Mmes Fagan, Hendren, O'Malley, Payman and Wright spent last Wednesday and Thursday in El Paso. They report that the dust storm extended on to Mescalero.

Arrivals for the past two weeks: From Galveston, Angus Almstedt, Honorio Belvedis; from New Orleans, Robert J. Smith. Returned - Bert Hendrick. Discharges: R. Hewitt, bound for Chicago.

Mrs. Berry likes the Plymouths, for she has just bought a brand new one.

Cashion has just had a new Ford V-8 Coupe delivered to him.

Many of the good citizens have been going about with gas masks tied over nose and mouth.

Every time anyone tells us something "juicy," there immediately comes the inevitable - "But you can't put that in the paper!"

Facts About Fort Stanton An Occupational Therapy Department is maintained here for Occupational, Vocational and Recreational work among the patients. Much beautiful work is done by hand in leather, metal and wood. From 65 to 100 patients are engaged in part-time work in this department.

Many employees of the station live in Capitan or Lincoln, there being a shortage of quarters at the post. The adjacent part of Lincoln County depends much upon Fort Stanton, either directly or indirectly, for income and employment. At present there are 7 physicians and one dentist on the staff. 10 nurses take care of the infirm patients. One dental hygienist assists in the dental care.

Ben Hemburg says he gained three pounds during a recent dust storm, but when he took a bath, he lost all of it.

Mrs. Louis Johansen and sister, Mrs. T. E. Tucker were here this morning from Capitan, en route to Corona.

There will be a Jeffersonian dinner at the Country Club, Saturday, April 13. The dinner will be followed by a program of music, speaking and dancing. The committee in charge will be M. U. Finley, A. S. McCamant, Jim Travis and Mrs. Burleson.

Last Saturday afternoon at the home of Marjorie Compton, a delightful surprise party was given. Vernon Ruth Peckham, Marjorie was assisted by Mrs. Fay Harkey and Mrs. Forest Cathey, lemonade and cake being served. Vernon Ruth was the recipient of many gifts in honor of the date.

April Showers

Michigan Again Republican

Detroit, April 2.—The majority rolled up by Republican candidates for minor state offices in Monday's election became more impressive as straggling returns from out state counties became available this afternoon. When the vote from 2612 of the state's 3453 precincts had been tabulated, Maurice R. Keyworth held a majority of 95,000 over Dr. Paul Voelker, Democratic incumbent in the contest for superintendent of public instruction. The remainder of the Republican ticket was running from 100,000 to 125,000 ahead of Democratic opposition on returns from the same number of precincts. Returns which neared completion today, showed that Michigan was counted definitely back in the Republican fold.

Perry Sears of Capitan was a business visitor in town this Thursday.

J. E. Compton of the Waffle House has purchased a brand new 1935 model Chevrolet.

Mrs. D. X. LaVallee entertained the Tuesday Bridge Club at her home this week.

Doyle Rentfrow says that he counted 50 dust devils all at one time on his ranch one day last week.

Our old friend fireman Bert Holland, who is back on the road after serving three years on the state tax commission, where his record was par excellence for service, was a welcome caller at this office one day this week.

Gunther Kroggel of the New Mexico Mechanical Equipment Co. made a business trip to Corona this Thursday.

Mrs. A. M. Freeman gave a lovely shower at her home in Hondo, honoring Mrs. Leo A. Joiner, nee Mary Louise Hall, Wednesday, April 3. The guests brought blocks for a friendship quilt, and spent a pleasant afternoon with the new bride. After the honoree displayed her lovely gifts, delicious refreshments were served to the guests: Mesdames John Bell, Bloodworth, Allie Stover, Blanche Johnson, J. B. Taylor, Allie Guest, Albert Pruitt, John Nelson, Loren Counts, John Thomas, B. G. Robinson, J. E. Waggoner, Frank Bishop, Wallace Ferguson, Lloyd Trent, Barnes Rose, J. E. Tucker, J. W. Tucker, W. B. Ross, A. L. Sloan, A. B. Moss, Misses Eva Rose, Grace Cole and Gertrude Pearson.

Crime Doesn't Pay

Conrado Apodaca and Antonio Chavez, both of whom confessed to the robbery of the P. G. Peters store at Capitan about a month ago, are still confined in the county jail awaiting to be sentenced by District Judge Numa Franger.

Mrs. J. M. Beck was hostess to the Carrizozo Bridge Club at her home this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Rentfrow of their ranch beyond the Malpais (ancient lava beds) were here last Saturday. Doyle smiling, as usual. It beats all how these stockmen can smile thru all they've been up against—but they do it, nevertheless.

The play, "Poor Father," at White Oaks last Saturday night, was largely attended. The crowd was so large that the cast had to put on a second performance in order to accommodate the patrons. The dance that followed was also well attended. The players have been requested to put the play on at Capitan, Carrizozo and Corona and if the request is granted, notice of the same will be given in this paper. They wish to extend their thanks to those who patronized the affair, especially those from neighboring towns.

Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Clark, daughter Peggy Joyce, sons Grady Joel and Rodney Dean, came here from Encino on Mar. 30, and are now located at the old Barnett building, where Mr. Clark is conducting a general feed store. He is having the living apartment remodeled and painted up, which will change the appearance of things in general. The Clark family have come here to make Carrizozo their future home.

Sam Bigger of Capitan was a business visitor in town Thursday. While here, he made this office an appreciated call.

At a meeting last Sunday to devise ways and means for organizing a baseball team, representatives were present for Carrizozo and White Oaks. After some discussion, it was decided for each town to organize and maintain its own team, thus doing away with the first idea of a joint organization. What arrangements have been made since that meeting, if any, we are at a loss to know. Some of the players of last year's team have drifted into other organizations and if we don't get busy pretty soon, we'll have a hard time to arrange a team.

ANCHO ITEMS

A large crowd attended the Community Program Friday night. The program consisted of: Piano solo.....Mrs. Hightower Piano solo.....Mrs. Cathey Violin selection.....Red Hobbs Piano duet..... Tommy Knight, Venna Mae Johnson Piano selection.....Miss Berry "Oh, Doctor!".....A play Eighth grade pupils Piano solo.....Miss Crawford Duet..... Lucille and Lila Lee Drake Negro Minstrel Just full of fun for all—and could Bill Balow dance? After the program, pie, coffee and cocoa were served. Then came the games in which every one joined—and had one more grand time.

The basket ball boys, accompanied by Prof. Craig, Miss Crawford and Mrs. Wilson went to Hondo Saturday. Our boys played a good game, but Capitan went them one better.

Miss Berry is driving a new Plymouth purchased in Albuquerque last week end.

Mrs. T. J. Straley is home after spending the winter in El Paso. It is so nice to have Mrs. Straley with us again.

Mmes. Allen Kille and Walter Silvers were El Paso visitors last week.

Mr. Leo Joiner and Miss Louise Hall were married in Roswell last Saturday. Mrs. Joiner is the oldest daughter of Rep. L. P. Hall and has made her home here since early childhood. She is a very charming girl and Ancho extends congratulations.

Allen Kille visited home folks over the week end.

Mr. Bright, Miss Melas, Mr. Burke and daughter Miss Rosalind Burke of Carrizozo were present at the Minstrel Friday night.

Others from Carrizozo were Mr. and Mrs. John Ellison, Mrs. Maggie Sue Pruett and children.

The Ancho singers are practicing for the Singing Convention at Capitan.

Cap Straley, Mr. McKenzie and Lester Jones were elected school directors at the election Tuesday.

County Treasurer Louis J. Adams is now on the railroad, putting in about 15 days in his old position as fireman. The railroad men in general, who have been at other occupations, make these runs of service in order to hold their seniorities.

Sheriff A. S. McCamant left Wednesday morning for Santa Fe to deliver two prisoners, Joe Alberts and Frank Vigil, to the warden at the state penitentiary. The two were convicted at the March term of district court.

LYRIC THEATRE

R. A. Walker, Owner

Friday-Saturday—Bing Crosby, Miriam Hopkins and Kitty Carlisle in—

"She Loves Me Not"

Howls and Hurras for the best show Bing's ever had. Gloriously cock-eyed comedy, a humdinger, a knockout! The play that won the year's prize comedy award! Also "A Black Cat" and "About Sailors." Matinee Saturday at 2:30.

Sunday-Monday-Tuesday—Marion Davies, Gary Cooper, Jean Parker, Katherine Alexander, Ted Healy and the Four Mills Brothers in—

"Operator 13"

A story of the Civil War and a northern spy who falls in love with a confederate spy who complicates her life in many ways. Also Betty Boop cartoon and a good comedy.

Unfortunate Accident

Last Saturday afternoon about 4 o'clock, Leonard Sanchez, one of the caretakers at the Country Club, came across the viaduct east of town and as he came on the east approach, he failed to notice three tramps who were on foot and about half-way across. The reason for his failing to notice the trio, was that a train was passing at the time and the smoke from the engine hid the men from his view. Engulfed in the thick cloud of smoke, Leonard's car struck the one in the center. He took the injured man to the transient camp just below the viaduct, but he died before medical aid could reach him. At the inquest, Leonard was exonerated from all blame as the accident was unavoidable. His name was Warren Kirkpatrick and an identification card showed his home to be at Wood River, Ill. After exchange of telegrams, the body was shipped to his home Monday night by Undertaker T. E. Kelley.

Cobras Getting in Shape

The Carrizozo Cobras have started to practise in earnest and will be ready to start the ball rolling in a short time. Plans are being formulated to play the opening game with Alamogordo on April 17. With the Ortiz boys, Sally and Manuel, Lell St. John, Andy Luemas, Tony Perea, Jerry Beltran, Florencio Mirelez, Jr., Charley Mackey, Manuel Chavez, Florentino and Alfredo Lopez, the boys have a very strong aggregation and with the proper support from Carrizozo ball fans, should prove to be as poisonous to opposing teams, as the name of the team implies.

R. E. Lemon left yesterday morning for his old home in White City, Kansas, where he will meet Mrs. Lemon, who is on her return trip from the West Point Military Academy, where she visited her son Maurice, who is a cadet at that institution. They will remain at White City and vicinity for several days and will be home some time next week. Mrs. E. Queen is caring for her sister's interests until the Lemons return.

Cres Marcos of Corona was a Carrizozo business visitor yesterday, returning home late in the afternoon.

SUCH IS LIFE—The Perfect Gentleman!

PATTERN 9986

The Household

By Lydia Le Baron Walker

Attractive Pieces of Furniture for a Small Apartment.

KEEPING furniture to scale with the size of rooms is something that the homemaker has continually to bear in mind when purchasing it. A house that is small, or especially an apartment that is not only restricted in size but in number of rooms, has to be furnished with the utmost restraint to make it seem to have space. The homemaker may be delighted with furniture which fills her wants, but unless it can be housed and seems to fit correctly into the area it must occupy, it will have to be left unpurchased.

Or the number of pieces to find housing in the rooms must be curtailed so that the fewness of articles contributes to the uncrowded appearance of the place. There are times when this latter plan is wisest. This is when an apartment is being furnished not for itself, but with an eye to moving into larger quarters in the near future. To purchase small furniture for the little apartment would be an extravagance, since it would look inadequate in larger rooms.

Dining Room. In buying dining-room furniture, for example, it may give the appearance of suiting a small space, yet prove sufficiently large in size if not in number of pieces by choosing a drop-leaf extension table and just enough chairs to fit into the little dining room. When moving into more spacious quarters, the dining table can be left with leaves up, and fill the room space well, and still have the extension to be used when more seating space is needed. Extra chairs can be purchased as needed, and such other pieces as a sideboard to supplement the buffet, a serving table, etc.

Bedroom. In a bedroom the opportunity to increase pieces is almost as great as in the living room. The bedsheets needed will be no longer, for there is a regulation length though widths may differ. It will prove wise to get a style for the apartment which will give the impression of sufficient framework when put into larger rooms. The dresser can be supplemented by a full-size bureau and the former becomes the dressing table. The desk which once was right for the living room of the apartment can become one of the chamber pieces. For this to be the case, the woods must be similar in color such as walnut and mahogany, or pine and maple, etc. Such things must be considered at time of buying.

It's Green Cheese to a Moon Expert

Washington. — Sweethearts may find romance in the moon, but it's just another piece of green cheese to Dr. Harry Burton, astronomer at the Naval observatory.

The astronomer said that its upper quarter is full of holes, which are really extinct volcano craters. This part resembles Swiss cheese.

Near the center and the lower half of the orb, Doctor Burton said, the surface is smoother and a darker green. This is caused by the setting sun and shadows cast by mountains. To Doctor Burton it looks like cheese mold.

The Hauptmann Verdict

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

Regardless of one's personal opinion of the verdict of the jury in the Hauptmann case, it is clearly evident that justice has been vindicated and the public mind satisfied. "The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind exceedingly small." Just so, Shylock demands his pound of flesh, but finally is forced to submit to the demands of justice. Justice may be "seasoned with mercy" but it must first be vindicated. Obedience to liberty and disobedience is slavery.

The cosmic world is vocal with its unalterable decree—violation of law demands punishment. Every person who refuses to conform to nature's laws pays the penalty. Interrupt nature in her process of development and we have chaos and confusion. Use her laws by working in conformity with them and we have the radio, airship, etc.

In the world of moral values, the same law dominates. Murder, or whatever the crime may be, is always a violation of the fixed order of the moral world. No person can escape. He may be acquitted through the thwarting of justice in a criminal court, but ultimately he must pay the penalty, which may be the "sting" of his own conscience, or the penalty will have to be paid in other ways we know not of.

Our Weather Downs Him

Rev. E. Cunningham, S. J., Catholic missionary, United States commissioner, postmaster, shown in a hospital, where he is suffering from a cold. The pastor donned his Alaskan furs to show reporters how they dress in the 75-degree below zero temperature of the North. Thrown off his guard by the "mild" zero weather in Rochester, the pastor only wore a single coat over his suit, and was soon down with a cold. Back home, he said, he wears three pairs of woolen socks, besides fur boots, woolen gloves under wool-lined fur mittens, woolen underwear, one khaki shirt, a parka, and over all this, a long, fur-lined windbreaker.

Aside from the fact that the majesty of the law has been upheld and the crime avenged, it does not right the wrong. Certainly the decision of the court should not be made a travesty by having the jurors re-enact the court scene in vaudeville for the paltry sum of $3,800. It should not be done for any consideration. The public mind will undoubtedly react unfavorably to such a proceeding. Furthermore, the decision does not restore to the family circle the absent child. Perhaps this is the sacrifice which some one had to make in order that public conscience might be aroused and other innocent children protected from such a cruel fate.

Ontario Will Guard Dionne Quintuplets

Plan Board of Guardians to Prevent Exploitation.

Toronto.—The Hepburn government is prepared to create a new board of 90 Guardians for the Dionne quintuplets, if such a step is necessary to safeguard them from exploitation.

The Ontario legislature, at its present session, may be asked to constitute itself the protector of the world's most famous babies, and to pass special legislation in their behalf.

This is the answer given by Premier Mitchell Hepburn, to the $1,000,000 suit for breach of contract, filed in Chicago by Ivan I. Spear, promoter, against the parents and guardians of the quintuplets, Hon. A. W. Roebuck, attorney-general of Ontario, and a number of Canadian and American publishing organizations.

Charges Broken Pact.

Spear alleges that three days after the birth of the Dionne babies last May, their father signed a contract giving his organization exclusive rights to exhibit them and all other members of the family, and that this has since been violated.

Hepburn declares that "if there is any action the legislature can take to prevent the exploitation of these babies, we shall avail ourselves of it."

Attorney-General Roebuck has already declared the contract with Spear null and void, and has warned the promoter "he won't have a leg to stand on" if he seeks to press his action. Canadian courts, he declares, would never sanction such a contract, which might place the lives of the five babies in jeopardy.

Paris Police Must Pass Difficult Examinations

Paris.—Candidates for the police force and secret service now are obliged to pass examinations that would stump many a law student. Latest regulations, aimed to improve the police system candidates, required police recruits to study constitutional, administrative, civil, commercial and criminal law. Among other subjects they are expected to be familiar with are public hygiene, gypsies, passports, espionage, explosives, worthless checks, pawnshops, second-hand merchants, traveler pigeons and the parliamentary regime. Many cabinet ministers could not qualify for a policeman's job, newspapers comment.

Astronomy Table Used by Columbus Is Found

Seville, Spain.—Prof. E. Zinner of the Bamberg (Germany) observatory, announced discovery of the astronomical tables used by Christopher Columbus in his voyage which led to the discovery of America in 1492.

The tables, he said, were those of Johann Muller, a scientist from Koenigsberg, and were entitled "Regiamontanus." The edition which Columbus used was published in 1481 and contained various marginal notes in the explorer's own handwriting, Zinner said.

Heftiest Baby in the World

Leslie, thirty-three months young, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Bowls of Lowestoft, England, is perhaps the heftiest baby in the world. Otherwise a normal baby, Leslie is a miniature giant in weight, for height. He measures 36 1/2 inches in height, and almost 2 pounds per inch avoirdupois. By British reckoning his weight is seven-stone, or 98 pounds, and this picture makes him seem even heavier than that. At birth Leslie was underweight.

If you've been following the latest trend in style news, you know that the classic shirtwaist frock is still one of Fashion's pets. And here's a delightful version of it. The sleeves and shoulders are cut in one to give a nice smooth line, and make them easy as a, b, c to fit. The bodice with a trim slot-pleat at the back to match the chic of its buttoned front closing is smartly gathered to the yoke—the long skirt seams end in jaunty inverted pleats—and the patch pockets follow the latest mode by being rounded instead of square. Make it of a rough crepe and put an impudent little contrasting bow at the throat for added chic!

Pattern 9986 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28 and 30. Size 16 requires 3 1/2 yards 30 inch fabric.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE of each pattern.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern department, 232 West Eighteenth street, New York.

Chic Leather Fashions for Spring

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ALONG comes leather to add to the new spring mode. And such leathers—most beautiful and rich, exquisitely colored, dainty and supple suedes, kidskins and calfskins designed with arresting dressmaker details that bring them smartly into the current high-style parade.

Only seeing is believing as to the perfectly marvelous things being accomplished via leather artistry in the realm of costume design this spring. Which reminds us to say to those who have hitherto held to the idea that garments fashioned of leather belong solely to the sports wardrobe, the time has come to change your way of thinking.

Out Hollywood way where the newest, smartest fashions go on parade in advance of the rest of the world, leather for dress occasions has been accepted with genuine enthusiasm. A movie star of distinction wears a lovely evening gown of shell pink suede. At a smart gathering, an evening mess jacket was noted styled of white suede with a white galyak collar.

A leading designer in the French capital has created a charming evening coat, three-quarter length, of soft, supple brown leather embellished with intricate cutwork design, posed over brown lacquered satin. From Paris also comes the message that the haute couture is creating fetching little daytime dresses suitable for town activities. These attach chamoles jumpers in smart new colors to wool skirts. Wide leather belts with bizarre metal fastenings complete the costume.

By the way, if you want your costume to carry a sure-fire style message wear chamolis accessories. Swank gilets, boleros, lapels on spring coats and suits are made of chamolis. Other jaunty items include handstitched chamolis scarfs, belts, berets, slip-on gloves and roomy bags with contrast stitching.

You can see from the illustration that the new leather jackets are—well, they are just too good looking for words, that's what they are. For early spring these costumes which top a checked wool skirt with a gay colored suede jacket are not only ideal to wear but they have that out-of-the-ordinary look and being "different" they offer a welcome diversion from the regulation cloth tailor. What's more, they are as outstandingly modish for town and travel as they are practical for country and sports wear.

The gay colors of the new suede jackets delight the eye. The simple model on the standing figure is in a mosaic rust shade. Its sash-belt and turn over collar are chic features.

The modish sportswoman seated in the foreground is wearing one of the very new jackets that are styled with knit sleeves and collar. You can have it in any smart colors such as Robin-hood red, rust, green or in the much-talked-of amber. Of course the checked woolen skirt must carry corresponding colors. A Tyrolean suede hat, pigskin gloves and calf oxfords complete this smart outfit.

The wonderfully attractive jacket on the figure seated to the right is most happily tuned to a colorful spring. It goes in for zigzag red, white and blue stitching, which is a chic move on its part, since the emphasis this season is so decidedly on fancy and lavish stitching.

IRISH LINEN

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Here's how Irish linen goes cruising—smartly fashioned into a two-piece with pockets and pearl buttons and a belt of good plain rope which gives it a novel and nautical touch. This model is becoming to almost every one, with its round Peter Pan collar, four buttoned down pockets and a slim slenderizing skirt. A two-piece dress in white Irish linen such as this will fill many a gap in cruise wardrobes now and later on it will prove an ideal summer costume.

Brows With Beige

Brown and beige are a favorite color combination of the Princesses Amélie de Broglie. She wears a wool ensemble worn in a novelty weave combining three, two colors, followed and called in brown astrakhan. It is finished with a belt of brown leather.

SEPARATE SKIRTS FOR SPRING WEAR

Since separate skirts are so necessary a part of the spring wardrobe and since tweed ones are highly approved, it would seem an economy measure to start with a tweed suit. Jackets are no longer wedded to one skirt, and skirts may step out with any number of jackets, blouses and sweaters, so there is no end to the possibilities.

Outside of the practical feature of skirt and jacket going its own way, there is the practical detail of the cape being detachable, and therefore ready for a career of its own. The objection to a caped jacket on the score that one might tire of the cape is also overcome.

Slipper of Glass Steps

From Cinderella's Land
Cinderella's glass slipper has stepped from fairy tale lore into the modern everyday world.

This is the way it's made: Bits of shimmering glass cut to reflect the light are strung along transparent mica straps across the top of the foot while the tip of the toes and the instep are left bare. More strips of glittering glass gird the heel attached to a pale pink kid ankle strap and a tall pink kid heel spike. So, except for the heel and ankle strap, it gives the effect of a foot held by a few twinkling glass bands.

Gray Is Very Smart Color

for In-Between Seasons
Gray is just about the smartest in-between season color, fresh and flattering. Shirring and tucking, quilting and smocking are smart manipulations for the gray crepe frock. Puritan collars of immaculate white pique trim charmingly childish frocks of gray metallage.

Often grayed blue or cherry red provides a piquant accent for these new silvery grays. A high style collar for midseason shoes of kidskin, gray appears in a rather dark cast.

Inspect Machines for Spring Work

Make Inventory of Repairs Needed and Parts to Be Replaced.

By David Weaver, Agricultural Engineer, North Carolina State College.—WNU Service.
Get your farm machinery ready for work before the spring rush starts. The first step is to inspect all machinery carefully and make an inventory of repairs needed and the parts to be replaced.

The parts should be ordered as early as possible so they will arrive before the machines must be used, and the repair work scheduled so that the machinery to be used first will be repaired first.

Look into the disk harrow bearings, examine the plow points, handles, and braces, ascertain the number of new parts needed, note the parts that need resharpening, tightening, or cleaning.

All harness gear should be gone over thoroughly, cleaned and oiled when necessary. See that there are enough seed plates to handle all types of seeds to be sown with the planter.

Cultivators, mowing machines, and binders should be gone over carefully. New blades, bearings, sickles, rollers, gears, or chains may be needed. These machines should be so repaired and lubricated that they will operate smoothly and efficiently.

Binders should receive special attention, for they are complicated and a slight defect may give plenty of trouble in the midst of the harvest season. Rollers slightly out of line may tear the canvas. Rusted bill hooks or improper tension on the twine may throw the tying apparatus out of order.

This is only a brief outline of the things to be checked, but the farmer who operates the machines should not have trouble in locating the defects if he gives them a careful inspection.

Barrel Seed Scarifier

Simple, Easy to Make
A homemade barrel seed scarifier, operated either by hand or by mechanical power, with gravel as an abrasive, can be made from a design developed by engineers and forage-crops men in the United States Department of Agriculture. If a small concrete mixer is available it will do the work well without requiring any alterations.

Breaking or rupturing the coats of such seeds as crotonaria, lespedeza and sweet clover permits ready absorption of moisture and induces quick germination. When hard seed is planted without being scarified, only a small percentage—often as low as 5 to 10 per cent—will germinate in a reasonable time. Scarifying such seed greatly improves its germination.

An ordinary barrel of heavy construction is mounted in a rectangular frame and is pivoted to make filling and emptying easy. The speed at which the barrel or concrete mixer should be turned will depend on its size. The smaller the barrel the faster it may be operated without causing the seed and gravel to whirl. If they do whirl with the barrel, there will be little or no scarifying action.

The time required varies with the kind of seed and the toughness of the seed coat, with the proportions of seed and gravel in the charge, and with the size of the gravel. The type of gravel and moisture content of seed may also cause variations.

Fertilizer for Orchards

In considering a fertilizer program for the orchard, the fact must not be overlooked that the organic matter content of the soil must be increased, or at least maintained. An annual cover crop or an annual application of manure will accomplish this in most orchards. Orchards are frequently fertilized indirectly by means of a cover crop and a judicious use of fertilizer applied not directly to the trees but to the cover crop itself. This practice is especially desirable with a young orchard that has been planted on rather thin, poor soil. The fertilizer to be used in this case is not just nitrogen but rather a complete fertilizer containing phosphorus and potassium as well as nitrogen.—Missouri Farmer.

Soy Bean Acreage in 1934

The total area in commercial soy beans in this country in 1934 was 1,145,000 acres, an increase of 302,000 over 1933. The yield was 21,074,000 bushels, worth $21,670,000 based on average farm prices December 1. Illinois far exceeds all other states in soy bean area, with 501,000 acres. Others running over 100,000 acres were: In order, North Carolina, 200,000; Indiana, 150,000; Iowa, 148,000; Louisiana, 124,000; and Missouri, 117,000. Illinois had the highest average yield per acre, 19 bushels. This is three to four bushels above practically all other states, and is about the limit of yield for the past three years. This report naturally does not take in the soy beans cut for hay.—Rural New Yorker.

Cleanliness Around Dairy

Certain precautions in the production of high-quality milk and sweet cream need to be taken even in cold weather, warns an authority at the University of Minnesota, St. Paul. Use clean milk utensils. Milk clean, healthy cows in clean barns. See that the milkers wear clean clothes and milk with clean, dry hands. Keep the cream separator in a room that is free from dirt, dust and foul odors. Protect the milk and cream from contamination by dirt, dust, etc.

MAN NOT ALWAYS HELD ENEMY BY WILD CREATURES

There was once a time of universal friendship, or at least mutual tolerance, between man and the animals, declares Dr. Walter Hough, curator of anthropology of the Smithsonian Institution. This situation is contrary to the theory that in the early days there was mutual antagonism between man and the lower creatures, causing a "tooth and claw" relationship.

"There are still remnants of this original 'Eden' in isolated parts of the world," states Doctor Hough, who has been tracing the method by which man domesticated animals. The trail of most of the domesticated animals leads back to central Asia. There, Doctor Hough believes, early man had a temperament especially adapted to inspire friendship and confidence among his fellow creatures.

"Observers in new countries," Doctor Hough says, "have recorded with surprise the lack of fear by animals. . . . There still remain in remote parts zones of peace, where animals are unaccustomed to fear. One such zone was found in Tibet by naturalists of the British Mount Everest expedition. . . . Another instance was called to my attention by a member of our own staff, who observed the lack of fear among the animals during his exploration of St. Lawrence Island, Alaska.

"The above leads to the generalization that domestication is not the province of cruel and fear-eggending men. Domestication came about in zones of peace and was accomplished by peaceful men through kindly methods. The coming together of such fortuitous circumstances as animals suited for domestication and men of the peaceful, patient type undoubtedly was found in Asia, where our domestic animals originated."

BREEZY VEHICLE

When automobiles were first introduced to Cape Cod, some thirty years ago, an old sea captain was given a ride in one of the first cars, a high-sided contraption steered by the tiller that preceded the steering wheel.

"Well, captain, what do you think of her?" asked the proud owner and driver.

"Well," answered the captain, his face showing a puzzled look, "she's the first craft I ever seen that has a head-wind no matter which way you p'linted her."—Boston Daily Globe.

Scientists Find Fast Way to Relieve a Cold

Ache and Discomfort Eased Almost Instantly Now

1. Take 2 BAYER Aspirin Tablets. Make sure you get the BAYER Tablets you seek for.

2. Drink a full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.

3. If throat is sore, crush and stir 3 BAYER Aspirin Tablets in a third of a glass of water. Gargle twice. This eases throat soreness almost instantly.

NOTE "DIRECTIONS PICTURES"

The simple method pictured here is the way many doctors now treat colds and the aches and pains colds bring with them!

It is recognized as a safe, sure, QUICK way. For it will relieve an ordinary cold almost as fast as you caught it.

Ask your doctor about this. And when you buy, be sure that you get the real BAYER Aspirin Tablets. They dissolve (disintegrate) almost instantly. And thus work almost instantly when you take them. And for a gargle, Genuine Bayer Aspirin Tablets disintegrate with speed and completeness, leaving no irritating particles or grittiness.

BAYER Aspirin prices have been decisively reduced on all sizes, so there's no point now in accepting other than the real Bayer article you want.

Handwriting On the Wall

About one month ago, Sec. Wallace issued orders over the country to farmers to plant as recently as possible, naming the acreage they must sow. Not long after that order was issued, he was visited by a grim warning. Dust storms fell over the agricultural region over which he had previously made the above ruling, suffocating all vegetable life and growth.

That warning was undoubtedly given out by some unseen power of which we are too unmindful. It served to show that Providence which gives us this means of livelihood intends that they shall not be tampered with by mortal man.

Immediately turning his sail, the secretary issued counter-orders to farmers to plant all they could—and without limit.

There is yet time to heed the warning, least a worse condition than a country-wide dust storm overtakes us. When a man gets greater than his maker—when the creature thinks he is superior to his creator—when means of sustenance is destroyed, there must be a settlement. When plenty is gone, want must take its place and famine will reign.

Ashes of the Past

When administrator McMechen, appointed to make a report on the findings of the late Baby Doe Tabor, opened 17 iron trunks one day this week, he found many relics of by-gone days, when prosperity reigned in the Tabor family. When the famous Tabor millions faded into nothingness, she hid in a loving and costly relics and which if sold would have given her comfort in her remaining days, but she refused to touch them and preferred to die in her poverty. In one trunk they found Baby Doe Tabor's $7,000 wedding gown and baby clothes worn by 'Silver Dollar' Tabor, her little daughter, who perished in a fire at Chicago 10 years ago. In another trunk, valuable trinkets of gold and silver were found which amounted to thousands of dollars and also the most expensive ladies' wearing apparel which crumbled to dust, when exposed to the air. This is the climax of a true story which started with a $17.00 grubstake, arose to over $11,000,000 and fell from that perch of prosperity, down to the depths of poverty, despair and death. Ashes to ashes—Dust to dust!

As near as we can recall, the celebrated poem of Omar goes like this:

—Come, fill the cup
And in the fires of Spring
Your winter garment of Repentance fling
The bird of Time has but a little way to flutter—

And the bird is on the wing.

Boy, how're we doin'?' Short of copy for an editorial, we think that the above poem by Omar Khayyam is very appropriate and timely. The yards are beginning to show green, the trees to bud—and this is quite unusual, for, as a local man says, they "make" duststorms in the Carrizozo vicinity. But, taking it all in all, when we do have a nice day, it is a marvellous one at that. All this winter, one could be seen (when the wind doesn't blow, of course) going in their shirt sleeves.

SYNOPSIS

Theodore Gatlin adopts a baby, "Penelope," in an effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But his wife has never wanted her, and his affairs end in the divorce court. At a baseball game a ball strikes ten-year-old Penelope on the nose. Mrs. Gatlin splits the child to Europe. Gatlin visits Penelope all his money, and is about to begin a search for her when a motor accident ends his life. Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, rising young psychiatrist, is presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl with a dual personality, for which her "sadistic nose" is in part responsible. McNamara does not think she is a criminal and obtains Burt's testimony in court. Lanny, the doctor's office nurse, is also won over. Nance's criminal record outweighs Doctor Burt's explanation of her case and she is sent to San Quentin penitentiary. Nance escapes, although shot, and goes to Lanny's apartment, from which, by McNamara's orders, she is removed to the chief's home. From one of the men in the boat on which the girl escaped McNamara learns that Nance's real name is Penelope Gatlin. He also discovers that she is heiress to $750,000. Fearing McNamara, in his official capacity, Nance flees. Lanny finds her in her apartment, sound asleep, curled up on the guest-room bed.

CHAPTER VII—Continued

"Did your men scout the street in front of this house before pulling up in front of it?" asked McNamara sharply.

"Certainly. We circled the block twice."

"Feed our Nance, Lanny," McNamara urged happily. "She's a smart girl. Now's the shoulder, dear?"

"Fine. I'll be O. K. in another week."

"So am I," Mr. McNamara grinned grimly. "Flynn's home eating his dinner now, and Angelotti must be on guard in that alley. I'm going to mistake Angelotti for a suspicious character, lurking there in the dark—and put a mark on him so I can recognize him later. He just can't stand to mix it with me, and get recognized, of course, so when he runs I'll fire in the air. Hell! know who I am but he'll never suspect I know who he is."

McNamara bids Nance, Lanny and Stephen goodnight and hurried away in a taxi. A block from his home he alighted and walked down the side of the street opposite his own house. He was whistling softly as he came abreast of Angelotti's hiding place, where he turned at right angles, apparently with the intention of crossing in the middle of the street to his own house. A step from the curb he halted, turned, bent the head in a listening attitude, then stopped resolutely into the alley.

"Who's there?" he demanded. Receiving no answer, he got out a small flashlight; he seemed to have some difficulty flashing it on, for he cursed softly, and suddenly a beam from the flashlight illuminated his own face for an instant, but long enough, he decided, to permit the watchful Angelotti to recognize him. The alley was empty, but in a little garden strip a large syringa bush grew, and instinct warned the chief that his prey was behind it. So he walked past it, his flashlight held close to the bush, and as he had anticipated, it was snatched from him. As he turned, one of his stout legs was jerked from under him by a man, crouching low; so, before permitting himself to topple backward, McNamara dropped his good right arm to the level of his knee and swung a short, stinging punch. He felt a cheekbone and the side of a nose; so he punched again, a little higher up, and then fell over backward, instantly his assailant rose and fled like a deer.

"Halt! I'm an officer," McNamara shouted, and fired into the air. But the running man did not even halt. In the morning he sent for Angelotti for a report on a certain case, and was charmed to note a faintly lumbous spot on the Italian's left cheek and a very noticeable indelicacy under the left eye. The chief grinned. "What does the other fellow look like, Angelo?" he queried innocently. "He couldn't have been more damaged! How come you let some runt one-two you like that?"

"It was a dame I picked up for drunkenness," Angelotti lied with the alibi of long practice.

Following some discussion of the report, McNamara dismissed him, and set down to decide what to do with Nance Belden. That Flynn and Angelotti were keeping his house under surveillance he knew now; undoubtedly they would enter his house at the earliest favorable opportunity.

The chief wondered what he would do if he stood in the shoes of his two detectives. "I'd wait for a night when I wouldn't be disturbed for a couple of hours," he decided. "What night would that be? Why, Thursday night, when the board of police commissioners are sweet and I'm in attendance there. Stephen will make his usual early evening call—and as soon as he leaves the house those two will slip into it. The cellar door, of course, I'll make it easy for them. I'll leave the door unlocked."

He concluded that until then, Nance would be safe at Lanny's house. In the meantime, however, he must arrange to get her out of the city at an early date. The detectives were both absolutely satisfied Lanny had once given Nance sanctuary for a brief period; trust them, therefore, to keep an eye on Lanny's house.

He had in his office a telephone line that did not connect with the private exchange system in the central station, so he called Lanny on his phone at Doctor Burt's office now.

"Dan speaking, Lanny. Tomorrow morning you had better buy our pet nuisance a lot of clothes, so she'll be all ready to get out of town when I send for her. I think I'll have to fly her out and down to Tia Juana, Lower California."

"What will she do there?"

"I don't know. We'll think about that when she gets there. At least my two dicks won't be there and Tia Juana is one place where that saddle nose of hers won't surprise anybody. And when she acts rough and tough in Tia Juana nobody will pay any attention to her. They have experts down there in that line."

"I'll think that Tia Juana stunt over," Lanny decided. "It has possibilities. Is there a good hospital there?"

"I don't think so. Why?"

"You numbskull, Dan McNamara! We have to find a quiet hospital where we can have her poor nose operated on."

"Well, if we can get her beeper restored and change that black bob of hers to a moxie-tone gold, she could take Flynn and Angelotti out to dinner and they'd never suspect her."

"Stevie says her nose must be operated on first. Her present state of dissociated personality probably started in an inferiority complex, and the inferiority complex probably arose out of the knowledge that her nose made her unlovely. When it's safe to bring her back to this city, Stevie will take her soul out and look at it, dust-it-off, put-it-back-and-do-a-little Jack Horner."

"Can he do that?" McNamara's heavy voice was freighted with awe.

"He can, provided he can find a starting point for his investigation into her past life. There is always a reason for a dissociated personality. The ground for the mental shock that causes it is usually prepared long before the psychosis occurs. Rebellious thoughts, unhappiness, brooding—all these eventually have a serious effect upon sensitive and highly intelligent people and particularly women of the hysterical type."

"All women are hysterical," McNamara said with conviction.

"You're a dear booby, Dan. Eight women out of ten can throw a fit of hysterics as easily as you'd break an egg, particularly if there is a man to be impressed. They never simulate hysterics to impress a woman, however, because they know better. However, there are women who have hysterics that are real, but it has been the experience of this office that most of these are just a trifle bummy—neurotics."

"Well, you get our girl a trousseau and warn her to keep away from the window and not to answer the door bell, or do any telephoning, or leave the house until she has my permit alone. I don't expect she'll obey, so to night when you go home have some hysterics to impress her."

"Dan, dear, I couldn't. I'm hard as a piece of egg. Did you stage your little comedy after leaving us last night?"

"I did and it worked out exactly," "I'm glad. Well, I'm busy. Good-by."

Nance Belden's personalities were a source of keen professional interest to Lanny, who regretted that for the present Doctor Burt was unable to share her observations with her. She had, as yet, had no opportunity for ascertaining anything regarding the girl's past history, but she had a suspicion that Nance had had advantages superior to most girls.

Her hands were the very best thing (with the exception of her poor wrecked nose) that Lanny had noticed. They were soft, shapely, small and well kept, decidedly not the hands of a factory girl. While her vocabulary was a trifle "salty," running at times to the idiom of the ill bred and ignorant, her voice was soft, with well bred intonations. Her clothing, on the occasion of her visit to Stephen Burt's office, had been, in Lanny's judgment, in splendid taste; rich but not flashy, up to the mode but not beyond it. Then, too, Nance had a slow, leisurely walk, she knew how to enter a room, she was sure of herself at all times without display assurance. In Lanny, the girl, in his abandoned moments, appeared to be amateurish, a bit of a show-off, unreal.

This far she had observed the girl only in this show-off phase of her personality. She was amazed, therefore, on coming home from the office after her conversation with McNamara, to find her a complete changeling. As she entered the house she caught the odor of cooking, and going into the kitchen, she discovered Nance, with one of Lanny's kitchen aprons on her, preparing dinner.

"Good evening, Lanny dear," she saluted her hostess. "It occurred to me it must be a very great trial to you, cooking home night after night from the office, tired, and having to prepare dinner for yourself. I'm sure you're too tired most of the time to prepare more than a very sketchy meal, and that isn't good for you," she smiled. "So I thought I'd have a nice dinner for you."

"Now, I call that real sweet, Nance," "My name isn't Nance, Lanny. It's Penelope."

"Penelope what?"

"Penelope Gatlin. Rilly old Lanny, how could you forget?"

"You've placed your finger on my dread secret, Penelope. When I'm tired my memory fails me."

"Lanny knew that during the day a psychological door had opened and Nance Belden, otherwise personality B, the abnormal, had walked through it and emerged Penelope Gatlin, or personality A, the normal. Also, she knew now that Penelope Gatlin probably had more or less amnesia for her former personality as Nance Belden. Lanny had heard Doctor Burt discuss such rare cases and she glowed with pride in the knowledge that at least he had secured a perfect specimen.

"I decided we wouldn't have broiled lamb chops, Lanny," the girl went on brightly, "so I've made a ragout."

"You mean, in good old Americanese, you've concocted an Irish stew?"

"You're so amusing, Lanny. A stew, of course. The difference between a stew and a ragout is entirely geographic. A ragout in France, an Irish stew in the United States."

"Have you lived in France?"

"Eight years, Lanny. Went to school in Switzerland and learned French there."

"Are your people French?"

"I think I was there alone." The girl appeared puzzled. "I don't remember my mother, but I had a father. He was such a dear, but he's dead."

"Were you happy there?"

"No, I was perfectly miserable."

"Why?"

"Because my father wasn't with me. We'd been such pals."

"But you must have lived with somebody?"

"There was Laurette, the cook, and Babette, the maid."

"Did you graduate?"

"No, I left school when father died. He was killed in a motor accident en route to Europe. I've always had a feeling he was coming over to see his Penelope. He loved me very much, Lanny. He was adorable. He used to tell me that I was all that made his life bearable. Somebody—I forgot who—told me he wasn't my real father, that I was a foundling he adopted. I wouldn't believe that at first, but when I read his will I knew it was so."

"What sort of woman was his wife—or did he have one?"

"I haven't the slightest idea, but I remember the will stated very positively that she had settled with her, that she had accepted the settlement in full satisfaction of her dower rights, and he made my income from the trust just sufficient to support me decently until I should come of age. He said in his will that he did this not because of any lack of affection for me, but because if he made me an excessive allowance, his divorced wife would have control of it during my minority. He must have despised her."

"Well, if she could have control of your income during your minority, she must have been your adopted mother," the practical Lanny reasoned. "And you must have lived with her following the divorce. That's why you didn't see your father in Europe. You must have been there with your foster mother, Laurette, the cook, and Babette, the maid, argue an establishment. Do you remember everything that has happened to you since that day Dan McNamara brought you to Doctor Burt's office?"

"Perfectly."

"Ever have funny thoughts about it?"

The girl stared at her shrewdly. "How strange that you should ask that question, Lanny. I do have funny thoughts. Sometimes I'm horrified at the memory and could die of shame; at other times it seems perfectly all right, but those are the times when I've been nervous and sleepless; sometimes I think there's something wrong with me, because people often refer to me as Nance Belden and to things I've done and which I know very well I haven't done. And yet it seems to me sometimes as if I had—just a wealth of memory, like an old dream. But still I'm strong and healthy."

"But a little given to spells or nervousness?"

"I'm moody." The girl seemed interested in herself to an unusual degree. "Some days I like to do things that are perfectly intolerable to me on other days. Some days I'm so democratic I could go out to dinner with a garbage man—other times I can't bear to be with anybody but nice people." She sighed and turned to inspect her savory ragout. "I wish I knew what I wanted in life and I wish I knew somebody that wanted me. Of course I can pay my way through life, but it's terrible to be lonely, Lanny."

She faced Lanny again. "Now, when I decided to cast myself on your hospitality, Lanny, it seemed to me the most natural thing in the world to do. But today I'm covered with confusion. I've deliberately imposed myself upon your peace and privacy."

"Listen here, Lanny, my dear. You aren't the only lonely woman in this world. Believe it or not, the first spring buttercup isn't a bit more welcome in old lady Lanning's house than you are."

The last one beamed upon her. "I believe that Lanny. Oh, Lanny, when I'm happy I'm so happy and when I'm wretched I'm so wretched."

"You think too much about that nose of yours, my poor child."

The girl's hand flew to that organ (automatically, Lanny thought) as if she would hide it. "Isn't it terrible?" she quavered. "I'm so ugly nobody can ever love me."

"I don't think so. Why?"

"You numbskull, Dan McNamara! We have to find a quiet hospital where we can have her poor nose operated on."

"Well, if we can get her beeper restored and change that black bob of hers to a moxie-tone gold, she could take Flynn and Angelotti out to dinner and they'd never suspect her."

Lesson for March 31

REVIEW

Lessons From the Life and Letters of Peter.

LESSON TEXT—I Peter 5:6-11; II Peter 2:14-18.

GOLDEN TEXT—But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. To him be glory both now and for ever. II Peter 2:18.

PRIMARY TOPIC—When Peter Was Old.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Learning With Peter.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Peter Became a Great Leader.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Peter Did to Spread Christianity.

The method of review is always determined by the grade and capacity of the class and the genius of the teacher. The suggestions made largely apply to the senior and adult classes. A good method of review will be to cast up to view the following great experiences in Peter's life:

1. Peter's First Meeting With Christ (John 1:40-42).

This involves his conversion and call. As a result of the Baptist's testimony two of John's disciples left him and followed Jesus. Andrew, one of these, when he knew Christ because of having abode with him, brought his brother Peter to Jesus. Andrew desired that Peter should have a knowledge of Jesus, not merely through his testimony, but through personal experience. Andrew did a great piece of work for Peter became one of the pillars of the church. Later Peter was called with Andrew to become fishers of men (Mark 1:16-18). The first call of Jesus was for salvation. Because he heeded the call to salvation, he now is called to definite service.

2. Peter's Great Confession (Matt. 16:13-28).

The disciples had been with the Lord for several years. They had heard his wonderful words and witnessed his mighty works. And since Jesus was soon to go to the cross, it was necessary for the disciples to have a true conception of him. In order to help them into the right conception, Christ provoked this confession from Peter as the spokesman for the group of disciples. Peter confessed Christ's messianic and deityship. The burning question then, as well as for the present hour, is, "What think ye of Christ?"

3. Peter's Denial (Mark 14:27-72).

A better statement would be "Peter's Downfall." Peter's confession showed him to occupy a high position. From that lofty eminence to the depth of emphasizing a lie by means of foul oaths is a long way. The steps are clear and should constitute a solemn warning to all today:

1. Over-weening self-confidence (vv. 29-32).
2. Sleeping at the post of duty (vv. 32-37).
3. Neglect of prayer (v. 38).
4. Service in the energy of the flesh (v. 47).
5. Following Jesus afar off (v. 54).
6. Seeking comfort among the Lord's enemies (v. 67).
7. Open denial (vv. 68-72).

Peter's trouble really began when he shrank from the way of the cross.

IV. Peter's Restoration (John 20:1-10; 21:1-19).

As there were seven steps in Peter's downfall, so there were seven steps in his restoration.

1. Christ's prayer for Peter (Luke 22:31, 32).
2. The look of Jesus (Luke 22:61, 62).
3. Christ's message through the women (Mark 16:7).
4. A personal interview with the risen Lord (Luke 24:34).
5. Peter's open confession of love (John 21:14-17).
6. His work given back (John 21:17, 18).
7. Willingness to suffer for Christ (John 21:18, 19).

V. Peter at Pentecost (Acts 2:1-42).

Peter, with the rest of the disciples, came into a new experience at Pentecost. They came to know the outpouring of the Holy Spirit as the fulfillment of Joel's prophecy (Joel 2:28-32).

VI. The Conversion of Cornelius (Acts 10:1-48).

While Peter had the definite experience of Pentecost, he had not yet come to know the real meaning of the church. He was ignorant of that which God revealed through Paul (Eph. 3:1-5). He knew that a tremendous change had come. He saw the old order passing. It required the visitation of God to him by means of the sheet let down from heaven to show that the middle wall of partition had now been broken down and that Gentiles who accepted the finished work of Jesus Christ were accepted on high the same as the Jew.

Searcheth Out Perfection.

Surely there is a vein for the silver, and a place for the gold where they find it. Iron is taken out of the earth, and brass is molten out of the stone. He setteth an end to darkness, and searcheth out all perfection: the stones of darkness, and the shadow of death.—Job 28, 1-5.

Happiness.

Let me but have time to my thoughts, but leisure to think of heaven and grace to my leisure; and I can be happy in spite of the world.—Joseph Hall.

"N MY play, 'The Perfect Fool,' a few years ago, I performed what the public call a 'mind-reading' stunt. "Before I began my act, I always made sure to tell the audience that I did not believe in 'mind-reading,' that my act was the result of four years' study and mental training. I had to memorize, to develop a code with my assistant, of 2,100 words, and to know the names of all famous generals, the capitals of all countries, the names of steamships, etc.

"One evening after I, blundered, had been reading the numbers on bills for people, I heard, in the creaky tones of an old gentleman's voice, some one challenging me defiantly.

"You can't tell me what I have in my pocket."

"An elderly gentleman in the audience says I cannot tell what he has in his pocket," I repeated.

"How do you know I am elderly?" he retorted.

"You, sir! I began in a portentous voice, 'have in your pocket a passport to Europe. . . . Your name is W. L. Cowen; you are sailing late tonight on the steamship—'

"In the meantime, I was receiving by code, from my assistant in the aisle, the word Scythia. I knew that there had been some error, that there was no steamship by that name. As I groped for the right word, there flashed through my mind the headlines of the morning papers: 'Steamship Scythia makes maiden voyage today.'

"I finished the sentence, 'You are sailing on the steamship Scythia.' "Because I was annoyed at the man's antagonism to my work, I added: "Moreover, you are going to have a bad voyage and you will never make another trip to Europe."

"Four weeks later I received a letter from England. It read: "We, the undersigned, take the privilege of writing to you. We believe this to be a matter of world importance.

"We were in the audience the night you told a man that his name was W. L. Cowen and that he was sailing for Europe on the steamship Scythia. We, too, were sailing on the Scythia; we were being sent to England to do psychic research for the University of Pennsylvania.

"After your performance, we went to see if there was a Mr. Cowen on the boat's passenger list. We found there was not, but the next morning we saw his name on the additional list. That evening, we wanted to speak with him to discuss your reading; but he was sitting at the captain's table, and we decided to wait for a more opportune time. The following morning he was found dead in his cabin.

"We want to know if you had a psychic message that he would never take another trip to Europe.

"I put the letter down. To this day, any time I hear of anyone sailing to Europe, the thought of that coincidence comes to me and makes me shudder."

Use Dogs in Ghost Hunt

in "Haunted" Farm House

Every night half a dozen armed men, accompanied by dogs, watch at a 400-year-old farmhouse, South Weston Hall, near Louth, Lincolnshire, England, because mysterious things had been reported happening there. The dogs are present because it is believed that canine senses are more sensitive to supernatural manifestations than are the senses of human beings.

Here are some of the strange, and at present unexplained, incidents which have occurred: Room thrown into confusion; food taken from the pantry; foot thrown down the chimney; large holes made through a ceiling, and a bed slept in.

A young woman asserts that twice she has seen an "animal" having a pointed nose and bushy tail. She fainted when she saw it. One theory is that an escaped monkey, hiding in a false roof of the house, is responsible, but a search failed to locate either a monkey or any other intruder.

The master of the East Lincolnshire Otter Hounds took his dogs and a terrier into the roof. Apparently scenting something, the terrier barked furiously at one spot, but nothing was found.

The strength of the intruder is an extraordinary feature. In a bedroom a sack filled with heavy material which had blocked the chimney for 50 years was thrown down to gain admission to the room.

Costliest Political Confab

The costliest political conference in history took place on "The Field of the Cloth of Gold," near Amboise, France, in 1520 between Francis I and Henry VIII. Francis erected a magnificent palace, chapel and other buildings, all gold decorated. For the entertainment of Henry and the nobility of England and France. Nothing, however, was accomplished in the 17 days. No one wanted to get very far away from a large fountain which, from morning until midnight, poured forth two kinds of wine.—Collier's Weekly.

WHEN YOU TAKE A LAXATIVE

... use a spoon

It isn't what brand of laxative you take that's so important—it's the form. A liquid laxative can be taken in any required amount. If only a little is needed, you need never take a bit too much.

Doctors favor the easily measured liquid laxatives. Instead of any form that does not encourage variation from the fixed dose. A fixed dose may be an overdose for you—or your child.

Always remember this one thing about constipation: the secret of any real relief is reduced dosage.

Give the bowels only as much help as they need, and less help as the need grows less. You will find Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin an excellent aid in regulating the bowels. It contains senna and cascara (natural laxatives) and it will clear-up any bilious, sluggish condition without upset. Delightful taste, and pleasant action. Your druggist has it.

Really Simple. There is a way to get an appetite. Go without food.

FERRY'S SEEDS

inherited QUALITY

Just as fine dairy herds are bred for blue-ribbon quality, so Ferry's Pure-bred Vegetable Seeds are bred to produce vegetables of superior size, color, flavor and abundance. Plant these purebred seeds and be sure of big, fresh, fine, tasty, luscious vegetables.

WATCH YOUR KIDNEYS!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering impurities from the blood stream. But kidneys get functionally disturbed—lag in their work—fail to remove the poisonous body wastes.

Then you may suffer nagging backache, attacks of dizziness, burning, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains; feel "all worn out."

Don't delay! For the quicker you get rid of these poisons, the better your chances of good health.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They tend to promote normal functioning of the kidneys; should help them pass off the irritating poisons. Doan's are recommended by users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

DOAN'S PILLS

Play-Off

By R. H. WILKINSON

JANIS swung the racket with a vehemence that threatened to break the strings. And a moment later she regretted it.

On the opposite side of the net, Amy Eldredge was racing across the court in a desperate attempt to return the drive. She failed. The crowd roared, applauded, looking toward Janis.

It was the play-off of the women's single tennis championship. Janis was the favorite.

And despite the fact that the sets were even and it had begun to look as though Amy Eldredge might have a chance of capturing the match, Janis was still the favorite.

Champions such as Janis don't lose their following in a breath.

Janis heard the roar of the crowd as she had heard it on hundreds of previous occasions.

She turned automatically to look at them.

Her gaze swept the sea of admiring faces, and didn't see them.

Her mind moved swiftly. Kirk should be sitting in his usual seat just behind the umpire's stand.

He had occupied that seat every day during the matches. And—yes, there he was.

Her heart turned over. He wasn't looking at her.

Of the hundreds of faces that were there his was the only one that wasn't turned in her direction.

He was looking toward Amy.

Just as he had constantly looked toward Amy every moment since the match got under way.

Janis bit her lip and walked back to receive Amy's serve.

Her mind wasn't on the game.

She was thinking of Kirk.

Lots of girls thought of Kirk Francis, but not quite in the same way as Janis thought of him.

Janis had been introduced to Kirk six months ago. It was at a week-end party up in the mountains—a winter sports affair.

She had been tennis champion then and was quite an important figure in the world of sports.

It was Kirk's attitude that first attracted the girl.

The fact that she was a tennis heroine didn't seem to affect him a bit.

For the first time since she had become famous, Janis met a man who treated her as he would any other human being.

Standing there, waiting for Amy's serve, she was once more in control of herself, thinking of Kirk, willing to sacrifice her rating in the world of sport to bring him happiness with another girl.

Somewhat it all seemed incredible. It didn't seem possible she was actually doing the thing. And yet she was.

The ball crashed over the net. Janis scooped it up, sent it whirling back to Amy's court.

Again it came, and again Janis returned it.

They rallied for a matter of minutes. Then Janis seemed to stumble. The edge of her racket struck the ball, sent it splashing out of bounds.

A murmur ran through the crowd. Grim-faced, Janis took her stand, awaiting a new serve.

It came.

She swung swiftly.

The ball crashed into her racket, rebounded, rushed back toward the other court, and then—slap—the net had stopped the play.

Janis had to grip herself to go on. She wished it was over.

Only two points more.

She decided to dub them both, even though they knew she was doing it on purpose. But nobody did know.

Janis had sacrificed the game in a manner that gave all the credit to Amy. And for this she was thankful.

Kirk was waiting for her when she came from the dressing room an hour later.

"I was watching you, Janis. I saw you know the game. Why?"

"Why, Kirk?"

He interrupted, shaking his head. "Don't try to lie out of it, Janis. Maybe those other idiots didn't realize what you were up to, but I did."

Janis caught her breath.

"You'll never tell on me, Kirk?"

"Why did you do it?"

"I'm sick of tennis and all the glamour of being champion. I want to go away and rest. Forget it for a while."

"Lying again. That isn't so."

"It is. I mean every word of it."

He studied her intently.

"Janis, let me go with you. Marry me."

Janis felt herself swaying, and tried to smile.

"Kirk! You don't know what you're saying. Amy—"

"Amy, he d-d. I never told her I loved her, and I don't. I've always loved you, Janis. Always. I—thought you were too engrossed, too taken up with being tennis champion to even think about love."

"But you've changed your mind?"

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart

National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington.—Most observers and thinking citizens have been inclined to take little stock in the talks of Huey Long and Father Coughlin, the radio preat, concerning plans for redistribution of wealth.

Long and Coughlin have developed a gigantic following of people who lack information as to the fallacies of the arguments, however logical they sound, that have been spread by these politically smart showmen.

One reason that serious attention to their proposals is now necessary is that some of their arguments are being advanced from high places in the federal government. I refer specifically to the testimony before the house committee on banking and currency by Marlner S. Eccles, governor of the Federal Reserve board and as such the titular head of the nation's banking system.

Mr. Eccles did not quite take a leaf out of Huey Long's book. He approached the position of the Louisiana senator, however, when he proposed a redistribution of income, whereas Senator Long has urged a redistribution of wealth.

Mr. Eccles suggested in his testimony in effect that it would be all right for a man with say ten million dollars in capital to keep that sum, provided his income was redistributed. Mr. Eccles went back to the days immediately following the World War to illustrate his argument and showed that at the top of the post-war boom "one tenth of one per cent of the families at the top of the income received as much as 42 per cent of the families at the bottom of the list."

Furthermore, he said that the single average family in the big income class got as much as four hundred families at the bottom of the income list.

"This one-tenth of 1 per cent was unable to use all the income in consumption," he continued. "They therefore had to find an outlet in the investment field. As a result, the capacity to produce increased out of all proportion to the capacity to consume."

So Mr. Eccles took the position that a solution of the depression was a redistribution of this income with the idea that it would increase purchasing power in the lower brackets. The governor offered no explanation of how those in the lower income class were going to obtain possession of the redistributed income of the rich because his argument stopped at the point where the government would take this money by taxation.

That is the recognized weakness of the programs advanced by Senator Long and Father Coughlin, and Governor Eccles showed no ability to solve the problem.

On top of the outbursts by Long and Coughlin and the serious testimony by Governor Eccles comes Senator Nye of the North Dakota progressive, with a bill in the senate to create a central bank. Senator Nye's action has caused many humorous expressions. Here we have a senator who has fostered, even boasted about, progressive ideas and has called himself a liberal. It is necessary only to recall that the father of the central bank idea was the ultra-conservative Alexander Hamilton, the first secretary of the treasury.

Senator Nye advances a bill with the thought that the central bank would avoid hamstringing of credit. I think financial experts all agree that this is true. The thing which Senator Nye overlooked, however, is that Mr. Hamilton's central bank collapsed and brought ruin and grief to thousands. The reason it collapsed was because in removing control of the banking facilities from experienced bankers, the whole thing had been turned over to the control of politicians who, generally speaking, are experienced only in politics. It seems paradoxical that the North Dakota senator should advance as a liberal scheme the creation of a central bank which one hundred and fifty years ago represented the height of conservatism.

BRAIDED "STAR" RUG PRACTICAL

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

A star rug with points on the outer edge is not practical, because the points are easily turned up when the rug is in use. This has been overcome in the braided rug shown here, and a round rug can be used in many places.

This model is made in six shades of blue but many other color schemes can be used to set off the pattern. Size is 33 inches and requires about three pounds of material. Three strips are used in braiding. The six diamonds to form it are 4 inches wide, 7 inches long. Fill in space between points of star to make round. Sew about 20 rows around in colors desired.

This is one of the 20 braided and crocheted rugs shown in rug book No. 25. Directions are given with each rug; also, how to braid and prepare the material for working.

If you want to make a good-looking rug, send 15c to the Home Craft Co., Dept. C, 1000 St. Louis Avenue St. Louis, Mo., and receive this rug book by mail postpaid.

Vagaries of Trade Rat Plague Camping Parties

Throughout the mountainous country of the West lives one of the most interesting members of the rat family. Fortunately this little creature is not despised as are other members of its family, for its peculiar antics and strange behavior around camps make it a source of amusement, but frequently annoyance, to the campers.

Its proper name is the bushy-tailed wood rat, and it resembles a squirrel more than a rat. It is also called the pack or trade rat, deriving these names from its behavior when it invades camp sites.

Persons unacquainted with this animal go through strange, and bewildering experiences when camping in its territory. They may retire at night, snugly between their blankets with their watches, coins, glasses and other precious possessions placed within easy reach, and on awakening in the morning find them missing. Or they may set their camp in shape before the day's hike and on their return at night find that spoons, knives, forks, tins of food and other small articles have gone the way of their watches and glasses. It is then they become acquainted with the trade rat, for usually this little fellow leaves something to mark his trail or identification. It may be a bone, a stick or other mountain refuse left in place of the stolen article. Careful, quiet watching for a short time brings results, for the marauder will return searching for other articles it can carry away. As soon as it finds what it wants, out to its cache it goes. This may be under a stone or brush pile and investigations usually reveal all of the stolen articles. It apparently has no choice in the goods it takes and will move anything it can carry, but seldom far away.—Detroit News.

Firestone GROUND GRIP TIRES

THAT 6,000,000 FARMERS NEED FOR THEIR CARS, TRUCKS AND TRACTORS TO PULL THEM THROUGH MUD, SAND OR BAD ROADS OF ANY KIND

YOU don't need chains, for these Ground Grip Tires will pull you through where chains would leave you stranded in mud or sand. Firestone Ground Grip Tires for motor cars, trucks and tractors give the farmer greatest economy ever offered, and relief from being stranded on mud roads and in soft ground.

Why can Firestone give you these wonderful new tires with the wide tread that withstands this terrific pull and strain, and still does not destroy the car body? Firestone can do this because the body of this tire is built with Gum-Dipped cords. Underneath the tread, the patented construction feature of two extra layers of Gum-Dipped High Stretch cords gives extra adhesion of the tread to the cord body, enabling Firestone Tires to hold on this heavy, tough, scientifically designed tread. This tire cleans itself on any kind of clay or soft ground, and the tread projections have been so placed, that they are always in contact with the road, going away with any bumping.

You cannot afford to be without these tires on your trucks and passenger cars. If your tractor is not equipped with rubber tires, see your nearest Firestone Service Store—tire dealer or implement dealer, and learn how easy it is to make the changeover. Get our prices on a full line of tires and auto supplies.

Imported Reindeer Held Boon for Poor Eskimos

Eskimos of Canada's Far North will develop in the next few years from a semi-starved to a thrifty, well-fed pastoral people, officials of the Lomen Reindeer company believe.

Delivery of 2,300 head of reindeer by the firm at Kittigazuit, Northwest territory, furnished nucleus of a new industry and basis of support for the Eskimos. The herd reached waiting corrals on the east shore of the McKenzie river, after a five-year drive, a thousand miles by direct line, across the Arctic circle from Nabaktoolik, Alaska.

The Canadian government will keep it intact for a year, officials say. "The number should nearly double, as most of the animals were mature females."

"Next year the herd probably will be divided into four parts and driven to different sections of the North," Lomen said. "Those herds will be subdivided when they have multiplied. Not for several years will individuals and villages get actual ownership of the deer."

Meanwhile the Eskimos will receive instruction in caring for reindeer and most effective methods of handling reindeer products.

The same procedure was followed successfully in Alaska by the American government. Coming of white men, with new weapons, curtailed native food supplies. The Eskimo population was near starvation each winter.

Between 1892 and 1902 the government imported 1,280 reindeer from Siberia. Today there are more than 1,000,000 in Alaska, of which about 700,000 are owned by the 16,000 Eskimos. The Lomen corporation owns about 250,000, the government the remainder.

Rare Transparent Jewel Foremost among the rarely beautiful transparent jewels is the tourmaline. Its range of colors in natural light is far wider than that of the alexandrite, and indeed includes practically every color of the spectrum. Those used primarily for gem purposes are usually deep or opaque greens, delicate pinks or ruby reds. Many expensive tourmalines have two exquisite colors blended superbly by mother nature. For instance, there is the famous "watermelon" shade which consists of a thick center of a deep pink hue with a thin outer edge of green.—Washington Star.

But the feeling passed.

Juan Baca passed away at his home on the east side Tuesday afternoon after being ill but a short time. Mr. Baca was well advanced in years and came here from Socorro county about three years ago. The remains were interred in the local cemetery.

A. P. Alexander, W. M. and C. R. Kuykendall of Ramon were business visitors here the latter part of last week. While here, Mr. Alexander made this office a friendly call.

Jack Isaacks from the Directory Dept. of the Mt. States Tel. & Tel. Co., was here Monday making arrangements for a new directory for Carrizozo. Accompanied by manager G. T. McQuillen, he visited the different places of business over town in order to have the proper addresses for the new directory.

"Uncle" George Elmgren, writer and cartoonist of the Caduceus, was here from Fort Stanton Monday and as is customary with George, he made the Outlook a much appreciated call.

Manager G. T. McQuillen returned Saturday from El Paso, where he had been for two weeks, attending a meeting of the managers of the different stations in the district. These meetings are of great importance from the fact that there is a two fold purpose in the gatherings. First, to form a better acquaintance between the managers and second, a large portion of the time is set aside for putting out questions of importance concerning the equipment and general service, which the managers are required to answer and they also are requested to make suggestions that will be beneficial to the company, its patrons and employees.

Lupe Gabaldon was a business visitor from the Claunch country on Wednesday.

Henry Bearden of the Bearden-Steele Piano Co. was here Wednesday in the interest of business. The company has opened a music store in Roswell and would appreciate any patronage coming from Carrizozo and Lincoln County. See their ad in this issue of The Outlook.

Preaching Services at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

The pastor wishes to thank those present Sunday evening, for the splendid attendance and hopes all may come again and bring a friend and let us study the word of God together and benefit thereby. He knows you love God and the Church, and through them let us love one another. May he not only look for you at both services Sunday, but may his heart be gladdened with the sight of your presence, for he is here because he loves you, and in every way possible, wants to help you. Help him to do so.
