Carrizozo Lodge No. 41, A.F. & A.M. Celebrates 25th Anniversary

On Monday evening of this week, Carrizozo Lodge No. 41 A. F. & A. M., celebrated its 25th anniversary in becoming manner and had as their guests their ladies and four officers of the Grand Lodge.

At 7:30, a delicious dinner was served in the banquet hall with Mrs. E. H. Sweet, daughter, Mrs. James Lee of the Carrizozo Eating House supervising the same. The menu was par-excellence and in keeping with the reputation of that well known and reliable hotel for excellent service.

At the dinner, Worshipful Master, Master of the local lodge, gave a toast to the ladies, which was responded to by Mrs. F. A. English in a toast to the Masons.

After the dinner, in which over 100 took part, the guests were invited into the lodge room where a program fitting to the occasion was carried out. Short addresses were made by Lucius Dills, Past Grand Master, Robert Kellerin, Past Grand Lecturer, Lloyd Johnson, Grand Commander of the Knight Templars and Tom Hall, Past Grand Master, all of whom occupied posts of honor as distinguished visitors. Miss Ruth Brickley gave a piano solo and Mrs. Don English, a vocal solo, accompanied by Mrs. T. E. Kelley at the piano.

C. P. Huppertz followed with a graphic description of the history of the lodge during the past 25 years, from the time of its organization to the present administration of which, Wm. Gallacher is Worshipful Master, S. B. Boatman, Senior Warden, Roy Shaffer, Junior Warden, R. E. Lemon, Secretary, F. A. English, Treasurer. He reviewed the work of the order and as he called the names of the Worshipful Masters who presided during the past 25 years, those of the number who were present responded by rising to their feet, as follows:

- F. A. English, 1914
- R. E. Blaney, 1918
- R. E. Lemon, 1921
- G. S. Hoover, 1927
- A. L. Burke, 1928
- E. M. Brickley, 1931
- F. L. Boughner, 1932
- T. E. Kelley, 1933

Many letters of regret were read from Grand Lodge officers and Past Masters of the local lodge who were detained by circumstances over which they had no control. It was an event long to be remembered.

A Nice Christmas Gift

Advance indications that the home itself is going to receive the attention of this year's Santa Claus were being noted by business enterprises here, according to Gunther Kroggel of the New Mexico Equipment Co., local Kelvinator sales representative. "Home remodeling and household conveniences seem to be in store for the faithful homestead this year, he said. Christmas gifts for members of the household, translated in terms of this new attitude, will be reflected in modern equipment for the housewife, new radios, new washing machines, and other home fixtures which do so much to make living more pleasant." "We have noted a considerable increase in inquiries regarding Kelvinators for Christmas. Kelvinator always has enjoyed a considerable Christmas sales volume largely because this electric refrigerator is recognized as the standard of convenience and efficient performance. This year, more than ever before, we are anticipating many sales from men who realize that by giving their wives Kelvinators for Christmas they are not providing a source of new joy and convenience but are at the same time following out the idea of Christmas home improvement."

Mr. Kroggel announced that a special Christmas display will be featured in December at his company's headquarters in the Outlook Building where Christmas gift Kelvinators may be inspected.

Let Us Give & Thanks

Our Thanksgiving

By James Waldo Fawcett in Washington Star

THANKSGIVING IS AN ancient custom, but it has had its ups and downs. Historians say that it has not always been the universally popular occasion which it now is considered to be.

The first Thanksgiving ceremoniously observed in North America was that conducted by Rev. Mr. Wolcott, chaplain of the Plymouth expedition to Newfoundland, May 27, 1619, and the earliest Thanksgiving observance reported within the present boundaries of the United States was that held by the Pilgrim colonists at Sagadahoc, Maine, in August, 1607.

But the first specification of a whole day of thanksgiving was that proclaimed by William Bradford, first governor of Massachusetts Colony of Pilgrims, "in gratitude for the plentiful harvest" of 1621. The date was December 13, old style.

The festival became an annual and regular one in Massachusetts in 1634, and the example so established was followed by all the other New England colonies. It was the most important feast of the year, taking rank above Christmas, of which the Puritans disapproved.

During the Revolutionary war there were at least eight separate days of general thanksgiving. George Washington ordered days for prayer and thanks on December 18, 1777, and May 7, 1778.

But it was not the Father of His Country who first conceived the idea of a national Thanksgiving day for the newly liberated colonies. Contrary to common belief, it was congress rather than the first President that was responsible. The credit in the circumstances is due particularly to Elias Boudinot, a member of the house of representatives from New Jersey, who on September 25, 1789, introduced a resolution calling upon "all the citizens of the United States" to join "with one voice in returning to Almighty God their sincere thanks for the many blessings he had poured upon them." The original document is still in the files of the congress, where it recently was discovered.

The record shows that the motion prompted strenuous debate. Opposition to the proposal was passionately intense. Aedanus Burke of South Carolina attacked "this mimicking of European customs." Thomas T. Tucker of Virginia, sarcastically submitted that "it might be well to wait for some experience of the efficacy of the Constitution before returning thanks for it."

Thomas Jefferson opposed the plan for fear, it might imply a connection between state and church. The fact was that Thanksgiving day never had been accepted in the South. It had been considered an exclusively evangelical occasion, a sectarian festival of the Congregationalists, the Episcopal, or Anglican, communion would have none of it.

But it was an Episcopalian who signed the proclamation when Boudinot's resolution finally was accorded congressional approval. It happened, too, that it was the first document of its kind ever endorsed by an American Chief Executive. November 20 was the day assigned, and Washington summoned the new nation to express gratitude "for the peaceable and rational manner in which we have been enabled to establish constitutions of government."

However, the opposition party was not satisfied. Jefferson, for one, declined to take part in the ceremonies. His celebrated rival, Alexander Hamilton, on the other hand, determined to make a really memorable event of the festival. With the imaginative flair which distinguished him, he envisioned a "monster celebration," with Washington as its presiding genius. There should be a grand parade, a colorful and dramatic pageant, an American equivalent, more or less, of a Roman triumph. Troops were to march, bands to play, flags to fly, and the multitude could be counted upon to cheer.

The whole affair, Hamilton decided, should culminate in a banquet at Fraunce's tavern. To the feast board he invited his chosen friends and preparations for their entertainment in the grand manner proceeded. But Mrs. Washington had plans of

THANKSGIVING DAY

By GEORGE ERWIN BOWEN in Chicago Post

FOR all the gifts of treasure That brighten memory Make now my heart an altar, O, Lord, where faith shall be. A little while I fratted When shadows hid the light, But now I find your kindness Was patient with my plight.

To all the loving sources Of blessings sweet I share, A grateful song uplifted O'er gentle paths I bear. For where my heart was baffled And bitter loss I knew, This finer faith was gathered From tempests battled thru.

For all dear thought of mercy I've learned from cruelty, O, Lord, a kind apostle To broken souls I'd be, As to the blind a leader, I'd teach the sight I found When patience gave me gardens In bleak and barren ground.

For more than life can measure Dear Lord, how shall I keep A sweet or shining portion While those un nourished weep? Whenever Dawn comes smiling— O give me grace to know Its promise and be worthy As with a song I go.

her own. She desired a formal levee at the Executive Mansion in Franklin square, and invitations were dispatched to everybody who was anybody. Hamilton, naturally, was one of those whose presence was requested.

The great day dawned. The parade was held. The reception followed. Hamilton was late in arriving at the tavern, a tardy host at his own dinner.

To his amazement, the giver of the feast found his guests had not waited for him to appear. They had been eating and drinking for all they were worth in his absence.

From the doorway Hamilton surveyed the scene, his face scumpled with rage. Nevertheless, he held his tongue for fear of the "public scandal" of an outburst. Silence fell as he moved across the room to a place at the table. But the inevitable outburst followed.

The next morning Washington sent for Hamilton and demanded an explanation. The younger man apologized as best as he could, but the older "called the whole proceedings a disgrace."

For five long years there were no Thanksgiving day proclamations, no Thanksgiving day celebrations. In a later period Andrew Jackson and Zachary Taylor refused to order observance of the festival. Abraham Lincoln was responsible for the present custom of keeping the fourth or last Thursday in November as a national day of thanks to God.

But it was not until comparatively recent years that the people of the entire country began to celebrate the annual occasion with enthusiasm.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart

Washington.—It has been seldom since President Roosevelt took the helm of government that Washington has witnessed such an upheaval of conditions and plans as has occurred in the last few weeks. Part of the changes result naturally enough from development of plans for submission of new national policies to congress which will convene again in about six weeks. The other part comes from a sudden determination by the administration to revise its recovery methods.

Possibly the most significant of the forthcoming changes in recovery plans is the determination to try, at least, to get away from direct relief. Instead of plain gifts of money, the administration is now seeking to find additional means for creating work so that individuals needing help may obtain their relief in the form of jobs for which the government will pay.

Officials still are loath to discuss exact figures, but they are, nevertheless, going steadily forward with plans for converting the vast federal relief machinery into an extensive program that will embrace such things as slum clearance, low cost housing and rural rehabilitation.

Mr. Roosevelt will wait until the last moment before he fixes in his own mind how many hundreds of millions of dollars will be needed to carry out these projects. The total cost obviously will depend somewhat upon how quickly the dole can be abandoned. It may run into billions of dollars because, according to some authorities, removal from the dole is going to be opposed by certain types of persons. And, it seems, they can hardly be blamed because once the government altered its traditional policy and made direct gifts of money it created a new psychology and the people who benefited thereby quite naturally will be unwilling to have the source of the gifts closed for this easy manner of living.

One of the plans under consideration as a part of the whole program is provision for employment by direct federal subsidy for housing. Under this plan, the government would advance part of the cost for individual homes of low price construction. Estimates said to be in the hands of the President indicate that an expenditure of $1,600,000,000 in this manner would release more than three times that amount in private capital and give work to an estimated four million persons.

In keeping with the theory that the number on relief rolls will descend in direct proportion to the revival of private construction, advocates of this plan contend that the cost would be less than outright relief. They say that with the government advancing part of the funds needed, private lending agencies would feel more secure and would offer aid in the form of the remainder of the loans necessary.

It has long been recognized that recovery cannot be accomplished without a tremendous increase in construction. Private construction, however, will not go forward in a period of uncertainty now more than it has in other years and the experts have decided that the government must take the lead in this direction. They have advised the President there can be no real upturn in private building operations unless a start is made by the government. Whether this is the right theory, of course, none can foretell. It may turn out to be that the government is pouring additional funds down just another rat-hole as it has on numerous other occasions in the course of recovery experiments. My conversations with men both in public and private life, men who are qualified to judge, lead me to believe that there will be considerable construction resulting from this program. The conclusions which have been expressed to me, it must be said frankly, do not indicate that there will be any such total of new construction development under the new administration program as the enthusiastic exponents of the program now contend.

There are numerous reasons for these conclusions as they have been explained to me. One of these reasons, and perhaps the most important, is that no one is going to build a house unless he feels that he can continue to pay for it. With depression conditions prevailing and with hundreds of thousands of potential home owners now without reserves or resources of any kind the market for homes naturally is limited. That is to say there are hundreds of thousands of families who would like to have homes but who have no way of acquiring them.

Another road which the administration is now following in its efforts to cause money to flow more freely is the recent ruling easing restrictions on bank loans. Heretofore, banks have not been permitted to make loans of more than 10 per cent of their capital and surplus for industrial purposes to one borrower. The treasury now has abrogated that provision, long regarded as a sound banking ruling, and has told the banks they may loan more than 10 per cent provided the amount loaned above 10 per cent is guaranteed by the Reconstruction Finance corporation or the federal reserve system. Treasury officials think this will encourage banks to extend additional credit.

It happened that on almost the same day that the treasury policy was announced, one of the largest banks in the United States reported privately that one of its vice presidents had returned from a six weeks' scouting trip in an effort to find places where it could loan money. This man visited important cities in 16 states. He is a practical banker and he is thoroughly acquainted with the means of approach to potential borrowers. But his six weeks' tour netted one loan application.

That banks' report may sound silly because there are so many people that need money. Yet, it must be remembered that a bank is trustee for the funds placed in its care by its depositors and it cannot hand out money with reckless abandon. It must feel reasonably sure that there will be a repayment, and this was the thing which the bank's vice president failed to find. There were plenty of individuals and corporations that needed money but they had no security to offer and little to guarantee that they could repay the borrowed funds.

Financial experts, therefore, are not unduly excited about the latest treasury ruling which was released with much gusto and with statements that this will free "many hundreds of millions" to business. I am told that the banks are chock-full of loose cash. Reports to the treasury certainly indicate that to be a fact. But when borrowers who need money have no security and when business is at such a low ebb that only the minimum of funds is needed, I believe it can hardly be said that the bankers are wholly to blame. The bankers have been vigorously criticized in the last four or five years and obviously a considerable spanking was due them. On the other hand, I think it is a plain statement of fact that you can no more force people to borrow than you can make a horse urinate after you have led him to the trough.

Unusual Speaking Tour

Senator Gerald P. Nye, North Dakota Progressive-Republican, has started on a speaking tour that, as far as I can find, is without precedent. The senator is chairman of the special senate committee named to investigate the munitions, aircraft, and shipbuilding industries, to determine whether these businesses have been active in fomenting trouble between the nations of the world. The committee has held hearings covering a period of three weeks, and the hearings will be resumed later with the prospect that they may run on for many months.

Senator Nye is making a series of six speeches in the United States and one in Canada, dealing with the question of who really starts wars. He has announced that he desires to tell the country how nations are driven into conflict and the inference is, of course, that he believes munition makers and others producing material for war are at the bottom of the heap.

But the point is that Mr. Nye personally is an advocate of government ownership of all plants now engaged in the production of anything used in wars between nations. He is authentically reported to have a draft of legislation in mind which he will present to the forthcoming congress. He is not alone in holding this belief for at least four other members of his committee entertain the same general trend of mind. There are seven members of the committee so that it is apparent the Nye plan will have a majority of that committee supporting it if and when it is presented to the senate.

I have examined records rather comprehensively in an effort to discover whether ever before any senator or member of the house had gone out to the country with an appeal for support of legislation under a circumstance such as this. The committee had three or four months more of investigation ostensibly to ascertain all pertinent facts. Despite the fact that the senate has voted money for the committee to make this investigation and the money will be spent at hearings, Senator Nye has proceeded to make known his views in advance.

Disclosures made by the committee thus far have been accepted generally. I think, as showing there was some fire as the cause of the smoke. Certain testimony given before that committee linked some of the American munitions makers with foreign interests whose designs were of a political character. It was shown how some of the foreign agents had attempted to provoke trouble between nations of Europe and the logical assumption is that if such activities occurred in two or three instances, they must have occurred in many others. Nevertheless, there is a considerable amount of criticism heard in Washington about Senator Nye's plan of action because, it is contended by these critics, it is hard to see how the senator can conduct an unbiased investigation after having committed himself in this equivocal way.

ROBBERS' ROOST

Southwestern Briefs

SYNOPSIS

by ZANE GREY

Copyright—WNU Service.

Jim Wall, young cowpuncher from Wyoming, seeks a new field in Utah. He meets Hank Hays, who tells him he is working for an Englishman, Herrick. Hays and others are plotting to steal their employer's cattle and money.

Jim Wall goes to Herrick's ranch. Hays and his lieutenants arrive off a bunch of cattle. Heeseman the Hays' rival among the cattle rustlers. Jim is sent to meet Miss Herrick. Hays has a peculiar interest in the girl's coming. Wall finds himself falling in love with Helen, and he fears Hays has designs on the girl. Jim coaches her in riding western-style, and finally kisses her. She is angry and dismisses him, but returns and asks him not to leave the ranch. Hays' men return from the drive, having the money. A quick getaway is imperative. Hays tells them to go on ahead, that he will join them. He comes, with Helen Herrick—a captive. Hays explains that he stole Helen for ransom. Realizing that Helen will be worse off if she falls into Heeseman's clutches, Jim Wall does nothing. Heeseman's riders come in pursuit. Hays leads the gang into a canyon retreat. The Robbers' Roost. In the "roost" Jim keeps a watchful eye on Helen. Heeseman's riders appear. Helen is taken to a cave, and Hays and his followers prepare for the coming battle.

Scarcely had he gotten out of sight when Jim thought of the field glass. Smoky should have taken it. Jim risked going back to his pack to secure it, and had the fun of dodging another bullet.

Jim Wall needed any galvanizing shock to nerve him to the deed he had resolved upon, that single possessive word was enough.

"Flesh wound. Nothin' to fuss over this mornin'." "Over this mornin'!" "You got hit, I see." "Flesh wound. Nothin' to fuss over this mornin'. An' I've got a crease on my head. That hurts like sixty. Half an inch lower an'—"

his unseen hand, suddenly loomed with tremendous surprise. "Shore. That doesn't surprise me," admitted the robber. "When men's feelings are raw, as in a time like this, they clash. But I did my share to clear the air. An' if Smoky had come back he'd have seen it different. I could have talked him out of it. . . . Jim, you're shore smart enough to see that, an' you oughter be honest, enough to admit it."

"I daresay you could have won Smoky back. He had a fool worship for you. . . . But you can't talk me out of anything." "Why, fer Gawd's sake—when I'm givin' you all the best of the deal?" "Because I want the girl," thundered Jim.

"If I do anything at all it'll be fer my gun. Them stiffs ain't a pretty sight." "If Jim Wall needed any galvanizing shock to nerve him to the deed he had resolved upon, that single possessive word was enough. "I'll bury them later," he said. "Good. I'm all in. I climbed more'n a mile to git to them fellers." Hays sat down heavily, and ran his right hand inside his shirt to feel of the bulge on his shoulder. Jim saw him wince. Blood had soaked through his shirt.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for November 25 THE CHRISTIAN STEWARD

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 25:14-30. GOLDEN TEXT—His lord said unto him, Well done, thou good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord.—Matthew 25:21.

Stewardship here includes one's self and substance—stewardship in money is only a small part of our responsibility. God has entrusted each of his servants with certain gifts, and will hold each responsible for the use he makes of them.

1. It was a sovereign act. He called his own servants and distributed to them his own money. As the one who created us and owns us, he has assigned us our places and given us our several powers, intending that we put them to the best possible use.

2. It was an intelligent act. The distribution was made according to "several ability." The God who made us know our ability to "use gifts, therefore he made the distribution upon that basis. A recognition of God's sovereignty and intelligence regarding the distribution of his gifts will make us content in our sphere of labor.

3. The one hid his talent. The crime of the one-talent man was not that he had but one talent, but that he hid the talent which the Lord gave him. He did nothing with it. To hide a talent may be just as hard or harder than to use it.

4. Punishment of the faithless (vv. 24-30). (1) Praise, "Well done," All like to be praised. From childhood on through life, commendation is pleasing.

5. "Don't Let Me Get Sour" "When troubles begin to come, I say to the Lord, 'Whatever happens, don't let me sour,'" recounts Mrs. Wiggs' storybook fame. We fear trouble for its effect upon our fortunes and our happiness, but really the greatest danger point is our character.

A Grave Responsibility

The recent Democratic landslide over the country has failed to create a great amount of rejoicing in the ranks of the leaders of the victorious party. Why? Because of the fact that they are faced with more than a double responsibility. They are filled with an amount of power so great that leaders fear it will be abused to the extent that even the veto of the President will have to be put on measures so to the extreme as to infringe on the rights and liberties of the people.

Already we hear of factions springing up which will cause uneasiness to the chief executive. It is predicted that he will not have congress with him for the next two years as he has had in the past, and that alone will cause him much concern. His pillow will not be easy. It is no wonder then that when asked for a statement after the election, he simply said: "No comment." We believe that in that statement, he saw breakers ahead and thought it best to avoid saying anything for which he might have cause to regret in the future.

In the next congress, demands will be made for unprecedented sums of money to be made in appropriations for pet hobbies of the different congressmen and with the vast amount of power, ravages will be made on the treasury that would bankrupt the nation unless some check is put to prevent it. Flushed with a second victory far greater than two years ago, congress is more than liable to go into it blindly and selfishly to self-gratification—thinking as some do, that the Republican party is dead, and with no foe to fear, anything can happen within the coming two years.

One thing is certain—the Democratic party must shoulder its own load, and the load might be greater than expected. As far as we are concerned we are satisfied to have it so, for there will be no responsibility to bear except by the party in power—there can be no opposition strong enough to prevent anything congress may set out to do. Should it stand together, even the power of the veto would avail nothing. Mr. Farley says that the Republican party is dead, but what about his own party after it awakened from the crushing defeat of the Al Smith campaign? Hopeless as that situation was, victory finally succeeded defeat from the misfortunes of the Republican party. Republicans are not "gripping," they are taking it on the chin as game sports should do and waiting for the next act. What may develop in the future, no man can tell—anything can happen.

MORNING FROCK ALL WILL ADMIRE

Mati Hari Sent to Death by Comrade

"Mlle. Docteur," Dying, Confesses Betrayal.

Berne, Switzerland.—On her death bed Anni Marie Lesser, notorious "Mlle. Docteur," German spy, revealed how she betrayed the glamorous World War spy, Mati Hari, to her death before a French firing squad.

"Mlle. Docteur" died alone in a sanatorium near Zurich, where she had been under treatment for the narcotic habit. For she had taken drugs to deaden her memory.

Her doctor in the sanatorium was the only person to whom she talked and after her recent death he disclosed for the first time her astonishing story. It was a confession of a woman who stopped at no crime to gain war profits for Germany.

Doctor's Story.

Here is the doctor's story: "Do you think, doctor, that I should be arrested if I went to France?" "Certainly not," I replied, "the question would not even arise."

"I should like to go to France," she said, "to see once more all those places where I used to go. I should like also to see Mati Hari's grave; she was one of my victims. I engaged her and it was from me that she obtained all her instructions."

But one day she told me that she did not want to continue the work she had had to do and she was afraid, I don't know why. But she wished to be released from her promises.

"For anyone who has trodden that path there is no possibility of retreat. I should not have been able to release her even if I had wanted. I should have been suspected at once. I threatened her, but without success."

"Yes, I had her executed. As was customary, I arranged that the French should receive all the necessary evidence for her arrest."

"And, now, doctor, I am going to tell you something which I alone know. For a long time, for a very long time, I envied Mati Hari's fate. Her death was easy, I am going to tell you why."

her even if I had wanted. I should have been suspected at once. I threatened her, but without success. "Yes, I had her executed. As was customary, I arranged that the French should receive all the necessary evidence for her arrest."

"And, now, doctor, I am going to tell you something which I alone know. For a long time, for a very long time, I envied Mati Hari's fate. Her death was easy, I am going to tell you why."

An Easy Death. "She was condemned to death and was waiting for the end in her cell when a man came to her and said in a low voice: "Fear nothing, Mati Hari, everything has been arranged for your escape. You will have to go before the firing squad, but that will be a mere formality, the bullets will pass above your head."

"Pretend to be dead, our men will put you on the bier and transport you out of France on a wagon."

"Mati Hari smiled gratefully, and went to what she believed to be the last to be a mock execution, and smiling received the rifle bullets in her heart. She had an easy death."

Anne Marie began her career as a spy when she was sixteen when, described on her passport as a student at the Beaux Arts of Geneva, she appeared in a little French village in the Vosges which was going to be the scene of certain military maneuvers.

In 1914 there arrived at Brussels a splendid creature with a French name bearing only a vague resemblance to the little student of the Beaux Arts of Geneva.

The beautiful "French woman" was not long getting to know a young lieutenant, Rene Austin.

In the intervals of love-making she painted little pictures, which she sent, via Switzerland, to Berlin, where her chiefs, removing the oils, found underneath tracings of fortresses, guns and soldiers.

Mushroom as Anesthetic. Dentists among the Zapotec Indians of Mexico used as an anesthetic a mushroom that still grows wild in that region.

Wives Too Expensive for Most Moslems. Belgrade. The prices paid for wives by the Moslems of south Jugoslavia have fallen heavily.

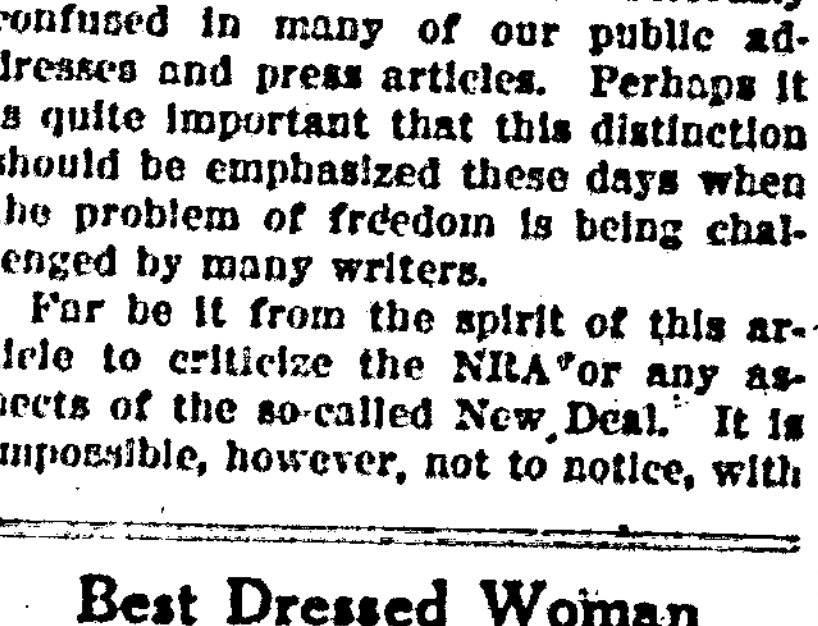

Prices for wives used to be high because there was a shortage of suitable women. But many women have gone to south Jugoslavia. Numbers of them are actually prepared to bring a dowry to their husbands instead of having to be "bought" from their families.

Also, farm product prices have fallen and made it impossible for most men to support more than one wife.

Liberty or License

There is an important difference between liberty and license. By liberty we mean, "exemption from external restraint — freedom." In government it means, "freedom from political usurpation; the condition of a people which participates in the making of its own laws." License, means a special grant of privilege, like the right to conduct a certain business, operate an automobile, conduct an entertainment or show. The distinction between these two terms is not always clearly understood. We have been seriously confused in many of our public addresses and press articles. Perhaps it is quite important that this distinction should be emphasized these days when the problem of freedom is being challenged by many writers.

Far be it from the spirit of this article to criticize the NRA or any aspects of the so-called New Deal. It is impossible, however, not to notice, with considerable alarm, the daring assaults hurled at those in executive authority who argue that the New Deal will result in the complete destruction of that liberty for which our fathers fought and died.

Best Dressed Woman

Anna May Wong, the beautiful oriental screen star, is the newest holder of the title of "best-dressed woman in the world." She was chosen at an international convention of designers in the Mayfair Mannerquin academy, New York. Anna is shown with the cup awarded to her.

Much of the writing directed toward this end, however, fails to recognize the distinction between liberty and license for which this article pleads.

License fails to recognize a moral imperative. A license to operate an automobile does not imply a moral obligation to avoid unnecessary risks. So far as the license is concerned, I can drive 70 or 80 miles an hour, just as I please. True, my license may be revoked; if I disobey a law, which limits my speed, but my license has nothing to do with that. Or, again, my neighbor's house may be on fire. While I am under no legal obligations to notify him of that fact, the very nature of the freedom of choice implies a moral obligation to do so.

Liberty implies a moral obligation to live and let live. License may give me the right to conduct a certain business, but liberty limits the methods and motives which may seriously affect the physical and economic condition of the other person.

License to do as I please, regardless of others, and liberty which safeguards the rights of others are two different things. The latter is what we have inherited from our forefathers. Let us not lose it.

Blindness No Hindrance to Six New Englanders

The Household

GARMENT hangers require correct use for best service. It is not enough that the clothes are put over their branching arms. They must be so put on that they hang straight from the shoulders. If the frock or coat does not fit the hanger it is almost better not to use a hanger at all for the garment will bulge in odd places where the ends of the hanger-arms push out the material. When a garment remains long in such a peculiar position, it is difficult to restore the right shape even with good pressing. The textile is stretched out of shape and has to be coaxed back by steaming with a hot iron pressed down over a wet cloth. A tailor's services may be required, and all for the lack of a moment's attention to putting the garment on the hanger in the correct way.

If a coat hanger is rightly used, it will save trouble and time otherwise needed in pressing garments. So why not let your coat hangers give you the best service?

See that the arms of it come directly under the top of the shoulder. In some cuts of garments this place is the shoulder seam, but not always is this true. See that the garment hangs in its right folds, that the hem at bottom of skirt, or the lower edge of a coat or blouse is not turned up, and that the sleeves fall as they should.

There are women who are so particular about proper adjusting of garment to hanger that they seldom have to iron their garments. Dresses will have to be laundered or cleaned when soiled and some materials, which have to be crisp and which rumple easily, will need pressing, of course. But a correct use of hangers will reduce work amazingly.

Don't Crowd Hangers. After garments are put on hangers properly they must not be crowded together in a closet. There are more ways of pressing clothes than with a flatiron. One of them is to hang them so close together that they press against each other and crush materials badly. So don't crowd hangers on rods. Some day soon I shall tell you about various rods, poles, arms and devices on which to suspend garment hangers in closets. Some of them keep the hangers sufficiently far distant from one another to eliminate crowding.

Hints on Dyeing. The home dye pot will work wonders in changing colors of textiles to make them look like new and different fabrics. Now is the time to make it prove itself beneficial in supplying what would appear like new frocks, or it may be different draperies, cushion covers and such upholstery materials as can be taken off and put into the dye pot. To get good results the dye must not only be the right kind for the material, silk requiring silk dyes, etc., but the color must be sufficiently darker than the color to be changed, to insure hiding faded places, stains, and spots. It is because there is difficulty in doing this in some instances, that makes dye houses advise black, which is a sure hue as far as concealing defects in colors is concerned.

It is wiser for the home worker to pick out a tone which is sufficiently dark for her purpose, than to experiment, unless she is perfectly willing to redye the article. However, if she is willing to experiment she can often get stunning effects in what are known as "off-colors," those exquisite hues of artistic beauty not on color charts.

Hat of Beaver Fur Felt

For the girl who likes tailored clothes, fashion suggests a hat of fine beaver fur felt, with a dressmaker's touch of smocking on the crown. From Knox.

Problems in Decoration. Assembling a room is, after all, quite like assembling a costume. To have things which go together you must analyze before you buy. Consider these questions: Are you starting anew or combining new furnishings with those you already have? Does your room lack color and design? Has it a preponderance of colors with no theme to draw them together? Or is your room, perhaps, of the type widely known as the "too-taupe" room? You can easily relieve the drab monotony of this one tone by hanging colorful chintz curtains at the windows. Then make a slip cover for a chair in the same chintz and place it opposite the windows, across the room. Bring out some of the warm hues of the draperies in lamp shades and accessories, and before you know it your room will really begin to live!—Good Housekeeping Magazine.

Worth Remembering. When running a new tape or elastic through underwear, baggy one end of the new tape onto an end of the old tape, and when the old tape is drawn out the new one is pulled in place.

Tip on Ironing. A clean, washable rag rug is excellent to place under the ironing board when ironing. Large pieces, such as tablecloths, will not get on the floor.

Burned Kid. "I want to let you in on the ground floor," said the enthusiastic slicker. "Nothing doing," replied the intended victim. "I learned from one experience that all those ground-floor are full of trappers that drop you down into the cellar."

She Sees Through "Grafted" Eyes

Mrs. Laphins Muir (right), noted British novelist, is shown telling a girl reporter at Quisset, Mass., of the almost miraculous restoration of her eyesight through a delicate grafting operation performed by Dr. Tudor Thomas at Cardiff, Wales. Mrs. Muir was blinded nearly ten years ago when a doctor accidentally dropped some chloroform into her eyes during a minor operation, burning the corneas. Another woman, almost blind and incurably so, offered the healthy parts of her own eyes so Mrs. Muir might see again. Mrs. Muir appeared before the American College of Surgeons, so the members could see what was done in the field of "eye grafting."

PATTERN 1748 Here is a morning frock that women just love on sight—and before which impressionable males go down like ninetails. Maybe it is that feminine little frill at the edge of the yoke that does the trick and maybe it's the come-hither of those little puffed sleeves—and again maybe it is just the whole pretty business. As to the cause we are a bit hazy, but there is no doubt about the effect. If you are the kind of woman who just must improve upon a thing, however good—or if you need two new morning frocks—try making one of plain material with a contrasting yoke and belt trim. Pattern 1748 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32.

Size 16 takes 3 1/2 yards of 36-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included. Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coin or stamps (coin preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE. Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

THE SOLID TRUTH

Maise, the film star, looked down in the mouth. "What's the matter, honey?" asked her co-star. "The director," murmured Maise. "He told me that I'm getting rather fat and losing my sex appeal."

The other star shrugged her shoulders. "What did I tell you, my dear," she said. "It's dieting you want. You can't eat your cake and have it, too."—London Answers.

Queer Tricks Are Played by Some Erratic Rivers

Eccentric Rio Grande Leaves Farmers in Lurch.

Washington.—Residents of north and central New Mexico received a jolt recently when the Rio Grande, source of water for their crops, suddenly left them in the lurch by drying up completely into a path of sand.

"Dwellers near the peaceful Potomac or steady Hudson, accustomed to relying on rivers as dependable landmarks, flowing in routine way from source to mouth, are in for disillusionment," says the National Geographic Society. "No feature of nature is more capricious than some rivers.

"This sudden drying up is an old trick of the Rio Grande, which, with only one large tributary, the River Pecos, tries to flow from the Rocky mountains over 2,000 miles to the sea across open valleys and arid desert. In winter and spring, melted snows swell this United States boundary stream until it places it leaves its banks; but in summer, in many sections, it evaporates in its sandy bed.

One of Bad Habits.

"Dwindling is just one of the bad habits of the eccentric Rio Grande. Swinging in great curves over the low flood plains, it often changes its course, shifting land between Mexico and Texas.

"Another perverse river is the changeable Hwang Ho, which has shifted its course through China many times—its mouth on the Yellow sea once south of the Shantung peninsula, now lies north of that promontory, 250 miles from its former outlet.

"Roundabout windings of a river add numerous miles to its course. Although an airplane trip direct from the source of the Seine to its mouth covers only 250 miles, the river, because of its meanderings, actually traverses 452 miles.

"Broad windings of a river form wide curves, so-called 'oxbow loops.' In flood time, a swollen stream will sometimes cut across the neck of one of these loops, and flowing in a new channel, shorten its course by as much as fifteen miles.

"Rivers erode their banks unevenly. Often one bank remains many times higher than the other. The Volga's right bank in its lower portion is cliff-like, while the left bank is low and subject to floods. For this reason, the Volga's lower course shows over thirty towns built on the high right bank to a mere handful on the low left bank.

Streams That Disappear.

"Although the sea's deposits on coasts sometimes cause rivers to seek new outlets, many rivers, on the other hand, push coast lines out into the sea, linking islands to the land with sediment.

"A stream eccentric in its flow is the Garonne, a river of southwestern France, formed by two torrents. One of them rises like any other river, flows along, normally like an ordinary stream, and then drops mysteriously into the earth to flow underground for two and a half miles before emerging. Kentucky's Mammoth Cave and Virginia's Natural Bridge are thought to be the result of like subterranean tunneling. In Greece, rivers quite commonly disappear into caverns and reappear miles distant.

"Rivers vary not only their length, but their volume. Broken dams and levees, raging waters dotted with roofs of drowned houses tell the tragedy of floods on the Mississippi and other rivers. The Hwang Ho is nicknamed 'China's Sorrow' because of its frequent inundations which drown thousands of peasants crowding its low basin.

"Tidal rivers possess interesting phenomena in tidal waves, or 'bores,' which sweep in periodically from the sea. As these waves ascend the nar-

Whisky Snake Story Has New Dressing

Bill Henshaw has a water snake, tamed by a drink of whisky, that fetches him frogs for bait.

rowing channel of a river, they form a steep wall of water towering many feet high. The Wye and the Severn in England, and the Seine in France, have small bores. The Hangchow bore on the Taitung river, China, is one of the most famous of the river bores.

"The Upper Nile, between Khartoum and Gondokoro is sometimes blocked with floating vegetation called sudd, from an Arabic word meaning 'block.' In flood times, additional sediment often causes the mass to grow 25 miles long. Its interwoven reeds, vines, and bamboos form a great carpet so strong that elephants and rhinoceroses can walk across the Nile on it."

Doukhobor Sect Will Remove to Mexico

Plan to Dispose of Property in Western Canada.

Winnipeg, Man.—The Doukhobor sect of western Canada, center of many stormy controversies precipitated by its fiery leader, Peter Veregin, is preparing to abandon its rich holdings in Saskatchewan and move to a new "promised land," it was revealed here.

Veregin, the spare, mustached Messiah of the colony of 8,000 persons whose farmlands are among the most productive in Saskatchewan, was in Winnipeg, ostensibly negotiating for migration of his tribe. He was reticent and uncommunicative regarding the Doukhobors' plans, refusing to comment on a report that they would move to a tract in Chihuahua, Mexico, for which it is known he has been negotiating.

Veregin did reveal, however, that the Doukhobors were ready to dispose of their 25,000 acres of land "lock, stock and barrel," possibly the culmination of a hectic series of clashes with governmental restrictions that were marked by nude parades and arrest of Veregin himself.

Veregin, the Shelatkof (Christ) of the pacifist sect, salaried by all of the faithful, served 18 months in prison on a perjury charge and barely escaped deportation to Russia. He had complained loudly against restrictions that prevented other Doukhobors from all parts of the world from coming to Saskatchewan at will.

It was expected that if the colony moves to Mexico thousands of members in Russia and delegations from Germany, Persia and other countries will join them. Mexican immigration laws are comparatively lenient.

The area in Mexico to which the tribe may move is known as the "La Junta Lands," near San Antonio, and consists of 1,000,000 acres.

The Doukhobors' present holdings are valued at more than $1,000,000.

Mexican War Engineers Built Stanch Causeway

Austin, Texas.—Texas highway engineers have a high regard for the United States army engineers of Mexican war days. They have just discovered that some of the causeway work of Gen. Zachary Taylor's forces is still in good state after being undersea for years.

The causeway across Boca Chica at the extreme southwest limit of the United States has been buried in sand and water for years. A recent gulf hurricane changed the water line and brought the old military causeway to view.

It was built upon piles. Most of the posts were cypress. The good condition of the cypress posts after years caused little surprise, but the engineers were astounded to find that the trunks of palm trees had also been used and also were in good preservation.

Sale of House Reveals Data of War Mystery

London.—Sale of Tom-Na-Monachan, mystery house of Scotland, near Pitlochrie, has resulted in the piecing together of data which has furnished an amazing spy story.

The mansion was purchased by a rich Turk, Iskendar, shortly before the World war. In the course of business a Mr. Blank of Glasgow called. Iskendar seemed interested to know that Mr. Blank spoke French and promised to send him to Paris to take a position. The Turk changed his mind, but said he had a house in Paris and asked Blank to call there any time. The war broke out and Blank was in Paris. He called at the Turk's house and found gendarmes in charge. Iskendar had been murdered.

Tom-Na-Monachan was raided and was found to be the source of the pacifist literature circulating throughout Scotland and England.

Tree Association Starts Campaign to Save Elms

Washington.—A fight to a finish against the Dutch elm disease has been launched by Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Tree association.

Pack has begun distribution of thousands of copies of a bulletin entitled "Another American Tragedy." He said there was no cure for the disease and the future of the elm rested on the possibility of eliminating the plague entirely.

The only way to win the battle, Pack said, is to locate and destroy infected trees. It is feared that in a short time the disease will become so widespread that all varieties of elm in this country will be destroyed.

Pack said trees in New Jersey, New York, and Connecticut were the chief victims, and that the fate of all the nation's elms depended on the result of the fight in these states.

Iowa Villager Is Willed Violin 267 Years Old

Earlville, Iowa.—A 267-year-old violin, made in Germany, and brought to this country by a pioneer when it already was ancient, is the prize curio of this little village.

The violin is owned by Harry Cruise, who came into its possession through the will of J. W. Corbin, the first white male child born in Delaware county. Corbin said he obtained it from a German settler.

The instrument bears the inscription: "Antonius Stradivarius Coremonis Paelebat Anno 1697."

Preacher Places Birds in Church for Sermon

Somerville, Mass.—In preparation for the preaching of a sermon entitled "A Bird's-Eye View of God," recently, Rev. Harold Willard Arthur, pastor of the Union Square Baptist church of this city, arranged to have 25 canaries distributed among the pine trees grouped around his pulpit to help him express his theme more forcefully. The birds accompanied members of the congregation when they were singing and continued to sing during the entire service.

HIS LUCKY DAY

The master builder observed a workman, pipe in mouth, leaning against the wall of the house they were constructing.

The master promptly gave the man a week's wages and discharged him. Meeting the foreman later he told him what he had done and not to expect him the next day.

"That's all right," said the foreman; "I don't expect him till the day after. He works for the brick company and they only deliver every other day."—Smith's Weekly.

Real Ability?

"Why do you regard Einstein the most able of scientists?"

"He stopped all argument," answered Miss Cayenne, "by announcing at the outset that he was the only person who would understand the things he was going to talk about."

Good Habits of Eating Important for Child

Children learn, whether we teach them or not. It takes time and a consistent effort to guide them away from poor habits toward good ones. The child must derive satisfaction to himself in the doing of things. He has no judgment as to which procedure will be socially acceptable, nor can he know what will be good for his health.

Therefore we start early in his life; our attitude, which is a powerful factor in influencing his learning, must be right in its suggestion, so that he will be happy in making the needed adjustment. We must have a regular time for meals, offer a new food or one which is of a different consistency at the beginning of the meal when he is hungry, or with a food which he likes. We must not seem interested in his refusal, but wait, if necessary, until another time. If we are overanxious or try to force food, we bring the point to the foreground of the child's consciousness, and he will soon learn that he can hold our attention.

We must always remember that the child is a born actor and that it will be increasingly unfortunate, as he grows older, if we allow him to form the habit of taking the center of the stage.—Dr. Josephine H. Kenyon, in Good Housekeeping.
