Works Program

National Youth Administration

The Committee for school aid under the National Youth Administration in Lincoln County is Mrs. Ola C. Jones, Mr. W. E. Abell, Mr. H. C. Hall, Mr. A. M. Freeman, Mr. K. A. Cunningham, and Mrs. Ethel C. Rockwood.

This Committee will allot community quotas and pass on the selection of students to be aided in this program, according to Mr. Tom Popejoy, Assistant Director for New Mexico.

Any single young man or woman of 16 to 25 years of age from a family on the relief rolls of May, 1935, and still on relief or employed on WPA projects, is eligible to earn this assistance. Youths desiring this aid to continue should apply at once to the principal of the school he or she is now attending, or desires to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Seaborn Gray and children of Pecos, N. M., came in Wednesday evening to attend the funeral of Seaborn's mother, Mrs. Sarah C. Gray. They will remain over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Cooper are here from their ranch near Ancho and Jim has his little dun horse, a fast traveler and he will be on the track during the Fair—and how!

The Music-Drama Study Club met at the home of Mrs. R. E. Blaney last evening. The program was under the direction of Misses Ella and Ruth Brickley.

Gunther C. Kroggel, the live-wire agent for Kelvinator Refrigerators, A B C Washing Machines, Superflex Heaters and Radios, was a business visitor at Albuquerque this week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Fullingim returned to their home in Beeville, Tex., Thursday morning, after visiting Mrs. G.C. Kroggel.

Mrs. Olive A. Smithson and Alvin Hoffman were here from Oscura last Saturday, on business.

A. B. Helms was here from Oscura Wednesday, in the interest of his missing property.

School Notes

Ola C. Jones, Co. Supt.

Visits have been made to Lincoln, Ramon, and Lon this week.

At Lincoln, the following teachers are employed: John Black, principal, 7th and eighth grade teacher; Ofelia Miranda, 5th and 6th grade teacher; Hazel Luck, 2nd, 3rd and 4th grade teacher; and Lucia Montez, primer and 1st grade teacher.

Departmental work in music and penmanship, spelling and history is being carried out here. It would be well worth one's while to visit this school and get a glimpse of this splendid organization as well as the type of work being carried out there.

At Lon, J. H. Gilbert and Mrs. Lola Jones are the teachers. The Co. Supt. is having the whole school building completely remodeled, new cabinets, cupboards and book cases built. A new cistern has just been completed, as well as other additional improvements. The pupils and teachers are glad to have such splendid interest taken in their school plant.

At Ramon, Wyona Hall is teaching a good school. She has 22 pupils; most of them have a perfect attendance up to date, and this is an indication of interest shown on the part of both teacher and pupil.

Splendid exhibits from Ruidoso, Lincoln, Ramon, Lon and Capitan are on display in the corridor just outside of the Superintendent's office.

At Jicarilla, Mrs. Ufa Felts is the teacher. Here a marked improvement has been made in the appearance of the interior of the building. The whole community is extremely interested in the school. A live wire PTA is operating there. This organization is sponsoring the building up of a good playground; also the serving of hot lunches to school children. These people are to be complimented on their splendid endeavors.

The Ruidoso PTA has arranged a very interesting year's study on "The Home as a Spiritual and Cultural Unit." It has some very interesting monthly programs planned. Its October program has as its subject, "Home Education." It will have four speakers on these topics, "Music in the Home," "Art in the Home," "Health Habits" and "Discipline." It meets the second Tuesday in each month, and hopes that any interested party will meet with it as many of these meetings as possible. The Ruidoso PTA entertained the teachers of the Ruidoso school last Friday night with a dinner at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Fred C. Rowell. Mrs. D. B. Morgan, President of the Association and Mrs. Rowell were hostesses. Dinner was served at six, after which card games were enjoyed by the following members and their husbands: The Joe Palmers, Stewart Oliver, Ezell Clarks, Jim Traviess, Roy Baileys, Chat, Culvers, Allen Harts, Bernard Rooneys, Edward Clarks, D. B. Morgans, Rowas, Capitan, Mrs. O. Brien and Mr. R. V. Traylor. The PTA is planning to aid with the school building programs that are in progress at Ruidoso.

Mrs. Florentino Lopez suffered a badly hurt knee at the Country Club last Saturday night, when in assisting with the serving of tables, she slipped, and fell on the hard concrete floor.

Welcome to Fair and Rodeo!

If the Weather Man will be kind to us, we will expect a big crowd to the Fair and Rodeo, which begins today and will last until tomorrow night.

The promoters have arranged a good time for everybody and if those who attend fail to get their money's worth, it will not be the fault of the management. The Rodeo will furnish plenty of attraction for the fans along that particular line and the Burke Carnival has added many new features to the show. The Lyric Theatre is giving a good show and there is nothing to prevent an excellent time for everybody.

The band will furnish plenty of music for the occasion and will be on the streets throughout the Fair. All that is left now as the celebration begins is to extend the hand of welcome to our friends from out-of-town. Have a good time and hurry back to the Fair next year.

Mrs. Sarah C. Gray

After a lingering illness of several years, Mrs. Sarah C. Gray, one of the outstanding pioneers of this section of the state, passed on at about the hour of two o'clock Wednesday morning.

During her long period of illness, she endured with remarkable fortitude, her cheerfulness and extreme friendliness which had always made her so many lifelong friends, never deserting her to the last.

Funeral services were held, first at the home and afterwards at the cemetery at Capitan, where interment was had and attended by hosts of friends from over the county. At the residence, at the request of the deceased, who was a student of Christian Science, Mrs. R. E. Blaney read passages from the Bible and also their spiritual interpretations from Science and Health with key to the scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy.

At the cemetery the 23rd Psalm was read. Two songs were sung by Mesdames J. M. Beck and Roy Shafer, those being special favorites of the deceased. The ladies were accompanied by Mrs. T. E. Kelley at the piano. The floral offerings were many and beautiful.

Mrs. Sarah C. Gray was born near Columbus, Georgia, April 28, 1855; married at Marysville, Texas, August 21, 1878. Left Texas in June, 1890 and landed in New Mexico on Sept. 4, 1890, being 72 days on the road in a covered wagon.

She leaves to mourn her loss, two daughters, Mesdames Nellie Raily and Beulah Gokey, three sons, Seaborn, Gordon and Walter Gray and a number of grandchildren and great grandchildren. Sacred to her memory, let it

25th Anniversary

On Tuesday evening, Oct. 22, at 8 p. m., all members of Comet Chapter No. 29, O. E. S., and Stars visiting in this community are cordially invited to assemble at the Masonic Hall in honor of the 25th anniversary of the constituting of this chapter. An excellent program has been arranged by Mrs. R. E. Lemon and her committee.

Baron Auriemma Reports that he made a trip to Lincoln, Hondo, Tinnie, San Patricio, Glencoe and Fort Stanton this week. The Baron gave one of his inimitable concerts at the Lincoln school Tuesday; he also gave a concert at Fort Stanton, assisted at the piano by Mrs. W. C. Hendren. "Sunny Jim" also sang at the Fort Stanton school on that day.

He returned to Carrizozo on Thursday and will remain until Sunday, then he will go on to Corona, returning next Tuesday. The Baron will finish his appeal for the whole County and make a report of the amount raised for the Salvation Army. His superb baritone voice thrills one who hears him, he is one of the greatest vocalists that it has been our pleasure to hear.

"Sunny Jim," as he is known among his intimate friends, says that he's anxious to co-operate in making the Lincoln County Fair a huge success—and says for the Committees in charge of the various events to just call on him, for he'll be more than pleased to do anything he can.

He said that no personage was ever more loved or will be more missed than Sarah C. Gray. Her kindness, generosity, charity and benevolence knew no bounds. Her friends, as we have said, were legion and to the surviving relatives, the sympathy of this entire community is extended.

Personals

Mrs. T. J. Grafton and son Hugh were visitors from the Angus country on Tuesday.

Mrs. Forrest Cathey and baby daughter are here this week from Hobbs, visiting Mrs. Cathey's mother, Mrs. Bigelow, brother Tennis and family.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hendren of Fort Stanton were visitors at this place the latter part of last week, visiting the T. E. Kelley family and other friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Lumpkins of Capitan were Carrizozo visitors the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Hickey of the O Bar O ranch near here, were business visitors in town this Monday.

Rumor has it that Mrs. Ola C. Jones has purchased the residence formerly belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Abel. As we understand it, Frank, who is an S. P. fireman running out of Carrizozo, will move to El Paso where he will engage in the same line of duty.

A Town Band has been started for the Lincoln County Fair. This organization, so we hear, is under the leadership of S. H. Nickels. The band numbers 15 or 16 players. Who can tell that they might have a good band in Carrizozo, with performers from White Oaks, Oscura and neighboring towns all doing their part. A town is a City when represented by a band. Remember that Roswell organization composed of numerous high-stepping performers that played in town a while ago on the Roswell Chamber of Commerce goodwill parade?

Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Rentfrow were in from their ranch across the Malpais last Saturday evening.

Several of our local hunters have ventured out after Bear, but as far as we've been able to learn, they all returned "bearless."—We're still waiting to announce No. 1.

Mrs. Henry Hoffman pays regular weekly visits to see Henry at El Paso and the latest report is that attending physicians have removed the plaster casts from his leg. He is getting along very nicely, but it will be several weeks before he can come home.

Mrs. Jack Davidson presented the Outlook Art & Gift Shop with a beautiful bouquet of flowers this week, raised in the Davidson gardens in Corona. All colors of the rainbow were included in the bouquet which defied the attempts of the artist's brush to reproduce. Before you are ready to say that the most beautiful flowers can't be raised in this locality, see some that come from Corona.

Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Stokes and children are making preparations to go to Midland, Tex., and will leave the first of the coming week. They will attend the big Fair at Midland, after which they will place Dewey, Jr., in school for the fall and winter term.

Geo. Simpson of Corona was a business visitor here one day last week.

Out-of-the Ordinary

Elsewhere in this paper will be found an article which is so out-of-the-ordinary that the mention of one particular thing among the effects of the late H. J. Benson, found dead near the Block ranch, carries with it a mystery which would cause one to try to unravel, if nothing more. Sheriff McCamant and the writer of this column in going over the effects of the deceased, found a faded slip of paper which bore the following words: "Now is the time to say goodbye." Immediately below the above quotation was the design of a broken heart pierced by a dagger.—That was all. The paper had been kept in a separate compartment in the dead man's purse and served him with a relic of bygone days. Strongly presumable it was the winding up of some strange love affair of long ago. The slip of paper was yellow with age, but the broken heart, neatly painted, was as bright as it could possibly have been the day it was painted. It is worth giving a little silent thought. What conclusion would you draw? Perhaps out-of-the-ordinary man will never know, but you will be sure to make a guess, at any rate.

Mules are stubborn animals, as we all know, but what do you think about this one? It was on a highway near Detroit, Mich., one day last week and Simon Garner was driving a big mule hitched to a two wheeled cart. An automobile drove up from the rear and the cart being directly in front of the auto, Simon gave the mule a sharp cut with the whip to make him get out of the way. The mule refused to obey and quite to the contrary, he made a vicious kick and with such force, that he tore the entire top from the hood of the car. His hind feet became entangled with the machinery, the fan was torn loose from its bearings and flew through the windshield, scattering the glass in every direction. The mule lost both of his hind legs. The glue factory man had a job and the auto was wrecked, but Simon is still alive to tell the story.

Indian Joe, Excelsior, Minn., is one of the mysteries in that desolate region of the northern state. Joe finds the bodies of drowned men in any of the lakes near Minnetonka. Last week, a musician was drowned and all efforts to locate the body failed until they sent for Indian Joe. He was drowned in Christmas Lake which is fed by springs and the swift current carried the body to deep water. They dynamited and used every device they could think of, so they sent for Joe. He waited as he always does, until night, and works alone. In the morning, Joe was on the bank with the body which he recovered at a depth of 90 feet. He uses no diving methods and refuses to divulge the secret of how he recovers the bodies—but he has never failed.

W. J. Ayers of Three Rivers was a visitor here yesterday. W. J. returned Wednesday from San Francisco, where he had been in the S. P. Hospital for the past two weeks, receiving medical treatment. W. J. looks better, we are glad to report.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart

National Press-Building, Washington, D. C.

Washington.—I believe the trend of recent developments begins to indicate rather definitely that Party Backs Roosevelt is going to be able to hold a rather united Democratic party behind him in his next campaign. The chances of a split in his ranks are very small, indeed, and barring changes of which there are at present no hints at all, the New Deal will encompass the Democratic party which nominated and elected Mr. Roosevelt as President.

By those statements, it is not meant that no defections will take place. There always are some disgruntled and dissatisfied party men who break away. They have done it with Republicans and Democrats with equal abandon. There will be some in the 1933 campaign, but not very many. These statements are made by way of discounting offshoots of consequence under radical leadership and offshoots of equal consequence behind old-line conservative Democratic leadership. It is, of course, just possible that William Randolph Hearst, the publisher, and Bainbridge Colby, secretary of state under Woodrow Wilson, may succeed in development of a conservative alignment with major support but the situation is not one likely to cause the New Deal leaders any particular embarrassment. Likewise the death of Senator Huey P. Long removes what might possibly have been a radical party wedge. The late Louisiana senator was making some progress in development of a radical party but with him removed from the scene there is no longer any possibility of that group attaining a place of importance in the political structure. They are fighting among themselves and it is apparent now that the group will be split into a score of factions, none which will have any capacity to accomplish the purposes which Senator Long had outlined.

Judged impartially, the death of Senator Long ought to enhance the Democratic prospects in 1933. This certainly is true unless the administration between now and the next election decides to court the conservative vote in the country and in doing so offends the progressive segment of voters to which Mr. Roosevelt largely owes his 1932 election. To reiterate, it is possible, of course, that Mr. Roosevelt or his party advisers may make mistakes which will throw the whole party machine out of gear, but they are not now in evidence.

The reason the passing of Huey Long is important from the political standpoint is pictured most rollably in the history of third party movements. While it is obvious that Senator Long could never have been elected President and I believe he was too smart a politician to think that he could have been successful—there was the danger from the Roosevelt standpoint that he could alienate some part of the vote which elected Mr. Roosevelt in 1932. If he had been able to do this, it is certain that Republican chances would have been enhanced because the Republican vote would have remained solidly behind the Republican candidate.

Some years ago, Robert M. La Follette, then a senator from Wisconsin, ran for the Presidency on a third party ticket. He polled about five million votes. This happened at a time when the country was reasonably prosperous. Surely, the economic conditions were of a character that bred less discontent than those of this depression era. So, astute political observers tell me that it takes little stretch of the imagination to conceive of a radical party, led by a man of the dynamic character of Huey Long, being able to poll as many as ten million votes throughout the country despite the difficulties that always face the organization of a new political party.

Whatever criticism may have been or may be voiced of the late senator from Louisiana, everywhere one goes among political leaders, he obtains the same expression of opinion respecting the senator's ability. He had a smart mind, one that grasped situations, particularly in politics, with great speed and he was always ready at a moment's notice to capitalize on these situations. Thus, if Mr. Long had lived, it is easy to imagine what he would have done in case the New Deal leaders made mistakes. He would have hopped on those mistakes with the avidity of a cat on a mouse; he would have magnified them in his speeches to his following and by these acts he would have aided and abetted the Republican opposition.

So, while the national capital was started by Senator Long's death and appalled at the manner of his going, it is not a violation of any confidence to say that New Deal politicians are resting easier. They enjoyed Huey, the man, but they recognized in him an adversary decidedly dangerous to their cause.

Now, as to other factors involved, factors that might withdraw support from Mr. Roosevelt. I said above that the Hearst-Colby movement is doomed to defeat. The real effect and probably the only effect that movement will have will be to force the Roosevelt leaders to re-align their strength in some states. Mr. Hearst, with the great power of his string of newspapers behind him, has yet to succeed in creating a potent political group. He attempted it when the late Warren Harding and James M. Cox of the same state was put forward by the Democrats. It was my good fortune to be assigned as a correspondent to the convention of Mr. Hearst's new party. It was evident then as it later was proved by the votes that the enthusiastic delegates to that convention represented a following so small as to be utterly negligible. Even with the astute advice of Bainbridge Colby, little more will come out of the current movement.

Then, those who have their eyes on the facts instead of on the ballyhoo will promptly discount the talk about Democratic defection when they stop to consider some other things that are taking place. For example, there have been no more bitter dissents from New Deal policies than Senator Carter Glass of Virginia and Senator Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma have voiced. Mr. Glass lately has engaged in rites of burying the hatchet to the extent that he is not going to run for re-election in Virginia as anything but a Democrat.

Out in Oklahoma, Senator Gore has been making speeches that sound strangely as though he is almost friendly with the administration. He has been telling his audiences that he has stood with the President on many votes in the senate, sometimes when his vote was badly needed. Though it becomes apparent that while neither Senator Glass nor Senator Gore is enthusiastic about New Deal policies, neither of them is going to desert the Democratic party.

And, so it is in any number of other cases. They may not speak glowingly of President Roosevelt in their own campaigns for re-election but as candidates they are not going to fight him openly.

"Big Jim" Farley, the master New Deal politician, successfully avoided an out and out test of New Deal issues in Ohio when Governor Davey of that state announced recently that there would be no special election to choose a representative at large to fill a vacancy. The Ohio governor said it would cost too much money to hold a special election, his announcement being made at the White House just after President Roosevelt had agreed to allot $20,000,000 in public works funds for Ohio use.

But the astute Mr. Farley is not going to be able to avoid a test on New Deal issues in Kentucky. The situation in that state is that a Democrat of President Roosevelt's choice and who is supporting the New Deal from start to finish is running for governor against a hard-bolled and conservative Republican. The election will be the first week in November and thus a state-wide vote can be expected to measure the Roosevelt strength. Because of this, all of the maneuvers are being closely watched and the battle of those ballots obviously will be bitter.

The Kentucky test takes on additional significance and importance because of something that happened in choosing the Democratic nominee. The Kentucky fight is to determine whether Lieut. Gov. A. B. Chandler, the Democrat, or former Representative King Swone, the Republican, will run the state.

Governor Laffoon apparently wanted to have the Democratic nominee selected by the old convention method but the Roosevelt supporters preferred a primary. Consequently, Senator Barkley of Kentucky, a devout Roosevelt follower in the senate, was sent into his home state to see that the primary plan was made operative. The Democratic state committee which was empowered to choose the method of selecting the candidate was determined to have a convention and it was after this determination became known that Mr. Roosevelt participated in dictating the course the party should follow. Senator Barkley arrived in his home state bearing a letter signed "Franklin D. Roosevelt" urging the primary, and while Governor Laffoon was out of the state attempting to convince national leaders that his candidate for the Democratic nomination was the right one, Lieut. Governor Chandler called a special session of the state legislature and put through a law compelling the selection of the candidate by the primary. Mr. Chandler won the nomination in the run-off although Thomas S. Shea had polled more votes in the original primary than did Mr. Chandler.

So it is apparent beyond a doubt that Mr. Roosevelt recognizes the necessity for electing a Democrat, and New Deal supporters in Kentucky say that he is prepared to battle to the last ditch to accomplish it.

Nevertheless, the fur will fly in Kentucky in November. It cannot be avoided. If the administration wins, undoubtedly New Deal stock will be enhanced in value. But, if the Republican nominee should win the Kentucky test, the whole New Deal must be prepared to wear an unusual black eye.

CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES

INSTALLMENT THREE
By the Unanimous Order of the Convention
Go Washington Præsidit
W. Jackson Secretary

Articles in addition to, and Amendment of the Constitution of the United States of America, proposed by Congress, and ratified by the Legislatures of the several States, pursuant to the fifth Article of the original Constitution.

ARTICLE I.
Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

ARTICLE II.
A well regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms, shall not be infringed.

ARTICLE III.
No Soldier shall, in time of peace be quartered in any house, without the consent of the Owner, nor in time of war, but in a manner to be prescribed by law.

ARTICLE IV.
The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.

ARTICLE V.
No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual service in time of War or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offence to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.

ARTICLE VI.
In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the Assistance of Counsel for his defence.

ARTICLE VII.
In Suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved, and no fact tried by a jury, shall be otherwise re-examined in any Court of the United States, than according to the rules of the common law.

ARTICLE VIII.
Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.

ARTICLE IX.
The enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

ARTICLE X.
The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited to the States respectively, or to the people.

ARTICLE XI.
The Judicial power of the United States shall not be construed to extend to any suit in law or equity, commenced or prosecuted against one of the United States, or by Citizens of another State, or by Citizens or Subjects of any Foreign State.

ARTICLE XII.
The Electors shall meet in their respective states, and vote by ballot for President and Vice-President, one of whom, at least, shall not be an inhabitant of the same state with themselves; they shall name in their ballots the person voted for as President, and in distinct ballots the person voted for as Vice-President, and they shall make distinct lists of all persons voted for as President, and of all persons voted for as Vice-President, and of the number of votes for each, which lists they shall sign and certify, and transmit sealed to the seat of the government of the United States, directed to the President of the Senate;—The President of the Senate shall, in the presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, open all the certificates and the votes shall then be counted;—The person having the greatest number of votes for President, shall be the President, if such number be a majority of the whole number of Electors appointed; and if no person have such majority, then from the persons having the highest numbers not exceeding three on the list of those voted for as President, the House of Representatives shall choose immediately, by ballot, the President. But in choosing the President, the votes shall be taken by states, the representation from each state having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the states, and a majority of all the states shall be necessary to a choice. And if the House of Representatives shall not choose a President whenever the right of choice shall devolve upon them, before the fourth day of March next following, then the Vice-President shall act as President, as in the case of the death or other constitutional disability of the President.—The person having the greatest number of votes as Vice-President, shall be the Vice-President, if such number be a majority of the whole number of Electors appointed, and if no person have a majority, then from the two highest numbers on the list, the Senate shall choose the Vice-President; a quorum for the purpose shall consist of two-thirds of the whole number of Senators, and a majority of the whole number shall be necessary to a choice. But no person constitutionally ineligible to the office of President shall be eligible to that of Vice-President of the United States.

ARTICLE XIII.
Section 1. Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction.

Section 2. Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

ARTICLE XIV.
Section 1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

Section 2. Representatives shall be apportioned among the several States according to their respective numbers, counting the whole number of persons in each State, excluding Indians not taxed. But when the right to vote at any election for the choice of electors for President and Vice President of the United States, Representatives in Congress, the Executive and Judicial officers of a State, or the members of the Legislature thereof, is denied to any of the male inhabitants of such State, being twenty-one years of age, and citizens of the United States, or in any way abridged, except for participation in rebellion, or other crime, the basis of representation therein shall be reduced in the proportion which the number of such male citizens shall bear to the whole number of male citizens twenty-one years of age in such State.

Section 3. No person shall be a Senator or Representative in Congress, or elector of President and Vice President, or hold any office, civil or military, under the United States, or under any State, who, having previously taken an oath, as a member of Congress, or as an officer of the United States, or as a member of any State legislature, or as an executive or judicial officer of any State, to support the Constitution of the United States, shall have engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the same, or given aid or comfort to the enemies thereof. But Congress may by a vote of two-thirds of each House, remove such disability.

Section 4. The validity of the public debt of the United States, authorized by law, including debts incurred for payment of pensions and bounties for services in suppressing insurrection or rebellion, shall not be questioned. But neither the United States nor any State shall assume or pay any debt or obligation incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or any claim for the loss or emancipation of any slave; but all such debts, obligations and claims shall be held illegal and void.

Section 5. The Congress shall have power to enforce, by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article.

ARTICLE XV.
Section 1. The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.

Section 2. The Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

ARTICLE XVI.
The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever source derived, without apportionment among the several States, and without regard to any census or enumeration.

ARTICLE XVII.
The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, elected by the people thereof, for six years; and each Senator shall have one vote. The electors in each State shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the State legislatures.

When vacancies happen in the representation of any State in the Senate, the executive authority of such State shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies: Provided, That the legislature of any State may empower the executive thereof to make temporary appointments until the people fill the vacancies by election as the legislature may direct.

This amendment shall not be so construed as to affect the election or term of any Senator chosen before it becomes valid as part of the Constitution.

ARTICLE XVIII.
Section 1. After one year from the ratification of this article the manufacture, sale, or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into, or the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes is hereby prohibited.

Section 2. The Congress and the several States shall have concurrent power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

Section 3. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the legislatures of the several States, as provided in the Constitution, within seven years from the date of the submission hereof to the States by the Congress.

ARTICLE XIX.
The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex.

Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

ARTICLE XX.
Section 1. The terms of the President and Vice President shall end at noon on the 20th day of January, and the terms of Senators and Representatives at noon on the 3d day of January, of the years in which such terms would have ended if this article had not been ratified; and the terms of their successors shall then begin.

Section 2. The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meeting shall begin at noon on the 3d day of January, unless they shall by law appoint a different day.

Section 3. If, at the time fixed for the beginning of the term of the President, the President elect shall have died, the Vice President elect shall become President. If a President shall not have been chosen before the time fixed for the beginning of his term, or if the President elect shall have failed to qualify, then the Vice President elect shall act as President until a President shall have qualified; and the Congress may by law provide for the case wherein neither a President elect nor a Vice President elect shall have qualified, declaring who shall then act as President, or the manner in which one who is to act shall be selected, and such person shall act accordingly until a President or Vice President shall have qualified.

Section 4. The Congress may by law provide for the case of the death of any of the persons from whom the House of Representatives may choose a President whenever the right of choice shall have devolved upon them, and for the case of the death of any of the persons from whom the Senate may choose a Vice President whenever the right of choice shall have devolved upon them.

Section 5. Sections 1 and 2 shall take effect on the 15th day of October following the ratification of this article.

Section 6. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several States within seven years from the date of its submission. [The text followed above is that of the "Literal Print" edition issued by the Department of State in Washington, D. C., 1933.]

ARTICLE XXI.
Section 1. The eighteenth article of amendment to the Constitution of the United States is hereby repealed.

Section 2. The transportation or importation into any State, Territory, or Possession of the United States for delivery or use therein of intoxicating liquors, in violation of the laws thereof, is hereby prohibited.

Section 3. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by conventions in the several States, as provided in the Constitution, within seven years from the date of the submission hereof to the States by the Congress.

Amendments.—In the Constitution as originally adopted, slight provision was made for the guaranty to the individual of a sphere of liberty not to be encroached upon by the Federal Government. To remedy this defect, the first Congress after the adoption of the Constitution passed and submitted to the States for ratification a series of ten Amendments, which were duly ratified and declared in force on Dec. 15, 1791.

The Eleventh Amendment was passed in 1793, and declared in force Jan. 8, 1798.

The Twelfth Amendment was added in 1803, and from then until the time of the Civil War no others were adopted.

The Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments were embodied in 1863, 1868 and 1870, respectively, as part of the Government's Reconstruction policy, securing to the liberated slaves the benefits of citizenship.

The Sixteenth (Income Tax) and Seventeenth (Election of Senators) Amendments were adopted on Feb. 23 and May 31, 1913, respectively.

The Eighteenth (Prohibition) Amendment came into force on Jan. 16, 1920. The Nineteenth (Woman Suffrage) Amendment was adopted on Aug. 26, 1920.

The Twentieth ("Lame Duck") Amendment: Ratification formally announced Feb. 6, 1933.

The Twenty-first (Prohibition Repeal) Amendment was adopted Dec. 6, 1933.

A proposed Child Labor Amendment, passed by both Houses of Congress in 1924, had (by July, 1933) been rejected by 24 States and ratified by 15.

CONSUMPTION OF FATS.
The total factory consumption of all animal and vegetable fats and oils in this country last year amounted to 3,359,555,000 pounds. More than one-third, 1,375,418,000 pounds went into soap manufacture. Compounds and vegetable shortenings came next, and paint and varnish third. As might be expected, the largest single item was cottonseed oil, 1,083,959,000 pounds. Next in order of large items were: Edible tallow, 885,800,000 pounds; coconut oil, 549,515,000; lard, 210,746,000; palm oil, 203,547,000.

Hobo, Tramp, Bum-- They Are Different

Very Distinct Class Lines Drawn Among These Groups.

To the average man the words hobo, tramp and bum are synonymous terms, used to designate a type of foot-loose, homeless specimen of the genus hobo.

A hobo is a hard worker of the migratory type. He is possessed of a keen sense of his own importance and value to the world that would suffer without his services.

The tramp, on the other hand, migrates according to whim or chance. And he walks always. Having nowhere in mind to get, he gets there at his leisure.

The bum is looked down upon and despised, both by the hobo and tramp. The bum travels nowhere, does nothing and is nobody.

Clasp this out and paste it in your book of etiquette. You may need it sometimes to save yourself from one of those embarrassing moments, warns the Knickerbocker Press.

Indian Summer Indian summer usually begins some time in October, but it may not begin until November. According to the United States weather bureau it is not a definite period occurring regularly each autumn, and is not based on accurate meteorological data.

Mineral Water Plentiful In some countries mineral water costs more than wine, but at Althelide in Germany it is so plentiful that the streets are sprinkled with mineral water.

Glacier Advances The glacier at Jacobshaven, Greenland, is advancing 62 feet a day.

Find Out

From Your Doctor if the "Pain" Remedy You Take Is Safe.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is made simply by never-sailing methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains... and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

SYNOPSIS

Following his father's bitter criticism of his idle life, and the withdrawal of financial assistance, Hal Ireland, only son of a wealthy banker, finds himself practically without funds but with the promise of a situation in San Francisco, which city he must reach, from New York, within a definite time limit.

That faint visit of ominousness was finished now, with every one awake, cramped stretching and resetting. Or was it finished? Had it simply returned to its hiding, to wait again? A silly thought. What could there be ominous in this shabby car, except the way Miller drove?

The fat strap of concrete curved, dipped and ran on into Pennsylvania and found the steel cities. Mrs. Pulsipher gave the impression of knowing it was a conspiracy—entered into by her husband, among others—that kept them from reaching Harrisburg while the visibility was good.

Something was at work clearing the moody sluggishness from Hal's head. A drifting sense of loneliness, of melancholy that had seemed to belong with the broad river slowly mourning the sunset, ran away out of his spirit. He was, after all, a human being, with faculties compactly contained in a fit and useful body, and with rights to his own character. He was on his way to California, to a job, and to the confusion of his father.

Sullenness was nonsense, wasteful nonsense; premonition was nonsense. What could happen that he didn't want to have happen? Why make a whole fertile week blank by wanting nothing to happen, by ignoring his power to make things happen? His father had said Hal didn't know people, among other things—among almost all other things; well, he would arrive on the coast knowing at least seven and ready to dare the Old Man to believe any two of them.

He thought vividly of the Trafford girl behind him—her eyes, though he couldn't see them now, still solemnly absorbed in their own defensive contentment. Far, far worse luck there could have been than this of catching a car that carried anyone so well favored, so challenging in looks as well as in manner. He smiled at thought of the challenge—undesignated, perhaps, but still a challenge. Prouder manners than that had been altered, and with less incentive. Look out, you blue-and-gold vixen; it makes me mad to be made mad, and I shall keep books on you from now on.

But Kerrigan first—for himself, for the character disguised under that scholarly remoteness of his brown eyes; and for the Trafford girl's proprietorship in him, her air almost of implying that they knew each other already. Careful, Ireland; first thing you know you'll be glad you're come.

"Kinda thought we'd put up at Harrisburg tonight," said Miller sleepily, his eyes sightless on the dim headlight beams that revealed curves barely in time.

"Harrisburg?" said Mrs. Pulsipher in quick suspicion; and Crack, shyly knowing, said: "We went through Harrisburg a half hour ago, bud."

Miller chuckled as if at something clever and turned to Kerrigan, his unshaven face sleepily pleased in the light from the dashboard. "Is that right?" he said.

"Yes," said Kerrigan. Miller chuckled. "That's a good one," he said, and Hal shouted a sharp "Hey" at him as the white posts of a curve came dinging swiftly at the front end. Miller returned his look to the road and pulled the wheel hard, but without apparent concern.

"It'll be another place up the road," he said. "Kinda like to see a garrridge I like the looks of. Get 'em valves fixed."

He looked aside again, grinning; Kerrigan took the stubby chin in his hand and turned it forward. "Look where you're going, like a dear old party," he muttered. "I'll send you a factory, if you'll only watch where you're going."

"Thanks," said Hal with a laugh.

"Think nothing of it," said Kerrigan. "Pleasure."

"If you can keep those eyes, or whatever they are, turned ahead, I might still be young when we get to the Coast."

"Spouse he'd let you drive?" said Kerrigan.

"Doubt it," said Hal. Pulsipher snapped his fingers as if he'd just remembered something. "Hu-hu-hungry," he said.

"So'm I," said Mrs. Pulsipher. "We ought to stop for supper."

"Let's say the next town," said Kerrigan.

"Yes," said Mrs. Pulsipher. "Awful hungry," said John.

So as they entered the next place, there were hopeful stirrings and estimates of the degree of civilization shown by the buildings.

"There, whirlwind!" Kerrigan said to Miller. "A garage for princes. All white inside, and a mechanic in a white monkey-suit. You'll like it there and they'll like you."

In another moment a spasm seized Pulsipher, shooting out his arm and making him cry, "Whoa! Eat, it says; look, that sign. Eat."

"It looks clean," said Mrs. Pulsipher mistrustfully.

"Clean's a horse-chestnut shell, ma'am," said Kerrigan. "Shall we try it?"

"Yes yes yes," said Pulsipher quickly, so that no one could beat him with doubts.

They got out stiffly. The ladies and Pulsipher went in. Hal and Kerrigan stayed to hear the momentous plan in ferment behind Miller's bleary eyes, with Crack leaning quietly against the car to listen.

"Yes," said Miller. "It's mountains on the road pretty soon and I'd be kinda nice to get them valves fixed 'fore we get to 'em."

"Good idea," said Kerrigan. "A kitty. And so?"

"Well," said Miller, chuckling at having figured it out by himself, "why don't I go back to that garrridge and kinda look around and see what it looks like while you folks start eatin'?"

Then if I like the looks and the price is right, I'll leave her there and we can put up in this place."

He ground the gears portentously, and the car lumbered up on the opposite curb as he turned around. By tacit consent they watched him go slowly down the street. When he turned into the garage at the far end of it, they moved to the luncheon room.

The ladies had disappeared. Pulsipher stood at the cashier's desk choosing a cigar from the box the proprietor offered him. The proprietor, a decent little body with a wide grin, one misdirected eye, and a birdlike desire to please, nodded welcome as they came in.

"Come far today?" "Noo York city," said Pulsipher proudly.

"Noo York city," the man repeated with polite interest. "Touring folks, hey?" He looked pleasantly at Kerrigan.

"Traveling folks," said Kerrigan, his rich voice gentle and friendly. "Share-expense."

"Ohhh," said the man, deeply impressed, even a little worried. "And you say your driver's outside? Ain't he going to eat?"

"He's gone down to that garage at the end of town to see about repairs," said Kerrigan. "Have you got a good hotel here—cheap?"

"Why, yes, yes—I guess so," said the proprietor. He looked at Pulsipher, around at the others, and back at Kerrigan. "Say," he went on diffidently, "I don't like to butt into you folks' business, but—but has this feller got your grips an' all with him?"

"Yes," said Crack, his indolence pierced by direct interest; "and our fares to California."

There was a moment of silence, and the proprietor's attention sharpened on Kerrigan. "Well," he said, "you folks are probably all right, but they was a party like you—what d'ye call it—share-expense? They was a party over Lewistown way got hung up by a feller's want to get some repairs. They never did see him again. An' the Chambers Commerce had to chip in to get a couple of 'em back 'Noo York."

Kerrigan looked round at Hal in grave inquiry. In the newly empty silence, Hal felt Barry's eyes on him and he turned to her, ready to mock any share she took in this apprehension. But she had no share in it. Her look, full at him, was warm and secure in scorn, without sympathy or appeal; and the faint, tantalizing smile at her closed lips said fearlessly, This will happen for all of you; your luggage and your money don't matter; and if you don't, why should these other peoples—to you? Without haste, her eyes confirmed his unimportance and turned away.

He swung around toward the door—the thing having happened so quickly that the silence of awe was still fresh on the others. "I'll go," he said to Kerrigan. And without the faintest notion of what he would do—only an angry urgency in him to do something—he posted out by the screen door and helped it slam hard behind him. One way or another, you all—whatever you are—you'll pay for this.

Miller's mind was too much drugged with chronic sleepiness and stupidity to think of running out with car, luggage, and fares. But just suppose some habit of crookedness were channeled through his stupidity. Suppose—Hal looked more sharply at the glare of lights and his step brightened. D—n the girl. The scoring for today was surely on her side. Tomorrow was another day. Hal's gray eyes stirred with meritment. To find his way past those solemn defenses of hers would be a zestful job; to chasten that clear, willful cussedness amounted to a necessity now, a duty as well as a pleasure.

Hal was walking out with decision when he cleared the last building. And there in the white light of the yard stood the long-suffering car with its corded bale of luggage behind. Hal gave a laugh, half relief, half triumph. It would be fun to press that into her steady blue eyes when he got back.

Through the plate glass of the office he could see Miller talking to a man in a white monkey-suit. Something in Miller's attitude was different; not precisely an alertness, but the sleepy suggestion of interest, of purpose almost. If I go, Hal thought, she'll say my coming made him change his mind; if I just stand here watching, he can get away as clean as if I were back there eating the dinner for which my system decorously calls.

He stood another moment trying to define the change in Miller's listless posture. Then he walked carefully over gravel to the car, carefully opened the door—his eyes watchful of the office—and climbed into the tonneau. On the floor behind the jump-seat there was room in which to lie curled and hidden.

It was faintly exciting—like a time Hal remembered when he had listened behind a curtain in the dining room while his governess told the butler how she would punish him for being late to his supper. And what a fine ass he'd look if Miller found him there.

There were voices soon, and the crunch of gravel under slow feet. "I kinda thought," Miller was saying, "it was some purty good hills over there, but I jus' didn't remember where they begun." He chuckled in sleepy cleverness.

"Well, good night," said another voice; and Miller said, "Sure."

The car tipped creaking toward one running board, the door slammed, and Miller's short, contemplative breathing sounded close overhead. Hal stepped himself to be touched, but then there was the hard catch and churning of the starter. A lurch over the curb confused his judgment of the direction in which Miller turned. But quickly the car was in high, and running fast; it was the open road under them, and Hal's breath stood still for a suspended instant of dismay.

Then he was good and angry—anger flooding his joints and his purpose with warm lubricant. By G—d, their beat clothes, probably, and their money—snatched from them by this animal, this drugged ape! As he raised himself from the floor, Hal had a savage wonder whether Kerrigan would like to fill the hole in his collection of experience by killing Miller.

His next act suggested itself as glibly as if he'd done this sort of thing often. He fumbled his right forefinger and, kneeling on one of the jump seats, leaned forward and pushed the knuckle against Miller's ribs. Miller didn't start or tremble or look around, but the car began wearily to slow down.

"Pull up to the side," Hal said, disgust flattening out the anger in his voice.

Miller obeyed—gently, as if he had been chauffeur to old ladies.

"Now," said Hal, "I want your wallet with all the money, your license, and your registration." Miller's furtive fingers took out the fat, shabby wallet and spread its compartments to show everything. Hal put it into an inside pocket and took his knuckle from Miller's ribs.

"Slide into the other seat," said Hal. Miller obeyed, with a strange, sleepily air of gratitude. Hal stepped out of the tonneau and got into the front without looking at Miller's face.

"Ever been in jail?" Hal asked him as the car started.

"Yes," said Miller, very low.

"Want to go again?" "No," said Miller.

Hal ran past a farm road, backed the car into it, and swung out on the highway again toward the town. Miller parted his lips with a sticky sound and cleared his throat.

"I was jus' takin' her up the road to kinda try out an' see..."

"Don't speak unless you're spoken to," said Hal quietly. "Get it?"

"Yes," Miller whispered. (TO BE CONTINUED)

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, & Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for October 13 THE STORY OF JEREMIAH

LESSON TEXT—Jeremiah 1:6-10; 28:1-15. GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt go to all that I send thee, and whatsoever I command thee thou shalt speak. Jeremiah 1:7.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Story of Jeremiah. JUNIOR TOPIC—The Story of Jeremiah. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Taking a Stand for God. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Attacking Entrenched Evils.

1. Jeremiah's Call (1:1-10). It was pre-natal (vv. 4, 5). Before Jeremiah was born God ordained him a prophet to the nations.

2. His diffidence (v. 6). This seems to have grown out of his youth and inexperience.

3. His hesitancy overcome (vv. 7, 8). God graciously appeared to him and made clear that he should go where sent, speak as commanded, and to be not afraid of the faces of his enemies. This was accompanied by the assurance of the divine presence. It matters little as to the strength of the foe if the presence of God is with the messenger.

4. The divine message given (v. 9). The first words were put into the prophet's mouth, not merely the thoughts but the proper words to express the thoughts.

5. The nature of his ministry (v. 10). It was to be wider than that of prophesying. Six words were given as descriptive thereof. The first four were destructive in their implication: "root out," "pull down," "destroy," and "throw down." The last two are constructive: "build" and "plant." The destructive precedes the constructive.

11. Jeremiah's Grief (9:1). The unbelief of the people made him feel that his efforts were fruitless. Seeing so clearly the awful doom which awaited this people, he wept sorely. The true prophet of God takes to heart the seriousness of his ministry and sorely grieves over the wicked unbelief of the people.

111. Jeremiah's Prophecy in the Temple Court (20:1-24). 1. Jeremiah's solemn warning to Judah (vv. 1-7). The Lord commanded him to stand in a conspicuous place in the Temple and proclaim the judgment which was about to fall upon them. The object was to provoke them to repentance. If they did not repent, God would make the Temple as Shiloh. Shiloh was once the dwelling place of God; now it had fallen into decay. So will it be with the Temple. Jeremiah was sent to speak the words which his Lord had told him and not to diminish a word.

2. Jeremiah on trial (vv. 9-11). a. Cause of arrest. He was arrested for speaking all that the Lord had commanded.

b. The charge (vv. 8, 9). They charged him with a capital crime, which involved pretending to speak for God and speaking against the Temple and the city. This would make him to be guilty of blasphemy and sacrilege, both of which were to be punished by death (Deut. 18:20; Lev. 24:10).

c. The princes sit in judgment (vv. 10, 11). We thus see that matters of state were not entirely in the hands of priests, but in part were controlled by members of the royal family.

3. Jeremiah's defense (vv. 12-15). Threats of death did not deter him from preaching, but only inspired him to repeat his message with clearness and tenderness.

a. Reiterated the divine commission.

b. He urged them to amend their ways and to obey God and thus avert the divine judgment (v. 13).

c. He gave himself up (v. 14). He did not resist the powers of government. Knowing that God had sent him, he was content to trust God for deliverance.

d. Warnings of fatal consequences. He frankly told them that God had sent him and if they killed him they would be guilty of defying God.

4. Jeremiah saved (vv. 16-24). a. The princes pronounce him not guilty (v. 16). They were convinced that Jeremiah was speaking the truth.

b. The elders plead for Jeremiah (vv. 17-23). They cited two cases; MIREAN (vv. 18, 19) and URTJAH (vv. 20-23). They argued that killing God's prophets did not turn aside his judgment but intensified it. The only way to avert the judgment is to turn from their sins.

c. Jeremiah rescued by Ahikam (v. 24). He was a man of such influence that he was able to interfere at such a critical time.

Daily Living He is wise who can instruct us and assist us in the business of daily virtuous living; he who trains us to see old truth under academic formalities; may be wise or not as it chances; but we love to see Wisdom in unpretending form, to recognize her royal features under week-day vesture.

Blessings Reflect upon your present blessings, of which every man has many; not on your past misfortunes, of which all men have some.

A Patching Hint It is a fine idea to make handkerchiefs out of the leftover pieces from the children's cotton dresses. They can use the handkerchiefs to match the dress and later if a patch is needed the handkerchief can be used for patching. It will have been washed as often as the dress and will match as a patch.

Mussolini Goes Ahead

As might have been expected, Mussolini, with his acute attack of ego, appears unworried at the action of the League of Nations in declaring Italy an outlaw nation because of her aggression in Ethiopia. In answer to the League's pronouncement, Il Duce dispatches more troops to Africa. Member states of the League of Nations are facing the gravest problem in the history of the League. Japan's annexation of Manchuria was not so vexing because of the far removal of the seat of that aggression from Geneva and the other members of the League. Also, the other League members were not so vitally concerned as to the fate of Manchuria as they are with the conditions in Africa, where they have so many colonies.

If Italy is allowed to proceed with the conquest of Ethiopia, there is no hope for the League of Nations. If the so-called sanctions ordered by the League turn out to be only a "slap on the wrist," the League might as well disband, because it will have proved itself incapable of meeting a situation calling for strong action.

It appears that Mussolini has definitely determined to go ahead with the African campaign. Capture of Aduwa and avenging of the Italian defeat of 39 years ago are not enough.

That being true, and with Mussolini obviously prepared to endure economic sanctions which League of Nations members are obligated to impose upon Italy, the outlook is not so bright. The article of the League Covenant, concerning penalties, mentions the "possible" use of armed force against an outlaw nation.

The logical conclusion is that League members will apply economic sanctions against Italy and if those sanctions are not effective, either armed force must be used or the League of Nations will go down into history as another "noble experiment."

If Mussolini succeeds in subjugating Ethiopia, he will have done something which has been accomplished only twice before in history.

In the eighth century, B. C., Ethiopia became an independent monarchy and for a time held possession of Egypt. In 524, B. C., it was conquered by Cambyses, king of Persia, who moved the capital from Napata to Meroe. The kingdom continued until the time of Augustus when monarch submitted to the Roman. The Abyssinian Empire dates from the first century, B. C., or the first century, A. D.

By attacking Ethiopia, Italy is violating an agreement signed Dec. 12, 1904, by Great Britain, France and Italy to respect and endeavor to preserve the integrity of Abyssinia as an independent nation.

There can be no doubt that the Ethiopians or Abyssinians will give Mussolini a hard fight before they are conquered. The Italian troops are facing the kind of warfare which white men find exceedingly difficult to meet. In a pitched battle, the Italians with their modern equipment will prevail, but in guerilla fighting, ambush and sudden attack, the enlightened races always have fared badly.

Soldiers expect to be killed eventually, but the fate which awaits an Italian soldier so unfortunate as to fall into the hands of the Ethiopians is enough to chill the heart of any brave.—El Paso Times.

Domestic Arts Department

We are expecting an unusual exhibition of domestic arts this year in the Lincoln County Fair. It's your Fair so everyone in the County is urged to display something. It is a known fact there is a better garden, fruit and field crop than usual so every housewife should be proud enough to display her products.

The Domestic Arts department will have such exhibits as: rag rugs, quilts, sewing, remodeled garments, garments made from sugar and flour sacks, crochet, tatting, embroidery, knitting, needle point, darning, patching and hemstitching.

The girls' department will be exhibits made by girls under 18 years of age and there will be a special prize offered to the girl that makes the best darn and patch.

The foods department will be displays of home baked breads, rolls, cakes, cookies and home-made candies.

The pantry stores display will consist of canned fruits, vegetables, jellies, preserves, conserves and marmalades. Also dried fruits and vegetables and home-made soap.

The flower show will add a lot to the displays as well as show what our Lincoln County women can produce.

You can't receive prizes or ribbons unless you make entries so it is up to you to try.

Salmon River Area Will Be Explored

Gorge Surpasses Grand Canyon of the Colorado.

Washington, D. C.—The Salmon river canyon in Idaho, one of the largest primitive areas in the United States, with a gorge surpassing the Grand canyon of the Colorado in depth and steepness, will be explored and photographed soon by the Salmon river expedition of the National Geographic society.

The expedition personnel includes Philip J. Shanon and John C. Reed of the U. S. Geological survey; Maynard Owen Williams, staff representative of the National Geographic society; Robert Marshall, naturalist; D. Worth Clark, and two local boatmen.

Accent Is on Costume Suit for Fall

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

SO MANY women do not think they can wear suits, because, unless one be slim and svelte, a blouse and skirt are apt to prove a problem at the waistline.

To such "cheerio" is the message for designers of vision and inventive genius have taken the matter to heart and have come to the rescue of despairing ones. They have surmounted the difficulty via that which they are pleased to title in fashion's vocabulary as the "costume suit." Needless to say the new costume suits carry the promise of a foremost vogue, autumn and winter through, seeing that they are proving as effective as a strict reducing diet in slenderizing the figure.

The idea is to top a slim frock of some one or other of the incomparably handsome wools or wools-and-silk, such as are glorifying the current fabric showings, with a varied length coat to match. The fact that intriguing fur trimmings are playing such an important role in present-day styling adds to the glamor and prestige of these vogue costumes.

In tending the theme of these slenderizing suit effects to the individuality of the wearer, much depends upon the coat to "fair the trick." The accompanying illustration of a trio of models recently shown by style creators of the Chicago wholesale market district demonstrate the point better than words can tell.

If your ambition is to arrive at slimmest and height, the costume to the left in the picture will help you make dreams come true. The slightly full-below-the-elbow sleeves, with just the right length to the coat, combined with fitted bodice lines and slender neckline tend to accentuate a slenderized silhouette. The simple gored lines of the skirt also tends to the straight slim look.

The bright metal touch which is so dramatically enhancing the new fashions is present in the double collar and pointed vestee front. The collar is of black lynx as is the banding at the bottom of the coat.

For the tall stately woman or the slim older woman who aspires to added slimmest, an answer to her longings is given in the smart restaurant costume as pictured in the center of the group. It reflects influence of the Italian renaissance especially in the grandiose royal purple velvet which fashions it. The rich and beautiful reds, purples and greens of early Italian painters are the featured kind this season. Fitted basque with snug little waistline, trimly fitting hips and flaring-below-the-knees skirt are all flattering. The glaringly new details, however, are a youthful peplum flare of the jacket together with full sleeves that are fitted in at the wrist to be very flattering to the hands. The pillow muff which she carries is also significant, for it has been quite some time since this type of muff was in fashion. The fur is a shaded krimmer and its manner of bordering the edges emphasizes a high-style trimming note.

From Russia comes the suggestion for the fitted tunic suit shown to the right. It registers as very "young" for its flared tunic line. A Russe makes it youthful. It is flattering to either the tall or short slim figure, depending upon the length of the coat. Mahogany russe a new rich tone not too reddish, is the color of the cloth. Tailored bandings of beige krimmer make this costume suit look all the more Russian. The frock underneath, however, is quite American with its simple tailored lines and amusing pockets and novel wooden buttons.

WITH A HOOD

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Here's a youthful and ultra chic evening wrap. Hoods and head coverings are still going strong in the mode. This one is a red-riding hood type, one that Gladys Swartout, of opera fame, has selected as part of her wardrobe of evening wraps. It is of brown velveteen and is worn over a powder blue silk sheer gown which has skirt fullness and the new fallered top. It would be handsome in black velvet—why not for your party wrap this winter?

PLEATS DOMINATE STYLES FOR FALL

They've taken a pleat in fashion this fall, and the results are both numerous and startling.

Pleats turn up at the most unexpected places in the new fall frocks, cropping out anywhere from skirt to neckline.

Pleated sleeves are among the newest wrinkles of the mode, these being large and loose in the new manner, drawn into a cuff at the wrist. They're effective in black chiffon, combined with a black crepe dinner gown.

Pleated blouses, in soft, sheer fabrics, are drawing ecstatic "ah's" and "oh's" from shoppers, who are buying them for wear with the new velvet cocktail suits.

Some of the newest evening gowns are all pleats, from neck to hem, done in soft, silky fabrics that manage to outline the figure in a most seductive manner, keeping their classic lines as well.

Intriguing Styles in New Handbags for Fall Season

Bags are shown this season in new and intriguing leathers and combinations, such as frogback antelope (a pebbled suede), puffed and quilted calf, saddle leather, alligator, plaskin and ostrich, all often combined with patent leather.

Top handles are new and important. Bags are roomy and soft, with fewer rigid frames, square and oblong shapes are the most popular, and there are many new tricks in fasteners and monograms.

The Schlaparel handbag, fastened with gilt padlock and key, is the tops for the miser girl, guaranteed pick-pocket proof. Metal rimmed keyholes also are used, as are metal button-holes.

The "mad-money" bag, of suede, has an outside change purse trimmed with a small gold coin on a gilt chain.

Golden Phantoms

FASCINATING TALES OF LOST MINES

OWNED BY Mrs. Edith L. Watson

INTO THIN AIR

WHAT became of the buckskin bags full of gold that George A. Jackson buried in the corner of his cabin? Jackson has been dead for many years, and if anyone else who knows the secret is alive, he has kept his knowledge carefully hidden.

Jackson himself was a man of prominence. It was he who, on December 31, 1858, went up Clear Creek alone (his two companions had gone after a band of elk), found hot springs, camped at the place and a few days later panned gold in a tin cup and made the first gold discovery of importance in Colorado. The place was the present town of Idaho Springs, where mines still operate and gold is still to be taken from the ground.

It was this man who went to Middle park in 1867 to prospect for more of the precious metal. He and his companion on the trip found gold in Buffalo park, but they also found unfriendly Indians and little or no water, so they drifted north along the top of the range. Four or five miles from Rabbit Ear peak they found gold again in a little creek, and by traveling upstream they came to a bar that held considerable value.

This was what they wanted. After doing some work at the location they went to Georgetown and organized a party of ten men, returning to the bar in the spring of 1868.

Now they built a cabin and a corral, for ten men needed something in the way of comfort and convenience if they were to devote their time to taking out gold. They worked pretty steadily, but Jackson took a little time out for whisky, and carved his name on a tree at the corner of the cabin.

After a while $10,000 in gold dust, packed in buckskin bags, lay hidden below the earth in a corner of the cabin. That meant a thousand dollars apiece—not very much as fortunes went, but still a neat start.

And then Colorow and a hundred lively Utes decided to discourage the white men. They dropped in on an unfriendly call, and when they departed three men lay dead and the rest did not drag their feet as they headed for Georgetown. In fact, the seven who survived, with the exception of Jackson, seemed to feel that the peaceful East held a lure that surpassed that of the golden phantom, and shortly they left Colorado.

Jackson, being somewhat accustomed to such turns of luck, had no idea of leaving the gold in that deserted cabin. He told a friend about the cache, and the two started out to get it, but heavy snow turned them back and they were forced to delay the trip. The next spring, they planned, would see them at the cabin, digging up the gold. But that winter Jackson pulled his gun barrel-first out of a wagon, and the accidental discharge of the weapon caused his death.

Fortunately, his friend knew the location of the cabin. He shared the knowledge with another man, and spring saw them up in the wild country where Jackson had found the gold. On Walton creek, near where the old Steamboat road crossed, they found the cabin and the corral. They also found the tree with Jackson's name carved on it. This was the place, without a doubt.

And so they dug in the corner of the cabin, among the rubbish which remained as souvenirs of the ten energetic miners. They dug in the other corners, too, and in the corral, and outside, and by the tree.

Gold does not vanish into thin air—unless some one aids it in its disappearing act. But who had been there since Colorow and his band?

Just another mystery to add to the many strange happenings which make dramatic the history of the West!

GOLD TO THROW AWAY

FOUR men stood on the heights above Salt river, and looked down, a thousand feet below them, to where the water flowed between the bluffs. One began picking up stones and throwing them into the space below. The larger they were, the better splash they made.

A good-sized rock lay near the edge of the chasm. What a splash it would make! The playful one tried to push it, but it was too heavy, and one of his friends went to his aid. At last they dislodged it, and it rolled over the brink; it fell down into the river below, and the mighty splash it made caused the water to dash madly away from it for a moment. Then it disappeared, lost forever below the ripples in that inaccessible canyon.

As it had rolled and slid toward the edge of the bluff, the rock looked yellow. As it hurried downward the sun caught it, and it gleamed. The four men watched it until it vanished. Then they turned toward each other. Every face wore a number of tangled emotions.

They had learned, too late, that the "rock" was gold!

Value Set on Man's Life

By early Teutonic custom or law, wergild was the money equivalent of a man's life. It was a price which, when paid to the relatives of a man murdered or killed accidentally, absolved the culprit.

Guard Against Fleas

Fleas will breed in carpets, cracks in the floor or any other suitable place where the eggs may drop. It takes only 17 days from the time an egg is laid to produce a flea in good biting condition. The insects are renowned in scientific circles as the carrier of many diseases. The dog flea sometimes carries eggs of a tapeworm, which when swallowed causes worms in dogs. Occasionally tapeworms in children are caused by dog fleas accidentally getting into the mouths of the children.

To guard against flea infestation of dwellings animal pets should be frequently dusted with any insect powder made from dried pyrethrum flowers. This is harmless to animals and human beings. If a house becomes infested the rugs, cracks in floor and other likely breeding places should be sprayed thoroughly with any of the liquid spray insecticides.

YOUTH, FACED BY NEW PROBLEMS, NEEDS GUIDANCE

"Boys and girls of the present day are most emphatically all right. They are faced, however, with certain problems which did not perplex their fathers and mothers." It is to these problems and situations that Dr. Reginald Fitz turns his attention in "Young People and Their Parents," an article in Hygeia in which he makes some revealing comparisons and contrasts of conditions at the beginning of the century and at the present time.

Each generation at some time finds itself midway between old age and youth, irked on the one hand by the conservatism of its elders and on the other by the radicalism of its youngsters.

Of especial significance among the changes in attitude is the relation of the family doctor to young people. People naturally continue to be born, to grow sick and to die, but the medical problems of the average family are radically different from those of the early part of the century.

At times the physician must even play the part of schoolmaster. He conducts annual physical examinations on school children, examines their eyes, teeth and ears, and makes sure that they are properly fed. He does what he can to prevent the appearance of infectious diseases keeps accurate records of physical development and sees to it that the program of the individual child who is growing too rapidly or too slowly or who is in any way abnormal is modified appropriately.

By virtue of his peculiar human relationships the family medical adviser feels at heart a strong sense of responsibility to the nation, which he can fulfill only by doing his best to direct the minds and bodies of young people in the proper direction.

Must Give Account

Floundering in mud, Hondo won a smashing football victory over Corona last Friday, with a score of 30 to 0. The game was won altogether by short end runs and line bucks, the mud making complete passes impossible. Coach Clements feels very proud of his first victory, especially over Corona, his old home town. He has great hopes for added success in the game with Cloudcroft on Oct. 4. Here's to you, Woodrow, the Outlook hopes you will win every game of the season!
