OUT-OF-THE ORDINARY

The pathetic ending of the life of 'Baby Doe' of Leadville, Colo., impresses us as one of the most unusual and sad happenings of many past years, the particulars of which, are enough to excite extraordinary interest, in a man of sympathy and humble mortal pride. Descending from the highest of wealth and pinnacle of fame in Washington society to say nothing of her popularity in our western states, she dropped to the lower levels of poverty and want. Her courage in defending the Matchless Mine in response to the dying request of her husband, she endured suffering which would almost defy a parallel in history. Let us hope that Baby Doe has found in the world beyond, a more enduring Matchless Mine not made with hands, over the mountains and beyond the rainbow, which divides the sorrows and sufferings of this earth from the blissfulness of eternity.

At Amarillo recently, a dust storm struck the city in the middle of the afternoon. The dust was so thick that the sky was darkened as black as midnight. Flash lights gleamed all over town, chickens went to roost, and hens, thinking it was night, failed to lay until the following day. One absent-minded business man laid off his clerks, locked the door and decided to call it a day, went home, undressed and went to bed.

He was no angel, but parachute jumper Clem Son at Daytona Beach, Fla., recently jumped from an airplane 2,000 feet up. He wore wings on his shoulders and attached to his wrists. His legs supported a webbing, which when spread, gave him the plane surface of a bird. Clem dropped for a long distance and then spread out his arms to check his rapid descent. For a while he glided, then zoomed right and left, shot upwards and downwards, looping three times while the amazed spectators held their breath. At last he pulled the rip-cord of his parachute and settled to earth.

At Lawrence, Mass., the workers in the factory of Nathan Brindis decided to advise the proprietor that they would impose a cut in wages. Hearing of that decision on the part of the men who had been in his employ so long, Mr. Brindis hurried to the room where they were holding the meeting and told them that on account of the increased cost of living, they could not afford to work for less.

It was at the world-famous Monte Carlo and Edward Robinson, an Englishman, had lost all of his money and borrowed just enough to take him home. The gambling house was near the station where Ed was waiting for his train which was due in 10 minutes. He suddenly had a 'hunch.' Rushing over to the gambling den he placed the small amount he had left after buying his ticket, on number seven and it won. He threw again on the same number and won a gain. Throwing all he had the third time on No. 7, he cashed in to the amount of $15,800. He did all that and caught the last car on his train as it pulled out of the station. Yelling back to the game keeper, who stood in front of his resort he shouted: "better luck with the next fellow!"

How About Carrizozo?

Washington, D. C., March 5—Congressman Dempsey (D., N. M.) said Tuesday that the post-office department has detailed an inspector to make a new survey at Alamogordo to obtain information in regard to possible construction of a new federal post-office building in that city. Carrizozo might have the same kind of an investigation for a new federal building. While appropriations are being made over the country for new buildings of that sort, what about one for Carrizozo? The columns of this paper are open to the public for suggestions along that line. Let's hear from you.

Fort Stanton News

James C. Reilly passed away Tuesday morning after a few months of serious illness. Rev. Fr. O'Hara conducted the funeral service in the presence of a great number of Reilly's friends, who came to see him off on his last journey. Among those who will miss the deceased most are his brethren in the Seaman's Social Club, in which organization he took active part; chiefly as chairman of the house committee. One of the magnificent marks of Reilly's unselfish work in the interest of the club, that still stands out after his death, is the beautification of the Club House grounds. This place, once an eye-sore of tumble weeds and trash, is now through Reilly's past efforts one of the nicest spots at the Fort, which with the approach of spring, blossoms forth into a veritable fairyland of floral vegetation.

The Fort Stanton Cleaning & Pressing Shop is to change management in the immediate future. The new owner is our well known friend, Angus Campbell, whose ambition is now to give the Fort residents the best of service in that line. Brand new equipment will be installed to give good satisfaction to the patrons. Angus has obtained the services of Albert Berlant, a man of wide experience in the Tailoring business, who will take his part as business executive until he has gained more experience.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Comrey were here from their ranch near Capitan Wednesday, attended to some important business matters and returned in the afternoon.

Mrs. J. B. Garnett

With the passing of Mrs. J. B. Garnett, went one of the remaining types of the old southern cultured gentlewoman. Her sweetness, graciousness, quiet dignity and the smiling eyes that always saw the good and beautiful things around her, made impressions on all with whom she came in contact. Her life was one of endeavor and fruition and only at the age of 88 had it really reached its fullness, but dates and years have no part in the imperishable youth and purity of a spirit so ready for its homeward flight. We must not say we grieve for her, but we do say, we miss her. —Contributed by a friend.

Normal Life Span 140, Says Voronoff

Gland Specialist Outlines a Plan for Longevity.

Calcutta.—"The natural span of life is 140 years, and I have every hope that one day we may prolong it to this period," declared Dr. Serge Voronoff, the famous exponent of rejuvenation here.

"Everybody who dies between the ages of seventy and ninety is a person who is 'killed,'" Doctor Voronoff added. "The problem is to find out how not to be so 'killed.'"

"Between sixty and seventy is a critical period. Death is awaiting us. Those who wish to survive in the unequal struggle have but one means of gaining their end—to replace their worn-out glands with young and active glands, which will impart a new impulse to the cells of all our organs, causing them to create new young cells and thus rejuvenate the whole organism."

His Methods Recognized.

Doctor Voronoff declared that the most eminent experts now recognized the efficacy of his methods and thousands of operations were being performed in Europe, and also in Japan.

Crosley Still Pioneering

Powell Crosley, Jr., president of Cincinnati Reds, during his first year at the head of the club, spent $310,500 for the best young prospects available in minor leagues. Pioneer in other fields, he now is pioneering in baseball through the initiation of night baseball in the major leagues. Will spend $50,000 in order to give the Reds the finest lighting equipment in the country. This pioneering is in line with his genius, evident at age of thirteen, when he built an electric generator in the attic of his father's home in College Hill, using water power from a water storage tank. With this electricity he lighted his bedroom. There was no electric service in that subdivision at that time, so it was unique.

The only difficulty was procuring an adequate supply of animals for the purpose. The ordinary monkey was not suitable, the specimens of the genera required being the gorilla, orang-outang, chimpanzee or gibbon.

Together with his beautiful young wife, Doctor Voronoff intends to go to Java, where he will spend some time conducting experiments on the blood of the orang-outang. Afterwards he will go to Indo-China to conduct similar research on the gibbon.

Different Blood Types.

Recalling his early work, the doctor said that at first he presumed that the blood of monkeys was of one type instead of the four types present in the human being. Some of the early experiments were not very satisfactory, but after long research he found that the monkeys had four types of blood also, corresponding to those types found in humans.

He therefore altered his methods to include tests of the blood both of the patient and of the animal to make sure that the types of blood corresponded. Then he grafted onto the human being the thyroid, pituitary and sexual glands of the monkey.

The results, he claims, are "highly successful." The change observed in the aging human being could only be described as "something marvelous."

Mantel Pieces

Just now there is a tendency to have very narrow mantels or to do away with the shelf altogether. Before changing the style of your chimney treatment, be very sure the new style will be an improvement over the present one. If you have a very ornate wooden mantelpiece with center mirror and side shelves with columns, it is not in vogue. If it can be simplified, however, to bring it up-to-date without too drastic measures.

Winds Steal Australian Sell

Hundreds of thousands of acres in central Australia disappear every year, according to researches, hot winds carrying the surface soil high and far over the Pacific.

Potatoes Replace Torpedoes on Sub

Amsterdam.—Potatoes and onions—not torpedoes—are stowed in the tubes of the Dutch submarine K-18 now on a 23,000-mile trip from Holland to Sourabaya, Java.

The trip will be the longest ever made by a submarine, and will take eight months.

When provisions were stored aboard the 707-ton craft at Newwedeep, Holland, it was found that there wasn't enough room. The commander then decided it was better to leave two torpedoes at home, rather than bales of potatoes and onions.

OVERCOMING ENVIRONMENT

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

No two of our national heroes present a greater contrast in personality and environment than Lincoln and Washington. The one born poor, the other rich. The one ungainly and awkward, the other favored with all the social amenities of his time. Our country honors the memory of both not only for what they were but for what they did.

The private as well as the public careers of Lincoln and Washington furnish a striking illustration of a successful effort in overcoming the influence of environment. Lincoln was forced constantly to fight poverty with all its handicaps and disadvantages. In spite of this he developed a mental poise and a convincing personality which was brilliantly demonstrated in his masterful debate with the illustrious

An Orange Belt Beauty

Betty Runkle, charming twenty-year-old miss, of Winter Haven, was chosen queen of the Florida Orange Festival, an annual midwinter event in her native city. She was selected from among 24 contenders for the honor representing as many orange belt communities, sponsored by chambers of commerce, women's organizations and civic and service clubs.

Douglas. A biographer writes "he was born as lowly as the Son of God." True. But there was also bequeathed to him certain powers which enabled him to master rather than succumb to his surroundings. The rattlepitter truly became "a true-born kin of men." Washington with an environment as superior as Lincoln's was inferior, refused to be mastered either by its allurements or its proffered life of ease. When the country's call came to him he left his luxurious home on the beautiful Potomac and through service both as general and President, earned the title of "Father of his Country." His environment which offered a life of ease, did not master him any more than did his poverty master the Emancipator.

The power which enables any person to overcome the temptations and disadvantages of his environment is from within and not from without. Poverty and the loss of influence, never justifies crime or self-destruction. The possession of wealth and cultural advantages offers no excuse for indulgence or a calloused attitude toward human need. The forces of heredity are always stronger than those of environment. This fact is splendidly illustrated in the careers of both Lincoln and Washington.

Biologist Makes 5 Year Study of Fish in Texas

Houston, Texas.—Albert Collier, biologist at Rice Institute, has completed a five-year study of salt and fresh water fish in this region. His survey revealed more than 100 salt water and 20 fresh water species. The resident family, with licpides the croaker, drum, sand trout, spotted trout, and the spot fish, is the largest of the salt water variety, while the bass species are the most prevalent of fresh water fish.

The Household

By Lydia Le Baron Walker

THERE is one social error that all of us can avoid, and that is arriving at a house before the time set in an invitation. It is preferable to be a few moments late than a few moments early. Few things are more distracting to a hostess than to be in the hurry of last moment preparations, and to be caught not quite ready to greet a guest arriving before time.

There are hostesses who have the happy habit of being ready in advance of the hour when visitors should come. But for every one of these, there are hundreds of other hostesses who are ready on time but not before, and scores of others who have to scramble to be fully ready on the minute.

What is essential for the one entertaining is to be ready to greet her friends at the appointed time, knowing that the rooms, the food and the entertainment are in readiness, also. She should plan to have at least fifteen minutes to spare before arrivals begin. Unless she does there will not be opportunity for the last minute extras which are sure to crop up. A hostess who is flustered when she welcomes her guests cannot be at ease, and this tends to make her friends a trifle embarrassed. Neither of these things gives a good start to the occasion.

An Unhappy Start.

It is the early guest who so often upsets plans. The unexpected, and really unwarranted, appearance of the too-early guest is bad enough when there are servants to admit the person, and assist in taking off wraps, but when the hostess has to do everything, which so often is the case, it is difficult for her to welcome the early arrival with the cordiality she wants to express. She must not give the impression of realizing her friend has come too soon, and this means she must not appear to have things wait for her to do.

Such a situation is awkward. It need not happen if we give a little thought to it. For example, if we find it took less time to get to the house than we had expected, we can walk around the block, or wait in some store, if there is one near enough. We must save our hostess from embarrassment by some method, and allow her the opportunity for readiness. We can arrive on the dot of time set, and feel no qualms if the hostess is not ready to receive us. It is for her to be ready then, and it is correct for us to arrive then—but not before. Most hostesses, however hurried during the final moments, are ready on time to welcome punctual guests with gracious hospitality.

Good Humor at Party.

Now that the season for entertainment is in full swing, it is well to consider how to keep what the Europeans call the humor of the occasion good. That is, how to keep everyone in a gay, happy, and contented spirit.

This is essential if a party is to be a success. An idea which helps decidedly toward this end is to have conversational subjects either of common interest to all, or so surprising that interest is created. This is particularly true when persons who are gathered together meet for the first time, or so seldom that they are entirely or partially strangers. Such an assembly occurs at club luncheons, church socials and suppers, grange meetings, etc.

Cards with controversial questions or subjects can be passed around, and different groups be given different topics. Or partners can be chosen by matching numbers, or in any of the hundreds of ways that there are, and each couple be given a conversational card. If persons are strangers this forms a basis for getting acquainted.

Recalling the Regency

The increasing vogue for Regency fashions is apparent in this charming new spring afternoon gown of crepe printed with huge polka dots. The tight, crossed bodice is of matching color crepe, and the cute poke bonnet is festooned with long streamers.

Painting Brick

Well-aged brick, stucco and concrete require no different paint from other exterior work. If these surfaces are not well-aged, however, they should be given special primers which usually contain tung oil varnishes. Any high quality house paint may then be used for the finishing coats. Or, if preferred, special stucco or brick coatings may be used. Ordinary brick, concrete and stucco are unusually porous. This porosity is an advantage from a painter's point of view because it allows the paint to penetrate deeply and thus secure a firm anchorage.

INDIAN "MEDICINE"

A Lyons man who is convinced that the editor knows Indian "medicine" asked if we could not do something to chase zero weather away. We have to confess we did not because we are not thoroughly schooled in the dark arts of the redskin.

But we do know, from him, how to bring cold weather so that furs and skins may be better, that animals may be tracked in the snow and that spring may not come dangerously soon. You take a small boy and strip him naked. Then you start him going north from the village, cursing the north wind and defying the north wind to come and meet him. It will not be long until he comes running back with the old north wind growling at his heels and the frost king nipping his tender posterior.—Lyons News.

Constipated?

The doctors say... Use liquid treatment

Here is the soundest advice anyone can give on the subject of laxatives. It is based on medical opinion. We want you to have the benefit of this information no matter what laxative you may buy:

The secret of real relief from constipation is reduced dosage. You can't regulate the bowels unless you can regulate the help you give them. That is why doctors use a liquid laxative; the dose can be measured to a drop.

Avoid laxatives that you can't cut down in dosage; especially those that seem to require larger doses than when you began their use.

Under the doctor's care, you usually get a liquid laxative. The right liquid laxative gives the right kind of help, and the right amount of help. Smaller and smaller doses—until you don't need any.

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains salts and cascara—natural laxatives that form no habit.

Chic Worst for Suit and Ensemble

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHEN it comes to topnotch swank, audacious color schemes and versatile weaves the new worsteds which go to make up the spring suits and ensembles have arrived at a dramatic moment in their career.

It is nothing uncommon in the advance spring styles parade for an ensemble to be fashioned of a skirt of one woolen, a blouse of another with the jacket, coats or long coat still another type and color.

The call of the immediate mode is for the suave and slim fitted tailored suit which has a related topcoat of heavier wool to go with it.

Centered in the group is a two-piece tailleur with button trim from neck to hem with a brown oxford topcoat held in readiness, its color being complementary to the brown and white check of the suit.

To the right is an early spring arrival—a coat made of a "nifty" new woolen of intriguing novelty. The check is achieved via a shaggy sur-facted cord on a navy blue background. Navy, by the way, is at the top of the list of important colors for spring.

The new "companion woollens" brought out this season provide endless opportunity to designers to work out striking and original fashions.

Another model consists of a fitted suit in cinnamon brown wool with a loose topcoat in the same woolen which is striped in white.

Rustic weaves in coatings are high style for sportswear, such as a basket weave check in soft spongy texture.

TORTOISE SHELL

If you are the sort who wish to be "first in fashion" in your set, appear on the scene wearing either of the tortoise shell sports jewelry ensembles here pictured.

MUST HAVE VELVET TOUCH TO ENSEMBLE

Even if you don't want to wear a velvet frock or suit this year, there should be a touch of velvet about you if you are to be truly smart and luxurious looking.

A turban of velvet ribbon done with intricate twists and drapings is always good when worn by the picturesquely or exotic type.

Then, too, there are afternoon bags of velvet, many of them shirred and trimmed with rhinestone or mirror ornaments.

Though Clothes Are Very Chic, They Are Practical

Clothes are ever so smart this season, but at no time have the designers lost sight of the practical. Thus we have tunics that are strikingly elaborate, yet they will give new life to an old evening frock, or a long, slim skirt.

Frothiness Net dresses, sometimes complemented by capes, all are marked by extreme frothiness about the neck, shoulders and hem lines.

Sport Sweaters The smartest of sports sweaters show a decided English influence in their conformation to more or less simple and classic styles.

Third Party becoming clear Ramblings

Washington.—Certain signs of transition are appearing in the political picture. They are Third Party becoming clear Ramblings enough to deserve attention.

Third party rumblings are beginning to be heard along the whole political front. This is noteworthy because third party rumblings usually are confined to a few sectors, some important, some unimportant.

The fact that these various groups are again examining the potentialities and the possibilities of 1936 brings directly into question the progress made by the New Deal in its program of reformation or revolution.

It is two years since President Roosevelt carried his New Deal into the White House.

There is a faction in congress, all claiming to be good Democrats, who are on the trail of Seek Farley's Postmaster General Scalp.

Within the last few days a gang has banded together on the trail of Donald Richberg, until recently the man who was closest of any in the administration to the President.

Governor Eccles of the Federal Reserve bureau, a rather new New Dealer and a fast thinker, has not helped the administration's situation in congress any by his bank bill.

Observers here agree that one cannot consider the outlook for 1936, and the national elections of that time, without considering the influence that these left wingers may wield.

The progressives, including such men as LaFollette of Wisconsin, Norris of Nebraska, and Wheeler of Montana, seem to feel that the New Deal program has about jelled.

Need Hero Leader The progressives, including such men as LaFollette of Wisconsin, Norris of Nebraska, and Wheeler of Montana, seem to feel that the New Deal program has about jelled.

As to Huey Long Mr. Roosevelt. In fact Huey would like to be President himself. Political ambitions combined with a vitriolic tongue give Huey a broad platform upon which to perform and succeed.

It is even possible that these current third party rumblings will mean, so more than they have in many cases

In the past. This is true because there is not a Theodore Roosevelt in sight at the moment and some astute politicians insist there is not one in the country.

That brings us to some of the circumstances in congress at the present time. In previous letters I have reported to you that there were signs indicating difficulties for Mr. Roosevelt in holding his gigantic Democratic majorities together in the house and senate.

As one of the signs of this growing discontent, one has only to look back over the last few weeks and observe the continued prodding being given the administration from the Democratic side.

BRITAIN MAKES SCIENTIFIC STUDY OF STORED FOOD

A scientific study of the transport and storage of fish, meat, fruit and vegetables has recently been completed by the British department of scientific and industrial research.

Research demonstrated that fish, stored in crushed ice aboard trawlers may be kept in good condition from 10 to 12 days.

Research demonstrated that fish, stored in crushed ice aboard trawlers may be kept in good condition from 10 to 12 days.

In discussing congressional troubles for the administration no one dares overlook the stocky figure of Senator Huey Long.

Huey knows that the administration is going to overlook no opportunity for harpooning him.

It must be remembered that if, for example, Attorney General Cummings should authorize or direct any action against Huey, the Louisiana senator immediately would capitalize those orders as an administration movement to persecute him.

Huey is a political bombshell. He is going to be given long and serious consideration because Huey is a political bombshell.

Ghost-Towns
(By James W. Smith)

White Oaks, New Mexico, is one of the old Ghost Towns. In the distance it appears to be a fair-sized village. Coming closer one sees that the soundly-constructed brick and stone buildings are with few exceptions, uninhabited and deserted. The dirt road crawls crookedly past tall houses whose empty windows look sightlessly across the scarred hillsides. Wood smoke rises listlessly from a few of the houses built on the far side of the arroyo but the larger ones show no signs of habitation.

Sitting on the curb of what was once the main street, we pondered pessimistically upon the evanescence of men's dreams; of the quick decay of men's work; upon the plans for aggrandizement that must have been made here.

We noticed that the graveyard is the best kept spot in town. Hope and desire for immortality. We might have philosophized on and on, but the postmaster and proprietor of the General Store invited us to come in and look at his specimens. Wayne Van Schoyck is his name and he was just bursting to talk. I asked, "What happened to the town?"

"It's a long story," he answered. And between explaining about the specimens of ore, he told us, "Everyone expected the railroad to come through White Oaks. Six million dollars worth of gold has come out of the mines, and there is plenty of coal. The only camp in the world that has both gold and coal," the vigorous old Dutchman explained proudly. After making several surveys through the canyon, the railroad cut northward from Carrizozo and left White Oaks behind a range of high hills.

"From then on, the town began to go down," explained Van Schoyck. "I was running sheep and the surveying gang was staying at my camp where there was water. One day a letter came from El Paso and they changed the line. If the railroad had come through here Carrizozo wouldn't have amounted to anything. All they've got is the railroad. We have the mines and we have a good climate. It's cool in the summer and warm in the winter, and we don't have dust storms they have on the flats."

We looked at the specimens of gold, tungsten, coal and fool's gold in the cases. There was an assay report of ore from a pocket in "The Little Mac," showing a value of $2,500 per ton, which, at the present price of gold, would run to $5,000.

There was a pre-historic sea shell from a nearby mountain top, an old ox shoe — and above all there was the conversation of Van Schoyck. He told us about "The Little Mac" and the "Smuggler" and the "Old Abe" — defunct mines with colorful names. How he lost eighteen thousand dollars in a fire-blackened ruin across the road, and how Dave Jackson, a Negro, had taken out two hundred thousand dollars worth of gold and then put it back in the same mine. Soon it was his time to leave and as we drove around a bend in the road we could see Van Schoyck standing in his doorway waving goodbye.

SYNOPSIS

Theodore Gatlin adopts a baby, 'Penelope,' in an effort to solve his marital troubles. But his wife has never wanted her, and their affairs end in the divorce court. At a baseball game...

Flynn and Angellotti needed no second invitation. They searched the house thoroughly and returned to the little drawing room to finish their drinks.

Chief, what's going to become of that speed boat? It belongs to Nance. She bought it for forty-five hundred dollars.

McNamara sat down and looked his amazement. 'She paid forty-five hundred dollars for that boat—and yet she was doing time for pinching silk stockings? I don't like to ask you any questions you might be embarrassed to answer, boy, but today will be a total loss to me unless I find out where she keeps her bank roll.'

'That's Nance's business and I'll not discuss it. She sent the check out in the letter outlining her plan of escape.'

'Who received the letter?' 'A friend who showed it to us—and we decided to help Nance out. We both owed her a debt we couldn't see any other way of paying.'

'An' we had another advantage. That speed boat throws a wide white bow wave, an' the water for fifty feet behind her and twenty feet on each side is a smother of foam when she's doing her stuff—bullets couldn't throw up any water that could be seen from a distance in the big spray. When you're machine gunnin' a fast movin' target, you got to see where your shots are droppin' if you're goin' to correct your range fast an' accurately. Then we had another advantage. The guards are in a w'n' tower on a hill or a high wall an' the early ranges they'd be firin' down hill. Even the work of an expert gunner, firin' at a down angle, goes off considerable. The cockpit was lined with steel, so after the boy friend got Nance aboard, they stopped and were safe. The only trouble was that the edge of one burst got Cates before he could flip. The front cockpit was steel lined, too.

The man grinned sheepishly. 'I wouldn't take that chance again, Chief. Those gunners were better than we figured them.'

'You're both men after my own heart. Well, take good care of your friends. I've got to be on the job till midnight tonight.'

'How long you goin' to keep us here?' 'You can bet your sweet life it won't be very long. You're too dangerous to me.'

In his official car, driven by a policeman chauffeur, McNamara motored down to central station, where he immediately sent upstairs for Nance Belden's record and photographs and proceeded to San Quentin.

yielded no clues and a blank check of the Security Trust company, of San Jose.

'Nothing of interest in the girl's abandoned effects,' he reported to the warden. 'By the way, I want to have a chin-chin with one of your prisoners—Benny Beetle, Number 41,322.'

'Will you do me a favor, Benny?' the chief asked him when he came in. 'Only one. Dan? I owe you three.'

'We'll forget the other two and collect on one. Do you work the good-conduct prisoner who works in the identification bureau?'

The Beetle nodded. 'Know anybody whose time is up, shortly?'

'My cell-mate.'

'If he could bring me word that the photographs, fingerprints and Bertillon measurements of Nance Belden—remember that name!—have mysteriously disappeared, I'd be inclined to be his friend if he got into a jam later on and it wasn't too serious.'

'I'll do what I can for you, Chief. I'll ask Bender. He's assistant to the file clerk.'

'See him in the mess-hall at noon. And see somebody in the prison print shop. They're probably running off placards to send to all the postmasters in the state. That's where they advertise for escaped prisoners—in post office lobbies. Can't let those placards with the halftone photos and Bertillon measurements get out, you know. Good-by, Benny and thanks a lot.'

From San Quentin Dan McNamara motored down to San Jose and called upon L. Abrahama, ladies' tailor.

'Mr. Abrahama, have you ever made a tailored suit for a girl with a nose that something has smashed flat in the middle?'

'Sure I have,' Abrahama replied. 'You mean Miss Penelope Gatlin, don't you?'

Abrahama looked in his card index cabinet, then opened a large book in which he kept his customers' measurements recorded, together with a sample of the cloth from which each order has been cut. Dan McNamara unhesitatingly placed his finger on one of these samples. 'That was the cloth.'

'Sure, that was the suit I made for Miss Gatlin two years ago.'

'Did Miss Gatlin live in this city? If so, I'd like to have her address.'

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for March 10

PETER PREACHES TO GENTILES

LESSON TEXT—Acts 10:1-11:18. GOLDEN TEXT—Of a truth I perceive God is no respecter of persons: but in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him. Acts 10:28, 35.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Peter Learns That God Loves Everybody. JUNIOR TOPIC—Peter Learns Something New. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Gospel for All. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Overcoming Racial and National Prejudices.

The missionary program of the church having broadened to include the Samaritans in Phillip's preaching in Samaria, we see in this lesson the program still widening and embracing the Gentiles. Through the conversion of Cornelius, the middle wall of partition was broken down (Eph. 2:14).

1. The Man Cornelius (10:1, 2).

1. His official position (v. 1). He was a centurion, a Roman officer over a company of one hundred soldiers.

2. His character (v. 2). a. 'A devout man.' b. 'A benevolent man.' c. 'A praying man.' d. 'Highly respected by his family.'

The Lord chose Cornelius as the channel of the transition of the gospel to the Gentiles because of his character and position.

11. Supernatural Preparation for the Transition of the Gospel to the Gentiles (10:3-35).

In order to bring this about, observe:

1. Two visions were given. a. The vision of Cornelius (vv. 3-6). While engaged in prayer, an angel of God instructed him to send to Joppa for Peter, who would tell him what to do. Cornelius sent at once for Peter.

b. The vision of Peter (vv. 9-16). While Peter was praying (v. 9) he saw a certain vessel containing clean and unclean animals let down from heaven, and heard the command, 'Rise, Peter; kill, and eat.' Peter protested that he had never eaten any unclean thing. God replied, 'What God hath cleansed, that call not thou common.' This vessel, let down and taken back, indicated that both Jews and Gentiles were accepted on high.

2. A messenger sent from Cornelius (vv. 17-22). Peter was greatly perplexed over what he had seen, but not for long, for a messenger from Cornelius made inquiry at the gate for him. The Spirit informed Peter of the matter and bade him go, nothing doubting.

3. The meeting of Cornelius and Peter (vv. 23-33).

a. Peter took six witnesses along (v. 23 cf. 11:12). In a matter of so great importance he must have witnesses.

b. Cornelius waiting for Peter (v. 24) called together his kinsmen and near friends.

c. Cornelius, about to worship Peter (vv. 25, 26), was told by Peter that he himself was but a man.

d. The reciprocal explanation (vv. 27-33). Peter explained how God had taken from him his Jewish prejudices. Cornelius explained how God had instructed him to send for Peter.

111. Peter's Sermon (vv. 34-43).

1. The Introduction (vv. 34, 35) showed that God is no respecter of persons (see Golden Text).

Control Disease; Quarantine Urged

Every Precaution Should Be Taken to Halt Spread of Infection.

By Dr. C. D. Griswold, Dairy Investigation, U. S. Agricultural Experiment Station, WNU Service.

Diseased animals should be quarantined to prevent the spread of infection. Quarantine not only protects the healthy animals, but it also facilitates the treatment of diseased animals.

Introducing new animals into a herd without quarantining them for a period of 30 to 40 days is not favored. If at the end of the period they are found to be free from disease, then it is considered safe to place them in the herd.

While in quarantining the animals should be watched closely for any trace of disease. The period necessary to keep the animals under close observation varies, depending upon where the new animals came from, the type of animal, and its physical condition.

Animals collected from different farms, assembled in public stock yards, and shipped long distances are dangerous sources of infection, as they are exposed to many chances for catching disease at a time when their resistance is lowered.

But animals which have been hauled only short distances are also liable to become infected, while many come from herds where disease is present, the need for precaution is necessary whenever bringing new stock into a herd.

A few infected animals can spread disease through a whole herd in a few days, and it is risky to wait a day or two before putting the new stock into quarantine, even though there is no apparent indication of disease.

Eliminate Parasites to Conserve Supply of Feed

Stock feed can be conserved this winter by eliminating parasites that sap the strength of the affected animals, states Dr. F. N. Stout, extension veterinarian at the Colorado agricultural college.

Not only will the elimination of parasites allow the live stock to winter through on less feed, but indigestion and colic may be prevented, Doctor Stout says.

Lice on cattle can be eliminated by dipping anytime on a sunny day. The best dip solution is nicotine sulphate. One dip will eliminate all live lice, but a second application may be made 15 days later to catch the lice hatched during the interval.

Heavy bot parasites should be treated not sooner than one month after a freeze hard enough to eliminate the freeze flies, as it requires a month's time for the larvae to migrate to the stomach. In addition to the bots, other intestinal parasites such as roundworms and tapeworms will be eliminated.

When Cows Chew Wood

When cows chew wood or bones and eat dirt it shows that the dairy ration is deficient in mineral matter, which should be corrected at once. Examine the ration carefully and add those foods that are high in minerals. Legume hays, such as cowpeas, soybeans, clover, and alfalfa are rich in calcium and will supply a nutritious amount of this mineral for the average cow. Phosphorus is supplied by wheat bran, cottonseed meal, and soybean meal. These feeds contain about 30 per cent of this mineral. It might be well to add two pounds of a mineral mixture composed of equal parts of finely ground limestone and steamed bone meal to each 100 pounds of the concentrate ration.

Birds Display Enmity at Sight of Airplane

Birds are more frightened of airplanes than are big game, an English aviator reports. When flying over Britain I have noticed that the pheasant, partridge, and even the domesticated hen, are thoroughly scared when an airplane dunes in their direction. They appear to think that a plane is a giant hawk about to swoop down on them. It is a curious assertion among people who lived on the east coast of Britain during the World war that they received their first warning of impending Zeppelin raids from pheasants. These pheasants invariably awoke, began calling to each other and scattered away in flight long before the noise of aero engines became apparent to human ears.

There are several cases of condors attacking airplanes crossing the Andes. Once, it is told, a large condor espied an all-metal airplane winging through the blue. Immediately the huge bird swooped down and struck the intruder with stunning force on the wing. All that was left to tell of the encounter was a large rent in the wing, some feathers, and a condor's leg complete with its foot.

New Species of Ermine

What is declared to be a new species of ermine, one of the most valuable animals in the world, has been discovered in the Komy region of Russia in the neighborhood of the Ural mountains. The animals were found by an expert on fur-bearing animals. The fur and hide of the new species has been tested, and are stated to be superior in quality to most of the ermine now on sale.

Abandoned Fort Turned Into National Monument

Fort Jefferson, Off Florida, Has Glamorous History.

Washington.—Fort Jefferson, an abandoned fortress on one of the tiny Dry Tortugas islands off Florida, recently turned over by the United States navy to the National Park service, has a history that is "at once glamorous, tragic, and futile," says the National Geographic society.

"The Dry Tortugas lie some sixty miles to the west of Key West, like an afterthought to the main Florida Keys," continues the bulletin. "These isolated isles are nothing more than seven low bars of wind-swept shell and coral sand, sparsely covered with small bay cedars and palms, encircled by dangerous reefs and uninhabited—except for a few faithful lighthouse keepers, and thousands upon thousands of nesting sooty and noddy terns."

"The fully bastioned brick and stone walls of Fort Jefferson, on Garden Key, once earned for it the nickname 'Gibraltar of America.' Long obsolete as a means of defense, the hoary stronghold now has become a national monument by Presidential order.

Futile Military History.

"Despite its resounding nickname, however, the dismantled and decaying Fort Jefferson has played a futile part in military history. Built in 1846, it was supposed to guard the ship lanes between Cuba and Florida, but even before it was completed the vast citadel was agreed to be a military mistake. It was garrisoned, however, early during the Civil war and held by federal forces throughout the conflict, serving as a prison after 1863.

"No enemy gun ever poured shot and shell into its barracks. A Confederate gunboat sailed cautiously within range in 1861, but it was frightened away when the commander of the fort trained upon the warship his full complement of guns—scarcely a dozen of which were loaded!

"Although it never figured in a military action, the grim old stronghold is no stranger to horror and death. Within its moated walls yellow fever suddenly appeared in August, 1867.

"All officers, including the surgeon, died, and for a time direction of medical affairs rested with a prisoner. This was the unfortunate Dr. Samuel A. Mudd, who had been imprisoned at the island fort because, when awakened in the dead of night, at his Maryland home below Washington, he had set the broken leg of a stranger who turned out to be John Wilkes-Booth, assassin of President Lincoln. Doctor Mudd courageously tended the sick and dying until he, too, was taken ill. He recovered, and, because of his heroic efforts, was granted a full pardon.

Used in War With Spain. "Fort Jefferson was finally abandoned in 1873, although it was temporarily reoccupied by American troops during the Spanish-American war. Since 1900 it has been a ward of the Navy department. As a national monument it will be open to visitors. Already a force of relief workers has cleaned up part of the courtyard and is installing quarters for those who come by boat or plane and wish to remain overnight. Fort Jefferson is one of the least-known bits of American domain, because under navy rule it was closed to all visitors, and not even airplanes were permitted to fly over it.

"The Dry Tortugas possess a great many attractions for fishermen and naturalists. More than 600 varieties of fish abound in the clear waters off its enveloping reefs, and Bird Key has long been a national bird and turtle refuge.

"The Dry Tortugas owe the last part of their name to Ponce de Leon, who discovered the islands in June, 1513. Tortuga is Spanish for turtle. The famous explorer captured 170 of the reptiles there to replenish the larder of his ship. In 1505 that sturdy Elizabethan, Capt. J. Hawkins, homeward bound from a profitable voyage in forbidden Spanish waters, visited the islands. He loaded his plinths with birds of species that still breed there by thou-

Non-Freezing Lake Gives Farmer Idea

Geneva, N. Y.—Farmer Dell had a great idea.

The farmer's inspiration came from a peculiarity of Seneca lake, one of the state's most famous beauty spots.

The lake seldom freezes, despite the fact that surrounding waters are sheets of ice. Only in the most severe cold spells will the lake develop more than skim ice.

Farmer Dell's idea, as he later admitted, was to fill the radiator of his automobile with Lake Seneca water, and save the cost of purchasing non-freezing agents.

To his surprise, the water which would not freeze in Lake Seneca turned to ice so quickly during a zero cold wave that the radiator burst in several places.

Moon Looks Like Green Cheese, Asserts Expert

Washington.—Sweethearts may find romance in the moon, but it's just another piece of green cheese to Dr. Harry Burton, astronomer at the naval observatory.

Doctor Burton views the moon through a 20-inch telescope. He said the celestial body is made of pumice and volcanic ash.

Explaining why he thought the moon looked like green cheese, the astronomer said its upper quarter is full of holes, which are really extinct volcano craters. This part resembles Swiss cheese.

Near the center and the lower half of the orb, he said, the surface is smoother and a darker green. This is caused by the setting sun and shadows cast by mountains. To Doctor Burton it looks like green cheese mold.

Find College Students' Honesty Nearly Perfect

Delaware, Ohio.—Ohio Wesleyan university students are "almost perfect" in the matter of honesty, believes Charles Hamilton, Y. M. C. A. president.

"The 'y' has been selling examination books at a cost of one cent each. The books are placed on a table and students asked to drop their pennies in a box nearby. Although several thousand books have been sold, an average of only one in 100 is unaccounted for, Hamilton said.

Fortune in Stamps Is Revealed in Waste Paper

Burlington, Wis.—An old receipt bearing a canceled stamp blew against the feet of Jay Land here and he picked it up. Trying to trace its source, he discovered that it came from a bale of paper which a junk man had taken from an old express office in a neighboring town.

Land bought the bale for 75 cents. It contained many more stamps of the Civil war period. He already has sold $150 worth to dealers and has made one rare find that may be worth as much as all the others sold.

HELP FROM JULIAN

By R. H. WILKINSON
© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

BEGINNING with the day that Julian Merris had blackened the eye of the town bully for trying to kiss Nita Crandon, Julian had been Nita's hero.

At the time of the eye blackening, the pair had been aged twelve and eight respectively.

Now they were twenty-six and twenty-two, and the situation hadn't changed a great deal.

That is to say, Nita still looked upon Julian as a protector, a confidant, and an adviser.

A role which Julian filled willingly and capably.

Today as Nita sat before her bedroom window and looked out across the lawn of her father's estate, across the highway and along the drive that led to the home of Julian's father and the abiding place of Julian himself, her expression was one of forlorn distress.

At the moment she needed Julian's help and counsel more than ever before. Yet she was reluctant to seek him out.

It was possible, she thought, that Julian might not take kindly to this most important of all requests.

It was possible he'd laugh at her, chide her, make light of the situation.

That would hurt.

And to be hurt right now, especially by Julian, would be torture.

Nita took the time to reflect back to the day when Julian had blackened the eye of the town bully in her defense.

From this point forward her thoughts followed her own and Julian's career to the conclusion of grammar school, through high school, through college, and the years that followed after graduation.

And not once could she remember a time when Julian had failed to come to her aid, either voluntarily or at her request.

He had been noble, kind, thoughtful, always considerate and concerned with her problems as much as though they had been his own.

No, she decided, he would not fail her now.

Not Julian.

No matter what the nature of her troubles might be.

And so Nita climbed down from the window seat, arranged her hair, powdered her nose, caught up a wrap and went out.

She found Julian down on the shore of the lake that bordered on the Merris place.

He was tinkering with a motor of an old power boat.

His hands were greasy and his face was streaked.

He seemed to be on the point of exasperation, yet at Nita's step he looked up, and at sight of her the exasperated look departed and was replaced by a cheerful and welcoming grin.

"Hello," he said, sitting down on the gunwale.

"And you dropped over. Soon's as I get this old tub fixed I'll give you a ride."

Nita did not return the grin.

She sat down on the wharf's edge, letting her feet dangle, and stared soberly out over the shimmering blue of the lake.

of her words had suddenly occurred to him also.

He drew away his hand and stared moodily out over the lake.

For a long moment they remained thus.

At last Nita turned to look at him.

"Julian, can't you think of some way?"

Julian didn't return her look.

"Nita, I don't want you to get married!"

"Don't want me to! Julian, what- ever are you saying? Why shouldn't I get married? Why don't you want me to?"

He didn't reply at once, and Nita went on:

"I know what you're thinking. You're thinking he's a cad for making me miserable. But he isn't, Julian. He's wonderful and grand and handsome. And, oh, he could make me so happy. I've waited and waited for him to propose. And—now, Julian, I've come to you for help. You simply must think of something!"

Julian turned at last and met her gaze squarely.

"It isn't that that I was thinking. Nita. I wasn't thinking about him, or how miserable he's made you, or how to solve your problem."

Nita looked at him aghast.

"You weren't! Then you don't care! Then you won't help me; don't want to help me?"

"I was thinking," Julian went on, "that it isn't fair. It isn't fair at all—to have you want to marry."

"Fair? I don't believe I understand, Julian. What isn't fair?"

"It isn't fair," said Julian, drawing close to her, "it isn't fair to have you love some one else when—"

He suddenly reached out, and his arms encircled her in a fierce grip.

He drew her toward him. His lips crushed against hers. She yielded.

He held her thus for, it seemed, an eternity.

He kissed her again and again.

Hot passionate kisses that sent little tremors vibrating through her body.

At last he released her, looked fiercely into her eyes.

"It isn't fair," he continued huskily, "for you to want to marry some one else, when I love you madly, when I've always loved you, when I've dreamed endlessly of the day when I can claim you all for my own. That's what isn't fair!"

Breathless, flushed, her eyes shining with a strange, unaccountable light, Nita clung to him tenderly.

"Julian! Julian! Dear, darling, Julian! It is fair! It is! Don't you see? Can't you understand what I was trying to say! Trying to make you do?"

And when he stared at her in speechless incredulity, she went on happily.

"Julian, darling, precious, you're the man! You are the man I'm in love with, who won't ask me to marry him, who is making me miserable!"

And then the white frock became more greasy besmeared than ever.

THIS FROCK "JUST RIGHT" FOR PLAY

ATTENTION BOYS For a tiny girl's play or school frock nothing could be very much nicer than this adorable little bloomer frock with its quaint over-the-shoulder yoke and prettily puffed sleeves. The frock is simple to slip into, too, buttoning up the front, with only three buttons to be fastened. And it allows plenty of room for romping—the skirt is gathered to the yoke at the back and box-pleated in front. A smart checked or plaid wool or cotton would be pretty for this frock—little girls always seem to love gay colors—and be sure to make up four or five of those crisp white collars in linen or pique. Plan to Explore Stratosphere by Rockets Professor to Use Projectiles to Go 150 Miles.

Roswell, N. M.—Rockets equipped with automatic recording devices will be shot into the stratosphere to a distance of from 40 to 150 miles from the earth's surface from an especially constructed 60-foot tower near here this spring in science's latest attempt to penetrate the secrets behind cosmic rays, light rays and radio waves.

The experiments will be the culmination of months of work on the part of Dr. R. H. Goddard, head of the department of physics at Clark university, Worcester, Mass., who expects they will yield data of great value to science. One immediate beneficiary would be radio broadcasting.

The tower is rising in a shallow valley 25 miles from Roswell. In the meantime Doctor Goddard is carrying out preliminary experiments on a farm four miles from here, aided by a staff of assistants.

The Guggenheim foundation is financing the unique tests. Roswell was selected for the site of the experiments because of unique atmospheric and climatic conditions.

The type of rocket to be used is 12 feet long and approximately 2 feet in diameter at its widest point. It is equipped with a parachute designed to be released at the highest point of its flight.

There is no danger of the rocket causing injury, Doctor Goddard believes, as he calculated it will return to the earth almost vertically, and its flight will be under control from the tower at all times. The tower site is 15 miles from the nearest settlement.

Advantages of the rocket ascensions over stratosphere balloon flights lie in the fact that balloons, to rise beyond 14 miles, must be of such great size and at the same time such light weight that construction dangerous to passengers results, according to Doctor Goddard. He pointed to the fatal outcome of the 72,000 feet stratosphere ascension of three Soviet Russians.

The date of the projected tests will depend on the results of ground experiments now being conducted here.

"There is a long period of testing before any practical results are certain," Doctor Goddard explained. "We will probably spend several months in the laboratory before any test will be made."

775 U. S. Planes Are Now Equipped With Radios

Washington.—A recent survey by the bureau of air commerce shows that there are 775 radio-equipped airplanes in commercial and private operation throughout the United States, whereof 345 are owned by the scheduled air lines, 246 installed in private planes, 185 in ships, used by individual firms for business purposes and 40 in craft employed for air taxi and charter flights. Government-owned aircraft, such as that operated by the army, navy and bureau of air commerce itself, many of which carry radio equipment, was not included in the survey.

A considerable increase in the employment of airplane radio among private owners during the coming year is anticipated as a result of developments that have been under way for some

Took a trip down the lower valley Sunday. Things look pretty prosperous there; farmers are plowing and getting ready for the long-hoped for spring. It won't be long now until the buds will begin to appear and baseball players will begin their spring practise.—Then will be time for a bold refrain.

Floy Skinner of Nogal was here early Monday morning, despite of the wind, sleet, snow, blizzard and what have you "Shux," quoth Floy when asked how he liked the blizzard, "it is nice compared to the blizzards I've been in, at the Bonito Dam country. This is an enjoyable day in comparison." We presume Senor Skinner knows what he's talking about, being water superintendent for the S. P.

We notice the building being added to the progressive Hondo School is rapidly nearing completion. Said building, we understand, is to be used as a gymnasium. Our hats are again off to the enterprising people of the Hondo vicinity.

The Bonnell Ranch is certainly a marvelous place in which to stop; it is on the asphalt road which makes the world's best highway. The air is so fresh and bracing, being high up in the mountains. The climate at the Bonnell Ranch in Glencoe is unexcelled — in fact the Ranch is an ideal place to spend a vacation or the week-end. Why go to distant points to relax, when you can secure better at home? —"Let the pines sing soft and low, lulling one to sleep."

"The recent execution of two noblewomen in Germany is a downright shame and a disgrace," angrily exclaims a local professional man. "And they were executed in peace time, too. The 'beheader' was dressed in full dress or evening clothes, to make the execution all the more ghastly (and permanent) he used the old-fashioned axe method, the same one uses to kill a chicken. I tell you we should be glad we are living in this country."

We took a trip through Capitan Sunday. That enterprising town is bustling with activity; new buildings going up and many more contemplating erection. Hail to the thriving Capitan town and community.

We hope to see the battle of the century in the coming battle for the presidency of Roosevelt vs. Huey Long. Huey is conceded to be a better radio speaker than F. R., which is saying a good deal. Huey starts his talk by saying "Hello, folks; this is Huey Long speaking. I'm not going to talk on any subject for the next five minutes, just keep you entertained. I want you to call up five friends and tell them that Huey Long is on the air. And these five friends phone some more, thereby building up a chain system which is pretty clever," according to an article in the Reader's Digest. Anyway, it'll make things interesting, to say the least—and may the best man win (he always does.) Huey has "it" which his recent speech over the radio goes to prove. Some say he's a radical and all that stuff. Mind you, this paper doesn't take any sides; no siree.
