Out-of-the-Ordinary

The handsome ocean steamer, the "Polar Star," sailed from the New York harbor, bound for the far north on a research expedition. It had a picked crew and its commanding officer was dashing. Captain Frank Reynolds, whom his crew considered lucky, from the fact that shortly before the ship set sail he was married to a beautiful young lady and they all agreed that the presence of the new bride would add romance to the trip. After encountering icebergs in the North Sea, the young bride fell a victim to illness and died. The body was buried at sea. Her death completely changed Captain Reynolds from a light hearted leader to a sullen, silent personage, giving orders only through his first mate. At night, he would pace the upper deck until he would fall asleep from sheer exhaustion. Watchers would hear him continually murmuring the name of his dead bride, "Rosemary." At last the ship became hemmed in by icebergs and in great danger, but the Captain paid no attention to it. One night, in a blinding snow storm, he broke his long silence. He ordered a strong searchlight turned on over the sea of ice, called for his telescope and ordered the gang-plank lowered to its place. He laughed and joked with the crew until finally he rushed wildly down the gang-plank with his arms outstretched while he lovingly called her name. Before the crew could stop him he had gone out under the searchlight and survivors of that trip still insist that they saw the white figure of a lady, coming to meet him as the gallant Captain went to his death. His body was never found. If you believe in ghosts, you might agree with the crew on the Polar Star, that they saw one that night in the great North Sea.

The Chatfield, Minnesota school is unable to boast of quadruplets or even triplets, but it proudly challenges any school in the United States to equal its record of seven sets of twins attending classes at the same time, says the Fulda Free Press. Hilda and Julia Loughrey in the normal training department, Ray and Ronald Kelsey, Betty and Bethel Hanson, both sets in the junior class, Maynard and Myron Crocker, Elizabeth and Lyman Delaney, freshmen, Betty and Ben McBroom, Edwin and Elwin Bendickson, seventh-graders. The twins resemble each other so closely that the teachers have them tagged in order to keep the record in proper condition. Newlyweds desiring to locate where the soil is rich and productive, should not overlook Minnesota.

When the once famous La-Grande Chattruse was banned by order of the French government, it was turned into a mecca for tourists and night sers. To wander through the dark dungeons and passage ways, it is to remind you of the monks who inhabited that lonely place for centuries, unmolested. They were not allowed to speak to each other and their lives were spent in solitude, with only the scriptures to ponder over. They ate one meal every other day which

Corona News

A large number from Corona attended the Singing Convention at Cedarvale Sunday.

Members of the Hi School presented "The Wild Oats Boy" Tuesday night for the benefit of the football team. A dance followed the play.

The entire faculty of the Corona School is attending the State Teachers' Convention in Albuquerque this week.

Mr. Paul Dean was here on business Monday, and while here, received a call stating that his daughter was seriously ill in Jal, N. M. He left immediately for his home there.

Congratulations—Mr. and Mrs. Willis Lovelace, a son, born in El Paso; Mr. and Mrs. Alva Roberts, Oct. 25, a son; Mr. and Mrs. Placido Romo, a daughter, Oct. 21.

Those bringing in deer so far have been—A. J. Atkinson, Earl Porter, Delbert Jolly, Walter Parker, Mr. Cato and Charlie Vickrey.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. DuBois made a trip to Santa Fe Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Dean were in Clovis on business last week.

Daniel Boone Fay Harkey

Fay Harkey deserves the medal for being a one-hundred percent hunter. Last Saturday, accompanied by his father, John W. Harkey and Bryan Cazier, went to the head of the Bonito and before the day was over he had killed a big brown bear and a fine young deer. John and Bryan came back empty-handed, but Fay made up for it. This office bows its thanks for some nice juicy roasts from the kill. Fay is entitled to the belt and he justly deserves it.

Ben C. Sanchez motored to Vaughn Tuesday evening and returned accompanied by Miss Eva Vigil, who was called here on account of the death of her mother, Mrs. Carlos Vigil.

"Keeno" Ortiz won the prize at the masquerade dance at Community Hall last Saturday night by emulating "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."—Who'll win the prize tomorrow night, Nov. 2nd? Come out and see; you are welcome.

Among the lucky hunters who killed a deer was Supt. Hall of the Carrizozo schools, who got a young buck.

Hon. Joseph Bartlett, a delegate to the Townsend Convention in Chicago, will speak in the court room in Carrizozo, Monday evening, Nov. 11, at 7:30. Come out and learn about this plan—the only plan thus far offered the American people for permanent recovery. Young people especially invited.—Committee.

consisted of bread and water. It was at that place where the famous Chattruse cordial, which was a liquor, was first given to the world, but the monks were not allowed to even taste it. During the centuries of its existence a woman had never entered the monastery. Too bad, wasn't it? Their only pleasure was being allowed to visit the graveyard which was called, the "City of the Dead" once each week. What a thrill!

Silver Anniversary

On Oct. 22, many Eastern Stars assembled at Masonic Temple to celebrate the 25th anniversary of their constituting. Mrs. Lillie B. Collier, the only charter member present, was given a hearty greeting. Mrs. Koshler Wright installed and constituted our Chapter and we were very exceedingly happy to have her with us after twenty-five years.

Mrs. Wright said our Chapter and our town had improved greatly since her last visit here. She admired the beautiful hall and complimented the excellent program. The program was opened by singing the Star Spangled Banner. Mrs. Ethel Howard gave a beautiful solo.

Mrs. Ben Burns rendered a piano solo in her usual gifted manner, after which the Past Matrons presented "Temple Gifts," directed by Mrs. R. E. Lemon.

An impressive memorial service for the 29 loved ones gone to the Great Beyond was given by Mrs. S. H. Nickels, W. M. and five of her officers. The guests were then invited to the banquet room. On a small table an immense birthday cake surrounded by fragrant blossoms and supporting twenty-five was supervised by Mrs. C. P. Huppertz.

The Silver Anniversary scheme was fittingly carried out by the silver stars, candles and ribbon festoons, arranged by Mrs. Geo. A. Titaworth.

Mrs. S. H. Nickels, as toastmistress, presided in her most cordial and efficient manner.

After refreshments consisting of ice cream, cake and coffee, pep songs, toasts and speeches were given by our distinguished guests, Mrs. M. Koehler, Past Grand Matron, Mrs. Edith Turner, Junior Past Grand Matron, Mrs. Mae Cox, Grand Committee Member, Mrs. C. A. McCammon, Grand Representative, Mrs. Ada Norton, Grand Instructor, C. P. Huppertz, T. E. Kelley, D. A. Saunders and many others attended to the merriment of the occasion.

Mrs. F. A. English presented Comet Chapter with the range, a gift of the Past Matrons, all of whom wished the Chapter as much success and happiness in the next twenty-five years as it has previously had.

Mesdames Donaldson, Kelley and Miss Helen Frances Huppertz acted as Organists. A number of guests from our sister Chapter at Tularosa were present. At a late hour the guests departed after adding one more page to their book of memories. —Contributed.

Lieut. Tracy of the CCC Camp entertained Tuesday evening at the camp with a delicious Spanish dinner, his guests being Dr. and Mrs. Kudner, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sparks, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Sparks, Mr. and Mrs. McCune, Mr. and Mrs. Haines, all of Jackson, Mich., Mr. and Mrs. Tom James, Mr. and Mrs. Gunther Kroggel of Carrizozo. The above named party are here on a hunting trip and are guests at the Kudner O Bar O Ranch. Dr. Kudner is a brother to A. H. Kudner. After the dinner at the camp, the party repaired to the Kudner ranch where they were entertained for the remainder of the evening.

Several of our local boys have enrolled in the local CCC Camp.

Woman's Club

An unusually interesting meeting of the club was held at Fort Stanton last Saturday. Miss Stover gave a report of the play given at the Carrizozo school-house for the benefit of the club. The play was excellent and netted the club some forty dollars. A vote of thanks was tendered Miss Short and her co-workers Mrs. F. L. Boughner gave a report of the committee appointed by the club to assist in the Lincoln County Fair and Rodeo. The committee appointed 44 assistant chairmen over the county who willingly gave time to collecting exhibits, the results of which were seen in the exhibit building. A vote of thanks was given to the local chairman, her committee and all others assisting. Mrs. Blaney and Mrs. Beck were appointed custodians of the club dishes. Mesdames Lemon, Degitz and Krceman were appointed to look after chairs for rental or purchase by the club.

Miss Ruth Ryden had charge of the program which was of high quality. Mrs. Merchant's lower grade pupils sang two numbers, 1, Pussy Cat, 2, This is the Way. The upper grades sang Safe in my Father's Home and God of the Nation, with Mrs. Merchant at the piano. Dr. Gordon gave a concise history of the origin and the various steps toward the Fort Stanton of today, which made us love it more and more. We were then driven to places of interest on the grounds and were taken to the home of Mrs. Fagan, where delicious refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants Mesdames Hendren, White, Titaworth, Gensler, Shafer, Stimmet, White, Howard and Miss Charlotte Rice. A most enjoyable time was experienced.

Mrs. Elizabeth Jones, who has recently been in El Paso, is now in California, according to word received by Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Garrison.

Miss Aurora Anaya of Capitan attended the masquerade dance at Community Hall last Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Champ Ferguson of the Nogal - Mesa called on relatives and friends at this place the first of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Moline are residing in the cottage formerly owned by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Abel, said cottage being recently purchased by County School Superintendent Mrs. Ola C. Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Martinez are here from Albuquerque, visiting with the St. John and Andy Padilla families.

Mesdames J. M. Beck, H. C. Hall and Roy Shafer were guests of Mrs. Doyle Rentfrow at her ranch across the Malpais on Wednesday.

Bert Pffingsten was here Tuesday from Hondo and before leaving, dropped into this office for a friendly call and also left us some nice apples for which he received our thanks.

Cheese Demonstration

The Friendship Club, at Corona, met with Mrs. W. T. Pruitt Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Marie Bishop gave a demonstration in making cheese—The Quick Process Method. Each person brought ingredients and made their own cheese. The group made 85 pounds of lovely cream cheese. After two hours of enthusiastic work, Mrs. Pruitt served lovely refreshments to the following ladies:

Mesdames A. W. and T. D. Colbaugh, Clyde, A. B. and Fay Jones, Lode Argenbright, Raymond Tracy, W. S. and Frank Dishman, J. E. McKibben, E. L. Beever and A. C. Hester.

Thomas K. Karr of the Luckey Dairy, while out on a hunting trip the first of the week, sustained a badly lacerated leg when the horse he was riding fell, pinning Mr. Karr's leg under him. He was taken to his home and at the present time, he is resting well. Mrs. Karr and the children are visiting in Iowa and are not aware of the accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Abel and son Frank, Jr., of El Paso were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Sproles.

Mrs. Anna B. Rieinger, daughter, Mrs. C. Wharton and grandson, Pat Kroggel came in Wednesday from Roscoe, Texas, and will remain for a week at the Kroggel home.

Attorney H. B. Hamilton was a business visitor from El Paso on Monday of this week.

Personals

J. R. Reynolds and daughter, Kate of Cisco, Texas, came in last week and are guests of Col. and Mrs. J. V. Taylor at the I-X ranch during the hunting season.

Mr. and Mrs. Brack Sloan of Roswell enjoyed the County Fair immensely, especially the Rodeo, which, they say, was regular He - Max performance.

Mrs. Elizabeth Jones, who has recently been in El Paso, is now in California, according to word received by Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Garrison.

Miss Aurora Anaya of Capitan attended the masquerade dance at Community Hall last Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Champ Ferguson of the Nogal - Mesa called on relatives and friends at this place the first of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Moline are residing in the cottage formerly owned by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Abel, said cottage being recently purchased by County School Superintendent Mrs. Ola C. Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Martinez are here from Albuquerque, visiting with the St. John and Andy Padilla families.

Mesdames J. M. Beck, H. C. Hall and Roy Shafer were guests of Mrs. Doyle Rentfrow at her ranch across the Malpais on Wednesday.

Bert Pffingsten was here Tuesday from Hondo and before leaving, dropped into this office for a friendly call and also left us some nice apples for which he received our thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. Gunther Kroggel made a trip to El Paso Wednesday, Mrs. Kroggel taking the train for Sweetwater, Texas, where she will visit for the week-end and return the first of the coming week.

The Lincoln County Agency of the Citizens State Bank of Vaughn has undergone extensive remodeling. Mr. A. E. Huntsinger, Cashier and Mr. Wayne Zumwalt, Assistant Cashier, endeavor to make one feel at home in their dealings with the above named Bank. The business men, local and in the surrounding towns should be highly commended for making the full page advertisement possible. Notice the ad elsewhere in this paper.

Miss Cora Craws of Oscura was a visitor in town last Saturday; Miss Cora also attended the meeting of the Carrizozo Woman's Club of which she is a member, at Fort Stanton on that day.

The Ladies of the M. E. Missionary Society are planning some improvements on the Parsonage.

Vance P. Smith of Oscura is on the list of lucky deer hunters.

The Carrizozo Business Men's Club met at the regular Wednesday evening dinner at the Carrizozo Eating House. The attendance was somewhat small on account of the absence of teachers and others being out on hunting parties. There were but fifteen present.

Inspector Hunter Active

Alfred Hunter has been here the entire week inspecting cattle for the New Mexico Cattle Sanitary Board. Al is the chief inspector for the Board in this district and reports cattle shipments of the following stockmen of our locality: Spencer, Grenshaw, Stokes Brothers, White & Murphy, Kelt Brothers, Kudner, Morris, Downing, Nickels, Vega Brothers, Ayers, Straley, Bond, McCamant, Davidson and others. Cattle are bringing encouraging prices just now which furnishes a strong incentive to sell and avoid wintering over of stock. H. L. White of Dalhart bought most of the cattle.

Returning hunters report that deer are not so plentiful as was first expected; consequently, the "no ketch 'em" club has many new members. Again we are confronted with the same old story of how they "just grazed him" or words to that effect. But it's all right, boys, there'll be another season coming in '36 and by that time politics will be Red Hot, which might help some. Better luck next time.

Superintendent Hall and his entire force of teachers are attending the Teachers' Convention at Albuquerque and consequently, the school has been closed for the week. The boys are very sorry to be left out of school and they will be anxiously awaiting next Monday when they may again get a thrill out of the schoolroom. Early in the morning next Monday, they will wash their necks and amid much cussing and discussing, manage to get to school in time to escape the tardy bell.

Mrs. R. E. Blaney entertained the Carrizozo Bridge Club at her home yesterday afternoon.

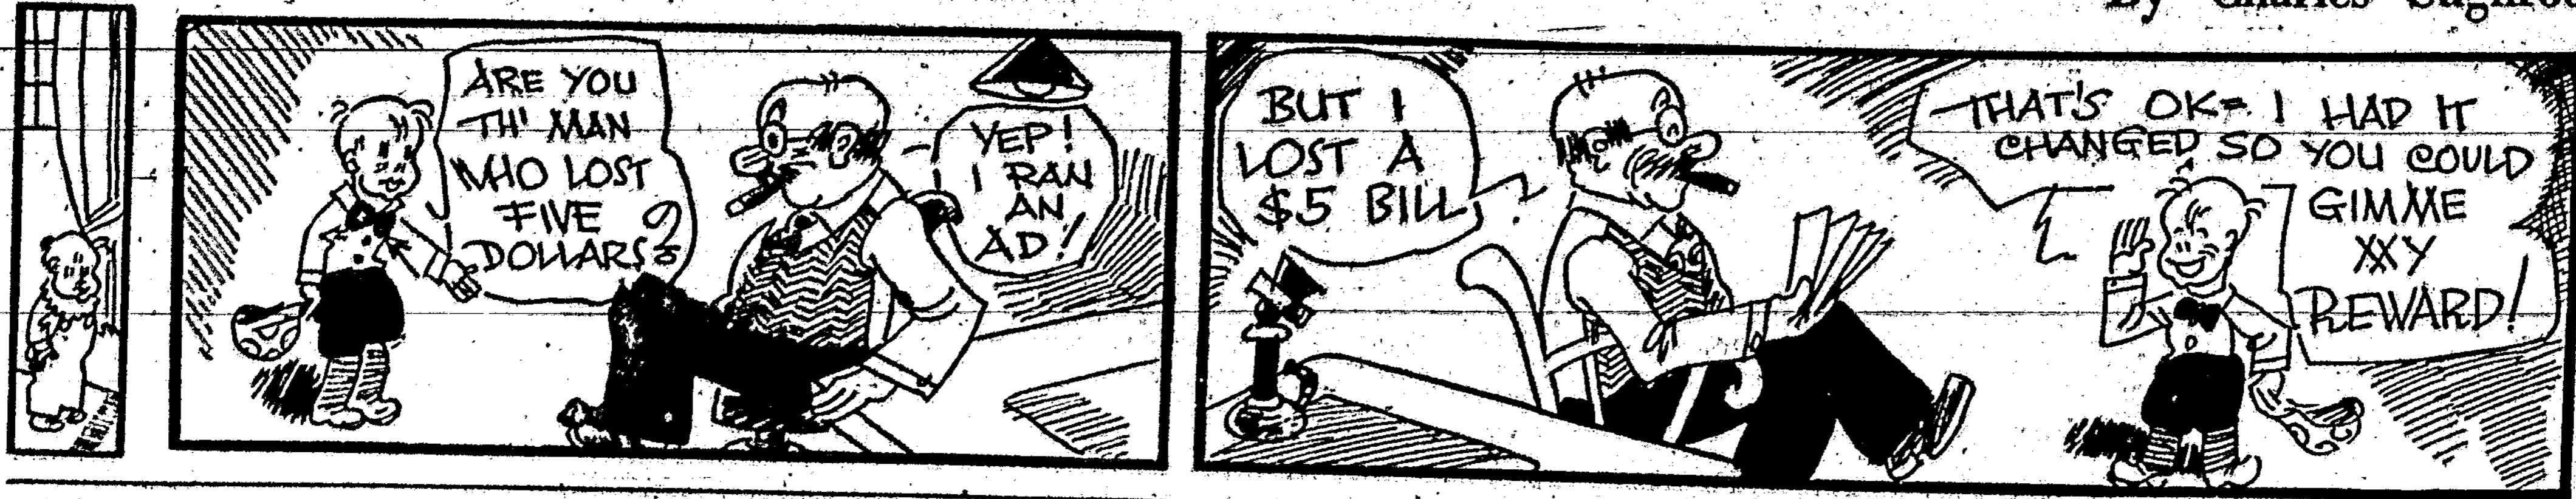

This office is in receipt of word from our old friend Jesse May, formerly of Nogal, but now has located in Ontario, Oregon. Jesse writes he likes the place very much, somewhat colder than our locality. He sends his regards to his old friends.

Little Helen Jean Kelt, daughter of Postmaster and Mrs. Herman Kelt, won the Shirley Temple Doll at the Burnett Grocery last Saturday. Congratulations, Miss Helen Jean—take good care of her.

Rev. E. Johnson and family left Wednesday; he has been transferred to the Texas Methodist Conference. Rev. Bell is assigned to the Carrizozo pastorate and will be here within a week or so.

Warlike Habits of Butterflies Are Bared

Some Show No Hesitation in Attacking Birds.

Washington.—Butt flies are not pacifists. Boldness and pugnacity are mingled in species whose habits have been studied intensively by Austin H. Clark, Smithsonian Institution biologist. Some of the smallest species are among the most impetuous and warlike.

Thus, Mr. Clark observes the little buckeye butterfly, common after midsummer in northeastern United States, will fearlessly attack wasps, bees, large flies, and butterflies much larger than itself. They will assault any other insect that passes within six or eight feet of them as they sit upon the ground.

Involved in Constant Feuds. "They are very quarrelsome among themselves," Mr. Clark says. "There is a constant feud between them and the males of the pearl crescent butterfly, which swarm in moister spots along the roads.

"Perhaps the most interesting peculiarity of the buckeye is its intense dislike for the common Carolina locust. If one of these clumsy insects jumps up and takes to flight and there is a male buckeye near, the latter at once gives chase, flying behind, or on either side of it, but always keeping from two to four inches away. If the locust alights on the road, the butterfly alights simultaneously four or five inches to one side and slowly waves its wings in a menacing fashion. If the persecuted locust takes off again the butterfly is after it once more. If a locust pursued by a buckeye passes within 10 feet or so of another buckeye, the second will join in the pursuit, and sometimes a third will join.

"A Carolina locust, pursued by a buckeye and trying to escape is a sight that may be witnessed a hundred times a day wherever the two insects are common."

Pearl Crescent a Fighter. Another fighter, Mr. Clark finds, is the pearl crescent, one of the commonest butterflies in weedy fields. It will dart viciously at larger grasshoppers, flies, bees, and especially at the larger brown butterflies, against which it seems to maintain a special enmity.

Some common butterflies, Mr. Clark says, have no hesitation in attacking birds. One of these is the Camberwell beauty, which he describes as "bold, pugnacious, and aggressive. When two meet they will often rise battling to a height of 20 feet or more. In the open it will dart viciously at the larger dragonflies that venture too near the willows on which it rests, and will also dart at the smaller birds, sending them to cover."

The only other butterfly that habitually attacks birds is the common "milkweed butterfly," which normally is one of the most peaceful in disposition of all its race. Between males of this species there are only feeble, half-hearted fights; but it entertains a special animosity for hummingbirds. "In spite of its essentially peaceful disposition," Mr. Clark says, "it is not without courage, for it will attack most viciously a hummingbird so incautious as to approach too near the flower on which it is feeding, always boldly frightening the bird, which makes off in a straight line as fast as possible."

Golf Ball Mine Found. Clinton, Mass.—EPA workers, clearing brush from the woods near the Runaway Brook club at Bolton, discovered 627 golf balls. The balls, which filled a bushel basket, had been lost during the 37 years that the club has been in existence.

Cabby's Pet Hobby Is Feeding Strays. Sydney.—A Sydney taxidriver, Henry Harris, has spent $1,500 on meat for stray cats and dogs. For the past 20 years he has thrown a piece of meat from his meat can to every stray he has seen in the street. Each day before going to work he has bought special meat and cooked it for his free meals for canines.

Capt. Walter Cruise of Northwestern University is a fine left-handed passer and hard blocking right-half back. He is very fast and has improved greatly since last year. With a couple of good receivers, Cruise will be an aerial threat to all Northwest-ern opponents this year.

RED INK

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

In one of our recent financial journals we read the report of a corporation engaged in selling ink. As an explanation of the decrease in profits, reference is made to decline in orders for red ink. Prosperity is returning and more business concerns are declaring dividends. Books are being closed with, black ink when formerly red ink was used. Perhaps it was not intended that these remarks should be taken seriously. Nevertheless, we believe fewer corporations need the use of red ink in closing their books.

Economists are arguing that we are rapidly emerging out of the depression. Prosperity, they say, is slowly but surely creeping upon us. The old order is passing and the new, with its optimism and enthusiasm, is at hand. Perhaps these economists are right. It may be true that we are in the last days of the depression. Perhaps it is

The Household

By Lydia Le Baron Walker

IRONING boards must be properly covered if the ironing done on them looks expert. Irons must be in best condition also, and be of the right temperature. With electric irons the heat is intermittent as with the ordinary irons heated from without instead of within themselves. With the electric iron this is because of the need of alternating current. With the ordinary flat iron the change of temperature comes with the cooling of it during use, and the increase of heat when it is exchanged for one from the stove. The great advantage in using an electric iron in hot weather is that no fire is needed. The current of heat from the iron does not permeate the room and the temperature can be kept lower than when a fire must be going. With either kind of iron the work can be equally as well done.

An ironing board must be well padded. The padding must be without seams, and be in one piece. It must be long enough to extend the full length of the board and be wide enough to reach from side to side of the widest part of it. Boards can be padded with material at hand or pads can be bought. Unless they fit your particular size of board they are inadequate. One pad may do, but two pads are preferable. The more give there is to the board when ready for use the better, up to a certain point. Too deep padding retards ironing.

Extra Padding. If extra padding is needed for ironing embroideries, etc., which should be in relief, use a pad of soft cloth, such as a Turkish towel. The reason why the board must be free from seams, from patches and creases, is that each one will make its imprint on the ironed garments, and mar the perfection of the work.

The board must be straight and even. A warped board or a split one should be discarded, unless mended to even it. Sometimes planing a warped board will renew its usefulness, and strips screwed underneath the board may restore a broken one. The end of the board over which garments are positioned must be smooth and free from pins, tacks, or anything that might catch materials.

Irons should be waxed occasionally to make them glossy smooth. An ordinary candle end will do the job as successfully as will other lubricants. If starch gets onto the iron, use a knife held with blade flat against the iron and scrape and then rub with wax. Always rub the freshly waxed iron well on paper or a cloth before ironing clothes with it as the wax will make grease marks.

Thoughts and Actions. Few persons understand that there is a time of reaping of the seeds of thought and action which they sow. Youth is the lavish time for sowing, mature years are those for garnering. Many of these little seeds, however, block up our way with rank weeds that have thorns and dense growth, through which it is difficult to plough our way. Not all seeds are those of good or bad actions. Many are of thoughts, apprehensive thoughts that tangle our ideas, worrying thoughts that cause sleeplessness and frequently bring illness in their wake, jealous thoughts that rend our hearts and bring unhappiness to us and often to those we love. The reaping is as sure as the sowing.

"No one will know, if I do this or that," so youth and adults often reason. Yet in time the effect of what was sown is plainly to be seen in the lines of a face, in the look in the eye, in the bloated visage, or the loose mouth, or it may be in the reverse, and loveliness of character shines forth with its mellowing grace that illuminates a face even though it may have far from handsome features. We all know faces of these descriptions and we realize it is not chance that causes the repulsive or the charming look. Each is evidence of the seeds the person has sown.

IT'S NOT IN MANY CEREALS

Nothing anyone eats is more important than Vitamin B—the vitamin for keeping fit. Yet it isn't in many cereals when cereals are supposed to be our best source of this food element.

Many are nervous, poor in appetite, system out of order, because their daily diets lack enough of the precious Vitamin B for keeping fit.

Few things keep them back like a lack of this protective food element.

So give everyone Quaker Oats every morning. Because in addition to its generous supply of Vitamin B for keeping fit, it furnishes food-energy, muscle and body-building ingredients. For about 2¢ per dish.

Start serving it tomorrow for a 2-week test. Quaker Oats has a wholesome, nutlike, luscious appeal to the appetite. Flavors, surprisingly good. All grocers supply it.

New Twin Destroyers Are Launched

Scene in the navy yard at Charlestown, Mass., as twin destroyers, latest additions to the American navy, were launched. The Conyngham, at left, was named for Capt. Gustavus Conyngham, who served in the Continental navy during the Revolution. The Case, at right, was named for Admiral Augustus Ludlow Case, hero of the Mexican and Civil wars.

Quick, Complete

Pleasant ELIMINATION

Let's be frank. There's only one way for your body to rid itself of the waste materials that cause acidity, gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts—your intestines must function.

To make them move quickly, pleasantly, completely, without griping, thousands of physicians recommend Milnesia Waters. (Doctors recommend Milnesia waters as an efficient remedy for mouth acidity.)

These mint flavored candy-like waters are pure milk of magnesia. Each water is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly in accordance with the directions on the bottle or tin, then swallowed, they correct acidity, bad breath, flatulence, at their source and at the same time enable quick, complete, pleasant elimination.

SYNOPSIS

Following his father's bitter criticism of his idle life, and the withdrawal of financial assistance, Hal Ireland, only son of a wealthy banker, finds himself practically without funds but with the promise of a situation in San Francisco, which city he must reach, from New York, within a definite time limit. He takes passage with a cross-country auto party on a "share expense" basis. With five other members of the party, an attractive girl, Barry Trafford, middle-aged Giles Kerrigan, Sister Anastasia, a nun; and an individual whom he instinctively dislikes, Martin Crack, he starts his journey. Barry's reluctance annoys him. To Kerrigan he takes at once, but he is unable to shake off a feeling of uneasiness. He distrusts Crack, although finding his intimacy with Kerrigan pleasing, and he makes a little progress with Barry.

"Then I wasn't wrong. We can start all over again."
"All over," she said. Her shower stopped and Hal's came more strongly. Then she made a squeak of horror. "What now? Bed-jacket wet?"
"No, but I've got a chill and no towel. Gosh! What would Lubitsch do?"
"Keep the chill," said Hal, "you'll need it. I'll toss you a towel over the top."

He reached the harsh, gray towel Kerrigan had got for him and swung an end of it into her compartment. "Got it?"

"Oh, thanks," she said, "a lot." "You'll remember this and not be pompous with me tomorrow?"

"Yes. No. I mean I won't be whatever you said. I'm sorry I was."

"Don't be," said Hal.

"All right, I won't." Then, in a moment, her soft voice said, "I'm going now. Good night. Thanks for a lovely shower."

"Hey, my towel," said Hal.

"You want it back?" she said, mildly incredulous.

"Oh, goodness, yes."

"But—" she paused and Hal waited a moment.

"It's my towel, isn't it?" he said without sympathy.

The end of the towel flopped into sight. "It's wet," she said. "Good night."

"Good night, Barry," he said.

He stopped his shower and took the towel. It was damp, faintly fragrant as he brought it near. He hesitated: Why was it wrong to use it? The sparkling of his gray eyes went faintly sober; and, folding the towel, he stuffed it into the pocket of his slacker. Suddenly Barry's voice came casually over the top of the partition again. "What's your first name?"

"Oh, hello," he said as if she'd caught him at something. "Hal, Henry. Hal. Why? No, I didn't mean that."

"Didn't mean what?"

"The 'why.'"

"Night," she said. "Pleasant dreams."

"Same to you, uh—Garbo."

He heard her door close and latch. Slicking the loose water from his skin with his hands, the impulse to chuckle kept nudging comfortably at his stomach. And he shall meet again, I trust.

CHAPTER III

Wednesday

The morning light looked washed, the air carried the semblance of refreshment from the night, and the rich smell of the exhaust seemed hopeful as they started off, aiming for breakfast at some near town. Miller seemed to think nothing had changed since yesterday, for, after he had lashed the luggage under the tarpaulin behind, he climbed into the driver's place. "Not today," Hal said to him, "Better try your invention, in back." They hadn't gone a mile down the road before, Mrs. Pulsifer hurled the debris of her eye-opening orange at her raised window.

"Shouldn't do that," said Pulsifer, "Dangerous."

"Oh, dangerous puseycats!" she snapped at him.

Hal looked over at Kerrigan, whose eyes were smiling as he peeled a peach with a large knife. The knife, taught Hal's eye; the single, tapered, four-inch blade was set to a handle of natural stag-horn, also tapered, with a ring at the thick end.

"Nice knife," he said.

"French," said Kerrigan, regarding it. "Laborers use 'em to cut their bread at lunch and each other Saturday nights."

"Is that what you'll use to—when you round out your collection?" Kerrigan gave an innocent, generous smile. "Might," he said. He finished his neat peeling of the peach and held it over the wheel where Hal could see it. "Manage that?"

"Oh, thanks," said Hal, and took it. The car, with its ape, allseats, and unnatural load, was cranky, and Hal guessed it might be a good thing that the driver's rear-vision mirror didn't give him Barry's face to look at. Instead it showed Sister Anastasia's, tranquil and immaculate, below the oblong of the back window. And when Hal glanced up, out of an habitual alertness for motorcycle police, he saw the nun's head occasionally turned toward Barry, her lips moving, her expression one of comfort, of trust, of intimacy almost. He strained his ears for a hint of what they might be talking about, but their murmurs were unintelligible among the dry and labored songs of the car's antiquity.

Hal remembered yesterday's sense of portent, of the shadow of something impending—like a presence with them. It had been odd, almost-vivid, and he had been half waiting for it to come again. If it came, and he could see Sister Anastasia look like that—her serenely made deep, limpid, cool round the traces of an unforgetting sadness near her eyes—the feeling wouldn't make him uneasy again. And it might not come. Purged of his own confusion of spirit, with Miller's outrageousness on the road and his sleepy thievery disarmed, the atmosphere was healthier. There were possibilities to look to: Barry, with her first defenses relinquished; he and Kerrigan running their own expedition from Detroit after today and— He must get Kerrigan at lunch time and decide what was best to do about Miller in Detroit; turn him off loose, try to get him blacklisted with the agencies, if they bothered with blacklists, or let the police have a go at him. The man oughtn't to be at large, and yet it might.

"Say," came Crack's indolent, condescendence murmur close to Hal's ear: "thought any 'bout what you'll do to this bird Miller?"

Hal snatched a bite of breakfast and, to save time, went off to have the car sustained with water, gas, and oil while the others either joined or watched the Pulsifers celebrate the earnest ritual of eating. Barry's eyes were soberly, internally thoughtful again; and the transient civility that had stood in them for a moment when Hal met her look was no recognition of Hal's hands hung clear of his body, carefully, as if he had been handling sewage.

So this day too was started with something wrong, something almost stealthily in it—something besides the infirmities of the car and the heat that grew to a slow embrace of everything in the hazy, still landscape. To get to Detroit quickly, to be gulf of Miller and the car—that was the focus for urgency. Miller might, under his unwashed stupor, possess some faculty for making Hal discontented with his own skin. At least there was no point in trying to tell what made it fill this man was dropped.

The engine was little by little making up its mind to quit, discouraged by the brevity of easier gradients and cowed by a team of three big buses that charged down—a fierce happiness in their flapping tarpaulins—from the Allegheny summit.

"This is bad enough," said Kerrigan. "But think of hopping the Atlantic. Listening for the horses to cool off every second for thirty hours would harden all my arteries, give me a million dollars' worth of persecution complex." And over his shoulder he asked Miller, "What's the matter with this studio-number of yours, Robin Hood?"

"Little warm," said Miller, like a doped horse-trader. "How far do you reckon it to Detroit?"

There was a sort of lazy triumph in Crack's saying, as if he had a map and a speedometer in his lap: "Between three and three fifty. 'ACH make it a long trip for today."

"We're going to do it," said Hal, "we have to trade this barge for bicycles."

After a long, laborious time, the car churned out a last flat sneeze, and a solid sign by the road proclaimed a summit, with statistics to prove it. There was no higher land visible ahead. And a can and half of water sent the car off to the less rigorous dips and climbs of the Mississippi Divide like an old dog remembering the smell of spring.

It rained as they dipped down the last rolling land of Pennsylvania to the straight roads of Ohio. For two miles a short passenger train hurried darkly along the straight track that converged upon the straight road, Kerrigan musing on it, Hal glancing at him and at it with a pleasant sense of intimacy deepening between them. Then the locomotive cried exasperation at the crossing.

"Train comin'," Pulsifer murmured.

Miller chuckled. "I seen that quite a ways back," he said.

And for another two miles it raced away on its divergent course, white bursts from the whistle followed by its faint screams for crossings—hurrying urgently under its blackened breath as if it had the whole country to cross before night.

Then they came to Akron, a spread of buildings that grew irregularly higher toward a nubbin of the tallest, in the modern style. Mrs. Pulsifer knew it was Akron by the smell of rubber.

The city had lunch places, and that was important. It was near three o'clock.

Miller frankly distrusted the "Tea Shoppe" that had caught Mrs. Pulsifer's bright and hungry eye, and he wouldn't go in. But the lady made it hard for the others—impossible for John—not to follow her. The dog had dragged Barry down the street on a good scent, and Hal and Kerrigan let the others fill one table, avoiding the solicitation of Crack's lazily hopeful look.

"You and the princess aren't still walking round each other stiff-legged, are you?" said Kerrigan.

"Wouldn't be sure," said Hal, watching the friendly, brown eyes quizzically. "Why?"

"Oh, I haven't got any Kreuger blood in me," said Kerrigan quickly. "I just wondered if we could begin having a happy time—the three of us—or whether I had to be a referee."

"I think she's a grand girl," said Hal, calmly. "You'll forgive my asking what Kreuger blood's got to do with it."

"Kreuger made matches once along with a Mr. Toll," said Kerrigan.

Hal laughed and started to say something, but then Barry came in to them. Her unstudied smile of pleasure at having been waited-for barely included Hal in its beginning, and the end of it, with a leisured drooping of the eyelids, was all for Kerrigan. And that plucked Hal smartly, even while he pretended to chuckle to himself.

I knew a weakness in you, beautiful, and I'm still going to use it.

But he found himself watching her carefully, alertly, as if he might miss something pleasant.

"First," said Kerrigan, when they'd sat down, "we ought to agree to be sociable."

Barry glanced up from her menu in innocent inquiry. "I thought we were," she said. "aren't we?"

"All right, we are," said Kerrigan. "You admit it. Then let us bare our hearts to each other, even as—"

"Oh, let's order something before that," Barry said. "The body, you know."

"Yes," said Kerrigan, on a sigh, "I know the body, to my sorrow. What is yours having?"

Hal suspected Barry of putting Kerrigan off in whatever he had been about to suggest; but when the waitress shuffled away, she said to Kerrigan: "Is it painless—your heart idea?"

"To us who are pure there—yes," Kerrigan said. "Here's what I thought—just for an awfully good romp. Each of us gives a short biography of him, or her, or self, you see—like the suburban obtusities in the city papers—"

"Jolly," said Hal.

GOLDIE'S GOLD

IT IS hardly fair to a man, when he guides a party clear across the mountains from California to Kansas; to expect him to agree with everything a smart-aleck scout has to say. So thought Goldie, the weather-beaten Missourian who had brought his expedition safely back from the gold fields of the Far West. He and the scout could not agree on various subjects; they were always on the verge of quarrelling, and at last the long-threatened storm broke.

What a quarrel it was! The scout had gone off, Gullen. Goldie remained with the party, triumphant but slightly apprehensive. No telling what that scout might be up to!

Goldie was right. The scout had gone ahead and met up with some Pawnees, and he was arranging with them to capture the party and get the gold they were bringing with them.

Near where Wichita, Kan., now stands, the Pawnees came into view. Goldie hastily rounded up his charges and harangued them. "They must fight, said he, but he reckoned that the Indians were after gold as much as anything else, and they'd better let him have all there was, so he could get away and bury it in a safe place. This was speedily done.

In the excitement of the Pawnee attack, no one on either side noticed the Missourian gliding out of sight. He paused long enough to see that the Indians were besting the travelers; before long, he surprised rightly, none would be left alive. So he had better go on—and keep going.

The scout, as soon as his Indian allies had killed everyone in the train, began to look for the gold. He could not find it; furthermore, he could not find Goldie among the slain. His anger rose again, and he gathered the Pawnees together to follow the trail.

Goldie, in the meantime, had hurried on. He came to Artillery mountain in Oklahoma, and here he buried the gold near a strangely twisted tree, and nestled on. Somewhere on the way the pursuing Pawnees lost the trail, and Goldie reached home in safety.

Not long afterward, the Missourian became very ill. Feeling sure that he would not live to go back for the buried treasure, he confided the secret to his wife, and died.

Mrs. Goldie, not wanting to pit her woman's strength against heaven only know what perils, preferred to wait for a while before she went treasure hunting. Their son was six years old; she kept her own counsel until 1882, when the lad had become a man. Then she felt that they might try to recover the wealth which her husband had buried so long ago!

They found the mountain, and they found an Indian who owned the ground and who remembered the location of the twisted tree. But, although they searched long and earnestly, they never found the gold.

BEESWAX AND DOUBLOONS

THREE galleons laden with doubloons, bars of gold, and other treasures, setting sail to the south! What a sight they made, as they left port in Panama, heading for the Horn!

But their majestic journey was suddenly cut short. Instead of continuing on their way, rounding the horn and setting sail for Spain, the three galleons suddenly veered about and began an undignified flight northward.

The reason was not hard to discover: Sir Francis Drake and his British privateers were after the ships of Spain, all sail set to catch up with and capture those three ship-loads of gold. No wonder the galleons fled!

They kept ahead of their pursuers, but could not lose them. Nothing could be done but continue north, far out of the course they had hoped to pursue. On and on they sailed, always dogged by those tenacious Britishers, until at last they ran into a tempest, and in the face of this new danger they forgot their pursuing foes.

The tempest was too much for Drake's ships. They lost heart; gold is a fine thing, but one must live to enjoy it. So they turned back, cheated by wind and wave of the prize they had been hunting. And though they kept a sharp lookout for the return of the Spanish galleons, they never saw them again—nor did anyone else. The three ships full of gold disappeared forever in that mighty tempest.

In 1870 a cave was discovered in Tillamook county, Oregon, which was thought to be the work of some shipwrecked men. The cave had been enlarged with all sorts of tunnels and shafts leading to chambers hidden away from the light. On the walls were inscriptions, but no one could read them after long years under the eraser of time.

And the Indians who prowled along the sandy bars nearby, sometimes find great pieces of beewax, which seem to have come from nowhere. But beewax was a part of the cargo of those three galleons.

So it is thought that somewhere nearby the great ships foundered, and that either under the sea or in some undiscovered chamber of the cave lies that precious cargo of Spanish doubloons and bars of gold.

Scraps of Humor

SNAP! LIKE THAT!

A lady residing in a suburb became interested in a gang of workmen who were making some street repairs in front of her house. She halted to watch the operations.

"Which one is the foreman?" she asked.

"I am," stated a broad-shouldered man with a proud smile.

"Really, are you?" she asked.

"Am I?" he asked. "I'll prove it to ye, ma'am." He glanced about singly out the nearest workman.

"Dugan," he barked, "yo're fired!"

Smart Play Frock That's Easy to Sew

PATTERN 2382

Anne Adams

Pleated for play, in a very new way, this child's frock gives her plenty of room for rope-skipping. Her mother will find this smart frock easy to cut and put together, and a very economical pattern, since bloomers are included with the dress. You can make these up in the same material, or just plain white to wear with other frocks, and no child can have too many pairs. The buttoned closing of the frock takes a new slant, and don't worry about those four pleats! They're as easy a decoration as you've ever made. Colorful novelty cotton for that crisp look, and a choice of short or long sleeves.

Pattern 2382 is available in sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8. Size 6 takes 2 1/2 yards 36 inch fabric and 1/2 yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. SIX SUITS TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to the Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 243 West Seventeenth St., New York City.

EDITORIAL COLUMN

Lincoln News

Last Friday night the Young People's Sunday School class had a party at the home of Mrs. Theophile Laramie. Not a dull moment existed for everyone knew a joke or prank that he wanted to play on someone else. We had perfect imitations of a dog given by Dick Parrish and Red Ramey. Then there were imitations of the little bantam rooster, a monkey and a donkey. Everyone enjoyed the refreshments served later in the evening. As Mrs. Laramie is leaving soon, everyone surprised her with a handkerchief. I know everyone had a good time and we regret to see Mrs. Laramie leave us, but we hope she will be back soon. Those present at the party were: Mr. and Mrs. Theophile Laramie, Edith, Fronie, Alfred and Ada Marie Hulbert, Ralph and Lloyd Mondell, Red and Mamildia Ramey, Marie Giles, Joanna Penfield, Ruby Lee and Nellie May Bryant and Richard Parrish. We hope to have more parties as soon as Mrs. Laramie returns.

Mrs. Laramie is leaving next week for California to spend a few months. She and Mr. Laramie will drive through in the car and Mr. Laramie will return on the train. He will enter the Fort Stanton hospital and take a rest cure while Mrs. Laramie is gone. We hope that they both have a pleasant trip to California and that they will be back soon.

Ralph and Lloyd Mondell, who have been visiting the Lloyd Hulbert family, left Tuesday morning. We hope they have a pleasant trip and we want them to come again. We also hope they enjoyed their visit here.

Hondo Valley

P. T. A. held its regular monthly meeting last Thursday evening in the gymnasium of the Hondo High School. Many members and visitors were present. The president being absent, the meeting was presided over by Mrs. Earl Morris, vice-president. Business matters were discussed and reports given by the various committee chairmen. After the business meeting a health program was presented with Mrs. Edith Sloan, chairman, in charge. A talk on hygiene was given by Dr. E. L. Woods and the county nurse, Miss Ruth Ryden, with the help of the grade pupils gave an interesting discussion on sanitation. At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served.

THE NEW FORD V-8 FOR 1936

Why do we say The New Ford V-8 for 1936?

What is new about it?

Of course, the newest engine in the low-price car field is still the V-8 engine. Since Ford made it available to all car users (keeping it as economical as cars with fewer cylinders) the Ford V-8 has been the newest engine on the market, and remains the newest for 1936.

You may buy a car on minor "talking points"—some specially advertised feature "with the car thrown in"—but after all, it is the engine you buy when you buy a car. Hence we put the engine first.

Other new points about the car make a long list.

Its lines are much more beautiful. The hood is longer and sweeps forward over the distinctive new radiator grille, giving the car a length and grace that are instantly impressive. The fenders are larger, with a wide flare. Horns are concealed behind circular grilles beneath the headlamps. New steel wheels.

Ford upholstery—always of sterling quality and excellent taste—is rich and enduring. The appointments of the car have a new touch of refinement. There is no question about the increased beauty of the Ford V-8 for 1936.

In more practical matters, many improvements have been made—

Steering is made easier by a new steering gear ratio. The cooling system circulates 5 1/2 gallons of water through a new, larger radiator. Natural thermosiphon action is assisted by two centrifugal water pumps. New style hood louvers permit a rapid air-flow around the engine.

Easier, quieter shifting of Ford gears—The gear shift lever now travels a shorter distance.

The two qualities you want in brakes—Brakes that stop the car with ease and certainty. Ford Super-Safety Brakes—of the long-tested, fool-proof, mechanical design.

Safety—as always—in the electrically welded genuine steel body. Safety Glass all around at no extra cost. Hundreds have written grateful letters because this glass has protected the safety of their families.

A car you can drive without strain all day, if you like, in city or country. Steady, holds the road, responds to the driver's touch like a well-trained horse. You don't have to "push" or "fight" the Ford V-8—driver and car easily get on terms of good understanding with each other.

An engine has much to do with the roominess of a car. Very much indeed. A long engine uses up car space. The compact V-8 engine permits much of the ordinary engine space to be used by passengers.

It really is a great car in every way, this 1936 Ford V-8—the finest, safest, most dependable Ford car ever built. Now on display by Ford dealers.

Important Notice to Livestock Owners

Public notice is hereby given that at a recent meeting of the New Mexico Cattle Sanitary Board it was decided that a compliance period of time until Jan 1, 1936, would be given to livestock owners of this State having stock already branded with unrecorded brands, for them to comply with the state law by getting a recorded brand, but this year's increase and all other livestock branded from now on MUST be branded with a recorded brand.

Attention is called to the state law on this subject, which will be strictly enforced, and which provided, in part, as follows:

Sec. 117—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to use any brand for branding any horses, cattle, mules or asses, unless said brand shall have been duly recorded in the office of the Cattle Sanitary Board of New Mexico and the person, firm or corporation using such brands holds a certificate from the said Cattle Sanitary Board certifying to the fact of such record. (S. 131, N. M. S. Ann., '15).

Sec. 121—Any person, firm or corporation violating the provisions of Section 131, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, in any of the courts of this State, having jurisdiction of such cause, shall be fined in a sum of not more than five hundred dollars ($500.00) or imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year:

Provided, No such sentence shall be imposed or conviction had in case the owner shall have, within thirty (30) days from the seizure of such animals, caused such brands to be recorded, or when such person shall prove that such brands have been used by him for more than one year, and in such case he shall be required to record his brand immediately. (S. 135, N. M. S. Ann., '15).

Latest Millinery Style Trends

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

hoods are here to broadcast it to style-seeking enthusiasts who are looking for something "different." In recording latest millinery style trends special highlights flash across the picture, such as the new braided effects done either in soutache or rattail. Gold cord and tassels, drum-major pompons bespeak the military influence which is so widely exploited.

THERE'S no such word as "can't" when it comes to finding a becoming hat. Yes, indeed you can. Somewhere in the vast showing of millinery fashions your hat is waiting for you, for there is simply no limit to variety of types that appear on the program of modish headgear this season.

Going to wear feathers on our hats? Three out of the half dozen models here pictured answer in the affirmative. A parrot with long tail feathers in brilliant red, yellow, blue and green graces the side of a black felt sports hat as centered in the picture. Feathers are pressed into the brim and crown.

WOOL-SLEEVED FUR

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Here's a smart new idea; one of those touches that tolls at a glance that 'tis a high fashion. We are referring to the wool sleeves set into a swaggy fur coat, as you will note if you look close.

Colophane Flowers A cluster of colophane flowers which look as though they were made of glass is tucked into the collar of an evening wrap.

Bag and Gloves An outstanding accessory rule this fall is for gloves and bag to match in color.

FURS ON STYLE PROGRAM

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

According to early season predictions furs will be the outstanding fashion note of the season, whether it's just an ascot or a full-length mink. The American woman is beginning to realize that furs are no longer luxuries, but are absolutely necessary to her wardrobe.

According to latest reports, mink, caracul and Persian lamb will be the most popular dress furs this season with Hudson seal, kidakin, leopard and leopard cat leading in the sports furs.

Paris couturiers are outdoing themselves in a most beautiful working of furs. Notably in the early showings in a white broadtail evening wrap, also a silver fox cape employing 12 skins of feather weight. Velvet trimmed with chinchilla is another intriguing treatment exploited.

With Paris style leaders featuring fur in every conceivable manner America has accepted the challenge with the result that during national fur week not for the near future furs will be dramatized in a way that will outclass all previous showings.

Revival of "Dog Collar"

Key-shaped bar pins and a revival in "dog collars" of the type worn by dowagers at the turn of the century head the list of new fall ideas in costume jewelry.

The key pins are shown in gold or silver lined metals of several styles. The 1933 version of the "dog collar" has a youthful air, with a definite appeal to the college girl without a sign of a double chin or wrinkled throat.

One style was of rhinestone studded links. Another was of "tree" strands of pearls. The black velvet band in narrow or wide widths is back. One: thick velvet band had a large rhinestone ornament in front. A 1/2-inch band had a tiny rhinestone ornament in front and one in either side.

Flaring Collar

A charming dinner dress of black transparent velvet has wide flaring collar and cuffs of novelty white velvet. Fullness in the sleeves comes from shirring at the shoulders, and with shirring at the neck neckline.

Lesson for October 27

BELSHAZZAR'S FEAST (Temperance Lesson.)

LESSON TEXT—Daniel 5:1-31. GOLDEN TEXT—Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging; and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise. Proverbs 20:1.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Daniel Solves a Riddle. JUNIOR TOPIC—At the Feast of Belshazzar. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Drink Leads To. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Facts About Alcohol.

- 1. Belshazzar's Impious Feast (vv. 1-4). 1. Those in attendance (vv. 1, 2). Those present were Belshazzar, his wife and concubines, and one thousand of his lords. 2. Their behavior (vv. 3, 4). a. They drank wine and engaged in drunken revelry. b. They committed sacrilege. They drank wine from the sacred vessels taken out of the temple at Jerusalem. c. They worshiped idols.

- 11. The Handwriting on the Wall (vv. 5-10). 1. The time of (v. 5). It occurred "in the same hour" in which they were engaged in their drunken debauchery. 2. The effect upon the king (v. 6). "The joints of his loins were loosed, and his knees smote one against another."

- 3. The king's behavior (vv. 7-10). a. He called for the astrologers and soothsayers, offering them rewards of gold and of position (vv. 7-9). b. Daniel brought in at the suggestion of the queen (vv. 10-16). The queen was perhaps the wife of Nebuchadnezzar who remembered Daniel's service in interpreting the dream of her husband.

- 111. Daniel Interprets the Writing (vv. 17-28). 1. Daniel's address to the king (vv. 17-24). a. He brushes aside his promised gifts (v. 17). He would not have his speech limited by the king's gift. b. He reviewed before Belshazzar the history of Nebuchadnezzar (vv. 18-24). He showed clearly that Belshazzar should have profited by the experiences of his father. 2. The interpretation of the writing (vv. 25-28). a. "Mene" means "numbered" (v. 25). "God hath numbered thy kingdom and finished it." b. "Tekel" means "weighed" (v. 27). "Thou art weighed in the balances and art found wanting." c. "Peres" means "divided" (v. 28). "Thy kingdom is divided, and given to the Medes and Persians."

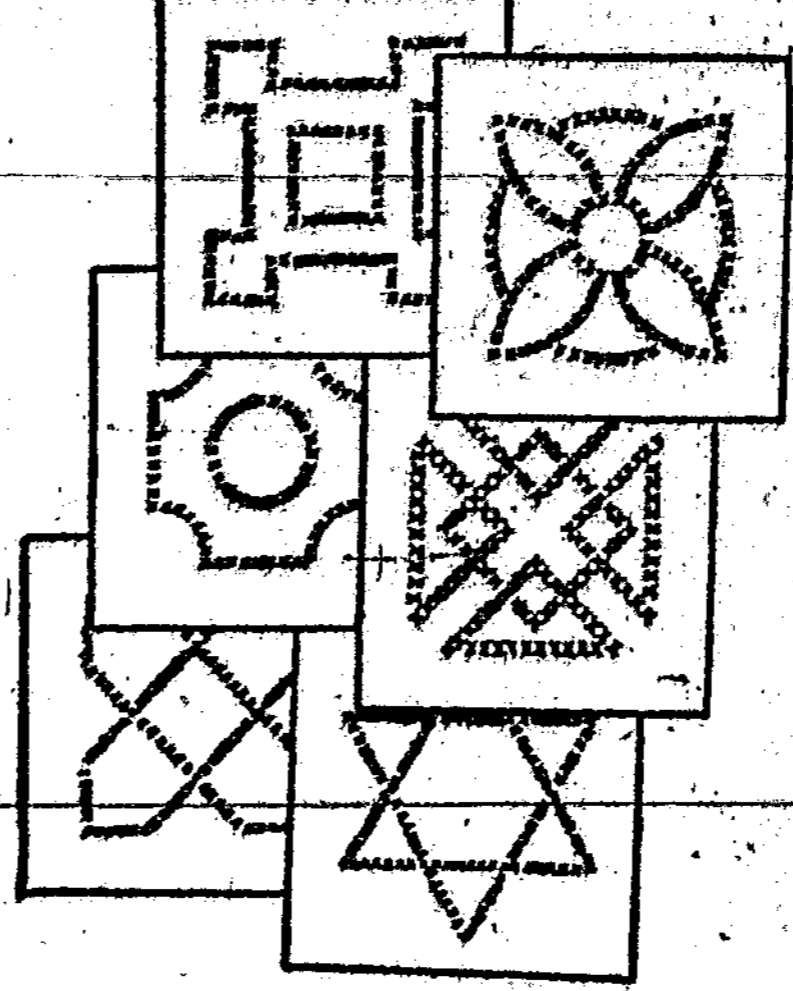

IV. The Judgment Executed (vv. 29-31). So rapidly did the divine judgment fall that Belshazzar was slain and Darius the Median took the kingdom that same night. The Chaldean dynasty ended with Belshazzar. We may, therefore, interpret this whole scene as pointing to the conditions at the close of the time of the Gentiles, and as adumbrating their prevailing conditions. Let us note:

- 1. The stupidity of men. Belshazzar, like people today, did not learn by example. Nebuchadnezzar's fate should have deterred Belshazzar. 2. The magnificent splendor. This great feast was characterized by pomp, display and parade. How characteristic of our own age! 3. Luxury. The famous hanging gardens of Babylon were a noteworthy example. Signs of luxury abound today on every hand. 4. The licentiousness of the king with his many wives and concubines. Licentiousness is likewise notoriously prevalent today. 5. Blasphemous sacrilege. The sacrilege of this day may be in excess of that of Belshazzar's day and expresses itself in: a. A profession of religion for pecuniary gain, social and political preferment. b. The use of the pulpit of the Christian ministry for notoriety and even for the propagation of false doctrine. c. Unting with the church and attendance at the Lord's table so as to cover up secret sins. d. The use of the Word of God to give point to a joke. e. Denying that the Bible is God's Word, making it a book of errors, myths, and legends. f. Sneering at the virgin birth, repudiating Christ's deity and setting aside his vicarious atonement. g. Drunken carousals. The handwriting is on the wall. His judgments shall eventually fall. Conditions in the world indicate that the time is drawing near. Are you ready?

Radios Gain in Sweden Celebrating its tenth anniversary of broadcasting service, the government-owned radio system of Sweden is pointing with pride to the fact that there are about 600,000 licensed radios in the country as against only 5,000 eight years ago. Trade Commissioner Basil D. Dahl reports to the Department of Commerce from Stockholm. The market for radios in Sweden is estimated at 50,000 to 60,000 a year, most of them being of domestic origin due to patent restrictions that limit imports. Swedish set owners pay an annual license fee of 10 crowns (about $1.75) to their government for the listening privilege.

Uncle Sam's Man Hunters Generally Get Their Men

In the federal case books there are no old mysteries; every federal crime is sooner or later cleared up. It is not fair to contrast their record with that of the average city police department, since the government men are not fretted by the great mass of petty crimes and misdemeanor which take up the time of the metropolitan detectives. Even the major crimes of violence are far less numerous against national laws than against state laws. (For instance, murder in itself is not a federal offense.) Federal penalties, moreover, are severe, and federal judges stern and aloof. Only the most daring and resourceful criminals of the underworld care to break a lance with Uncle Sam's man hunters.

But conceding that the federal detectives have fewer crime mysteries to solve and have unlimited resources behind them, still, the nation may well glory in their record. The federals are actually so few in number. The government's six principal detective offices—the ones that handle all the major crime cases—number only about three thousand operatives in all. Only three thousand men to curb some of the most violent impulses of a mixed population of one hundred and twenty-two million!—Forrest Wilson in Cosmopolitan.

The proper treatment for a bilious child

THREE STEPS TO RELIEVING CONSTIPATION

A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time, until bowels need no help at all.

ANY mother knows the reason when her child stops playing, eats little, is hard to manage, Constipation. But what a pity so few know the sensible way to set things right!

The ordinary laxatives, of even ordinary strength, destroy all hopes of restoring regularity.

A liquid laxative is the answer, mothers. The answer to all your worries over constipation. A liquid can be measured. The dose can be exactly suited to any age or need. Just reduce the dose each time, until the bowels are moving of their own accord and need no help.

This treatment will succeed with any child and with any adult. Doctors use a liquid laxative. Hospitals use the liquid form. If it is best for their use, it is best for home use. The liquid laxative they generally use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Any druggist has it.

WASHINGTON DIGEST

National Topics Interpreted
BY WILLIAM BRUCKART
NATIONAL PRESS BLDG.
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—The President and his two chief relief advisers, Harry L. Hopkins and Secretary Ickes, have just completed a cross-country tour and are now in possession of information on which to base the future course for management of the relief job this winter. What their plans are, beyond the use of the funds appropriated last winter, remain confidential but without doubt the country can expect to see some very definite changes in the practices that have been followed.

The New Deal was swept into the governmental control, upon the twin arches of recovery and relief. The recovery arch seems to be holding up. The relief arch, I believe, can be said to be teetering. At least that is the conclusion that must be drawn on a set of circumstances in which billions have been spent to tide destitute persons over their distress only to leave millions of them still looking for government handouts.

It is quite apparent that Mr. Roosevelt took his two relief advisers on his Western trip chiefly for the purpose, like the well-known bear, of going over the mountain to see what he could see. The word that has come back to Washington is that he saw some things that were not altogether encouraging. He found that his previous relief methods were not in high favor in the Middle West and on the Pacific coast. Hence there are some changes in prospect.

New Deal opposition has characterized the President's vacation trip westward as being, in part, politics. Whether this be a fact or not, anyone can recall that there is an election in November, 1935, and that shrewd politicians begin many months in advance to all the campaign machinery and see that the gears mesh. It is not at all unlikely, then, that while Mr. Roosevelt was sincerely examining the relief situation and attempting to ascertain for himself what should be done to make the going easier for those in distress, he probably had in the back of his mind thoughts of how those same people would react when they go to the polls a year hence and find his name as the Democratic Presidential nominee.

Some months ago Mr. Roosevelt announced with emphasis that the job of taking care of the destitute must be turned back to the states and private charity. It was, he said, no longer a federal proposition. A good many observers here felt at the time he made that announcement that he was courting trouble. Those who took that view have found their conclusions amply supported by the facts since developed. The President, indeed, has courted trouble and it is a species of trouble that is going to remain with him throughout a long, hard winter just ahead. Probably he will be able to find a way out if, indeed, a way out was not discovered while he and Messrs. Hopkins and Ickes were on their transcontinental tour. To the average person, however, the solution is not so apparent.

Courting Trouble

That brings us to a phase of federal administration, a new circumstance and problem, confronting the nation. I describe it as a new problem which in fact it is when considered in the light of developments since the New Deal took control.

It seems to me that it ought to be said the Roosevelt administration failed to profit by a knowledge of what has happened heretofore in the use of the dole. Just across the Atlantic has been available a splendid demonstration of what the dole can and will do to a population. The British government listened to the appeals of the professional relievers and humanitarians and adopted a dole. It has taken that nation four years to whittle away even a part of the situation it built up for itself.

Here is the crux of the problem: At any time a governmental agency begins to feed people, to clothe them and to provide them with the other necessities of life free, by that act it inculcates in those people—not all of them of course—a feeling that the world, and particularly their government owes them a living. A certain percentage of them immediately become convinced that while the dole may be smaller than their weekly pay check earned in industry, it comes without work. In fact, it breeds laziness.

So, in this country now we have a certain percentage of the population who are wholly unwilling to work because they have found that the government will take care of them in times of stress. In consequence, this segment of the population is making no effort to obtain jobs and is quite vocal in its lambasting of a government that will not feed its people.

In addition, information that I get from industrial leaders, men who know what labor problems are, tell me that a percentage of the workers whom they have taken back on the jobs, taken them off of relief rolls, are unwilling to do their jobs efficiently; they seek to fill in their time and just get by, and they resent any admonitions—from foremen—or bosses that a certain amount of work is required of them if they are to remain on the pay roll. Some instances have been reported even that workers of this type have replied to their employer's requests for honest labor: "We don't care. We can go back on relief."

It is a tragedy. Unfortunately, it is going to be with us for some years to come and when I make that statement I do not mean in any way to withhold praise from those men and women who, when they get a job, try to do an honest day's work for a day's wage. Obviously, most of the American people are of this latter type. But I believe it cannot be refuted that the American government's experiment with the dole has created several millions of new panhandlers.

President Roosevelt has introduced an innovation into federal administration by making public what amounts to a preliminary summation of federal financial requirements. He ordered it compiled and released for publication at this early date, he said, in order that the country may know what confronts it in the way of expenditures for the fiscal year beginning last July 1, and ending next June 30.

A careful analysis of the summation and the revision of estimates of expenditures for the current fiscal year rather indicates that it will be the most expensive in New Deal history. This is true despite Mr. Roosevelt's declaration that a sharp up-swing in business activity will result in a marked curtailment in relief expenditures. The budget statement by the President was regarded in the national Capital as rather illusory. In fact, some of Mr. Roosevelt's own subordinates entertained a fear that the thing would be regarded as having a political purpose. They felt that there was no call for the action and that it might logically result in providing New Deal opposition with new ammunition which it can use in criticizing waste and maladministration particularly with respect to the relief programs.

The summation shows that the actual deficit for the current year to date is more than half again as large as was the deficit on the corresponding day last year, despite the business recovery about which Mr. Roosevelt lately has talked several times.

It showed further that even under the revised estimates submitted by the President, expenditures for the current year will be $400,000,000 more than last year and $600,000,000 more than in the first year of the New Deal. The President in his statement asserted that the deficit next June 30, will be $300,000,000 less than the last fiscal year, but if one digs into the mass of figures it can be seen that this $300,000,000 has been simply transferred to revised budget figures for the works-relief program.

On this basis then, some observers persistently inquire where the substantial and sustained economy in government has been effected either by the administration or by the business improvement. It is difficult to answer. It is more difficult, in the opinion of Chairman Henry P. Fletcher of the Republican national committee, because of the frequent references which Mr. Roosevelt made during his 1932 campaign to a program of enforced economy in government.

Ever since the President began writing the New Deal budgets, capital observers have been awaiting the day when, under the pressure of political necessity or a sincere determination on his part to carry out his political promises, he would start squeezing the excess out of those budgets. I think it is fair to say that there has been an immense amount of water in the government budgets under the New Deal. Equally, I think it is fair to say that there has been a tremendous amount of waste. Thus, the time apparently has arrived when the President must start to trim down these costs if the national debt is not to get clear out of bounds. As a politician of the keenest type, Mr. Roosevelt recognizes better, perhaps, than anyone else that the American people do not like to see debts piled up, debts either private or public. Consequently, it is not an unsafe forecast to make that Mr. Roosevelt will be turning soon to curtailment of expenditures.

It has been interesting to compare the budgets under the Hoover administration with those by Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Hoover always was optimistic about his budgets. In fact, they were always smaller than an honest estimate of requirements called for. Mr. Roosevelt has been as flagrantly pessimistic about his budgets as Mr. Hoover was optimistic. The result, of course, has been that the Roosevelt budgets were extraordinarily large and somewhat unjustified.

RUST RESISTANT WHEATS NEEDED

Epidemic of 1935 Proves Need for Careful Breeding of Grains.

The importance of careful breeding for rust resistant wheats—a definite research job carried on cooperatively many years by the United States Department of Agriculture and experiment stations of the wheat growing states—is abundantly demonstrated this year, the worst rust year since 1916. The semi-resistant varieties now being grown reduced total rust losses, and other varieties, still in the experimental stage, stood up well under rust attacks. Greater accomplishments along these lines are foreseen as these newer varieties become available for distribution and as new rust-resistant forms adapted to special conditions are produced in the future.

Under conditions ideal for the development of rust—many days of south wind to carry spores from infected southern grain to northern wheat fields, high temperatures, plenty of moisture, high humidity, and dense stands of wheat from two to three weeks late—"resistant" varieties developed by federal and state men stood up amazingly well. Tests by department pathologists in Minnesota and the Dakotas during the time of worst infection showed the "fall" of spores from Kansas and Nebraska to be about 1,000 per square foot per day.

One of the new wheats is Thatcher, highly resistant to stem rust and yielding grain of excellent quality. Thatcher, developed in cooperative experiments in Minnesota, is a selection from a Marquis-Kaibara cross combined with a Marquis-Tumillo cross. It was recently distributed to farmers after careful testing at federal and state stations.

Another is Ceres, developed at the North Dakota station and a popular wheat in the Dakotas and Minnesota. Ceres is semi-resistant and on the average rusts less severely than Marquis, a standard northern hard red spring wheat. Even with heavy rusting this year, the large acreage of Ceres undoubtedly kept losses from becoming higher. But the fact that it did rust much more than normal shows the need for continued research. Ceres is from a Kota-Marquis cross. Kota was developed by the Department of Agriculture and the North Dakota station.

Hope is a highly rust-resistant wheat developed in South Dakota by crossing rust resistant, emmer with Marquis wheat. This once was considered almost impossible, because of the sterility usually resulting from an emmer-wheat cross. Hope is not widely grown because it is not high yielding, is not resistant to heat and drought, and is unsatisfactory from the standpoint of its milling and baking qualities. It is invaluable for breeding purposes, however, and represents a distinct step forward.

Several new and unnamed hybrids obtained by crossing Hope and Marquis, Ceres, and other spring wheats, seem to combine the rust resistance of the former with the yield and quality of the latter. They have stood up against the severe conditions of the present season in a remarkable way. They are not, however, ready for distribution.

Plant breeders have learned new lessons from the 1935 rust epidemic. One is that more emphasis should be placed on breeding winter wheats resistant to stem rust for growing in the Southwest. Susceptible varieties grown in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, and Nebraska act, under favorable conditions, as sources of supply for the easy and rapid spread of rust spores into the northern states.

Eczema in Big, Watery Bumps

Relieved After Using Cuticura

"My eczema began with an itching on my hands, arms and feet, and when I scratched, big, watery bumps came. They burned and itched so that I scratched and irritated the affected parts. My hands and arms were disfigured and it worried me so I could not sleep.

"I had this eczema for five years before I started to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment the eczema was relieved." (Signed) Miss Geneva E. Reid, 850 Central Ave., Hamilton, Ohio, Feb. 21, 1935.

stays oiled

Oil wouldn't be oil if it weren't slippery. Ordinarily it slips off the job as soon as you stop. After you park half a night—or even half a morning—where's your lubrication? Down in the crankcase. And before it gets back up in the motor, these colder days, your engine wears fully twice as fast as any other time.

This winter skip all that double-quick destruction. Change to Conoco Germ Processed Oil, known to bond itself direct to every engine part. It forms what millions know as "the Hidden Quart that never drains away." For Germ Processed Oil actually becomes a part of all surfaces that used to scrape, drag, rub and clatter.

When it comes to something extra-difficult, like lubricating the new copper-lead, high-lead, and cadmium-alloy bearings, Conoco Germ Processed Oil more than ever surpasses plain mineral oils. Merciless road tests have proved this again and again.

Only an oil that can beat the starter with advance lubrication, like patented Germ Processed Oil, will save you the engine wear, battery juice, and other winter grief that you'll save by seeing your Conoco man today. Continental Oil Company, Established 1875.

Boxing at the Lyric

The boxing at the Lyric Theatre last night drew a good-sized attendance. The program began with a free-for-all between five local boys, Jack Greer, Jack Claunch, Blonde Evans, Baby Walker and Lorenzo Mirabal. This was exciting as one by one dropped out, leaving Jack Greer and Baby Walker to make the finish on a draw.

Following that lively s.r.a.p. came three gluggy scraps by boys from the CCC Camp, Phil Arrington, Jess Elkin, Alvin Wright, Alton Whitner, Frank Ray and Wilbur Williams. The boys put up short snappy scraps.

Two bouts were fought between local boys, Young McKinley, Frank Vigil, "Balloon" Apodaca, Carrizozo and Yacut Joe of Tularosa. All bouts ended in draws, with the decisions from the referee. The band played on the streets and in the theatre during the bouts.

The referee was Lowell Burton, time-keeper, Carol Hines, ticket-taker, T. J. Stokes and the announcer was A. L. Burke. That program was a beginning of more sport along this line. A plan is being made for organizing an athletic club and in due time more sport of that nature may be expected.

A. S. Bradley and son Stewart were here from Wisconsin over the week-end as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gallacher. The boys served together overseas in the world war.

P. T. A. Carnival
Friday evening, Oct. 11, a carnival was given in the gymnasium of the Hondo Hi School, sponsored by the Hondo Valley P. T. A. The room was gayly decorated with Halloween symbols which added much to the festive occasion. All the features of a real carnival were in evidence such as doll racks, fish pond, spook house, beano, roulette wheel and various contests. There were also plenty of cats and the kiddies greatly enjoyed all the noise-makers. A jitney dance was given in connection with the carnival, the music being donated by a group of high school boys. A large number attended the carnival and all seemed to have an enjoyable evening.

Sudden Death of Mystery Man

Last Sunday morning two cowboys on the Block ranch about 60 miles east of here, found the dead body of a man who had been attending to a flock of sheep belonging to the William Johnson Sheep Company of Roswell. Returning to the ranch, Mr. Taylor, foreman, phoned Sheriff McCamant of the case and in the afternoon, he summoned Justice Chavez, who acted as coroner, and A. L. Burke, Associated Press Agent, proceeded to the place and after looking over the scene, an inquest was held with the following jurymen: Lloyd Taylor, A. L. Burke, Roy Rody, A. S. McCamant, Grady Doty and Grady Eldridge, rendering a verdict that heart-failure was the cause of death.

Word was sent in to the Johnson Company and the remains were conveyed to Roswell where burial took place Monday morning. The man had been employed with the above named company about 6 weeks. Means of identification were some cancelled checks on the First National Bank of Sheridan, Wyo., and a fishing license, which gave his name as H. J. Benson, aged 69 years. At this writing, no relatives have been located.
