Mrs. Emma Baird of Sanger, Calif., has returned home after a visit with her sister, Mrs. Warden and other relatives.

The Vacation Bible School closed Saturday afternoon. The attendance was good and lots of good work was done during the week.

Jean Savage of Roswell and Jimmie Rogers of Albuquerque left Saturday afternoon after helping with the Bible School. They are in Pecos Mills this week helping conduct similar work.

Mrs. S. J. Pruett has about recovered from a severe summer cold.

The Woman's Club met at the home of Mrs. Jack Lemasters in the tall pines of the Jicarilla district, Wednesday afternoon, 25th. Though there was not a full attendance of members, owing to the distance principally, those present report a delightful afternoon. The study leader, Mrs. Drake, being among those absent, there was no study period, but the Roll Call, "Franklin Roosevelt," brought forth some interesting discussion. A pleasant social hour was enjoyed and delicious refreshments of sandwiches, cake, cookies and lemonade were served. The cool mountain breezes and the scent of the pines and the cedars, added much to the occasion. Visitors present were Meses. Reasoner, Roselle and Wade of Jicarilla.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Pruett will entertain the Bridge Club at an enchilada supper Thursday at 7 p. m. Games of Auction will follow.

Mrs. Allen Kils has returned from San Francisco, leaving Mr. Kils in the S. P. Hospital where he may remain for three weeks more.

School Notes

Ola C. Jones, Co. Supt.

At this time, the Lincoln Co. Board of Education is very happy to announce that all schools under its supervision have been placed as FERA projects and work has been begun on some of them. In the spring, these schools were placed as CWA projects and work was done on them until the same was discontinued. These unfinished and new improvements will be made on all schools concerned.

Mr. and Mrs. George Moore of Cloudcroft, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Woffard and Mrs. Helen McDonald of Alamogordo, were week-end visitors at the V. L. Cruse home. The ladies mentioned above are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Cruse.

Andy Padilla and Juan Baca have been familiar faces on Alamogordo avenue for several days. The boys have been working with the grader and tractor in the oiling of our streets, and they sure "sabe" their onions.

Three people were killed at a school election near Redbird, Ky., the other day and on being informed of that happening, Postmaster Herman Kelt seemed to think the people at that place take education seriously.

Mrs. V. L. Cruse and son Fred, will leave Monday for Norman, Okla., where they will visit at the homes of Mrs. Cruse's daughter, Mrs. Kirk May and sister, Mrs. W. H. Clark, for several weeks.

LYRIC THEATRE

R. A. Walker, Owner

Friday - Saturday - "International House," with an all-star cast. More stars than you saw when you fell down the cellar stairs! Also "Daddy Knows Best."

Sunday - Monday - Tuesday - "Dinner at Eight," featuring Marie Dressler, Wallace Beery, John Barrymore, Lionel Barrymore, Jean Harlow, Lee Tracy, Edmund Lowe, Billie Burke, May Robson and others in the greatest play triumph of fifty years—immortalized by the combined genius of Hollywood's greatest stars. Also "The Cracked Iceman."

Thursday is Lucky Number Night.

DIAMOND DUST

Diamond Dust is compelled to string a little black crepe over its door this week—and here we go: One, two, three and lay your bat down! Yer out!

It seems that these are the only words our boys heard in their initial game at the tournament in El Paso. The Odessa Oilers took our boys to an awful lambasting and made the Juarez race track look like a cow path. They scored 24 times to our 3. Some vallent man from Carrizozo should have stepped in and annulated the referee in the Baer-Carrera fight. Well, in the second game, the boys fared a little better—but they were playing Jewelers instead of ball players. The score in this game was 11 to 9 in favor of the Diamond Cutters.

The East-Siders took on the powerful Black Sox from Alamogordo at the local diamond last Sunday. Here goes again: Aside from 2 or 3 of the "Charras," they showed as much fight as a wounded jackrabbit. Joe Candelaria showed more spirit with his rooting and hand manipulating than the entire roost of birds. They first tried their luck with the usual amount of outfielders, but as the game progressed they unbenched the star chasser. He chased a fielder and ball at the same time, and he certainly lived up to his title. We have another prospect for you for the next game, Skipper St. John. Look him over! (?) was the score? We forgot.

The Carrizozo-White Oaks game was rained out at White Oaks and the same was played here after the Alamo-Carrizozo fray. The game was loosely played and Carrizozo won 14-4. Pat Dolan pitched his usual masterful ball with Tony Perea receiving his slants in true catcher style. Catcher Whitis played with the Madrid Miners against Santa Fe and they won 1 to 0. Lupe Flores of Tularosa reinforced the East-Siders.

Not all gloom: Ted Padilla's Amateur Sluggers beat Capitan on the east side diamond.

The Alamogordo Black Sox will play the Carrizozo Team on the local diamond next Sunday. The East-Siders go to White Oaks and the Sluggers to Alamo.

Mrs. Carl Jones entertained the C. O. Garrison family and their relative guests who are here from Iowa and Texas at her cottage on Eagle Creek Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. A. Adams of Three Rivers, is assisting Miss Jansen at the Johnson Hospital.

FORT STANTON NEWS

Each day sees more activity in the construction of the new power plant. New creosoted poles are being placed and shiny copper wire strung for the power lines.

Forty new cottages are being erected, a few of which will be ready for occupancy within the next two weeks. They will accommodate 80 men—2 to each cottage.

A temporary dining room is being put up in the rear of the infirmary kitchen, preparatory to the remodeling of the dining room and the kitchens.

After months of drouth, life-saving rains visited us last weekend. The grass roots are beginning to show signs of green, and it sure is good to see water running in the Bonito.

Dr. Porter, Commander-in-Chief, is taking great interest in providing and encouraging extra-curricula activities and amusements for the men.

Miss Virginia Fagan left Monday to visit Miss Marian Tappan at El Paso.

Mrs. Frances Weil, mother of Mrs. J. W. Tappan is the guest of Mrs. Genler.

Four sisters of Gene Geary spent a week with him on the Ruidoso and left Tuesday for their home in New Jersey.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Brooks and son Jack left Sunday for a vacation.

Little Mary Ann Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Cox, is slowly recovering from a serious illness.

Little Kenneth Dering, whose father is employed in Baca Canyon, was brought to the hospital Monday night for treatment of severe injuries to one hand. The boy was playing with a dynamite cap which exploded, carrying away three fingers.

Howard Houston left for his home in Seattle, Washington, on Wednesday.

Mrs. Hoover brought in a rattlesnake which was killed in her door-yard.

One may well appreciate these fine cool nights and perfectly livable days after reading the weather reports from the middle and central west. For an ideal summer climate, Lincoln County has much to recommend it.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Chavez and children are in Arabela visiting relatives for several days.

OSCURA NOTES

Marion Hust has moved his family to one of Taylor's ranches, where he has been working this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Vance Smith motored to Tularosa Saturday to take their daughter to visit her mother, Mrs. Scroggins, before she returns to her home in Tucumcari.

Buck and Sam Dillard made a business trip to the Jornada flats Sunday.

Several good showers have visited Oscura and vicinity which were surely appreciated.

Buck Dillard went to his ranch on the Malpais Monday, Tom Burns accompanying him to help him haul some wood, etc.

Elmer Wood was in from his ranch in the Oscura mountains last week, returning home Saturday.

The Dillard boys and Thomas Burns helped Mr. Thornton brand his calves Saturday.

The 'Revelers' will meet with the dance fans at Community Hall Saturday night.

In a letter from M. Doering of Doering's Bargain Store, who is attending the Century of Progress, he said the New Mexico exhibit is beautiful. The floor of the building contains two inches of White Sand from Alamogordo and the carpet weaving is very pretty. The building, as a whole, resembles an ancient Indian pueblo in part, with the remainder resembling Spanish adobe houses with lamps on the walls. The lady attendants are attired in native costumes and the hostess for July is Mrs. B.B. McGee of Las Cruces, mother of our esteemed high school teacher, Miss Maynor Fay McGee. Mike is delighted with the 'Fair and advises everyone who can possibly attend, to see the exhibit.

Rev. and Mrs. F. C. Rowland and children of Artesia, were visitors in town Wednesday and while here, they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Dudley of the Western Union.

Well, folks, here we are again with new music and new orchestration—See you at Community Hall, Saturday (tomorrow night.) Bill Mendenhall and his "REVELERS" Spectators Free.

OUT-OF-THE ORDINARY

To show how good intentions sometimes turn out badly, a Kansas man not desiring to disturb his wife when he came home at a late hour, slipped off his shoes and left them on the front porch. During the night the pup playfully carried the footwear across the street and left them on the porch of a pretty, young widow. Wife is now suing for divorce on the grounds of mental cruelty.

It was only a nickel, but Arthur Roxbury in New York had been out of work for two years, and that was the last cent he had on earth, but it cost him his life. He started for a store where he could buy enough leftover vegetables for his wife to make soup for their six children. Thinking he had more money, a negro jumped from the shadows of a building and made an attempt to rob him. Roxbury fled to a vacant building and the negro after him. When he reached the second floor with the pursuer still on his heels, Roxbury jumped through a window, landed on his head on the sidewalk and broke his neck.

The Lordsburg Liberal says that Billy Kerr, seven-year-old son of Fred Kerr, was scouting around the desert, when he found the remains of a stranger, the body having been in the open desert for several months and was almost mummified instead of decaying or being destroyed by wild animals. The only means of identification was a key check on which was the name of S. I. Duff, Wytheville, Virginia.

Registration Dates

Registration days July 27 28, August 4-11 18 25. These are the dates of registration. See that your name is on the books, otherwise, you can't vote at the fall election.

Handkerchief Shower

Last Saturday afternoon, Mrs. R. W. Dozier entertained at a handkerchief shower in honor of her daughters, Mrs. Montie Gardenhire and Miss Dorothy Dozier, the former's birthday being in July and Dorothy's in June. The affair was cunningly arranged as a surprise and perfectly carried out. There were 22 guests present and after cards and congratulations, refreshments were served consisting of fruit punch and two large birthday cakes made by the hostess for her two daughters, one of which was labeled "G," while the other cake bore the letter "D." The honor guests were recipients of many pretty handkerchiefs. Mesdames Fay Harkey and Albert Roberts assisted the hostesses in arrangements and serving.

John Dillinger, Public Enemy No. 1 of the nation, was ambushed and killed by officers as he left a theatre in Chicago last Sunday night.

Sam Bigger was a business visitor in Carrizozo this morning.

Miss Charlotte Burnett of Albuquerque was a guest of friends here Tuesday evening. She was enroute home from the Baptist Encampment on the Ruidoso.

PERSONALS

Mrs. A. E. Leinett, daughters, Mesdames Edith Crawford and Bessie Dingwall and grand daughter, Nadine Leinett were Roswell visitors last Sunday.

County School Supt., Mrs. Ola C. Jones left Tuesday for Albuquerque, where she is attending Rural Conference Week for County School Superintendents at the University. On Thursday, July 26, Mrs. Jones delivered an address, her subject being "County School Library Materials and Facilities." Mrs. Jones was accompanied by Miss Louise Jones of Roswell, sister of the late Tom Jones, who is the superintendent's guest for the week.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Brooks of Cisco, Texas, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Fuller and son Rollin of Fort Worth, who had been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. McClintock for a week, left for their homes Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Fuller are the parents of Mrs. McClintock, while Mrs. Brooks and Rollin Fuller are her sister and brother.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Land of Fort Stanton were Carrizozo visitors last Saturday.

Mrs. J. M. Beck, daughter Betty Allen and son Bill, who have been absent on a visit with relatives at Holyoke, Colo., for the past three weeks, arrived home last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Petty and sons were White Oaks visitors last Sunday, returning home in the evening.

V. L. Ellison of Ramsey's Pass, Texas, is staying over for a short visit at the ranch home of his brother, Robert Ellison, while on his way to California.

Mrs. A. L. Burke and daughter Rosalind of the Art & Gift Shop, acknowledge the gift of a bouquet of beautiful roses this week, from Mrs. T. G. James.

Mr. and Mrs. Gregorio Pino and Mrs. Henry Silva have returned from Las Vegas, where they visited Mesdames Nellie Guebara and Susie Archuleta and Miss Carmel Pino. Mrs. Guebara and Carmel are attending summer school, while Mrs. Archuleta makes that place her home. The folks are in receipt of word from Preciliano Pino, who is in a CCC camp at Saratoga, Wyoming. He is doing fine and asks to be remembered to his friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Lovelace have purchased the former Ben Lujan place and will begin the work of remodeling next week.

Little Leslie Boughner is spending the week on the Groce ranch near the Gran Quivira, riding ponies and having a great time.

Mrs. Earlets of New York, a sister to Mrs. W. R. Lovelace of Corona, came through here Tuesday from El Paso on No. 12, stayed over between trains and left on No. 4, accompanied by Mrs. Lovelace, who will visit with her sister for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. David Lucas are here from Lafayette, Colo., visiting relatives. They are the guests of the Ben C. Sanchez family.

Old Francis had taken out in reaching the fire fighters and carrying these logs. His crippled foot bothered him and so it was late to get when he reached the men who guarded the fire line.

"What's that?" Young Jim asked. "He was a man who had a crippled foot and was late to get when he reached the men who guarded the fire line."

"Look! This Man is Terribly Hurt!" Kate yelled. "He is a man who has a crippled foot and was late to get when he reached the men who guarded the fire line."

and did not dare leave off the task of looking that hand to the fire. The first rain fell and she pressed her hands down on the logs and watched the rain come down from the hills and the forest beyond.

"What's that?" Young Jim asked. "He was a man who had a crippled foot and was late to get when he reached the men who guarded the fire line."

Change of opinion, even. She turned a single eye to the white girl who stepped away from her with something like a gasp. A young man, he had said the man was, and here was a young man, a young man, a young man in her eyes.

"The man who had worked for her, perhaps was now dying for her and who, only a few hours ago, had kissed her right in the face of the dusty girl stretched and trapped at something deep in her heart."

"What's that?" Young Jim asked. "He was a man who had a crippled foot and was late to get when he reached the men who guarded the fire line."

Southwestern Briefs

The New Mexico Upper Stamp has been produced $2,000,000 so far, which includes $1,000,000 for June, the first month it was in effect. It was announced by Mrs. Anne Wherry in charge.

Railroad properties in Arizona were valued at $1,422,000,000 by the state tax commission for 1934 taxation purposes. The figure, it was said, was a decrease over last year. The valuation covers 1,212 miles in the state's frontier counties.

Presented $25,000 will get $25,000 in PWA money with which to build a check dam on the Hampana river and install a new sewage disposal plant at the earliest date possible, according to a communication just received.

Frank A. Roy, general manager in that community, now has the distinction of being founder of the village of Roy, New Mexico, his treasurer and manager. Roy, who founded the village of Roy twenty-five years ago, has been named manager by the village board.

Arizona counties will receive approximately $1,000,000 from the state for educational purposes during the 1934-35 school year, it was announced by the department of education. The money will come from state levies based on a $20 per capita school tax as passed last year by the state legislature.

New Mexico State Treasurer Clinton P. Anderson, recently returned from the Rotary International convention in Detroit, and has announced that while there is a black balance in the appropriations account for the first time since 1926, he does not think much if any of it will go to institutions whose appropriations were reduced.

Appointed by Secretary of the Interior under approval of the national planning board, his salary and that of his immediate staff paid for federal funds. H. R. DeBoer of Denver has been named state planner for New Mexico and will commence his work at once. De Boer is in charge of similar work in the state of Utah and will alternate his time, a week here and a week in Salt Lake City.

Construction of a diversion dam at Parker, development of the $20,000,000 Parker-Gild project and the acreage which should be put into cultivation in the Paradise-Verde district were subjects discussed by Dr. Elwood Mead, United States reclamation commissioner, on his recent visit in Phoenix. He conferred with members of the Arizona Colorado River Commission, officials of the Salt River project and officials of the Verde River Irrigation and Power district.

Announcement that the Indian hospital in Winslow, Ariz., heretofore would be officially listed as the Winslow sanatorium, and that it had been accepted by the American Medical Association as a registered hospital, has been received by Dr. L. R. Jones, superintendent. The hospital has been officially known as the Hopi-Navajo sanatorium, but now all business will be handled under the new name. To the layman the designation may not mean much, but to those who know, it means that the Winslow sanatorium ranks with all the first class hospitals.

National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart

Washington—Instead of July proving to be a month of calm, which is so often the case in the National Capital, it has turned out to be one of the busiest, politically, in recent years.

Senator Borah's argument is not yet apparent. They have two difficult problems in connection with the Borah attacks. In the first case, the Idaho senator really alarmed the Democrats to a certain extent when, in his individual talk, he turned one barrel on the Democrats and the other on the Republicans.

How the Roosevelt forces will combat Senator Borah's argument is not yet apparent. They have two difficult problems in connection with the Borah attacks. noise about the situation that the President eventually named the NRA board of review of which Clarence Darrow of Chicago was chairman. If Senator Nye takes up the subject along with Senator Borah, therefore, his attacks and criticism obviously will be directed at New Deal policies the way they worked out in NRA. With the Republican fire charging Mr. Roosevelt with full responsibility, it becomes plain that Senator Nye will be another thorn in the administration's side despite any statements he may make that he merely wants to correct some of the shortcomings.

A good many observers in Washington are inclined to the opinion that President Roosevelt's "Too Much Duplication" is beginning to take shape. His various boards and commissions and agencies to which he entrusted particular phases of the recovery program. The chances are, say these observers, that Mr. Roosevelt has seen too much duplication and overlapping of effort and is now engaged, through trusted advisers, in correlating the efforts to the end that some of the numerous "alphabetical agencies" can be redrafted.

The view above mentioned apparently was given birth by the selection of Donald Rieberg to serve as head of the so-called executive council for the next several months. Mr. Rieberg was given leave from his job as general counsel for NRA in order to take over the new work in which he succeeds Frank C. Walker. It was announced that Mr. Walker will have a merited vacation concurrently with the President's rest, and that Mr. Rieberg would act as the eyes and ears for the Chief Executive.

But there is more to the situation than these statements. The President is aware that there is an undercurrent of differences among some of his advisers, and such a condition, of course, is not improved by overlapping of authority. It is quite evident, therefore, that Mr. Rieberg has been assigned to the job of untangling the skein where several strings have become knotted. And, further, it seems to me to be only natural that there would be such difficulties where the structure of government has expanded so rapidly.

If one examines all of the facts as they stand, therefore, and has in mind how rapidly things have changed since Mr. Roosevelt took office in March, 1933, it would appear that the time has come for the settling down process.

Although foreign trade experts are scattered throughout the government and are doing everything in their power to promote foreign trade, exports of American farm products continue to slump, and only recently hit the lowest point in twenty years. The Department of Agriculture made public figures the other day disclosing that exports of farm products in May aggregated exactly 50 per cent of the average from 1909 to 1914. Since those years are regarded as normal and do not include the peak years after the end of the World war, May exports this year obviously were not much more than one-third of the record years.

There is always a decline in exports of farm products in the spring, but it seems to have been a lot worse this year than usual, the total being considerably below May of 1933. Cotton apparently was the commodity for which there was least demand, and when cotton exports fall off the whole average drops because our cotton exports cut a big figure in the total shipments abroad. Department of Agriculture figures show that there were only 290,000 bales of cotton exported in May, whereas in May, 1933, the shipments of this commodity amounted to 625,000 bales. Japan, Great Britain and Germany, the three principal buyers of American cotton, each took less in May this year than in the same month of 1933.

These conditions have happened despite creation of the Import-Export bank, of which George N. Peck is chairman, and the designation of Francis B. Sayre, assistant secretary of state, to give special attention to promotion of foreign trade. These two assignments are, of course, in addition to the various agencies of the Departments of Commerce and Agriculture whose job it is to encourage foreign trade. Better than anything else, perhaps, the condition illustrates the truth of the old adage that you can lead a horse to water but you cannot make him drink. If there is no demand for our farm products abroad, you cannot sell them, all of the theories of professors notwithstanding.

Clothes That Go Out for Good Time

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

NOW that everybody's taking to biking or roller skating regardless of age, and since all the world seems to be seeking tennis or golf grounds or sunny beaches where to frolic summer hours away, creators of fashion are kept busy thinking up apparel suitable for time, place and the game.

The grand thing about play-togs, whether you are young or old or in the between years, is that in these modern times they are so entirely set free from old-time rules and restrictions. The idea nowadays is that your clothes simply must not be cumbersome. They must permit untrammelled freedom of action and they must be as chic as they are "comfy."

Which explains why the shorts outfits have become so overwhelmingly popular. In this type of costume designers have not left anything undone that should be done to work out the problems down to the minutest detail of "style," plus service and comfort.

The fact that sports clothes are so skillfully designed is not their only lure for there is another element which enters into the scheme of things that lends infinitely to the zest of sporty attire—the materials employed. Such cottons! Such linens! They are that swaggy, that colorful, that altogether intriguing, one can scarcely comprehend that they come under the humble classification of utilitarian washable weaves.

Speaking of the new cotton, there is the new plucker stripe seersucker with its brilliant bands of color alternating with multicolored hair-line stripes, and the new cabana twill which is particularly smart in string color and the candy stripe nubby yarn cotton which, seeing, you will not be able to resist and those spongy rugged herringbone cotton coatings which are so attractive the more so in that they tailor like a woolen and wash like a pocket handkerchief—cotton weaves the likes of which would not have seemed possible in years of yore.

The same is true about the marvelous linens which have come out this season.

No one can say that the shorts ensemble shown to the right in the picture is anything but a winner in the arena of fashion. As to being thoroughly practical this threesome which adds a jacket and an easy-to-take-off-and-on shirt to a shorts outfit is about the best thing that ever happened in the way of a sports costume. This model is made of Irish linen in a thrilling shade of sail red. In her hand the young lady carries a new waterproof beach kit equipped with everything which will serve as first aid to seashore beauty.

The beach shorts to the left in the group is also made of linen of the coveted uncrushable type. It is in natural color and is tailored to a nicety, has the big sailor collar which is so important this season and buttons conveniently at each side.

Just to prove that in the new cottons the new linens have a most dangerous rival in the contest now going on for highest honors, we submit to admiring eyes the goodlooking shorts centered in the group. They are made of a ripple-text seersucker and as everybody knows there's nothing smarter in the realm of washable weaves than gay seersucker—a perfect answer to summer wardrobe needs—crisp, cool, sturdy, tubable.

BEACH TOGS BUILT ON SAILOR LINES

Half the beach clothes in the country are built along sailor lines, so style dispatches say. But it's in accessories and trims the fad gets into its full swing.

Rope is all over the place. Instead of straps, bathing suits now use wavy yarn resembling rope. Separate belts come in the same thing.

Buckles used to be just buckles, but now they're anchors. Rope belts, particularly, are hitched up garrish play suits of the more rough and ready type in the most surprising places, at the back where the straps cross, in the apex of a front V.

Matched Scarf and Glove Sets New Feature Mode

Nowadays it would never do to walk out in a pair of gloves that didn't match anything, in this day of passionate ensembling, when even your shoestrings have to match the color of your tie, or something.

Confronted with the difficulty of matching gloves to hats, as somebody timidly suggested at the beginning of the season, the cagey designers have now hit on the idea of presenting glove and scarf ensembles. And very nice they are, too.

Consider, for instance, the pictorial possibilities of a bow of sheer chiffon milaneze under your chin, matched by gloves of the same gossamer fabric. Or of a filled organdie collar on your best dark sheer frock, with matching organdie cuffed gloves.

Velvet-Ribbon Trimming

Velvet ribbons in lighter or darker colors than the frock, especially in shades of lighter blue on navy, or in bright red or green on white, make an effective trimming.

Plaid Madras Accents

Plaid madras from the West Indies, glass, string, leather and wood are strung together in fascinating array to accent summer playtime clothes for the country.

TOT'S BEACH OUTFIT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Beach fashions for wee folks show such novel ensembles as this. The dainty pleated shorts are bright blue. The anchor trimming on the little white blouse with the new halter neck, lends no end of fascination to this cunning juvenile costume. The beach hat is a la Chinese which shows how truly a style-conscious little lady is she who posed for this amusing and most delightful fashion picture. Sun suits for tiny tots are being made of mere scraps of material with a halter neckline and the entire back exposed to the sun's health-giving rays. Their cunning details bring a smile.

Lesson for July 29

MICAHIAH SPEAKS THE TRUTH

LESSON TEXT—1 Kings 22:1-40.
GOLDEN TEXT—And Micajah said, As the Lord liveth, what the Lord saith unto me, that will I speak, I Kings 22:14.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Man Who Told the Truth.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Man Who Dared to Tell the Truth.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Telling the Truth Under Difficulties.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Courageous Truth-Telling.

I. A League Between Two Kings (vv. 1-4).

1. Who these kings were (v. 2).

a. Jehoshaphat, king of Judah. He was for the most part a good king, having done much to put down idolatry and restore the worship of the true God.

b. Ahab, king of Israel. He was a weak and wicked king.

2. The occasion (v. 2). It was on a visit of Jehoshaphat to Ahab, perhaps for the cultivation of a friendly relationship in case of an attack by the Syrians, or it may have been because of a social relation incident to the marriage of Jehoshaphat's son to Ahab's daughter, the wicked Athaliah.

3. The purpose of (vv. 3, 4). It was a merger for the purpose of conquest. The fortified city of Ramoth-gilead had been ceded to Ahab as the result of a previous war, but it had not been actually turned over. Jehoshaphat pledged unreservedly the support of his people, without seeking the mind of God.

II. Advice From the Lord Sought (vv. 5-28).

Even though the merger had been formed Jehoshaphat was unwilling to go into battle without inquiring of the Lord.

1. Through a group of prophets (v. 6; 9-12). Some four hundred prophets responded to the call of Ahab. Who those prophets were we are not told. Evidently they were not prophets of Baal (1 Kings 18:19); neither were they true prophets of the Lord. They knew Ahab's wish and therefore sought to curry favor with him by encouraging him to follow out his desire. Zedekiah, their leader, symbolized the success of the joint campaign by the use of horns of iron. Jehoshaphat sensed the falseness of these prophets.

2. A message from the Lord's prophet desired (v. 7). The king of Judah was unwilling to carry out his contract with Ahab without knowing the mind of God as to the matter. This he should have sought before consenting to the merger.

3. Micajah speaks the truth (vv. 13-29).

a. He first speaks in irony (v. 15). The king's messenger who brought Micajah from prison advised him to speak that which would be pleasing to the king, but Micajah was not a manservant but God's faithful servant. He courageously declared that his message would be what God told him to say (v. 14). Regardless of result he would do only as God directed.

b. Micajah speaks plainly (vv. 16-28). Ahab detected the prophet's ironic speech and demanded of him the plain truth. To this demand Micajah responded by making clear the peril which awaited them. He also told Ahab that through lying spirits he would be lured to a place of death. This faithfulness on the part of God's prophet was rewarded by flouting and smiting by the false prophets and with imprisonment from the king. The true prophet will speak God's word regardless of consequences.

From Micajah's experience we should learn:

(1) The inevitable opposition between God's message and the purposes of evil men. This explains why true preachers of the Word of God are unpopular, and are called narrow and glum.

(2) The folly of the attitude of hatred against those who truly witness against them. Ahab hated Micajah because Micajah told him what would come to him for such a course of action. God's prophet did not make the evil but only made it known.

III. The Doom of Ahab (vv. 29-40).

1. He went forth to battle in spite of Micajah's warning. The issue proved that Micajah was right.

2. He disguised himself as a common soldier. He thought to escape the predicted fate through disguise, but an arrow from the enemy pierced him in spite of his armor. Ahab died as predicted and his blood was licked by the dogs as Elijah had said (1 Kings 21:10). There is a bitter end coming to those who will not heed God's warning. The only way to escape doom is to turn away from sin.

Greatest Happiness

There is only one thing greater than happiness in the world, and that is holiness, and it is not in our keeping; but what God has put in our power, is the happiness of those about us, and that is largely to be secured by our being kind to them.

Promise of God

I would sooner walk in the dark, and hold hard to a promise of my God, than trust in the light of the brightest day that ever dawned.—C. H. Spurgeon.

Old Francois had taken long in reaching the fire fighters and delivering Steve's note. His crippled foot bothered him, and so it was late, indeed, when he reached the men who guarded the fire line.

It was well after midnight before two canoes began their dash up the Good-Bye.

LaFane, in the bow of the first, stepped ashore at the Mad Woman trail. The battery of flashlights gave sufficient light for them to read the sign left there.

"Down . . . both of 'em," said LaFane, at the forking of the trail.

Any other would have believed so, too. The tracks of both men and the girl they followed took the right-hand fork and, with their faith so firm in the one who had led them all summer, it did not occur to them to search for further indications.

"It sure looks as if they went down river," LaFane repeated. "But we may be wrong. You,"—to a strapping young woodsman—"take the trail back to the Good-Bye and bring two canoes with plenty grub over here to wait for orders."

"Who'll go with you?" Young Jim asked. His voice was strained and his lips twitched in suspense.

LaFane said promptly: "Wartin and I. You and Mac scout the lake. If you find anything that looks hot, follow it. If there's no sign, come back here. We'll get word up if we need help below."

And so Young Jim Flynn entered the lake from which LaFane had dragged him a fortnight before, eyes scanning the near shore and the islands beyond.

Soon rain began to fall in a fine, persistent drizzle, restricting their range of vision. They went slowly, following the eastern shore line.

"What's that yonder?" Young Jim asked some time later, pointing with his paddle.

"Looks like a canoe." They headed on it and as they drew near old Mac said starkly: "Y G-d, 'tis a canoe!"

They went swiftly after the craft. "It's Young Jim's!" McNally said sharply, not yet knowing the strange tangle of names which had concealed identities from him and all the others except LaFane.

"Look!" cried the boy. "Isn't that a bullet hole?"

"One . . . two . . . Why, three of 'em!"

For a moment they stared at one another, mutely questioning. "He caught up with them!" the boy said huskily. "He caught up and there was shooting and . . . God knows what else!"

"All we know is that they're up ahead, son. We got no time to lose. No use proddin' around here any more. After murder, theft and, anyhow, more shootin' and whatever happened to Katie, he'll make tracks up country, if he's able. He won't be around here. Our only chance is to find where he leaves the upper river."

They began to paddle desperately.

CHAPTER XIII

The first drop of rain falling on her cheek forced Kate Flynn to a decision. To remove the pressure of her thumbs from that bandage might permit the blood to flow again; to leave this unconscious, weakened man exposed to a soaking might take away his last chance of ultimate survival.

Slowly, she relaxed the pressure she had held on the wound and anxiously watched the edges of that clotted gauze. No fresh flow appeared. The bleeding was stopped for the interval.

She hastened to the canoe and threw the duffle ashore. A tent was there, of balloon silk, packed in its bag. Swiftly she shook out the shelter and set it up over the spot where Steve lay.

She had the tent up before the rain became more than scattered drops. The clot over the wound still held. That was something to be thankful for but although she had accomplished that much she needed help.

She ran into the timber, gathering fuel, and heaped it in three piles along the beach, fifty paces apart, and, with matches found in Franz's pack, ignited her fire.

Three smokes, three shots; these are to the woodsman what the N O B is to the mariner.

The fire, however, must burn continuously, they must be fed, and with green wood, which would throw out dense smoke, but as she hurried back toward the canoe for a hand-ax she saw one of Steve's knees double and straighten again in a spasmodic movement.

She prayed again when she saw blood seeping from the wound. She pushed the rain beat out her face and did not dare leave off the task of holding that bandage tight. She just sat there and pressed her hands down on the bandage and watched the mists come down from the hills and blot out horizons. When the hard driven canoe passed her island, though it was within easy rifle shot, she had no indication of the nearness of friends.

The hours dragged on. For an interminable interval Kate Flynn sat holding the bandage firmly against Drake's side and then, as the mists gave way to a steady rain, he commenced to mutter and to stir again.

"Does it hurt?" she asked. No answer. "Do you hear me? Does it hurt much now?"

A mumble came from his lips, her own name, spoken so clearly and sharply that the girl started.

"Yes, I'm here! It's Kate, here with you!"

His eyes opened and stared at her blankly.

"It's all right," she said. "The bleeding has stopped. Please lie still so it won't start in again. Do you understand that?"

His lids fluttered closed but he lay still. Whether he had understood or not she could not know. He had locked his fingers about her small wrist and would not let go. After a time she tried to disengage his clasp so she might start the fire going, but

"What's that?" she asked. "The coffee has boiled. She fetched the kettle within and, spoonful at a time, dropped the hot fluid into Drake's mouth, persisting until he had swallowed several times.

"Coffee. No whisky," she said briefly and sat back on one hip. "He not bleed now. Coffee make him strong."

"But he must have help. Some one who knows all about injured people must be brought here or he may die."

Mary nodded. "And I can't go!" Kate cried. "I couldn't get back to headquarters. I couldn't carry a canoe across that trail. You can, can't you? You go for help."

"May-be. Not now. He is not hot. Maybe I go sometime. He needs me now. He is my friend."

"Friend?" A lightness came into Kate's tone as a wonder which was almost alarm asserted itself when the word caused her once again to think of the possible relationship of these two.

"Is your brother? I see you once. You are Ol' Jim's girl. I know. This,"—with a gesture—"Yo'ng Jim, he is my friend."

She was silent a moment, struggling against things, wanting to speak, not knowing just how.

"Me, I got no brother. I got nobody. Yo'ng Jim was good to me. He told Franz let me come here. He told Franz to leave me be. Franz . . . I Franz's girl long time. I say to Yo'ng Jim I be his girl. Wash, Cook, He tell me no. He tell me go to school. He is my friend," she repeated simply, as though it explained everything, and in the words was an infection, a quality which made Kate Flynn know that Franz had lied.

A low-brow came from Steve just then, which checked the many questions Kate wanted to ask. After a moment his brows furrowed and he uttered a weak, inarticulate word. Then, as if the effort of that had wearied him beyond measure, he let breath slip from his lungs and turned his head to one side.

Silently Mary moved away and replenished the fire. She heated the coffee again and forced more of it into Drake's mouth.

Throughout this interval Steve was strangely aware of voices near him. They came to his consciousness, however, as from a great distance, rushing nearer, retreating, as rapidly, all but fading out, then coming close again. He fought against an overpowering weakness, a terrible lethargy. He was in pain somewhere. Yet there was something he had to say . . . something on which more than his own life depended.

He could not remember what this was. For a time, he was at peace. Yes, more than at peace. He had a feeling of wonderful happiness. He was happier than he had ever been in his life. Some one he had always wanted to see was at hand; some voice he had hungered and thirsted to hear was in his ears. . . . Then things, even happiness, faded out, and after another incalculable interval he was aware of fretting again.

Home Rule on Isle of Man

The Isle of Man has its own unique form of home rule. No act of the British parliament applies to the island unless expressly so stated in the law. The court of Tynwald, one of the oldest legislative assemblies in the world, consists of a lieutenant governor appointed by the crown, and two chambers, the council and the house of keys. The 24 members of the latter are elected by popular vote, in which women share equal rights with men. All measures must pass both council and keys, and receive approval from the sovereign.

"Where he hurt?" she asked and Kate drew back the blankets to reveal the ugly patch on Drake's bared body.

"See? It doesn't bleed any more. I held it tight for hours until it stopped. Oh, what else can be done?"

The Indian girl then did a strange thing. She knelt quickly and took one of Drake's hands in both hers.

"Yo'ng Jim!" she called softly. "Yo'ng Jim!" Her voice hoarse.

"Yo'ng Jim, you all right?" She held her breath for answer but none came, no indicating movement at he clung the tighter and murmured thickly. It was not until nearly dusk that she could unlock his fingers and slip away without rousing him.

She dragged driftwood from the beach and made a pile of it behind the fire which served the double purpose of throwing heat into the open front of the tent and drying fuel for the night hours. Then she resumed her vigil beside the unconscious figure, determined to fight sleep with all the resources at her command.

So it was that Mary Wolf, paddling her light canoe through the steady rain, saw a point of warm light shining through the darkness.

This might be Franz, come to look for her despite Young Jim's command that he let her alone.

She went on, proceeding with utmost caution. But she wanted to know who was there. If it were Franz, she would not be forced to keep a watch for him afterward.

She thought she heard a sound, an odd noise which she could not identify, and as she was about to pass a point of the island which would screen the fire from her that sound recurred. She arrested all movement. That was strange. Another woman, crying here in a camp.

So the Indian girl came upon Kate Flynn, kneeling at Steve's side, begging him to speak, to make some sign that he was aware of her being there.

Her words covered the small sounds of Mary's approach through the rushes and it was not until the new arrival's shadow fell across Steve's figure that Kate started up, alarm and relief mingled in her heart.

"Oh!" she cried. "Oh, you've come! . . . Look! This man is terribly hurt! He was stabbed and has bled most of his life out!"

Mary appeared to give no heed. She stood bent over, hands crossed on her breast, eyes fast on Drake's drawn face.

"Where he hurt?" she asked and Kate drew back the blankets to reveal the ugly patch on Drake's bared body.

"See? It doesn't bleed any more. I held it tight for hours until it stopped. Oh, what else can be done?"

The Indian girl then did a strange thing. She knelt quickly and took one of Drake's hands in both hers.

"Yo'ng Jim!" she called softly. "Yo'ng Jim!" Her voice hoarse.

"Yo'ng Jim, you all right?" She held her breath for answer but none came, no indicating movement at

Southwestern Briefs

The New Mexico liquor stamp tax has produced $32,723.00 so far, which includes $29,222.90 for June, the first month it was in effect, it was announced by Mrs. Anne Thorpe, in charge.

Railroad properties in Arizona were valued at $34,112,621 by the state tax commission for 1934 taxation purposes. The figure, it was said, was a decrease over last year. The valuation covers 2,397.9 miles in the state's fourteen counties.

Prescott, Ariz., will get $123,000 in PWA money with which to build a check dam on the Hassayampa river and install a new sewage disposal plant at the earliest date possible, according to a communication just received.

Taos county, New Mexico, has been added to the secondary drought area and thus is eligible to apply for farm credit corporation loans, but does not come within the primary or emergency list and does not receive the cattle drought aid.

Statistics released by the state tax commission disclosed a decrease of $52,945,254 in the assessed valuation of producing mines in Arizona. Values of producing mines this year were placed at $23,236,331, as compared with $75,241,585 a year ago.

The forty-eighth annual convention of the Arizona Wool Growers' Association was held in Flagstaff July 10 and 11. Harry A. Petrie, chief of the cattle and sheep section, agricultural adjustment administration, Washington, D. C., was the principal speaker.

Frank A. Roy, pioneer resident in that community, now has the distinction of being founder of the village of Roy, New Mexico, its treasurer and marshal. Roy, who founded the village of Roy forty-five years ago, has been named marshal by the village board.

State veterinarian C. T. Guilfoyle has announced that the federal government has allotted Arizona $5,000 for brucellosis disease work for swine and cattle. It is expected that a further allotment will be made later to be used in elimination of tubercular cattle.

Five or six packing plants and canneries may be built in New Mexico by the FERA to handle stock and crop surpluses, it was announced recently in Santa Fe. It is contemplated to build a joint packing plant and fruit and vegetable cannery at Albuquerque.

The Arizona corporation commission has issued an order ruling that road contractors in the future may lease trucks for use in their work only from owners or lessors of trucks who hold an individual permit from the commission to operate as motor carriers.

Bids will be called for one penetration of twenty-six miles of Highway 66 in McKinley county, New Mexico, the state road commission announced. The contract calls for oil surfacing from Guam, end of the present oil road through Thoreau to the Valencia county line.

Consolidation of the regional office in Phoenix of the veterans' bureau with the veterans' administration hospital at Tucson, is not anticipated at any early date. Reports were received recently that such consolidation with transfer of the regional office to Tucson, was contemplated.

Arizona counties will receive approximately $1,519,885 from the state for educational purposes during the 1934-35 school year, it was announced by the department of education. The money will come from state levies based on a $20 per capita school tax as passed last year by the state legislature.

New Mexico State Treasurer Clinton P. Anderson, recently returned from the Rotary International convention in Detroit, and has announced that while there is a black balance in the appropriations account for the first time since 1926, he does not think much if any of it will go to institutions whose appropriations were reduced.

Appointed by Secretary of the Interior Ickes on approval of the national planning board, his salary and that of his immediate staff paid for federal funds, H. R. DeBoer of Denver has been named state planner for New Mexico and will commence his work at once. De Boer is in charge of similar work in the state of Utah and will alternate his time, a week here and a week in Salt Lake City.

Construction of a diversion dam at Parker, development of the $20,000,000 Parker-Gila project and the acreage which should be put into cultivation in the Paradise-Verde district were subjects discussed by Dr. Elwood Mead, United States reclamation commissioner, on his recent visit in Phoenix. He conferred with members of the Arizona Colorado River Commission, officials of the Salt River project and officials of the Verde River Irrigation and Power district.

Announcement that the Indian hospital in Winslow, Ariz., henceforth would be officially listed as the Winslow sanatorium, and that it had been accepted by the American Medical Association as a registered hospital, has been received by Dr. L. R. Jones, superintendent. The hospital has been officially known as the Hopi-Navajo sanatorium, but now all business will be handled under the new name. To the layman the designation may not mean much, but to those who know, it means that the Winslow sanatorium ranks with all the first class hospitals.

Washington Digest National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart

Washington.—Instead of July proving to be a month of doldrums, which is so often the case in the National Capital, it has turned out to be one of the busiest, politically, in recent years. A result of it is that, fully six weeks earlier than usually, the campaign issues for the fall elections are drawn squarely on President Roosevelt and the New Deal. With the initial blasts already in the record, it is quite apparent that the campaign will be predicated on the claim of the Republicans that the New Deal has not been what it was cracked up to be, and a defense by the Democratic spokesmen that we are all better off because of it.

Campaign Issues Drawn

But there is a third element to be considered in the coming campaign. It is the personality, influence and oratory of Senator Borah of Idaho. His sudden decision to do battle as a "lone wolf" has injected an issue in itself, and my information is that the Idaho senator's participation in the campaign is not to be minimized. He has a great following; he is an orator than which the country has produced few who are greater, and he has a finality about his decisions and methods of expressing them that is pretty hard to beat down.

President Roosevelt put his case before the people before he went on his vacation in his usually simple and direct style. No one deprecates his ability to do that, and I think, generally speaking, Washington observers are agreed that his proudest effort was made when he spoke to his millions of radio listeners late in June. I have heard much praise for the President as a result of his direct question to those millions: "Are you better off than you were a year ago?" Every one could understand it, and every one could analyze his own condition for himself. Of course, many of the Roosevelt opposition are criticizing the speech for "saying nothing" and for other reasons, yet I believe unbiased observers are agreed that Mr. Roosevelt opened the fall campaign of his party in a very clever manner from a political standpoint.

Respecting the effort of Chairman Henry P. Fletcher of the Republican national committee, in his opening blast, there seems to be little disagreement that he has taken a decidedly bold stand. If the Republicans are to get anywhere, it is obvious that it must be through Mr. Fletcher's leadership. When he went against the advice of some of his timid advisers, therefore, and made the President and his New Deal policies the issue, he displayed courage of a kind that is regarded around Washington as being a little unusual for a minority party chief. I am told that a good many Republicans wanted to peck away at various items of the New Deal and at various subdivisions of the administration to gain favor. Mr. Fletcher apparently chose to fly straight into the fight, marking Mr. Roosevelt as the adversary and holding him personally and directly responsible for whatever shortcomings can be unearthed as a result of a year and a half of unprecedented, breath-taking activity by the New Dealers.

Mr. Fletcher's program will not be easy to execute. For example, Senator Barkley of Kentucky, who was the keynote speaker at the convention which accorded Mr. Roosevelt the Democratic nomination, already has been on the air waves with an angered answer. The Kentucky senator did not pull his punches, either.

How the Roosevelt forces will combat Senator Borah's argument is not yet apparent. They have two difficult problems in connection with the Borah attacks. In the first case, the Idaho senator really alarmed the Democrats to a certain extent when, in his initial blast, he turned one barrel on the Democrats and the other on the Republicans. He did not mince words and the Democrats cannot say with respect to Senator Borah that he spoke in generalities. So in fighting back at him, the Democrats are confronted, first, with his disclaimer that he is fighting a Republican battle and, secondly, that he avoided direct charges. Nothing could be more direct than the charge that the New Dealers have built up a bureaucracy in Washington that destroys initiative and eats up taxes.

The Republicans can get away without paying any particular attention to the Borah bombardment. Whatever criticism he levels at the Roosevelt forces, naturally redounds to Republican benefit, and when Senator Borah says the Republicans are not fighting off monopoly, their natural answer is that they are not in control of the government machinery which has done away with anti-trust laws in favor of the codes and blue eagle.

I understand that there is a possibility of Senator Nye of North Dakota joining with Senator Borah, Senator Nye, although a Republican, supported the Roosevelt candidacy. It was the North Dakotan who conducted the fight against General Johnson and the recovery administration in congress last winter because of what Senator Nye felt was discrimination against the "little fellow" and in favor of big business. He made so much noise about the situation that the President eventually named the NRA board of review of which Clarence Darrow of Chicago was chairman. If Senator Nye takes up the cudgel along with Senator Borah, therefore, his attacks and criticism obviously will be directed at New Deal policies the way they worked out in NRA. With the Republican fire charging Mr. Roosevelt with full responsibility, it becomes plain that Senator Nye will be another thorn in the administration's side despite any statements he may make that he merely wants to correct some of the shortcomings.

Notwithstanding what the two "lone wolf" senators have to say or what Mr. Fletcher and front-line Republican orators charge, the Roosevelt forces are understood to be digging in behind the President's question to his radio audience.

A good many observers in Washington are inclined to the opinion that President Roosevelt

Too Much Duplication is beginning to "shake down" his various boards and commissions and agencies to which he entrusted particular phases of the recovery program. The chances are, say these observers, that Mr. Roosevelt has seen too much duplication and overlapping of effort and is now engaged, through trusted advisers, in correlating the efforts to the end that some of the numerous "alphabetical agencies" can be retired.

The view above mentioned apparently was given birth by the selection of Donald Richberg to serve as head of the so-called executive council for the next several months. Mr. Richberg was given leave from his job as general counsel for NRA in order to take over the new work in which he succeeds Frank C. Walker. It was announced that Mr. Walker will have a merited vacation concurrently with the President's rest, and that Mr. Richberg would act as the eyes and ears for the Chief Executive.

But there is more to the situation than those statements. The President is aware that there is an undercurrent of differences among some of his advisers, and such a condition, of course, is not improved by overlapping of authority. It is quite evident, therefore, that Mr. Richberg has been assigned to the job of untangling the skein where several strings have become knotted. And, further, it seems to me to be only natural that there would be such difficulties where the structure of government has expanded so rapidly.

If one examines all of the facts as they stand, therefore, and has in mind how rapidly things have changed since Mr. Roosevelt took office in March, 1933, it would appear that the time has come for the settling down process.

Although foreign trade experts are scattered throughout the government and are doing everything in their power to promote foreign trade, exports of

Exports Slump

American farm products continue to slump, and only recently hit the lowest point in twenty years. The Department of Agriculture made public figures the other day disclosing that exports of farm products in May aggregated exactly 50 per cent of the average from 1909 to 1914. Since those years are regarded as normal and do not include the peak years after the end of the World war, May exports this year obviously were not much more than one-third of the record years.

There is always a decline in exports of farm products in the spring, but it seems to have been a lot worse this year than usual, the total being considerably below May of 1933. Cotton apparently was the commodity for which there was least demand, and when cotton exports fall off the whole average drops because our cotton exports cut a big figure in the total shipments abroad. Department of Agriculture figures show that there were only 299,000 bales of cotton exported in May, whereas in May, 1933, the shipments of this commodity amounted to 628,000 bales. Japan, Great Britain and Germany, the three principal buyers of American cotton, each took less in May this year than in the same month of 1933.

These conditions have happened despite creation of the Import-Export bank, of which George N. Peak is chairman, and the designation of Francis B. Sayre, assistant secretary of state, to give special attention to promotion of foreign trade. These two assignments are, of course, in addition to the various agencies of the Departments of Commerce and Agriculture whose job it is to encourage foreign trade. Better than anything else, perhaps, the condition illustrates the truth of the old adage that you can lead a horse to water but you cannot make him drink. If there is no demand for our farm products abroad, you cannot sell them, all of the theories of professors notwithstanding.

Clothes That Go Out for Good Time

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

NOW that everybody's taking to biking or roller skating regardless of age, and since all the world seems to be seeking tennis or golf grounds or sunny beaches where to frolic summer hours away, creators of fashion are kept busy thinking up apparel suitable for time, place and the game.

The grand thing about play-togs, whether you are young or old or in the between years, is that in these modern times they are so entirely set free from old-time rules and restrictions. The idea nowadays is that your clothes simply must not be cumbersome. They must permit untrammelled freedom of action and they must be as chic as they are "comfy."

Which explains why the shorts outfits have become so overwhelmingly popular. In this type of costume designers have not left anything undone that should be done to work out the problems down to the minutest detail of "style," plus service and comfort.

The fact that sports clothes are so skillfully designed is not their only lure for there is another element which enters into the scheme of things that lends infinitely to the zest of sporty attire—the materials employed. Such cottons! Such linens! They are that swaggy, that colorful, that altogether intriguing, one can scarcely comprehend that they come under the humble classification of utilitarian washable weaves.

Speaking of the new cotton, there is the new pulker stripe seersucker with its brilliant bands of color alternating with multicolored hair-line stripes, and the new cabana twill which is particularly smart in string color and the candy stripe nubby yarn cotton which, seeing, you will not be able to resist and those spongy rugged herringbone cotton coatings which are so attractive the more so in that they tailor like a woolen and wash like a pocket handkerchief—cotton weaves the likes of which would not have seemed possible in years of yore.

The same is true about the marvelous linens which have come out this season.

No one can say that the shorts ensemble shown to the right in the picture is anything but a winner in the arena of fashion. As to being thoroughly practical this threesome which adds a jacket and an easy-to-take-off-and-on shirt to a shorts outfit is about the best thing that ever happened in the way of a sports costume. This model is made of Irish linen in a thrilling shade of saffron. In her hand the young lady carries a new waterproof beach kit equipped with everything which will serve as first aid to seashore beauty.

The beach shorts to the left in the group is also made of linen of the coveted uncrushable type. It is in natural color and is tailored to a nicety, has the big sailor collar which is so important this season and buttons conveniently at each side.

Just to prove that in the new cottons the new linens have a most dangerous rival in the contest now going on for highest honors, we submit to admiring eyes the goodlooking shorts centered in the group. They are made of a ripple-text seersucker and as everybody knows there's nothing smarter in the realm of washable weaves than gay seersucker—a perfect answer to summer wardrobe needs—crisp, cool, sturdy, tubable.

BEACH TOGS BUILT ON SAILOR LINES

Half the beach clothes in the country are built along sailor lines, so style dispatches say. But it's in accessories and trims the fad gets into its full swing.

Rope is all over the place. Instead of straps, bathing suits now use woven yarn resembling rope. Separate belts come in the same thing.

Buckles used to be just buckles, but now they're anchors. Rope belts, particularly, are hitched up garish play suits of the more rough and ready type in the most surprising places, at the back where the straps cross, in the apex of a front V.

Matched Scarf and Glove Sets New Feature Mode

Nowadays it would never do to walk out in a pair of gloves that didn't match anything, in this day of passionate ensembling, when even your shoestings have to match the color of your tie, or something.

Confronted with the difficulty of matching gloves to hats, as somebody timidly suggested at the beginning of the season, the cagey designers have now hit on the idea of presenting glove and scarf ensembles. And very nice they are, too.

Consider, for instance, the pictorial possibilities of a bow of sheer chiffon millinery under your chin, matched by gloves of the same gossamer fabric. Or of a frilled organdie collar on your best dark sheer frock, with matching organdie cuffed gloves.

Velvet-Ribbon Trimming

Velvet ribbons in lighter or darker colors than the frock, especially in shades of lighter blue on navy, or in bright red or green on white, make an effective trimming.

Plaid Madras Accents

Plaid madras from the West Indies, glass, string, leather and wood are strung together in fascinating array to accent summer playtime clothes for the country.

TOT'S BEACH OUTFIT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Beach fashions for wee folks show such novel ensembles as this. The delfly pleated shorts are bright blue. The anchor trimming on the little white blouse with the new halter neck, lends no end of fascination to this cunning juvenile costume. The beach hat is a Chinese which shows how truly a style-conscious little lady is she who posed for this amusing and most delightful fashion picture. Sun suits for tiny tots are being made of mere scraps of material with a halter neckline and the entire back exposed to the sun's health-giving rays. Their cunning details bring a smile.

MICAIAH SPEAKS THE TRUTH

LESSON TEXT—1 Kings 22:1-40.
GOLDEN TEXT—And Micajah said, As the Lord liveth, what the Lord saith unto me, that will I speak, 1 Kings 22:14.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Man Who Told the Truth.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Man Who Dared to Tell the Truth.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Telling the Truth Under Difficulties.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Courageous Truth-Telling.

I. A League Between Two Kings (vv. 1-4).

1. Who these kings were (v. 2).
a. Jehoshaphat, king of Judah. He was for the most part a good king, having done much to put down idolatry and restore the worship of the true God.

b. Ahab, king of Israel. He was a weak and wicked king.

2. The occasion (v. 2). It was on a visit of Jehoshaphat to Ahab, perhaps for the cultivation of a friendly relationship in case of an attack by the Syrians, or it may have been because of a social relation incident to the marriage of Jehoshaphat's son to Ahab's daughter, the wicked Athaliah.

3. The purpose of (vv. 3, 4). It was a merger for the purpose of conquest. The fortified city of Ramoth-gilead had been ceded to Ahab as the result of a previous war, but it had not been actually turned over. Jehoshaphat pledged unreservedly the support of his people, without seeking the mind of God.

II. Advice From the Lord Sought (vv. 5-28).

Even though the merger had been formed Jehoshaphat was unwilling to go into battle without inquiring of the Lord.

1. Through a group of prophets (v. 6; 9-12). Some four hundred prophets responded to the call of Ahab. Who these prophets were we are not told. Evidently they were not prophets of Baal (1 Kings 18:10); neither were they true prophets of the Lord. They knew Ahab's wish and therefore sought to curry favor with him by encouraging him to follow out his desire. Zedekiah, their leader, symbolized the success of the joint campaign by the use of horns of iron. Jehoshaphat sensed the falseness of these prophets.

2. A message from the Lord's prophet desired (v. 7). The king of Judah was unwilling to carry out his contract with Ahab without knowing the mind of God as to the matter. This he should have sought before consenting to the merger.

3. Micajah speaks the truth (vv. 13-23).

a. He first speaks in irony (v. 15). The king's messenger who brought Micajah from prison advised him to speak that which would be pleasing to the king, but Micajah was not a man-serve but God's faithful servant. He courageously declared that his message would be what God told him to say (v. 14). Regardless of result he would do only as God directed.

b. Micajah speaks plainly (vv. 16-23). Ahab detected the prophet's ironic speech and demanded of him the plain truth. To this demand Micajah responded by making clear the peril which awaited them. He also told Ahab that through lying spirits he would be lured to a place of death. This faithfulness on the part of God's prophet was rewarded by flouting and smiting by the false prophets and with imprisonment from the king. The true prophet will speak God's word regardless of consequences.

From Micajah's experience we should learn:

(1) The inevitable opposition between God's message and the purposes of evil men. This explains why true preachers of the Word of God are unpopular, and are called narrow and glum.

(2) The folly of the attitude of hatred against those who truly witness against them. Ahab hated Micajah because Micajah told him what would come to him for such a course of action. God's prophet did not make the evil but only made it known.

III. The Doom of Ahab (vv. 29-40).

1. He went forth to battle in spite of Micajah's warning. The issue proved that Micajah was right.

2. He disguised himself as a common soldier. He thought to escape the predicted fate through disguise, but an arrow from the enemy pierced him in spite of his armor. Ahab died as predicted and his blood was licked by the dogs as Elijah had said (1 Kings 21:10). There is a bitter end coming to those who will not heed God's warning. The only way to escape doom is to turn away from sin.

Greatest Happiness

There is only one thing greater than happiness in the world, and that is holiness, and it is not in our keeping; but what God has put in our power is the happiness of those about us, and that is largely to be secured by our being kind to them.

Promise of God

I would sooner walk in the dark, and hold hard to a promise of my God, than trust in the light of the brightest day that ever dawned.—C. H. Spurgeon.

EDITORIAL COLUMN

Queer Birds and Good Fellows

Newspaper men are always considered by people outside of the profession, as queer birds and perhaps they are, but the fact remains that there never was and neither will there ever be, a better set of fellows as a class, on the globe.

Last Friday morning after we were lined up for press, the front door opened and the sheep bell rang to announce the coming of Bill Robinson, present License Inspector, District 2, under the Lane Law, which he claims has decreased bootlegging 50 per cent and actually believes it.

Bill is one of the printers of the old school and can set more 8-pt. type than any printer in the state. Not only that but he is a noted editorial writer. He is a former Illinois journalist, but has put in the past 35 years in New Mexico. Bill has many friends in Carrizozo, all of whom were glad to see him; how could they help but be—he's one of the best fellows you ever met.

He is also a gifted after-dinner and wayside speaker of much note. Like others of our profession, he is charitable, but his heart is bigger than his pocketbook. The Outlook enjoyed a good chat with him on matters of importance in general. We recalled characters and happenings of years ago in eastern cities, with whom and which, we were both familiar.

We also discussed politics from one angle and cussed it from another. Along the political line, we found him deeply interested from the fact that he lays the claim to being a candidate for Governor, but he also knew we were, as he termed us, "Pizen Republican."

Among things non-political, Bill said the Outlook man, although 10 years his senior, had him beat a city block for good looks—thanks, for your sympathy, Bill. But let us be serious, if only for a moment. When you meet Bill Robinson, you feel as though you had known him for years; when his departing dust fades in the distance, he leaves you with some good food for thought. We found one fault with Bill, but we would not consider it criminal—he seems to think he is growing old, but we hope he will 'pi' that thought and throw it into the hell box before he visits us again.

That's Just too Bad!

Roy Record:

Rumors waited Royward from the state capital the last few days seem to have put a crimp on the crop of prospective democratic candidates for county office, if one can believe the whisperings of party politics.

Spend 110 Millions for New Buildings

Post Offices to Be Erected in 626 Towns.

Washington. — The administration has announced plans for the immediate expenditure of $110,000,000 in the construction of federal post offices and government buildings in more than 600 towns throughout the land.

Announcement of the program came from Postmaster General James A. Farley and Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau, Jr., accompanied by a carefully detailed list of the cities and towns in each state which are to be affected.

626 New U. S. Buildings. In all, 626 communities in every state and four territories have been selected for new federal buildings, according to the announcement. Half of the program 392 buildings—will be undertaken with the $65,000,000 authorized for that purpose in the recently enacted deficiency emergency appropriation bill. It was explained that 234 buildings will be constructed with "funds already available from other sources," it was explained.

In selecting the projects to be included in the new program Mr. Farley and Mr. Morgenthau stated they were guided by the language of the deficiency bill directing that they "endeavor to distribute the projects equitably throughout the country so far as may be consistent with the needs of public service," and "with a view of relieving country wide unemployment."

The announcement by Farley and Morgenthau said: "The acquisition of the necessary land and the preparation of plans and specifications will be taken in hand immediately with a view toward getting the contracts on the market and awarded within the shortest practicable time."

191 Lack U. S. Buildings.

"Of the 602 projects," the announcement added, "there are 191 communities selected which do not have any federal building at the present time, and where the average postal receipts amounted to approximately $29,500 per annum."

"In selecting the new list of building projects, the secretary of the treasury and the postmaster general have given consideration to the locations of the 624 projects already authorized under other funds but which have not been placed under contract. These will also be placed under contract as quickly as plans and specifications can be prepared."

"Every effort will be made in the carrying through of this program expeditiously with a view to relieving unemployment throughout the nation."

THIS NEW AGE By LEONARD A. BARRETT

The old world, by which we mean the times in which our forefathers lived, had certain standards of value which are quite in contrast with those practiced today. Our fathers believed in thrift. Economy was an essential element in all success and progress. A penny saved was a penny earned. The wealth of past generations was built up from savings. The first objective was to secure a home. When this was accomplished, land was purchased, and other investments made, but all from the year's savings; which in the space of a lifetime amounted in many cases to a considerable sum. In contrast, the principle which many persons follow today is just the opposite. Thrift is not essential to security. Spend all the money you can. Have a good time while it lasts. The more money you save, and thus keep out of circulation, only retards recovery. The restoration of prosperity seems to depend not upon thrift, but upon how much we spend. Buy, Buy, Buy—is the daily "urge."

Another difference in the norms governing these different periods is that of work. Our fathers thought nothing

The Household By Lydia Le Baron Walker

In This Interesting Group of Lawn Furniture Note the Bent Iron Frame of the Folding Armchair.

THE popularity of furnishing the lawn is emphasized by the many styles of lawn furniture that are now on the market. Many of the pieces are intended to be left out of doors in rain or shine. Once marble and plaster held almost sole sway, with occasional wrought iron pieces, and a few examples of hickory and bark-covered wood pieces. Today these are found but there are various new types, less stately and massive, and a bit more comfortable.

Instead of the heavy wrought iron settees and chairs is found bent iron furniture, with curved slats of iron but which have enough "give" to them to suggest springs, although it is true the springs would be stiff. The iron is painted in gay colors so that the green lawns form attractive backgrounds for the spots of color.

Upholstery. Sometimes the framework is of bent iron and the upholstery, if such a term can be used for the simple textile covering, is of awning cloth. Either models can be left out all the time without injury. The all iron pieces withstand the elements better, of course, but the furniture with the textile upholstery will last at least two seasons if heavy awning or tent cloth is combined with the iron. The colors cannot be expected not to fade some under the severe test of rain and summer sunshine. But then the material is not expensive and is so simply attached to the frame that anyone can "re-upholster" the pieces.

There are tables of bent iron with each two legs made of one continuous strip of iron so that the tables rest on flat bars of the metal rather than four separate legs. Many of the bent iron chairs have similar standards for legs. The advantage of such legs is that the lawn is not punctured with little holes where chair or table legs cut through the sod. There are card table sets of table and four chairs of this bent iron work, so that those who delight in bridge, can find a table ready placed, and chairs also, where the beauty of flowers, greenward, and shade trees, can be enjoyed while cards are dealt and played.

Gliders and Covers. Iron gliders come in a great array of styles, many of them have removable seat and back cushions. These can be the only things carried indoors as necessity demands. Or if preferred, these can remain out and have the protection of rubberized coverings made expressly to slip over the gliders, and obviate the necessity of taking the upholstery in the house.

It is quite the correct thing to have cushions as upholstery for all the furniture which remains out unprotected. It is a very simple matter to put the cushions out and take them in, and they certainly soften the furniture to luxurious ease. If the covers to these cushions are of some of the many waterproof textiles, it will not hurt them to be out occasionally, but in heavy and prolonged storms they should be brought in under cover.

New Highway Will Climb High Up the Mountainside. Reno, Nev.—A highway soon to be constructed will climb to within 300 feet of the 10,800-foot Mount Rose near here. The road will be one of the highest in the United States. Engineers said on clear days the gilded dome of the California state capitol at Sacramento, more than 100 miles away, may be seen.

Rabbit Builds Its Home in Nebraska's Capitol

Lincoln, Neb.—A Nebraska cotton-tail rabbit, possibly with political aspirations, chose the steps of Nebraska's $10,000,000 state house as a place to rear its young. Surprised yard men, watering clumps of low shrubs on the first landing of the steps leading to the main entrance of the huge building, found a nest of the new-born rabbits.

Best Hill Climber

"Windy" Lindstrom, nervy Los Angeles motorbike rider, annexed the feature event of the national championship hill climb held on the Weilmann ranch at Colababas, Calif., when he surmounted the stiff 78 per cent grade in 10 seconds flat. The time is believed to be a new world's record for such a course.

of working ten or twelve hours a day. They rejoiced in work. Work usually came first and pleasure afterwards. Work to them was the basic essential of life. Little children were taught to do their share in the day's toll. Many young people went to school only in the winter because of the demand for work during the other seasons of the year. Today, it is not how much work we can put into the day, but how little. A five-day week of eight hours to the day seems to be the usual requirement. Forty hours of work a week in contrast to anywhere from eighty to a hundred a week in the days of long ago. We emphasize leisure and claim its rightful place in the program of the week's toll. Our fathers took their leisure at the end of the day when it was too dark to work, and they spent the time in reading; we take our leisure any old time, and many times cannot tell just how we spend it.

To our fathers the produce of the land was utilized to feed the hunger of both man and beast. Today we kill the cattle and regulate production of the fields in order to stabilize a price while man goes hungry. Our fathers toiled with their hands, we use machinery. Yet we hear it said "We are now witnessing the birth throes of earth's first genuine civilization." Are we?

Indelible Laundry Marks Great Aid to Policemen

Detroit, Mich.—Cleaners and laundries have returned to the practice of putting identification marks directly on the garment. Detectives had informed them that their system of placing a label with the customer's mark to the article of clothing robbed them of valuable clues in identifying both criminals and victims.

King John Signs the Magna Charta

Six thousand persons were enlisted to take part in the great Runnymede pageant in England, re-enacting one of the most famous chapters in the history of the country. In this illustration King John is seen signing the Magna Charta in the presence of the barons.

Warm-Weather Frock Cleverly Designed

PATTERN 9921

A belt that ends on each side of the front just where the slenderizing point begins is a clever device for making a woman who has to consider lines, look her best. With warm weather, a few light-colored frocks must be put in work—and light colors make a woman look larger unless her pattern is designed—like this one—to offset that effect. This frock is a safe and satisfactory choice for a print with a light ground, or a plain fabric in a lovely summer coloring.

Pattern 9921 may be ordered only in sizes, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 38 requires 3 1/2 yards, 39-inch fabric and 1/4 yard 9-inch lace. Complete diagrammed sew chart included. Golden Relics of Old Race

Discovery of Ornaments and Trinkets of a Long-Past Period Has Aroused Archeologists to Speculation as to the Makers.

Four or five years ago several poor and ignorant natives were piling their way in a canoe up the Rio Grande de Cocle, a large river in western Panama about 90 miles south of the Panama canal. The dry season had lowered the river. As the small craft made its way upstream, the keen eyes of one of the natives noted something glittering in the bank.

In a few minutes greedy hands were tearing at the soil, for they had found pieces of gold. The fact that the gold articles were objects of art beaten into curious and beautiful shapes by hands long dead, did not interest the natives. But it did interest scientists. When word of the find came to the Peabody museum of Harvard university, a party of archeologists went down to investigate. The scientists worked in secret for three years, and have now returned with a store of gold objects worth a king's ransom. In the opinion of Dr. S. K. Lothrop, leader of the expedition, they represent the art of a civilization in Panama that has hitherto been unknown to science.

The chance which brought scientists to the spot was due to a shift in the bed of the Rio de Cocle. In changing its course the stream cut through an ancient burying place. The gold ornaments which excited the interest of the natives were part of the funeral dress of some long-forgotten chieftain, buried not only with his richest possessions of metal and pottery, but surrounded also by his wives, retainers, servants and slaves.

The abundance of similar finds made by the Peabody museum party in its three-year sojourn in Panama was almost without precedent. Describing the results of the expedition recently in the New York Times Magazine, Doctor Lothrop reported that from one grave alone, measuring no more than 12 by 14 feet, more than 2,000 objects were removed.

The grave contained a score of bottles, laid out in rows upon massive stone slabs. Filled over and around the bones were 90 different objects of gold, including four heavy pendants, set with semi-precious stones, six gold necklaces containing thousands of beads, four large and heavily embossed golden discs, twenty-eight discs about 3 inches wide which had once been sewn on a shirt, four pairs of gold cuffs and twenty-four rods of gold with decorated tips, for insertion in the ears.

There were 225 pottery vessels, both for domestic service and for religious offerings. There were 57 stone axes and chisels, five gold chisels, 21 stone knives, 100 stone arrow points, nine mirrors of hematite set in limestone discs, pendants and beads of agate, statuettes carved from the ribs of the manatee or sea cow, some of them overlaid with gold; wild boars' tusks set in gold, sting-ray spines and saw-fish teeth used as spear points, sharks' tooth necklaces, crystals, gilded copper ornaments and many other objects.

"Such a list gives but a pale picture of the reality," said Doctor Lothrop. "Gold does not tarnish in the earth and it appeared gleaming in the sun as our knives and brushes removed the accumulated layers of dirt, intricate designs beaten in high relief met the eye; huge breastplates embossed with mythological monsters; gold cuffs running in sheaths from wrist to elbow, each pair stamped with a distinctive design or property mark (corresponding to our coat of arms); complex castings of strange anthropomorphic gods fashioned in molds over delicate models in wax.

The richness, variety and fine workmanship of these possessions indicate that a well-established, wealthy and highly organized culture produced them. Doctor Lothrop and his associates believe, from a study of the relics, that the Panama peoples were unrelated in culture either to their neighbors the Mayas and Aztecs to the northwest, or the Incas to the south. In short, the discovery of these graves has brought to light remains of a hitherto unknown American civilization, as great and important in its way, perhaps, as any of the others.

relate that a party of Spaniards in search of gold left the coast of Panama in 1515. Moving inland, they came to a district ruled by a powerful chief, named Parita, who by a stratagem administered such a crushing defeat to the Spaniards that they were driven off.

Several years later a band of Spaniards searching for him found his body elaborately decked for burial, surrounded by bound captives who were to accompany him to his grave. His body was adorned from head to foot with golden ornaments and many others were in baskets nearby. Stripping the body and robbing the baskets, the Spaniards returned to the coast with more than 300 pounds of gold.

Parita and his subjects were probably remnants of the once-great civilization which produced the ornaments and relics recently uncovered by archeologists.—From the Literary Digest.

RELATIVITY THEORY

The Einstein theory embodies the idea of the relativity of all motion. The hypothesis in the main is that it is impossible by physical experiment to measure the absolute motion of the body through space; that there is nothing out in space in the nature of a fixed set of co-ordinates with regard to which motion can be measured. There is no such thing as absolute motion of one body with respect to another.

THE NEW Firestone CENTURY PROGRESS TIRE

Beyond Comparison IN QUALITY AND PRICE WITH ANY FIRST QUALITY TIRE MADE

As the millions of World's Fair visitors saw tires made in the Firestone Factory and Exhibition Building, we asked thousands this question: "What do you value most in a tire?" Car owners from every state in the Union were interviewed—drivers of automobiles, trucks, and buses—and out of it all came one answer: "Give us Blowout Protection, Non-Skid Safety, and Long Wear, at moderate price."

Firestone engineers used every resource in developing a tire with these qualifications and selling to the public at a price in reach of every car owner. The answer is the new Firestone Century Progress Tire.

COMPARE QUALITY — CONSTRUCTION — PRICE

This new tire is in EVERY way the equal or superior of any other first quality tire built, regardless of brand — name — or by whom manufactured, or at what price offered for sale. Call on the Firestone Service Dealer or Service Store and examine it. We know you will be sold on the rugged quality. You will want to equip your car with these new tires.

REMEMBER — you save money buying today, as rubber is up 442% and cotton 190%. Tire prices cannot remain at these low levels.
