HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The boys' Physical Education class entertained the Assembly one day last week with boxing matches, the most interesting of which was between two blind-folded contestants. Our weekly classes in penmanship have been discontinued; a number of the students have received certificates for excellent writing. The spelling classes are to be reduced in size and the number in the Five Star Speller's Club greatly increased. Don't miss the Senior Class play, "Safety First," which will be presented Friday night. It is worth double the admission charge. Our high school track team will go to Tularosa Saturday to participate in a meet there. We have high hopes for that team and want everyone who can go, to see the meet.

Mrs. Eliza Charles, daughters Frances and Virginia were week-end visitors at El Paso. Attorney E. M. Barber was called to Santa Fe, Albuquerque and Roswell the latter part of last week on legal business.

Mr. and Mrs. Seldon Burks of Capitan were here Tuesday. Their daughter, Bertie Lou, is now a student at the Baptist College in Ada, Okla., this semester.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Thornton of their ranch and farm near Oscura were Carrizozo business visitors this Thursday.

Banker E. M. Brickley attended the Bankers' Convention at Albuquerque on Friday and Saturday of this week.

Messrs. Herting, Young, Wright and Leemkull were here from Fort Stanton Tuesday night to greet the Grand Master of the I.O.O.F.

Attorney John E. Hall divided his time this week on professional business at Santa Fe and Roswell.

The genial Mayor of Oscura, L. A. Whitaker, was a business visitor in town this Wednesday, and while here, presented us with a beautiful bouquet of lilacs.

Baseball Dance at White Oaks

Phelps Walker and Bill Leslie were here from White Oaks yesterday and had some advertisements made for a Baseball Benefit Dance at White Oaks tomorrow night, April 21. Music will be furnished by Celly Sandoval and his "RANCHEROS" from Carrizozo. All are invited to come and enjoy yourselves and give a helping hand to the White Oaks team. It will be appreciated, and the admission is only (one iron man) $1.00.

The attention of baseball players and fans is called to Diamond Dust. It will run every week during baseball season and will contain notes of interest to the sport.

Stars to Tularosa

Last Friday evening, a delegation of local members of the Order of Eastern Star journeyed to Tularosa and witnessed the Degree conferred, after which the Tularosa Stars served refreshments. This was the local Chapter's first visit with its Grand Patron, E. M. Brickley, who was elected to that important office at the recent session of the Grand Chapter. Others who attended were: Mesdames Gussie Titworth, Mary O. McCammon, Ula G. Mayer, Jeanette Lemon, Clara T. Snyder, Mattie Kelley, Clara Huppertz, Marbry Burns, the Misses Ella Brickley, Helen Frances Huppertz, Messrs. S. B. Boatman, C. P. Huppertz, T. E. Kelley.

DIAMOND DUST

Last Sunday was the beginning of the baseball season. Carrizozo went to Corona and played a practice game. It was good for both teams, and Carrizozo won 6 to 2.

White Oaks went to Ancho and beat those boys 18 to 3, with Carl Shaw pitching for the Oaks. There was a large attendance at both places which showed that the fans are deeply interested in the national pastime.

Next Sunday, Corona will be here for the first game on our grounds and this will not be a practice game, but a real one with whisksers on it. So if you want to see a good man's game with hair on the chest, BE SURE TO ATTEND! Advertising is out for the game and a good attendance should mark the opening game of the season.

From the way the boys are practicing over the county, it looks like we will have lots of peppy games during the season. We understand that Capitan and Fort Stanton will combine this year and if they do, it will make a good team. But one figure, who has been the outstanding one for years past will be missing, Red Cavanaugh. Red is somewhere in Indiana in control of a commissary at one of the government hospitals.

F. N. Jeffords and daughter Roma of the Sarita Metals Company with mining interests near White Oaks, were business visitors here on Monday.

Stop! Look! Listen! Safety First

OSCURA NOTES

Homier Latham was in from his ranch in the Oscura mountains on Monday. Oscura was visited by a nice shower Sunday evening, which made the stockmen a lot more cheerful. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Dillard went to Elmer Woods' ranch in the Oscura mountains Monday, after which they went to their own ranch and put on a new roof on their dugout. Mr. and Mrs. Jesse May of Nogal visited Mrs. Mays' sister, Mrs. Marion Hust, Tuesday. Jim Brown is on the sick list this week. Mrs. Clara Lowden visited in Carrizozo Sunday. Paul Brazel stayed with Granay Russell and helped her do the chores while Sam and Mrs. Dillard were out at the ranch. Tom McDonald came in from his Mocking Bird Gap ranch on Tuesday. Charles won second. The Carrizozo Bridge Club will be entertained at the home of Mrs. F. J. Sager Saturday afternoon. The Bon Soir Club met at the home of Mrs. Roy Shafer Monday evening with Miss Trussie Davis as the hostess.

Carrizozo Gardens

If you think this is a hopeless desert, a little investigation will cause you to change your mind. Take for instance, the new garden of Ben S. Burns, operator at the local station. Ben has planted a large variety of rare roses and also some fine fruit trees of various kinds. He also has a large strawberry bed and other plants of a kindred nature. He keeps everything under careful cultivation and the work shows for itself. Among others who have nice gardens are S. O. Sproles, Dr. F. H. Johnson, Albert Ziegler, D. D. Tiffany, Paul Mayer, to say nothing of the S. P. Club House grounds and the yards and gardens of the S. P. track foremen, where beautiful flowers, fruit and vegetation abound. It is a pleasure to see the many young Chinese corm trees that have been planted this spring. They are all in full foliage and furnish beautiful green borders around Carrizozo homes. If you haven't done anything in this line, join the procession and help to beautify the town. Too late? Oh, no! This is just the right time. Take a look at John Harkey's strawberry bed and Chinese elms.

Car Theft

As near as can be determined, about 4 o'clock Wednesday morning, a car belonging to Mrs. G. C. Bigelow was stolen from in front of the Bay View Hotel. The sheriff phoned Oscura and Bill Wettstein informed him that the car answering the description had been there about six o'clock, the man wanted gasoline and failing to get it, he drove about three miles below Oscura, where he ran out of gas, caught a passing truck and went on to Tularosa. At that place, he caught a freight train, but the officers stopped the train and put him under arrest and he is now in the county jail, charged with the theft. He gave his name as Jack Eitson and claimed to be from some port in Ohio. Ed Harris brought the car back to Carrizozo.

Stokes Brothers shipped 290 cows and calves yesterday to Burns, Kansas, where they will be put to pasture. The shipment was inspected by our old friend, Al Hunter of Alamogordo. We are always glad to meet the inspector, for he generally has some encouraging news for us concerning the stock industry, which he predicts is coming back to the point where the stockmen will have better markets and better prices. Hops you are right, Al.

If you miss Charley Chan's Greatest Case at the Lyric Theatre tonight, you will regret it.

Entertained Grand Master

Tuesday night at Oddfellow's Hall, local Three-Linkers had as their guests, Grand Master C. C. Pendley of Portales and D. G. M. James Anderson of Tularosa. After the business session, the Grand Master gave an address, timely instructions and wholesome advice. He also gave a review of the advancement being made in Oddfellowship circles over New Mexico and other states of the union. He complimented the local lodge on its progressiveness and paid a tribute to its wide-awake activity. The membership greatly appreciated the Grand Master's visit and his helpful influence. He was followed by District Deputy Anderson, who also gave a splendid talk on matters pertaining to the good and welfare of the order in general. They left for Tularosa after the meeting, where they separated and Grand Master continued on his trip of lodge inspection which will take him over the entire state. "A mugwump," quoting Henry Hoffman, "is a bird that sits on the fence with its mug on one side and its wump on t'other."

SYNOPSIS

Stephen Drake, with his four-year-old son, is rescued from a blizzard by Jim Flynn, big timber operator, whom Drake has robbed. Flynn forgives the theft, and Drake, until his death, impresses on the boy, Steve, the debt they owe "Old Jim."

CHAPTER IV

It was difficult in those first days always to present a front devoid of surprise when addressed, as Jim, always to answer promptly when some man called, "Oh, Jim!" always to remember that he was supposed to know more than any other there knew about the Polaris situation.

He and McNally walked in to Shoestring to see a lawyer, one of the two in town. They conferred with the other who, they learned, was representing Franz, and determined that there was no hope of a quick and reasonable settlement of the right-of-way stalemate there.

Whatever the reasons Franz might have in mind, whatever his relationships with unfriendly competitors might be, he surely was a factor to be considered, Steve realized.

Where the man headquartered, he did not know. He had seen him only twice since arriving at Good-Bye: on that first night when he fought him down and, again, when he encountered him with the Laird on the lower river. Frequently he heard others speak of having seen Franz here or there and always it was with the manner of men mentioning a person of consequence despite the fact that Drake had quite broken the fellow's influence with the crew.

But another encounter with Franz to add to the already heavy burden of his animosity for the man known as Young Jim was in the cards, it appeared.

Stopping at the headquarters store early one day for tobacco, Steve saw an aged, wasted Indian seated on the floor.

Old Tim Todd was busy selling goods to an Indian girl and as Steve stepped behind the counter to help himself, his interest was caught by her appearance.

Her racially flat face was a fine oval and the light bronze skin like satin. Her large eyes were widely set and they told on Steve as his gaze ran her body, still slender but with those voluptuous lines that are forerunners of the grossness which would accrue with years. A lovely young animal, he was thinking, as he reached for the can of tobacco, and then looked back into her face again. She was staring at him and something like scorn and pride and affront showed in her eyes. He had the conviction that she had surmised his admiration and had put upon it the usual construction.

"Mary, I ain't got any green," Tom Todd said, turning from the shelf on which he kept his scant stock of dyes.

"Give me blue and yellow," the girl replied. "I make green."

She spoke with the broad vowel values usual in Indians and also with the careful inflection of one who has been schooled in a language other than their own, and turned her back on Steve, he thought, with conscious purpose.

He went out smiling sardonically. These Indian girls, he told himself, probably were justified in suspecting the emotions behind the stares of white men.

He padded to the wood camp and was there until noon. Then, starting back, he encountered the Indians again. And with them, this time, was Franz.

Their two canoes, floating side by side, first attracted his attention. Then a glint of a paddle blade flashed in the sunlight as the old man swung it. Franz whose back was turned upstream so he could not see Drake's approach, ducked, grasped the paddle and pulled his canoe closer to the other, reticulating fiercely with his free hand.

His voice was not clearly distinct guishable at first but in a moment, when Franz turned on berating the old man to address the girl, Steve heard him say:

"No more d—n foolishness! Hear that? You're going back to the farm now and stay there!"

The girl did not answer. She looked steadily at the man and deep anger smoldered in her face.

Franz wrested the paddle from the old native's hands and dropped it into his own canoe. Then, shoving himself along, he roughly grasped the girl's wrist.

"Going to do as I tell you without any fuss, or 've I got to herd you back like a pair of strayed sheep?" he demanded.

He twisted her arm and though her expression betrayed no feeling of pain Drake knew that it must hurt severely and he called out sharply:

"Let her go, Franz!" The man turned abruptly. His eyes were pale against the angered flush of his face and when he saw Steve they flickered with confusion and his lower lip drooped.

"I'd let her go, if I were in your place," Steve repeated, bringing his canoe in against Franz's.

"My place? What place is that?" "Well . . . right here beside me. Is that an answer?"

"What the h—l's this to you?" "Not a great deal, except that you are hurting her. Let her go, I'm telling you! Didn't you get me the first time?"

Drake's words were thick with a quickly rising rage and he half lifted himself as though he would fall upon the other. Then, as Franz dropped the arm and hitched about to face him he added: "There! That's considerably better."

"If this is any of your d—d affair . . ." Franz began but Drake gave him no heed.

"What's the trouble?" he asked the girl.

Her eyes were fixed on him and both fright and suspicion showed in their depths. She gave her head a slight shake.

"Whatever it is, it's my business," Franz declared hotly, "and you won't come horning in if you know what's healthy for you."

"Healthy? For me?" Steve laughed derisively. "I took you on once before, Franz, and I know pretty well what your threats amount to. You're

"All Injun and No Mistake!" getting rough with the girl. I don't like you and I don't like that sort of thing anyhow. Now, what's the row?"

"I have I got to tell you in so many words to go to h—l!"

Steve ignored this and addressed the girl:

"Won't you tell me what the trouble is? There is trouble of some sort, of course. If you, too, say it's none of my affair I'll get going. But it seemed to me that, maybe, you could use a little help here and there."

He smiled encouragingly. "We go to the Mad Woman," she answered simply. "My father is sick. He wants to be in the bush. He"—with a look at Franz—"tol' me not to go."

"That's it, eh? And is it . . . that is, has he any right to tell you what to do and make you do it?"

He thought that something like pride and, also, something kindred to shame showed in her face. She hesitated a moment and then said:

"No."

"That's a lie!" Franz cried. "Haven't I bought you two hour and pork? Where'd you've got those clothes you're wearing if it hadn't been for me? Where'd your seed for crops come from if I didn't furnish it this spring?"

"You got pay," the girl said, and though she spoke dully—or perhaps because of it—and although her gaze simply smoldered, Steve read in those three short words the whole, sorry story.

"Why, you're crazy to take him into that country!" Franz burst out. "He's a sick man. He's got his ticket. The doctor told you that. Back in your abanty he'll keep warm and dry and have something to eat and if you're dragging him off into the bush he'll just lie down and never get up!"

The girl answered: "Yes. He die. He know that. I know that. He wants to die in the bush, in a lodge. Not in any house. He wants that," she said again as if that would justify anything.

"Think I'm going to let you get away with that?" Franz demanded. "After holding you two up all this time, think I'm going to—"

"Hold on!" Steve snapped. "Let me talk a minute."

"Where've you been living?" he asked the girl. "Where is this shanty he talks about?"

"By Shoestring." "Handy, eh?" Franz winced from the scorn in his question and Steve said to him: "Get on your way, Franz! . . . Beat it! Get away from these folks and let 'em alone to do as they please!"

He had let his canoe drift off but now showed the bow between the other two craft:

"Get out!" he said, grasping the rails of the other canoes and shoving Franz's out into the current. "If you bother these people again I'll make it one of my jobs to run you over the horizon, you skunk!"

Until then Franz had made no comment; did not even remonstrate when Steven shoved at his canoe. But now, stung beyond discretion, perhaps, he taunted:

"Want her yourself? Want her—"

But as Drake drove his paddle deeply to be close and seize the man and retaliate for the insult, Franz grasped his own paddle and started rapidly down the river.

"You keep right on doing that!" Steve called, satisfied, though his voice still shook with just anger. "I'm going to keep a check on you with this pair, and if you give 'em any trouble at all you'll think h—l's busted loose for sure on the Good-Bye!"

Sulkily, Franz paddled on and Drake turned toward the others. The girl was watching the departing canoes and although her face had the native stolidity he thought he could read in it, along with relief, the shadow of a shattered dream.

"I don't think he will bother you," he said, "but if he does— Do you know who I am?"

She did not answer; just averted her eyes.

"I'm at Good-Bye. You just ask there for Young Jim if he tries to make you any more trouble." He looked at the old man in the bow who, beyond any doubt, was desperately ill.

"Is it, after all, really a good thing to take him so far away when he's sick?"

"He wants to go," she replied simply. "You've been to school, haven't you? I can tell from the way you talk."

"I was four winters at the sister's school."

"What's your name?" "Mary Wolf."

"Well, Mary, wouldn't you be better at home? I take it you've got some crops in."

"Some," she said. "He can't work corn now. I can. Not him. He don't like to stay home. He remembers how to make birch canoe. He likes that. He can make canoes 'til he die. He wants to go by the Mad Woman. Birch is good there."

"But how're you going to live? You haven't enough grub here to keep you going very long."

"Lots fish. Plenty rabbits," she answered. Steve rubbed his chin. Certainly she was a beauty, he remarked to himself, and again realized that her eyes were on him as they had been in the store earlier that day. He had, too, the feeling that once more she detected his thoughts but this time, if that were true, she did not resent them.

The old man began to talk excitedly, looking and gesturing down the stream to where Franz had disappeared around a bend.

"What's he saying?" "He says Franz took his paddle." "Sure enough! Well . . . here, I've got two. Take this. Good luck, now, and if Franz follows you and starts bothering you again just get word to me."

To this, Mary made no response whatever. She did not thank him for the paddle nor for the aid he had rendered. She spoke a word to her father and dipped her blade and as though they had simply passed on their river journey went on.

"All Injun and no mistake!" Steve laughed to himself as he resumed his homeward way. But he did not laugh when his mind went back to Franz. He realized that McNally was right; that to give the man added reason for disliking him was to invite more trouble.

Back at headquarters, Steve went to LaFane's, got the fishing tackle the man had mentioned, paddled to the mouth of a creek below the store and, until dusk, took trout and pondered this and that.

He stopped at the store after dark and sat for some time on the steps talking with old Tim Todd. They spoke softly, but their voices carried in the still night. Almost any sound would travel far in that atmosphere and yet a canoe which had been lying behind a point while Steve fished made no sound as it passed the cluster of buildings.

After a time the man in the canoe ceased paddling and let the breath of a breeze carry him to the beach. He stepped out in the reeds and carefully drew his canoe in until it rested on bottom and then with great caution took the trail that led through the thicket to Steve's cabin. In his hand he carried a gun.

At a moss-grown boulder which the trail skirted, he paused, put down his gun, and rolled a rock to the trail; another, and still a third. He arranged them in a sort of nest, with meticulous care, and then took a ball of stout cord from his pocket and unwound it.

BLESSING THE PETS

St. Anthony the Great is the saint of domestic animals and pets. His feast day was celebrated in Italy recently. Thousands of people flocked to the churches, carrying, leading, and even pushing their pets to receive the blessings of the priests. Horses, mules, sheep, oxen, dogs, cats, suckling pigs, and even white mice and canaries mingled in the square outside St. Anthony's church in Rome, where all day long the priests were kept busy blessing the animals and sprinkling them with holy water. Many a hardy carter, who stopped to uncouple his horses and lead them to church, went back to his work, rejoicing in the strength, zeal and service of his faithful animals.—Tit-Bits Magazine.

Why Liquid Laxatives are Back in Favor

The public is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that the right dose of a properly prepared liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. A child is easily given the right dose. And mild liquid laxatives do not irritate the kidneys.

Doctors are generally agreed that senna is a natural laxative. It does not drain the system like the cathartics that leave you so thirsty. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a liquid laxative which relies on senna for its laxative action. It gently helps the average person's bowels back to regularity.

You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store, ready for use. Member N. R. A.

Two things I wanted— "I found out my trouble" S.S.S. value has been proven by generations of use as well as by modern scientific appraisal. Sold by all drug stores. In two convenient sizes. The larger is more economical.

Whose Fault? When a Child Won't Study "Kept after school!" And it isn't the child's fault, or the teacher's. His mother is to blame. How can a boy get his lessons when his senses are dulled day after day by dosing with sickening purgatives? When a child's bowels are stagnant they're dead help, of course. But not some drastic drug to upset the stomach, perhaps weaken the entire system, or form the laxative habit. On the right, parents will find a happy solution of this problem: Here's a boy who gets good marks, has time and energy for play. He is never ill, hardly ever has so much as a cold. When he does show any symptoms of being sluggish, his mother knows just what to do. She gives him a little California Syrup of Figs—and that is all. It's a natural, fruity, laxative that is agreeable to take, and its gentle laxative action comes from senna. Parents are urged to use just the right, pure California Syrup of Figs. Be sure bottle says "California."

EDITORIAL COLUMN

Seven Months of Silence, Darkness and Mystery

One of latest messages from the Byrd South Pole Expedition discloses that the Admiral is by this time, alone and isolated from his party to the distance of 123 miles south of Little America. As it was originally intended, this base was to have been occupied by three men; the Admiral and two companions. But after arriving there and making a careful survey, he decided to spend the period of seven long months entirely alone.

At first, not giving the proper amount of thought to the problem of transporting food and supplies over the mountains of ice and snow, they were confronted with the fact that after the long winter set in, it would be impossible to make trips 123 miles because of the shifting ice floes, intense darkness and weather so cold, all of which they found would render the project of no avail. Then the Admiral decided to make the trip, take what supplies he would need for the seven-months and stay alone.

What his idea is for such move and what he expects to gain from such a hazardous venture, has never been mentioned—but one thing seems certain—it must be that what he is seeking will be one of the main objects of the expedition. Some claim that he will be there for the purpose of meteorological study and the possibility of assisting in the value of long range weather forecasting and short wave radio broadcasting.

What manner of man is this, who will venture out single-handed and alone, into a wilderness of ice, surrounded by nothing but seas of dreariness and desolation, that by self-sacrifice he may contribute to science for the further enlightenment of mankind? It staggers the imagination. Picture, if you will, the loneliness he must endure and the heart-aches he must suffer during those long seven months alone; at the bottom of the world.

He is not without radio connection with his party, but the lack of personal contact will only aggravate his lonely condition. Separated not only from his companions on the expedition, but also from loved ones at home, it will be enough to test the strongest reasoning. During this period of silent night, it'll be impossible for any of his party to reach him even with airplanes on account of the terrific storms, while on the other hand, sledging cannot be done for the rearing and plunging of ice floes will be so great that they cannot reach him by that means.

We may picture him in his dreams of home, friends, family, friends, happiness and native land, only to awaken in the same loneliness and void of human aid. Such is the material which produces heroes, many of whom have never seen a battlefield, but do stand and desolate as the picture may seem, a vast amount of good for humanity may be realized from the experiment—Who knows.

We Invite You—

Knowledge is truth. Nothing is more convincing.

Our obligation as Ford dealers in this community is not only to sell and service cars. Just as important is our duty to acquaint the public with up-to-date facts about automobile values. We believe that only in this way can intelligent comparisons be made.

So, this invitation is given to everyone — owners of large or small cars — machinists — other automobile dealers, come in and inspect the new 1934 Ford V-8. You will find out why a Ford buying wave is going over the country.

If you would like to drive the new Ford that is your privilege. New thrills will delight you. We will not bombard you with requests to buy—the car will do that.

We are looking for you!

No matter what the possibilities for sensational publicity Ford has never resorted to stunt features to sell his cars. Freakish body designs on an automobile are just as speculative as freakish designs on houses.
Millions of dollars were spent to sell American Motorists on free wheeling. Ford declined to put it on his cars.
The Ford purchaser gets a proven car both in style and operation. There are no trick gadgets to catch the fancy and later on prove to be mistakes.
The Ford policy of continuous improvement is well shown in this year's car. It is the best car the Ford Motor Company has ever built.

Lesson for April 22

OUR ALL-FOR THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 19:16-30.
GOLDEN TEXT—I have showed you all things, how that so laboring ye ought to support the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, It is more blessed to give than to receive.—Acts 20:35.
PRIMARY TOPIC—A Poor Rich Man.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Giving Jesus First Place.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Right Use of Money.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Stewardship of Possessions.

The lesson title is likely to be misunderstood and the teaching misapplied. Jesus did not directly, nor by implication, teach that eternal life can be obtained by parting with possessions. In his dealing with the young man, Jesus showed him his erroneous notion as to personal goodness and endeavored to reveal unto him his own essential nature.

I. A Certain Young Man Came to Jesus (v. 16).

For a full view of the characteristics of this man see Mark 10:17-30 and Luke 18:18-30.

1. His virtues.
  - a. Courageous (Mark 10:17). He was of high standing, a rich young ruler (Luke 18:18, 23). To come to Jesus at this time meant to this young man ostracism from national fellowship. It required real courage.
  - b. Earnest (Mark 10:17). He came and knelt before Jesus.
  - c. High aspirations (v. 20). He wanted eternal life. There was an aching void in his soul in the midst of pleasures which affluence brings.
  - d. Pious and moral (v. 20). From youth up he professed to have conformed to God's holy law.
  - e. He believed that Jesus could inform him of the "good thing" to be done to inherit eternal life.
2. His mistaken notions.
  - a. About Christ (v. 16). He esteemed Jesus to be good but did not apprehend him to be God.
  - b. Concerning himself. He was self-righteous. He thought he was good and that he could do something good.
  - c. Concerning eternal life. He thought that eternal life could be obtained by good works.

II. Christ Dealing With the Young Man (vv. 17-22).

Jesus skillfully led the young man to see his errors and then put his finger on the weak spot in his life.

1. Jesus' question (v. 17). "Why callest thou me good?" Without giving him a chance to answer he declared that only God was good, as if to say, "I am good and therefore I am God."
2. Jesus' answer to the young man's question (vv. 17-20). "If thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments." Jesus here met him on his own ground, namely that of the law. The law reveals sin and thus shuts the mouth of a self-righteous sinner (Rom. 3:10). The law curses instead of saves (Gal. 3:10). The gospel was given to save men from the curse (Rom. 1:16, 17).
3. Christ's command (v. 21). Replying to Christ's citation of the commandments of the law the young man glibly asserted that he had kept them all from his youth up. In Christ's command to go and sell his possessions and distribute them to the poor, he put his finger upon the weak spot.
4. The young man's decision (v. 22). He decided against Christ. In the supreme test he chose his wealth.

III. The Relation of the Rich to the Kingdom of Heaven (vv. 23-26).

This teaching concerning the peril of riches was most timely. Covetousness was fast taking hold of the people. Judas was well under its sway. 1. It is difficult for the rich to enter the kingdom (vv. 23, 24). This difficulty lies not in the possession of riches but in trusting riches. The step from possession to trusting is a very short one. Riches are deceitful (Matt. 13:22). The tendency of increasing wealth is to destroy the nobler life of the soul. It lulls into security (Rev. 3:17); it leads to self-indulgence (1 Tim. 6:9), and to pride (Ezek. 28:5). Entrance of the rich into the kingdom is possible though difficult (vv. 25, 26). It is possible for the grace of God

- a. To sanctify riches.
- b. To so open a man's eyes that he may see his downward course and repent.
- c. To change a man from self-seeking to self-sacrifice.
- d. To make men humble.

IV. Rewards for Following Christ (vv. 27-30).

Those who turn their backs upon their country and possessions for Christ's sake shall receive a hundred-fold in this life and eternal life for the world to come.

Trust in the Lord

Perfect trust is something which is one of the most charming characteristics of childhood, and which it is a sad thing to see lost through bitter experience of the faithlessness or cruelty of those about the child.

Uplift of Optimism

He who thinks the world is full of good people and kindly blessings is much richer than he who thinks the contrary. Each man's imagination largely peoples the world for himself.

For Ever-Popular Canapes

Delicacies Accepted as Almost Indispensable Part of the Pre-Dinner Hour Offer Little Difficulties in Their Preparation.

Canapes—only a few years ago we were asking each other how to pronounce the word, and now they are an accepted part of every woman's food program. They add entertainment as well as savor to the half hour before dinner and everyone enjoys looking at a tray of attractive canapes, as well as eating them. They take time to make, and disappear in a moment, but I think they repay us for our effort when we see our guests appreciate them so much. I find that the easiest way to make them is to cut the crusts from the loaf of bread and to spread it lengthwise with flavored butter. Perhaps I will use ketchup or pimento butter for the first slice, anchovy butter for the next, watercress or parsley butter for the third, and cheese for the fourth. This gives a contrast of color as well as flavor. I then cut these large slices into finger lengths, squares, diamonds and rounds, or occasionally with fancy cutters into more interesting shapes. I arrange them on a damp cloth and then garnish each one with a different combination of contrasting garnishes.

I have the garnishes ready—thin slices of pickles, green peppers and pimientos, or slices of anchovies, stuffed olives and hard-cooked eggs, minced egg whites and strained egg yolks, tiny capers, birdseye onions and lobster claws. I take just a few moments to arrange these garnishes in simple designs. On the finger length strips I may put an overlapping row of stuffed olives, or the same around the edge of a round. The strips of green pepper can be crossed or arranged in a simple design—the egg slices put in the center, the egg-whites, well seasoned, used as an edging, the egg yolks to sprinkle in the center or around the edges. Just the least change of arrangement will make every canape individual. Sometimes I use with these a simple canape—just spread with butter and sprinkled with chutney or some other mixed pickle.

There is also another sort of canape which makes a good first course at the table. Either bread, toast or fried bread is used as its foundation and it is spread first with a flavored butter and then covered with slices of tomato, cucumber and hard-boiled eggs, and garnished with mayonnaise, stuffed olives sliced, or sliced ripe olives or truffles. A hot mushroom canape is also delicious. This is made by sautéing the mushrooms, arranging them on the bread and covering with a mushroom, and a slice of grilled tomato may be put under the mushroom. Sometimes a more elaborate canape such as salmon eggs, for which I am giving the recipe, is used. Another interesting combination is made of laced anchovy fillets or cheese spread. You may like to use small baked tomatoes on toast and cover them with a cheese sauce. A stuffed egg garnished attractively is another suggestion. Stuffed raw tomatoes or slices of green pepper stuffed with cheese, garnished with pimientos, is another savory choice. Frozen cheese cut into squares, served on a slice of tomato or a bed of shredded lettuce is another suitable appetizer. Crab or lobster salad on a bed of cucumbers is another suggestion for a cold canape. This should be served on buttered bread and garnished with green peppers or capers.

We certainly have gone much further in our canape preparation than the dictionary—"A slice or piece of bread fried in butter or oil, on which anchovies, mushrooms, etc., are served."

Cornucopia Canape.
Toast bread, cut in finger-lengths, spread with mayonnaise and chopped egg yolk. Fold a slice of dried beef into a cornucopia, fill with onion-seasoned cream cheese, and lay on toast.

Shrimp Canape.
Mix chopped parsley with creamed butter, and spread on small squares of bread. Top with a shrimp, and fill center with seasoned minced egg yolk and pimento.

Tomato Surprise Canape.
6 tomatoes
1 cup chopped celery
1 Philadelphia cream cheese
1/2 cup chopped nuts
1/2 cup capers or chopped olives
Lettuce

Skin six firm tomatoes and place in refrigerator. Mix celery, cheese, nuts and capers together, adding tomato pulp taken from tomatoes thoroughly chilled. Before scooping out tomatoes, cut off small piece of top and insert through a slit in this a small lettuce leaf, to represent a handle. Place on lettuce leaves and serve with mayonnaise or french dressing, whichever is preferred.

Quick Meal.
Clam juice cocktail
Asparagus with poached eggs and cheese
Lettuce and tomato salad
Ice cream with crushed strawberries
Cookies
Coffee

For the quick meal today, I am suggesting an asparagus dehabuch, which any devotee of this vegetable likes to have as soon as it gets within a reasonable price. It makes a delicious main dish served around poached eggs on toast. It should be dressed with brown butter and grated cheese or with hollandaise sauce which goes so well with both eggs and asparagus. With this a mixed tomato and cucumber salad with a french dressing will go well. For dessert we might have ice cream with crushed strawberries or fresh pineapple.

To go back to the beginning of the meal, if the night is warm, a chilled clam or tomato juice cocktail will be refreshing.

Homing Terns

Five terns were taken from the bird rookery on the tip of the Florida peninsula and carried by a roundabout steamer route to a position off Cape Hatteras, where they were given their freedom. Five days from the date of capture three of them were back on the nesting grounds, according to Science, where they were identified by the metal bands with which their legs had been encircled before they were taken on their long voyage. The straight-line distance from Cape Hatteras to Bird Key is about 850 miles; by coastline flight the distance is 1,031 miles. This latter is greater than the record flight for trained pigeons, 1,010 miles.

Electricity in Human Body a Potent Force

That human beings are really electric batteries, discharging sometimes as much as a half a volt of current, is suggested by Prof. Fred Vles of France. By attaching electrodes, worn by different people, to a delicate recording apparatus, he was able to get the voltage emitted by each, and to note the personal changes in electrical characteristics. A person in perfect health generates the most current, but even that falls off in gloomy weather; while ill health is always indicated in the same way. Dr. George Crile of the Cleveland clinic, in a speech bearing no relation to Professor Vles' findings, advances the theory, backed by experiments of his own, that the working of the mind is an electrical process, and that current for this is generated by 4,000,000,000,000 individual dynamos hitherto known merely as cells. The living brains of both man and animals, he has found, emit short-wave and infra-red radiations.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Mr. May was one of the first of our subscribers to take advantage of the wonderful magazine offer of four magazines and the Outlook for one year for the small sum of $2.50. The offer is so much out of the ordinary, that some people have regarded it as a joke, fake, or something of the kind, but they are mistaken. You get four magazines just like the offer reads, and the paper. This offer holds good for renewals as well as for new subscribers. You will be next, if you feel so inclined. Do it now.

"Our Little Town"

Poem composed by Mrs. R. E. Lemon, enroute to Roswell to attend the Women's Missionary Society annual conference where the auxiliaries of the Roswell District gave some kind of special representation of the towns the delegates represented:

"Our little town—
Perhaps you know,
Is a dear little town,
For we think so.
On the north and the east,
Are mountains grand.
On the south and west
Are the desert and sand.
Here the yucca, the cacti and a few broom weeds—
Are interspersed with a "tall dry reed"
And God is there
Same's on the sea
That makes it
Home Sweet Home to me."

First Rap

Leon A. Cousens of Clovis, state organizer for the socialistic party, who arrived here Wednesday to arrange for a socialist summer school in the Albuquerque vicinity, took a rap at the democratic legislature and its sales tax proposal.

"The democratic party again has shown the aptness of its symbol, the jackass," said Cousens. "They either will not or cannot get it into their thick heads that only by the restoration of mass purchasing power, can their beloved 'prosperity' return."

"The sales tax, hitting, as it does, the little fellow, cannot but reduce purchasing power even further and hence postpone further the return of prosperity."

Economic Conference

The Home Economic Conference of Dist. 4 was held in Carrizozo Saturday, April 14. Corona, Tularosa, Carrizozo, Capitan and Vaughn, are included in this district. About seventy representatives met from the various schools in which vocational home economics is taught. Vaughn was unable to attend, this year.

The meeting was scheduled to take place from 9:30 to 12:30. This group included Miss Mildred Jameson, Corona, Miss Tressie Davis, Carrizozo, Miss Freddie Lee Bradford, Tularosa, and Miss Jayne Bromell, Capitan, who was district chairman. Several visitors were present. Miss Jameson will be district chairman next year. While the teachers meeting was in session, the Carrizozo club entertained the visiting clubs with dancing and refreshments.

A delicious luncheon was served by the Carrizozo Club and Miss Tressie Davis to the visitors, teachers and Home Economics club members. Purple and white fleur-de-lis decorated the tables. It was voted that for next year the Chairman will be Lealye Cooper, and the district secretary will be Mary Pickett Warden. Both are Carrizozo girls.

A Club program was enjoyed after the election of officers in the high school auditorium. Each Club contributed to the program. The District Meeting will be held in Tularosa next spring.
