ANCHO ITEMS

Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Hightower entertained the Bridge Club Friday evening. Jack Pruett was awarded high score.

The Woman's Club will hold a regular meeting Saturday afternoon at the Johnson Hotel with Miss Mary Crawford as hostess. We urge all members to be present as there are several very important questions to be brought before the club.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert. Penix and daughter, Mary Catherine of Corona were week-end guests of Mrs. Penix's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Frame.

Bryan Hightower was Carrizozo visitor Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hefren and Poole Earnest attended the Fair in Roswell Friday.

Prof. Bright was among those who motored to Capitan last Saturday.

The school is having a program every Friday afternoon and everyone is invited.

Mmes. Allen Kile and T. J. Straley are in Carrizozo with Mrs. Walter Silvers of Duran, who is at Johnson's Hospital taking treatments.

NOGAL NOTES (By "CHICO")

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Helms and Arthur Helms have moved to their homestead across to the Malpais.

Miss Lola Gossett is staying in Carrizozo with Mrs. Iron Davis.

Jim Ayres was a Carrizozo visitor Monday.

R D. Martin from High Rolls CCC camp, Des McDaniel and Roy Hust from Capitan CCC camp were home over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams, daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Crandall from Arkansas are visiting Mrs. Homer McDaniel this week.

"There's 'bars' in them thar hills," as several have been seen in the orchards near here.

Mrs. Sam Cox and daughter Mary Ann are visiting Mrs. F. W. Skinner this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson of Hagerman visited their daughter, Mrs. Frankie Peacock.

Miss Pauline Richardson was a Carrizozo shopper Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Simpson of Corona, were here Tuesday evening, attending to some business matters. George is a candidate for County Commissioner from the second district and highly popular, not only in his own community, but over the entire county. Having resided in the county for many years, makes him well acquainted with the needs of our people. He is actively engaged in the stock raising industry. In his announcement, which appears elsewhere under the proper heading, he solicits the support of the people and if elected, he would make an ideal representative for Lincoln County.

CORONA NOTES

Paul and Earl Porter were here from Weed last week-end.

Mrs. Alice Sultemeier spent Monday afternoon visiting with friends in Corona.

Congratulations: Mr. and Mrs. Carl Reynolds on the birth of a son, Sunday, October 7.

Miss Mildred Jameson went to her home in Albuquerque for the week-end.

Miss Geraldine DuBois visited with her father and friends in Tucumcari from Friday until Monday.

a—All participants in Track with their teachers and truck drivers will be given their noon day lunches, will be admitted free to the football game and track events, but not to the basketball games. A budget of $40 will be set up and prorated to the schools that send participants for truck expense, in proportion to mileage traveled, one truck to the district.

b—The Merry-go-round and Ferris Wheel will set up Wednesday preceding the Fair and will run through into the next week. Every school student will be given a free ride on each. They should secure a pass from their teacher as follows: "Pass Mary Jones, Dist. 1." The teacher will sign this and the student may present it to Helen Strauss, Sec'y of the Meet and she will issue the pass for the rides.

c—Teachers should send in the names of entrants at once so that they may be given a number before the program goes to press. Kindly rush names to Helen Strauss, Carrizozo.

d—Capitan, Corona and Tinnie basketball teams will receive $10 each for expense.

e—General admission to grounds will be 25c forenoon, 50c afternoon, family tickets $1.00 Free admission as before stated.

f—Admission to dances 75c Friday night, $1.00 Saturday night.

g—Admission to basketball games 15-35c

FORT STANTON NEWS

A number of local citizens attended the Democratic convention at Capitan last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hendren left last Sunday morning to visit relatives in Ft. Worth and Tulsa.

Dr. Patterson lectured to the staff and patients in the Amusement hall Wednesday night.

A Junior Sunday School class has been organized at the Episcopal Chapel with Mrs. R. Porter, teacher; W. White, Pres.; Velma Burleson, Sec'y; Dorothy Brooks, Treas., and Gene Merrill, Publicity. Mrs. Hendren is musician.

Mrs. Jeanette Lumpkins of Capitan is now in charge of weaving at the O. T. Dept.

The new power house is assuming definite shape and machinery is being installed. A huge trench lined with concrete is being extended to the kitchens, infirmary and quarters. Steam, electric, water and drain lines will be enclosed in this conduit.

Mrs. Berry visited her daughter Jean in Albuquerque over last week-end.

The ladies of the Craft Shop organized an automobile ride for the hospital patients Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. M. E. Burleson is visiting the Burleson family.

Jetty Avant of Capitan spent last Sunday with Velma Burleson.

Perry Land, material officer, is the prime mover in organizing a Fort basketball team among the employees. Mr. Land is interested in all athletic games.

Under the administration of Dr. Porter, Commanding Officer, everything possible is being done to provide various forms of amusement, diversion and occupation for the men. Athletic teams are in process of formation; religious services increased and extra-curricula activities fostered.

Dr. and Mrs. Porter spent last Sunday at Payman's Cabin on the Ruidoso.

The boys are casting dubious glances at the new dining room, wondering if it will be ready for occupancy before the snow flies.

Now that the World Series is ended and the light of battle has faded from the eyes of the fans, it is safe to walk around without a bullet-proof vest.

Roy Shafer, who announces for County Commissioner from this district on the Republican ticket, is a young man of exceptional qualifications, which would make him, like his running mate, Mr. Simpson, a 100 per cent county commissioner. Mr. Shafer is proprietor of the Carrizozo Auto Company and is also a member of the local school board. In his line of business, he has been successful and from that view-point, it would stand to reason the county's business would be handled in a like manner. He solicits your support.

Mrs. Harriett Kimball Dalton was a visitor from Capitan last Saturday.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Lumpkins of Capitan were Carrizozo business visitors on Tuesday of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. French are here from Albuquerque and will remain until the campaign is ended.

Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Sale left Wednesday for Chicago, where they will attend the Century of Progress, after which they will visit other points of interest before their return.

Mrs. E. V. Abeysa of Capitan was a Carrizozo business visitor Wednesday, returning home in the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Rolland made a trip to Santa Fe the latter part of last week and visited their daughter, Helen and this morning, they left for Roswell to witness the football game between Roswell and Clovis in which, Poe Corn, is coach for Roswell. Hope you win, Poe.

In his talk at Community Hall last night, Denny Chavay, (to quote Paul Dodge of the Tucumcari News,) accomplished nothing except hang on to the tail of Pres. Roosevelt's kite. The array of speakers sidestepped many state issues, among which was the Democratic pet baby, the SALES TAX!

In the column of political announcements will be seen the card of L. J. Adams, present county treasurer, who is again before the people of the county for re election. Mr. Adams has served the county in his present position for one term and according to political custom, his party again places him on the Democratic county ticket and he asks your support. In placing his card in this paper, he does so in order to reach as many voters over the county as possible in soliciting support.

Sad Misfortune to White Oaks Light Plant

Tuesday morning, the light plant of the New Mexico Light & Power Co., at White Oaks burned to the ground, leaving no salvage and no insurance on the entire works, since which time, White Oaks, Carrizozo and residences along the line which depended on the plant for light and power have had no service, as a matter of fact.

The fire originated, as near as can be ascertained, in the bath room above the engine room, where bath service was provided for workmen at the plant and in the coal mine, the number of men employed being 21. The fire was discovered at 4:30 in the morning and before the men could locate the source of the fire, the building burst into flames and in spite of heroic efforts, the structure was soon consumed.

It was a sad blow to Carrizozo, but a much greater one to the company, which has been making every effort to give the desired service and just when it was at its best, the calamity occurred. What will be done about rebuilding or what arrangements will be made for future service, is not known, neither will it be known until Mr. Fulmer, who is now in El Paso, returns to make his plans. The Outlook extends its sympathy to the company in its hour of misfortune.

CAN IT BE DONE? - By Ray Gross

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Compton and daughters motored to Gallup Sunday, spent Monday with Mr. Compton's mother and returned home Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Nick Vega and children were Tularosa visitors this week.

John E. Brady, Republican candidate for Sheriff was a business visitor from Hondo Wednesday.

A number of State Republican candidates will be in Lincoln County next Wednesday, Oct. 17. Watch for announcements and attend the speaking.

Libya Pierces Deeper Into Northern Africa

Given Additional Territory by Three Nations.

Washington.—Libya, Italy's colonial possession in northern Africa, has been enlarged by a British-Egyptian gift of land adjoining it in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. News dispatches from Rome also indicate that France will cede to Italy her Saharan territory of Tibesti, bordering on southern Libya and touching the new accession from Great Britain and Egypt.

"Libya, without the additional territory, is more than twice as large as the state of Texas," says the National Geographic society. "While official limits of the African territory ceded by Great Britain and Egypt have not been announced, it lies approximately between the 19th and 24th degrees of east longitude, and the 10th and 22nd degrees of north latitude. The area is triangular-shaped desert land, 200 miles long on its northern, and 200 on its eastern edge.

Largely Uninhabited.

"Tibesti is a mountainous region south of the Tropic of Cancer, lying just west and south of the triangle. It is now a part of French Sudan and is situated approximately between the 15th and 20th degrees of east longitude, and the 20th and 24th degrees of north latitude. The effect of these joint cessions will be to extend Italian Libya some 200 miles deeper into central Africa.

"Emi Kuel, the highest mountain in the Sahara, towers over surrounding Tibesti peaks in the region proposed to be ceded to Italy by France. The Tibesti massif comprises a succession of peaks, gaps, and dried up river beds rather than a mountain chain, extending into the desert region ceded by Great Britain and Egypt.

"Water sources in Tibesti are frequent but good pasturage areas are rare. Temperatures are mild near the base of mountains and icy-cold near the summits. Snow, if ever, below freezing however. Date and palm trees grow in Tibesti and besides camels there are goats and donkeys. Except for a few nomadic tribes—Kousouba, Touhou and some Senoual—the region is for the most part uninhabited.

Lack Water and Pastures.

"Presenting a more orthodox desert aspect than the proposed French cession, the Anglo-Egyptian territorial gift is a broad tableland of shifting sands, occasional mountain regions, little pasturage, practically no rain, a hot climate, long caravan routes broken by scattered wells, oases at widely-separated points, and few habitations.

"Water supplies may be replenished at the well of Sarra, located in a stretch of hard, reddish sandstone 160 miles south and west of Kufra in Italian Libya. Let southeast-bound caravans drink deeply, however, because it is 500 miles to the next oasis at Unlianga, French Sudan, over a route containing no pasturage. Many camels have been sacrificed on this journey. Pasturage has been found 90 miles to the east of Sarra in an unexplored mountain mass not exceeding 150 to 200 square miles, and estimated to reach a height of 4,000 feet.

"Oases are nearer on routes north of Sarra. The Arkenu, in the southwest corner of Egypt, and the Ouenat, in Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, are not far away, although it is believed that the latter has not been included in the British-Egyptian cession. Still farther north is the oasis of Kufra, Italian Libya, the last stronghold of a once powerful religious sect, the Senoual.

"Industrious, the Senouals have succeeded in growing melons, grapes, bananas, and some vegetables at Kufra. Olive trees and many date trees are grown while chickens and pigeons are raised, and camels, sheep, donkeys, and a few horses are bred. Kufra once was the trading center for camel caravans from the south. South and west of the Sarra well, the new accession comprises desert, sand dunes, zones of occasional dry grass affording meager grazing for camels, shifting sands, and no habitations."

Start of Drouth Beef Processing

W. G. Kirk of the bureau of animal industry; A. L. Wagner, state relief committee auditor; L. G. Harris, plant superintendent; and Dr. B. L. Robertson, federal meat inspector in the packing house at Albia, Iowa, where the first of the federal drouth beef processing plants has been opened. Five of these plants are planned for Iowa. Cattle are bought by the federal surplus relief administration and the beef prepared for distribution to the needy.

Opium Smoking in U. S. Shows Big Increase

Federal Agents Alarmed by Sudden Spurt.

Washington.—Opium smoking, which in recent years had declined in the United States, is showing an "alarms increase" the bureau of the Treasury department revealed.

Seizures of opium opium by federal agents last year totaled 149 pounds, or twice as much as in 1932. The bureau reported that it made no secret of the fact that it views the development with alarm.

Partly out of the prepared opium and the ready demand, came from China or Japan and to be mostly a blend of the Chinese and Persian products.

The largest seizures were on the Pacific coast in the Hawaiian Islands and in the Philippines, nearly all of the drug coming to the coasts by ship from the Far East.

On the Pacific coast the most popular brands were found to be "Cheung" and "Yuh Kee"; in the Hawaiian Islands, "Lam Kee" and "Lo Fook Kee," and in the Philippines, "Lion," "Dragon" and "Tonger" all identified by federal agents as originating in the Far East.

The price in the illicit traffic remained about the same as in 1932, but officials said this was due to the increased demand taking up the additional supply believed to be available.

FOREST QUEEN

47 Soviet Labor Unions to Be Split in 154 Units

Moscow.—In line with the Soviet union's new policy of decentralization in government and industry, the All Union Trade Unions council has decided to split Russia's 47 trade unions into 154.

The purpose of this decision, which has the personal support of Josef V. Stalin, secretary general of the Communist party, is to make the unions more efficient and stronger. It was explained, and bring the men into closer contact with union leadership. The divisions will be both geographical and occupational.

For instance, the gigantic All Union organization of coal mines will be split into three unions—one for central Russia, another for the east, and another in the Donetz basin region. The railroad workers' organization will be divided into unions of engineers, trainmen and similar groups. The existing unions are felt to be unwieldy, some having more than 1,000,000 members each.

Colonels of Kentucky Use a Lot of Ribbon

Frankfort, Ky.—There's not much red tape about getting a commission as a Kentucky colonel—but plenty of blue ribbon.

State records show that more than half a mile of blue ribbon has been used on honorary commissions since December 8, 1931, when Gov. Ruby Laffoon took office.

The state has 2,764 commission certificates, each with a foot of ribbon.

New Deal for Sleepers: A Noiseless Milk Wagon

New York.—A new deal for city sleepers is in the offing. A noiseless milk wagon, equipped with balloon tires and drawn by a horse shod with rubbers, was demonstrated before the New York noise abatement commission.

Girl, Turning to Stone, Is Saved by Physicians

Los Angeles.—Facing almost certain death four months ago as a sufferer from calcinosis, a disease that has stricken only twenty-two other persons in medical history, Trudy von Ravensberg, pretty nineteen-year-old high school graduate, virtually has recovered and is looking for a job.

When her case came to the attention of the orthopedic clinic at General hospital four months ago the girl's limbs were incased partly in stony shells and the area of calcification seemed to be increasing.

A diet deficient in calcium, prescribed on the theory that too much lime would increase the stony accumulation beneath her skin, failed to help Miss Ravensberg.

Endocrine specialists then took charge of the case and a series of metabolism tests were made.

A hormone of the parathyroid gland, which governs the amount of calcium in the tissues, was prescribed, although physicians were hesitant, as it was known to rob the bones of calcium, their most essential element.

To counteract this a diet of milk, orange juice and other foods rich in lime content was ordered.

This seemingly paradoxical treatment had the desired effect, and physicians have told the girl, who four months ago was slowly turning to stone, that she can again go to work.

The only trouble, according to the girl, is that she can't find a job.

Walking Radio Is Boast of This Experimenter

Los Angeles.—A dog's tail success as a radio receiving set for Frank O. Kerk, amateur wireless experimenter. Kerk attaches an aerial to the collar of Fritz, his 175-pound Great Dane, and hooks an ear phone to the animal's generous fur tail. The four-legged radio set completed, all that remains is to place the phone to the ear and listen.

Clearly, but not overly loud, comes music or an announcer's voice. Only one station can be heard, but Kerk says he is not aiming for selectivity. Kerk is in a quandary as to what makes the reception possible.

Key to Libby Prison Found in Rubbish Pile

Mt. Carmel, Pa.—A large brass key from Libby prison, made famous in Civil war days, was found here in some rubbish.

The key is about eight inches long and weighs two and one-half pounds. It bears the inscription "Libby Prison" on one side.

The relic was said to have been brought here by a Civil war veteran about 25 years ago. At that time it was a great curiosity. But it was eventually lost and forgotten until found in the rubbish heap.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, and Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for October 14

THE CHRISTIAN AND HIS BIBLE

LESSON TEXT—Acts 8:26-39. GOLDEN TEXT—O how love I thy law! It is my meditation all the day. Psalm 119:97.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Learning From God's Book. JUNIOR TOPIC—An Ethiopian Finds Good News in the Bible. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Finding Time for Bible Study. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How to Study the Bible.

In the conversion of the Ethiopian we not only see the Word of God in relation to the salvation of a sinner, but the Lord's work broadening 'in its scope.

I. Philip Meeting the Ethiopian (vv. 26-29).

1. Leaving the Lord's work by Divine direction (v. 26). The Lord called Philip away from a great work in Samaria, and specifically directed him to this man, Abrahamic, he obeyed the divine command, not knowing why he should leave the work in Samaria and go into a desert place. As he journeyed on by faith, he espied the state chariot of the Ethiopian treasurer. The Spirit of God directed him to go near and join himself to the chariot. The tactful question put to the treasurer gained him a seat by the side of this dignified officer. The commission which at first seemed so unpromising was now clear. The way of faith begins in obscurity, but it always ends in the clear light.

2. An officer of state reading the Bible (vv. 27-28). The Ethiopian had been to Jerusalem to worship. Despite his high official position, he was not ashamed to be a worshiper of God. Following after God should not be considered beneath the dignity of a statesman. Indeed, the world's greatest statesmen have been God-fearing men.

3. A providential meeting in the desert (v. 29). The coming together of these two men was clearly the predetermined way of God. God knew the road which the eunuch would be traveling, and the time of his passing through Gaza.

II. Philip Preaching to the Ethiopian (vv. 30-35).

1. The Ethiopian's employment while journeying (v. 30). His occupation at the time of this meeting was reading the Word of God. At the invitation of the Ethiopian, Philip joined himself to the chariot and found him reading from the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah. God will eventually show the way of life to the one who searches his Word.

2. The absolute need of an interpreter (v. 31). The Ethiopian was reading one of the clearest testimonies to the Messiah in the Old Testament, yet he was unable to understand it. The Ethiopian, a great statesman, needed an interpreter of the Scriptures. The mind of the natural man is blind to spiritual things, making the work of an evangelist indispensable. Preaching the Word of God will always be necessary. Valuable as is the Bible in the hands of men, the touch and influence of the living man who has experienced the work of God's saving grace in his own heart is needed.

3. Philip's message (vv. 32-35). He began at the Scripture which the Ethiopian was reading, and preached unto him Jesus. This shows us that the person represented in the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah as suffering in the stead of others was Jesus Christ instead of Israel. It shows also that the central theme of the preacher's message should be Jesus. He did not preach Jesus as a great teacher, but as a Saviour who had suffered and died instead of the sinner. He preached Jesus as the one who had offered himself as a ransom for many. If there is to be a revival, there must be a return to the preaching of salvation through the shed blood of Jesus Christ.

III. Philip Baptizing the Ethiopian (vv. 36-39).

As a result of Philip's preaching, the eunuch proposed baptism. When Christ is truly preached, men naturally desire to confess him in baptism. Water baptism is clearly included in the program of evangelization. The Ethiopian might have offered many excuses as to why he should neglect this important ordinance, but, like every man who is honest before God, he was willing at any cost to render obedience. It is faith in the finished work of Jesus Christ that saves, but those who have a genuine faith desire to seal it in baptism.

IV. The Ethiopian Rejoicing (v. 39). Having understood the way of salvation, embraced the Saviour, and rendered obedience to the Word of God, he went on his way rejoicing. Confession of Christ always issues in joy.

Rights of Others

Everywhere the Gospel bids the Christian to take sides against himself. He is to stand ready to forego his surest rights, if only he is hurt by so doing; while on the other hand, he is to be watchful to respect even the least obvious rights of others.—Dr. H. C. G. Moulle.

Hurry and Despatch

No two things differ more than hurry and despatch. Hurry is the mark of a weak mind; despatch of a strong one.—Colton.

Southwestern Briefs

Enrollment in the nineteen grade schools of Phoenix, Ariz., reached 7,900, the same as on the first day of last year.

The Arizona Game Protective Association will hold its annual convention at Safford, October 6, according to G. W. Persons of Bisbee, president of the club.

According to the Arizona state sales tax department, $72,286.72 has been collected on August sales. This exceeds by $3,780.98 the amount collected on July sales.

Rona Hanna, former secretary to two governors in New Mexico, has been named acting NRA compliance director for New Mexico, succeeding J. J. Dempsey, who resigned.

Page, N. M., in the Zuni mountains southeast of Gallup, N. M., heads an unofficial record for the first frost of the 1934 fall season. A frost was reported there on September 3.

Flagstaff, Ariz., voters at a special school district election October 20 will decide whether bonds shall be issued for a $50,046 public works loan for construction of a new school building.

Total registration at the University of Arizona is expected to pass the 2200 mark before the close of enrollment for the current semester. It was announced by the office of C. Z. Leaser, registrar.

Women's organizations of Arizona, including the State Federation of Women's Clubs, have started a movement to demand new health laws of the legislature when it convenes in regular session next January.

The application by the Tempo, Ariz., State Teachers' College for a public works loan and grant of $616,000 for a building program, has received approval of the public works administration, it was learned recently.

With the total amount of loans in this county under the HOLC reaching $174,061 on September 13, the federal agency has just fairly gotten started, according to Judge Sidney Sapp in a recent talk before the Holbrook, Ariz., Rotary Club.

An application for $745,862 for relief in Arizona during October, has been filed with the federal emergency relief administration by Gov. B. B. McCor. The amount is more than $100,000 in excess of the allotment for September.

The project manager of FERA, Colfax county, New Mexico, has received instructions from M. H. Hunter, state supervisor of work division FERA, to cut all projects to three days a week in Colfax county with exception of Miners' Hospital project.

Now Mexico has placed its composite exhibit at the Tri-Cont Fair in Texas. Each year the Sunshine State's exhibit attracts great crowds. For the 1934 exposition the exhibit has a background of blankets, reproductions of the old known native weave patterns.

A report prepared by Robert Fechner, director of emergency conservation work, says 8,421 men enrolled from Arizona are now engaged in conservation work in Arizona forest areas. Of this number, 5,485 are Indians and the others are enrollees in the civilian conservation corps.

Dr. Edward Eyring, head of the foreign language department at New Mexico Normal University, has been invited to speak at the meeting of the State Teachers' Association, which will be held in Santa Fe November 1 and 2, before the teachers of modern language department.

James V. Lloyd, assistant superintendent of the Grand Canyon National Park service, announced that the Duke of Saxe-Coburg Gotha, head of the German Red Cross, recently spent the night with a party of eight at the canon and left by automobile the next day for Zion National Park.

Due to overcrowded conditions in the New Mexico Normal training school, two additional teachers have been provided. Otto Dunbar, a graduate of Normal University, has been employed to teach physical education, English, health promotion, and will assist in coaching. Miss Nell Doherty, of the Iowa State Teachers' College, will instruct fourth grade students.

Despite a year that brought drouth and added to that a grasshopper plague, residents of the Page, N. M., district acclaim their first Zuni mountain fair an outstanding success. Prizes contributed by merchants of Gallup, who cooperated with Page residents in putting on the fair, brought outstanding displays of farm crops, garden stuff, livestock and pets.

Late entries at New Mexico Normal University are gradually bringing the total enrollment up to that of last year, according to Dr. H. C. Gossard, president. As an additional service to teachers of the community and persons who are occupied through the day the Normal is offering late afternoon and night classes which will cover a wide variety of subjects.

The inhabitants of Laguna, N. M., have turned to routine fall tasks after a record breaking fiesta in honor of St. Joseph, the patron saint of the mission and pueblo. For days the Navajo caravans could be seen wending their way from the west through Gallup towards Laguna. Many Indians from the Rio Grande pueblos came to trade their wares. A night that is never forgotten by the visitors is Old Laguna on the night before the fiesta day. It was cool and hundreds of Navajo campfires surrounded the village.

Sow Mustard to Prevent Flood, Following Fire

In an effort to prevent flood damage to land recently robbed of its vegetation by forest fires, the United States forest service is starting in to cover it with a "mustard plaster."

To speed the revegetation of 3,000 acres of forest and brush land of the Arroyo Seco watershed in the Angeles National forest in southern California, which burned over late in July, forest service workers are seeding it to mustard, a weed which roots quickly and grows rapidly even under unfavorable conditions. They are also planting wild sunflowers. A similar remedy was successful in holding soil on parts of the great Santa Barbara burn in 1932.

Establishment of any kind of green cover greatly reduces the rapid run-off and washing of the loose soil by the winter rains, a situation which caused the disastrous Montrose flood near Los Angeles last New Year's eve, when many lives were lost. The cities below the recent burn have the additional protection afforded by the Devil's Gate dam at Pasadena. Much of the seeding will be done by the Civilian Conservation corps, working under forest service direction.

Medal Portrays Christ

A medal struck from what is believed to be the oldest representation of Christ has been discovered in Trieste, according to a message from that town. Up to the present only five of these medals, which were struck during the reign of the Emperor Tiberius (42 B. C. to A. D. 37) were known and bear on the one side the head of the Messiah and on the other the words "The Messiah has come in peace; the Light has shone upon men."

Tailored Ensemble Is Ultra Chic

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

SUITS are the foremost message for fall. The keynote to the suit mode is found in two words, variety and fabric. Which is to say that every type of suit or ensemble is represented that fancy may picture with emphasis placed on the handsomeness and novelty of the materials employed.

The new suit and tailored ensembles are that varied they include styles in every mood and tempo featuring coats and jackets all the way from seven-eighths to waistlength. As to silhouette they go from one extreme to another, from loose swagger styles to the neat and trim flared front blouses which Schiaparelli creates so successfully, to which add all the variations between that key to individual preference. As to modish suit skirts they are straight and narrow, often slit at the hemline.

Speaking of materials, the tailored ensembles in the picture tell a story of high-style, quality-kind fabrics most eloquently. For street, campus or general daytime wear throughout autumn, these plaided and checked tailors are correct and smart to the Nth degree. So far as their rich vibrant color schemes are concerned they blend into the autumn landscape superbly.

Each of these models is fashioned of a soft-textured lightweight rabbit, woolen fabric, which while it looks the part of luxury is in reality quite moderately priced. The fine fur woven into these suitings gives extra warmth for chilly days, which together with their attractive appearance make these weaves of pronounced appeal to fashion-wise seekers of superior materials.

the new monotone shadow plaids in caroca red is used on the diagonal for the skirt of the one-piece frock and on vertical lines for the three-quarter coat. The bias sleeves correspond to the skirt treatment. A full scarf of brown velveteen lined with crepe in the red shade of the suit together with a belt in the same brown velvet lends smart contrast.

At the left, a coat cut with mannish lapels is made of a broken-checked rabbit woolen in old gold and brown, the same topping a gown of the identical material. The frock has a high turn-down collar and a knotted tie of self-fabric. The rather wide belt is in brown leather with large decorative buckle.

One of the interesting highlights in the street and sports realm is what is referred to as the "purpose" suit. The idea is to assemble all of the same material, a jacket suit plus a full-length topcoat sometimes adding a fourth piece, perhaps one of the new jacket blouses or a shirtwaist effect with buttons down the front. Heroin is constituted an entire wardrobe for daytime wear.

A vogue which is much in evidence this fall is the gay novelty-plaided or checked skirt which is worn with a dark solid colored top. The brown and yellow check which fashions the costume to the left would make up strikingly in one of the very new narrow, slim slit-at-the-hemline skirts. Top this with a swanky brown velveteen or corduroy jacket-blouse (newer than a tuck-in) and this twosome will rank among the smartest of the season.

WIDE BELTS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Belts are growing wider and wider: The broad suede belt fastening with a composition arrow which graces this good-looking dress is typical of the new trend toward wide, wider, widest belted effects. This classically simple but very new campus frock is made of a lightweight two-tone rabbit woolen fabric. The high, wide-extending from side-to-side youthful and flattering neckline is the Allz Idea.

Frogskin Shoes
Shoes of frogskin are the latest craze in Paris, and the feminine followers of fashion are taking to them.

MODISTES TAKE TO SCHOOLGIRL STYLES

"That simple little shirtwaist dress" may appear this season in anything from satin to sequins.

The knowing designers have discovered that it's highly amusing to present innocent, schoolgirlish styles in the most sophisticated and luxurious fabrics.

And women have discovered that their vampire voltage goes up at least 100 per cent when they wear seemingly ingenuous frocks in wicked materials.

It's the old principle of the excessively feminine girl who knows that her dimpled charms are heightened to the masculine eye by severely tailored lines. She is completely aware that her attempt at mannish clothes merely makes the obtuse male chuckle.

Satin With Feather Capes Will Be Worn This Autumn
Satin with feather capes will again be worn this autumn by the very smartest women, for they consider this fashion both chic and flattering, as well as allowing for lovely color contrasts.

Thus a frock of deep purplish-blue satin appears under a cape of soft green feathers and a pink satin frock allies itself with a cape of cornflower blue feathers. Another dress of pale satin is worn with a cape made of smoky gray feathers.

A black satin dress, cut on sheath lines is worn with a collar-like capelet of matching black satin edged with black hegon feathers. All signs point to this fashion continuing for some time longer, until the really heavy formal evening wraps of velvet, lame and fine fur are seen.

Flexible Handbags
Bags for fall are soft, flexible things, many of them made without rigid frames. They are all shapes and sizes, from Schiaparelli's novel five-sided bag with inverted plaits to Molyneux's pebbled, underarm model.

ROBBERS' ROOST

SYNOPSIS

Jim Wall, young cowpuncher from Wyoming, seeks a new field in Utah. He meets Hank Hays, who tells him he is working for an Englishman, Herrick, who has located a big ranch in the mountains. Hays and others are plotting to steal their employer's cattle and money. With Hays and two other rustlers, Jim Wall goes to Herrick's ranch. Hays unfolds his plan for getting possession of Herrick's 12,000 head of live stock. He and his lieutenants ride away to drive off the first bunch of cattle. Haysman, Hays' rival among the cattle rustlers, tells Wall that Hays was once his (Haysman's) partner and double-crossed him. Jim is sent to meet Miss Herrick. Hays betrays unusual interest in the girl's coming. The rustlers begin driving cattle from the ranch. Wall finds himself falling in love with Helen, and he fears Hays has designs on the girl. Jim coaches her in riding western style, and finally kisses her. She is angry and dismisses him, but returns and asks him not to leave the ranch. Hays' men return from the drive, having sold the cattle and brought back the money.

CHAPTER VI—Continued

He then noticed that a roll of bills, identical with the one he had just received, lay on the floor.

"You double-crossed me!" burst out Hays, at length.

"Wal, that's accordin' to how you look at it," retorted Slocum. "Things came up at Grand Junction. We seen some of Haysman's outfit. They're onto us, or will be pronto. So we jest took a vote, an' every one of us stood for one big drive instead of small drives. An' we made it. Your buyers swore they was short of money an' would pay twelve dollars a head. Talk about robbers! Wal, I took that an' said I liked it."

"You disobeyed orders."

"Put it up to Jim, hyar. What do you say, Jim?"

Thus appealed to, Jim addressed Hays point-blank.

"Smoky's right. If you meant to clean out Herrick, that was the way to do it."

"Aw—shore, you'd side with them!"

"I wouldn't do anything of the kind if I thought they were wrong," retorted Jim, angrily. Here was a chance to indame Hays that he jumped at. If the robber could be drawn into a fight, when his own men were against him, the situation for the Herricks could be made easier for the present.

"You'd better shet up."

"I won't shet up, Hays. Someone has to tell you. And I'm that fellow. There's no hand out against you by this outfit. Never heard of a bunch of riders who'd work like dogs while the boss was twiddling his thumbs and talking mysterious."

"I ain't ready to leave Star ranch an' now I'll have to!"

"Why ain't you ready?" queried Smoky, curiously. "Our work's all done. We've cleaned out the ranch, except for a few thousand head. We've got the long green. You ought to be tickled to death."

"I'm not through here," replied the robber.

"Smoky, why don't you ask Hays what this mysterious deal is?" queried Jim, sarcastically.

From a cornered lion Hays degenerated into a cornered rat. Jim sank a little in his boots while his upper muscles corded.

"Hank, what's got into you?" queried Smoky.

"Smoky, the boss is up a tree," said Jim, caustically. "He means to rob Herrick all right. But that's only a blind. It's the girl!"

"That gold-headed gurl we seen you drivin' hyar?"

"Yes, Herrick's sister."

"Haw! Haw! So that's what's eatin' you, Hank?"

Hays had reached his limit and probably, but for Smoky's mirth, would have started hostilities. He hesitated, but there was a deadly glare in the eyes he had fixed on Wall.

Smoky got between them. "See hyar, Hank. So that's the deal? An' you'd do fer pore Jim hyar jest because he's onto you? . . . Wal, if you're so keen as thiet to draw on somebody, why, make it me. I started this. I dragged Jim into it. An' I ain't goin' to let you take it out on him."

Then Hank Hays came back to himself.

"Jim's right. Smoky, you're right," he declared, hoarsely. "I'm bullheaded. . . . An' I've lost my bull head over Herrick's sister."

"There. Spoke up like a man," declared Smoky, heartily relieved. "Why didn't you come that clean long ago? Neither Jim nor me nor any of us blame you fer admirin' that gurl. And if you'd gone crazy, an' dragged her away into the brakes with us, we'd quit you cold."

Hays bent to pick up the roll of bills.

"Fall to, men. I've got to do some business," he said, and left them.

Before they were half finished with their supper Hays entered.

"We're shakin' the dust of Star ranch tonight," he said, deliberately. "Pack up an' leave at once. I'll come later. If I don't meet you at Smoky's camp I'll meet you shore at midday in that cedar grove above the head of Red canyon."

No one asked any more questions or made any comments. Whatever they thought about Hays' peculiar way of leading his hand they kept to themselves. Jim Wall was not greatly relieved, still he concluded that Hays must abandon any plot he might have concocted toward Herrick's sister. At any rate whatever was in Hays' mind Jim could not further risk alienating him or his men. Jim would have to ride out with them. If he stayed behind to spy upon Hays or frustrate any attempt he might make to call upon the Herricks, he would have to kill Hays.

Dusk was mantling the valley when Jim went out. Under the bench the shadows were dark. From the shelter of the pines he looked for Hays, expecting to find him standing guard. But the robber was not on the porch. He was stalking to and fro along the brook, and he was no more watching for Haysman than was Jim. His bent form, his stride, his turning at the end of his beat, his hands folded behind his back—all attested to the mood of a gloomy, abstracted, passion-driven man.

Whereupon Jim repaired to his covert, rolled his bed and made a pack of his other belongings. What to do with the two packages of bills, this last of which was large and clumsy for his pockets, was a puzzle. By dividing the two into four packets he solved it. Then he carried his effects down to the cabin. All was cheery bustle there. The men were glad to get away from Star ranch. They talked of the robbers' roost Hays had always promised them, of idle days to eat and drink and gamble, of the long months in hiding.

"Wal, you all ready?" queried Hays, appearing in the doorway.

"Yep, an' bustin' to go."

"On second thought I'd like one of you to stay with me. How about you, Latimer?"

"All right," declared Sparrowhawk.

In a few more minutes all the men leaving were mounted. The pack animals, with packs gray against the darkness, straggled up the trail.

"Wait at your camp till sunup," said Hays, conclusively. "An' if I'm not there I'll meet you about noon shore at head of Red canyon."

Without more words or ado Smoky led off behind the pack horses, and the five riders followed. Once across the brook all horses took a brisk trot. Jim Wall looked back. Then he saw a bright light on the bench. That was from Herrick's house. An unfamiliar sensation, like a weight of cold lead in his breast, baffled Jim. He knew he was glad never to see Helen Herrick again.

About midnight Smoky turned the pack animals up the slope into the woods, and after a mile of rough going emerged into an open canyon head.

"Hyar we air," said Smoky. "Throw things an' git to sleep. I'll stand first guard."

Jim unrolled his bed beside a rock, and pulling off his boots and unbuckling his gun belt he crawled under the blanket.

Crack of ax and Happy Jack's voice pierced his slumber, both recognized before he opened his eyes. Jim sat up, stretched, and reaching for his boots he gazed around. The men were stirring, two around the camp fire and others among the horses.

"Wal, long past sunup," said Slocum, as Jim approached the fire. "Who was it bet Brad that Hank wouldn't show up?"

"Nobody," replied Lincoln.

"Jim, suppose you take your horse an' sneak down an' knock over a deer," suggested Smoky.

Three hundred yards down the slope Jim emerged into the open. There were no riders on the winding, white trail.

Steadily working back into the timber he soon espied two deer about sixty paces distant, long ears erect. He killed the buck standing.

Upon his return to camp Smoky greeted him with a grin.

"How far to Red canyon?" asked Jim.

"I don't know. About fifteen miles. Don't you remember that heavy grove of cedars leadin' down into a red hole?"

"Reckon I do. If Hays joins up there it'll mean he comes by another trail, doesn't it?"

"If I so ygger he might not? Course he'd come around the mountain, or maybe over another pass. He shore knows trails that we don't."

"Aw, Hank'll show up on time."

"Wonder if he stayed back to plug Haysman? He hates that rustler."

- In less than an hour the riders were on the move down the mountain. Packing on the deer Jim had slain occasioned a little delay for all, because Smoky kept them close together. At the edge of the timber belt he halted them again while he peeped out to reconnoiter. Then he called: "Come hyar, a couple of you long-legged fellers."

They all rode out to join him, where he sat his horse, pointing to a faint blue on the purple valley floor. "Is that dust?"

Most of the riders inclined to the opinion that it was just haze.

"Ten miles or more back and hard to make out," spoke up Jim. "If this was my range I'd say it wasn't haze or smoke."

"Wish I had Hank's glasses. My eyes are no good any more fer long shots. Wal, let's mosey."

When they reached another turn from which it was possible to look back for five miles or more Smoky halted while the others caught up.

"Jeff, you hang right hyar," he said, "an' keep your eyes peered on the back trail. I ain't so shore that gray patch back on the valley was haze. It sort of moved to me. An' there wasn't a lick of wind. Wal, from round this corner you can easy see the cedar grove where we'll hang up fer the boss. An' if you ketch sight of any more'n a couple riders on the back stretch you come ridin' h—I bent fer election. Don't stay longer after noon."

Perhaps another five miles down the slope lay their objective to which they headed. The hour was still some time before noon. Smoky scanned the slope to the south and east. It would not have been possible to see riders at any distance, as the rocks, brush, ridges and washes intervened profusely.

"What'll we do, Smoky? Throw the packs, or not?" queried one of the riders.

"Dog-gone if I know," replied Slocum, peevishly. "It's a rummy deal. Not as h—I now an' gottin' hotter. I fergot to ask Hank. Reckon you'd better herd the hosses an' we'll wait. I'll keep a lookout fer the boss."

Jim tied his horse in the shade of a cedar, and climbed a jumble of rocks so he could command a better view. Almost at once he sighted riders coming down a wash about a mile away, and he had opened his mouth to shout the good tidings when something checked him.

He rubbed his eyes and looked again. Three riders! Assuming that two of them were Hays and Latimer, who could the third be? They disappeared behind a corner of bank. Jim sank down in a cold sweat. Perhaps these men were Indians or strangers from Hank's villa, or prospectors. But he had not seen any pack animals.

After a long, anxious watch he saw the three reappear in the wash, considerably closer. The one in the middle rode a gray horse and otherwise contrasted sharply with the dark mounts and dark clothes of the other two. A second time the trio disappeared. Smoky was peering about in a desultory manner, but he was too low down to sight the riders. Jim was now shaking. An awful premonition attacked him. He had met it and almost overcome it as another unaccountable attack of nerves when the foremost horseman emerged from behind a bank. He recognized the stalwart figure, the wide, black sombrero, the poise in the saddle. That was Hank Hays.

Jim scarcely dared shift his gaze back to the second rider, but he was irresistibly forced to. A slight figure in tan, drooping in the saddle!

"So help me!" he whispered, and sank down on the stone. That center rider was Helen Herrick. For a moment a hell fiend in Jim Wall's breast. How he cursed himself for a vacillating idiot! His intuition had been right. He had seen through this robber leader's behavior at Star ranch. But like a fool he had not trusted himself. Jim grew cold to his very marrow. Yet his intelligence did not wholly succumb to his fury. He strove to think. This bound had gotten Helen, just how, it was useless to conjecture. But to kill him then, right on the spot? That gave Jim Wall pause. Hays' men would roar at this deal, involving them in the abduction of a woman, still they would hardly go so far as to resist him with arms. Jim crushed down his deadly impulse. He would wait.

Well indeed had it been for Jim to spy this trio long before they reached him. He had time to recover, to think what was best. If Hank Hays had come upon Jim suddenly it would have been his doom.

One of the pack animals neighed shrilly and then all the horses stuck up their ears.

"Say, I heerd a hoss-shoe ring on a stone," called Mac, who had ears as keen as a horse.

"What's that?" queried Smoky, sharply. He leaped up.

Gives Emphasis to Pretty Lines

PATTERN 1837
This frock has two ruffles over the shoulders which ripple refreshingly and a sash that ties its demure ends discreetly. It emphasizes the pretty lines of a young waist and the slimness of a young figure, and is a thoroughly delightful thing in either a print or a plain fabric. Think of it, for instance, in peach-colored organdie—wouldn't it be charming? or in voile or dotted swiss—or fashion the yoke and ruffles of contrast.

Pattern 1837 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 3 1/2 yards.

36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

Facts About the Sales Tax

Have you been keeping track of what your sales tax amounts to during the month? Come, let us do, as the late and lamented Bill Nye, humorist, once advised a preacher, who was contemplating a change, "do a little praying and figuring." Take as an example the lady, who labors over the washtub to support her orphan children and earns a dollar, that she must spend as economically as possible. She proceeds to make her small purchases as follows:

- Bread, 10 cents, sales tax 1 cent
- Meat, 10 cents, sales tax 1 cent
- Soap, 10 cents, sales tax 1 cent
- Starch, 10 cents, sales tax 1 cent
- Syrup, 10 cents, sales tax 1 cent
- Cereal, 10 cents, sales tax 1 cent
- Rolls, 10 cents, sales tax 1 cent
- Lard, 10 cents, sales tax 1 cent
- Butter, 10 cents, sales tax 1 cent
- Milk, 10 cents, sales tax 1 cent

By counting up the sales tax we find that the lady has paid 10 per cent out of her hard earned dollar, which is 10 per cent, instead of 2 per cent and this is what the Democrats are upholding in their platform. It does not require a Master mind to see what a hardship the sales tax places on the ones least able to bear it.

The more the opposition seeks to belittle the achievements of Senator Bronson Cutting, the more endorsements he receives from those whom he has benefited through his legislative policies. Gratefulness retortates against false attacks on public benefactors.

The best thing Gen Johnson has ever did was to resign. In that act, he relieved a long suffering public of being 'cussed out' at every stage of the game.

Will Mayor Tingley please tell New Mexico workmen just how much they will gain by voting the Democratic ticket and just how much they will lose if the ticket is not elected?

According to Dr. Joseph E. Shafer, professor of economics at the College of Mines in El Paso, in an interview with a representative of the Herald-Post, President Roosevelt has lost the confidence of the employer class, skepticism is spreading among wage earners and the advocate of the New Deal will probably be 'kicked out' at the end of his term. Dr. Shafer further said the president has consistently evaded a questionnaire submitted to him by the National Chamber of Commerce, regarding future policies of the administration and has tried to laugh it off.

CALL ON BRAINS FOR SUPPORT

"Regimented" Propaganda Is Modern Idea.

Established Order Bolstered By Intellectuals.

No conscientious student of letters has been inclined to take too seriously the alarm that has been felt over the future of literature in Russia's proletarian state. After all, it was only a natural part of the revolution that the intellectuals should have been "regimented" for propaganda purposes.

History shows that it is the part of the intellectuals during stability to support the established order and when that order becomes insupportable to express, in varying ways, the intellectual ferment that precedes all fundamental shifts in political power. Thus the writers in Russia long ago became revolutionary propagandists. And when the revolution came they extolled the new regime more blatantly, but not less effectively, than the writers in a capitalistic state bend their art toward support of the homely virtues whence capitalism draws its strength.

Writers know this. Somerset Maugham, in the preface to "East and West," takes pains to inform his readers that the editor of the magazine where his stories mostly appeared never told him what to write or what not to write. If it were not at least suspected that writers are "regimented" under whatever political system, such declarations of independence would be superfluous. But there are degrees of regimentation, as of everything else. During a revolution the subtle concealment of propaganda, under a layer of art disappears and the skilled writer becomes as unscrupulous as any hack publicity agent. That is what happened in Russia, when, in the phrase of Max Eastman, the artists were put in uniform.

The Russian revolution is now an accomplished fact. The need for obvious propaganda lessens. The diehards may still believe that there is an unlimited distinction between true proletarian writers and bourgeois intellectuals. But Karl Radek, one of Communism's most powerful thinkers, realizes that undiluted propaganda may eventually defeat its own ends. At a congress of all-Soviet writers in Moscow, Radek said that the bars must be let down and that the old theory of "he who is not with us is against us" would no longer rule in the arts.

And so it may soon be that the writers of Russia will lay aside their uniforms and the Russian artists in muffl will find new means for expression. Out of the chaos of revolution may appear the needed security which is the basis of all art. At the same time it may be well to speculate on the theory that the reason why literature has so lagged in the 900 years of America is because of its "regimentation" under such banners as Puritanism and Materialism. The growing determination of our writers to work under different standards and to talk openly of the place of propaganda in art is as significant as Radek's movement in the opposite direction.—Washington Post.

Sea Collisions Minimized

The danger of collisions at sea on foggy nights can now be minimized by a new invention which shows—with luminous spots and arrows on a compass-marked screen—the location and direction of every ship within a radius of ten miles. It is a cathode ray device which is operated by the radio signals sent out by other ships every twenty seconds. Pilots watching it know, practically by a mere glance at the chart, when and how much to change their courses.—Collier's Weekly.

Why Liquid Laxatives are Back in Favor

The public is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that the right dose of a properly prepared liquid laxative will bring a more natural movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. A child is easily given the right dose. And mild liquid laxatives do not irritate the kidneys.

Doctors are generally agreed that constipation is a natural laxative. It does not drain the system like the cathartics that leave you so thirsty. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a liquid laxative which, relies on osmotic for its laxative action. It gently helps the average person's constipated bowels until nature restores their regularity.

You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store, ready for use.

Science Changing "Girl-Boy" to Man

Dwarf Child Will Never Be Physically Fit.

Kittanning, Pa.—There is a long, uphill struggle ahead of Clara—now renamed Clarence—Schreckengost, the twenty-year-old dwarf whom surgeons are changing into a normal man.

The new science of the ductless gland treatments is being used with success, it was learned, and the physicians are confident that the "girl-man" will win the fight.

A physician familiar with the case said:

"Clarence will never be completely normal. We believe, however, that gradually 'he' will improve physically. We have not changed his sex—such a thing is impossible. All we have done is to encourage the development of the patient's real sex."

The child is only 51 inches tall and unable to read or write, and has six normal brothers and sisters.

Cases Not Rare.

Changes from one sex to another, as in the case of Clara Schreckengost, are far from being rare, although seldom heard about outside of medical circles.

Well Done Maiden

The annual "Perfect Sun Tan" contest at Lake Arrowhead, Calif., attracted scores of beautiful girls who had acquired tans during the swimming season. The first prize went to Peggy Wood of Hollywood, shown above with the trophy.

Modern medical science has discovered that the change from one sex to another is the result of strange variations in the embryo or in imbalance in the ductless glands.

In such glands hormones are produced. They are responsible for the secondary sex characteristics, the masculine voice and beard of men, for instance.

If something goes wrong among the endocrines, a girl may grow more like a boy, and vice versa. This accounts for bearded women of the side shows and other like freaks.

For twenty years Mrs. Lettie Schreckengost has guarded her secret, even from her husband, Clark Schreckengost, a silent moody man of this Pennsylvania backwoods farming country.

"Better Off Dead." And neither did Mrs. Schreckengost say anything when their family physician, kindly Dr. George S. Morrow, now dead, laid in her arms the malformed little creature who was to be named Clarence.

The ancient Greeks had a word for it, and a myth, to explain these thwarted children of Hermes and Aphrodite in whom the sexes were fused in a mystic union.

But to the country practitioner of two decades ago the Schreckengost offspring was a biological quirk and better off dead, according to the mother.

"He said that it would be more kindly to put it aside and let it die," Mrs. Schreckengost said.

"The doctor told me," she said, "that it might be either a girl or a boy, and asked me how I would dress it. I said I would dress it like a girl."

"He said I ought to call it by some name that would fit either a girl or a boy, like Francis, or Frances. So I said I would name it Claire and if it developed like a boy, I would leave off the 'e'."

And though it was no secret in this rural neighborhood that Claire was somehow different, a girl she remained, in habits and dress, until the first of a series of remarkable operations in the West Penn hospital at Pittsburgh this summer disclosed the fact that the 13 could, with propriety, be deleted from her name; that Claire was of masculine persuasion.

Stork Brings Offspring to All but Own Family

St. Louis.—Everybody knows the stork brings babies, but who brings the baby storks?

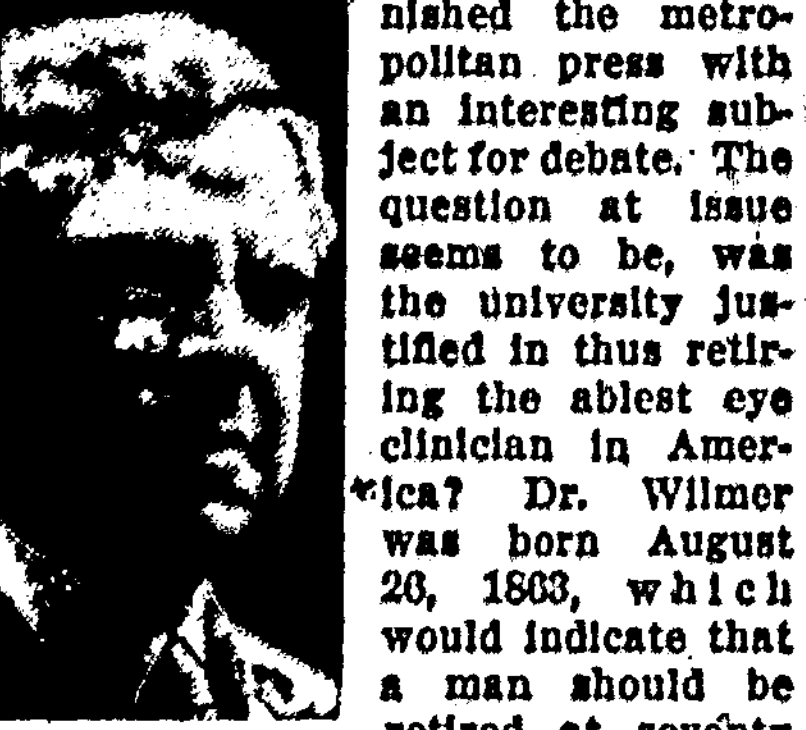

Mr. and Mrs. Stork of the St. Louis (Zoological) Storks, would like to know the answer to that one, for they are a disappointed couple these days.

Ever since last spring, Mrs. Stork has been industriously preparing a nest in the big outdoor cage in Forest park. But now the nesting season is over and there are no offspring. Mr. Stork seems pretty sad. However, that may be just his natural expression.

When Should an Old Man Stop Work?

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

The retirement of Dr. William Hollander Wilmer by Johns Hopkins university has furnished the metropolitan press with an interesting subject for debate.

The question at issue seems to be, was the university justified in thus retiring the ablest eye clinician in America? Dr. Wilmer was born August 26, 1863, which would indicate that a man should be retired at seventy.

Eddie Gerard

The franchise of the old Ottawa hockey team of Canada has been transferred to St. Louis, Mo., and Eddie Gerard, former manager of the Montreal team, has been engaged to manage the team of the city by the bridge.

Just the age when experience would make that service all the more valuable? In other words, just when should an old man stop work?

Let us remember that much of the best work in art and literature as well as in medicine has been accomplished by those who labored most effectively far beyond the age of seventy. Some business concerns have a rule that a man must stop work at sixty-five, others at seventy. The reason advanced is that room must be made for the younger men. Other business concerns refuse to employ a man who is over thirty-five years of age. In one case, known to the writer, a member of a certain firm was thus retired and went to England, where he established a rival business which proved a great financial success. The better part of wisdom would have been for that American firm to have kept that man on its payroll.

Is it not true that no organization is competent to say just when a man should stop work? Does it not depend entirely upon the man himself? Some men are old at forty, others young at seventy. Should not efficiency decide the issue? A man without a job is not only unhappy, he is miserable. Many a man has "passed out" shortly after relinquishing active work.

The man himself, however, is not the only one concerned. Public health demands the best judgment that experience can afford. In business the wisdom of those who have successfully weathered the storm is far more valuable than the opinion of the young man just about to set his sails afloat. In literature and art we want more of that "better self" which Michelangelo gave to the world at eighty. What shall be done with the old man? Would it not be better if we would let him decide for himself, provided he is still mentally and physically fit?

The Household

By Lydia Le Baron Walker

WINDOW screens, like the windows themselves, need attention. They do not show dust and dirt as the panes of glass, but they accumulate dust just the same, and this seeps through the meshes when the wind blows, and a film settles on the things in the room. There are several ways of keeping the screens clean, different methods being suited to varying conditions, such as situation of rooms, whether the screens are inside or outside the house, and whether the location of house is such that a hose can be played on the screens.

In city houses built in rows this is not often feasible, while in suburban homes it is. The hose-cleaning method is recommended when possible. Shut the windows opening on the side of the house where the hose is to be played. Play the hose well on each window, especially the half where the screen is, since the force of the water will project the dust on the screen through it and against the window. It is only when the window is spotless that the screen will be clean for the reason just given. By this method both screens and windows are beautifully clean after the washing.

If screens are easily removable, as on inside windows, they can be taken out and washed in the kitchen sink. Dry well before replacing. Inside screens require much less care than those outside because they are not exposed to the dust from roads and driveways all the time. When windows are closed they are protected. On the other hand there is on cleaning days some dust raised indoors even when modern cleaning appliances are used. This dust gets into the netting and onto the frames.

Nail in Dam Marks

River's Water Level. Riverton, Ind.—Thirty-seven years ago, Dave Taylor, veteran ferryman, drove a large nail in the Wabash river dam here when the river reached its lowest level.

During the dry seasons in the past 25 years Taylor has compared the river's level with that of 1897. The best he was able to do was to feel the nail under water.

Recently Taylor went to the dam and saw the nail. He said the water would have to drop only one-half inch to reach the 1897 level.

New Deal Homes for the Indians

The United States government has at last taken a hand in the affairs of the Indian tribes of eastern Oklahoma, comprising one-third of the entire Indian population of this country. The government has undertaken to build homes, on land purchased from farmers, which shall be a great improvement over the hovels now occupied by these poverty-stricken redmen. Our illustration shows, above, one of the dilapidated houses, and, below, an example of the modern dwellings that will replace them.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart

Washington.—Major party strategy in the present congressional-senatorial campaign resolves G. O. P. Has Hard Task

Democrats to hold the two-thirds majority they have in the house of representatives and an equally determined drive by the Republican high command to break the "strangle hold" there of the New Deal party.

The holding of this majority is of vital importance to the Democrats because, with a two-thirds vote they will be able in the next congress to continue "gag" rule which was invoked in the last congress and under which it was possible to pass administration measures with a minimum of debate and effort.

In the light of the outcome in the Maine elections and in the face of the size of Democratic votes in the primaries in a number of states regarded as rather safely Republican before 1932, the G. O. P. leadership apparently has a hard task ahead. In the last congress the Democrats had 312 members, or 22 more than a two-thirds majority and generally were able to command most of the five votes of the farmer-labor membership as well as the votes of several Republicans from Wisconsin and from one or two other of the northwestern states. Assuming a farmer-labor membership in the next house as great as that in the last, the Republicans would have to register a net gain of not less than thirty seats in order to break Democracy's "strangle hold." Even with such a gain the Republicans would have to muster their full strength on every vote in order to prevent "gag" rule.

The Democrats are certain to make substantial gains in the senate, and they are by no means overlooking a single senatorial contest. Democratic leaders in headquarters here have been mentally kicking themselves ever since the Maine election that they did not put on a vigorous drive against Senator Frederick Hale in that state. They explain privately that they did not do so because they never had an idea there was a possibility of defeating Mr. Hale because a Hale in the senate has been Maine tradition for generations. They detected the flaw in their reasoning when Mr. Hale came through with only a very scant majority, and this fact has caused them to redouble their efforts in other states, and particularly in Ohio where Simon D. Fess, former chairman of the Republican national committee, is up for re-election; in Maryland, West Virginia, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Missouri, Indiana, Delaware, Connecticut and Michigan. Nor are they even overlooking that citadel of Republicanism, Pennsylvania, where David A. Reed is up for re-election.

The Democrats now have sixty members in the senate—four short of a two-thirds majority—and they are confident that November will see this membership increased by a minimum of five, or one more than a two-thirds majority. And when they get down to cases, Republican leaders somewhat mournfully admit privately that Democratic expectations are likely to be fulfilled.

A two-thirds majority in the senate during the next two years is highly important from the Democratic point of view because of the number of important treaties now pending or to be submitted to that body for ratification. A two-thirds majority is necessary to ratify these treaties which include the St. Lawrence waterway—of vital importance to the agricultural Northwest; the naval limitation treaty which is expected to be negotiated next year and which would replace the Washington treaty which expires on December 31, 1936. Other pacts pending include that on American adherence to the World court. And another important one to be submitted by the President provides that nations having bi-lateral treaties containing most favored nations clauses will not press their rights in those sections of the world where multi-lateral treaties control.

It is no secret in political circles here in Washington that the campaign strategy of those at present in command of the G. O. P. does not meet with the full approval of some Republicans who are offering for re-election. I have had several of them tell me that their prospects for victory would be materially enhanced if the Republican high command stayed out of their states or districts. These are men who heretofore have been regarded as of the "regular" wing of the party but who have the feeling which apparently is becoming more and more widespread among the younger leaders that there must be a reorganization of the Republican party and a younger and more liberal leadership if the party is to regain its place in the American political sun.

Meantime reports trickle into Washington about a movement having its inception on the western prairies for the formation of a third party. Several conferences of progressive leaders already have been held and some of those who have participated tell me that the movement is gaining steadily, although it has had no publicity as yet. Those participating desire to fan-fare, as they do not believe the time is ripe for any announcement, and that certainly the movement should not be brought into the open until after the November elections.

The fate of the progressive party in Wisconsin as organized by Robert M. La Follette, Jr., and his brother Phil, can be expected to have a considerable bearing on the plans of those who are viewing the field to determine whether a sizeable public sentiment can be marshaled behind the third party movement. Many political strategists both in the National Capital and elsewhere believed, and gave expression to their views at the time, that Senator La Follette made a major political error when he came out openly for President Roosevelt in 1932. This made certain that the Democrats would carry Wisconsin—the state many regard as the birthplace of the Republican party—and it was equally certain that the astute James A. Farley, as chairman of the Democratic national committee, would lose no time in building up a formidable Democratic organization through the power of patronage at his disposal as postmaster general. The vote in the recent Democratic primary indicated that he had done a rather thorough job, but whether the La Follette hold on the Wisconsin electorate can be broken remains to be seen.

With some four or five tickets in the field, including the Democratic, Republican, Progressive and Socialist, the outcome is bound to be doubtful.

Whatever the Democratic majority may be in the next senate, the New Dealers are certain to have two flies in the ointment, when heretofore they have had only one. Mississippi is sending to the senate its former governor, Theodore G. Bilbo, to join Louisiana's irrepressible Huey P. (Kingfish) Long. Mr. Bilbo, who became a newspaper clipper in Washington under the New Deal, has promised his constituents that if they would send him to Washington he would "raise more h—1 than Huey Long." He has set for himself a very sizeable job because admittedly Mr. Long has raised more h—1 since he has been in the senate than was raised by even those two theretofore incomparable h—1 raisers Cole Blease of South Carolina, and Tom Heflin of Alabama. They constituted a real team from the South during their stay in the "world's greatest deliberative body," but unquestionably Long and Bilbo will put their record to shame—that is if they team up together. Senator Long has demonstrated during his brief stay in the senate that he likes to hold the center of the stage with a silent cast about to admire. Whether he will take kindly to another "h—1 raiser" within his own party ranks remains to be seen.

Democratic leaders do not overlook the possibility that if these two team together they might create a schism within the party ranks. Senator Long has far outstripped any of the New Dealers in some of the proposals which he has made, and Mr. Bilbo apparently is determined to keep pace with him if not surpass him. There are several Democratic senators who might conceivably go along with them, as they are not wholly satisfied with what they regard as the "conservative radicalism" of the administration.

Two pieces of legislation enacted by the last congress with a view to aiding the farmer seem destined for the scrap heap. They are the Bankhead cotton control law and the Lempke-Frazier farm mortgage bill. Strange as it is, Senator Bankhead of Alabama, author of the cotton law, who leads the revolt against that measure, which limited cotton production to ten million bales with each state allocated its respective share of this total. It so happens that the total yield was only nine million bales, a million less than permitted by statute. But, peculiarly enough, some of the southern states had superb weather and raised more than they were permitted to raise under the allocation made by the Agricultural Adjustment administration. There is a penalty of $30 on every excess bale raised in any state and taken to market. Mr. Bankhead would have this confiscatory tax waived, setting up the argument that since only nine million bales in all are available it is senseless to keep any of it off the market in the face of a crop shortage.

The Lempke-Frazier bill, in the first test case brought in the courts before Federal District Judge W. Calvin Chestnut, in Baltimore, has met the fate which its opponents predicted it would meet. It has been declared unconstitutional. The purpose of this measure was to declare a moratorium on farm mortgages for a period of five years.

It will be recalled that this was one of the measures which was passed by the senate in the hectic closing hour of the last session, and it is no secret that many Democrats voted for it in the belief that Mr. Roosevelt would veto it and that even if he did sign it—which he did—the courts would declare it invalid. This was merely another one of the many cases of passing the "buck" which are to be found in the annals of the congress. Mr. Roosevelt declined to take the "buck" so the holders of farm mortgages were left only recourse to the courts.

Select Best Wheat for the 1935 Crop

Chinch Bugs, Winter-Killing Promise to Be Growers' Leading Enemies.

By G. H. Dugan, Associate Chief in Crop Production, University of Illinois.

With the possibility of another chinch bug infestation in 1935 and the ever-present danger of winter killing, farmers should plant only those varieties of wheat that have proved the best in their respective parts of the state.

Where adapted varieties are planted on strong ground, observations indicate that fair wheat yields can be attained in spite of chinch bug attacks.

In the central part of the state, Illinois Progeny 2 this year again demonstrated its ability to yield well. This variety is a soft wheat with considerable winter hardiness, superior grain quality and high yielding capacity on fertile soils. Wheats of the Turkey type have long been considered best adapted to central Illinois and a variety that can compete with them has to be a good one. Illinois Progeny 2 has done this over a period of eight years in tests at the University of Illinois experiment field near Urbana.

At the experiment field near DeKalb in northern Illinois, five wheat varieties stand out in front with better average yields during the past three or more years. They include Loturk, Illinois Selection 131, Minturki, Purkof and Wisconsin Pedigree 2. These are all selections from Turkey or a hybrid in which Turkey was one of the parents.

On the Alhambra experiment field in southwestern Illinois, the soft red winter wheats are the best adapted, and here the leading varieties include Fulcaster, Nabob, Illinois Selection 131, Michigan Amber, Red Sea and Fulhio. Of these, Illinois Selection 131 is the only variety not in the soft wheat class.

Oat Straw Best, Most Nutritious for Stock

Much straw will go into the manure, rather than into the stalls, on farms this winter, because of the unusual scarcity of hay and the better roughages. Feeding straw to live stock is not new, however, as straw has long been used as roughage for horses, cattle, and sheep.

A. L. Harvey, animal husbandry division, University farm, St. Paul, says the feeding value of straw differs widely. Oat straw is the best and most nutritious. Its stems are softer and more pliable than those of the other cereals. Oat straw has about as much total digestible nutrients as corn stover, but only about one-half as much digestible protein. Barley straw is second in feeding value, followed by wheat and rye straw.

On farms where hay or corn stover is available as roughage, it would be preferable to use the straw for bedding or to use it in limited amounts as part of the roughage for wintering stock. On farms where there is a limited amount of hay or corn stover, straw can be used successfully as the sole roughage.

Because straw lacks the protein so necessary for growing animals, it should not be fed extensively to them. It had better be fed to idle work horses, dry cows, or other live stock requiring maintenance only during the fall and winter.

Coyotes May Be Beneficial Instead of Doing Damage

Suffering from the results of a bad reputation which he has been building up for a period of years the coyote finds that he is a pretty badly treated animal, says Pathfinder Magazine. The average human is pretty apt to act without making a very thorough investigation and therefore the coyote is shot at on sight, trapped and poisoned.

Scientists at the bureau of biological survey, however believe only what they see and so have made a little investigation into the private life of the coyote. They have found that in many localities instead of preying on poultry, young live stock and wild game and doing things generally detrimental to the farmer he does him a service. In these particular regions the animal lives almost exclusively on rodents which are enemies of the farmer.

Feed for Dairy Cow

Feed for a dairy cow depends upon the individual animal but as a general rule each cow will require two tons of legume hay, two acres of pasture, 10 bushels of corn, 10 bushels of oats, and 600 pounds of cottonseed meal. Where wheat bran is available this may be substituted for a part of the oats, pound for pound. Good producing animals are necessary for profit and the herd should average between 250 and 300 pounds of butterfat to the cow. If this average is not maintained then the animal is not paying for her feed and should be taken from the herd.

Erosion Evil Here

The evil effects of soil erosion are not a threat of the future but are already in evidence on tens of thousands of farms in this country, the United States Department of Agriculture says. In the South, the North, and the Middle West, many farmers are working land which has been made poor by erosion. Much of it is good forest land or land which could be used for forestry. Although millions of acres have been stripped of forests, much of the land was not suitable for farming.

Nation Needs Youth to Lead It, Says Editor

There is more strength in the wealth of youth than in the bankruptcy of old age.

That is the basic philosophy of Miss Viola Ima, dynamic attractive twenty-three-year-old leader of the American Youth movement, and editor of Modern Youth, the magazine which is called the voice of the younger generation. The slogan of this magazine is "no author can be over thirty."

Miss Ima quite by accident arrived in Washington at the time when four different student groups were holding conferences. She attended each conference in order to get the ideas of various groups.

"The interest of the students in national and international affairs is important," she stated, "because it shows that American youth is awakening."

"But a youth movement in America must not depend upon students. They never get anywhere while they cling to their student-like grudges and fight among themselves."

"They are bound by college walls. They lack the intelligence to see that all youth is as lost and frustrated as they are. The non-collegiate youth has a stamina, and a comprehension of reality which the student lacks. In order to accomplish anything, all classes of American young men and women must band together."

"In European countries all leaders look to youth. This is not true in America because American young people are not organized. Their lack of organization explains their lack of influence in government."

Miss Ima believes that one of the first steps toward the education of American youth to a sense of its own responsibility is the establishing of a central bureau in Washington.

"Into this bureau young people from all over the country can bring their ideas and can form a constructive policy.

"As editor of Modern Youth, I have read over two thousand manuscripts from young people all over the country. From these I have formed a five-point plan, which I believe is the philosophy of intelligent youth today.

"We believe in peace, in the education of boys and girls for the world of reality, and in social solution for the problem of vagrant young people."

Miss Ima has traveled around the world three times. During her travels she has attended economic conferences in all countries.

"I am against such terms as 'radical' and 'conservative,'" she said. "I think they have lost their meaning. Much good could be accomplished by changing their terms to 'constructive' and 'destructive.'"

"I am against youthful rioters who tear down and offer nothing to take the place of what they have destroyed. They should have a definite goal."—Washington Post.

Honor Faithful Dog

Hachiko, a dog, has been made a symbol of faithfulness in Tokyo, and little bronze images of him have been presented to the emperor and empress of Japan. For years Hachiko went with his master to the railway station each morning and each evening was waiting when the train came in. The master was killed in a railway accident several years ago, but the dog still goes to the station twice every day. Struck by his faithfulness, a committee was appointed to have made and distributed the little bronze Hachikos.

Sees Trousers Return as Attire for Women

Feminine departure from skirts, as evidenced in the recent popularity of pajamas, slacks and shorts, is merely a return of women to traditional modes.

So maintains Miss Ethel Traphagen, head of the Traphagen School of Fashion, New York, who has made an extensive study of the evolution of feminine attire.

"Trousers are women's traditional garb and skirts really belong to men," says Miss Traphagen.

"Fashionable Egyptian men of Tut-Ankh-Amen's day wore simple one-piece frocks. Sophocles, the Greek poet, draped himself in what might pass today as a very modish evening gown. The sturdy Roman soldier's skirt of mail looks like a kindergarten girl's school dress."

Miss Traphagen points out that Chinese and Japanese women as well as the Mohammedan women of Africa have always worn trousers. She believes shorts and other trouser-like forms of apparel will find increasing favor with women engaged in sports or in active work.

Makes Powerful Light Adding a minute part of a rare metal, rubidium, to mercury usually used in mercury lamps has resulted in the development of a lamp whose light approximates sunlight. The metal causes the lamp to give red rays, in addition to the mercury spectrum. The lamp is said to have a life ten times as long as an ordinary incandescent lamp. Rubidium costs $7 a dram, but only one five-hundredths part of the metal is used in each lamp to change the light hue from green to light red. Previously physicists had improved the mercury lamp by adding potassium to the mercury, but the potassium is said to disintegrate the glass bulb or tube of the lamp.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

IT OFTEN CAUSES "HARSH WORDS" I'M TRYING TO HELP YOU!
THAT'S AN INSULT!
Controversy always follows the introduction of any new scientific discovery. But no discovery in years, probably, has caused so much heated discussion and had such far reaching effects as this one. See what happened to these two Kansas housewives.

OH EDITH—I PITY YOU WITH ALL THAT WASHING TO DO. I WASHED YESTERDAY, AND I WAS DOG-TIRED LAST NIGHT.
WHY, WASHING'S NO JOB FOR ME AT ALL. JANE, YOU DON'T MEAN TO TELL ME YOU STILL RUB AND SCRUB CLOTHES.
OF COURSE I USE BAR SOAP AND SCRUB MY CLOTHES! HOW DO YOU DO IT? WITH THIS HARD WATER, TOO!
WHY, I JUST SOAK THEM IN OXYDOL SUDS—AND SAVE ALL THE WEAR AND TEAR OF SCRUBBING AND BEATING.

I SIMPLY WON'T USE THOSE STROVE GRANULATED SOAPS. THE ONE I TRIED PRACTICALLY RUINED MY COLORED DRESSES.
BUT DON'T YOU KNOW OXYDOL FLUSHES DIRT OUT IN 15 MINUTES' SOAKING—BUT IT WON'T FADE A THING OR HURT YOUR HANDS.
15 MINUTES! WHY, EDITH, THAT'S AN INSULT TO MY INTELLIGENCE. DON'T EXPECT ME TO BELIEVE THAT!
TELL YOU IT'S TRUE! I'LL SHOW YOU—JUST WATCH THOSE SOAPS FOR 15 MINUTES.

15 MINUTES LATER:
ONLY 15 MINUTES' SOAKING AND THOSE CLOTHES ARE WHITE AS SNOW!
LOOK! THIS LITTLE PRINT DRESS OF MARGIE'S IS JUST LIKE NEW—AND FIVE WASHES BY A DOZEN TIMES! OXYDOL REALLY SAVES CLOTHES.
YOU'LL BE ASTONISHED... LIKE I WAS—WHEN YOU TRY THIS NEW WAY TO WASH.
MADE by a patented process. New and Improved OXYDOL dissolves BRAIN BETTER PRICES!
Instantly and completely in hard or soft water, and does these things:
Gives thick, 3-inch suds, rich as whipped dairy cream. Suds that go to work on grease, dirt, and stains—in any water—2 to 3 times faster than less modern soaps. Sets up a unique "soak and flush" washing action. 15 minutes' soaking loosens dirt out so it flushes away without scrubbing or boiling.
You save long hours of washboard drudgery. You get clothes 4 to 6 shades whiter without washboard wear and tear. And yet, due to its special formula—OXYDOL is safe. Absolutely safe to hands, colors, fabrics!
Get new, improved OXYDOL from your grocer today. Money back if you don't have the whitest, sweetest wash ever. The Procter & Gamble Company.

Rowland—Woods

Last Friday, Lawrence Rowland made a trip to Slaton, Texas, and returned Sunday, accompanied by his new wife, the former Miss Blanche Woods of the above named place. In this act, Lawrence sprung a complete surprise on everybody in Carrizozo.

The new Mrs. Rowland has been here several times and during her stays she became acquainted with many of our people and Lawrence needs no introduction as he was reared in Carrizozo and is a son of Mrs. Maggie Eppy of the Malpais Dairy. The newlyweds will make their home in Capitan, Lawrence being at the present time, employed at Fort Stanton. Their many friends are extending their congratulations.

DEMOCRATIC HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT
THROWS AWAY $1,250,000 FEDERAL FUNDS AVAILABLE TO NEW MEXICO

The people of New Mexico were told when the Democratic state administration sought to saddle further debt upon them and mortgage their income through the issuance of $2,000,000 additional highway debentures, that the money to be derived from these debentures was to be utilized only for the purpose of construction of highways.

What has happened in regard to that promise?

It has been disregarded and broken. Despite a referendum signed by nearly 60,000 citizens the Democratic state administration pursued a course of political dishonesty, sought justification for its action in an indirect court ruling, and issued the entire $2,000,000 in debentures.

The records show that a goodly portion of the proceeds from the sale of those debentures was utilized by the State Highway Commission to pay off current indebtedness.

Despite continuous protests from the citizens of the state the Democratic state administration recently issued the last block of $625,000 of these debentures, and by that action lost for the people of the state of New Mexico the sum of $1,250,000 in Federal Aid road funds.

Had that debenture money been retained or the debentures left unsold until next year the federal government would have matched that money two dollars for one. Then the highways of New Mexico would have had the sum of $1,875,000 for new construction projects instead of the meager sum of $625,000 made available by the poor business acumen of the present state Democratic administration.

Does anyone familiar with the present terrible conditions of many state roads believe the state is justified in throwing away over a million dollars of available road funds at this time? The average voter has a very good idea of just why the Democratic administration was in so great a hurry to get its hands on this $625,000 just before election. Some state administrations have been so foolish as to believe a big road building program just prior to election is a vote getting stunt.

But it will be most intriguing to hear the Democrats explain their action which has cost the state a cool $1,250,000 in Federal highway funds.
