election. So he was given a baptism of fire before he ever reached the house itself. Whether it was the political prestige won by licking an outstanding Democratic woman, or for other reasons, the fact remains that Mr. Wilcox finally forced through a piece of legislation that constitutes something entirely new in our national structure of laws.

The measure, as I said, is national in scope and it probably will affect the financial status of some 2,500 communities which the bill calls taxing districts. This list of taxing districts includes municipalities, counties, boroughs, villages, parishes, townships, and incorporated taxing districts such as schools, drainage, irrigation, levee, sewer, paving, sanitary, port, or any other districts in which improvements have been made in bonds and sold to pay for them. In order to take advantage of the provisions of the law, the taxing district must declare itself to be insolvent and unable to pay the interest or principal of the debt. The officials of the taxing district may petition a federal court for the right to arrange its debt on a new basis, but the court must be shown that at least three-fourths in number and amount of holders of the bonds are willing to agree to the terms of a compromise. If they do agree, then the court may issue a decree that will compel the remaining bondholders to accept the settlement.

What happens, of course, is that the taxing district will be able to replace the defaulted bonds with a fresh series, probably at a lower interest rate. The taxing district gets out of the predicament of what amounts to bankruptcy, and the bondholders get new securities which are marketable and have something like their face value because the interest will be paid. This privilege is extended for only two years, but it is the general understanding that the communities concerned will be able to accomplish settlements with their creditors much sooner than that, and it is obviously hoped also that improved financial conditions throughout the nation will make the job of rearranging the debts easier than it was a few years ago.

The bill did not get through congress without a fight. It had plenty of opposition from members who contended it was a step toward repudiation of debt, a thing always to be abhorred. There was argument also that by granting permission for the municipalities and taxing districts to force such compromise as will result, the congress was making such securities less attractive to investors.

One of the obvious results of having the spotlight turned onto an individual or a fact or an issue is plenty of comment. People talk about it. Sometimes, however, the talk develops jokes and jests and oftentimes they are not pleasant for the ardent advocates of a proposition to swallow. For instance, until recently discussion of NRA had been confined to serious argument, very often of a heated character. Lately, however, jokes and puns about NRA have been emerging with greater frequency and there are now a considerable number of them. The latest, and one of the best that I have heard, runs as follows:

N. R. A. me down to sleep,
I pray Thee, Lord, my codes to keep;
If I should bust before I wake,
A. F. of L. my plant will take.

I heard already that the American Federation of Labor considers the reference to it in the doggerel to be closely akin to unfair practices, or whatever it is organized labor says about those who are not its supporters. General Johnson's reactions are not yet a matter of record, although I know he has seen the thing.

Visioning Auto of Future

Full Streamlining, With Considerably More Efficiency in Engines, Is the Forecast; Scientist Doubts Planes-Will-Take Place of Motors.

Every year the automobile shows turn our thoughts to next year's cars. But motor manufacturers, unless I am much mistaken, are at heart more concerned with the cars of two, three or even four years hence. If makers did not habitually look far ahead, the time would come when "next year's models" showed no changes at all except in body work.

Builders are experimenting with single-pedal control, with small engines producing even greater horsepower, and similar developments of the near future. Let us look at the car of ten, twenty and even fifty years hence.

The first objection that will be raised is: "Cars will not be used in 1984; every one will travel by airplane." I do not anticipate that flying will make such strides. Prof. A. M. Low, British scientist and author, writes, in the Philadelphia Public Ledger. We have first to establish the plane which can descend and ascend vertically, to overcome entirely certain weather conditions such as fog, and to find a way of getting more power from our fuel. For many years flying will call for lengthy training, and I put the time when the ordinary man will know how to land his plane on his own roof or in a gate at more than fifty years ahead.

Until this time motor cars will be necessary. In my opinion they will remain universally popular for journeys of less than 100 miles, especially as the average speed rises. But their character will change completely.

The first thing we shall notice about this car of the future is its shape. It will be as carefully streamlined as an ocean liner. There is no great inducement to streamline cars at the moment, for air resistance does not begin to count appreciably at low speeds, and the number of persons who wish to travel 80 miles per hour on our roads is small compared with those who drive comfortably at 28 miles per hour.

In the future higher speeds will be possible because of improved traffic conditions. Safe roads of reasonable width will be available. Slow-moving vehicles will be barred from motor roads, and pedestrians will either be rolled off or carried on overhead footways. Sixty miles an hour will be a safe average speed, while the absence of unbanked corners on these special roads will make much higher speed possible. Cars may even be signaled automatically like trains, so that no two cars are ever within 200 yards of each other.

Air resistance increases as the square of the speed, and after 60 miles per hour much of the energy is devoted to overcoming air pressure. Streamlining will, therefore, be of tremendous importance and the car of the future will have smooth lines from end to end. No spare wheel, headlight, windshield or mascot will jut out. The result will be that, with engines developing lower horsepower, higher speeds will be accomplished.

Manufacturers will aim at getting more out of their fuel. At present about 50 per cent of the potential energy in fuel is wasted. Experiments are now being made which may teach us more about combustion.

This year many cars are having radio sets installed. The cars of the future might have not only a radio receiver but also a cocktail bar, wash basin and many similar luxuries.

I expect the long-distance touring car of the future, as distant from the runabout, to have a bed, a bath and similar fittings, so that the busy man can actually "get up" while being driven to work.

One of the most striking changes will be the elimination of noise. The car of the future will be acoustically designed and cleverly sprung so that the passenger in the back cabin will not know that he is moving until he looks out the window.

Cattle Feed of Wood

Is Laboratory Product
The farmer who fed his horse on sawdust may not have been such a fool as the joke would have him. Among scores of other wood products which have come out of the Department of Agriculture's forest products laboratory at the University of Wisconsin, is a cattle food made of wood. Sawdust is cooked under pressure with diluted sulphuric acid. This action converts a portion of the cellulose and allied substances into sugar—and the cows like it.

A list of what can be done with wood sounds like a fairy tale. Here are a few of its odd by-products: Sugar, perfume, incense in the form of candles, parts of shoes, rayon, lipoleum, an inhalant for asthma and catarrh, alcohol, cascara, balsam, dyes, rubber, turpentine, lime and phonograph records.

Wood flour is used to make filler for linoleum. Mixed with nitroglycerin and other elements it becomes dynamite. With phenol resins, it may be molded into radio dials, handles of all kinds, telephone parts, automobile radiator caps and ignition blocks.—Washington Star.

MORE THAN 50% LONGER NON-SKID MILEAGE

IN THE NEW Firestone HIGH SPEED TIRE FOR 1934

THE new Firestone High Speed Tire for 1934 is the greatest tire Firestone has ever built. With its wider, flatter tread, greater thickness, deeper non-skid, more and tougher rubber, and greater non-skid contact with the road, you get more than 50% longer non-skid mileage.

This new development is made possible by the Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping, whereby the cotton fibers inside the high stretch cords are soaked and coated with pure liquid rubber. This provides greater strength, safety and blowout protection.

Firestone engineers pioneered and developed the first successful balloon tire in 1923, and it is only natural that Firestone would lead in the further development of tire construction to meet the demands of the high-powered high-speed cars of today.

The new Firestone High Speed tires for 1934, have already proved their worth by constant testing on the Firestone fleet of test cars over all kinds of roads and highways throughout the United States.

Firestone High Speed tires are further subjected to the most severe tests known on the greatest proving ground in the world—the Indianapolis Speedway. In fact, Firestone Tires have been on the winning cars in the annual 500-Mile Indianapolis Race for fourteen consecutive years—conclusive evidence of Firestone's outstanding leadership in tire development and construction.

EDITORIAL COLUMN

Grover's Days Are Over

When Grover Cleveland was president, the good Democratic state of Texas had a drouth and a corn crop failure. Congress passed a bill appropriating $25,000 to buy seed corn for the stricken farmers. Cleveland sent the bill back with the following message—
"I veto this appropriation because there is no warrant in the Constitution of the United States for taking of the funds which are raised from the taxes and giving them from one man to another, and I further veto it in order to teach the people the lesson that, while the people support the government, the government does not support the people."

Different lessons are being taught from different text-books. Congress, the President, and Courts are finding ample warrant in the Constitution for handing out public funds to private individuals, something which was not done at all through the 'hard times' of the nineties. Poor old Grover. How very old fashioned he was!

Striking a Popular Chord

(Roy Record)

Striking a popular chord among New Mexico citizenry as a whole, the action of the rank and file of the state's progressive party in official meeting this week in pledging a platform of benefit to the poor as well as the rich was received with loud acclaim.

The mere mention of a platform by the state's infant political organization that will not only be so many promises, but which also carries a guarantee of fulfillment, is heartening to the electorate of New Mexico, which year after year has seen wholesale breaking of campaign pledges and party platforms.

The two major parties for many years, have brought forth right sounding recommendations and promises for legislation for the masses, but without exception, hopes of the masses have been shattered and platforms thrown to the discard. The progressives have come forth with a proposal which appeals to the great majority of the rank and file, regardless of past party affiliations. The right sort of a party platform with sterling candidates to guarantee its fulfillment, will afford ample evidence that party emblems are fast being relegated to the political scrap heap.

Oregon Swats the Sales Tax

ARLINGTON

ART QUARTER OF NEW YORK SCENE OF QUEER CRIME

Twice Married Beauty Killed in Home of Bachelor, Former Playmate.

New York.—Greenwich Village has a new exhibit for wide-eyed tourists. This is a modest little cottage (with a very high rental) in MacDougal alley—the "coolest alley in the world," where rich and "arty" tenants have converted old stables into exoté studios.

Here two childhood sweethearts were reunited. Here the girl received fatal injuries in a wild struggle after midnight, in which statues were overturned and rich tapestries pulled from the walls. The girl's host, a young Wall Street broker, is held charged with her death.

Police radio cars screened with screaming sirens into MacDougal alley after neighbors had telephoned that "something awful was going on" in the broker's apartment. They found Edna Field Leavitt battered into insensibility, nude, dying. They found Arthur W. Morse, her host, nursing a face streaked by deep scratches, but denying responsibility for the girl's plight.

First Husband Died.

Then, with Mrs. Leavitt's death, it came out. She had lived near Arthur W. Morse in Brookline, Mass., Boston's fashionable suburb, and they had been childhood sweethearts. She married somebody else—David Leavitt, of Omaha.

Her life and Arthur Morse's diverged then. Her marriage created the romantic stir which attaches to the union of a pretty debutante and Junior leaguer and a prosperous bachelor. Then Leavitt died.

She married again, this time Charles Byington, a rich New Yorker.

Morse, meanwhile, went to Harvard, graduating in 1923. After that came five years studying banking practice in Vienna, London and Paris. Then Wall Street, and the little bachelor apartment with the restful tang of bohemia for his leisure hours.

Gets Hone Divorce.

Meantime, Edna led the life of the society matron—even to the Reno divorce which she received from her second husband. Morse was the prosperous and rising stock broker.

Then Edna came to town. Morse heard of her presence. Mystery closes down on the pair at that point. But friends say that Edna Field Leavitt grew weary of the life of a society divorcee. She left her five-year-old child by her first marriage with Mr. and Mrs. William Atkinson, her blue-blooded Brookline (Mass.) grandparents.

She came to New York, reviving an old flair for sketching; she had taken a course, long ago, at the Boston Art museum after graduating from the ultra-exclusive Mount Ida School for Girls. So in New York she entered the free-and-easy Village life with gusto. She registered at the Hotel Albert, in the heart of the arty settlement. She did some posing; in her spare time she sketched.

A village acquaintance relates that she met Morse after a few days in New York and was frequently with him.

What happened between midnight and 3 a. m. of that fateful morning, no one knows yet for sure.

The work is now in possession of Howard L. Holman at the Shadow Creek tourist court.

Takes Much Water to Quench Engine's Thirst

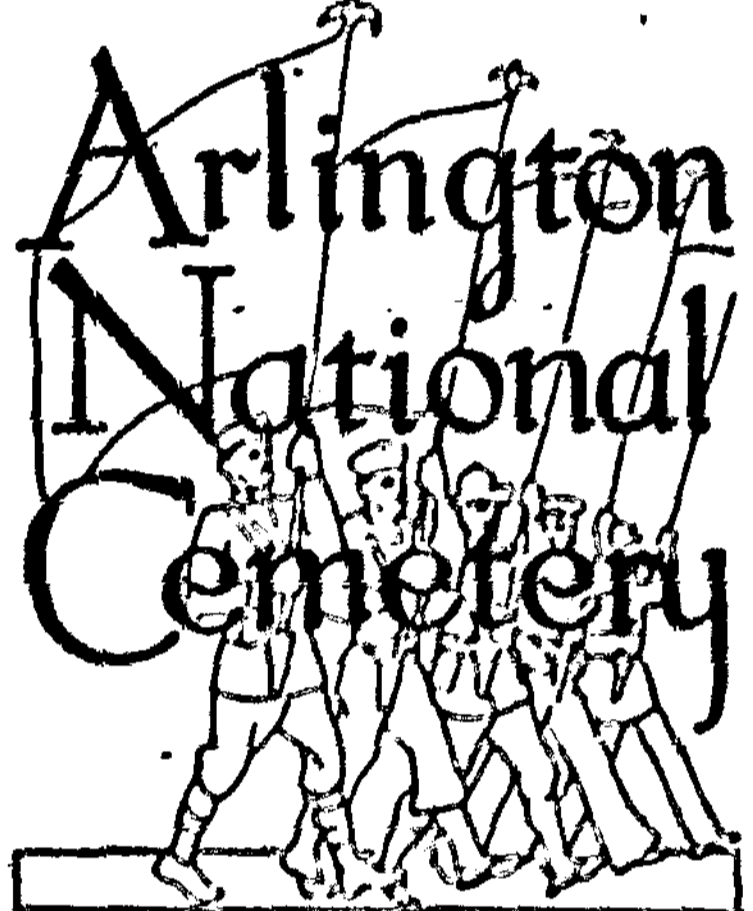

Long-distance nonstop runs and high speeds on our railways demand enormous quantities of first-class water, much of which is purified by being passed through water-softening plants before it is supplied to the troughs placed between the running lines at convenient points.

Between 3,000 and 5,000 gallons of water are carried in a locomotive tender, and into a series of troughs varying in length between 600 and 700 yards hinged scoops are lowered by the fireman of an engine running over the troughs, the speed of the train forcing the water through internal vertical pipes leading from the troughs to the tanks of the engine tenders. By this means, between 2,000 and 3,000 gallons of water can be picked up in 15 to 20 seconds, and on the assumption that a passing train picking up water draws 2,000 gallons from the troughs, it is calculated that the normal water level is regained in less than five minutes.

The water troughs are filled from storage tanks with a capacity of anything up to 30,000 gallons. Each trough has its own valve and auxiliary tank apparatus preventing the passage of a train on an "up" line reducing the level of a trough on a "down" line. The Flying Scotsman on its 392 1/2 miles journey from King's Cross to Edinburgh "drinks" on six occasions, picking up some 11,000 gallons of water.—London Answers.

Arlington National Cemetery

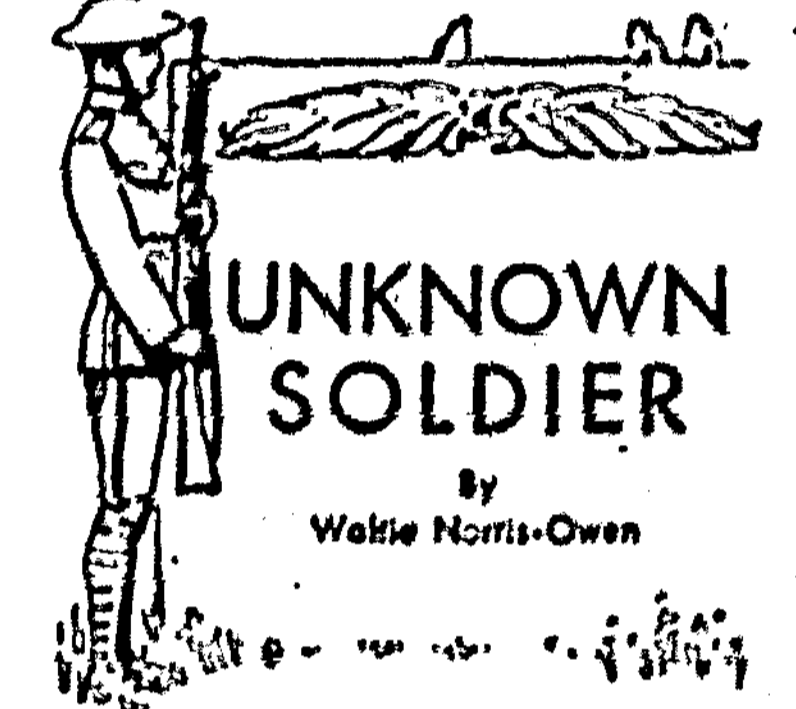

Hill on the Virginia hills bordering the Potomac river and facing the great monumental tomb, the Lincoln memorial, the Washington monument and the capital of the United States, is Arlington National Cemetery. Upon its 400 oak created acres are more than 40,000 carefully tended graves of American soldiers. Among these is the tomb of the Unknown Soldier of the World War and the graves of more than 4,000 unknown dead of other wars.

During the first nine months of the past year, Myra Ethel Cawson writes in the Washington Star, 761 flag-draped caissons were lowered into soldiers' graves in Arlington. On one day alone the solemn strains of "Taps" were sounded over eleven open graves. Yet this vast burial ground is only 65 per cent filled. It is estimated that, judging from the present rate of burials, there will be room for new grave plots in Arlington for approximately twenty years to come.

Although Arlington has been an official military cemetery for seventy years, its largest and most imposing structures were built since the World War. Among these is the great marble open-air amphitheater, where patriotic and religious services of various kinds are frequently held. Before this classic structure is the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, over which is a 72-ton altar of glittering Colorado marble cut from a solid block of stone.

This imposing monument tells its story simply: "Here rests in Honored Glory an American Soldier known but to God." On each of the longitudinal sides of the tomb are three wreaths symbolizing the six major battles of the American expeditionary forces in France. Three heroic figures, representing Valor, Victory and Peace, are

UNKNOWN SOLDIER

By
Walter Norris-Owen

Bury soldier boy, unknown, sleep on,
Sleep on
In peace. Of notes and din, you know your share
And more, in the great conflict over there,
So now, rest on, rest on—Those days
we grieve
No lovelier spot could shelter you, as dawn
With rising sun you are the first to wear
Her badge of gold. As twilight falls, with care
She slips it from your breast, each morn, to don.

The birds sing sweetest o'er your quiet place
As with bare head and gentle tread,
the wren
Of love and honor close we lay. With face Toward blood-bought flag we hear the taps. Beneath
Your eyelids white, sleep on, our boy! We trace
Through you the sword of war within the sheath.

—Washington Post

carved in alto relief on the base of the tomb.

The first soldier interred on the Arlington plantation after it was dedicated a national cemetery was Private William (Christian of the Sixty-seventh Pennsylvania Infantry. He was buried Friday, May 13, 1861. Since then soldiers from every American war have been laid to rest at Arlington. Several soldiers of the revolution were dug up from old graveyards and reinterred in Arlington. American history is graven deep on the rows and rows of marble headstones in this city of the dead.

Each imposing monument tells its story—the Temple of Fame, the Canadian Cross, the Confederate monument, the Spanish war memorial, the anchor of the battleship Maine, the Rough Riders' monument, the bronze equestrian statue of the decorated general, Philip Kearney, and the great granite sarcophagus over the grave which contains the bones of 2,111 unknown soldiers gathered in September, 1860, from the battlefield of Bull Run. "Their bodies could not be identified, but their names and deaths are recorded in the archives of their country."

The oldest known grave in Arlington is that of Mary Randolph, wife of David Meade Randolph, an officer of the Revolution and afterward the first United States marshal of Virginia. Mrs. Randolph wrote the "Virginia Housewife," a famous southern cookbook which was published in 1824. She was a frequent and welcome visitor to the Custis estate, then known as the Arlington plantation, for she was the aunt of Mrs. George Washington Parke Custis and the godmother of the latter's daughter, Mary Ann Randolph Custis, who married Robert E. Lee at Arlington. Mary Randolph died in Washington January 23, 1823, and was buried on the lawn of the Custis estate.

For more than a century and a half the hills of what is now our National cemetery have borne the name of Arlington. The name was given to the estate when John Parke Custis, son of Martha Washington by her first husband, acquired the plantation in the year 1778, for 11,000 pounds of Virginia currency. He named it Arlington for the old homestead of his ancestors on the eastern shore of Virginia.

American Boys Sleep in Suresnes

THE military cemetery of Suresnes, just outside of Paris, is one of the high points surrounding that city, writes a correspondent in the Kansas City Star. Before entering the cemetery one's attention is arrested by the magnificent view of Paris. As the eye travels over the city, it finally rests upon the white domes of the Church of the Sacred Heart, and on Montmartre just opposite, seemingly not far distant in the clear air.

Turning to enter the gates of wrought iron and gold which lead into the cemetery, one stops to analyze the medallion set in the center of each-crossed arrows, signifying the army since time immemorial; in the heart of the medallion, flanked on each side by the wings of the American coat of arms is an hour-glass, partly run—unfaded young lives.

From the gates is an avenue bordered by Linden trees, leading to a chapel. The altar of marble opposite the bronze doors is inscribed: "I Gave Unto Them Eternal Life and They Shall Never Perish." Back of the altar is a magnificent mosaic: "A Soul in Flight."

On both sides of the chapel are stained glass windows, each carrying an inscription; to the right—"Thy Light Shines Upon Them for Evermore," and to the left—"Thou, O Lord, Hast Granted Them Eternal Life." On the walls hang bronze tablets, upon which are listed the names of the 1,623 unidentified dead.

Of the 130,203 men who died during the World War, 80,378 are buried in the military cemeteries of Europe. The bodies returned to the United States numbered 44,307. Congress appropriated $30,000,000 to identify and return these bodies. At the request of their relatives, 42 lie in graves near where they fell. These graves are marked "Do not disturb."

At Suresnes sleep 1,541. Inscriptions on the headstones show the soldier's name, rank, organization, name of state where he entered the service, and date of death.

13 as House Number Was Unlucky for This Family

Tilbury, England.—Attached to a large number plate was a note. It read: "Herewith goes No. 13. For 18 years we have been stricken with the accursed thing."

The sign was received by the local council, when the number of the house was changed to 115, after being 13 for 18 years.

Its occupant is Mrs. H. Kane, and this is the "luck" she has had during that time. Her husband died soon after they moved in. Then her son was invalided out of the army with shell-shock.

Since then they have had to live on his debt and Mrs. Kane's pension, for he only has done three months' work in the last two and a half years. Once they threw the number plate away, but somebody brought it back.

Only Female Prisoner Deserts Reformatory

Ionia, Mich.—The only female "prisoner" in confinement at the Michigan state reformatory here recently escaped from the prison grounds. When last seen by guards she was headed due north toward the tall timbers near Ionia. This prisoner was Ann, a deer inmate of the prison woe, who found confinement too tiresome and leaped an 8-foot fence to liberty.

Curiosity Not to Blame
Port Chester, N. Y.—It wasn't curiosity that kept a cat sitting on a counter of Charles Hosh's delicatessen store for three hours while firemen fought a $250,000 fire. When the blaze was extinguished and firemen tried to lift the cat, it was found pussy was frozen to the counter. Its four kittens perished.

Flinds Rocks With Magnet
Unlabeled, Pa.—Numerous relics of the ill-fated Braddock expedition, which was destroyed by Indians near here nearly two centuries ago, have been found by use of a "magnetic balance," which detects the presence of metal in the ground.

HEARD ABOUT TOWN

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Franks were here from their ranch home near Corona Monday. They have had the same story of the drought to tell which exists throughout the County. Stock is suffering, and if this continues much longer, the bean crop will be a failure.

Golf Tournament and Country Club News

Saturday, Sunday, Monday, June 2-3-4, the Golf Tournament of the Southwestern Association will be held at the local grounds of the Carrizozo Country Club. On the days of the tournament, chuck wagon dinners will be had at the noon hour. On Monday afternoon the business houses will close, we understand, in order to give everybody a chance to attend on the last day of the tournament.

Contract has been let and work is already being done on the new building. Contractor Charley Jordan is now busy with a force of men, putting in the foundation and laying the concrete floor which will be in readiness for use in dancing during the tournament. Caretaker Harry Miller is getting the grounds in the pink of condition for the opening.

The new Country Club building will be 50 X 60 and will be up-to-date from every view point. It will have a reading room, billiard parlor, bath rooms, bowling alley and in fact, modern in every way. Carrizozo will then have a Country Club second to none in the southwest.

Harry Straley was here from his ranch in the Ancho country yesterday on some business.
