PERSONALS

Mrs. Will Ed Harris, who had her collar bone broken in an auto smash-up at Socorro last week, is up and around, although the injury causes much pain.

At the home of Mrs. Tommy Cook last Thursday, her White Oaks friends gave her a surprise shower. Mrs. Cook was the recipient of many lovely gifts.

On Washington's birthday, Mrs. M. U. Finley was hostess to the Carrizozo Bridge Club. Patriotic emblems and favors prevailed. The hostess served refreshments after bridge.

The entertainment given by the Woman's Club was an excellent example of what the women of that organization can do. Each character was especially fitted to the part. Leslye Cooper at the piano furnished popular music which put the audience into a receptive mood for the rest of the program. The H. S. Glee Club, directed by Miss Sharp, in their attractive ensembles gave two excellent numbers of which any city could be justly proud. Rhea Boughner, accompanied by Mrs. Burns, played two beautiful xylophone numbers. The lights were off for a brief period, but the audience remained quiet due to the prompt action of Supt. Hall, who is to be commended for great presence of mind. The total receipts were $41.13; disbursements $10.98, leaving the nice sum of $30.15 for the club.

BORN—Feb. 25, to Mr. and Mrs. Montie Gardenhire, a boy. Mother and son are doing nicely.

Mrs. Edith Crawford entertained the Tuesday Bridge Club at the Carrizozo Eating House Tuesday evening. Last week, Mrs. Erva Claunch entertained the club also at the Carrizozo Eating House.

Mrs. D. X. LaVallee was hostess to the Tuesday afternoon Bridge Club at her home this week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Burke, daughter Rosalind and son Lewis spent a portion of Sunday afternoon at the Bonnell ranch home in Glencoe.

Mrs. O. M. Downing of Corona was a Carrizozo visitor this Wednesday.

Miss Zanta DuBois of Corona was a visitor in town Wednesday.

Mrs. C. P. Huppertz has been ill this week, but at this writing, her condition shows signs of improvement.

Mrs. John W. Harkey, Mr. and Mrs. Fay Harkey were visitors at Albuquerque Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

Mrs. E. H. Sweet was an El Paso visitor the last week - end, being the guest of her youngest daughter, Mrs. Murph Muirhead and other friends at that place.

Mrs. S. O. Sproles was an El Paso visitor several days last week.

Mrs. Maggie Pfingsten spent the week-end in El Paso.

Red Burnett of Alto was here on business Wednesday and before leaving for home, made this office a friendly call.

OUT-OF-THE ORDINARY

When Wiley Post, stratosphere flier was forced to land in the Mojave desert, he saw one of the inhabitants of that place trying to repair his car. At his first sight of Post in his queer, ghostly suit, he thought some one had dropped from the moon. He was so scared that he hid behind his car and refused to come out until convinced that Post was really human.

At Perry, N. Y. last week, Elmer Sweetdew, farmer, had a hired hand, who refused to work without whiskey, so Elmer fired him. Shortly after, Sweetdew prepared to drill for maple juice and in boring the first tree, whiskey came out of the spout instead of maple juice. Hardly believing his eyes he went to the other side of the tree where he found a hole had been cut in the soft body of the tree and the bark carefully restored to its place. Opening the hole he found the jug of whiskey and quite out-of-the-ordinary, the drill had bored through the cork, not even cracking the jug. Did Elmer destroy the whiskey?—You tell 'em!

On Feb. 19, the great city of New York went on record of passing the day without a single murder or kidnaping. Commenting on that unusual circumstance, chief of police Sullivan said that if business continued as dull as that very long, he would have to lay off a portion of the police force.

In Spratville, Ohio, last week, Mrs. Jane Caldwell, in attempting to lift a kettle of boiling water from the kitchen stove, scalded the cat, the cat ran out of the house pursued by the dog and both ran into a circular saw and cut to pieces. Mr. Caldwell ran into the house to see what was the matter, slipped on the wet floor, breaking three ribs and his right arm. His wife ran into the yard to call for help, stumbled over a wash bench, breaking one of her legs and dislocating her hip. One of the men who had been working on the saw which killed the cat and dog, in trying to jump the fence to assist the folks, a section of it fell on him and it took nearly an hour to get him out of the wreck. Aside from that, everything was all right.

One of the strangest things in the recollection of the people of England was produced last week at a big poultry show held in London. Samuel Johnston, a poultry raiser, produced a hen that laid blue eggs; the exhibition was a feature of the show. Experts were called into consultation and agreed that the hen was of a rare species found in but one place on the globe—and that is in one of the darkest jungles of South America.

The Roswell Dispatch says that a "widow" spider was caught last week in town by Mrs. Esther Seaverns and delivered in alcohol to the Dispatch office. This "merry widow" has a mania for killing the male before the birth of the young in her frenzied efforts to preserve the species. The coat of the widow is black with a red hour-glass in the center of the stomach. They exist in this region, but keep in the dark, lying in wait for the boys who happen to be out late and devour them.

"El Torreón" Dedicated at Old Lincoln Town

With former Governor James F. Hinkle of Roswell presiding over the ceremonies, El Torreón (Old Tower) a landmark of early days, was dedicated last Sunday at Lincoln under the auspices of the Chaves County Historical and Archaeological Society. El Torreón was used in the early days of this county as a haven from attacks by Indians. It was built between the years of 1840-50 and later figured in the Harrell Brothers and Lincoln County wars. The old tower had almost crumbled away when it was restored. Mrs. Amelia Bolton Church of Roswell, thought to be the only person now living, who took refuge in the tower in the early days, was chairman of the committee which supervised the project. Lucius Dills of Roswell was the principal speaker.

Oscura School Notes

On the afternoon of Friday, Feb. 15, was Parents' Day in the Oscura school. Mrs. Watson, rural supervisor, was present. Children's school work was exhibited, so that parents could see the progress made by the students, and also charts to show those doing standard work for each grade. Regular class work was carried on during the afternoon to give parents a view of school work being done by their own children. The day brought to a close a project on Holland. The English class was the highlight of the afternoon. The class was motivated by the teacher, after which the children took charge—each speaking fluently and with ease on Holland, its location, surface, climate, people, mode of living and occupation. The visitors were charmed by the lack of self-consciousness on the part of the pupils.

After the children were dismissed Mrs. Watson spoke to the parents. All concerned enjoyed a pleasant and instructional afternoon. On Feb. 21, we enjoyed a Washington's Birthday program, which traced the progress of our nation from its settlement through the Revolutionary War, to peace and a new nation as influenced by Washington. Making of the first flag; gave salute and discussed the proper respect due the flag.

A Correction

In writing the Woman's Club notes last week, the club reporter accidentally omitted one of the most interesting numbers on the program. This was a talk on her trip to Europe by Mrs. Gutknecht. Mrs. Gutknecht is a fluent speaker, and knew how to grasp the high points of her subject, as well as how to bring things before her hearers those things that—by contract—would strike the attention of people living in this country.

Miss Reagan's name was also omitted from the assistant hostesses.—Club Reporter.

Ben Dow, who left here last week for the Naval Training Station at San Diego, Cal., after a 10 day furlough with the home folks, was transferred after reaching that place to the U.S.S. Steamer, San Francisco. The steamer made a trial trip with 130 men, all of whom were victims of sea-sickness except 8, one of whom was Ben. He didn't mind it, because he was from Carrizozo.

Now Science Explains Why So Many People Past 40

Feel That They're Slipping Losing Their "Grip" on Things

Many people 'round 40 think they're 'growing old.' They feel tired a lot... 'weak.' Have headaches, dizziness, stomach upsets.

Well, scientists say the cause of all this, in a great many cases, is simply an acid condition of the stomach. Nothing more.

All you have to do is to neutralize the excess stomach acidity.

When you have one of these acid stomach upsets, take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals and before going to bed. That's all!

Try this. Soon you'll feel like another person! Take either the familiar liquid "PHILLIPS'" or the convenient new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM: Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at all drug stores everywhere. Each tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of the liquid. Use Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

The "liquid test"

...it ENDS bowel worries for many people

This is a test that tells you whether the system needs a cathartic change. If you have constant sluggish spells or bilious attacks, and laxatives seem to make things worse, it would be wise to try this:

Stop all use of any laxative that does not encourage variation from a "fixed dose" (which may be entirely too large a dose for all drug store laxatives). Use instead, a liquid laxative that you can measure and regulate as to dose. As necessary to repeat, take smaller doses, less and less often, until the bowels are moving without any help at all.

Doctors use liquid laxatives, and a properly prepared liquid laxative, containing natural laxative agents like senna and cascara is a joy and a comfort; a real help in establishing regularity. Ask your doctor about this (Doctors use liquid laxatives.) You can get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a most dependable liquid laxative, at any drug store.

The Household

By Lydia Le Baron Walker

When Not in Use for a Partition, the Screen Was an Ornament in the Corner of the Room.

WHEN a room has to serve a double purpose and it can, by any means not underdecorative, be divided so that there is a separateness about each part, both comfort and specifications are conserved. Just how the best separateness can be managed depends upon the architectural features of a room, as well as the ways and means at the disposal of the occupant. It is not suggested that a partition be built for the division. This is frequently done in office buildings, but rarely in homes. Decoration is not fostered by such means, although in an office it is eminently practical. In a home other measures should be used, preferably.

Remaking or Making Screens. We can take a leaf from the Japanese practice of using screens for division walls. By these, in the Orient, a floor may be divided into many rooms decoratively. This handicraft of the screen the more ornamental the partition. It may be argued that beautiful screens, substantial and large enough for this use, are not inexpensive. This is true, but frequently at auctions, in antique shops, or second-hand stores, one can find just the wanted thing and get it for a song. Or the person can buy a dilapidated screen with a firm and sturdy frame, or a new screen frame and cover it herself. Paint the frame or polish it again. Cut ordinary muslin or cotton cloth to fit each side of each panel, and glue it firmly in place. Over this, handsome wall paper can be glued and a glimp edge be put about each panel. Or a textile can be tacked on with round brass-headed tacks which, in themselves, form a finish if they are close. Burlap may be used thus as the textile, but it is not ornamental. The choicest textile is, perhaps, a patterned brocade. In soft-tone or artistic blends of colors. In between these extremes there are many good and suitable materials.

Sometimes a pair of portieres can be hung in the space between two tall pieces of furniture, such for example as an upright piano and a high bookcase placed at right angles to the wall. Or again, lower pieces of furniture can have shorter hangings over them, and the portieres fill in a gap between the furniture so arranged.

Successful Two-Room Effect. I know of one woman, whose one room is longer than it is wide, who feels the individuality of each part of the room through having a high four-fold Japanese screen for a partition wall. One window comes in each of these divisional sections. A davenport bed, and a Martha Washington table with drawers in it, and a mirror above against a handsome hanging, supply a sitting room and unrecognizable bedroom in one part of the room. In the other is her hidden workroom entirely different in character, yet not out of keeping with the other part, so that, on occasions, she folds the screen and puts it in the corner of the room or in her closet (off the workroom portion) and makes one large room of the two parts. The success of this screen partitioning is excellent. © Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

"A SPIRITUAL FIGHT"

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

The mind of a nation is frequently expressed in the public utterances of her statesmen. England has evidently thought her way through on certain issues involved in this depression. She has come to the conclusion that the elemental causes must first be removed before she can ever be assured of a permanent recovery. The responsibility for a task like this lies more in the hands of those responsible for the moral and spiritual welfare of a country than in the theories of politicians or economists. Lloyd George in his widely circulated address delivered recently in the city temple in London, said: "The world today is a jungle. At any moment a mistaken gesture... may make them spring at each other's throats. It is time the churches should act together. If they fail, I do not know what is going to happen. I am beginning to lose faith in conferences." Ramsay MacDonald is quoted as having said, "We have paid too little attention in the past to these tireless impulses that lie deep down in human nature. If you think you are going to beat the things that culminate in war without a spiritual fight, you are foredoomed to failure."

Woodrow Wilson said substantially the same things some years past. "We can have no economic recovery until we first have a spiritual recovery." Does it not seem passing strange that we apparently give so little heed to the warnings of an idealist? Or is there in this country, as doubtless there is in England, a deep undercurrent of serious thought which is gradually leveling our economic life and pointing the way to the only sure method of permanent recovery?

Every citizen of our country must not only answer this question for himself, but must voluntarily accept his responsibility in this spiritual fight, without which "we are foredoomed to failure."

David Lawrence, editor of the United States News, wrote in a recent editorial: "The greatest gift that could be given the American people would be a regeneration of spirit."

Ash Can Traps Partridge Bath, Maine.—George Leyva has his own way of bringing 'em back alive. One morning he was emptying ashes in his back yard when he espied a partridge. With ussuring aim he hurled his ash can, bottom-side up. It descended on the bird, which Leyva captured.

Carnegie's Heiress Wealthiest Woman

Mrs. Miller, Wife of Professor, Shuns Notoriety.

Boston.—She is the richest and happiest heiress in the world. She has so many millions she really doesn't know how much she is worth. Yet when headlines or ultra smart set groups mention the richest girls in America, they name Barbara Hutton Milvart, Doris Duke or Nancy Leiter, but never allude to this woman. She is Mrs. Roswell Miller. To the ordinary person the name signifies nothing.

But as Margaret Carnegie—her maiden name—daughter of the late Andrew Carnegie, maker of millionaires and fortunes—the world easily identifies her.

The reason for her failure to break into news stories is that, being a chip of the old block, she shuns notoriety and lives a cloistered life in her New York mansion. It is on Fifth avenue.

Husband a Professor! The Carnegie heiress lives inconspicuously with her husband, who is professor of engineering of New York university. His salary is only $2,500 a year. He could command $50,000 annually from a score of corporations, but he prefers to teach the science he dearly loves.

They were married in April, 1910, on the thirty-first anniversary of her parents' wedding. In Massachusetts society, the Carnegie girl and her husband are well known. In the summer they occupy the family estate at Lenox, Mass.

Although they do not go in for society functions, they nevertheless are favorites of the smart set.

She came into many other catates at her father's death. The most important is Skibo Castle, the magnificent Scottish domain where, at the age of six, she met King Edward VII.

Because of her secluded manner of living, very few are aware of her activities and philosophy of life. She is modest and has grown to womanhood just as shy and retiring as her father wanted her to be. Like him, she isn't satisfied in being just rich. Taught a policy of charity by her father, she has lived up to it.

Secret of Happiness.

She feels the real secret of happiness is in the spirit of giving. Therefore, her contributions to charities all over the country assume large proportions every year.

While the pampered daughters of the ultra-wealthy hog the headlines, scamp about the globe and make spectacular engagements and marriages, Carnegie's daughter devotes her time to philanthropy and domestic duties.

There are many families in Pittsburgh, original seat of the family estates, that can attest to her kindness. During the war she gave all her time to charitable work.

In his later years her father taught her how to administer his immense fortune and philanthropic enterprises. Her romance with Roswell Miller, son of an old friend of her father's, was a quiet and beautiful one. She first met her future husband at a social gathering when he was a naval ensign.

They were mutually attracted and decided to marry at once instead of postponing the nuptials until after the war.

She graduated from the fashionable Miss Spence's school in 1916 and was introduced to society the same year.

Style-Alert Will Wear Smart Linen

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Whether you are a faithful stay-at-home by inclination or necessity, or whether you are counted among those present in the spectacular style parade which fashionable resorters are now staging in climes where summer spends the winter, the message of linen is all-important.

There is so much real news in regard to linen as now is, one scarcely knows where to begin to tell of the amazing things taking place in the way of new colorings, new weaves and artful patternings. From the daintiest sheers embroidered handkerchief linen to the very rough textures in daring peasant colorings and design, linen is writing a most fascinating chapter in the history of fabric fashion.

What's more, you do not have to trek to a tropical clime or wait until spring and summer in order to don linen—wear it instantly! And here's how—speaking to women who are wintering where winter is winter. Top that favorite velvet or wool suit, which is proving so smartly wearable for mid-season, with a blouse of one of the new tweedy coarse linens which are the rage in leading style centers. The trick is to choose one of the strikingly new colors, tangerine, for example, or better still, linen in a rich fuchsia shade. You will adore these wonderful new tailored blouses. So timely, too, not too light in wintry zones, and not too dark for tropical climes.

Maybe it is a one-piece dress of crepe or wool or velvet which is your mainstay for midseason wear. Give it "class" by collaring and cuffing it with linen in natural, pastel or bright color. The Puritan sets with wide collars and deep cuffs are youthful and flattering. Quilted or stitched they are smartest of all.

Just to give some idea of the stunning trends of the new linens we cite the striking outfit, so handsomely tailored, as shown to the left in the illustration. Linen in the new beetroot red is chosen for the blouse. It has widely spaced tiny tucks running horizontally across its front, is fashioned to fit snugly and fastens high up the front with square buttons. The plaid for the slim skirt and the three-quarter jacket carries beetroot red for its predominant color. The relationship of suit and blouse is further established in that the identical beetroot linen which fashions the blouse lines the coat. This ensemble offers a perfect costume for sightseeing in a warm climate or for spectator sports or it is ready to jump into at the very first signs of budding spring in the North.

Nothing could be swankier or more appropriate for a sunny morning on deck than the mannish suit of white linen pictured to the right. The coat is as tailored as a man's and the back is belted, giving freedom for tennis or shuffleboard. The blouse is made of old-fashioned figured percale. Better jot that down in your note book, for this quaint percale is an ultra style note.

Many remarkable effects are achieved in the new linens. There are rustic peasant weaves which look as if handloomed. Some of these are of Tyrolean inspiration, in the colorfulness of their stripes. Many are nubbed to add to their rough texture. Among linen novelties are towel and tablecloth motifs, also openwork lines with colored threads, plaid lines, too, are good styles, while plain linens either in pastels or dark vivid blues, or reds, or browns, have a vogue coming which will make them foremost in fashion.

Conserve Moisture by Plowing Early

Average Rainfall Not Enough to Fill Soil to Its Field Capacity.

By Richard Bradford, Agronomist at Ohio State University—WNO Service.

Plow as early as possible, to conserve moisture. It is high time for us to be thinking rather seriously about the drought problem, and ways to reduce its ravages. Rough plowed land, if there is no danger of erosion, is an ideal condition for absorbing the heavy rains that are hoped for early in the year.

Every foot of soil of average texture is capable of storing and holding against the pull of gravity the equivalent of about three inches of rainfall. In a soil eight feet deep, this is a storage capacity of 24 inches.

If every drop of normal rainfall from now until April 1 runs into the soil, the total is 9 to 10 inches, which is only half enough to fill our soil to its field capacity.

From 800 to 1,000 pounds of water are required by growing plants to produce one pound of dry matter. A single corn stalk may absorb and transpire through its leaves as much as 55 gallons of water during its development. This amounts for a full stand of corn to over 20 inches of water, an amount in excess of the average rainfall during the corn-growing season. The difference must be drawn from the reserve of moisture accumulated in the soil in winter and early spring months.

Sweet Clover Is Put to Front as Soil Crop

Once considered a weed, sweet clover has had to bear the brunt of protecting fertility levels on thousands of acres of farm lands during the depression period when farmers have not had the cash for mineral fertilizers. It is pointed out by L. B. Miller, associate in soil experiment fields at the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

Until 1923 the use both of commercial fertilizers and of sweet clover was on the increase. That year some 38,894 tons of factory-processed fertilizer were applied in the state. At the same time the sweet clover acreage amounted to something less than 84,000 acres.

However, applications of commercial fertilizers have declined to a fourth of the peak year, while sweet clover acreages have continued to increase. By 1931 a total of 850,000 acres in Illinois were devoted to growing sweet clover, largely for soil improvement purposes. With the coming of the government's adjustment programs in 1933 and 1934, wherein AAA contracted land could be sown to legumes and at the same time get benefit payments, sweet clover acreage is believed to have reached the million mark.

Inoculated sweet clover provides an efficient fertilizer factory on any farm having sweet soil and a fair supply of the major mineral plant foods. Besides its value as a green manure, the legume is well known for its ability to provide abundant pasture, or it may be harvested for seed. In years when cash expenditures for factory fertilizer were impractical, Illinois farmers who had limed land were quick to take advantage of the triple value of sweet clover, and particularly for general soil improvement.

Tasting Milk

During winter farmers often find that milk, fresh from the cow, is bitter and many of them have attributed this to alfalfa hay or other feed together with the scarcity of green grass. While it is true some feeds such as weeds, some kinds of leaves and other herbage can cause bitter milk, and that sometimes a cow herself may be off condition and give bitter or salty milk, the usual cause of bitter milk during winter is the cool temperature which retards the development of certain bacteria. The bacteria which cause the bitter taste grow when temperatures are low while the bacteria which make milk sweet grow at warmer temperatures. Thus in cold weather one might properly say that the bacteria content is out of balance, causing bitter milk, and the cow's diet has nothing to do with it.—Missouri Farmer.

The annual loss from farm fires is $100,000,000 in this country.

Farmers of the Irish Free State will be encouraged to raise wheat.

Farmers now operate more than 200 co-operative oil and gas stations.

Australia exported more than 70,000,000 bushels of wheat the past year.

As a food, corn ranks next to rice in the number of people it supports.

The United States Department of Agriculture says that grass-green milk bottles help to keep milk sweet.

In many places in Ohio alfalfa has used practically all of the available moisture to a depth of seven or eight feet.

Chinese wool, formerly in heavy demand in the United States for carpet making, has fallen off appreciably in recent years.

Dams to flood large flats for hay-growing purposes are being built by the Surprise Valley municipality in southern Saskatchewan.

EVEN GOOD FRIENDS "HAVE WORDS"

IT'S TRUE! I'LL PROVE IT!

Controversy always follows the introduction of any new scientific discovery. But no discovery in years, probably, has caused so much heated discussion as this one. See what happened to these two Nebraska housewives.

OH EDITH, I SIMPLY CAN'T GO IN TOWN WITH YOU, I'VE AT LEAST 2 HOURS WASHING YET

STELLA, IT'S SIMPLY RIDICULOUS TO TAKE SO LONG FOR SUCH A LITTLE DAB OF CLOTHES. HERE, LET'S USE THIS SPECIAL SOAP OF MINE—OXYDOL—AND WE'LL FINISH UP IN A JIFFY.

OH, THAT'S JUST ANOTHER GRANULATED SOAP, ISN'T IT? I'M USING ONE OF THOSE ALREADY.

THAT'S WHERE YOU'RE WRONG. OXYDOL'S AN ENTIRELY NEW KIND OF GRANULATED SOAP FOR OUR HARD WATER. JUST 15 MINUTES SOAKING DOES THE WORK, NO SCRUBBING OR BOILING—AND IT GETS CLOTHES SHADES WHITER, TOO.

15 MINUTES SOAKING? EDITH, YOU'LL RUIN MY CLOTHES! THAT SOAP MUST BE TWICE AS STRONG AS THE ONE I'M USING, AND I SUSPECT IT'S FADING MY COLORS!

THAT'S THE GREAT THING ABOUT OXYDOL, STELLA. IT POSITIVELY WON'T FADE ANYTHING, EVEN THE SHEEREST COTTON PRINTS. YET IT WORKS TWICE AS FAST AS OTHER SOAPS.

THAT'S SILLY! I DON'T BELIEVE IT!

IT'S NOT SILLY—IT'S TRUE! AND I'LL PROVE IT. JUST WAIT 15 MINUTES AND SEE. NOW LOOK! HOW'S THAT FOR SUDS IN HARD WATER?

15 MINUTES LATER

NOTHING BUT OXYDOL FOR ME AFTER THIS, EDITH! THERE'S NO NEED TO SCRUB THESE CLOTHES—BUT ARE YOU POSITIVE IT WON'T FADE COLORS?

YOU KNOW THAT PRINT DRESS OF MINE YOU THOUGHT WAS NEW? I'VE WASHED IT 14 TIMES IN OXYDOL SO FAR. NO SCRUBBING MEANS THE GOODS STAND UP LONGER, TOO!

YOU'LL BE ASTONISHED, LIKE I WAS WHEN YOU TRY THIS NEW WAY TO WASH. READ THESE FACTS.

MADE by a patented process, New and Improved Oxydol dissolves instantly and completely in hard or soft water, and does these things:

- Gives thick, 3-inch suds, rich as whipped dairy cream.
- Suds that go to work on grease, dirt, and stains—in any water—2 to 3 times faster than less modern soaps.
- Sets up a unique "soak and flush" washing action. 15 minutes soaking loosens dirt out so it flushes away—without scrubbing or boiling.
- You save long hours of washboard drudgery. You get clothes 4 to 5 shades whiter without washboard wear and tear. And yet, due to its special formula—Oxydol is safe. Absolutely safe to hands, colors, fabrics!
- Get new, Improved Oxydol from your grocer today. Money back if you don't have the whitest, sweetest wash ever. The Procter & Gamble Company.

STARCHED LACE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

An outstanding message which the advance dresses convey is that starched lace accessories are the "big idea" for spring. A word to the wise is sufficient. The shopping itinerary of the woman who would be smartly attired should include an immediate pilgrimage to the neckwear counters where the latest fantasies in the now-so-fashionable crisp laces are set forth in all their freshness. For midseason wear nothing more charming and seasonal can be pictured than the charming black velvet suit here illustrated. The deep ruff lace cuffs and collar with frilled jabot of stiffened white lace interprets the latest. The jabot now sketched and the collar of lace with the Medici flare are new this season.

Skirt Fallases
Skirts wide at the hem are still very much in fashion, but the fallases usually does not start till the skirt is well on its way. Bang fitted hip lines are best at the moment. Bustle effects are out.

MUFFS ARE REVIVED FOR EVENING WEAR

Muffs, in the dear dead days, were neat little bundles into which elegant ladies placed their hands when they went into the cold, wintry out-of-doors. Then, a few years ago some bright person conceived the idea of giving bridesmaids muffs to carry instead of shepherds' crooks or bunches of flowers or baskets filled with rose petals. Thus, muffs were separated from strictly out-of-door costumes.

Now, as the latest development in this evolution, there are muffs to accompany evening gowns. Some of these frivolous affairs are made of shirred chiffon or velvet. Others are covered with small artificial flowers, such as violets, pansies, or narcissi. Debutantes are gaily carrying them as they dance. They're plenty large enough to hold a lipstick, cigarettes, powder, handkerchiefs, and all the other bathroom necessities.

High Hat and Plain Pumps With "Little Suit" Chic

When standing before your wardrobe in doubt as to what to put on, better reach for a suit. The "little suit" is the "long suit" of our smartest women over here.

With it goes a high hat and plain kidskin pumps. If the day and the occasion present that "special moment," we suggest a glamorous lame blouse as a surprise to come forth when the trim little jacket is removed.

Patou has made some of the most perfect blouses for this purpose you can find anywhere. Lots of them are of the sheers chiffon with shirring near the shoulders to give fullness to the billowy sleeves. There is usually a touch of lame in gold or silver or a satia collar and cuffs and demure little bow tie.

The Supreme Court Decision and the Minority Report

With only a majority on one vote, the United States Supreme Court on Monday of this week, supported the President's New Deal policy on the gold question and was hailed as a great victory for the President and adding an unlimited amount of dictatorial power to what he already had. But there is another phase to the situation. We are still confronted with the minority report which being of no avail, is nevertheless, important and must be reckoned with in time to come.

After the decision had been offered by Chief Justice Hughes, now comes the report of the minority, four in number, and is in substance as follows:

In his report for the minority, Justice James Clark McReynolds bitterly denounced the Roosevelt money policies. Speaking in loud tones, the Justice said in part: "The Constitution, it is hardly too much to say, is gone. Our guarantees are swept away. We stand as a people today, stripped of the fundamental guarantees that stood between us and arbitrary action and it is impossible to estimate the results."

"Millions and billions of dollars were borrowed by this government with a solemn contract in every bond. The construction of your canals, your buildings, your industries, have been financed by loans which were to be protected against debased currencies, such as has been known for the past 2,000 years and which carried the assurance that the lenders would recover their money in the coin which they furnished, but Congress has swept it away."

"In addition to his report the Justice branded the President as a veritable 'Nero' with more power than any other ruler on the face of the earth. There are two sides to every question, but we are not taking sides in this matter as the money question is with us as it is with Will Rogers, who says it is too deep for him. If it were something about printing, digging post-holes or sawing wood, we could enter our argument."

SYNOPSIS

Theodore Gatlin adopts a baby, "Penelope," in an effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But his wife has never wanted her, and their affairs end in the divorce court. Ten-year-old Penelope is given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin. At a baseball game a ball strikes Penelope on the nose. Mrs. Gatlin spirits the child to Europe. Gatlin wills Penelope all his money, and is about to begin a search for her when a motor accident ends his life. Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, rising young psychiatrist, is presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" is in part responsible. McNamara does not think she is a criminal and obtains Burt's testimony in court. Lanny, the doctor's office nurse, is also won over to Lanny's explanation of her case and she is sent to San Quentin penitentiary. Lanny visits her and Nance persuades her to smuggle out a letter which a confederate of Nance steals. Nance escapes, although shot, and goes to Lanny's apartment. Lanny tells Chief McNamara, who orders her to bring Nance to his apartment. Details of Nance's escape are made public.

"Yeah!" A throaty growl. "Got to, Doc. Got to protect society. Stephen looked puzzled, so the chief continued. "If I let that girl graduate from San Quentin, she'll come out with a broader knowledge of crime and trickery and a greater contempt for society than when she went in. The only kind of criminal I fear is the smart one; I can always catch the boobies promptly, but sometimes it takes a long time to get acquainted with the artistic genius of a real craftsman. They're like writers, Doc. They have a style all their own and you've got to learn their style. And about the time you think you've learned it, you pick up some bird that's guilty and he isn't the man you thought he was. He's just stolen his master's stuff. Nance Belden is too brilliant to turn loose on the world, Doc. She's a leader—a leader of men. She'd make the balls, and her crew would fire them and always be covered up."

He ruffled his pompadour. "Well, Doc, I've gotten her away from her gang. She's lost them and they've lost her. And they must never get her back."
"Would you like to know who they are?"
"Of course. I'm normally curious."
"I can find out for you," said Stephen.
"How?" Dan McNamara looked doubtful.
"Nance will tell me."
"Your crazy, Doc. You don't know the code. They die, but they don't squeal. There is honor in their dishonor, and in their weakness there is a strength that amazes me."
"She wouldn't do it voluntarily, of course, but just now, in her weakened state, I'm sure I could hypnotize her. Get her to look fixedly into a mirror, you know, like this. Once I secure control of her subconscious mind, she'll answer my questions. And after I wake her up she'll have complete amnesia for the experience; she will never know she peached on her pals."

CHAPTER V

The chief smiled. "Of course I know that hypnosis is being used by advanced psychiatrists and particularly by Morton Prince and William McDougall. I've read their books. The modern chief of police isn't modern, Doc, if he isn't a pretty good lay psychologist and psychiatrist. I don't know what a criminologist is, but I suppose he's a bird that studies the criminal actions and tendencies of criminals and tries to reduce crime to its lowest common divisor. That's the bunk. The thing to do is to know their minds and why they act like they do; if you can cure what makes them go, criminology becomes a dead science."

"Yes, I know all about hypnosis and I know something you've forgotten. Your power of suggestion on a patient in the hypnotic state isn't powerful enough to make him steal or commit murder if he's an honest man. His acquired instincts of morality, which lie in his subconscious mind, are too strong for you. And the most powerful acquired instinct in the mind of a crook is that he mustn't squeal. That's his idea of immortality! You try it on Nance Belden and she'll tell you almost anything but who her friends are, where they live and how they make a living."
"Well, we shall see—at another time. Meanwhile, what are you going to do with this girl? You can't keep her here, because that's dangerous unless you have her watched. And when you trust to watch her?"
"Here about Lanny?"
"Lanny is my office nurse and I can't get along without her. She's under suspicion now and we've got to kill that. She'll be watched, will she not?"
"Suppose so. Even if I pass the word to my men, I can never be sure one of my men won't watch her independently. On a case where it would be a big feather in his cap and mean a lot of publicity to capture a celebrated criminal, lots of dicks prefer to work alone and in secret."
"Then Lanny must not come to your house again. And yet, this girl must be parked somewhere until her wound heals. She's suffering from the shock of this emotional experience now; she's lost considerable blood and suffered some pain, and for five hours she's suffered from exposure. Her garments are soaking wet."
"Is she forgot to tell those men to bring some dry clothing for her to hop into, once she got aboard the boat, my heart will just about break. That would be one flaw in a perfect job—and I can't stand flaws."
And Dan McNamara strode into the room where Nance lay with her hand in Lanny's. "Why didn't you tell your friend to bring you some dry clothes?" he demanded.

Nance smiled up at Lanny. "He thinks I'm a nut, after all, Lanny. Why, of course I wouldn't overlook that detail. I changed my clothes, but when we crossed the bay it was rough and there was a police boat on our trail. He had to outrun them—and you do forty miles an hour through a mile of tide-rips and you'll all but drown in the spray!"
"Thank God for that," the chief murmured. "I'm proud of you and your friends, Nance. I hope neither of them was hit."
For the barest fraction of a second Nance hesitated, then answered. "No, they got through all right, but how they did is a mystery. The boat was riddled."

Doc McNamara came back into the living room and on his heavy face was the faintest, most cryptic of grins.
"I'm going to get one or both of Nance's friends, Doc," he exulted. "One of them was hit, and he'll have to have medical attention. Not that I want to land either one of them for this job. But because I want to give them the once-over. At that they might be somebody we're looking for."

"Did Nance tell you one of them had been hit?"
"No, but she hesitated half a second when she told me neither of them had been hit. She never hesitates ordinarily. Her co-ordination is lightning fast—well, you get so, Doc, that you know when they're lying. Go to the telephone, call up your home and ask if you've had any telephone calls within the past hour."

Stephen obeyed and was informed that a man, who refused to leave his name, had called up three times and had left word he would call again; and he had seemed very anxious to know when the doctor would return.

"I knew it—I knew it," Dan McNamara's pride in his own perspicacity was almost juvenile. "I figured Nance would tell them to go to you. And I'll make another prophecy. They'll admit they are friends of hers and that she sent them there. She's told them you're her friend and that you'll not turn them up to me. A wounded crook is always up against it, Doc, unless he knows a crooked doctor. The hospitals and ninety-nine and nine-tenths of the doctors will report to the police when they receive a call from a patient suffering from knife or gunshot wounds. And in this case the radio has broadcast the warning of two hundred and fifty dollars out for Nance too—standing state reward for recapturing an escaped convict."

"Come on, Doc. I'll go to your home with you and pick these birds up."
"No, you shall not. I wouldn't turn those two men over to you for ten thousand dollars. They're too—"

"See, they have guts. They can be trusted on a particular job I want to put through. Word of honor, Steve. I'll not pinch them. I just want to talk with them."
A block from Stephen's home Dan McNamara got out of the doctor's car. He had already received from Stephen Burt a description of the ground-floor plan of his house. And Stephen had agreed to leave his latchkey under the mat at the front door.

"See, they have guts. They can be trusted on a particular job I want to put through. Word of honor, Steve. I'll not pinch them. I just want to talk with them."
A block from Stephen's home Dan McNamara got out of the doctor's car. He had already received from Stephen Burt a description of the ground-floor plan of his house. And Stephen had agreed to leave his latchkey under the mat at the front door.

The chief watched Stephen put up his car and enter his house. A light was shining in the entrance hall, and this light Stephen, in accordance with the chief's instructions, switched off. In about five minutes the chief saw this light switched on and off twice. That meant the doctor had received another telephone message. Then the light was switched on and off ten times. That meant the patient would arrive in about ten minutes, so Dan McNamara hid himself in the deep shadow of a tradesman's entrance at the side of a house across the street, and waited.

In ten minutes almost to the second, a car, with drawn curtains, drove up to the house and two men got out. The chief could see that one of them had to have assistance, so the driver got out and helped the other man half drag, half carry, the wounded man up the steps. Stephen opened the door and the three men entered; immediately McNamara ran across the street and up the front steps behind them, found the latchkey under the mat, opened the door and stepped inside. He could hear voices in Stephen's reception room, so he drew his pistol and stepped silently up to the entrance of it.

"Put 'em up, boys," he ordered cheerfully. He drew back his left lapel and revealed his blue and gold shield. "No necessity to argue in the smoke. This isn't a hanging matter."
He forced the two unwounded men to stand with their backs toward him while he ran his facile hands over their persons and relieved each of a pistol. He "broke" both guns and placed the cartridges in his pocket.
"I beg your pardon, Doctor, for entering your house unannounced, but you left your front door unlatched and I couldn't resist. I had a notion these men might call upon you. Just a hunch because the warden tipped us off to watch the home of your office nurse, Miss Lanning. So, while watching the home of the servant—I concluded to watch that of the master, also. Sit down, boys. Never mind us. Doc. The man on the table needs all of your attention. Fix him up nicely and let him lie there until I come back. He can't run away, and if he tries, don't you let him. You other men come with me down to the central office till I see if we have anything on you. I don't appear to have the honor of your acquaintance, but we'll look the rogues' gallery over and compare fingerprints. While there's life, there's hope."

"You're all wet, Chief," the driver of the car replied pertly.
"Perhaps—but not as wet as your friends." And McNamara chuckled at his little joke. "You can't do forty an hour through the tide-rips off Alcatraz Island without throwing some spray. You got an open fireplace in your house, Doctor?"
Stephen saw that McNamara was pretending they had not previously met. "Yes, Chief. In the drawing room. It's all set."

"I want to warm these boys up and dry them out. They did good work this afternoon and they deserve good treatment. Drop that wounded man long enough to dig up a couple of stiff joints of spiritus frumenti for my lady, will you, Doc? I always warm a cold man from the outside in and from the inside out."
"Thank you, Chief," both men muttered.
The three retired to the drawing room and the chief tossed one of the men a box of matches. "Fire up," he commanded. "Then draw yourself up to the blaze and drink the grog the doctor will give you. Where's your pal hit?"

"Top of the right shoulder, calf of the left leg and biceps of the left arm."
"So he's the chap that dragged Nance out of the water, eh? He was in the rear cockpit, but you were up front driving the boat. There are forty bullet holes in the rear of that boat." He sighed. "These machine guns certainly spray things. You didn't drop your own machine gun overboard, either. They're too valuable and hard to get. A Thompson, I suppose. A Tommy gun and a Tommy man! Visiting brethren—from Chicago, I suppose. That's why we haven't met before. Fardon me a minute while I look for the Tommy gun in your car. And if you want to die in a hurry just try beating it out the back way while I'm gone."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

(By REV. F. E. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Lesson for February 24 PETER HEALS A LAME MAN

LESSON TEXT—Acts 3:1-10; 4:8-12. GOLDEN TEXT—Then Peter said, Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee: In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth rise up and walk.—Acts 3:6. PRIMARY TOPIC—How Peter Helped a Lame Man. JUNIOR TOPIC—Peter Carrying on Jesus' Work. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Helping Hand. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Gifts That Are Better Than Money.

In the teaching of this lesson it will be necessary to include all the material in Acts 3:1 to 4:8-1.

- 1. Peter Healing the Lame Man (Acts 3:1-10). 2. The man (v. 2). This beggar was infirm from his birth. When he saw Peter and John, he asked alms. 3. The method (vv. 3-8). a. Gaining the man's attention (v. 4). Peter and John commanded him to look on them, but not because they had any power within themselves. b. Peter commanded him in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth to rise and walk (v. 6). He had been unable to do this all his life, but with the command went the ability to do. c. Peter took him by the right hand (v. 7). This act was meant to give impetus to his faith, not strength to his ankles. 4. The man's response (v. 8). Strength came into his feet and ankle bones at once. He stood, he walked, he leaped, and praised God. 5. The effect (vv. 9-11). The people were filled with amazement. a. This helpless beggar had to be carried to the temple gate. Men and women out of Christ are so helpless that they need to be brought where the life of God can be applied to them. b. Peter, in taking the man by the hand, shows the manner of helping the lost. While ministers and Sunday school teachers of themselves have nothing to give to the lost, they have the dispensing of the gospel of Christ. II. Peter Witnessing Before the Multitude (3:12-26). He told them it was faith in Jesus Christ, whom God had glorified and whom they had deliberately betrayed and crucified, that had healed this man. Despite their awful guilt, he appealed to them to repent (v. 19). God would pardon them if they would repent, and refreshing seasons would come to them when God should send back Jesus Christ to the earth to consummate the work of redemption. III. Peter in Prison for Christ's Sake (4:1-4). 1. The leaders in this persecution (vv. 1, 2). Both priests and Sadducees joined in this wickedness. The priests were intolerant because these new teachers were encroaching upon their functions. The Sadducees joined the priests because they did not believe in the resurrection, which was a vital part of the apostolic teaching. 2. The result (vv. 3, 4). Peter and John were arrested and imprisoned. Though the witnesses were held in bondage by chains, Christ was not bound. The number of believers had greatly increased, so that there were now about five thousand. IV. Peter Witnessing Before the Sanhedrin (4:5-22). 1. The inquiry (vv. 5-7). They inquired as to what power and name they had wrought this miracle. 2. Peter's answer (vv. 8-12). With stinging sarcasm he showed them that they were not on trial as evildoers, but for doing good to the helpless and needy man. Since they could not deny the miracle, he boldly declared that it had been done in the name of Christ, and that the only way for them to escape God's judgment was to believe on his name. 3. The impression upon the Sanhedrin (vv. 13-22). a. They marveled (vv. 13-15). They were made conscious that they were on trial instead of sitting as judges upon Peter and John. b. They took knowledge that Peter and John had been with Jesus (v. 13). c. They forbade them to speak in Christ's name (v. 18). d. Peter and John expressed their determination to obey God rather than man (vv. 19, 20). e. Their release (v. 21). Seeing that the people were on the side of the apostles they had no way to punish them. V. The Church at Prayer (vv. 23-31). They praised God for deliverance and prayed for boldness to speak the Word of God. Religion Religion should be to every man not merely a creed, but an experience; not a restraint, but an inspiration; not an insurance for the next world; but also a program for the present world.—Stalker. Peace of God We need the peace of God in our heart just as really for the doing well of the little things in our secular life as for the doing of the greatest duties of Christ's Kingdom.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart
National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington.—Representative Fish, a New York Republican, has renewed his fight against the radicals whom he charges with having bored into positions of responsibility. In so doing, the New York house member has stirred up a veritable avalanche of reviews, surveys and explorations of what is going on of a socialistic nature in the government. Mr. Fish charged on the floor of the house that some of the New Dealers were making cash contributions to the "reds" and proceeded to name them.

The House speech by Mr. Fish in a general way called attention to the various movements going on that can properly be described as radical in every respect. His attack directed the attention of observers here to some phases of administration policies that thus far have excited little comment. For many months, of course, the activities of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration have been subjected to the criticism that they constitute regimentation of the farmers, that is, a general program that holds down good farmers to the level of the haphazard type in the agricultural industry. Likewise there have been attacks on the methods employed by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation which dominates the affairs of some four thousand banks as a result of loans to them and is gradually expanding its sphere of influence among other industries to which loans have been made.

The senate committee on munitions, headed by Senator Nye of North Dakota, appears to be headed for a recommendation that all munitions and ship yards be government controlled if not government owned, and only a few days ago the congress enacted a law extending for two years the operations of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation so that it may continue the government influence it has wielded heretofore.

On top of these, Mr. Roosevelt has asked the congress to appropriate almost $5,000,000,000 for his use in the general recovery program and has virtually demanded that this fund be made available to him without strings attached. In other words, the President desires to expend this money as he sees fit, whether it meets with congressional approval or not.

We hear also much discussion of administration policies and legislative proposals providing penalties of a serious character as punishment for those who dare to go contrary to the general recovery laws, as advanced by the President. These penalties, fines for the most part, are being described in some quarters as a form of Hitler terrorism. The administration stands on the ground that it must have complete dominance if its schemes are to be successful, but the fact remains that it is prepared by virtue of the punishment available for its use to take away vast sums of money from the industry or individual which objects to government methods. There is arising more and more criticism of the extreme punishment employed in the New Deal legislation and unless I miss my guess badly this feature of the New Deal will fare back upon its sponsors in a manner most unwelcome to the brain trusters.

In connection with the President's plan to have congress provide him with the $5,000,000,000 fund to use in his discretion, opposition has arisen with some new arguments. While the President constantly is repeating his assertion that the administrative branches of the government can accomplish more with a free hand than by having the money ear-marked by congress for specific use, critics are charging that the President's proposal means putting the government further into business. For example, the senate appropriations committee uncovered information the other day while considering the $5,000,000,000 bill that indicated the existence of a plant by which the federal government would engage in the distribution and sale of gasoline.

It takes no stretch of the imagination to see how this move links with the previous efforts of Secretary Ickes, as oil administrator, to control the whole oil industry. By the distribution and sale of gasoline, the government can enforce regulations by competition which the Supreme court said was unconstitutional. Its control would be exercised through damming up the stocks of gasoline, and oil companies, privately owned, would find themselves at the mercy of government bureaucrats.

There are many other features of the $5,000,000,000 bill against which fire of the opposition has been directed, but it seems safe to say that congress will yield to the Presidential demand and pass the appropriations measure rather than the term desired by the Chief Executive.

With respect to the operation of "reds" in the government as charged by Mr. Fish, Washington long has been deluged with rumors of radical activities. Except for the charges by Dr. William Wirt, the Gary, Ind., school superintendent, Mr. Fish's accusations are the first to place the finger on names. The New Yorker charged on the floor of the house that Robert Marshall, field director for the bureau of Indian Affairs and Gardner Jackson, deputy administrative counsel of the consumers division in the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, among others had made cash contributions to the veterans rank and file committee. He asserted that these contributions were made "for the purpose of instigating a bonus march of communists or Washington," and it is to be remembered that the great bonus march of three years ago was headed by the veterans rank and file committee.

Mr. Fish described Mr. Marshall as one of the younger members of the brain trust and asserted that "most of the members" of the brain trust are or have been active in the American civil liberties union.

The representative cited among those in the brain trust who, he said were active in the civil liberties union the following: Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell, undersecretary of agriculture; Donald R. Rehberg, director of the National Emergency Council and the so-called No. 2 man in the administration; Robert Fechner, Director of the Civilian Conservation Corps; Prof. Paul H. Douglas, of the National Recovery Administration; Dr. Frederic C. Howe, consumers counsel of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration; Nathan R. Margold, of the Interior Department; James M. Landis, a member of the Federal Securities and Exchange Commission and a former member of the federal trade commission; and John A. Lapp, described as an impartial Presidential representative in the National Recovery Administration.

After some 12 years of consideration the senate has refused to approve the American membership in the World Court. In rejecting the President's request for ratification of American adherence to that court the upper house of congress gave the administration its first important setback. And it was an important defeat for Mr. Roosevelt because no one can tell now whether the President is going to maintain the firm grip hitherto held on the senate.

Four Presidents—Harding, Coolidge, and Hoover, Republicans, and Roosevelt—have requested senate ratification and four Presidents have had the thing tossed back to them after bitter battles. This time, as heretofore, the senate rejected the proposal on the ground that the United States was being led into the back door of the League of Nations and all will remember how stubbornly the senate resisted entry into the League of Nations when Woodrow Wilson was President. The same arguments were used as have been used before, namely, that if the United States adhered to the permanent court of international justice (the formal title of the court) the country would be catapulted into the midst of all of Europe's entanglements, jealousies and diplomatic chicanery.

Senator Borah of Idaho, one of the leading opponents of court entry, concluded his argument in the senate with the assertion that the World Court was a court of war and not of peace. Proponents of the court have maintained constantly that the United States could accomplish much toward world peace by participating in court adjudication of controversies. Opponents insisted we should let well enough alone and maintain our isolation. Only through that manner, they argued, can the United States avoid loss of its sovereignty through the dictates of the court decision.

Joseph B. Eastman, federal co-ordinator of railroads, has proposed to congress a new plan for control of the whole structure of transportation in this country. With the approval of the President, Mr. Eastman has offered bills for federal regulation of motor busses and trucks, for the reorganization of the Interstate Commerce Commission and establishment of a federal co-ordinator of transportation as a permanent office, compensation for displaced railroad employees displaced through co-ordination of operation, a revision of the bankruptcy act relating to railroads, provision for the commission to prescribe minimum, as well as maximum joint rail and water rates, provision for elimination of alleged benefits or prejudice as to ports and gateways and to limit the right of reparation for damage due to violations of the interstate commerce laws.

The co-ordinator's proposals resulted from a comprehensive study of the general problems relating to transportation. It was probably the most extensive report on these questions that congress ever has received. Certainly, there can be no lack of information available for use by congress if it determines to enact railroad legislation at this session. Whether such legislation will get through is yet problematical. The consensus seems to be that there will be regulation of the motor trucks and busses, but how far beyond that the congress will go appears to depend upon the President's ability to gain a rubber stamp on his program.

ARE YOU THIN, RUNDOWN?

Mrs. Ruby Blomquist of 319 W. Ellsworth Ave., Denver, Colo., said "I was quite thin a few years ago. My appetite was not good and I suffered from stomach distress. Belching of gas caused me quite a bit of annoyance. I felt weak, became tired very quickly. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery entirely rid me of the stomach distress.
