Epidemic Sweeps Country

James E. Compton

James E. Compton, the son of James W. and Elizabeth Compton, was born October 10, 1892, in Quality, Kentucky. In 1909, he moved with his father and stepmother to Santa Rosa, N.M., where he was married to Miss Una M. Shane. He moved to Tucumcari and lived nine years, then to Gallup and back to Carrizozo, where he has lived for the past two years, until his death, May 19, 1935, after a short illness.

Mr. Compton conducted the Waffle House and Annex, during which time he made many warm and lasting friends. Jim Compton was a man of very good traits, chief among which was his sunny disposition and charitable tendencies, especially so toward the more unfortunate ones.

Funeral services were held Monday morning at the Baptist Church, conducted by Rev. Johnson of the Methodist Church and Rev. Jordan of the Baptist Church, after which the remains were accompanied by the many friends of the family, to White Oaks for burial.

He is survived by his wife, one son, Bill, two daughters, Marjorie and Louise, his stepmother and two half-brothers of Gallup and one brother of Bowling Green, Ky., to all of whom the sympathy of this community is tendered.

A collision occurred yesterday near Capitan, a truck from the transient camp colliding with a car belonging to Louis Johansen of the Capitan Laundry. Mr. Johansen had three ribs broken and is now confined to his bed, but not in a dangerous condition.

Mr. Vance Wilkins, Supervisor of the Rehabilitation Dept. of Government Relief, was here yesterday, looking over the field in his district which he found in excellent condition.

Miss Helen Rolland is ill at Santa Fe.

BORN—To County Clerk and Mrs. Ernest Key Saturday, a girl. Mother and daughter are doing nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Shelton made a trip to Stephenville, Texas, and witnessed the graduation exercises, their son Frank being a member of the class graduating on May 10. They returned accompanied by Frank, who will enter some Senior College, his choice of which, he will make before the fall term begins.

DIAMOND DUST

STANDING OF THE CLUBS

	Won	Lost
Cobras	3	2
White Oaks	4	1

The Carrizozo Cobras kept up their winning streak last Sunday by trouncing the Alamogordo Black Sox by a score of 14 to 7. The boys continued on their hitting spree, behind the stellar pitching of Andres Luera. The Ortiz brothers, Tony Peres, Andrea Luera and Jerry Beltran were the heavy guns for Carrizozo and hit the sphere very consistently when hits meant runs. Alamo's starting pitcher, baffled the local batters for the first four or five innings, but the boys got his number and he was sent to the showers with a resounding bunch of base hits. The fellow who replaced him fared no better, for he was greeted with a three-bagger from the bat of Jerry Beltran, which spelled disaster for his team. Manny Ortiz might well be classified as a highway robber, for he stole home in broad daylight. The boys postponed their game with San Antonio next Sunday on account of the confirmation services at the Santa Rita Church.

The management of the Carrizozo team extends an invitation to the public to a benefit dance at Baca's Hall tomorrow night. The White Oaks Miners and the Hondo Apple Pickers put on an exhibition at White Oaks that would rival any of the big show performances. The game, according to those who witnessed it, and as the score would indicate, was a pitchers' duel from start to finish, with White Oaks having a slight edge over the valley-ites. The final result was 2 to 1 in favor of White Oaks.

Next Sunday, the team will play the Capitan Camp at Baca Canyon. Here's hoping for another victory, White Oaks.

RECITAL

Tuesday evening at the High School Auditorium, music-lovers received a treat which was out-of-the-ordinary, from the fact that Mrs. T. E. Kelley had arranged the recital in the form of a playlette in which the different musical numbers were interspersed. The attendance was good and the program was exceptionally fine, being of unusual interest. Those who missed the event, missed a rare evening's entertainment and those who attended, were fortunate. The program will be found on page eight.

Coach and Mrs. Detloff will leave tomorrow for El Paso, where they will meet Mrs. Detloff's mother, Mrs. A. O. Rix and after their return, they will remain until Mrs. Rix's son, Alex Armagnac, graduates from the Roswell Military Institute, June 4, after which, the entire party will go to Wilcox, Arizona, to spend the vacation period.

The Senior-Junior classes were entertained Wednesday evening at the Community Hall with a banquet and dance, sponsored by the mothers of the Juniors. Last night at the F. A. English home, Mesdames Shelton and English gave a buffet supper to members of the Senior class.

Yesterday, the Senior-Junior classes enjoyed a picnic in the White mountains.

WOMAN'S CLUB

held its May meeting at the home of Mrs. Nellie Branum, with Mesdames Richard, Key, Clint Branum, Claud Branum, Taylor, Finley and C. O. Davis, as assistant hostesses. The club was called to order by the president, Mrs. Young, and followed with singing "Columbia." It was decided to inaugurate monthly card parties, charging each player a small sum, the committee to furnish further details for publication.

A letter from 'The Clubwoman G. F. W. C.' requested a picture of our clubhouse for exhibit at the Federated Council meeting of the National Woman's Club to be held at Detroit. A smile went around the room—"not 30 years too soon." It was hoped, for the club is doggedly going on with its plans and expects to be able to reply favorably to the next similar request.

Mrs. Mayer having charge of the installation of officers, accomplished it with her usual pleasing efficiency. She passed a red rose to all, then presented them individually to the club with a fitting compliment, the one to the president, Mrs. Snyder, being especially laudatory. The club gave a rising vote of thanks to Mrs. Young in appreciation of her past year's work, then made Rachel Ann Young the club's mascot for the year. Miss Young was presented and greeted with applause.

In the absence of Mrs. Blaney, Mrs. Degitz presented the following program: Vocal solo, "That Wonderful Mother of Mine," Mrs. Lemon; Piano solo, "Yucca," Mrs. Burney; Song, "Bells of the Sea," High School Glee Club. Refreshments of delicious punch and a variety of dainty cakes were served.

HONORING MISS MELAAS

The Goofus Club entertained with a 6 o'clock buffet luncheon Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Jones, honoring Miss Hazel Melaas. After the luncheon, six tables of "Michigan" were enjoyed, Maurice Lemon capturing first prize and the "booby" prize going to Mr. Bright. Before the close, Mr. Carl Jones presented the honor guest with a beautiful gift from the club with love and best wishes.

Great Liner to Be Sent to Graveyard

S. S. Mauretania Will Be Wrecked for Scrap.

London.—The Mauretania, speed queen of the Atlantic from her launching in 1907 until 1920 and the most famous of British ships, will soon make her last trip—to the scrap heap. At least she will be spared the indignity of a tow to her grave.

Under her own power she will sail from Southampton, England, for Rosyth, tiny town at the head of the Scottish Firth of Forth. Arrived off Rosyth the once mighty queen of the Atlantic will drive head on to the beach with her four steam turbines, marvel of their day, going "full ahead."

Beached in the shallow waters of the Firth, wreckers will tear the heart out of her for the value of the metal in her hull.

days 10 hours and 45 minutes back in 1907. Despite the desperate efforts of her owners to recondition her in such a way that she might regain the record she held for 22 years, the German Bremer and Europa and the Italian Rex have been too fast for her since 1920.

Her Last Attempt.

In her last vain try for her former place as the fastest of the Atlantic ships she made the crossing from Cherbourg to the Ambrose channel lightship in 4 days 21 hours and 44 minutes, arriving in New York August 8, 1923.

The present record for the crossing is 4 days 13 hours and 58 minutes, set by the Rex of the Italian line in August of 1933 and closely approached by many others of the modern luxury liners. The greater speed of the new ships, embodying all the modern im-

UNFINISHED SYMPHONIES

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

More than a century ago a young man began a great symphony when he was only about twenty-one years of age and his name was Franz Schubert. While taxing his strength to interpret a divinely inspired message he died at the age of thirty-one before completing the composition. The work is greatly treasured and it has come to be known in the musical circles as the "Unfinished Symphony."

Our lives are like symphonies. Tragically and pathos, sorrow and joy, success and failure, sunshine and rain, light and darkness. In music the major chords express joy, the minor chords strains of sorrow. Every life is a symphony in which not only are expressed these major and minor chords but also a great theme—the Foreigners Bought Ship.

Foreign interests, particularly Italian and Japanese, have tried to buy the Mauretania with a view to recommissioning her and putting her back in passenger service.

Whether from sentiment, or because of pressure from the high command of the English navy, the officials of the Cunard-White line refused to sell the ship to other than English hands. She went to the Metal Industries, Ltd., of Glasgow, Scotland, for a reported price of £80,000—approximately $384,000 at the present exchange. The cost of building her was £3,000,000, or roughly $14,400,000.

The Mauretania, sister ship of the torpedoed Lusitania, established the record for crossing the Atlantic at 5 provements and the latest developments in steamshiping, as well as greater stability and more comforts, combined to start the Mauretania on the down hill path to her grave.

More fortunate than her mate, the Lusitania, the Mauretania went through the war unscathed. Used in troop transport to the Dardanelles in the early days of the war, she was later recommissioned as a hospital ship. Before the war ended the English government handed the great ship back to her owners. She was then refitted and placed in the passenger service.

An Evening Ensemble

A midsummer night's dream by Mainbocher of multicolored flowered taffeta on a white ground has a white chiffon bodice. The hem cut up in front to show the feet is an important style note. A corsage bouquet and wreath of artificial flowers matching those on the silk complete one of the most glamorous evening ensembles of the season.

CLOSET backgrounds are becoming increasingly attractive as they gain in decorative attention. No longer is it considered quite right for them to be left with the white plaster finish if the interior is conspicuously visible when the door is thrown open, although in the case of clothes closets the white may remain if it lightens the interior. In many instances these closet side walls are bright with color. For dining room and kitchenette closets these finishes may properly be considered the last word in decoration.

Green and yellow are two colors against which most decorated china whatever its hues, can be seen advantageously. Blue is very pleasing with some old fashioned wares, and Chinese red is just the thing with some decorations and some chinaware.

Any homemaker can paint the walls as there is not apt to be much wall space. Shelves are white, cream, or natural wood. The paper used is costly but since very little is needed the actual outlay would not be great. In the average closet, matching paper would not be necessary which simplifies the work for the home decorator.

Lighting Trick

If the newly painted walls of a room do not appear the desired color when artificial light is turned on, try substituting blue bulbs in your lighting fixtures for the usual white-crested ones. "Daylight" bulbs have quite an effect on the wall colors of the room in which they are used.

Statue of Liberty Gains in Popularity

Washington.—A register for visitors, hidden in a nook of the Statue of Liberty for nearly 40 years, has been discovered.

The book contains 1,500 pages, each page having 64 signatures. The signatures are those of persons who visited the famous monument in New York harbor between 1890 and 1900.

Comparing data found in the old book with that shown in last year's register, George A. Palmer, acting superintendent of the statue, was amazed by the immense increase revealed in the number and range of visitors.

Forty years ago, it was revealed, only 11 states were represented by 69 visitors who registered on August 8, while on August 8, 1934, 1,202 actually visited the monument and 570 registered. Thirty-six states were represented in the latter group.

purpose and meaning of life itself. Try however hard we may, no great life-purpose is ever completely fulfilled. However high and praiseworthy may be our ambition, we know from experience that these ambitions will never be ultimately realized. Ideals are not meant to be achieved. They are goals which urge us, as it were, "On stepping stones to higher things." It is this eternal "urge," to express in whatever may be our life's work, our highest and best self that makes the symphony. Even though we may never complete it, we have known something of the exalted joy of self-expression.

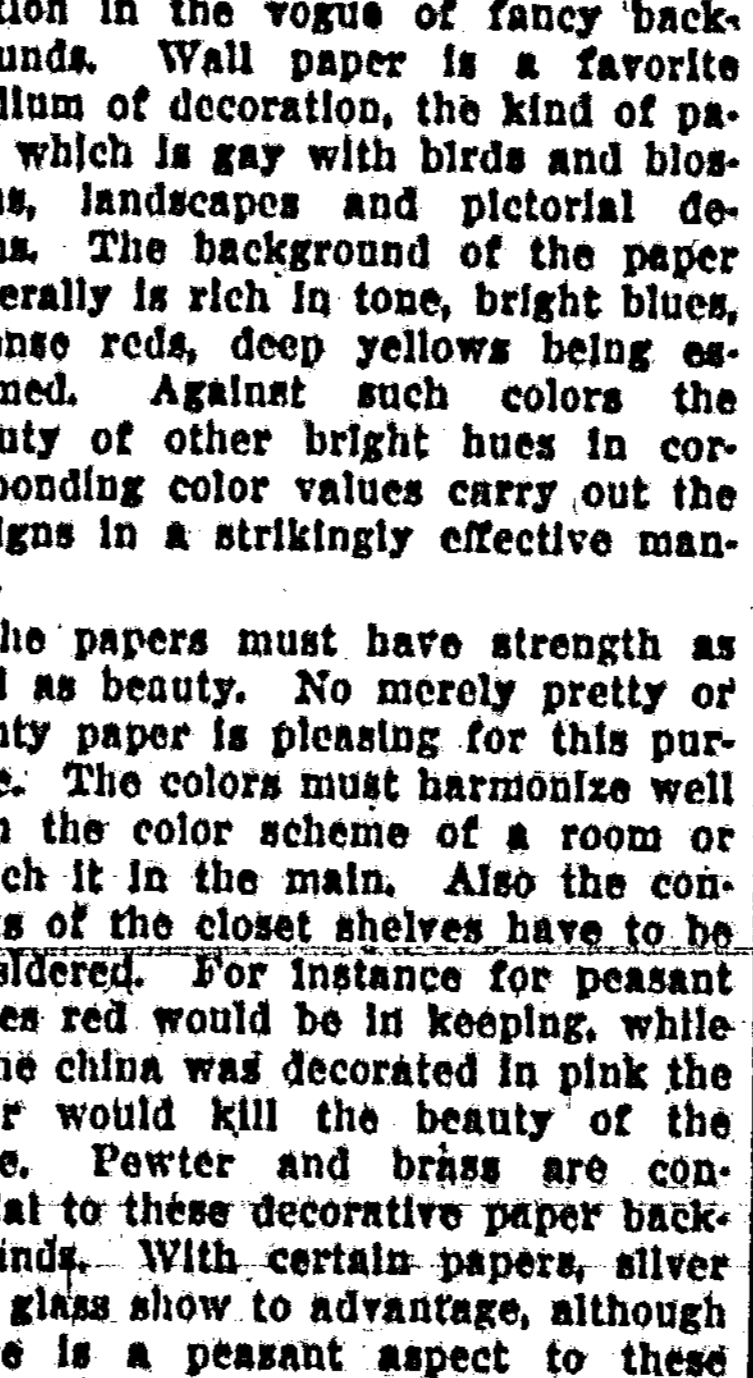

Life will always be an unfinished symphony—perhaps this was why Robert Browning wrote, "A man's reach should exceed his grasp, or what's a heaven for?" or as in the "Faultless Painter" he wrote, "I do what many dream of all their lives, Dream? Strive to do, and agonize to do, and fall in doing." Perhaps this same idea gave rise to the rather crude custom of the early Indians to bury in the grave of their departed a gun and a dog, so that they might continue in their work in the Happy Hunting Ground. Surely the old philosopher was right when he suggested that a human life was not built as a child would build a house of blocks, just for the thrill of seeing it tumble down. No—there is an eternal meaning and purpose in life itself and though we never reach the ideal and much of our work must necessarily remain unfinished:

Yet we trust that somehow good Shall be the final goal of ill, That nothing walks with aimless feet That not one life shall be destroyed Or cast as rubbish to the void, When God has made the pile complete.

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart
National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington.—In the last two weeks the National Capital has been under the tent of a three-ring circus, if ever one existed. At the Capitol building, there has been utter confusion as Democrats fought among themselves and Republicans and Independents sat on the sidelines and said "sic 'em." At the other end of Pennsylvania avenue, business activity has been amazing. The President was beginning to start to commence to spend five billion dollars. In between has been the largest hanger of Easter visitors the Capital city has known in recent years.

Mr. Roosevelt, having complete control of the largest sum of money ever turned over to one man, has been running his brain at lightning speed to make good on his promise that actual spending will begin in two months. He has announced that some sixty agents of the government will participate in the spending function but roosting on top of the various spending groups are to be three newly created boards, each responsible to his direction and each enjoined to bear down in order that the public works and relief funds in his charge may flow freely.

I hear general commendation of the President for selecting Frank C. Walker of Montana and New York to head up the spending operations. Mr. Walker, a lawyer, is experienced in a big business way and is accepted everywhere as a man with capacity to do the job. The fly that is floating around and threatens to get into the ointment, however, is the existence of two schools of thought in the administration. This condition may undo the good work which Mr. Walker is regarded as capable of doing.

The five-billion-dollar spending machine will be guided first by the President, second by Mr. Walker and third by the various agencies now in existence. They are supposed to present plans and Mr. Walker will be expected to analyze and determine their values.

Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell, under-secretary of agriculture, will have something like nine hundred million dollars to spend in remaking the rural districts of the nation in a job variously described as "rural resettlement" and other similar short titles. This program contemplates expansion and intensification of work now being done by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration and the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, including attacks on the problem of dust storms and other types of soil erosion. Although Professor Tugwell has no plans complete, he is working in the direction of transplanting many farmers from poor land where living is hard to more fertile fields. Under his jurisdiction also will be reforestation and a general examination of land uses.

A second agency that is now in the current set-up provides for development of rural electrification. The third new spending movement is directed at dangerous railroad grade crossings. The funds that will be set aside for these latter two, however, will total only about one-fourth as much as Professor Tugwell will spend in his orgy.

Other scheduled programs for expenditure include:

Assistance to clerical and professional workers—the white collar folks.

Loans and grants to states, cities and counties.

Development of new housing construction in cities and rural districts and general reconditioning and remodeling of homes already existing.

Extension and expansion of the Civilian Conservation Corps to a maximum of six hundred thousand workers.

Further public building construction but in a less extensive manner than previously was attempted.

Although the President assured congress that he himself would administer the five-billion-dollar fund, and succeeded in quieting criticism to some extent by the statement, official announcement of the allotment board shows the name of Secretary Ickes as chairman. Many caustic darts were fired at Mr. Ickes during the two months while the public works bill was held up in congress, because members did not like the Ickes policy as public works administrator. Of course, as the set-up now stands Mr. Walker will determine the character of spending and Mr. Ickes and his allotment board will determine how much money each may have. That would seem to eliminate the causes of trouble experienced heretofore by the members of congress and the Ickes organization. Nevertheless, critics of the secretary have begun to suspect something.

Mr. Roosevelt has said in White House press conferences several times lately that he would permit no delay in getting the spending machinery in motion. He assured the country in his radio speech the other night that his policy was to be speed and assistance where the money will do the most good. The President certainly has made clear that he is anxious to get things going.

Newspaper correspondents reporting

Capital news had a good laugh the other day at the attempt of the Democratic national congressional committee to satisfy all sections of the country in an announcement made by the committee respecting its organization. I can conceive of no better way to tell the story than to quote opening paragraphs from four statements issued simultaneously by the committee on the subject mentioned. The paragraphs which follow are taken from statements which were delivered to my office in one envelope:

1—"The West will play an important part in the direction of the campaign of the Democratic national congressional committee, now being organized by Chairman P. H. Drewry of Virginia. Representative Abe Murdock of Beaver, Utah, has been selected as a vice chairman of this committee, and, under plans proposed, will have general supervision over the campaign in the West."

2—"In the organization on for the coming campaign of the Democratic national congressional committee the South will play a very important part. Not only is Congressman P. H. Drewry of Virginia chairman of this committee, but he has selected other southern congressmen to aid him. Representative Virgil Chapman of the Sixth Kentucky district has been chosen as chairman of the very important executive committee. His is what is historically known as the Henry Clay district, and has been a political battle ground of the nation for considerably more than one hundred years."

3—"Unless all signs fail, the Middle West will be an important battle ground in the congressional elections of next year. Representative P. H. Drewry of Virginia has recognized this when, as chairman of the Democratic national congressional committee, he aided in the selection of Congressman Eugene B. Crowe of the Ninth Indiana district, as first vice chairman of the Democratic national congressional committee. Representative Crowe will have general supervision over Democratic campaign activities of congressional candidates throughout the central part of the country. His jurisdiction will extend from the Ohio to the Great Lakes. Practically every national election for the last one-half century or more has been won or lost in the states comprising this district."

4—"In the reorganization of the Democratic national congressional committee Chairman P. H. Drewry of Virginia has sought to give additional prominence to members from the East. Representative William J. Granfield of Massachusetts has been selected as one of the vice chairmen and will have general supervision over campaign activities throughout the North and East. Associated with him will be Representative William N. Rogers of New Hampshire, who has been named a member of the executive committee. Congressman Rogers represents the district which boasts of Daniel Webster, the great orator of one hundred years ago."

Of course, it was intended that the statements should be distributed to correspondents from the various sections of the country so that western newspapers would be told how important their section was and eastern newspapers would have had information to the effect that the eastern section was all important. It was not an unusual procedure but it happened that the statements were distributed together and that afforded the butt of the joke.

Senator Bankhead (Dem., Ala.), of cotton production control fame, has another idea for legislation. This time the senator is seeking to make it possible, he says, for every tenant farmer to become a land-owner. He has legislation pending in congress to carry out his program and it appears now that it may go through.

It is proposed to create another government-owned corporation which would have power to issue one and a half billion dollars worth of government-guaranteed bonds. These bonds could be sold by the corporation and the proceeds used to buy land for present landless farmers. They would become owners in name and would have the milestone of that debt around their necks for twenty years if they succeeded in earning enough income to pay off the debt in that time. It is true the measure would open the way for land ownership and would make the terms of ownership about as easy as is possible when one borrows another's money. Those facts, however, do not remove the conditions which a good many observers hold are bad.

For instance, it is difficult to see how the tenant can make a living and sufficient profit to pay off the debt to the government if he has been unable to accomplish that same purpose with money borrowed commercially. It is being said freely that such legislation will serve only the purpose of relieving present owners of land which they do not want by its transfer through the government to others who may not be able to pay for it. In other words, it is another bill to put more people in debt.

Unique "Primrose" Rug to Crochet

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

This rug rug measures 42 inches and requires about three pounds of material to finish. It appears to be made of six squares each of a different size, with the horizontal positions alternating. Work is started with the center square about 5 inches in diameter. Triangles are then crocheted on the four sides of inner square forming the second square. Continue same way for third, fourth and fifth squares. The sixth square is the same size as fifth square and therefore requires smaller triangles on sides than the others. Colors should be so arranged that center is in light shades of yellow, while outer triangles represent the petals of flowers, and may be shaded in color desired. This can be made into a very attractive and unique rug, depending very much on the color scheme used.

This is one of the twenty-six crocheted and braided rugs illustrated with instructions in Grandmother Clark's rug book No. 25. Detailed instructions are given in this book for the "Primrose" rug, and if you are interested, send 15¢ to our Rug Department and we will send it to you by mail.

Uncover Mayan Cities

Fifteen Centuries Old
Carnegie Institution scientists probing the dense jungles of Guatemala and Honduras have made new discoveries in connection with the ancient Mayan civilization which flourished in Central America when a few people still lived who could remember the crucifixion of Christ. Under many feet of deposited silt and tangled vegetation they have found cities once populous and richly built with palaces and temples, but deserted now for 15 centuries. One ruined city in particular in northern Guatemala has attracted attention. It is surrounded by a moat very similar to those used extensively centuries later in Europe. Originally the ditch was about ten feet deep and ten feet wide. It was spanned in different places by seven masonry bridges, and was connected with a nearby swamp so that during the rainy season it was filled with water. This is the first moated city ever found in America and it is not certain whether it was used as a means of protection against raiding tribes or whether it had a religious meaning. In Honduras an expedition has uncovered two stone altars and many monuments. All were ornately carved with the picture writing of the ancient Mayas which leaves us a record of their empire.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Sources of Greatness

All great heroic men have seeds and roots far back, it may be, out of which they spring and apart from which they could not spring at all; a sublime fatherhood and motherhood in whose blood and life, however undistinguished, victory was long distilling for the great day to come of their people and nation.—Horace Bushnell.

FEEL TIRED, ACHY— "ALL WORN OUT?"

Get Rid of Poisons That Make You Ill

IS a constant backache keeping you miserable? Do you suffer burning, scanty or too frequent urination; attacks of dizziness, rheumatic pains, swollen feet and ankles? Do you feel tired, nervous—all unstrung? Then give some thought to your kidneys. Be sure they function properly, for functional kidney disorder permits poisons to stay in the blood and upset the whole system.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They help the kidneys cleanse the blood of health-destroying poisonous waste. Doan's Pills are used and recommended the world over. Get them from any druggist.

Rash Disfigured Face

Disappeared After Using Cuticura

"A rash broke out on my face from some external irritation and spread very rapidly. The skin was red, and the rash burned and itched so that I scratched night and day. Then it developed into large spots or eruptions and disfigured my face.

"I tried different kinds of soaps, but had no success. I read about Cuticura Soap and Ointment and decided to send for a free sample. The result was so good that I bought more, and after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment the rash disappeared." (Signed) Herbert B. Skyles, R. D. 1, Vintondale, Pa.

To protect your car fully,
your motor oil must do two things:

1. It must be on duty during the starting period!

More than half of all motor wear occurs in the five minutes after you start, because straight mineral oils drain away, leaving parts dry. Even in warm weather your motor makes at least a thousand revolutions before the quickest-flowing oil can reach all parts.

Only Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil cuts down costly starting wear. It is the only oil that penetrates and combines with metal surfaces, forming a "Hidden Quary" that never drains away. Your motor is lubricated before you touch the starter! You know your motor is protected!

2. It must withstand unusual driving stresses!

Cars built in 1932 and since have greatly increased power and speed. Bearing pressures and crankcase temperatures have increased in proportion. Flashing pick-up and high speeds make it necessary to have an oil with enough extra oiliness and film strength to withstand the increased load.*

Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil protects modern motors better because it has 2 to 4 times the film strength of any oil not Germ Processed! It maintains this high film strength at high temperatures. Say "O. K.—Drain"—fill with Germ Processed Oil and get full protection for your motor!

*Motor oils generally have no more oiliness and film strength now than they had 10 years ago. Many new refining methods now used to make oils free from carbon and sludge have lowered instead of increased oiliness and film strength, the very qualities on which depends an oil's lubricating value.

Germ Processed Oil is free from carbon and sludge troubles. But more important, the Germ Process puts into it 2 to 4 times the film strength of straight mineral oil, as Timken machine tests have proved!

Distorted Picture of Recovery

After Pres. Roosevelt's recent pleasure trip to the Bahamas in a million-dollar yacht, he found that where at one time his views and acts met with the hearty approval of the national legislative bodies, there was a steady hammering at his policies by those who had formerly jumped at the crack of his whip.

Feeling much aggrieved at that condition, he set himself busy with another of his "bed-time stories" in which he said: "Never since my inauguration have I felt so unmistakably, the atmosphere of recovery."

The President said he made that statement after reviewing the Bulletin from the National Association of Manufacturers to the effect that the threat of the New Deal measures was what was blocking and hindering recovery.

The Bulletin was against the continuance of the N.R.A., but the President said he wished it continued—the Bulletin was bitterly opposed to the Utilities Act, but the President said he considered that the most important measure to assist recovery. That measure would enable the Interstate Commerce Commission to regulate all transports and would give the government absolute control over all banks, power and light plants throughout the country.

In response to his "Fireside Talks," he found that the attitude of the business interests were far from being favorable to his "one-man-show." In fact, the breach between the American business interests and the President is widening to an alarming degree.

It is so strange that many people have been laying all the blame on the President's advisors or subordinates and have been following the saying "don't blame the President—but even that's falling. The people are now of the opinion that as he is running the show, and if the tent falls down, it is his hard luck.

His grandstand play in order to reach for the galleries will fall because of the fact that already, the big business interests of this country now regard him as their enemy instead of their friend, as he so professed to be after his election. Where at one time the smoke screen kept him from public criticism, he must now shoulder the blame for all acts of his appointees. When a mistake is made at a bank or business house, or industry of any kind, is not the head to blame and will it satisfy the injured one to place the blame on the clerk? No, the blame rests with the head of any administration, bank or enterprise of any nature—no, likewise let the blame rest where it belongs and out out blaming the subordinates.

SYNOPSIS

Theodore Gatlin adopts a baby, "Penelope," in an effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But his wife has never wanted her, and their affairs end in the divorce court. At a baseball game a ball strikes ten-year-old Penelope on the nose. Mrs. Gatlin spirits the child to Europe. Gatlin wills Penelope all his money, and is about to begin a search for her when a motor accident ends his life. Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, rising young psychiatrist, is presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Baldea, a girl with a dual personality, for which her "middle nose" is in part responsible. McNamara does not think she is a criminal and obtains Burt's testimony in court. Later, the doctor's office nurse, is also won over. Nance's criminal record outweighs Doctor Burt's explanation of her case and she is sent to San Quentin penitentiary. Nance escapes, and goes to Lanny's apartment. From one of the men in the boat in which the girl escaped McNamara learns that her real name is Penelope Gatlin. He also discovers that she is heiress to $750,000. Fearful of McNamara, in his official capacity, Nance flees. Lanny finds her in her apartment, asleep. Then she disappears, and McNamara learns that she is living in Paris. He also discovers he is in love with Lanny. Stephen Burt, Penelope by cable to leave Paris, as her whereabouts are known.

"Make up your mind now that you will never mention those two names again as long as you live. You promise?"

"Yes, Doctor."

"Now, what is the name of the girl whose photograph you showed me?"

A curious slight spasm of dilated pupils crossed Flynn's face. He stammered. "I don't know," he replied.

"What is the name of the girl who escaped from San Quentin?"

"I don't know."

Stephen struck Flynn a smart slap on the top of the head. "Wake up," he commanded.

Flynn came awake instantly and looked extremely foolish. "Well, you didn't stand the test," Stephen assured him. "You were falling asleep, so I awakened you."

"Am I pretty bad, Doc?"

"You're this bad, that if you do not take treatment you will be in a bad way. I'll give you a prescription. Come and see me again."

"Thank you, Doc. You're mighty kind. Good Lord, Doc, am I going crazy? I don't remember why I called on you."

"You asked me to identify this passport photograph," and Stephen held out the little photo to Flynn, who thrust it away.

"That's bad luck, Doc. Never mind. It's a matter of no importance."

He picked up his hat, bade Stephen good night and left.

CHAPTER X

When the cablegram went to Penelope Gatlin had been delivered for at least three days. Dan McNamara telephoned Lanny to ask if the girl had answered. Upon being told she had not, he was so cast down that Lanny felt sorry for him. So, like all women who feel sorry for a man, she decided to feed him, and invited him for dinner that night. She said Stephen would be there.

"That's no inducement," McNamara rumbled, "but I'll come anyhow. Thanks."

McNamara's thoughts kept shuttling back to Penelope Gatlin all that busy day. Finally he telephoned Flynn to report to him.

"How about that Morton case I sent up to the chief of detectives recently?" he asked, when Flynn appeared. (McNamara hadn't sent the case up at all, but he knew Flynn did not know this.)

"Oh, yes," said Flynn. "I did some work on that but didn't get anywhere. I called on the Morton woman and tried to get her to identify the girl's photograph, but she wouldn't or couldn't."

"Did you get a line on the girl?"

"Sure. Traced her to an address in Paris."

"Under what name is she registered with the Paris police?"

"Chief, I can't just recall it."

"It was Penelope Gatlin, wasn't it?" Flynn flashed a little. "I don't know."

"You're an odd as Mrs. Morton. What's the matter with you?"

"I don't know, Chief. I think we might as well drop the case."

"Very well, then, forget it, Pat. I was mildly curious, that's all. He illuminated Flynn. "Ty Jupiter, that fellow's getting too deep for me!" he colloquized. And he telephoned the captain of detectives. "What about that case of the lost Morton heiress?" he demanded.

"We've dropped it on Flynn's advice," McNamara grunted and hung up.

Lanny, wearing a kitchen apron, passed smoking dinner long enough to see him in that night. Stephen had not yet arrived, so McNamara went out into the kitchen with Lanny, while he related the news regarding the common nuisance.

Lanny gazed upon him very haughtily. "You're a good man, Dan McNamara. How come you've never married?"

"If I had, my mother would have lived with us," he declared. "How come you've never been married?"

Lanny sighed. "Nobody ever asked me."

McNamara sighed gustily. "My poor mother's very old and in bad health," he said.

"A man like you should have sons—big, strapping, manly sons."

"How old are you, Lanny?"

"Forty-two."

"I'm forty-six myself." He sighed again. "You're a fine woman, Lanny—devil a finer. We might manage it."

"Manage what?"

"To put up with mother for the little time she has to live. God bless her."

"I never could stand a left-handed proposal, Dan." Lanny shook her head and gazed at him solemnly.

"Then here's my right hand on it, Lanny," and he laid his great right paw in hers. "If it's sons you'd have, you old darlin', 'tis little time we have to waste."

A faint flush came to Lanny's slightly faded cheeks. "What would Steve do?"

"It's been my observation, Lanny, that a woman without something to occupy her mind is in a poor way. You could continue to look after the doctor's office."

"You've a good theory, Dan, but it lacks one ingredient."

"Name the lack and I'll get it."

"You're not in love with me."

"The h—! I'm not! You're like all the women—forgetting putting dogs in windows. I'm not used to passing words lightly on such a subject. Give me a yes or no answer."

"You great, lovable idiot!" Lanny yelled. Advancing swiftly upon the chief, she kissed his pompadour. "I'll risk your mother, Dan," she said softly. "All my life I've been looking for a man with a heart in his chest—and the day you first came into the office, with your big, swaggering way and your hairney and your air of owing the world, I—I wondered if you were married. I'm no longer young, Dan. I have peculiar ways and I'm bossy, too."

McNamara drew her face down and kissed it. "What a blessing I'm used to that, Lanny, and have learned to be kind to the aged. Here, quit pulling my hair, woman."

The door bell began ringing.

"What's wrong with you, Lanny?" Stephen demanded when Lanny admitted him. "I rang half a dozen times."

"Do you good to wait once in a while," she snapped back at him.

"Mac," he declared, "you have a propheety air about you."

"And well I may," McNamara replied portly. "I've just popped the question to Lanny and we've agreed to jump over the broomstick—together."

"I've been expecting this, Dan. She hasn't been worth a canceled postage stamp to me since she met you."

"But I'm not going to leave you, Steve! Oh, I couldn't leave my boy!"

Stephen held out his arms and Lanny ran into them. And then Stephen warned Dan that if he wasn't good to Lanny he would hypnotize him, as he had hypnotized P. Flynn, and sell him the idea he was a petoodle, so Lanny could kick him around at will.

"You want?" McNamara yelled. "You put the comethor on Flynn?"

"Certainly." And Stephen told him the story.

"Three hundred years ago, in Salem, Massachusetts," said Dan McNamara, "you would have been burned for a witch."

The door bell rang insistently. "Now, who can that be?" Lanny exploded.

Dan rolled out of the kitchen and down the hall. Then Stephen and Lanny heard the door slammed violently; there was a scuffle, and something crashed to the floor.

He came into the kitchen a moment later, leading by her handcuffed wrist none other than Penelope Gatlin. "She wouldn't kiss me first," he announced, "so I put the cuffs on her—the little vixen."

"Oh, Lanny, you darling! And Steve, you sweetheart!" Penelope cried, and extended her manacled arms. Lanny dodged in under them and folded the girl to her heart. "You next, Steve," Penelope ordered, and obediently Stephen lowered his head and the looped arms came around his neck and drew his face down. "And now, Dan," the girl cooed, and turned her face upward.

McNamara laughingly uncurled her. "Why didn't you cable us?" Stephen demanded, a trifle severely.

"I adore surprises, that's why."

"Why did you come back?" McNamara demanded.

"The proper place to hide oneself is in the spot one is supposed to have fled from. Lanny, don't let them stand around staring at me and asking me questions," moaned Penelope. "I'm hungry and so tired. Can I have my name little bed tonight?"

"You can have anything and everything you want, my dear."

"I want Stephen," came the answer, faintly tired, and the girl went to him and leaned her sleek black head against his breast. "I've missed you so, Stephen."

Stephen held her close with his left arm, and his right hand came up and caressingly fingered her nose. "God's on our side, Lanny," he told his nurse. "Tomorrow I want you to arrange for a room in St. Dubonnet's hospital. We'll get Boyd to operate."

"Please, Stephen, do I have to go away any more?" asked Nance.

"No, not any more my dear."

"And you'll fix my nose? I wanted to have it done in Paris, but when you sent me that cablegram I couldn't of course. Can I have just the nose I want, Stephen?"

"Yes, little wanderer. And when that's done you shall have the kind of home you want. You've been lost in the woods, poor babe, but I'll lead you out into the loveliest sunshiny meadow imaginable."

McNamara had, throughout this scene, felt a lump in his throat. He glanced at Lanny and saw the tears of sympathy in her brave, kindly eyes, so to avert a scene he growled huskily: "When do we eat?"

For the first time since Penelope Gatlin, alias Nance Belden, had come under his notice, Stephen Burt had a reasonable opportunity to examine the girl, when, following dinner at Lanny's house, Penelope, Lanny, Dan McNamara and Stephen retired to the drawing room. Despite the strain of her record-breaking journey from Europe, Penelope was not so tired that she wished to retire early. She joined in the general conversation, and Stephen noticed that she seemed inclined to be argumentative, but her arguments indicated no cogent thought; frequently she employed the patois of the underworld; her language was racy and idiomatic. He noticed that her laugh was sudden, loud—the laugh of a vulgarian. She was nervous; her hands twined and intertwined continuously, she moved about the room a great deal, and finally came to rest on Stephen's knees. She looked into his eyes searchingly for a long time and then said accusingly:

"You don't cure for me."

"Why do you think that, Penelope?"

"Because nobody could love a girl with a nose like mine."

"Did you bring back the sketches that Parisian artist made of you?"

She bounced off his lap and hurried upstairs, to return presently with a portfolio filled with sketches. There was one crayon drawing of her as she was. A half dozen additional sketches were copies of the first, with the exception of the nose. The artist had fitted into her features a profile of his own design, and viewed in profile some of his creations lent to the girl's face an aspect of singular beauty and sweetness.

"I like this one best," Stephen decided. "The patrician nose does you justice. Going to come over tomorrow and give you the most searching physical examination you've ever had," he decided. He drew her over to him and kissed her on the cheek, paternally. "You're a nice, sweet, lovable girl, Penelope," he assured her as if she were a little girl, "and the shape of your nose isn't taken into consideration by the sort of people whose love and approval you desire. And you can get along very well without the love and approval of any other sort. Dan and Lanny and I all love you and we want you to love us. We're your only real friends and you wouldn't do anything to hurt us, would you?"

"I'd rather die, Stephen."

"Fine. You're tired now, so suppose you run upstairs to bed, and tomorrow, when you wake up, you'll be refreshed and happy and we'll be able to discuss the making over of this poor nose. Kiss us all good night."

Penelope dutifully obeyed, and as she was starting up the stairs Stephen said: "And don't forget to say your prayers."

She grimaced disdainfully. "You must think I'm a nut—saying my prayers. I've been prayed to death."

"By whom?"

"I don't know, but by somebody. It makes me ill."

"That was the subconscious revulsion to her adopted mother coming out," Stephen told McNamara. "Mrs. Morton has a strong religious mania. That girl's a mighty healthy specimen," he continued. "I noticed, when I was dressing the wound in her shoulder, that her skin is soft and silky, not rough and dry, as in the case of psychopathic personalities. Everything about her seems to indicate sound ancestry, and I'm more than ever convinced that her mental disturbance is not organic. However, that's a lead we can run down after we've fixed her nose."

Lanny Bighad. "Nobody Ever Asked Me."

Dental Hygiene

The Road to Health
By DR. R. ALLEN GRIFFITH
"PUMPING" BACTERIA

PYORRHEA is a disease of the gums. Let us see what causes it, and how it infects other parts of the system.

When a new tooth erupts or "comes in" in childhood, it bursts through the mucous membrane from which it originated. The union of the mucous membrane to tooth structure is always, after the eruption of the tooth, imperfect and capable of admitting infection. This union of tooth and gum is therefore of vital interest and is called the gingival crevice or gum marginal crevice. It is much like the junction of the finger nail and skin and has a similar free margin. Its total length is about thirty inches around all the teeth. It is protected externally by a tough "pavement" or epithelium, but contains almost no epithelial (outer skin) protection at its point of union with the tooth structure.

It will therefore be seen that microorganisms growing on the tooth's surface may readily pass into the delicate openings in the bottom of the crevice, thus gaining direct access to venules and perivascular lymph spaces in these structures, with nothing to hinder their transfer to deeper tissues by the lymph and blood streams. This process is in the majority of individuals greatly aided by the formation of calculus (tartar) or the root surface at the gum margin.

The total of masticatory pressure amounts to about one ton per day, expended by the average individual. This great force depresses the tooth into its socket about one-sixtieth of an inch on an average and the elasticity of the tissues causes a rebound. The tooth therefore acts as a piston during mastication, and where the microorganisms lodge under the tartar and gold crowns, they are pumped directly into the unprotected blood vessels at the bottom of the crevice.

If pyorrhea has progressed long enough to produce pockets around the teeth of only one-eighth of an inch (a very shallow pocket) we thus have an ulcerating surface of three and one-quarter square inches. If pyorrhea has progressed long enough to produce pockets around the teeth of an average depth of one-quarter of an inch we have an ulcerating surface of seven and one-half square inches.

The enamel of all teeth is naturally more or less rough. Mucous plaques stick to it affording lodgment for masses of living bacteria. By being pumped directly into the blood stream they are always poisoning the system. Get into your mind this simple idea—bacteria around a tooth are not in a stagnant pocket but in a high-pressure pumping system. Then you will comprehend their danger.

ARE ALL CYLINDERS HITTING?

ARE all your cylinders hitting, or are you limping along on a few of them?

Dr. Irving Fisher of Yale has stated that there are at all times over 3,500,000 people in this country who are seriously ill. If three out of each hundred have the entire engine laid up for repairs, how many more are missing on one or more cylinders? Many of our great authorities say that there is not any one thing that is more important than the hygiene of the mouth. It is obvious, therefore, that hygiene of the mouth will prevent much of the sickness.

Many pure food laws have wisely been passed in the interest of the general public. The most important matter, however, oral hygiene, has been completely neglected. What is the use of insuring pure food if it is mixed with millions of the germs of putrefaction (during mastication)? It is surely, and just as thoroughly, loaded with poisons as if it has been allowed to spoil before eating.

In normal, healthy mouths are found many disease-producing germs such as those of tuberculosis, diphtheria, influenza, pneumonia and several varieties of the streptococcus and staphylococcus (the pus-producing germs). To the first named of the series are due many of the diseases of school children, while to the latter are due many of the ills of middle life.

Many times the first symptoms are hard to define. It may be that the heart action is slightly altered so that the extremities, being deprived of their full blood supply, become cold and bathed in perspiration.

Digestion becomes slow and difficult, and may be accompanied by the formation of gas which distends the stomach and intestines, causing them to press upward against the diaphragm, thus embarrassing the lungs. The bowels become constipated and the secretion of the urine is altered in quantity.

The mouth at this stage is the only organ of the body that will act as an indicator. There may be a cavity or two filled with decaying food. The X-ray may show a dead tooth or two, or it may be the gums are slightly swollen or inflamed, or careful exploration may show a few pyorrhea pockets.

If neglected, this condition is bound to change for a worse condition until one or more cylinders are missing or the entire engine is laid up for repairs.

Charming Print Jacket Costumes

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FANCY a two-piece suit or a jacket and frock costume made exactly as if tailored of cloth, only instead of being of tweed or broadcloth or serge or a novelty woolen; it is fashioned of a gay print, either crepe or taffeta. It's news we are telling you, for the print jacket suit is fashion's big headline feature this spring.

Perhaps you have already acquired one of these attractive and wearable print suits. If not, why not, and if you haven't, hurry up and take a look at the charming types which the shops are showing.

The print may not be expensive. In fact, some of the most successful models are of simple, unpretentious patternings and weaves. Small figures on dark backgrounds are favored for practical daytime wear. The skirts are either gored or cut straight and slim with a slit hemline or, if you take delight in being very ultra, choose one of the new circular flare skirts with its widened hemline such as Paris designers announce as the newest silhouette. The jacket that is smartest is tailored along classic lines, is fitted in slightly at the waist and buttons up the front and is only hip-length. However, any style is in good form from swaggy to cape-jacket style.

If you want to simulate a jacket effect, that is wear a one-piece dress that has a jacket and skirt "look," the charming model to the left in the picture is the answer. This soft taffeta frock has intriguing little style touches adapted from the utterly feminine regency period. Bows and belt of scarlet velvet ribbon pick up one of the colors in the print. The hat is of onion skin straw with a chou of velvet ribbons at the front.

This idea of employing little velvet bows instead of buttons is a note worth keeping in mind when you plan your new frocks and blouses. It is an important this-season fashion gesture. It is not unusual for these sprightly wee bows to travel up and down the front of a one-piece dress (perhaps cut in the new princess lines) from neckline to hemline. Then, again, they may even fasten a bodice up the back or pose in little groups on one's blouse. In fact, whenever a decorative touch is needed, just scatter a flock of little velvet bows over your costume for effect and up-to-the-moment chic.

Printed chifon suits for dressy daytime wear are making fashion history. They are really the most flattering costumes one can wear at an afternoon social gathering. The young woman seated is wearing a striking ensemble, the jacket and skirt of which are fashioned of a printed chifon which shows cornflower blue, beige and yellow flowers massed on a black ground. The classic tailored jacket has a boutonniere of cutout chifon posies. It is lined with black taffeta to match the slip. The blouse is of handsome black lace. Black trims and faces the wide-brimmed shallow beige straw hat.

For evening formality prints are simply gorgeous. You can see, looking at the figure to the right in the picture, how strikingly handsome a formal ensemble of print can be. This model is fashioned of a flower print done in exotic multi-colorings. Here again you see a touch of velvet in that the dress collar is of green velvet, the same repeated in the sleeve and pocket facings of the loose swaggy jacket. A corsage of fresh orchids (wearing natural flowers this season) tucked through the belt and a big rhinestone clip at the neck are smart additions.

VOGUE FINDS NEW USES FOR PIGSKIN

The uses for pigskin leather have steadily been increasing. So many new things have been fashioned of it, that the range in accessories mounts into numbers.

First of all, are pigskin shoes, and there is nothing that wears better than this leather, or looks any finer with sports clothes. It has been dyed to black, brown, navy . . . any color desired and is excellent in white shoes for summer.

The pigskin handbag is certainly a smart accessory, holds its shape exceptionally well, and has a grain that doesn't show markings which often mar the appearance of smooth leathers.

Pigskin gloves are the perfection of the sports world. In natural, white, brown, navy and black, they can be found to accompany any tweed, and do it in the grand manner.

Frothy Fabrics Are Used for New Dancing Frocks

Dancing frocks continue to add charm and color to the evening scene. Almost everything goes but lately there seems to be a fresh interest in frothy fabrics rather than in the stiff molles, satins and lames that have obtained for so long. Many of the frocks planned for resort wear are masses of tulle and there is more lace than has been the case for some seasons. Pleatings are generally seen when it comes to frocks done in a sheer medium. One frock of soft blue tulle embroidered in silver stars has the skirt entirely knife-pleated as is the peplum. Soft brown lace with touches of rose pink velvet makes another delightful frock for southern or cruise wear.

Vogue for Gold
The vogue of gold metal is still in full swing, but most of the new models in clips, dress ornaments, fancy bracelets or necklaces often show gold metal combined with either black metal in oaky effect or with transparent plastic materials.

BUTTONS ON SUITS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

On account of the importance of buttons this season many stores are devoting extra space to their display. The types of buttons in favor are legion. Novelty enters largely into the scheme of things. Very new and chic for the dressy blouse or frock are stars cut out of mother of pearl or set with tiny rhinestones. Clever, too, and exceedingly attractive are the new flower buttons made of an ivory-like composition and tinted realistically. The buttons which enhance the good-looking suit pictured are woven of green straw. The cloth which fashions this softly tailored two-piece has the smooth finish for which best designers are expressing preference. The coat front may be thrown open in a way to achieve big revers. Many of the smartest dresses and coats sport huge revers this season.

Lesson for May 19

BAPTISM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 23:19, 20; Acts 8:26-29.
GOLDEN TEXT—Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost.—Matthew 28:19.
PRIMARY TOPIC—When People Are Baptized.
JUNIOR TOPIC—When People Are Baptized.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Be Baptized?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Meaning of Baptism.

I. The Baptism of Jesus (Matt. 3:13-17).
1. His request of John (v. 13). This was in act, if not in word. He came from Galilee to Jordan to be baptized of John.
2. John's hesitancy (v. 14). He perceived something in Jesus which impressed him with the impropriety of such an act, even moving him to hinder the execution of his demand.
3. Jesus' explanation (v. 15). He insisted upon John's compliance on the ground that it was a method of fulfilling all righteousness.
4. The heavenly acknowledgment (vv. 16, 17). As Jesus emerged from the waters of the Jordan the heavens were opened, the Holy Spirit descended, and a voice from heaven declared, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."
II. Jesus Enjoins Baptism (Matt. 23:19, 20).

In Christ's commission to the apostles He imposes the following obligations:
1. To teach, to make disciples of all the nations (v. 19). They were to make known to the world that Christ had died to save sinners and that God had committed to Jesus the redemption of the world.
2. To baptize those who believe (v. 19). This is the divinely appointed way of making a public confession of faith in Christ. This baptism is to be in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, indicating that the believer has been brought into definite relationship to each member of the holy Trinity.
3. To teach the disciples obedience (v. 20). Profession is not enough. It must issue in obedience. This commission is preceded by the assurance of the divine authority of Jesus (v. 18). All authority was given him in heaven and earth and was followed by an all-sufficient promise (v. 20).

III. Baptism Practiced in the Early Church.
1. At Pentecost (Acts 2:38, 41). This was the first baptismal service in the Christian church. Multitudes were brought under conviction of sin as a result of the apostolic preaching and thousands were baptized. Baptism was administered in the name of Christ, which doubtless refers to the authority of Christ.
2. The Samaritans under the preaching of Philip (Acts 8:12). As a result of his preaching men and women believed on the Lord Jesus Christ. Their profession of faith was followed by baptism.
3. The eunuch (Acts 8:26-39). In the conversion of the Ethiopian eunuch the Lord's work is seen broadening in its scope. The gospel was first preached to the Jews, then to the Samaritans who nationally were on the borderland between the Jews and the Gentiles. This Ethiopian was in all probability a Gentile, a proselyte to the Jewish faith. The Spirit of God called Philip away from the great work in Samaria and directed him to go near and join himself to the chariot of the Ethiopian treasurer. This providential meeting gave Philip the opportunity to preach to the Ethiopian. Philip preached to him Christ as the Savior, who through suffering and death saved from the guilt of sin. This resulted in the eunuch's request for baptism.
4. The baptism of Paul (Acts 9:18, 19). The great apostle to the Gentiles, before entering upon his work, received baptism at the hands of Ananias, who was not even himself a church official.
5. Cornelius and his household (Acts 10:47, 48). When God would send the gospel upon its world-wide conquest, he providentially brought Peter and Cornelius together. Peter preached to Cornelius the sacrificial death of Christ for sin and his triumphant resurrection. Seeing the visitation of the divine Spirit upon the Gentiles, Peter proposed baptism.

IV. The True Meaning of Baptism (Rom. 6:1-14).
Water baptism symbolizes the identification of the believer with Jesus Christ in his death and resurrection. It is the outward sign of the inner experience.

Friendship
When I see leaves drop from their trees in the beginning of autumn, just such, think I, is the friendship of the world. Whilst the sap of maintenance lasts, my friends swarm in abundance; but in the winter of my need they leave me naked.—Warwick.

Unnecessary Noise an Evil

Importance of Tranquility in Household Beginning to Be Recognized; Easy to Avoid Much Clatter by Exercise of Thoughtfulness.

The tranquility of a home is dependent upon many things, according to whether this peacefulness is of the mind or the body. It is also true that disturbance in either realm affects the other. Unnecessary clatter, for example, is annoying and distracting alike. It jars the nerves and turns the attention from what one is doing, or diverts a train of thought which may be arriving at an important decision or discovery.
It is not the ordinary hum of sounds which prevail in certain localities which is bothersome, but sudden racket or a persistent introduction of an unaccustomed noise which permeates and increases it. Such hubbub may be impossible to avoid, as it is present in city streets and cannot be entirely eliminated in dwellings in crowded areas. Societies are formed in metropolitan cities for the suppression of unnecessary noise, and they are helpful in reducing the uproar.
In the quiet of the country such societies seem amusing to the inhabitants. But so peaceful is the atmosphere in small villages not on the through roads frequented by autos, that lesser sounds than those usual in cities are noticeable. The lowing of cattle, the sudden raucous cawing of crows, the bark of a dog, are noticeable, and sometimes startling. Even to city dwellers who go to the country for quiet, the calls of birds at sunrise is as awakening as more strident sounds in a city which is never actually quiet. There is melody, though, in the notes of birds, which is pleasant, however interrupting it may be to slumbers.
Indoors sounds which are not essential to any task or work should be kept in abeyance as much as possible. Children should learn, and adults remember, to close doors, not slam them. The way to turn radiators off and on with the minimum noise should be studied by parents and taught to children. It is amazing what a clatter the turning of the screw of a radiator can make if carelessly handled. If this comes in the night or early morning, it may awaken, not only those in one's own apartment, but arouse those in apartments above or below.

Kitchen sounds should be kept as modified as possible. It grates on the nerves to hear the clatter of dishes, and of pots and pans, when being washed. With this is the accompanying fear that articles will be broken or dented, should they drop in the careless handling. There is a certain reluctance to recommend a kitchen maid who is noisy. Homemakers should try to quell in themselves any unfortunate tendency to be noisy about their work.

COWS ON GRASS SPREE
Farmers in the vicinity of East London, Cape Province, are greatly disturbed because their cows come home dazed and giving less milk than formerly. Growers blame their horses' condition to a mysterious species of grass, called "Buffalo Kweel," which has appeared on the border of grazing fields. The grass is sweet, but its effect is "dynamite" to cows, the farmers say.

Rev. L. D. Jordan, pastor of the local Baptist Church, extends an invitation to you and yours to be present Sunday evening, May 12, at the Mother's Day Service. (The best sweet heart one ever had—Mother.)

"That fellow Gunther Kroggel of the New Mexico Mechanical Equipment Company is a real hustler; no mistake about that," muses a local professional man. "It is quite a treat to watch him in his sales talk referring to Kelvinators, the Superflex oil burning refrigerators, electric light systems, A-B-C washing machines, etc."

John Clower, who has recently purchased the Carrizozo Dry Cleaners from L. A. Jolly, makes an introductory price of Suits Cleaned and Pressed, 75 cents.

Ben Leslie was here from White Oaks Wednesday, accompanied by Mrs. Littell and son Nonie. Ben and others of our neighboring town are arranging for a big dance to be given at the Town Hall in White Oaks tomorrow night, the music to be furnished by "Los Rancheros." They are also planning a big masquerade ball for White Oaks in about two weeks. Go to both and have a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Welch and children are in El Paso this week for the purpose of having Sonny's tonsils removed. They will return about Saturday.
