Feel Effects of New Deal

Washington.—The expanding influence of the federal government on the lives of individuals throughout the United States suddenly has become a matter that is attracting attention, and more and more repercussions are to be noted in the National Capital. Some observers tell me they think it is an indication that the multifarious agencies that have been set up under the New Deal are at last in full operation and their effects are now reaching to the grass roots of the country. However that may be, it can be stated without equivocation that the so-called alphabetical soup (the various administrations and boards and commissions known only by initials) are making their presence felt for better or for worse in the lives of individuals.

I cannot agree with the exaggerated assertion by a leading Republican politician that "we are subject to Hitler decrees from a hundred different sources," but there seems little doubt of vast power being wielded by the various New Deal agencies.

For instance, Harry Hopkins, federal relief administrator, has decreed that there will be no drought relief funds for cattle owners supplied by the federal emergency relief administration unless the holders of any mortgages on those cattle agree not to foreclose such mortgages. And, he said, the mortgage holder who refuses to make such an agreement is up the well known stump. He can take the cattle, of course, when the mortgage matures, but if the mortgages have many months to run, the cattle are liable to die of starvation in the meantime. Without attempting to decide the merit of such a policy on the part of the federal government, the illustration shows the power that is wielded from Washington.

The Reconstruction Finance corporation has been exercising its influence with banks for some time. While RFC officials insist they are not attempting to control policies of banks, it nevertheless remains as a fact that they are exercising voting power in the boards of directors of numerous banking institutions. They went so far in the case of a great Chicago bank as to insist that the man they selected be elected by the board as its chairman. In addition, through the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, the bank policies on loans are closely watched, and this is happening at a time when the President and some of his advisers are strongly urging the banks to make loans. From what I know of the banking business, I imagine few banks will hesitate on making loans in large amounts providing the borrower has some security to put up that will assure repayment of the funds borrowed.

Typical of How Code Works

Under NRA and the numerous codes, various terms and conditions are laid down for business practices. Here is a typical case: the code for the graphic arts industries has a provision prohibiting extension of credit for longer than two years. That is, a printing plant owner or publisher of a country newspaper or any one else wanting to buy a linotype machine had been allowed sometimes as much as five years in which to pay for expensive equipment of that kind. Now, however, he must pay for it within two years or the manufacturer will be a code violator by selling it on a long term basis. Thus, it is to be seen that the code exerts an influence on what might be called the innocent bystander. The country publisher cannot save up gold with which to pay for the machinery because he would be a criminal to have gold under present law.

Again declaring that I am not discussing the merit of the proposition, it remains as a fact that the federal trade commission is exerting an influence on the type of investments individuals make as a result of its control over the issue and sale of shares of stock or bonds. Of course, the commission cannot reach a corporation that is doing business only in its home state, but the larger corporations engage in business on a broader scale than that and the bulk of shares and bonds, therefore, must be issued until the federal trade commission's securities experts have determined the facts about the corporation that offers them. It is a matter of record, of course, that numerous corporations have sold purely blue sky stock, but the point I am attempting to make is that here is another federal influence on the lives of individuals.

There are so many other examples that could be cited that they would fill more space than is available here.

Forest Conservation

As we go through the month of June, another phase of the New Deal becomes effective. I refer to the development of the conservation of the country's forests, private as well as publicly owned. While there will be no noticeable results for some time, the President's forest conservation policy has become operative nevertheless, and it is a long-range affair that is generally accepted as building for the future.

The program which the President initiated when he started the Civilian

Conservation Corps

Conservation corps embodies a definite scheme for restoring forests that have been cut over and constitute nothing more than waste land; it provides for selective cutting of trees in lumbering operations, and it is designed to create in the minds of all citizens the necessity for sustaining our forests against the time when, at the present rate of destruction, there would be no more lumber. I was surprised when the forestry service told me that forest land was just about one-fourth of the entire area in the United States. But the forestry officials reminded me at the same time that unless there is a serious conservation movement, there is only enough timber in sight to provide lumber for about thirty years more.

Mr. Roosevelt is proposing legislation, most of which will be ready for the session of congress meeting in January, 1935, to provide machinery for co-ordinating the efforts of the federal and state governments and for gaining the co-operation of private land owners in restoring growing trees.

That Ought to Help

A good many Washington observers are wondering how soon the federal trade commission and NRA are going to lock horns. The two agencies are certainly headed in the direction of a clash. It is generally conceded here that sooner or later General Johnson's NRA codes that establish monopolies in various fields of commerce and industry are going to be made the subject of pithy comment from federal trade commission circles. How soon it will come, or what form the disagreement will take, of course, can be only a matter of conjecture now.

It is necessary to recall the basis upon which the federal trade commission was created in order to get a clear understanding of the clash that is to be expected. First of all, the creators of the federal trade commission had in mind the idea of a federal agency that could be watching big business all of the time. Where it found unfair practices, smothering of the little independent units, and such other conditions as some sharp-shooting businesses use, the commission can, and does, cite them publicly. It goes after the facts in public hearings and exposes the practices. It also issues orders directing the offending businesses to eliminate the objectionable practices. If they choose to disregard the commission orders, the matter is turned over to prosecuting officers of the government and tougher penalties may be imposed.

Now, the national recovery act and General Johnson's codes have gone a long way toward making the commission's guardianship of little business all in its effect. The codes permit monopolies, or rather, the codes provide under the recovery act that the anti-trust laws shall not apply to those businesses signing the terms and conditions of the codes. It is seen, therefore, that the provisions of the federal trade commission act can hardly be enforced. That is to say, the commission cannot order a business to cease doing something that General Johnson's codes declare to be quite all right.

Thus far, the commission has kept reasonably quiet about the thing. It is true, however, that its members have thoughts about the situation that would make interesting reading if they were to be expressed openly. The commission has kicked about a few of the codes in a mild sort of way. Its criticisms have been tempered, it is said, by the fact that none knows exactly how to go about effecting a reconciliation of the diverse positions enacted into law in the recovery act and the federal trade commission act. Apparently, there have been no instructions from the White House and so the commission is looked upon merely as drifting until such time as an administration policy is framed.

But somebody is going to have to iron out the differences. They cannot go on indefinitely. That fact is obvious. When one government agency goes ahead and allows a thing to be done that another government agency has been created to prevent, it is axiomatic that a collision is going to occur between them in due course.

Few observers, and few important leaders as well, are willing to attempt a prediction as to the outcome. One reason is that NRA is under fire from several directions and I believe it cannot be said to what extent the general principles of NRA are going to become imbedded in our industrial structure.

Government officials are becoming more and more concerned about the growth of smuggling and bootlegging of liquor. A determined effort is being made to check this illicit trade, but the optimism expressed by officials charged with the responsibility does not ring very loud. Indeed, the talk I hear in a good many quarters is that there must be some revision downward of the import duties and the local and state taxes on liquor or else the bootlegger and smuggler will be doing as much business as the legitimate, licensed dealer.

TERRORIZED BY TIGERS

Man-eating tigers are becoming so bold in central India that they are causing a reign of terror among the residents of villages. The tigers are reported to be stalking the country, leaving death and terror in their wake. Scores of cattle have been dragged into the jungle and eaten. The villagers are helpless in dealing with the menace because they are forbidden to kill tigers, and many fear to sleep at night because of the possibility of sudden raids by the beasts. One large tiger got a big surprise. He sprang on a cow in a herd grazing at the foot of the Panchn Deoli hills, but the other cattle turned on the invader and attacked him with their horns. After a bitter battle the badly wounded tiger made its way back to the jungle.

SYNOPSIS

Stephen Drake, with his four-year-old son, is rescued from a blizzard by Jim Flynn, big timber operator, and Drake, until his death, impresses on the boy, Steve, the debt they owe "Old Jim." Twenty years later, Steve meets "Young Jim" Flynn, his benefactor's son, sent by Old Jim, incapacitated through an accident in which Kate, his daughter, is temporarily blinded, to take charge of the company—the Polaris—woods operations, the youth is indulging in a drunken spree. Hoping to do something for Old Jim, Steve hastens to the company's headquarters, finding Franz plotting against the Flynn interests. Worthing Franz in a fist fight, the Polaris crew assumes that Drake is Flynn's son, and he takes charge, as "Young Jim." A photograph of Kate intrigues him immensely. Steve gains the friendship of LaFane, woods scout. Franz discovers Drake's impersonation. Threatened with disclosure, Steve accuses Franz of attempting to murder him, exhibiting evidence, and the man dare not act. Steve sends LaFane to find Young Jim and sober him up. Steve wins the friendship of MacDonald, who owns timber land vital to the Flynn interests and the Scotsman gives him an option for Polaris to buy his timber. Franz plans to put Steve out of the way, but the latter outwits him. Knowing Drake has wired Kate at Chicago, Franz signals her reply from the telephone office and learns that $25,000 is to be forwarded, and the time of its arrival. He plans to steal the $25,000.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued

"All right. I make camp somewhere close. I stay away but be your girl." "No, no! I think you're fine, Mary, but I can't leave you for my girl. You see, we don't travel the same trail. I go one way; you go another. Understand? Some day you want to get married. Sure! Priest and everything. Me, I don't think I'll get married right away. Maybe never. When I do, I'll marry a white girl. It is better that white people marry whites and that Indians marry Indians. You're young yet. How old are you, anyhow? Don't know?"—as she shook her head. "I'll bet you're not much over eighteen, anyhow."

"When your father dies you should go back to school. You are smart. You can learn a great deal from teachers and maybe they can learn something from you. You're the best quill worker I know of. You're an Ojibway and should be proud of it. You should keep on being Ojibway. Do the things your mother did; marry an Ojibway boy; have plenty of Ojibway papoose. It's our trails, remember. You go the Indian way. I go the white man's way. They can't cross. Understand that?" "No," she said and looked away and a suggestion of disappointment roved about her red mouth. It was not pain, not despair; just an acceptance of frustration, perhaps, and it touched Steve profoundly.

"I won't be here very long, now, Mary," he said. "I may be going any time, now. I will go, perhaps, even before your father dies. I don't know where I haven't any plan. But before I go I'm going to look you up and see how your father is and fix it some way so Franz won't bother you even after I'm out of the country. You'd better get along back, now. Want a canoe?" "No. I walk fast in the woods." "Aren't you hungry?"

She had risen and looked at him in a manner which made him wince. It was not a conscious glance of reproach, but her face reflected a hunger such as he had not had in mind when he put the question. She was starved, silently crying for nourishment; but it was not a hunger of the body, not meat and drink which she needed.

"I have bread," she answered. "I go now. Good by, Jim." "Good-by, Mary."

She walked down the trail to where another branched off to take her along the lake shore and Drake stood alone feeling small and humiliated.

His sense of having failed so miserably to meet a situation clung. It bothered him and that was why he gave the arrival of McNally's team no heed for the moment and did not even look out when the cluck of tug chains and the chuck of heavy wheels heralded the coming.

When he glanced up McNally was clambering down over the wagon wheel and, standing where she had risen from her place on the seat, was a girl. Outlined there against the sky, she was a Diana. Her laced paces were trim; the riding breeches encased finely molded legs. A gay shirt fitted well over a slender torso and square, boyish shoulders. Her throat rose in a fine column and her head, swung back with the brisk breeze blowing tendrils of fair hair about it, seemed like a posture of brave defiance to the white bandage which covered her eyes.

Kate Flynn! Kate Flynn, holding in both hands a worn brief case, Kate

Flynn, coming herself as a saying messenger for Polaris!

Strength trickled out of Steve's body. She was more fair to look upon than he had ever dreamed in all those dreams he had had of her fairness through these feverish weeks and it was this beauty which weakened him, not the thought that here was the person whom he could not deceive, that his pretense of being Young Jim must end now and the truth about that individual at last be told.

The girl leaned down, groping with her free hand for McNally's support. She talked softly and rapidly and laughed as one will in excitement, and old Mac, seeing Steve in the doorway, called out to him:

"Jim! Oh, Jim! Here's Katie herself!"

The girl stopped talking as McNally, taking her in his arms, swung her to the ground. The narrow bandage covered her eyes, but it could not wholly hide the high eagerness which possessed her. She started forward eagerly, leading McNally toward the store rather than being led herself.

"Jim!" she called, and her voice was as lovely to the ear as her body was to the eye. "Duffer, I'm here! Duffer, I couldn't send anybody else. I had to come myself!"

Steve moved down the steps and halted awaiting her approach in the deepest confusion he had ever experienced.

"Where are you 'Duffer?' she cried, breathlessly.

She stopped, withdrawing her hands from McNally's.

"Jim! Jimmy? Where are you?"

Steve stepped forward, then, swallowing drily, and took both her small hands. She clutched his convulsively, drawing herself close, touching his body with hers.

He went slightly giddy. She was freeing her hands, now, lifting them, letting them creep about his neck hungrily and her breath was uneven as she whispered to him:

"You did it, Duffer! You did it all yourself! You're the old Dad's son for certain..."

She pulled his face down, offering her lips. He wrapped his arms about her; he kissed her on the mouth, a long lingering kiss unable to resist the impulse before the strength of her appeal.

"You Did It, Duffer! You Did It All Yourself!"

She responded as their lips touched and then he felt the breath gush from her lungs warm on his face, felt her body tense as if in surprise and, possibly, fright at the ardor of his career.

She put a palm against his chest, bewildered, and resisted his tight embrace.

"Jim?"—bewildered. "Jim, why don't you say something to me? Speak to me, Duffer!"

He let her go, feeling weak and contrite. His voice, he knows, would reveal to her the secret, confirm the suspicions that his kiss had awakened. He groped for the word to say which would not shock her, not send her into panic or anger.

And then, instead of his voice, McNally's rose.

"Fire!" he cried. "Good G—d, Jimmy! Look!"

He stood beside them, pointing up the lake to its western side where a great column of gray smoke, tinged with orange, rose like a thunder head.

"Fire!" Tim Todd echoed. "It's in the soft-wood slash. It's got to be. Can't be nowhere else! It—It's busted loose, Jimmy! Oh, H—It's busted loose this morning!"

Almost roughly Steve put the girl to one side and ran from the store down to the beach so he might be beyond the scattered trees and see better.

Fire for certain! The thing which he had feared and prepared for through these weeks of drought had come but, because of it, he would not for this hour at least be forced to unmask and tell this girl that her brother, so far as any man at Good-Bye knew, was still a wastrel, was still bearing the shame of a trust betrayed.

Calmly and rapidly he gave his orders.

The few available men at headquarters were assembled; the fire fighting equipment held there for such emergencies was rushed to the lake shore; outboard motors were clamped to two large, flat-bottomed boats and the pumps and shovels and axes loaded.

Within a surprisingly brief time the ladies' boats were heading up the lake across the head of which, now, drifted the first outriders of a heavy smoke pall.

And up there in the timber, to the southward of the burning slash, a man fled rapidly. For a mile or more he ran stoutly and then the toll of that exertion slowed his pace. He dropped to a walk but when his breathing became less strained he jogged on again. Once he paused at an opening near the water and stared out at the boats making their way up the lake. His mouth twitched as he watched them.

The weather had played into Franz's hands. Had it rained the night before, his well laid scheme would have fallen to uselessness. But it had not rained. Heat would be great toward midday and there was no sign of a change in the skies.

Ever since his arrival at Good-Bye, Steve Drake had been insistent that every man in Polaris employ be ready at a moment's notice to give battle to fire. As the weather hazard increased he had been constantly on the alert for reports of smoke.

Today, the money which was to remove the Laird's timber forever from the horizon of Franz's hopes would arrive at headquarters. Timed properly, the alarm of fire would drain the place of every able man and once that brief case which Franz had seen McNally place carefully beneath the blanket on the wagon seat in Shoestring passed out of the possession of the Flynn or their loyal help without being delivered to MacDonald, the principal point in his plotting would be achieved.

So the man had waited even past the time when fire would take a rapid hold. Then he had heaped materials together against a huge pile of brush, applied the match which would send a destroying element on its way, and turned in flight southward, the direction of headquarters.

Fire is a dual element: man's first friend, or his worst enemy. Those woodsmen in the boats knew what a fire meant, starting in that resinous slash, with the whole country like tinder. It would leap across the country, burst upon the stand of green swamp timber with such a fury that spruce and balsam, cedar and pine would flare like torches, leaving valuable timber dead and spilling in its wake.

It seemed to Steve that the boat scarcely crawled, as if Good-Bye lake expanded, stretched out its boundaries; as though many hours instead of less than one elapsed before he cut off his motor and leaped out.

Men flung themselves into the shallow water, carrying equipment with them and Martin, who had seen their approach, came running.

"Get your crew all on it!" Steve called.

"Yes; just now. But, G—d, Jim, who locked up four-five forties before we could even get in here! She's going like a—!"

The man was badly frightened.

"Going to be licked without a try?" Drake snapped. "Get hold of yourself, Martin! Where've you put your men?"

A small crew was behind the fire, armed with shovels to throw sand and hold the line from crawling back against the wind. A larger detail was on the western flank, supplied with hand water pumps, trying to squeeze the fire toward the lake, to keep it from widening in their direction.

"Well start in at the creek and backfire the whole works," Steve answered decisively. "Maybe we can't stop it from crossing but nobody'll ever say we didn't try! Hop, now! We'll fire a few rods at a time and see what kind of job of holding it we can do."

He knew that he was taking a long chance, setting a fire to work backward toward a phalanx of approaching flame, burning the ground clean as it went so that when the main front met it there would be no food to feed it. If his backfire got away, if the wind threw brands from it over the heads of his men on the creek and they could not control the islands of flame so started, surely they would lose nothing but desperate effort. If they waited for night, the proper time for backfiring when heavy and quiet air becomes an ally of the fighters, the front surely would have reached the green timber and might be a raging monster beyond any human control.

Drake with a gasoline torch set fire to the first brush piles. They ignited with a vengeance, orange flames licking into the brittle stuff, melting the piles down, throwing themselves upward in ragged banners, snarling, snapping and roaring.

He set twenty rods of fire and then waded the stream that he might better watch his handwork and the functioning of the crew.

The men, he saw, believed their fight hopeless and he rushed in among them.

"Give me that pumper!" he cried to one and pulled the device from the fellow's back. "Hot?"—as the man made his excuse. "Hot as the hubs of a wheel! But that's all the more reason for keeping after it..."

Crouched low, he edged in, closer than the closest of them. He held his breath because the air was liquid heat. He bent his head and smelled burning wool as even his clothing, though soaked in the creek, began to sing.

"Shovels, now," he croaked. "Get your shovellers in, Mac! Close in, you!"

Sand as well as water commenced to fly. The burning spot was surrounded by fighters. The skin of Steve's face was taut and dry with the torture of heat. It seemed as if his lips cracked open, but they were making headway, checking the spread of the fire, driving it back.

"Good!" he panted, relaxing a trifle.

"Three of you keep her where she is, now. Bury everything with sand that smokes. Bury what the rest of you..."

Yonder! There's another one!"

Summer of Wide Brims Is Message

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ITS breathtaking the way millinery has burst into a blaze of glory before our enchanted eyes this season. Everything from flowers to feathers, fruit trimmings, ribbons and brims of startling dimension seems to be conspiring to bring "real millinery" back into the picture once more.

Now that brims have definitely "arrived" you may wear them as huge as you care to wear them. Fashion places no limit to their dimensions. Not for season upon season have brims been so wide, so versatile, so everywhere present, so chic and so picturesque.

In the circle leghorn and roses tell a summery tale of hats-beautiful such as will be worn with frocks of exotic print, with gowns of lace, or of net, pastel chiffons or organdies.

In the other large circle is a huge black panama with the new fruit trimming which is considered quite the last word this season. You must have at least one hat trimmed with a woe apple or so, or a trio of plums and green leaves, or a cluster of cherries or berries of some sort—anything just so it is tempting looking artificial fruit. By the way, the fruit motif in dress prints is also very good this season.

The hat up in the left corner of the group has one of those few semi-weathres about the front of its crown which is decorative yet conservative enough to permit this wide-brimmed chapeau to be worn with simple daytime costumes.

Just below, centered to the left, is a hat of rough cre straw, for cre and cellulose black straws, you must know, are the rage. So, also, are all-black fabrics of cre luster. A perky multi-colored quill imparts a dash and a go to this simple tailored hat—which is just what is needed in a headpiece which is to top one's cloth or linen suit.

Brims that turn up in the back are excellent style, and are a pleasing change from the conventional cartwheel of the merry widow type. The model shown in the lower left corner is indicative of this trend. Its simple ribbon trim tames it to wear with the daytime tailleur.

Transparent brims are important millinery news. Huge capelines sheer as can be add an exquisite touch to the summer picture. Illustrated at the top, to the right, is a charming transparent brim. The bouquet of flowers together with a simple ribbon band trim this chapeau effectively.

Comes next, below to the right, a coolie beach hat. It has a cunning buckle fastening under the chin. Not only beach hats reflect the Chinese influence, for many of the smartest dress models carry pointed crowns which are so shallow they almost glide right into their large drooping all-around brims in true coolie fashion.

Last in the picture is an immense cartwheel which is strictly tailored. Of course the new exceedingly shallow crowns, posed at so perilous an angle as most of them are, would never in the world stay on themselves and so here is a final message—old style, now new style, elastic or hatpins!

SHEER RAYON DOT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Rayon has won its way to the top. Upon it leading designers have set their seal of approval. Dotted sheers in self-color is the last word in summer materials. Raised rayon dots on a mousseline de rayon background describes the handsome all-black fabric which fashions the gown illustrated. This model is making a very prideful showing in the collection of man-made materials which the Fashion Group of America have been exhibiting in New York. They are smart for dinner and evening gowns but the big news concerning them is that the swankiest of daytime jacket suits and ensembles are being made of them, a talker of net being the newest of the new.

PASTEL WOOL NOW POPULAR FAVORITE

Every season sees some new fashion development which springs up mushroom fashion, overnight. This year it is short, loose or belted swagger coats of white or pastel wool over town frocks of plain or printed crepe. These coats are sold separately. They are quite inexpensive. And they give a decidedly fresh and summery air to a dark ensemble. They may take the place of the black or navy redingote with which you started out the spring season.

String color is very smart with black or navy. Other popular shades are a deep dusty yellow, linen blue, and a soft leaf green. In many instances the color of the coat is accentuated in the print of the frock, or in some detail of belt, scarf or other trimming.

Evening Tailleurs Seen in Various Novel Fabrics

New evening tailleurs, combining a tailored jacket and instep-length skirt ready for restaurant dining, are fashioned of novel fabrics along striking lines. One suit of silver lame with a trim tailored jacket is finished with a black satin blouse and a facing of the same sable fabric inside the skirt hem. Black faille or taffeta suits cut on the same lines appear with either long-sleeved or sleeveless blouses of white organdie or flame red crepe.

Refreshing Colors Now Feature Newest Fashions

Colors this season are amazingly refreshing. There's a "Flagship" blue with all of the light in it of a sky from a sailing vessel. Russet is swapped from fall shades for spring and competes with the new clay some people object to.

Pale blue with a lavender tinge is lovely in knitted wear and for evening, with deeper blue trim. And brown comes in more different tinges than ever before.

Back Fullness

Black fullness in evening dresses continues to be their most noteworthy feature. It is achieved by ruffles, cascades of flounces, bustles and other devices.

Shortage of Food in Early Pasture

Impossible for Dairy Herd to Get Enough to Hold Weight, Strength.

By John A. Aray, Extension Dairy Specialist, North Carolina State College, WNU Service.

It is false economy to make cattle depend entirely on pasturage for roughage at this season of the year. Yet many dairymen are inclined to do so on account of the usual shortage of rough feeds in the spring. The belief seems prevalent that young grass will supply a sufficient amount of nourishment for the cattle.

Immature grass is about 90 per cent water, and it is physically impossible for cattle to eat enough of it to maintain their bodyweight and strength and produce a profitable milk flow.

Such practices are also liable to result in the cows eating weeds, wild onions, and buds in an effort to get a sufficient ration. When they do this, their milk is unpalatable and not good for drinking or butter making.

Dry roughage provides the bulk feed needed and also much nourishment that is essential to constant and profitable milk production.

Another factor in heavy grazing of young pastures is the damage done to the sod by extensive tramping and grazing before the soil has dried out. The result will be a greatly curtailed yield later in the year.

Temporary grazing can be provided by such grazing and sowing crops as cereals sown in the fall. Later in the summer, when permanent pastures are in good condition, the cows can gradually be introduced to a more substantial green diet. However, a grain ration is needed at all times.

Pasture Seeding for 3-A Contract Acres Suggested

More Illinois land will be seeded to grass during the next two years than ever before in the history of the state, prophesies H. P. Rusk, head of the animal husbandry department of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

This "back-to-grass" movement is spreading throughout the state as a result of the government's corn-hog and wheat adjustment programs in which some 2,000,000 acres of land will be taken out of crop production by co-operating Illinois farmers.

A large percentage of this former wheat and corn land will be seeded to permanent or semi-permanent pastures for live stock, and many Illinois producers are wondering what grass seeds or mixtures of seeds should be used.

For early live stock carrying capacity of permanent pastures, all records at the University of Illinois were broken by a heavy seeding consisting of 123 pounds of bluegrass, 25 of red clover, 25 pounds of sweet clover, 4.1 pounds of timothy, 1.6 pounds of alsike clover and 4 pounds of white clover. This mixture may be used for seeding contracted acres, without violation of the AAA corn-hog contract, provided it is in addition to the average acreage devoted to pasture in 1932 and 1933 and is not pastured in 1934.

Ohio 4-H Clubs Busy

Ohio 4-H clubs, being organized for the 1934 season, will have to do good work to better their record of last season. A summary of 1933 accomplishments tells of the size of the job faced by 49,000 club members and their 4,600 leaders. Ohio ranked fourth last year in total number of 4-H members enrolled by states, and according to the latest records of the United States Department of Agriculture, first in the number of members who finished the job they had set for themselves to do. Eighty per cent of the membership reported having completed their projects. Club members undertook 50,944 projects and completed 41,992 of them. National reports state that Ohio topped the list by 5,000 in number of members who had completed their work. Total membership in the United States is 970,000.

Brown put his hand in his jacket pocket and drew out the letter.

There's nothing like a print frock to suggest spring—to brighten up our wardrobe—and our spirits! We'd love the model sketched here in one of the colorful all-over designs so popular this season. It has truly flattering, feminine lines—the gracefully flared sleeves, the slim semi-belted waistline and length-giving skirt panel. With the neckline worn open, artificial flowers posed at the neckline add a chic note. For added interest, tiny buttons trim the back bodice. Sleeves may be omitted or may be made of contrast.

Pattern 1775 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28 and 30. Size 16 takes 4 yards 59 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Will New Mexico Wake Up?

Here's a question we believe the people of New Mexico would like to have answered — just what is this new tax on everything?

First, we heard the Legislature had enacted a general "Sales Tax." Next, it was designated as a "Business Tax." And now we have an official copy of the law, in bulletin form, labelled — "New Mexico Emergency School Tax Act."

The State Tax Commission has coined a catch phrase that is printed in red ink: "A penny for the Kiddies."

It all sounds like pre preliminary propaganda. Imposing on the credulity of the overburdened taxpayer is about the last straw.

The Tax Commission sets out that the act is applicable to merchants, dealers, professionals, trades, theatres, hotels, restaurants, and all lines of business having sales or incomes. Nothing has been overlooked, according to this "broad" application of the law.

Then, the biggest joker of all, is a card application blank, whereby every business must ante the sum of $1 and obtain "Permission" to Pay the Tax.

Merely a matter of paying a Tax to Pay a Tax.

And the administration rubs it in by telling you that it is "Painless."

Oh yeah — painless of course, to the collecting agency.

Isn't it about time New Mexico woke up? — Silver City Independent.

What is Wrong?

What is wrong with the Recovery Act?

Men with the responsibilities of large business frankly say they believe the president is a "disturber."

The majority of persons, nevertheless, and that includes persons who are not workers, believe that failure lies not in the recovery act, but in the lack of clean-cut administration, not in bold measures, but in the lack of clean-cut, bold measures.

Business would be better if the government would state its objectives in a frank manner. And labor "unrest" too, would cease to a large extent if a straightforward conference to decide on a "magna charta" for labor would be held and the New Deal written into law.

Neither business nor men know where they stand. As it is, congress has been acting much like a bad boy — destroying all sense of impartiality (and hope) by listening to this influence or that. The default of the Roosevelt leadership in congress has been a shock to the nation, one sees plainly. Recovery depends on a planned order — not on log-rolling. — El Paso Times (Democratic)

THE RISEN LORD AND THE GREAT COMMISSION

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 28:1-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you; and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world.—Matthew 28:19, 20.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Living Again.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Conqueror's Marching Orders.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Our Marching Orders.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Great Commission.

1. The Empty Sepulcher (vv. 1-7).
1. The earthquake (vv. 1-4). This occurred when the glorious angel descended from heaven to roll the stone away from the tomb. This work of the angel was not to allow Jesus to escape but to show that the tomb was empty. Christ needed not even the help of the glorious angel for he came forth from the grave by his own power as the seal of his atoning work on the cross (Rom. 1:4). The open tomb and the angels sitting upon the stone with calm dignity is a graphic picture of Christ's triumph over the devil; and the terror of the keepers is a sample of what all of Christ's enemies shall one day experience when he comes in glory to reign as king.

2. The angel's message to the women (vv. 5-7).
a. "Fear not" (v. 5). While the enemies had occasion to fear, these women who loved the Lord received good news from the empty tomb. The Lord will not leave those who follow him and love him in suspense and dread. The empty tomb puts an end forever to all doubts and fears. It is evidence that the question of sin has been dealt with and that God is satisfied and eternal victory is secured. Let every teacher endeavor to show the importance of the fact that the tomb was empty, for it shows that we have a living Saviour. The resurrection of Christ should be the major theme of those who give out the Christian message.

b. "Come, see" (v. 6). The angel told the women that the Lord had risen and invited them to see the place where he lay. The reason he invited them to come was that he desired them to make sure about the facts. He remained with his disciples forty days giving them many infallible proofs of his resurrection (Acts 1:3).
c. "Go quickly" (v. 7). Having seen for themselves their responsibility was to go and tell the message. It is important to be convinced of facts. Experience is necessary before testimony. They were to go quickly to the disciples with the message that the Lord would go before and meet them.

11. The Risen Lord Meets the Women (vv. 8-10).
The women quickly obeyed the command of the angel and were running to bring word to the disciples. Jesus met them on the way. All who go quickly with his message, the Lord will meet on the way. When they saw Jesus, that he was really the Lord they worshiped him.

12. Paying Money to Circulate a Lie (vv. 11-15).
That Jesus arose from the dead could not even be denied by the Sadducees. They saw only one way out of the difficulty; that was to bribe the keepers to tell a lie. They had paid money for his betrayal; now they paid more money to circulate a lie about his resurrection. Money not only induces people to lie, but it even muzzles the mouths of some teachers and preachers.

13. The King's Great Commission (vv. 16-20).
1. The royal authority (vv. 16-18). By virtue of his divine authority he issued this command to the disciples. Only as the disciples realize the authority of the Lord will they go out to proclaim his message.

2. The content of the commission (vv. 19, 20).
a. Go teach all nations. This is the first and primary business of the disciples, and is a present obligation.
b. Baptize them in the name of the triune God. It is proper that those who have become disciples of the Lord should receive the rite which signifies that relationship to him.
c. Teach them to observe all Christ's commandments (v. 20). Christ's disciples should be taught obedience to all his commandments.
3. The available power (v. 20). The guarantee of the success of the missionary enterprise is Christ's abiding presence.

Righteousness
Righteousness is incomplete unless its final and highest expression be love. But holy love is stern. It is satisfied with nothing less than the sanctification of its object, such love will never spare the loved.

Do It Now!
If the wish is waked in our soul to be ever in his presence, let us go to him this moment, and ask him what to do, and how to feel, believing that he is more ready to hear than we to pray.

Beggars Live High as Money Rolls In England Finds Barnum's Estimate Too Modest.

London.—How true the saying is, "there is one born every minute," is emphasized by an interview in London with B. E. Astbury, inquiry secretary of the Charity Organization Society. Mr. Astbury is inclined to think that, in England at least, there is more than one born every minute, and tells of some of the extraordinary methods employed by tricksters who specialize in begging letters, writes John Steele in the Chicago Tribune.

"In London today," he says, "there lives a man who has for more than a quarter of a century done nothing to earn a living except by writing begging letters. He lives in a well appointed flat in Kensington, has an office and maintains a staff of clerks, and has an international organization which operates in America and on the continent. He poses alternately as an ex army officer, an ex naval officer, and a doctor of literature.

"We first made the acquaintance of this individual 25 years ago. Then he was praying upon elderly women who were interested in the suppression of 'blood sports.' He formed, so he claimed, a society for the purpose of organizing a campaign to stop 'blood sports,' and subscriptions simply rolled in.

"The man is certainly one of the cleverest of begging letter writers, and is always up to date in his ideas. Now he has turned poet and a doctor of literature, but of what university he does not say.

The Same Old Story.
"Then there is the dear old soul who for years has been making a comfortable living by telling of her hardships. Using accommodation addresses in different parts of London, she writes to titled people. Always it is the same story; her husband has just died, she is in terrible distress; owes $5 as rent. And she encloses her 'rent' book of course.

"In the last twenty years we have known that woman, and I have at least a dozen of her 'rent books,' each very carefully written up and showing the amount said to be owing. She uses a score of different names, and is most sympathetic in her appeals. She never makes the mistake of writing to the same person twice with the same story. That she makes a really splendid living at this sort of thing is shown by the fact that only a few weeks ago we went to one accommodation address near London which she was using and found more than 30 letters waiting for her there, and on the envelope of nearly every one was a crest or a coronet.

"The begging writer specializes very definitely. There is one woman who follows the birth announcements and immediately writes her appeal: 'How happy the new mother must be. Yet I, who became a mother on the same day, am destitute and my child dead. Now I have nowhere to go, for my husband was killed in an accident only a week before the child was born.' Another woman specializes on the engagement columns and has a sad story to relate, ending with an appeal for help.

Profession Overcrowded.
"Then, of course, there is always the old soldier or old sailor who writes to widows of naval or military officers, claiming to have served under their husbands. Another clever and persistent begging writer is a man who claims to have been employed at one time by a firm of court jewelers in an exclusive part of London. The man certainly possesses a list of old clients of the firm, and writes his appeals to them, pretending to have done them a service years ago.

"The profession of begging letter writing is rapidly becoming overcrowded. In the last twelve months we have had between 3,000 and 4,000 more inquiries regarding the genuineness of letters than ever before."

In a recent police case in London it was revealed that a man had lived for 20 years on begging letters, keeping a man and woman servant, an automobile and four dogs. It was also stated that the man had a small cottage in the country, and went abroad every year for a couple of months to avoid London fogs and bad weather.

King of Islamistan

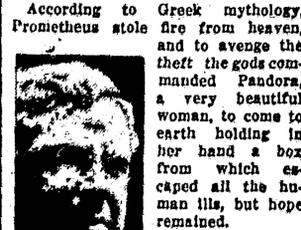

Dr. Khalil Shadrake, former London pickle manufacturer, who has assumed the title of "King of Islamistan" and claims the overlordship of Sinkiang, Chinese Turkestan, has arrived in Peking, China, with a large retinue. He was converted to Mohammedanism several years ago, and was visited by a deputation last March from Chinese Turkestan, who told him they had been commissioned to invite him to become king of the area.

HOPE
By LEONARD A. BARRETT

According to Greek mythology, Prometheus stole fire from heaven, and to avenge the theft the gods commanded Pandora, a very beautiful woman, to come to earth holding in her hand a box from which escaped all the human ills, but hope remained.

While fear is the arch enemy of the race, hope is its greatest blessing. To the person in whose heart burns the light of hope, every cloud of discouragement has a silver lining. Hope constructs a future which becomes a sort of goal summoning all one's strength to reach it. Hope knows no present tense, it functions wholly in the future. "Come ride along with me, the best of life is yet to be," can only be said by those whose lives are dominated by hope. Hope knows no discouragement, because the latter is a thing of the present moment, and hope is interested in the future.

There is a popular phrase, "As long as there is life there is hope." The opposite is more the truth, as long as there is hope there is life. "When hope dies within the heart, a common grayness silvers everything" and purpose, ambition and even faith itself are near the end. No more severe fate could befall any person than to be bereft of the light of hope.

Hope calls out all latent energies and makes each adventure in life a "stepping stone to higher things." Hope quickens the mind, sharpens the perspective and stimulates the heart. Hope is like the lighthouse. Out upon the stormy sea it throws its light. Penetrating the darkness with its beams the ships are guided to safety.

Hope is an innate gift, deeply implanted within the heart. We may kill it or cultivate it, just as we choose. It develops, however, through self-expression. "If we have no hope we are of all men most miserable."

Hope was unknown among the ancients as a virtue to be cultivated. They emphasized courage, physical strength, endurance, but seldom mentioned hope. It is a virtue especially characteristic of a Christian civilization. Hope is named as one of the blessings which still remain. "Now abideth, Faith, Hope and Love." © by Western Newspaper Union.

The Old Waffle Iron
The waffle iron, usually regarded as a modern utensil, is mentioned in cooking at least 500 years ago.

The Household
By Lydia Le Baron Walker

Curves Are a Pronounced Feature of the New Furniture.

A NEW style of furniture is coming in. When named, it is variously called modern classic and Twentieth century furniture. It is designed on classic lines and is, therefore, in pronounced contrast to the modernistic furniture which has been featured in the past few years. This new type may be said to "mix well" with other styles, while the modernistic type requires more special settings suited to itself. The incoming furniture vogue is far from bizarre. It is not difficult to introduce pieces into already furnished rooms when new furniture is needed to be substituted for wornout pieces, unless the previous furnishings were modernistic.

The new furniture is restful in style rather than striking. One is not impressed by its presence in a room because it is different, but because it pleases the eye. Straight lines so omnipresent in modernistic furniture are neither stressed nor avoided, but neither are curves shunned.

Return of Curves.
One striking feature of the Twentieth century furniture, in fact, is the return of curves. These are lines of beauty which have been sorely lacking in modernistic pieces. So pronounced is this feature, that the up-to-date modernistic furniture already is influenced by it, as instanced in modifications of the severity of the usual straight and angular shapes. There is no doubt that furniture and figures both are returning to curved contours and lines of beauty.

The name modern classic which is applied to the new or Twentieth century style of furniture, is revealing. It gives in its name its two characteristics. It is modern but built on classic lines. It is graceful without extravagance of embellishment. It does not feature carving, either the choice sort done by hand, or the mechanical reproductions made separately and glued in place. It is simple but not severe. Since curves are introduced as instanced in cabriole legs, the standard supports for mirrors on bureaus, etc., the furniture could scarcely be severe. It can be stately, graceful, and pleasing and it is these characteristics which are focusing attention.

Cigarette smokers must have ash trays. If the homemaker does not provide plenty of them, she will find her vases and dishes converted into ash receivers, and even tops of boxes will be upturned and used for the purpose. It is important, therefore, to have enough of these dainty little trays. They should be the sort to withstand heat, as well as wash easily.

About Ash Trays.
For these reasons there is nothing better than pottery for ash receivers. This substance is not inflammable, it is a nonconductor of heat, and it washes to look like new. Pottery, or semiprecious is preferable to china for both are heavier than china. The intense heat of glowing stubs when pressed against the last ware may crack it. The ashes, of course, would do no harm, only intense heat of the burning tip when carelessly pressed too long, without releasing the stub continually while the fire is being quenched.

Glass ash trays are attractive in their pristine clearness, for their gay colors. They should be fireproof. It is chiefly through carelessness that either the glass or the china cracks, but smokers are proverbially heedless with cigarettes.

Metal ash receivers have the advantage of being unbreakable, but they cannot have all the points in their favor. Metal heats through very quickly. If a smoker carelessly or hurriedly leaves a burning stub in the tray, as we all know happens occasionally, the heated metal is liable to mar a highly polished table top of wood. When the smoker's stand or table top is of marble or tiling, such possibility of damage does not exist.

This Is a Perfect Case of Goods Exchanging
Birmingham, England.—Tribesmen in the Solomon Islands are now so busy making soap that they no longer have time to carve personal ornaments out of palmwood, and are buying brass ornaments from Birmingham as a substitute. This is thought to be the perfect case of fair international exchange, as the Birmingham people get dirty making brass ornaments to sell to the Polyynesians who pay for the brass ornaments with soap to get the Birmingham people clean.

Modern Metropolis in Palestine Is Thriving

Tel Aviv, "Boom City," Celebrates Birthday.

Washington.—Mention Palestine and ago-old customs, tribes, and cities come to mind. Yet Palestine, like the rest of the world, is changing. Tel Aviv, a thriving modern metropolis of nearly 70,000 population, did not exist in 1900. Its site was then only a deserted area of rolling sand dunes, north of the port of Jaffa.

Tel Aviv celebrated its twenty-fifth birthday with a trade fair to which nine foreign nations and scores of commercial concerns sent exhibits. The exposition, known as the Third International Levant fair, was given a permanent site north of the city between Yarkon river and the Mediterranean. Last year the Levant fair drew visitors from Syria, Egypt, Transjordan, Persia, and Iraq as well as Palestine.

"Tel Aviv, Palestine's boom city, owes its origin to a small group of Jewish residents of the distinctly Arab city of Jaffa, who moved out to the sand dunes north of the city in 1900 and began a garden suburb," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

Second City of Palestine.

"Since the World war Tel Aviv whose name means 'Hill of Spring,' has witnessed spectacular growth. Today this all-Jewish community is second in population only to Jerusalem among the cities of Palestine, and is the most modern town of the eastern Mediterranean region. Continued Jewish immigration to Palestine, much of it from Germany, adds monthly to Tel Aviv's growing population.

"With its modern homes, paved streets, shops, clubs, steamship offices, and bathing beach, Tel Aviv resembles a European city rather than one in Palestine. Many of its trim houses are surrounded by small gardens, preserved from drought by sprinkling systems—an unheard of extravagance so close to Jerusalem, which is often short of water even for drinking. Attractive shops display wares from many lands, while steamship offices advertise excursion rates to Europe and America on garish signboards in Hebrew and Latin characters.

"At the bathing beach there is a modern casino with jazz bands, and the sands are used for sun-bathing by men, women, and children—a custom almost unknown in Palestine before the Zionists developed their own city."

"The population of Tel Aviv is ultra modern, thinking in terms of social science and business as well as advanced agriculture. The city contains over a hundred schools and kindergartens under Zionist direction, and a school of the Universal Israelite alliance. There are also two libraries: the Municipal library, with a large collection of sociological works bequeathed by the late Asher Ginsberg, and the Central Library of the Cultural Committee of the Jewish Labor Federation, with nearly 100,000 volumes in Hebrew, Yiddish, and European languages, dealing with sociology and economics, science and agriculture.

Wealth in Oranges.

"Tel Aviv's most spectacular holiday comes during the feast of Purim, during which horse and motor-drawn floats may combine the seven-branched candlestick and modern display advertising. A carnival spirit prevails among the noisy crowd, and young girls masquerading in heavy boards poke good-natured fun at Orthodox rabbis.

"A more cosmopolitan crowd than that seen during the Purim procession would be hard to find even in ancient communities, for here are immigrants from the Ghettos of Europe side by side with residents who have made their fortunes in America and other lands, and have followed the Zionist's dream to this sand-dune city from whose house tops one may look across the Philistine plain to the rocky backbone of old Judea.

"The real wealth of this region is its oranges, and whole shiploads of the famous Jaffa oranges are loaded for European ports when the weather permits. Most of the new plantations have been set out by Jews, who market many of the oranges co-operatively, and are helped by the Palestine

Dudes Drop Canes; Feel Almost Nude

London.—The dandies of the town are discarding the walking cane, long the symbol in America of the foppish Briton.

Years ago a man would have felt "almost naked" if he had ventured along Piccadilly or Bond street without his cane; nowadays only foreigners and the infirm carry them.

Automobiles are chiefly blamed for this almost total disappearance of the walking stick from crowded city streets.

H. Howell, managing director of one of the oldest established houses had the following to say:

"We have been making walking sticks for more than 100 years, and yet we had our record years as recently as 1918 and 1920. Since then, however, the demand has steadily diminished."

government in keeping down fruit diseases and maintaining high standards of inspection. Before the war the Jaffa orange groves shipped less than a million cases of fruit. The number is now close to three million, with a value running perhaps as high as four to five million dollars a year.

"Tel Aviv also possesses Palestine's pioneer industrial plant—a brick factory which makes hundreds of thousands of silicate brick for the construction of homes of cubistic design and of other buildings for immigrants each year. It also has smaller plants turning out furniture, textiles, shoes, candles, orange cases, etc."

Dishes That "Go" Together

Variety of Combinations Apparently Are Just Meant to Complement; May Be Said to "Flatter" Each Other When So Served.

To enjoy the edible good things of life is one of the prerogatives of the epicure. What comprises these good things depends upon the taste of the person or of the family, and preferences. The real epicure is the person whose taste has had a high degree of education in foods. He knows how to discriminate in edibles, both as to quality and to combinations. I well remember hearing a Chinese gentleman of discernment say of one vegetable that "it flatters the meat." The homemaker who sets a good table learns what to serve so that one dish may "flatter" another. Let us mention, today, some dishes which "flatter" each other.

Cranberry sauce flatters chicken, caper sauce does the same to mutton, and apple sauce does to roast pork, duck and goose. Cabbage flatters boiled corn beef, baked macaroni and cheese do the same to roast beef, and in England Yorkshire pudding is the accepted accompaniment to beef. In Europe a salad is correct with chicken, goose, and other roast birds.

To Europeans a salad signifies dressed lettuce or other salad greens with, possibly, the addition of a little chopped beet root or tomato slices. Other salads they have, but these have special descriptive designations. Salad, as an accompaniment to fatter roast birds, is plain unless otherwise specified. The salad is served with the birds as naturally and regularly as are potatoes or other vegetables.

Turnip is a recognized accompaniment of corned beef. It is also excellent with lamb. Sweet potatoes are preferable to white with ham. Pineapple flatters ham. In India ripe pineapple slices are put on top of a slice of ham which is then baked, or cooked in a similar way. The juice extracted by the heat percolates through the meat, giving it a delicious flavor. Ham so cooked is reputed to be especially digestible.

Whipped cream flatters many desserts which are complete without this dainty addition. It goes with cold desserts especially, even topping some ice cream. Meringue belongs in the same class with whipped cream. It can be used interchangeably in many instances, although since it is more tasty when delicately browned, it belongs peculiarly to baked and even hot dishes. When on frozen desserts a hot iron is held above the piled meringue so that it, alone, gets the force of the intense heat. Ices with browned meringue tops are epicurean dishes.

A food which flatters another must be something apart from the dish itself. That is, it may be a separate food served as a complement to it, or it may be an addition to a dish itself which, however, could be served without it.

Hatch Pheasant Chicks by Artificial Methods

The state of Pennsylvania, which probably turns out more pheasants than any other state, discarded its hen-hatching system last spring and made a complete change over to artificial hatching and rearing, with the result that out of 27,269 eggs set 20,164 chicks were hatched and 10,660 pheasants were raised. Chicks are hatched in electrically heated machines at 103 degrees and after hatching are kept in the incubator hatcher compartment at 100 degrees for 24 hours.

They are then transferred to the brooder house under cover at 93 degrees. The second week they are given access to a sun porch. The third week they are given access to a ground runway and the hover temperature is reduced gradually until by the fifth week the artificial heat is turned off completely. The sixth and seventh week the chicks are transferred to a holding field and are released during the eighth to the tenth weeks.

Miracles Wrought by Plastic Surgery

Ears, Noses and Limbs Now Altered at Will.

Philadelphia.—Have you ever seen a face you like better than your own? You can have it if you wish.

A Philadelphia plastic surgeon who for professional reasons wishes his name concealed, has explained what can be done to "save your face."

You may swap a Roman nose for a Greek one; or a pair of Carnera legs for those of Mariene Dietrich. You even can have a permanent blush.

"Among the patients who come for alterations," the surgeon said, "are society matrons, wistful sales girls, would-be stage and screen stars, and up-and-at-em business executives. They realize that their face is, or should be, their fortune.

"One of the commonest requirements is to reduce or remodel ears. Ears which project can be laid back out of the way; fat ears can be made slim, and thin ears plump.

"Another frequent request is for new hair on a shiny dome. In that case we simply take the tufts still growing elsewhere and transplant them to spots where they will show to better advantage.

"Modern bathing costumes and evening gowns have resulted in a big demand for dimples. They are easy. Also, a few expertly placed stitches will greatly improve the shape of the mouth and chin.

"Women frequently want trim ankles and thighs. Skillful work will bring them about. Birthmarks also can be removed.

"But for all this work it is most important that a man be selected who has had experience, and who is exceedingly skillful. Otherwise serious results may occur.

"And he should also be something of an artist. He should realize, for example, that a Roman nose and freckles don't go together. He must be an architect of the human body, patching up the careless work of nature."

Star Photography Aided by Aluminum Reflectors

Pasadena, Calif.—Opening up new worlds, astronomers at Lick observatory have found that the use of aluminum instead of silver in the mirror of an astronomical telescope increases the instrument's power, possibly 50 to 60 per cent.

After photographing a star in the North polar region with a telescope whose mirror was coated with silver, the astronomers sent the mirror to the California Institute of Technology, where the silver was removed and polished aluminum applied. The star was rephotographed, and a long extension of the star's spectrum, barely visible in the former photograph, could be seen plainly.

The effect will be to widen former astronomical "horizons," scientists are agreed.

Nebraska Farmers Keep Books as Business Aid

Lincoln, Neb.—Nebraska farmers rapidly are adopting a systematic and accurate bookkeeping system as an aid to more businesslike agricultural methods. More than 2,000 farmers, according to estimates by the University of Nebraska extension service, have started farm account books, supplied them by the college of agriculture. Herman Miller, extension worker at the college, estimates that twice as many farmers are keeping books this year as last.

Town in New York Has Monument to Bernhardt

Geneva, N. Y.—Its existence virtually unknown to the outside world, an odd memorial to Sarah Bernhardt, French tragedienne, erected by a Geneva admirer, stands in a little frequented spot south of the city, near Plattsburg. It is believed to be the only monument ever erected in this country to her memory.

The monument, composed of concrete blocks of stone and a cement base stands 14 feet high. It was built by Charles B. Bean, Geneva lawyer and descendant of Colonial settlers, who followed her career in this country and foreign capitals.

A plaque of Vermont marble, bears the following inscription:

"To Madam Sarah Bernhardt, the greatest actress in the world, whose lyric fire and divine voice gave more intense and supreme life to the poets, in profound admiration is built this rugged memorial, by the Knights of Cyprus and devoted friends.

"Romance Holds Open the Door to Eternal Spring."

The memorial is situated on Bean's estate. Bean is an officer of the Knights of Cyprus.

Old State Line Marker Found on Ancient Tree

Iron River, Mich.—A century-old inscription discovered on an ancient tamarack tree recalls the days when the Wisconsin-Michigan state line was being established.

A group of surveyors had been sent here from Detroit to lay the boundary between Michigan and Wisconsin. At that time Wisconsin had not yet been admitted to the Union.

At the exact spot determined by the inscription, the party was beset by unfriendly Indians, who would neither allow them to go ahead nor turn back until they had divided their supplies with them.

Smallest Organ Built

Boston.—Louis Weir organist, has built what is believed the smallest organ in the world—14 inches wide and 8 inches high. It can control all the stops of a large console and was played for the first time by him in a Boston theater.

Cinnabar Vein Found
Alpine, Texas.—A 16-foot vein of cinnabar ore, from which quicksilver is obtained, has been uncovered in the Study Butte mine at Terlingua. The vein is of "bonanza" proportions.

HEARD ABOUT TOWN

Mr. and Mrs. Efran Pacheco of Arabela were here last Saturday, purchasing ranch supplies and shaking hands with their many Carrizozo friends.

RECORD CROWD SEES NEW FAIR

Street of Villages Gets Big Play; Lights All New.

Chicago.—More than 235,000 persons saw the new World's Fair here on its first week-end. A record opening day crowd of 154,003 Saturday, May 23, surpassed last year's opening day figure by 34,053. The following day's crowd of 81,241 was greater by 23,557 than the same day in 1933.

President Roosevelt, through the medium of a motion picture shown at several points on the grounds, officially opened the Exposition. As he closed an electric switch the new lights blazed forth for the first time.

Visitors were surprised to find the fair complete, and fully up to the promises made that it would be new Lights Trace Sky Ride.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, first lady of the land, inaugurated the outstanding new feature, the world's largest fountain. Like the President, she appeared in a motion picture. At a magical wave of her hand, the giant waterpours rose from the north lagoon, litened by a play of colored light.

Lighting, the most talked-of thing about the 1933 Fair, revealed wonders never approached on the 1934 opening night. Co-ordination of lighting and color were more in evidence. Under the lights the new Century of Progress purple-red, theme color of the new Exposition, presented a glowing beauty that was different. Buildings, grouped with respect to color in light as well as color in paint, revealed a new harmony.

The Sky Ride, almost lost to vision at night formerly, greeted visitors with all its catenary system traced against the sky in electric light. Bright red neon tubes outlined the observation platforms 623 feet above the fair. Farther south, from the rotunda of the Ford building, a pillar of blue light 200 feet thick and more than a mile high, pierced the clouds overhead. The lighting load of this 1000-foot-long building is more than one-third the total load of the entire fair of last year.

Foreign Villages Popular.
New lights in the lagoon and a new "Aurora Borealis" of searchlights at the north end of the grounds, complementing that at the south end, completed the major changes in the night time illumination.

Mecca for the opening day throng was the new Street of Villages. The "tour-of-the-world-in-a-single-day" offered by the fifteen reproductions of far-away lands in the new fair proved to be an idea that "clicked."

Eleven of the foreign villages are grouped together where the Midway was in 1933. Here are an Irish village, with the atmosphere that was known by the ancient chieftains who met in Tara Hall; the Spanish village, largest ever built for any fair; Tunisia, the "Land-of-the-Bedouins"; the Italian village, with its leaning tower and time-worn Roman ruins.

The tendency to be fat or slender is largely inherited, though most persons who are overweight can achieve a material reduction by proper habits of diet and exercise, says Hygeia Magazine. When one is underweight, there should always be an stimulation for weight gain.
