FORT STANTON NEWS

The bridge tournament at the Community House has been resumed after a hiatus of two weeks with the players of No. 10 holding a slight lead by virtue of having made a grand slam redoubled. On account of injuries sustained in practice scrimmage several substitutions have been necessary in the backfield of the No. 10 squad.

Jos. Wappler has left here for the Gulf Coast, having found the mountain air too rare for the winter. He plans to enter a seminary at Houston to pursue his Bible studies. Jos. Rice accompanied him on his missionary trip.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Boyd have returned from Lincoln where they have spent two months managing the Bonito Inn.

Many carloads of 6 inch cast iron pipe are arriving at Capitan and are being trucked to Fort Stanton for use on the new water supply line. Nine miles of new pipe is being laid to replace the old 4 inch line which runs up the Bonito River. This will insure an adequate supply of water. Most of the excavation is being done by a huge machine.

Miss Exley, R. N., has arrived from Savannah to replace Miss Morris, who was recently transferred.

Mrs. Ella Davidson of Roswell has taken over the Bonito Inn in Lincoln.

A number of the ladies of the post were entertained at a bridge luncheon by Mrs. Coe of Glencoe on Tuesday. The local ladies carried off all honors.

A Spanish class is being held three times a week at the Craft Shop under the direction of Prof. Maure, formerly of Madrid, Spain.

Mrs. W. Ferguson substituted in the school in the middle of the week for Warren Rockwell, who has been ill.

Mrs. John Cox of Hondo was surprised by a number of friends at a birthday quilting party on Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Fagan attended a P. T. A. meeting in Roswell on Wednesday.

Wiley McNair has left for El Paso to spend the winter.

Various obscure and mysterious maladies are breaking out among the huskies in the infirmary who have heard the doctor mention the dreaded word "Hill" to them. As one expressed it, "Here it is winter coming on and he tells me I am getting along too well to stay in the infirmary."

Hon. Ed Sealf states that the paternalism exerted over the boys on election day is the result of a deeply laid plot by the Democrats who conspired to hamper freedom of action and expression.

Mrs. E. V. Crutcher of Tularosa and Mrs. R. E. Blaney spent the week-end at "Glad-U-Cum" cabin at Eagle Creek. The rain and snow on Monday night filled the Creek to overflowing. Tuesday morning, the trees laden with the pure mountain snow was a beautiful sight and several wild turkeys came to Mrs. Blaney's back door for an early breakfast.

Remember the Thanksgiving dance to be given by the Woman's Club of Carrizozo, Thursday, Nov. 29, at Community Hall.

NOGAL NOTES

(By "CRICO")

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Cochran of Santa Fe visited Mr. Cochran's brother, J. Cochran and family, this week.

A. Richardson was an Alamogordo visitor Monday.

Misses Carrie Dell Zumwalt and Helen Gatewood are back in school after an attack of the measles.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Martin visited the R. M. Martin family Tuesday.

R. D. Martin was home from the High Rolls CCG camp this week-end.

Mrs. Frank Abel and son Frank, Jr., of Carrizozo visited Mr. and Mrs. Jim Ayres Sunday.

Nogal Peak was white with snow Tuesday morning. It rained all night in Nogal Monday.

Mrs. Eva Emerson, daughter Charlotte and son Amos moved to Nogal Saturday from Bonito. The Prehm family of Carrizozo spent Sunday at "El Puerto" in Nogal Canyon.

Miss Bernice Brown is staying with Mr. and Mrs. Jesse May.

Roy Hust was home from the CCC camp this week-end.

Elmer Staffiero Killed

At about 11:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, Elmer Staffiero, coal miner in the employ of the New Mexico Light & Power Co., at the coal mines at White Oaks, met death by a large boulder which fell from the roof of the room in which he was working. The miners were in the habit of taking their lunches into the mine and at the noon hour, they would assemble and lunch together. When they missed Elmer at lunch time, they went to his room and found him beneath the huge stone and crushed to death. He was 40 years of age and a native of Italy, but had lately received his naturalization papers. He was an experienced miner and had worked in many places over the United States and also in his native land. He was well known and highly respected by all who knew him and especially by the firm with which he had been employed for several years. He left a wife, who resides in Phoenix, Arizona, and to whom the sympathy of his many friends is tendered. Disposition of the remains will be left with the widow to decide.

Thrown From Horse; Slightly Injured

Billy Nickels was thrown from a horse last Sunday while deer hunting and suffered a relapse of an old ailment which he contracted in a friendly wrestling bout at State College last season. In the wrestling, a ligament was torn loose under the ribs on his left side. Again, at Jicarilla, he aggravated the old injury in a scuffle with a friend, and the fall from the horse last Sunday, was so severe and he suffered so intensely that he was taken to the Fort Stanton hospital, where he received treatment which eased the pain and he was brought home Monday. Physicians at the Fort advised that he be sent to El Paso and after resting at home until Wednesday night, he was able to make the trip and undergo treatment at the Masonic hospital; we understand.

We Have Lights Again

We were so busy with politics and "one thing and another" for the past two weeks, that we actually forgot to make mention of the new light and the good service the New Mexico Light & Power Company are giving us. It certainly was a big thrill after about three weeks of groping around in total darkness, the light came on with additional brilliancy.

Considering the misfortune in having the plant burn to the ground and everything destroyed, it was remarkable that in so short period of time, to have a new unit put in, a building erected, and service resumed.

The company is to be commended on its speed in the resumption of operations. Let us again mention the good service.

Music-Drama Study Club

The Music-Drama Study Club met at the home of Miss Ella Brickley on Oct. 25. 12 members were present, including our honorary, Mrs. Albert Ziegler, and an invited guest, Mrs. C. P. Huppertz. The dramatists under the direction of Miss Ella Brickley, selected numbers portraying comedy and book reviews with a one-act comedy, "Abigail's Bomb," cast by Mrs. Maude Blaney, Mrs. Selma Degitz, and Miss Helen Huppertz, as the main attraction of the evening.

The musicians, under the direction of Miss Ruth Brickley, chose numbers portraying "Folk Music in the United States," placing emphasis on Thurlow Lieurance and Sidney Foster as two of the early composers.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. M. Beck on Nov. 22, with Mrs. Selma Degitz and Mrs. J. M. Beck as respective drama and music chairmen. Individual numbers will be cast.

Our idea of a 'hoss' race — that between Cutting and Chavez.

Mrs. J. R. O'Malley of Capitan, Mrs. Leona Wright and Miss Bertha Smith, nurses at Fort Stanton, were yesterday's visitors from out-of-town.

Mmes. Whitwell and Queen of White Oaks were visitors in town this Tuesday.

See "Flip" the wonder dog, at the Lyric Theatre tonight. No increase in prices.

Donald Queen and Charley Gilbert were down from White Oaks, making arrangements for the first big dance to be given by their orchestra, the Arroyo Serenaders at the Town Hall in White Oaks. Good road, good eats, good maple dance floor and good music. What more would you want? The dance will take place Saturday night—Be there!

Famous remarks — "Hain't the weather the last few days been ideal?"

V. L. Cruss of the Branum Grocery, Albert and Oscar Snow have each killed a deer. Mr. Cruss made the Outlook family a present of some fine steaks, for which we return our thanks.

Dr. R. E. Blaney, as usual, got his deer and remembered the Outlook office with a juicy steak, for which we thank him.

School Notes

Ola C. Jones, Co. Supt.

The teachers of the County have put forth great effort in raising money with which to buy books for indigent children and I think it would be well to mention what some of these programs are: Organizing Parent-Teachers' Associations, organizing Women's Clubs, giving benefit dances, box suppers, candy sales, carnivals, etc.

One school district took chickens and turkeys, turned them into sandwiches, and sold them at the programs and parties given. The FERA is also assisting us by buying books for those children whose parents are on direct or work relief, and we hope we may soon be able to say every child of the County has all his text books.

In glancing over the monthly reports sent in by teachers, I note that Angus and Baca Canyon boast 100 per cent attendance, and Ft. Stanton had but one absence in Miss Hulbert's room. Children are given red dots and honor awards for perfect attendance, and it is hoped that we may have more schools added to our honor roll.

Dog Lecture and Act

White "Flip," the wonder dog, is doing her acts at the Lyric Theatre, her owner and trainer will talk on "Dog Training" and "Intelligence" which should be of benefit to every dog owner.

Mr. Walker, the theatre manager, is giving his patrons this High Wire Walking and High Diving Dog Act in addition to his regular picture programs without additional charge.

W. B. Rose of Hollywood was a business visitor in town this Thursday and while here, made this office a friendly call.

The Board of County Commissioners met Tuesday and canvassed the vote cast over the county at the recent election. The main center of interest was the absentee ballots, which resulted as follows: There were 62 absentee ballots cast, Cutting receiving 33 and Chavez 29, which raised Cutting's majority to 72 votes in the county. Other candidates on the state and county tickets received slight increases.

Mr. and Mrs. M. U. Finley returned Wednesday evening from a trip to Clovis, where they visited at the homes of their daughters. Mmes. Harry Lyman and Dewey Plant. Their visit was of more especial interest on account of the two little granddaughters, Allene Lyman and Judith Plant who were the guests of the hostess-grandparents last summer during vacation.

Gunther Kroggel of the New Mexico Mechanical Equipment Company made a business trip to Capitan this Thursday.

After the arrival of the widow of the late Elmer Staffiero, Tuesday evening it was decided to make interment of the remains at White Oaks and services were held at 10 o'clock this morning by Rev. Jordan and burial took place in the White Oaks cemetery.

Mark Sloan killed an 8-point buck on his father's ranch near this place. This makes the second deer young Mark has killed, having got one last season. Mark is still in his teens, and more power to him. Ed Kelley was the first of the local nimrods to get his deer.

ANCHO ITEMS

The Woman's Club entertained with a turkey dinner Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Hightower. The dinner was given in honor of the teachers of Ancho which, together with the congeniality and graciousness of Mrs. Hightower, made the affair one of the outstanding of the season. The Thanksgiving motif was carried out in every detail. Following the dinner the crowd adjourned to the living room where games of rummy were played with Mrs. Belknap winning high score. Toward the close of the evening, Miss Crawford was asked to follow a string which led her to all parts of the house where concealed gifts were found. These gifts to remind her that members of the club had not forgotten her birthday. Miss Crawford expressed her appreciation to the club which was followed by impromptu speeches by the various other teachers.

Mrs. Barney Wilson will be hostess to the Woman's Club Saturday, Nov. 17, with an all-day meeting.

Mrs. Jack Pruett returned from El Paso Wednesday evening where she underwent hospital treatment for the past three weeks.

Prof. Bright made a business trip to Santa Fe Saturday.

Carl Craig was a Roswell visitor Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Barney Wilson made a business trip to Capitan Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Earnest of San Antonio visited Poole Earnest and family last week.

The Frames visited in Corona over the week-end.

George Straley was a Carrizozo visitor Saturday.

PERSONALS

Lewis Burke came home last Saturday from Kansas City, where he had been enjoying a visit for several months at the home of Dr. and Mrs. R. T. Lucas.

The new set of relief workers put into action Monday have done much cleaning up of debris over town. After paying attention to the streets, they were put to work at cleaning up on private property and made a good showing.

Ex-Mayor G. T. McQuillen was host to a number of friends Monday night at his home next door to Paden's Drug Store. An enjoyable evening was spent by those present.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Johnson are occupying the suite of rooms on the upper floor of the Phipps building on Alamogordo avenue.

County Treasurer and Mrs. L. J. Adams have sold their place on Main street and are now occupying the Burke residence on Alamogordo avenue.

Oscar Snow has sold his barber shop and will leave shortly for Lubbock, Texas, to join his family and make that place his home. M. G. Peckham will remain with the new owner, a Cloudercroft barber whose name we have not yet learned.

L. A. Whitaker returned about ten days ago from a pleasure trip to the east, during which time he visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Foust at Highland Park, Ill. Mr. Foust is a famed airman and has been here many times as a guest at the Kudner O-O Ranch.

Mr. and Mrs. Nick Vega and children spent last Sunday and Monday visiting relatives and friends in Tularosa.

The Misses Frances and Virginia Charles are visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Farley at Alamogordo this week.

Harry Baugh, P. A. Burtis, Frank Schulman, R. S. Terwilliger, and Ray Callahan of Garden City, Kansas, were here on a hunting trip, during which time, they were guests of Wm. and Harry Gallacher.

We were pleasantly surprised this morning by a visit from our old friend, Will Robinson, New Mexico's noted editorial writer and columnist. It was our hard luck for him to call on us on publication day from the fact that we had to pay more attention to the "beans" than to our friend. But Bill knows that because he was poor once himself.

Utah Town Recalls Pony Express of Pioneer Days

Famous Link in Early East-West Mail Route

Washington.—"Ipsah, sun-blasted town in Utah's Deep Creek valley, recently turned back the pages of 70 years' history and dedicated a shaft marking the location of the Pony express station which was the forerunner of the town. The village, home of 213 residents, lies at the edge of a desert, about five miles east of the Utah-Nevada boundary.

"This station was one of the 190 established between St. Joseph, Mo., and San Francisco, Calif., in an effort to cut in half the time necessary to communicate between the east and west coasts of the United States," says the National Geographic society. "It was in this region that Indians, by frequent attacks, nearly caused the abandonment of the Pony express within two months after it was established.

Inaugurated in 1860.

"By 1860 the outside edges of the continent had been colonized and white men's activities penetrated inland from the coast as far as the Missouri river. But between 'Saint Joe' and San Francisco lay a forbidding 1,000-mile expanse—Indian infested plains of Kansas and Nebraska, mountains of Colorado and Wyoming, and deserts of Utah and Nevada. At that time, men generally linked the two jagged edges of the nation by a circuitous 28-day route sailing from New York to Panama, traveling by mule train across the isthmus, then taking ship to San Francisco.

But the nation was growing. Men in the west sought closer contact with those in the east. So was born the Pony express to brave the wilds of the direct route, St. Joseph to San Francisco.

"On April 3, 1860, all was ready for a simultaneous start from the two ends of the line. From the east into St. Joseph puffed a railway train bearing special mail bags from New York. A waiting rider transferred them to his saddle and sped away to the west. For ten days and nights thereafter, horses' hoofs pounded constantly over the trail—now quietly in soft sands, now clattering across stony mountain passes, now echoing through deep canyons—until the mail arrived in San Francisco. It was done in a little over ten days. The next trip took two weeks, but later several trips were made in nine days.

"That same April 3, mail from San Francisco started eastward going to Sacramento by boat. There a daring rider lightened his saddle girths, strapped on the pouches, and was off. He covered the first 20 miles in 50 minutes, traveled 55 miles farther and relayed the bags to a waiting rider. The second rider part the summit of the Sierra Nevada, where the next man took up the ride. The first three men covered a total distance of 185 miles, part of which was through 30 feet of snow; they did it in 15 hours and 20 minutes! From there five others followed one another, galloping through Ruby valley, Deep Creek valley, Rush valley, and Camp Floyd to Salt Lake City. Eastward from the Mormon settlement the mail was hurried to Saint Joseph, where the town went wild with excitement over the successful undertaking.

"Incredible as it may seem, the quickest time ever made by the Pony express was in winter weather. The document transmitted was President Lincoln's inaugural message of March 4, 1861. It was borne over 2,000 miles in seven days and 17 hours, said to be the fastest long distance horseback riding ever done.

Five Dollars Per Letter.

"To maintain the speed of nearly 250 miles a day, there could be no excess weight carried. Preference was given to riders light as jockeys whose endurance and bravery were unquestioned. Their pouches were small, a bundle containing hundreds of communications often being no larger than an ordinary writing page. Each letter was written on the thinnest tissue paper—and for its transportation across the continent, five dollars was paid in advance. The large newspapers of the country furnished much of the business.

"A rider's wardrobe rested largely with his wits. To keep down weight, he carried generally only a revolver and a knife. He frequently relied on his feet-footed pony to outdistance his pursuers. Usually this could be done, unless, as happened sometimes, both rider and horse were pressed into double duty when the rider of the next stretch had been killed or injured."

But the nation was growing. Men in the west sought closer contact with those in the east. So was born the Pony express to brave the wilds of the direct route, St. Joseph to San Francisco.

Around this great white cross and altar, erected in Buenos Aires, many thousands of Roman Catholics from all parts of the world gathered for the outdoor ceremonies of the thirty-second Eucharistic congress.

Farmers Cheering as Bug Fights Bug

Medford, Ore.—Oregon orchardists are hopeful that the law of nature, survival of the fittest, will rid pear and apple trees of moths.

Larvae parasites have been liberated in orchards in this district by entomologists.

The parasite, a black, four-winged, wasp-like insect, lays its eggs in codling moth eggs. The egg hatches quickly and the grub enters the body of the young codling moth worm before it leaves its own egg.

Codling moths lay their eggs on apple or pear blossoms. The eggs hatch, with the worms eating into the growing fruit.

Specialist Says Hair Is Link of Man to Plants

Chicago.—Experiments through which he hopes to prove an evolutionary theory that the hair is a "missing link," which will show that animal life developed from plants, are being made by Paul A. Thomas, noted scalp specialist.

"Outward similarities in the functions and characteristics of the hair and plant foliage are remarkably numerous," Thomas said. "Similarities in the tiny tissue cells of human and animal hair and the foliage of some plants are equally striking."

"As foliage forms on the top of vegetables, in the air and light, the hair of man and animals grows on the part most exposed to the elements."

Thomas said that numerous tests have shown that the growth and development of hair and foliage are affected very much the same by the seasons and climate.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart.

For the first time since the federal reserve system was created a very real rift has developed between the federal reserve board and the federal advisory council, that group of business leaders which is supposed to act as intermediary between the reserve board and the public. The line of cleavage has developed over gold. How far it may go in disturbing faith in the federal reserve system as a banking structure is yet too early to tell, but I find in many quarters frequent questions as to the indication that politics may be creeping into government supervision of the country's largest banking unit, the federal reserve system.

The controversy had its origin in a statement of views delivered to the reserve board by the advisory council last month. Of course, the advisory council has no power and can only function in accordance with its name and give suggestions to the reserve board. Its influence nevertheless heretofore always has been an important factor in federal supervision of bank policies and any wide difference of opinion between the advisory council and the reserve board naturally is an influential factor in financial conditions.

The reserve board did not enjoy the statement of views from the advisory council, which was to the effect that "no real or permanent recovery" can be hoped for until the federal government returns to the gold standard for our currency. It said unequivocally that the currency and credit supply now existing is ample for all needs and that business cannot be expected to go forward until it has some assurance of a permanency in our currency. In other words, the advisory council takes no stock in the "baloney dollar" which has been so strongly advocated by Prof. George F. Warren, one of the important brain trust advisors to the President.

In addition to the council's criticism of the currency policy of the administration, it did not pull its punches with respect to the countless governmental experiments in business. I quote that paragraph of its statement:

"A serious factor of rapidly increasing importance is the tendency of business enterprises directly conducted by government agencies to reach out further and further into fields heretofore occupied by private capital, thereby destroying taxable values. The use of government money in competition with private business is not only paralyzing to private initiative but experience has amply demonstrated that it is costly, generally inefficient, and that its disastrous effects reach far beyond the limitation of the particular industry immediately affected."

The council had much more to say respecting other policies of the present administration. Fear Savings Threatened including what it described as a constant "threat of inflation," a condition that the council felt was stifling personal thrift. It asked directly whether there was any inducement for an individual to save or to buy life insurance and preserve earnings against the time when age will prevent continued production of income if there was an overhanging threat that all these savings may be wiped but by uncontrolled inflation of the currency.

Obviously, the federal reserve board was wrought up when the advisory council did the unusual thing of making public its views. Although the council withheld its statement until three weeks after the meeting at which it was drafted and given the reserve board, that lapse of time did not save the feeling of the board.

To show how it felt about the action of the advisory council, the board very promptly met and adopted a resolution by unanimous vote returning the council's statement to its secretary. This "spanking" has aroused a great many business leaders who have expressed fears that politics now is permeating the two federal agencies, for the advisory council is a body created by statute just as much as the federal reserve board. No one can tell what the outcropping of this situation may be. There are a number of men in the advisory council membership who have been outspoken in their support of President Roosevelt. Likewise, the President has named two members of the present reserve board, and one or two others of that group of seven are entirely in harmony with his economic policies. Consequently, there is much talk in Washington that the two schools of economic thought are engaged in a clash that may be serious in its effect on the supervision of the country's banking structure.

Whatever may be the attitude of the reserve board, I have found a considerable body of opinion holding that the advisory council was functioning within its rights in its own sphere when it made the statement to the board. As explained above, the board was under no compulsion to abide by the expressions from the advisory council, and if it elected to do so it could allow the council's views to be pigeon-holed and forgotten. But the point is that the council is representative of business and financial interests and therefore, when it considered federal policies it was speaking for that segment of our national life which otherwise had no means of making itself vocal, according to much opinion in the National Capital.

Further, the fact that the council took direct issue with the administration is being regarded in many quarters as a healthy sign. I believe there is no dispute about the right of individuals or groups to criticize the political party responsible for government management at any time and in the particular part of our commerce and industry, represented by the advisory council, feels dissatisfied with the gold policy, with the unbalanced budget, with the continual spending and experiments that have gone on, there is a great number of people who insist those views should be disclosed. Some students of economy and government here hold to the opinion that such expressions may have a tendency to lead to policies acceptable to both sides.

This phase of the situation may be linked to the efforts which the administration has been making to accomplish an understanding with some important business leaders through frequent conferences at the White House and through informal and indirect meetings outside of Washington. I refer to the dinners and meetings which have been held, many in New York, by Prof. Raymond Moley, formerly the number one member of the brain trust but now a magazine editor. Although White House sources deny any part in the Moley dinners, most Washington observers accept the denial with a grain of salt. They are convinced that Mr. Roosevelt is fully informed of the views expressed by individual business leaders in those meetings and that he is seeking some basis of understanding with business. It takes no stretch of the imagination then to connect these various happenings, despite the wounded feelings of the federal reserve board.

Henry P. Fletcher, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, Said the Other Day he Anticipated Little in Making It Losing Fight in Republican Membership in the House of Representatives.

He can see no method, he said, of defeating the disengagement of cash that has been going on in the Roosevelt administration.

The Republican chairman's statement followed compilation by the Democratic national committee of figures showing the amount of cash that has been paid out by the government through its various channels since President Roosevelt took the reins. The Democratic committee compiled a list of states and set off against each state the amount of money distributed therein for relief, agricultural benefits, public works construction and otherwise. Democratic campaigners were not invited to use these figures but Chairman Fletcher insisted that was the basis and the reason for their compilation. Mr. Fletcher proved his statement with hands full of clippings gathered from newspapers throughout the country, each one quoting some Democratic candidate who had informed an audience as to the benefactions of the federal government in their particular state.

The Republican chairman told newspaper correspondents in a press conference that he was not accusing the Roosevelt administration of buying votes but he added with candor that votes, naturally were going to go towards the source of money supplied. With several billions being distributed and a considerable amount being turned loose within the last month, Mr. Fletcher made a clean breast of his feelings that it was difficult to battle Santa Claus.

In connection with the Republican charges over cash distribution both of the national committees have been compiling statistics respecting registration of voters through the country in preparation for the election. These reports indicate that public interest is aroused far beyond the usual condition. Voters are awakened to the importance of these elections.

Obviously, there are many local issues to be fought out and settled by the ballot. The situation in California is illustrative of this. Never before, I am told, has California seen such a registration list as is made up there in anticipation of the vote on Upton Sinclair's program to "eliminate poverty in California."

"Agricultural areas, according to the registration lists, are prepared to support or upset policies of the agricultural adjustment administration and some industrial centers show figures indicating widespread interest in the vote that is naturally to have a bearing on the status of the national recovery administration. Many astute politicians are saying that the great registration makes guesses as to the outcome rather hazardous, while the students of government welcome the large polling lists as encouraging evidence of an awakened interest among the populace in this thing we call government.

It is proof, they say, that, whether right or wrong, more voters want their feeling known in the current election than hitherto has been the case except when the ballot involved the Presidency.

Why Liquid Laxatives Do You No Harm

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be regulated to suit individual need. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The right liquid laxative will bring a more natural movement, and with no discomfort at the time, or afterward.

The wrong cathartic may often do more harm than good.

An approved liquid laxative (one which is most widely used for both adults and children) is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a prescription. It is perfectly safe. Its laxative action is based on senna—a natural laxative. The bowels will not become dependent on this form of help, as they may do in the case of cathartics containing mineral drugs. Ask your druggist for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Soaring.

"She's crazy to live in a pent house." "Yes, she always did have high notions."

DRUGS?

Don't make the mistake of giving even a 14-year old boy strong medicines meant for adults.

Boys and girls who have reached their "teens" are not ready to be given powerful drugs!

It is not wise to give laxatives of adult strength to a child, just because you give them less frequently or in less amounts. Many stomach upsets and bowel troubles of growing children can be traced to this single mistake.

Use a liquid laxative containing senna (a natural laxative). California Syrup of Figs has the right amount for children's use, and this rich, fruity syrup does not harm or upset a child's system.

Give that headachy, bilious child a little of this gentle laxative when constipated, and a little less, if dose is repeated until bowels seem to be moving regularly and thoroughly without need of help.

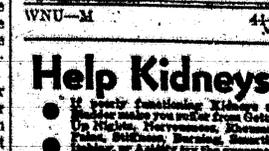

Get the true California Syrup of Figs containing senna and cascara, which will not weaken the bowels or irritate the kidneys. You'll soon have full evidence that it safely relieves constipation in children.

THE "LIQUID TEST." First: select a liquid laxative of the proper strength for children. Second: give the dose suited to the child's age. Third: reduce the dose, if repeated, until the bowels are moving without any help at all.

If you tire easily

Why not reason out the cause of this unnatural condition? Your first thought may be, "I must eat more." That's not all. You should enjoy what you do eat. Frequently, the blood cells are low... and this, perhaps, is what makes you feel weak. If this is your trouble the stomach may not be calling for sufficient food. Zest to eat may be lacking. But what a difference S.S.S. makes when taken just before meals. Just try it and notice how your appetite and digestion improve. S.S.S. stimulates the flow of gastric juices and also supplies the precious mineral elements so necessary in blood-cell and hemo-glo-bin up-building. Do try it. It may be the rallying you need to brush away present discouragement over your health condition.

Do not be misled by the efforts of a few unethical dealers who may suggest substitutes. You have a right to insist that S.S.S. be supplied you on request. Its long years of preference is your guarantee of satisfaction.

Help Kidneys

If your functioning kidneys and bladder make you suffer from Getting Up Night, Nervousness, Headache, Back Pain, Stiffness, Swelling, Burning, or Aching, try the Powerful Doctor's Prescription, Cyston. It will give you relief and restore your health. Only 75¢ at druggists.

Say Indians Threaten Last of Bald Eagles

Extinction Feared by Cornell University Expert.

Ithaca, N. Y.—The threatened extinction of bald eagles by Indians who use the wings and tails of the birds for commercial purposes was declared a possibility by Dr. George N. Sutton, curator of birds, at Cornell university, who has just returned from an expedition to the British Columbia wilds.

Dr. Sutton, who was accompanied by John Bonner Semple of Howickley, Ia., the financial sponsor of the expedition, reports that Knights Inlet, British Columbia, is an amazing rendezvous for bald eagles. While eagles are common along the entire British Columbia coast, there is a much heavier concentration at this spot. The Indians have been killing large numbers of them. They sell the wings and tails to the plains Indians at 51 a wing and 50 cents a tail.

"Such destruction of eagles, which obviously is by this time a more or less commercial enterprise," said Dr. Sutton, "should stop in spite of the fact that eagles are reputed to kill ducks of several species in British Columbia waters.

"Even more alarming to me," he continued, "was the report concerning the killing of trumpeter swans in the same region. On good authority, we learned that the Indians were killing these magnificent and exceedingly rare birds wantonly. We spoke to a man in Port Hardy, Vancouver island, who had himself seen a pile of sixty trumpeter swans killed within a short time.

"We questioned our informant closely and there was little doubt that the birds were the large trumpeters, and not the smaller, much commoner whistlers."

Sea Lion Delays Train; Engineer Is Used to It

Santa Ana, Calif.—Flapping sedately along the cross-ties, a sea lion held up a northbound Southern Pacific local several minutes. L. A. Litorer, engineer, was warned of the sea lion's presence as he approached San Clemente. He sighted it, a few miles north, idling by the track and occasionally rearing its head to bark at motorists on a nearby highway. Repeated hoots from the whistle finally moved the sea lion off the tracks. Litorer's train had been delayed before, once by an elephant, and another time by an ostrich.

Indian Tapestry Tells of Custer's Last Fight

Miles City, Mont.—The most unusual description of the Custer massacre, which occurred near here, is in the possession of Chief One-Bull, nephew of Sitting Bull, Custer's nemesis.

Now in his eighties, One-Bull has completed weaving in cloth the complete story of the massacre.

One-Bull visited here recently and explained that he wove the tapestry because he was unable to speak enough English to answer many queries he received about the battle in which he participated.

Site of Patriot's Burial Found, Solving Mystery

Philadelphia.—The mystery of where Francis Hopkinson, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, was buried, has been solved.

Bones unearthed in the graveyard of the old Christ church here last December are those of Hopkinson, it has been revealed by Dr. Oscar V. Batson, professor of anatomy at the University of Pennsylvania.

"The probable height, weight and age of the man whose bones these are and the profile of the skull all accord with what is known about the Revolutionary war patriot's stature and looks at the time of his death in 1791," Doctor Batson said.

The bones were unearthed when Dr. Charles Penrose Keith, of the church vestry, obtained permission to dig in a plot where the body of Elizabeth Conde, Hopkinson's daughter, was buried. The digging led to the skeleton of a man.

Other Revolutionary war heroes buried in the old Christ church cemetery are Benjamin Franklin, Dr. Benjamin Rush, George Ross and Joseph Hewes, all signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Hopkinson was born in Philadelphia in 1737. He was the first student ever enrolled in the College of Philadelphia, now the University of Pennsylvania.

French Writer Declares Gorilla Much Maligned

Paris.—In a Paris review, Andre Demaison, French writer and authority on the subject of African wild beasts, declares that the gorilla has been much maligned in literature.

Instead of being the ferocious, chest-beating terror of the jungle that it is often depicted, M. Demaison says that the natives of Africa regard it as a beast of calm and peaceful temperament; and that they are not as a rule frightened by the presence of a gorilla. Its terrific muscular strength and the fact that it is given to fits of violent rage are responsible for its reputation.

The gorilla, says M. Demaison, lives quietly with its family. It eats fruits and tender leaves and destroys wide areas of vegetation in the search of food, and for that reason is obliged to keep traveling.

ROBBERS' ROOST

SYNOPSIS

Jim Wall, young cowpuncher from Wyoming, seeks a new field in Utah. He meets Hank Hays, who tells him he is working for an Englishman, Herrick. Hays and others are plotting to steal their employer's cattle and money. With Hays, Jim Wall goes to Herrick's ranch. Hays and his lieutenants drive off a bunch of cattle. Haysman is Hays' rival among the cattle rustlers. Jim is sent to meet Miss Herrick. Hays betrays unusual interest in the girl's coming. Wall finds himself falling in love with Helen, and he fears Hays has designs on the girl. Jim coaches her in riding western style, and finally kisses her. She is angry and dismises Jim, but Hays' men return from the drive, having sold the cattle and brought back the money. A quick getaway is imperative. Hays tells them to go on ahead, that he will join them. He comes with Helen Herrick—captivity. Hays explains that he stole Helen for ransom. Realizing that Helen will be worse off if she falls into Haysman's clutches, Jim Wall does nothing. Haysman's riders come in pursuit. Hays leads the gang into a canyon. One of Hays' gang, wounded with Haysman, tells Jim that Hays has held out some of the money he stole from Herrick.

"Yes, and you fellows saw only a ghost of the money Hays got from the Herricks," retorted Jim, divining the moment for revelation had come.

An angry roar arose. Smoky threw up his hands and left the camp fire. Then Jim, in brief, cold terms, exposed the machinations of their chief. After the first outburst they accepted the disclosure in astounded and ominous silence. Jim passed off into the darkness.

Some time during the night he was awakened. As he lay there, eyes open, a soft hand touched his cheek and a whisper brought him wide awake, transfixed and thrilling.

"Jim! . . . Wake up. It is I!"

Helen knelt beside him. Jim sat up with a violent start.

"You . . . What is it? Has that devil . . ."

"Hush! Not so loud. Nothing has happened. . . . But I couldn't sleep—and I must talk to you—or go out of my mind."

In the starlight her face had the same pearl-white tint as the clouds.

"All right, talk—but it's risky," he whispered huskily. His hand rested upon the blanket.

She bent lower, so that her face was closer, and she could whisper very softly:

"First I want to tell you how cruelly it has come home to me—my ignorance, my failure to believe and trust you, even after you—so rudely insulted me that day up on the mountain trail. If I had only had faith in you then! It's too late. But I want you to know I have the faith now. Only the fear and the suspense are wearing me out."

"But you are well—all right still? He has not harmed you?"

"No, he has not harmed me, and I am not ill. I'm losing flesh because I can't eat. But that's nothing. . . . Lately I don't sleep because I'm horribly afraid he will come—and smother me—or choke me—so I can't cry out. I've slept some in the daytime. . . . Jim, the thing is I—can't stand it much longer. I think I frightened him. But I can see—I can feel—Oh, Jim, for God's sake, do something to end—this horror—"

She leaned or fell forward in the weakness of the moment, her head against him. He stroked it gently, his reaction as far from that passionate and mocking embrace at Star ranch as could have been possible.

"Helen, don't—give up," he replied. "You have been brave. And it has gone—better than we could hope. . . . Only a little while longer!"

"We might steal away—now."

"Yes. I've thought of that. But only to get lost and starve—or die of thirst in these brakes."

"That almost—would be better—for me."

"If you can't stick it out we'll plan and go—any tomorrow night. We must have food, horses. . . . It's only honest, though, to tell you the chances are a hundred to one against us. We've got an even break if we wait."

"How can you—think that?"

"This gang is about ready to go up in smoke. There'll be a terrible fight. Hays surely will be killed. And just as surely, more than he—that will leave a proposition I can handle without risk to you."

"Even then—we still have to find a way out of this awful place."

"Yes, but I'd have time—and I could pack water and food. Helen, trust me. It's the best plan."

"If you take me back to my brother, I'll give you the ransom."

"Don't insult me," he replied, bitterly.

At that she drew up suddenly, and threw her hair back from her face. "Forgive me. . . . You see, I have lost my mind. That never occurred to me before. But I'll reward you in some way."

"To have saved you will be all the reward I ask—and more than I deserve. . . . You have forgotten that I love you."

"Yes—I had," she whispered. Her great eyes studied him in the starlight as if the fact had a vastly different significance here than it had had at Star ranch.

Suddenly she stiffened, no doubt at the slight sound that had checked her speech. She put a hand over his lips and stared at him with wide vague eyes.

Over her shoulder Jim's eye was arrested by a glint of starlight upon a bright object on the ground. Above and behind it a shape darker than the dark background, gradually took the outline of a man on hands and knees.

Cold terror assailed Jim Wall, despite his iron nerve. That was Hays crawling upon them with a gun in his hand.

A bursting tide of blood through Jim's veins paralleled the lightning flash of his thoughts. Death for both of them was terribly close. His gun was under his pillow. Helen knelt between him and the robber. A move of even the slightest kind would be fatal. Cunning must take precedence of action.

"It's Hays," he whispered, scarcely audibly. "Follow me—now." Then, exerting all his will to speak naturally, he said aloud: "No, Miss Herrick, I'm sorry, but I can't oblige you. I don't approve of Hays' kidnapping you, but it's done. And I'm a member of his band. I would not think of going against him, let alone trying to run off with you."

"There was a tense silence, fraught with much apprehension for Jim. Would she be able to play up to him? There was just a chance that Hays had not heard any of their whispers.

"The Thing is—Boss—Will We Get It?"

In which case it was possible to deceive him. Helen comprehended, and was Jim Wall's privilege then to see the reaction of a woman at a perilous moment.

"I'll give you the ransom money," she said, quite clearly, and certainly most persuasively. "My brother will reward you otherwise."

"You can't bribe me," he rejoined. "And I wouldn't advise you to try it on Smoky or any of the others."

"Hays may have had only money in his mind at first, but now—"

"Don't move, Jim!" came a low, hard voice from the shadow.

Helen gave a little gasp and sagged on her knees. Jim waited a moment. "I won't, Hank," he replied.

Then Hays' tall form loomed black above the rise of ground. He strode forward. If he had breathed his gun, Jim would have made short work of that interview. But he held it half leveled, glancing darkly in the starlight.

The robber chief gazed down upon Jim and Helen. His features were indistinguishable, but the poise of his head was expressive enough. Still Jim sensed that he had been misled.

"You cat!" he declared, roughly. "If I catch you again—tryin' to bribe any of my outfit—I'll treat you so you won't want to go back to your baby-faced brother. . . . Now you git to your tent!"

Helen rose unsteadily and vanished in the gloom.

"Jim Wall, you ain't been with me long, an' I don't know you, but I'm takin' this deal to heart," Hays said slowly. "I'm much obliged. I reckon you're the only man in the outfit who could of withstood that woman."

"No, you're wrong Hank. Smoky wouldn't have listened to her. And I'm sure the others would have stood pat."

"My faith was near gone."

"That's in you, Hank. You've no call to lose it. You've about split your gang over this woman."

"Wal, I'm not askin' judgments from you or any of the outfit," growled the chief, gloomily. "You'll all be good, an' glad to git your share of the ransom."

"The thing is—boss—will we get it?"

Hays made a violent move like a striking snake. "What you mean by that?"

"I'm askin' you."

"Ain't you insinuatin' you mightn't git yours?" demanded Hays.

"No. You might say I was askin' for all of us" replied Jim curtly.

"Wax, I'll git the outfit together an' do some askin' myself."

"It's a good idea. It might prevent the split—provided you divide the money you stole from Herrick."

"I'll wring that white cat's neck" hissed the robber.

"You're wrong boss. She didn't tell me. She doesn't know you robbed her brother. Sparrow confessed before he died."

Hays swore a mighty oath. "An' he squealed?"

"Yes. To Smoky an' me. We kept it secret until we had to tell. They knew somethin' was wrong."

"All the time you knowed!" There was something pathetic in the fallen chief's shame and amazement. By this time he seemed to realize his crime.

"You see, Hank, how your outfit has stood by you, even in your guilt."

"Ahh! . . . If it ain't too late—I'll make amends," he rejoined hoarsely, and stalked away in the darkness.

Jim lay back on his blankets with a weight of oppression removed. He had saved himself for the hour, but what would the outcome be?

He had breakfast before the other men were up. With rifle in hand he headed toward the western exit.

The sun was still beneath the rim of the escarpments, in the east, but its golden approach was heralded by a magnificent glory of red and gold.

Loneliness was paramount. There was no sound—only an immense silence. No life at all! Not a winged creature hovering over that ghastly region! But over this scene of desolation slowly spread the solemn blight of heating, blazing sun, soon to mantle all in illusive copper haze.

Before that hour arrived, Jim Wall took up the field glass. Below in the camp the men were lazily stirring to a late breakfast. The door of the cabin was open. A glint of gold crossed the dark aperture. Then the tall form of Hays stalked out. He yawned. He stretched wide his long arms. His ruddy face gleamed in the glass to that slight. Wall's whole being leaped.

"By heaven!" his voice rang out. "Hays, that's your last morning's stretch. . . . Before this day's done you'll stretch forever!"

Let his men have their hour, thought Jim darkly, but if they did not mete out justice to their chief the end was nevertheless fixed and unalterable.

Jim settled back and raised his fieldglass more from habit than any semblance of the old watchfulness. There was nothing to see but the stark denudation of the brakes.

Suddenly into Jim's magnified circle of vision crept dark objects—a long line of them.

He was so startled that the glass wavered out of line. He moved it to and fro, searching. What could that have been? An error of sight, a line of cedars, a conception of idle mind!

"There!" he breathed. He had caught it again. Not cedars—not brush, but moving objects! . . . "By heaven!" he muttered. "Am I dotty?"

Horses! A line of dark horses! His straining eyes blurred. He lowered the glass with shaking hands. "So help me—it looks like riders!"

A third time Jim caught the objects. He froze the glass on them. Horses and riders—horses with packs! A bursting gush of hot blood ran all through him. It looked like Haysman's outfit, at least three miles away, approaching slowly by a route far to the south of that over which Hays had come.

"About three miles," muttered Jim. "Coming slow. They're lost. . . . But that wash they're in heads into the Hays trail. . . . If they strike that they'll come fast. Not enough rain yet to wash out our tracks. We've not time to pack and ride out. . . . By thunder, they've cornered us! Now, Hank Hays—"

Jim took one more, straining look. No hope! It was a big outfit and not traveling so slowly, either. The leader bestrode a black horse. Jim remembered that horse. Snatching up his rifle he slung the field-glass over his shoulder and ran down off the bluff to the camp.

To his profound amazement he espied Hays bound hand and foot, with a stick behind him and through his elbows. The robber sat in an uncomfortable posture against the woodpile. In a second Jim saw that Hays had been gagged and his face was so contorted by rage that it appeared scarcely human.

"What's up!" cried Jim, breaking out of his bewilderment.

Hays gave vent to an inarticulate sound, but it was expressive. Jim wheeled to stalk under the shack, his hand on his gun, as if he half expected Haysman to have arrived before him. To his further amazement Miss Herrick was sitting at the rude table, eating breakfast. A big gun, that Jim recognized as Hays' property, lay conspicuously in front of her. Happy Jack, whistling as usual, was serving her.

"What does this mean?" demanded Jim.

"Ask the men," she replied, curtly. Outside and below the shack sat Smoky on a rock, with the others standing near.

"Maw'nin', Jim," drawled Smoky, with a grin. "You see we've got a new chief."

"Who hawg-tied the boss?"

"Reckon I did—with a little help."

"What for?"

"D—n' if I know. Our lady prisoner made me do it."

"Miss Herrick forced you to tie Hays up?" queried Jim, trying to conceal his exultation.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By REV. F. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, and Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for November 11 THE CHRISTIAN CITIZEN

LESSON TEXT—Galatians 6:13-18.

GOLDEN TEXT—Then said Jesus unto him. Put up again thy sword into his place: for all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword.—Matthew 26:52.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Law in One Word.

UNIT TOPIC—God's One Law.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Be a Peacemaker.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Thinking Peace Instead of War.

Doubtless the thought of the lesson committee was to take advantage of this memorial occasion to inculcate in the hearts of the youth the spirit of peace which grows out of a heart of love. It should be borne in mind that this value can only be a practical reality, as the people are brought into a saving knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ. Love is the fruit of the Spirit made operative in the heart of the regenerate.

Paul, having shown in chapters three and four of this epistle that the believer is free from the law as a means of justification, in our present lesson makes the practical application of the doctrine. The divine method of doing away with war is to secure the regeneration of individuals.

I. Christian Freedom (vv. 13-15).

1. It is not an occasion to the flesh (v. 13). Liberty is not license. The notion that when one is free from the law he is free from constraint is wickedly erroneous. License of the flesh means not merely the indulgence of the flesh in actual sinning, but in the expression of a self-centered life.

2. By love serve one another (vv. 13a-15).

Freedom from the Mosaic law means slavery to the law of love. Love thus becomes the fulfillment of the law:

II. Walking in the Spirit (vv. 16-18).

This discloses the secret of how a life of service to another can be lived. Walking in the Spirit results in:

1. Loving service to others (v. 13).

2. Victory over the flesh (vv. 16, 17).

By flesh is meant the corrupt nature of man expressing itself in the realm of sense and self. The renewed man has two natures, between which is going on a mortal conflict. The Christian must choose between good and evil. Notwithstanding the reality of this deadly conflict, victory is sure if one chooses the good.

III. The Works of the Flesh (vv. 19-21).

By the works of the flesh is meant the operation of the carnal nature. The one who chooses to live according to the impulses and desires of his natural heart will be practicing the following sins:

1. Sensuality (v. 19).

The sins enumerated here are practiced in the body, and are:

a. Fornication (the word adultery is omitted from the best manuscripts). Fornication includes all sexual sins in the married and unmarried state. b. Uncleanness, which includes all sensual sins, open or secret, in thought or deed. c. Lasciviousness, which means the wanton, reckless indulgence in the shameful practices of the flesh.

2. Irrigation (v. 20). These acts take place in the realm of the spirit, and are a. Idolatry, the worshiping of idols. b. Witchcraft or sorcery, all dealing with the occult, such as magical arts, spiritism, necromancy.

3. Sins of the temper (vv. 20-21). These take place in the sphere of the mind, and are a. Hatred. b. Variance, including all strife and contentions. c. Emulations, including all types of jealousy. d. Wrath, meaning bursts of passion. e. Seditions, which mean factions in the state. f. Heresies, meaning factions in the church. g. Envyings. h. Murders.

4. Sins of excess (v. 21). a. Drunkenness, indulgence in intoxicating liquors. b. Revellings. Acts of dissipation under the influence of liquor.

All who practice such sins shall be excluded from the Kingdom of God (I Cor. 6:10).

SEEMS SOLOMON WAS CORRECT IN FAMOUS COMMENT

Three important announcements in the field of anthropology prove beyond a doubt the truism in Solomon's remark that "There's nothing new under the sun."

From such distant parts of the world as Colorado, Alaska and Germany come these so-called "startling" finds. A Field museum party uncovers a large "kiva" of 1,000 years ago in Colorado and Doctor Martin, leader of the party, says that these kivas, or rooms, must have been built for ceremonial uses. There follows the assumption that they were used for meetings of secret societies of men. Shades of the Klan! So conventions and parades and costumes were also a part of prehistoric man's all for nocturnal freedom!

In Kodiak, Alaska, Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, curator of physical anthropology of the Smithsonian, believes that he has at last found a solution to the enigma of "nest burials." He has long pondered a reason for a cultured people burying their dead in heaps without regard to sex or age and with no sign of mortuary ceremony. In the cracked skulls of the skeletons and in other evident signs of combat, he finds the clew. 'Tis la guerre! And are we mystified at such massacres on the part of relatively civilized people?—In Flanders fields the poppies blow, between the crosses, row on row.

And in Germany, Prof. Johannes Paveigt, director of the Geological-Paleontological institute of Halle university, finds it of sufficient novelty to announce that 25,000,000 years ago drought brought death to herds of strange wild beasts. Our western farmers will not question his discovery.

One marvels at the perennial enthusiasm of leaders of archeological explorations. There is the unshakable faith that transcends all precedence. To wander thousands of miles in time and space and millions of years in time is undoubtedly fascinating. But what do we find that Solomon did not know?—Washington Post.

Now Science Explains Why So Many People Past 40 Feel That They're Slipping Losing Their "Grip" on Things

Well, scientists say the cause of all this, in a great many cases, is simply an acid condition of the stomach. Nothing more.

All you have to do is to neutralize the excess stomach acidity.

When you have one of these acid stomach upsets, take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals and before going to bed. That's all!

Try this. Soon you'll feel like another person! Take either the familiar liquid "PHILLIPS'" or the convenient new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM: Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at all drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of one teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

The County Election

As far as the county election is concerned, the same old story of two years ago must be repeated. All candidates on the Democratic ticket were elected with the exception of Ernest Key, county clerk, Republican, who was elected for a second term. See tabulation on page 1.

It is in keeping with good sportsmanship to congratulate the winners and here goes, folks, we offer our congratulations.

The candidates on the Republican ticket worked hard and put up a clean campaign. In that manner, they held the esteem of their opponents. At times when false rumors were started by mischief-makers, such things were immediately stopped and did no damage.

For the candidates on the opposition ticket, we hold the most friendly feeling which is our pleasant duty and what is justly due them. While we fought our political battles, we did not forget that we were friends and neighbors.

Now that it is all over, we will turn our attention to catching up with our work and getting out our guns and a hooting enough crowd to do us for the remainder of the week.

We have returns from county precincts except Joneta. They sent the box, but without any information to give us to indicate how the vote went. Consequently, we must wait until the commissioners meet next Monday to canvass the returns.

At the present writing, Senator Bronson Cutting has a majority of 1090 votes, over Dennis Chavez, but that lead has failed to benefit other candidates on the state Republican ticket.

FINDS BANKS WILLING, BORROWERS CAUTIOUS

Prominent Writer Refutes Statements Bankers Are Refusing Sound Loans—Describes Reasons for Reduced Volume of Credit.

FIGURES supplied by typical, well-managed banks in different parts of the country show that a high proportion of all applications for loans have been granted in the past year or two, says Albert W. Atwood in a recent article in The Saturday Evening Post on "The Idle Dollar." Excerpts from Mr. Atwood's article follow:

"Frequently banks state that as high as 90 per cent of all such applications are granted and for from 80 to 75 per cent of the amount asked for. Allowing that the bankers make these figures as favorable to their own case as possible, it seems strange that we are told again and again that banks are not lending at all.

"If we take into account the whole class of regular bank borrowers, the plain fact is very few want to borrow yet. For the word 'borrow' is merely another name for the word 'debt,' and we face a great world-wide drive to get out of debt.

"An experienced small-city banker, asked if banks were lending freely enough, wisely replied: 'The really good borrower does not wish to borrow now. In fact, I think our customers are making a remarkably fine showing in paying off their loans, especially loans of long standing.'

The Shrinkage of Credit

"Or if we think of business concerns rather than of individuals, it is conservative to say that those able to maintain high credit ratings have been mostly the ones able to maintain ample cash resources and, therefore, least in need of credit. As prices and costs fell, many concerns found themselves with plenty of cash because of the shrinkage in operations. Cash resources were still further swollen by reduced dividends, and smaller inventories made bank borrowings still less necessary.

"Expressed in another way, banks cannot expand credit, they cannot make loans, unless there is a demand for the same. Fundamentally, the business transaction makes the loan, the loan does not make the transaction. It is a mistake to try to force upon business organizations funds which they do not need. Under the circumstances the 'idle dollar' is a natural and proper enough phenomenon. A demand for credit is difficult to create artificially, and there is always danger in so doing.

"Banks must be liquid enough at all times to pay depositors. The idea of a commercial loan is that it represents a self-liquidating process in business. If the banker makes only those advances that are inherently sound, and selects his maturities wisely, he will have incoming funds to meet demands.

Government Lending

"As everybody knows, the Government has vast lending agencies, for home owners, farmers, and the like. These have nothing to do with the subject of this article, except that all such Government operations would be impossible if the banks did not lend the Government money for the purpose.

"No one can set a time when borrowing will be resumed. But it will come when men once more feel that conditions are sufficiently settled to warrant them in taking chances, in entering upon deals, and in trying to make money."

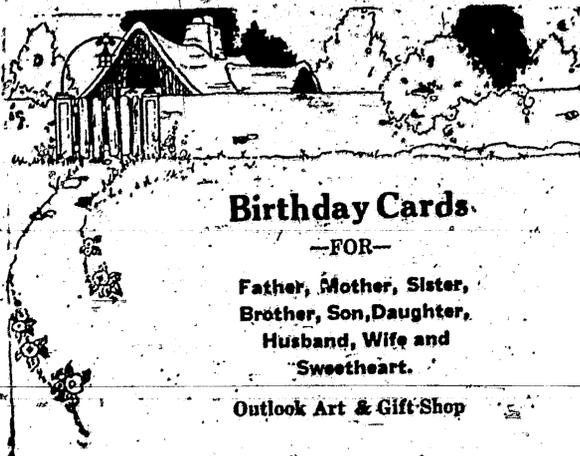

Mr. Atwood says that it may be that the banks are overcautious now, just as they were overconfident in 1929, but calls attention to the fact that until a little more than a year ago banks were falling partly because they had loaned too freely, and were being criticized right and left for precisely that fault. He adds:

"Indeed, the banks which had been cautious in their lending policy came through the crisis safely. Under such conditions it is utterly useless to criticize banks for not making loans. After the experience they had for several years, especially in 1932 and 1933, it is only natural that they should relax their requirements very slowly and gradually.

"Unfortunately, many of the applications for loans are not from people who want temporary banking accommodation for three or six months and are quite able to meet their maturity dates, but are from those who really need permanent capital. They are busted and they want someone to stake them to a new start. What they really seek is a partner to furnish them with long-time capital. But depositors insist upon being paid on demand, and, therefore, it is a grave question whether banks should tie up their funds for any length of time."

HOW ONE FARMER HELPED HIMSELF

A farmer accustomed to keeping records found that it cost $16.50 to produce an acre of corn. His average yield was 33 bushels, selling for 50 cents per bushel. On this basis he was producing without either profit or loss. A study of his costs indicated means by which the yields might be increased without proportional expenses. By making use of facts discovered at the Experiment Stations, the farmer secured an increased yield of four and one-half bushels per acre (37 1/2 bushels, instead of 33). By increasing the yield and holding down expenses, this farmer was able to make a profit of six cents per bushel.

IRON DEMANDED BY BLOOD CELLS

Certain Foods Will Give You
Necessary Supply.

By EDITH M. BARBER

HAVE you had your iron today and yesterday and the day before? If you habitually have been using eggs, spinach, potatoes, whole grain cereals or bran, dates, prunes, beans, particularly dried beans, peas, lentils, nuts, meat, especially kidneys and liver, fish and oysters, and if you have been using molasses, you have been getting a full supply of iron. Other fruits and vegetables contain enough iron to make them valuable. A very tiny amount of iron by weight is needed, daily, but lacking that minute quantity, every cell of the body, including the red blood cells, is being deprived of an essential.

We use iron with every breath we take and as very little can be stored from day to day, we must renew our supply regularly. To fully utilize iron, copper, one of the other minerals, and possibly manganese, must be present. Fortunately we find that most foods which supply iron have these other materials in varying amounts.

It is also possible for the body to make use of iron in an inorganic form so that now doctors prescribe for persons who show an anemia, a scientific iron "tonic." To prevent this condition is of course to make sure that we get a liberal supply of food high in iron in our daily diet, and the best way to do that is to follow that statement which I have made so often in this column—a good varied diet for the sake of well being.

Spinach Salad.
2 cups cooked spinach.
2 hard cooked eggs.
French dressing.
Chop the cooked spinach. Chop separately the whites and the yolks and arrange them, mixed in little mounds, on the spinach. Pour a well-seasoned french dressing over the salad and garnish with lettuce leaves.

Liver and Mushrooms.
1 pound beef or pork liver
2 tablespoons chopped onion
3 tablespoons dripping
3 tablespoons flour
1/4 cup sour cream
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 cup mushroom or meat stock
1 cup mushrooms

Wipe liver, remove skin and cut into cubes. Brown with onion in the hot fat and cook gently for five minutes. Stir in flour and add cream, seasonings, stock and mushrooms. Cook until sauce thickens. Add more liquid if needed. Serve in large cream puff or on toast as a main course for a luncheon.

Egg and Ham Timbales.

Ohio Farmers Happy Over Year's Returns

Washington, Ohio.—Things aren't gloomy on all farms nowadays. A Fayette county farmer declared recently: "My income from the farm this year is going to be much more than it has been in the last three years combined."
"I just banked a check for $2,410, which I got from 171 head of hogs that averaged more than 200 pounds. This is the first worthwhile check I have received from the farm in the last three years. The farm is showing a real profit now," he beamed.

HOW IT STARTED

By JEAN NEWTON

"Sea-Dog"

ONE anxious to know, seeks the origin of the term "sea-dog." "I have heard it used," he says, "with absolutely no intention of offense, even of officers in the navy."

True. While the term can hardly be described as elegant, there is nothing undignified in its significance, and it has the sanction of common usage to indicate simply one who has followed the sea for years and loves it to the extent of not feeling at home on land.

The derivation of the term lies in the comparison of man's love of and faithfulness to his calling on the sea with the faithfulness to himself of man's best friend, the dog.

Federal Prison Cells

Are Made Impregnable
Washington.—When Uncle Sam slaps a criminal in a new federal prison cell, the desperado is behind bars that really are bars.

The government now is using tool-proof steel for its cells and a recent series of tests at the new Lewisburg, Pa., federal penitentiary show beyond all doubt that the bars cannot be cut by hacksaws or other tools that might be slipped to inmates.

This steel was used in construction of cells at Lewisburg and also at the Alcatraz island penitentiary in San Francisco bay where the most desperate federal prisoners soon are to be incarcerated.

The warden of Lewisburg sent Federal Prison Director Bates a sample of the tool-proof steel bars which had been attacked experimentally with half a dozen tools that would easily cut through ordinary steel. The bar was little more than scratched.

Hacksaws bit slightly into the outside layer, but their teeth were worn off by the inner core of especially hardened metal. Brand-new files became smooth and useless after a few strokes. Even a metal lathe, which no prisoner could smuggle into a cell, was tried and with no result. Acid, too, proved futile.

Fire Fighting by Plane

With Chemicals Likely
Syracuse.—Chemical compounds may be used in the future for extinguishing forest fires. The opportunity for the employment of chemicals in this field may become much broader than has ever been possible in combating other types of fires, says the New York State College of Forestry. The use of just-chemical combinations from the air eventually may be developed which would probably be impracticable in connection with building conflagrations in city or country unless the fire covered an extensive area.

It is known that efficient dust-mixtures have been developed which can be applied from an airplane and that these dust combinations can be produced in commercial quantities at fairly reasonable prices. Moreover, the needed materials can be stored at convenient points available for use on short notice.

Kansas County Buys Box Cars for Needy Families

Russell Springs, Kan.—Five box cars have been purchased by Logan county authorities, who plan to place them on a tract of land to make homes for destitute families. Each area will have space for a garden, a milk cow and chickens. A central water supply system will irrigate the five tracts.

Adventure Is Ended, Back to Pop

When Ben and Joe Adamowicz of Brooklyn returned from Europe the other day not one newspaper man was on hand to welcome them and listen to their stories of their great adventure—an airplane flight from New York to Warsaw, Poland. So Ben and Joe quietly resumed their soda pop business. They sold their plane in Warsaw for $22,000.

Lights of New York

By L. L. STEVENSON

The old assay office on Wall street next to the old sub-Treasury building and just across the street from the Banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co. is once again a busy place. Two years ago, the government closed it up and moved into a new assay office at Coenties Slip and Allen street which in turn became the big gold buying place of the East. There, instead of on Wall street, gold dust, bullion, trinkets and heirlooms are now being turned into ingots which are stored away in dark vaults. But the old assay office has taken on new life just the same. The cause is the silver order of President Roosevelt. For weeks, silver has been pouring in so rapidly that it is believed the vaults will be filled. In that event, the vaults of the old sub-Treasury building, unused for many years, will be put into service again.

In order to put the old assay office back into use, the government had to cancel a sale option held by the 40 Wall Street corporation which planned to tear down the four-story stone structure. Some time ago, the government itself did some wrecking in the old assay office. When the assay office was moved, the hard maple floors in the gold working rooms were taken up, cut into lengths and burned. Where the floors were concrete, they were broken with pneumatic drills and crushed into powder. Even the furniture was burned. The ashes and concrete powder were not thrown away. They were forced to give up the gold they had accumulated in the course of years. The yield was more than $88,000.

That piano recital to be given by Miss Anderson, vocalist of the Hotel McAlpin orchestra, interests me. Two years ago, Miss Anderson, then beginning a career as a concert pianist, learned that a childhood injury to one of her hands made it impossible for her to acquire a technique in keeping with her feeling and understanding of music. Rather than be an ordinary artist, she underwent an operation. It cleared the defect but left her fingers too weak for the strain of concert programs. So for months now, she has been strengthening them by practicing day after day, meanwhile supporting herself by singing popular songs. And that recital will decide whether or not she will play the classic on the piano or continue to sing the output of Tin Pan Alley.

A buffalo bull, born and bred in the United States, was recently sent to Poland by Dr. Reid Blair, director of the New York Zoological society, as a gesture of good will. Bison were once plentiful in that country but before and during the World war, they were slaughtered by the thousands and in 1920, there were only two specimens in the Bialowicza, the Polish national park. Now there are 14. The American gift is looked on as important.

since there is a legend that if the zebu, or European bison, continues to live in Poland, the country will prosper and its absence means a decline of the nation.

Sidney Cropsey, an architect, has been having trouble for the last 18 years. He has the face, figure, the embarrassed smile and the gestures of Herbert Hoover and autograph seekers continue to pursue him and refuse to accept his explanation that he is not the former President. His attention was first called to the close resemblance 18 years ago when he was on the Maine, near Quebec, and a young woman who had been a Hoover employee in Belgium, rushed up and greeted him. There is one difference. He is seven years younger than the ex-President and his hair is brown with no gray.

Trade in Farm Products at School Restaurant

Ojus, Fla.—"May I trade in three carrots for a piece of cherry pie?" This and many similar questions will be asked this fall in the Ojus school cafeteria.

A plan by which school children may trade in home-grown vegetables and farm products for hot lunches has been worked out by Mrs. Ailse Tyree, Dade county home economics supervisor.

The plan, she explains, will insure against malnutrition among students and in addition provide the school cafeteria with vegetables for the lunches.

County educational authorities were so delighted over the plan that they will extend it to other rural schools, if it proves successful.

Box Constrictor Not Poisonous
Box constrictors are not poisonous. They are harmless until they become large enough to crush their prey. The highly developed muscles make the snake appear much leaner and higher from the ground than ordinary reptiles. Fully grown box constrictors sometimes exceed 30 feet in length and are one of the most dangerous of jungle creatures. Like all constrictors, they swallow their food whole and digest it at their leisure.

Makes Impression

PATTERN 9040

This frock has been designed upon the principle that one should always leave a good impression behind one. Look at the little sketch of the lady walking away. Hasn't she saved the prettiest part of her frock to show us last? See how clearly the ends of the combination sleeves and yoke knot at the neck! And don't you like the bow at the waistline? It is a divine little frock in plaid or flowered fabric, but the woman who never wears a fancy fabric can make it up in a plain one and be delighted with it. And the making is surprisingly easy.

Pattern 9040 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3 1/2 yards 56-inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth street, New York.

Cargo of Licorice Arrives From Soviet Russia

Here, in Philadelphia, a cargo of licorice valued at $400,000 is being unloaded from a Soviet Russian steamer, being the first cargo of the kind to arrive in America from Russia. Both men and women made up the crew of the boat.

Tunic Versus Short Jacket Effects

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

RUMOR has become fact. The tunic, so long in promise according to fashion-forecasters, has at last arrived. In full force, too! It is an endless procession of tunics that is descending upon us. One cannot move in fashion's realm without encountering tunics of every description along the way. From strictly tailored to the glittering, gorgeous sort there's a tunic for every occasion.

Wherefore, you can do no smarter than to have your newer costume, be it for street, campus, office or school, for dressy afternoon or for glamorous evening wear, fashioned tunic-wise.

For practical hours your trend, your light wool, your sturdy velveteen tunic should be straight, slim and strictly tailored to the point of austerity. To be ultra chic you might make it up in the new Concast manner with braid and buttons, fur bandings, wide belt, metal trappings and other revealing touches of Italian influence.

Tunics take on a somewhat dresier air when they go forth to afternoon social gatherings. One of the newest ideas is the tunic manipulated with little fan pleatings and flares about its hemline to ease it up a bit. This same is frequently styled of light woolen with contrasting sleeves often on full bishop lines and, like as not, sheer to the point of transparency. Often these contrasting sleeves, made peasant fashion, are ornate with colored embroidery or glittering sequin embellishment.

When the shades of night fall, then it is that the spotlight of fashion reveals the tunic at the height of its glory, for the really formal tunics play a role of dazzling splendor. The grandest ones are evolved of scintillating lame weaves so sumptuous they baffle description. To make it more so, if you are sparkling-minded, your tunic may be elaborately worked with thousands of shiny, twinkling sequins.

Even a dressy afternoon tunic is apt to go glittery. For example, the handsome model centered in the illustration is of silver lame worked all over with millions of wee shimmering jet paillettes. This striking model comes straight from Paris—a Bruyere creation.

The fur-bordered tunic is the "talk of town" this season. On crisp autumn days it comes out in tweeds and novelty woolsens with lavish trimmings of the fur of your choice. At night it sallies forth in such regal aspect as the picture to the left portrays. This very elegant evening gown is made of gold-spotted black velvet, this minaret silhouette being a favorite theme on the fall and winter fashion program.

Not all the honors, however, are going to the tunic for there is a rival in the field—the short jacket or jacket blouse if you prefer to call it so. While tuck-ins are by no means out of the picture, yet there is a decided trend toward blouses and jacket effects which are worn over the skirt. This is true not only of daytime blouses of plaids and taffetas and metal-shot woolsens, so many of which are like jackets or basques, but for evening and formal afternoon wear the big message is the jacket-blouse made of gold or silver cloth. The youthful model to the right in this group is a silver knitted type. With a black velvet skirt it is tremendously good looking.

Since May, the ERA has given the schools 10,774 hours of labor. This labor was paid out of federal money and the total amounted to $6,028.25.

To Keep in Mind for Cake Making

Light Use of Mixing Spoon Is Highly Advisable, Expert Says.

In order to make cake well there are certain things which should be remembered, and followed. One is to handle the mixing spoon lightly. It will help to think of the ingredients as delicate or foamy. The expression "fold in the beaten egg whites" indicates that they are not to be roughly, but delicately treated, lest they lose their feathery texture.

While the ingredients, such as sugar, flour and butter, are solid or of close consistency, they are expected after the cake is made and baked, to come out light. "As light as a feather" is the term often applied to fine cake of certain kinds. It will fall to warrant such a recommendation unless the ingredients have been handled lightly. Certain ingredients should be beaten, rather than stirred, while others should be whisked into the mixture.

Another essential to good cake making is to measure quantities accurately. Avoid guessing. When a quarter cup of butter, or half a cup, is stipulated, see that the butter is patted down into the cup to make the right amount. Do not melt the butter or whatever shortening is used, unless so directed; for cake made with creamed butter is of a different texture from that made with melted shortening. The recipe will say if the latter is wanted, otherwise use it unmelted.

Level spoonfuls are meant in modern recipes unless rounded or heaping spoonfuls are given. To level a spoonful of contents draw the blade of a knife over the top, seeing that the knife touches the edges of the spoon while so doing.

Ingredients should be mixed in the order stated. When the order is not given it is assumed that the ingredients will be put together as follows: Cream sugar and butter, add beaten egg yolks and flavoring, then flour and liquid alternately, beating in each one before adding another quantity. Last of all, fold in the beaten egg whites. If the eggs are to be added without beating, as in pound cake, it will be so stated, and how many to add at one time. If eggs are to be beaten but not separated, this will be stated.

It is advisable to add a dash of salt to cake mixtures. As salt helps to make egg whites beat well, the salt may be added to whites before beating. Or the salt may be put with the baking powder into the flour and be sifted into the cake with the flour. Sifting flour three times before measuring tends to increase the lightness of the cake. This is because the sifting process lightens the flour, which decreases the amount just a trifle. C. Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

BRONCHIAL TROUBLES

STOP! IT ALWAYS STARTS A SQUABBLE

YOU'LL RUIN MY CLOTHES I'M DOING YOU A FAVOR

Controversy always follows the introduction of any new scientific discovery. But no discovery in years—ably, has caused so much heated discussion and had such far reaching effects as this one. See what happens to these two Oklahoma housewives.

OH JANE, IT'S NICE OF YOU TO COME OVER AND HELP ME WASH. I'M SO Tired ALWAYS SINCE THE BABY CAME.

I'M GOING TO SOLVE YOUR WASHDAY WOE. BROUGHT ALONG MY SPECIAL NEW SOAP... OXYDOL... I KNEW YOU HADN'T DISCOVERED IT YET.

OXYDOL? OH, THAT'S A GRANULATED SOAP I'M USING ONE ALREADY.

YES, BUT OXYDOL IS ENTIRELY DIFFERENT—A NEW INVENTION. IT LOOSENS DIRT OUT IN 15 MINUTES' SOAKING—WITHOUT SCRUBBING OR BOILING—AND WASHES CLOTHES SHADERS WHITER, TOO.

15 MINUTES' SOAKING! WHY JANE, DON'T YOU DARE PUT THAT SOAP IN THE TUB. I'LL BET IT'S TWICE AS STRONG AS THE SOAP I'M USING... AND I'M BEGINNING TO THINK EVEN THAT'S TOO HARSH!

NOW DON'T WORRY, EDITH. I KNOW WHAT I'M DOING. OXYDOL IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE. JUST LET ME SHOW YOU.

JANE—STOP IT! THAT'S MY NEW PRINT DRESS FRED BOUGHT ME!

I'M SHOWING YOU THE SURE WAY TO WASH IT WITHOUT FADING. LOOK AT THOSE SUDS IN YOUR OLD HARD WATER!

15 MINUTES LATER—

JANE, I'LL GET SOME IN TOWN TODAY! I'VE BEEN KILLING MYSELF SCRUBBING—AND YOUR OXYDOL GOT THINGS SHADERS WHITER IN 15 MINUTES' SOAKING! BUT ARE YOU SURE MY DRESS IS SAFE?

SAFE? WHY JUST SEE HOW BRIGHT THE COLORS ARE IN THIS DRESS I'M WEARING, AND I'VE WASHED IT A DOZEN TIMES. THAT'S THE BIG THING ABOUT OXYDOL.

IT'S TRUE! OXYDOL WILL CHANGE YOUR WHOLE IDEA OF WASHING CLOTHES—READ THESE FACTS

MADE by a patented process, New and Improved OXYDOL dissolves instantly and completely in hard or soft water, and does these things: Gives thick, 3-inch suds, rich as whipped dairy cream. Suds that go to work on grease, dirt, and stains—in any water—2 to 3 times faster than less modern soaps. Sets up a unique "soak and flush" washing action. 15 minutes' soaking loosens dirt out so it flushes away—without scrubbing or boiling. You save long hours of washboard drudgery. You get clothes 4 to 5 shades whiter without washboard wear and tear. And yet, due to its special formula—OXYDOL is safe. Absolutely safe to hands, colors, fabrics! Get new, improved Oxydol from your grocer today. Money back if you don't have the whitest, sweetest wash ever. The Procter & Gamble Company.

IT'S MARVELOUS FOR SONNY'S THINGS, TOO. DIAPERS COME CLEAN SO MUCH QUICKER IN OXYDOL.

WITH WIDE SASH

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Belts are by no means out of the picture this season but sashes are "in." Dikusha, who is sending out such lovely things from Paris, girdles this charming evening dress of blue and white striped wool with a wide sash of tangerine red velvet. The fact that this gown is fashioned of a sheer woolen weave is significant, for the latest fashion reports laud thin wool for evening gowns.

Challis Blouses
Wool challis with dark background and small bright flower patterns make practical blouses for everyday wear.

LEADING DESIGNERS SHOW LONGER COATS

Costumes composed of three-quarter coat, skirt, long blouse or tunic are sponsored by leading couturiers both for morning and afternoon wear. In some houses the coats remain really three-quarter and swagger in line, with fullness starting from the shoulders or kimono sleeves. In other houses, like Marcel Rochas, the three-quarter coats have been lengthened into seven-eighths. On more dressy models the swagger coat is replaced by a close-fitted garment with line indicated and flared effect on the skirt. This is particularly sponsored by Worth. In all cases the skirt underneath remains quite straight and narrow.

Quilting Hues Will Be Popular for Fall Styles

Call in the neighbors and have a quilting bee. It's quite the thing this season, what with the revival of quilted silk and velvet wraps. Quilted fabrics are all over the place, not only in evening wraps, but for daytime clothes, sports outfits and practically anything else you may think of. A little jacket of quilted green felt, worn with a brown woolen sports frock, adds a distinct flipp to the picture, and quilted handbags, in woolsens, satins or velvets, are seen in our best shops. The quilted velvet toque is one of the new wrinkles of the season, and the peak of elegance is reached in the luxurious quilted velvet and satin evening wraps seen about town.

New Hand-Knits for Fall Adopt Color Contrasts

Brown, with either chartreuse or old gold for contrast, is a favorite color for hand-knits for fall. Next in line is dark green, set off by maize-gold or dusty beige. Bright reds have created quite a furor for two-piece dresses, with cerise and flamingo leading the field.
