After the wedding, a trip was made to Vaughn and they returned to Corona, spending Sunday in a re union at the Fuller home. Mr. M. Fuller, the bride's father, being present from O'Donnell, Texas.

Home Economics Meeting

The District Home Economics meeting of teachers and Junior Home Makers was held in Captain Saturday, Mar. 21. Teachers and Club girls from all over the District were present and took part in the program.

The Teachers' program consisted of the following discussions—Teaching Child Guidance, Zella Dishman; Teaching Consumer Buying, Mildred Brookerson; Teaching Family Relationship, Maurine Garton; The Resettlement Program, Mrs. M. A. Bishop, Resettlement Home Supervisor.

The club program consisted of a contest which included exhibits and talks on phases of Home Economics work. This type of program was worked out by the vocational teachers at the state conference and was carried out by all clubs over the state. Judges scored the exhibits and talks by the score card, which was set by a state committee. The following decisions were made: 1st place, Carrizozo—Hobbles; 2nd place, Corona—Related Art Work; 3rd, Captain, Cosmetics; 4th, Tularosa, Pictures of Quintuplets.

Talks—1st place, Madelene Howard, Captain, Modern Table Setting; 2nd, Gene Miller, Personality; 3rd, Tularosa, Clothing. At noon the Captain girls served a delightful lunch to the visiting girls and entertained them with a program of musical numbers and readings after the business session. The Captain girls are to be commended on their splendid hospitality.

The following officers were elected for next year: Student Club President, Wilma Snow, Carrizozo; Sec'y - Treas., Marie Jiles, Captain.

—Jane Norman, Club Reporter.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Garrard are now residing at the Jesse J. May place in Nogal.

Call For Mass Meeting of The Citizens of Carrizozo

Trustee Juan Martinez makes a motion and seconded by L. J. Adams that a mass meeting or convention of the citizens of Carrizozo be called, to be held at the Courthouse in the Village of Carrizozo, on Wednesday, April 1, 1936, at 8:00 P. M., for the purpose of selecting candidates for Mayor, four trustees and a clerk for the coming election of Village officers.

Mrs. Jesse Snyder and Miss Nellie Shaver are entertaining Saturday afternoon, honoring Mrs. Ansel Swearingen.

Henry Hoffman, who was off duty for several months on account of illness, has returned to work as engineer for the S. P.

Dr. Johnson Succumbs

Monday afternoon at about 5:45, Dr. F. H. Johnson, Mayor of Carrizozo, succumbed to an illness of but a few days' duration. Funeral services were held at the Methodist Church Wednesday afternoon with the Rev. J. L. Lawson, former pastor of the church, conducting the same, being assisted by the present pastor, Rev. J. A. Bell.

The church was filled to overflowing, even standing room being at a premium. The floral offerings were many and beautiful. The casket was draped in the American flag. A sextette of singers, Mmes. Lemon, Shafer, Don English, J. M. Beck, Messrs. Colonel Jones and Murel Burnett sang two beautiful selections and Rev. Lawson paid a fitting tribute to the deceased, after which the remains were interred in the local cemetery.

Dr. Johnson was a member of the state board of medical examiners, district surgeon for the Southern Pacific and as we have said, Mayor of Carrizozo. He was a world war veteran, serving in California and in Alaskan waters in the U. S. Navy. After the war, he was a commissioned major in the New Mexico reserve corps. He was a member of the Benjamin I. Perry Post, No. 11, American Legion. He was popular in medical and military circles.

Two years ago, he was elected as Mayor of Carrizozo and recently made his report, which showed his administration to have been economical and progressive. In his passing, the town loses one of its foremost citizens. He leaves a wife and one son, Lamoyne, to whom the sympathy of our community is extended. He also leaves a host of loyal friends to mourn his loss.

Mrs. J. M. Shelton Was Hostess to close friends at an informal tea Tuesday, Mar. 24, from 4 to 6, announcing the engagement of her daughter Louise to Mr. Porter Stone of Carlsbad. A color scheme of pink and white was followed in the decorations with a wishing well as a centerpiece. Little pink and white hearts with miniature engagement rings tied with ribbon and cleverly concealed in the well revealed the secret.

Mmes. Lemon and Snyder presided over the tea table, assisted by Misses Wilma Snow and Margaret Shafer. In the receiving line were Mrs. Shelton, Miss Shelton, bride-elect, Miss Leslye Cooper, Mmes. Nellie Branum, F. A. English and Oscar Clouse. Dainty sandwiches, cookies, candies and salted nuts were served throughout the afternoon. Guests attending were Mmes. Ziegler, Degitz, Beck, Blaney, Nickels, H. C. Hall, Shafer, T. J. Stokes, Don English, Misses Nickels, Shaver, Freeman, Smith, Degner, Jeffrey and Evelyn Hall.

Mrs. A. O. Rix and son, Albert Armagnac, are here this week from Arizona, visiting Mrs. Rix's daughter, Mrs. Hubert Detloff and family. They will visit Mrs. Rix's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roselio Baldonado at Alamogordo, before they return to Arizona.

The Music-Drama Study Club meets with Mrs. R. E. Lemon Thursday evening.

Out-of-the-Ordinary

STRANGER THAN FICTION

In the little mountain town of Minnewawa, Tenn., far away from a railroad, telegraph or telephone line, Judge Enoch Sawyer holds regular sessions of court as Justice of the Peace. He acts as judge, prosecutor and attorney for the defense. He sets his cases—first takes the place of the prosecutor and takes testimony; then acts for the defense; takes its testimony and then argues the cases for both and finally, passes sentences as the result may be. The funny thing about the whole matter is, that he always decides in favor of the one whom he is assured has the most money. In a certain case, he objected to his own question and sustained the objection.

Just three months ago in Los Angeles, Edward Flanagan married the girl of his choice and on that happy occasion after the ceremony was performed at the church, he kissed his bride and said: "So long, girlie, I'll see you in the funny papers." Thinking it was a joke, she waited, but he never returned. On Mar. 8, she petitioned the court and her plea for separation on the above grounds was granted.

On January 24, at Malone, N. Y., boy twins were born to Mr. and Mrs. Royal Bowdway. The boys were both born with 12 fingers instead of the ordinary 10. The 12 fingers are all of uniform size, but the fact remains that they will have one more finger to keep warm in the winter than their more fortunate associates. The date on which they were born was the coldest day that region has known for the past fifty years.

William McKelvey answered guilty to a charge on intoxication in a Stockton, Calif., court, but added: "Judge, I just blowed in and was about to blow out." The Judge said: "When you blowed in, why did you not blow out before you blowed up? Your sentence will be 90 days, but I'll blow out 75 days of that time if you'll blow to the next town after serving the 15 days." McKelvey answered the judge as follows: "That's a hard blow, judge, for such a small breeze as I had."

It happened in London, when removing her diamond ring to wash her hands and afterwards reaching for it, it was gone. Hearing the pet Thomas cat meowing in the next room, she made a rush for him, but he was gone like a flash, and she was certain that he had swallowed her ring. Searchers over town were rewarded on the third day to find the cat. He was captured and after an X Ray examination which revealed the ring in the cat's stomach, an operation was performed and the ring recovered.

Washington. — President Roosevelt has very neatly called the bluff of his critics that he is wasting billions from the treasury and doing nothing to replace it. With much less ballyhoo than ordinarily precedes the presentation of tax legislation to congress, the President sent a message to the Capitol calling for new tax levies approximating a billion dollars in yield and in so doing dropped into the laps of the house and senate critics one of the hottest potatoes they have ever been called upon to handle. If one were to characterize the play in the language of baseball, since spring is here, I believe one could say that congress either must play ball or let the runners score.

It was the greatest tax bill ever submitted in peace time. Whether the proposals the President has made are economically sound or whether the levies he thinks advisable will do the job he expects of them, of course, remains to be seen. But the fact cannot be dodged that Mr. Roosevelt has figuratively settled down around the ears of those who have constantly challenged the waste inherent in his vast reform and recovery program with a straight-from-the-shoulder demand upon congress that it vote new taxes.

It is a most interesting situation, politically. In nearly a score of years of Washington reportorial experience, I cannot recall having seen so much squinting and wriggling as well as fretting and mumbling among representatives and senators. It is only natural that they do not wish to go into a campaign for re-election when there is the certainty that here, there and everywhere they will be confronted with heckling as to their vote for new taxes — assuming they will vote for them — heavy levies as the President has suggested, and no present indications seem to assure. They have no heart for a tax increase at this time. But, to repeat, they are faced with a situation in which they must either vote for new and heavier taxes or else they will be forced to swallow many long-winded speeches in condemnation of the President's course.

Whatever the merits of the Roosevelt proposals may be, there is no course open for his opponents except to Force Hands support him in the general move to pay as you go, unless they support these new tax levies, all of the howling and the shouting and tumult about a reduction in the treasury deficit becomes just so much belly-wash.

Opponents may differ with the President as to the details of his tax plan but the situation he has created for them compels that they stand with him. To do otherwise would be not only inconsistent but rather dumb.

Frank Kent, the able news commentator, summarized one phase of this situation the other day by saying: "It makes no difference that the situation which compels the imposition of new and heavy taxes is largely Mr. Roosevelt's fault. And it makes no difference that the move is forced by the exigencies of his campaign for re-election and is designed to strike the most damaging charge against him—that he has piled the debt mountain high and by terrific expenditures menaced the national solvency. All that and more may be perfectly true; but for the Republicans and his non-political critics, who have been scolding Mr. Roosevelt for months because of his failure to balance the budget to either obstruct or hold back now that the President urges congress to provide by taxation the money to pay for the vast gifts it has voted would be beyond the limit in political insincerity and hypocrisy."

In other words, there nearly is no alternative for opponents of the President's policies. They must show their sincerity by going through with him in the laying of new taxes. I do not mean by that statement that it is necessary for them to accept without argument the exact levies which he has proposed. If they were not in accord with the taxes he proposes, they would not be serving their constituencies unless they so stated, but if they object to the levies he has offered, let them bring forward substitute legislation that will produce a revenue yield in a like amount. They cannot afford to criticize and then refuse to offer constructive propositions in turn.

On the other hand, it seems to be the consensus among Washington observers that Mr. Roosevelt ought not to be allowed to get away with one deception which he made in submitting his tax proposals to congress. He said that the necessity for these new taxes arose from the Supreme court decision invalidating the brown-reef tax upon the Agricultural Adjustment Administration and its subsidies to agriculture was president. Of course, that may be true at the moment, but, as one frequently hears pointed out in Washington conversations, the President used the brown-reef tax as the AAA itself as one of his leverage policies. The fact that it was unconstitutional surely cannot be said to be the fault of the Supreme court and yet

The Household

By LYDIA LE BARON WALKER

IF YOU would keep your friend, don't lose sight of him too long. Write when you can, remind him of yourself, and you shall not lose the thread of his life. These sentiments give pause for thought in friendships, where absence interrupts personal social life.

The year is yet young. Did you forget some one when you sent out your Christmas cards? Or were you the one to be forgotten? It matters little which was the case, so long as there was the oversight. A letter can fill the gap, and eliminate time and space so far as friendship is concerned.

A short note will keep the light of friendship burning, not so brightly as a new letter telling the things he or she would so delight in knowing. Nevertheless the note makes contact. Perhaps your friend will send you a new letter once she finds you still hold the friendship dear.

Richness of Friendships.
Friendships are among the worthwhile things in this life. The more we have the richer is our existence. It is not enough that we think sometimes of our friends. Mental telepathy has not yet reached the stage of development where thought transference can do without words either spoken or penned. We may feel the atmosphere of our friends about us, but this does not suffice as satisfactory communication. We long to have evidence of their remembrance.

So it is that a letter is hailed with joy, not that we really believe ourselves forgotten without it, but that we cherish the thought that some one has the wish to talk to us and hopes to have a response from us. Correspondence strengthens the bonds of friendships. We have it in our power to loosen the bonds or bind them closer through our negligence, or attention to, writing letters.

Power of Emotions.
Personal emotions run the gamut from the depths of despair to the heights of exaltation. Few persons have the experience of running the whole scale, but enough have for it to be no impossible feat. Some keep chiefly on the gloomy side, with occasional flights into the higher realms of joy. Some have the good fortune to dwell in the upper strata of pleasantness. Most persons, however, live in the middle area, shifting easily and continually from moderate mental comfort to annoyance and depression, never fully happy and never utterly despondent.

It should be the effort of everyone to get into the higher atmosphere, and live as happy an existence as possible. It is important to live in this higher realm where the oxygen of emotions is refreshing. Health thrives best there. Life seems more worth living. Existence is not dull. Pleasant adventures in the everyday round of occupations are recurrent. It is worth fighting one's way up into this life where content and enjoyment walk side by side. For family peace and pleasure these things are necessary.

A Mighty Force.
It is a mistake to discount emotions, as many persons are inclined to do in this age. Emotions are powerful. They must be controlled and held in check like any great force. More than that they should be understood.

Children are emotional. They have not learned to manage these elemental forces. By example and precept, by encouraging the best, and helping the little folk to realize the advantages of a firm grasp on the higher emotions, parents can help their children to build a firm foundation for comfort and content, and for a fuller measure of happiness throughout their entire lives.

Floyd Gibbons ADVENTURERS' CLUB

Hello, Everybody!
"The House of a Friend"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

SOMETIMES it's your best friends that get you into the worst troubles. Take Cecile Saul of New York city as a typical instance. Cecile had a friend once—and not so very long ago, either—who got her into the worst jam of her entire life. It wasn't the friend's fault either. She probably thought she was doing Cecile a favor.

Cecile's friend had a sister. There's the nub of the whole situation. The sister had had a nervous breakdown and was confined to her bed. And when she needed the ministrations of a trained nurse, her sister—Cecile's friend—immediately thought of Cecile.

Cecile was—and is—a trained nurse. She was engaged to take care of the sick woman, and it wasn't a very pleasant job, either. "The woman wasn't a very congenial person," Cecile says, "but I was one of the few people who understood her. Hence, she had implicit confidence in me."

As a matter of fact, the sick gal was doggedly uncongenial. She was a large woman of about middle age, weighing 200 pounds, and powerfully built. She was sensitive about her illness, and that made her reticent and hard to talk to. Her sister—Cecile's girl friend—lived in the house with them, and that helped to cheer the place up—when she was around. But more often than not she went out in the evening, leaving Cecile and her patient alone.

It was on just such an evening—a coolish night in September, 1934—that Cecile's big adventure took place. Her girl friend was out for the evening, seeing a show at the movie around the corner. The sick woman was asleep, or so Cecile thought. Cecile herself was reading a book, when all of a sudden she looked up and saw her patient rise from the bed. She had a peculiar expression on her face, and she came toward Cecile saying: "You stole my husband and I'm going to kill you."

"I started backing away," says Cecile, "petrified with fright because, in a flash, it had come to me that she had gone mad. When I backed into a wall I just stood there because I was too frightened to cry out or run."

The woman came on toward Cecile, 200 pounds heavy, and looking at least twice that as she towered over the nurse, thrusting clawing hands out to grasp her. Her eyes had gone glassy and foam oozed from the straight determined slit of her mouth.

"I tried to think fast," Cecile says; "at first I thought I could soothe her and get her back to bed. But that didn't work. Her mind had gone completely. So completely that she didn't understand anything I said. All she had in it was that fixed thought that I was her rival for her husband's affections, and that to kill me would be her revenge."

"She came nearer and nearer. Finally, her hands were on my throat. She was 60 pounds heavier than I, and about four inches taller. And she possessed the super-strength of a lunatic. The thought came into my mind that this was not a very pleasant way of dying. I could think then of a good many more agreeable ends than being choked to death by a mad woman. But just about the time I felt that I was going to have the pleasure of meeting with either St. Peter or the Devil, a miracle happened."

The miracle was just the opening of the door. It swung wide, and in came Cecile's girl friend—the sick woman's sister, who just a few minutes before had left for the movie. Luckily for Cecile, she had seen that movie before—had turned around and come back home.

All Around the House

Cheesecloth bags filled with cornmeal and rubbed lightly over rolled wall paper will remove much of the winter's dust.

Four of the water in which onions are boiled three or four times while boiling. This removes the bitter taste so often found in red-skinned onions.

A tablespoonful of ammonia added to the water in which glass jars are washed, will make the glass very clear. Rinse well before using.

To protect a candle from drafts when carrying it about the house, place wax on bottom of glass and set candle into it.

As soon as your furnace fire is out and cellar thoroughly cleaned, whiten the walls with a cold water paint or whitewash.

A curtain roller or a rod run through both hems of a glass curtain will stretch curtains so they will not have to be ironed. Hang up until dry, then remove rods and press hems of curtains.

To remove iron rust from white washable materials, spread stained place over a vessel of actively boiling water and squeeze lemon juice on stain. After a few minutes, rinse the fabric and repeat the process.

It's Hard to Judge Rookies Ere First Southern Tests

ONE minute after he had possession of a good two-thirds of the seat, he was proudly displaying a receipt for a lower berth and even more proudly confiding that he was bound all the way to Florida.

"Yeah," he said. "You travel in style when you get to where I am. Why, say, fellow, look at that—"

He could have been an actor, reporter or traveling salesman, but even before he had finished the sentence I had placed him. I also knew why he preferred to ride for a while in the smoking car. People who travel in pullmans are not always sympathetic and they are not always baseball fans.

"Look at that big Ruth," he continued. "Why—"

We did not look at Ruth. It would have been rather a difficult assignment anyhow since, at this moment, when the train was speeding through Delaware, Babe was down South banging golf balls up and down the links. Instead, with his fully and happy co-operation, I joined my seatmate in looking at himself.

He is twenty-two years old, 6 feet 1 inch tall, weighs 192 pounds and won 21 while losing six in a very minor league last year. He comes from (and this part of the information was merely gleaned from the rich harvest of his more important remarks, such as "that Dean, why he talks too much to be good," and "that Mungo, way if I wasn't gonna be fatter than him, say I'd—") a town such as Paw Paw, Mich. (Pop. 2,000.)

Possibly experience should have taught me better, but I had to get off at Baltimore and when we shook hands I tried to slip in a word.

"Well, kid," I told him. "If it's not just what you expect, or if, after the season opens you have any trouble getting to feel at home in—"

"Trouble," he repeated the words and looked at me scornfully. "Why should I have any? I'll be a star, won't I? Besides, one town's just the same as another to me. Why, when we moved to Paw Paw it wasn't a week before I was wise to everything in that burg. Say, fellow, I—"

But the train pulled out then and possibly I shall never know what else he was going to say. Possibly I will, though. Baseball is funny that way, and it is especially funny when you try to judge rookies before they have undergone the leavening influence of the first training camp.

Pepper Martin Rode Freight to First Camp

For instance, there was that youngster who arrived at the Cards' camp one spring. Except for two things he would have been the most inconspicuous rookie in town. These two things were that his clothes were extraordinarily shabby and that he seemed in dire need of a good meal.

They told me how $40 was all the money that the boy had in the world when he left home. How he wanted to save that so that he might feel secure and not be obligated to any one. How, in order to do this, he had ridden on freight trains from Oklahoma to Florida. How, a few hours before he had arrived at camp, somebody had stolen Pepper Martin the money.

Perhaps such evidence of ambition did cause them to call the turn and predict that the boy was bound to be a good one. I doubt it. Somehow I feel that it was months later, when he was well on his way to running off with a World Series and becoming a front-page sensation throughout the land that everybody realized that rookie really meant business.

By that time, of course, Pepper Martin did not care what had been the springtime thoughts of those who had surrounded him.

By next fall, too, it is possible that the young man on the train will not care what one writer thought of him.

Do you remember way back when—Professional baseball players were put into their first short trousers? The first important team so solemnly clad were the Cincinnati of 1867.

Possibly the customers never had known that the players had legs.

Anyhow the fans looked, gasped and then yelled in tones of pure admiration.

Thus was born a nickname that—although somewhat abbreviated during the hurrying seasons—has lived longer than any other in the history of the sport.

For the words that burst from the throats of the admiring, pop-eyed fans that afternoon were "Red Stockings!"

IN 1887 John L. Sullivan fought the young and stalwart Patsy Cardiff, whose new-grown reputation had stretched so high that the sports pages hailed him as the "Peoria Giant."

Jawn L. weighed more than 230 pounds that night in Minneapolis. When he donned his fight in the dressing room their waist lines immediately were concealed by the lapping flesh. But the Boston Strong Boy parted his mustache, gulped another tall one and stumbled out.

At the bell he charged across the ring, swinging lustily, seeming determined to get it over quickly. But the Peoria Giant who had dared to defy him. He leaped across the ring, swinging a fist that had all his 230 pounds behind it.

The blow landed on the young man's jaw. His legs quivered. He staggered. But the Peoria Giant stayed up.

Indeed this youngster who could hit and box and take it stayed for three more rounds until the scheduled affair was ended. Then they called it a draw and also summoned doctors.

When the physicians emerged from the dressing room the fans who loved him listened and were satisfied. They knew now why Jawn L., after landing his Sunday punch, had not been able to finish this aggressive young giant who had faced him.

When the doctors said, he had landed that right to the jaw of the Peoria Giant, the Boston Strong Boy had broken his arm.

Bill Tilden's New Fame: Sandwich Named for Him

Not in the box score: Bill Tilden at last has achieved real fame. A restaurant somewhere in Ohio has named a sandwich after him.

Quite appropriately the dainty tidbit is composed largely of anchovies and capers. . . . After years of devotion to long red flannels Joe Jacobs, the fight pilot, picked this winter as the one in which to start wearing linen shorts. . . . During a 'fast game' the average center-half runs fifteen miles, according to Jack Robbs, the soccer expert, who used to do it. . . . After a brief winter full the Frankie Frisch-Jimmy Wilson feud is on again.

The gentlemen who are arguing whether Jack Dempsey ever signed a contract to meet Harry Wills might be interested to know that the document reposes in the Madison Square Garden cornerstone. Tex Rickard, who never suspected that the boys would start snapping at one another about it, placed it there when the building was dedicated. . . . Pat McAteer, an Irishman and one of the stars of the German-American Football association, also is a member of the Hatkvoh Jewish All-Stars soccer team. . . . Art Lesieur, Les Canallens' defense ace, to wear a hat even in zero weather. Recently, because they feared that he would catch cold, his bosses bought him a bonnet and placed it on his head. The next day Lesieur caught cold.

There are smart gentlemen who will bet you that Red Rain's name will not be on the list when the Kentucky Derby nominations close on Saturday. . . . Perhaps that is just as well when it is recalled that such Whitney favored as Equipoise and Top Flight were heavily backed in the winter books after being nominated and yet never reached the Churchill Downs post. . . . Books which recently have reached this department include Stanley Frank's very comprehensive "The Jaw in Sports," and "Big Game," a football novel penned by Francis Wallace.

Cornell alumni are urging that Dr. Ray Van Orman be hired as football coach. Thirty years or so ago Van Orman was an all-America end at Ithaca, and since then he has done some highly competent coaching jobs. . . . High school baseball games often draw crowds of 40,000 in Japan, where the cheer leaders balance themselves on the bleachers rails and use fans instead of megaphones. . . . Robert Rosser, past captain of the Crescent-Hamilton A. C. soccer team, was a renowned school-boy cricketer. When only fourteen years old Mr. Rosser, who now is cashier of a celebrated bank, represented South Africa in international contests. . . . The Gastanga-Carnera affair should be the best (financially and otherwise) the Garden has staged all winter. . . . Note to the lads who write letters to this department—"Unless you sign your names, into the waste basket it goes."

A New York state assemblyman is considering a bill which might do heavily into the profits of these prize fight organizations which now (Hallelujah) operate so prettily in the cause of charity. . . . Although he is the amateur champion people insist upon seeing Wilmer Allison's mail to the pro tennis headquarters. . . . Incidentally it was not until his father-in-law advised against it that Allison gave up the idea of becoming a pro.

Blated Puerto Ricans have presented Sixto Escobar, who brought the heavyweight title to the island, with two acres of land in Barcelona.

COOKED CEREALS EASY TO DIGEST

Porridges Have Been Common Fare for Centuries.

By EDITH M. BARBER
AMONG the first solid foods which are added to the liquid diet of the infant are strained cooked cereals which are of course only a semisolid. In a few months straining is unnecessary, and before long the ready-to-eat cereals may be added. Cereals are given in the first place because they are easy to digest and add the extra calories necessary for gain in weight. They are kept in the diet of children for the same reasons, and children need plenty of food. They are satisfying and at the same time will carry some of the milk which is essential.

Cereals in porridge form have been used for centuries. Of these oatmeal and cornmeal are historic. The ready-to-eat cereals are modern additions to the variety of our foods. The grains are usually flavored and then toasted in huge ovens. They may be flaked, puffed or "stretched" as they are, for instance, in the case of the wheat biscuits. By these processes they are changed so that they differ from one another in texture as well as in flavor.

While all these cereals are known as breakfast foods, they are often the basis for the light supper which is recommended for children by physicians. Sleep is apparently more restful after an easily digested meal, taken just before going to bed.

Whole grain cereals served with milk give practically the same food value as does whole grain bread made with milk. Refined cereals compare with white bread.

Baked Polenta.
3 tablespoons olive oil
3/4 cup minced onion
1/2 cup minced green peppers
1/2 cup minced pimientos
2 cups tomatoes
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
1 bay-leaf
6 cloves
4 cups hot wheat cereal or corn-meal mush

1/2 cup grated parmesan cheese or 1/2 cup grated American cheese
Cook the onion, peppers, and pimientos in the olive oil for about 3 minutes. Add the tomatoes and seasonings and cook for 5 minutes. Remove the bay-leaf and cloves and mix the sauce with the cereal. Put in a greased baking dish and cover with the grated cheese. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) for about 15 minutes, until light brown.

Cereal Rings
3 or 4 cups hot oatmeal or wheat cereal
3 tablespoons butter
1/2 pound shredded dried beef
3 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
1 Pimento
Pepper

Pepper
Pack the hot cereal into a greased ring-mold or into small, individual, metal muffin cups and set in a pan of hot water. Melt the butter and cook the beef in it for 2 or 3 minutes. Sprinkle with the flour and stir until well blended with the butter. Stir over a low fire until slightly brown. Add the milk; stir until smooth and thick. Season with pepper. Boil 1 minute. Turn the mold onto a platter and pour the sauce in and around it.

Crepes
1/2 cup pastry flour
1/2 cup bread flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 egg yolk
1/2 pint milk
2 tablespoons sugar
Grating of 1/2 lemon and 1/4 orange
1 teaspoon curacao
1/2 cup melted butter
Mix and sift the dry ingredients, add egg yolk and milk. Add the sugar, orange and lemon rind, curacao and melted butter. Mix well and fry pancakes very thin in a hot buttered pan.

Corn Cakes
1 1/2 cups of boiling water
2 cups of cornmeal
2 eggs
1 cupful of flour
1 1/2 teaspoonfuls of salt
4 teaspoonfuls of baking powder
1 1/2 cups of bottled milk
3 tablespoonfuls of melted fat
Stir the boiling water into half the cornmeal. Cook slightly and add the beaten eggs. Add the rest of the cornmeal-mixed with the flour, salt and baking powder, alternately with the milk, to make a thin batter. Then add the fat and pour onto a hot griddle (ungreased), and fry until brown on both sides.

Maryland Chicken.
Cut up young chickens. Rub with salt, pepper and dip in egg diluted with water. Roll in the fine cracker crumbs. Put in roaster in hot oven, 500 degrees Fahrenheit, and when heated put one-half cup melted butter over chicken and cover. Cook until tender, about one hour, when done put on hot platter and make sauce.

To butter left in pan add three tablespoonfuls flour, salt and pepper. Stir until smooth. Add one and one-half cups cream and stir until thick. Strain over chicken.

Rice Pudding.
1/2 cup rice
4 cups milk
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
Wash rice, mix it with other ingredients, and pour into a buttered baking dish. Bake 2 hours in a very slow oven, 250 degrees Fahrenheit, stirring at least three times during the first hour to break the crust which will form. One half cup of raisins may be added when the pudding is mixed. Chill before serving.

Alaskan Eskimo Is a Fast-

Vanishing Race, Doctor Says
The average life span of Alaskan Eskimos is only 24 years, due chiefly to the prevalence of tuberculosis, says Dr. Victor E. Levine of the Creighton university school of medicine in Omaha, Neb. He has completed his third trip to the Arctic to make medical studies of the Eskimos.

Unless more physicians are provided in the Arctic to guard the health of Eskimos the race will become extinct in little more than a generation, Doctor Levine predicts.

Firestone PUTS THE FARM ON RUBBER

FIRESTONE GROUND GRIP TIRES SPEED UP FARM WORK—MAKE IT EASIER—MORE PROFITABLE

HARVEY S. FIRESTONE pioneered and Firestone engineers developed a pneumatic tire which is the greatest contribution in recent years to more efficient and economical farming. Farmers using Ground Grip Tires on their tractors are saving more than 25% in time and fuel.

On all farm implements the Ground Grip Tire has proved of practical time-saving and money-saving value. Wagons, combines, mowers, sprayers, grain drills require up to 50% less draft to pull them. Hauling is speeded up. Plowing is done with more uniform depth. Vines and roots are not injured or cut, allowing closer planting and greater yield. Ground Grip Tires do not pack the soil and give greater protection to equipment.

It requires only a minimum investment to put all your equipment on Ground Grip Tires. With Firestone's new demountable rim and cut-down method of applying the rim to the original implement wheels, one set of tires will fit several implements. Tires can be changed quickly from one implement to another—you need only two or three sets for practically all your implements.

Firestone patented Gum-Dipped cords, with two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread, holding the patented super-traction tread to the cord body, made this great tire possible.

See the nearby Firestone Tire Dealer, Implement Dealer or Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store today—and in placing your order for new equipment, be sure to specify Firestone Ground Grip Tires on your new tractor or farm implement.

BUSINESS MEN'S CLUB

Carrizozo, N. M.,
To The Outlook:

Lloyd Jones wrote: "The men who try to do something and fail are infinitely better than those who try to do nothing and succeed."

After failing in an attempt to have oil and materials furnished by the State of New Mexico, the club on June 20, 1934, requested the Village officials to consider framing an ordinance which would enable the Village to collect a tax of one cent per gallon on gasoline sales, the funds derived from this source to be used in the purchase of oil and material necessary for improving the principal streets within the Village.

The ordinance was passed and, since its passage fifteen blocks of streets have been graded and oil laid and otherwise improved which has enhanced the value of the property in town far more than the cost which was entailed in carrying out this desirable improvement.

By continuing the collection of this tax, the Village is now able to sponsor further work on its streets. We have received advice from Mr. G. Herkenhoff, Director Division of Operations of the WPA that the project for oiling streets and the construction of curb and gutter has been approved as Official Project No. 65 85 1199 and that it is anticipated the work will get under way as soon as the weather sufficiently moderates to carry on this class of work, especially that of oiling, which proves more satisfactory when performed during warm weather. The Project calls for oiling additional streets as well as repairing and re-oiling those streets that were previously oiled. Cement curb and gutter is to be provided for all streets having oiled surface.

A recent survey made by some of the Business Men brought out the fact that, although Carrizozo has a municipal gasoline tax, the cost of gasoline is a cent per gallon less than in some of the neighboring towns—and in no case is it above the prevailing prices in a majority of places. Consequently, we have been able to secure substantial improvements to our village streets without working a direct hardship on anyone.

We have also been informed that the improvement of the Municipal Park and Playground has been approved as Official Project No. 65 85 1596, and it is possible that this project will be carried out when there are sufficient laborers from the relief rolls to properly operate it.

Chevrolet's high-compression valve-in-head engine gives economy without equal!

FOR ECONOMICAL TRANSPORTATION

Every test proves it's more economical... Every Chevrolet owner knows it's more economical... And every person will readily understand these simple A-B-C reasons why it is more economical

CHEVROLET

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

The Chevrolet engine is the most economical automobile engine produced today, because (1) it is a six-cylinder engine, and (2) it is a valve-in-head six-cylinder engine.

Its six cylinders use less gas and oil—in fact, use the least gas and oil—for six cylinders are the most economical combination used in modern automobiles.

NEW PERFECTED HYDRAULIC BRAKES... IMPROVED GLIDING KNEE-ACTION RIDE*... SHOCKPROOF STEERING*... GENUINE FISHER NO DRAFT VENTILATION... SOLID STEEL one-piece TURRET TOP BODIES... HIGH-COMPRESSION VALVE-IN-HEAD ENGINE... 6% NEW MONEY-SAVING G.M.A.C. TIME PAYMENT PLAN. Compare Chevrolet's low delivered prices and low monthly payments. Chevrolet Motor Company, Detroit, Michigan.

$495 AND UP. List price of New Standard Coupe at Flint, Michigan. With bumper, spare tire and tire lock, the list price is $525 additional. *Knee-Action on Heavier Models only. $25 additional. Prices quoted in this advertisement are list at Flint, Mich., and subject to change without notice.

Its valve-in-head design cuts gasoline consumption still lower because there is less loss of heat through the walls of the combustion chamber in valve-in-head engines, and the advanced construction of the Chevrolet engine gives maximum heat (or power) saving.

Most important of all, Chevrolet's more efficient cooling system, pressure stream oiling and the greater accessibility of all working parts result in more dependable operation, over a longer period of time, with the lowest maintenance costs. Thus, Chevrolet's valve-in-head engine—only one of its kind in Chevrolet's price range—gives economy without equal.

CAUGHT IN THE WILD

SYNOPSIS

As Alan Garth, prospector, is preparing to leave for his mining claim in the Far North, a plane lands at the airways emergency station. In it are Burton Ramill, millionaire mining magnate; his daughter, Lillith; and Vivian Huxby, pilot and mining engineer. Believing him to be only an ignorant prospector, the man offers to make an air trip to Garth's claim, although they refer to his samples of platinum-bearing ore as nearly "worthless." Lillith Ramill, product of the Jazz age, plainly shows contempt for Garth. Through Garth's guidance the plane soon reaches the claim site. Huxby and Ramill, after making several tests, assure Garth his claim is nearly valueless, but to "encourage" young prospectors they are willing to take a chance in investing a small amount. Sensing treachery ahead, Garth manages to set the monoplane adrift and the current carries it over the falls. He points out that he is their only hope in guiding them out of the wilderness.

"Bon voyage!" said Garth. "You may reach the top of the glacier with the soles still on your golf-course boots. Your father, I fancy, will prefer to wait here a while. For one thing, he knows that in his present condition, he never could climb the pass. In the second place, he has no desire to go down the other side on his uppers."

Huxby looked from Mr. Ramill's flimsy oxfords to the girl's fashionable sport boots, and then at Garth's worn moccasins.

"Well, Jack, what's the answer?"

"That it's not well," Garth replied. "In the first place, you'll drop that name and tone in speaking to me. Am I understood?"

Huxby stood silent, his eyes cold and lips tight drawn. But Mr. Ramill spoke for him, with decisiveness: "That is understood, Garth. We are all now in the same boat, and you are skipper. How about the shoe problem?"

"Moosehide. We'll first shift along-shore to the mouth of the placer rill. It's the best place to camp. I'll then go on around to the muskeg and collect some hides."

"Don't be too sure of that," Huxby differed. "Keep hold of the rifle, chief. He'd streak out and leave us to hold the sack."

"Haven't you realized yet that the joke is on you?" Garth inquired. "It's a question of trusting me absolutely, or not at all. Take your choice."

Mr. Ramill handed over the rifle. Huxby's hand tightened on the butt of his lowered pistol. Garth gazed past him down the lake.

"The plane seems to be edging over towards the east shore. There's a ford up here, Huxby. You're welcome to try for the plane. If you save her, I'll call it a break of the game in your favor, and we'll all ride out on the air."

"Lay off, Vivian," Mr. Ramill interposed. "The plane has veered out again. He has us nipped fast."

Without any reply, Huxby thrust his pistol inside his leather jacket and started up the stream bank. Garth came astir to his pack. He slung it on his back.

"Come on. Let's head for camp."

"Why not follow Vivian?" Mr. Ramill inquired. "It is still possible the plane may drift ashore."

"A hundred to one chance it will not, sir. We'll get out on moosehide, if at all. I've decided not to make it alone. A trip through the muskegs may lead you to realize that even lone woody prospectors should be entitled to the fruits of their discoveries."

The girl's smoldering rage flared out at him: "You scoundrel! Deceit you into this beastly hole, and then turn our plane adrift. You cowardly sneak! Everything drifting away in it—and all the food and wine. Oh, d—n! What am I going to do? I'll starve!"

Her father looked at Garth with the first sign of concern that he had shown. "Yes, that's it. You might have thought of her. A girl so delicately reared! I say nothing as to myself; it's all in the game. But a lady—to drag her down into the raw like this! Marooning her to starve in the bog!"

Garth looked from father to daughter. "A lady, did you say? Oh, yes, to be sure—a dainty, refined lady, who courses and drinks and joins in schemes to blik a supposedly simple bush vagabond out of his fortune."

"Tah!" she scoffed. "Whining, because we would not let you foist yourself on us as a gentleman. Am for your twaddle about that claim, mines are treasure trays. They belong to whoever is clever enough to get hold of them."

"Right, my lady," Garth approved. "Which leaves only the small matter of food and drink to be considered. You'll be able to chew moose meat, I fancy, after you've failed on some of your fastidiousness."

Indifferent whether or not the girl and her father followed him, Garth started to back-trail through the lower growth of spruce trees.

Where the spring rill came bubbling over ledges down to the rocky shores, he halted in a small clearing. Here had been his camp on his previous visit to the valley. Ten feet up the branch-trimmed trunks of four closely grouped birch trees, a tattered moosehide hung over the edge of a pole platform.

Garth glanced up at the platform. "Wolverines have robbed the food cache. But there's plenty more meat on the hoof. While I go for some, you two will start gathering wood."

Miss Ramill's nerves were on edge. She snapped at him hysterically: "You insolent bully! Don't you dare to try to give me orders!"

Her father had squatted down on the warm rock, tired out by his day's exertions. Garth spoke to him: "Too much is enough. The condition was that all three of you would do as I thought best. Huxby promptly tried again to bluff me. Now your daughter balks."

Mr. Ramill raised his down-sagging head. "You'll not be able to say that of me, young man. I stand by your terms. I always play to win. But so one can truthfully claim I ever wench or revoke. I will take your orders, and so will Vivian, now that he has had time to realize the situation."

"How about your daughter?"

"I'll leave that to you. If you can control her, you'll be doing more than I have ever been able to do."

Garth met the disdainful gaze of the girl with a smile. "So your father turns you over to me, my lady. Let me hasten to assure you, I beg to decline the honor."

"Ah, indeed?"

"Yes. I'll let old Mother Nature spank you till you come to your senses."

Her blue eyes flared with scorn. "Oh, you—you! D—n!"

"Better save your energy," he advised. "You'll need it all, unless your pride stoops to the squaw work of camp-fire tending. Smoke drives off insects. For another thing, no wolf, wolverine or lynx, or even a grizzly, will venture close to a fire. Think that over, Mr. Ramill, you have your patent lighter."

He swung away between the spruces without waiting for any reply. Left alone with her exhausted father, the girl might come to realize how utterly she had crashed out of her soft and luxurious civilized environment.

A girl whom even her father had been unable to control! That had been evident from the first. She was a badly spoiled product of the Jazz-age—willful, arrogant, utterly selfish. Fortunately she had shown herself no less hard physically than mentally. Otherwise he would have played the game in a different way. No weak-muscled woman could make that travels to the Mackenzie.

As for her father, he had only himself to thank. A pirate should expect to take his chances. He might be gotten out to the river, and he might not. That depended upon his heart. Soft muscles could be hardened. Not so a weak heart.

No question as to the girl and Huxby, if they obeyed orders. They could make it.

A crash in the alders broke in upon Garth's thoughts. The splash that followed told him a moose had caught his scent and taken to the lake. To have run to the bank and shot the availing beast would have been easy. Only, he had no canoe or raft, and the water here was rather deep offshore.

He stalked down through the timber. For the first hundred feet or so out from the shore thickets, willows grew along both sides of the low ledge. A peer through the foliage showed the immense palmate antlers of an old bull moose.

Garth flattened down on the moss-covered dyke and crawled away from the bank. Shoreward, on the other side, he caught sight of a slight movement among the willows. He rose on his knees and swung up his rifle. Though he was still screened by the brush alongside the ledge, his quick movements sent a strong whiff of muscled downwind.

With loud snorts of alarm, two cow moose, a calf, and a young bull heaved up among the willows less than a dozen yards apart. They started to plunge forward out of the thicket. Garth's first shot dropped the calfless cow with a bullet through the head. His second bullet glanced off the base of the bull's left antler. Fartly stunned by the shock, the bull swerved sideways, only to drop in his tracks, shot through the heart.

Bleatly as he had stalked out the ledge, Garth returned to solid ground. He knew that the snorting, howling moose in the pools would soon quiet down and return to their lily-pond feeding. The only requirement was for him to keep out of sight and either across or down wind from the stupid beasts. They had not learned to fear human hunters.

A few steps along the bank brought him to a game trail through the thicket. He laid down his rifle and waded out to the good bank. The body lay on a down-beaten mat of willow stems. Garth at once set to work with his knife.

To dress out a thousand-pound animal is no light task, even under the best of conditions. Garth thought nothing of it. All the hide within reach slid free to the quick draw of his curved knife blade. With belt-ax and knife he cut off the antler head, then the upper foreleg and hindquarter. After that he was able to heave the carcass over by the leverage of the other legs.

When he had finished with the bull, he went to the cow. She weighed perhaps 200 pounds less, and was therefore easier to dress out.

With the two skins and all the meat ashore, he took a dip in a clear pool and washed his buckskins. As he sloshed out of the willows in the wet garments, he saw Miss Ramill staring through her headstap at the eight big legs. He had hooked them on the stubs of spruce limbs. Her gaze lowered from the other raw moose products that were piled on one of the hides. She turned from them loathingly.

"Fugh! What a sickening mess! Have you started a packing plant?"

"The packing is just about to start," he replied. "Are you too feeble to carry this rolled skin? It's the lighter one."

"That filthy thing? You may be sure I'm not so feeble-minded as to touch any of your butcher mess."

"Very well. Only remember, it's your own choice, sister."

He bagged the contents of the bull hide, slung it on his back, picked up his rifle, and headed for camp. The girl looked from him to the folded moose cow skin, hesitated, flushed angrily, and followed, empty-handed.

While still some distance from the rill, he whiffed a tang of wood smoke. He quickened his step. It gave him a pleasant surprise. After all, the girl seemed to have given in, at least partly. He turned to her with a friendly smile. She met it with a scornful smile.

They came to the opening where Garth trimmed a pair of green willow splits, opened the moosehide, and cut two slices of liver. He put a slice on each split, and started to broil them over the coals. With a look of disgust, Miss Ramill turned her back and sat down on the rill bank.

Before long the broiling liver began to send out an appetizing odor. The girl's nose went up for an involuntary sniff. Garth met the intent look of her father, and allowed his left eyelid to flutter slightly. Another turn of the splits completed the broiling. He handed one to Mr. Ramill.

The millionaire lifted his headstap to take a gingerly nibble at his hot meat. His heavy face brightened with a surprised smile. He smacked his lips and jerked off a large mouthful. At the sound, his daughter jerked around. Garth was biting into the other piece of liver.

The girl set out her indignation. "You greedy pig! Where's my piece?"

Garth pointed to the moosehide. "Help yourself."

He met her furious look with cool indifference, and went on eating. Unable to blast him, she turned to her father.

"I'll take yours, Dad. You've had two bites. It will not take you long to seek another piece. Make it three."

At that, Garth swung around between father and daughter.

"Mr. Ramill, we'll settle this right now. You said you'd leave her to me. I cooked that meat for you. She will cook her own meat, or go without."

The older man sat for several moments considering the matter. He then raised his piece of meat and resumed his meal. Lillith Ramill stared at him, her eyes wide.

"My own father! But wait till Vivian comes back!"

The Splash That Followed Told Him a Moose Had Caught His Scent.

He winced. Garth ignored her. "Better lie down and rest, sir. You've done enough for a while. I'm going to get you into hard training as soon as possible. But we must not overdo it at the start. Might mean a breakdown."

"I am tired, boy—and hungry as a shark. Could eat all the rest of that liver."

"Not now. You'll rest, do some work, and then get another slice. Call this valley one of those physical culture sanitariums where the tired business man is worked and dieted back into fit condition."

"I have yet to agree to such training, Garth."

"Take your choice. If you refuse, I give you my word you'll never reach the Mackenzie. I might back-pack you in some places; you don't weigh much over two hundred. Happens, though, I'm not a donkey. You'll go on your own feet."

"Very well. Put me on them."

Obedient to directions, the big man stretched out flat upon the sunwarmed rock. Garth turned about to pull the moosehide and what was upon it into the shade of a birch.

Miss Ramill thrust in front of him and seized his knife. She slashed at the liver. The blade was razor-sharp. Her angry stroke not only cut through the liver, it slit the moosehide as well.

Garth said nothing. Enough for him that hunger had humbled the girl's pride. She had learned her first lesson. Long hours had passed since her finicky breakfasting on wine and delicatessen in the cabin of the monoplane, far over on the Mackenzie. She was fairly ravenous.

Her rouged lips twitched with anticipation as she held the split slice of liver close upon the coals of the low-burnt fire. Well satisfied, Garth hung the remaining liver, the tongues and mufles under the cache platform. A smudge-fire on the ground below the meat drove off the flies.

Miss Ramill's only thought had been for her food. She did not think to put fresh fuel on the cook-fire. When it died down to embers, she jerked the partly burnt, inwardly rare slice of liver from the charred willow split. There was now no finicky fastidiousness about her eating. She thrust off her headstap and sank her teeth into the piece of liver with the gusto of a hungry boy. Bite followed bite in rapid succession.

Indians' Ark Legend Is Still Related in Quebec.

The remnants of the Indians in the country surrounding the Capes Trinity and Eternity, the high points on the Saguenay river, still cling to the ancient belief that the ark or, as they term it, "the big canoe," rested on the top of Cape Trinity, 2,000 feet above the level of the river which skirts its base, and was placed there by a flood which inundated the rest of the earth, destroying all life thereon, only the families of worthy Indians, as well as pairs of the various animals and birds being preserved by the Great Manitou, whose guiding hand landed "the big canoe" on the last bit of earth left uncovered by water.

The Indians also have a legend, says a Tadoussac (Quebec) correspondent in the Washington Star, which bears considerable resemblance to the casting of Satan and his rebellious followers out of paradise. According to the Indian tradition, the Great Manitou cast the "fallen angels" over the precipice of Cape Trinity. All met death in the river below with the exception of the leader, who was so strong that the fall of 2,000 feet only crippled him.

As this "angel" gathered strength he became the demon of the river, wrecking canoes, drowning peaceful Indians and wreaking havoc in general.

Mayo, the father of the Indian race, decided to seek and vanquish him in a hand-to-hand encounter. The battle between the two was terrific, Mayo swinging the demon around his head and against the rock of Trinity with such force that the three great gashes in the mountains resulted from the contacts, so the tradition continues. Finally Mayo was victorious, crushing out the life of the demon and thus restoring peace and quiet to the beautiful waters of the Saguenay.

Mourning Dove Like Pigeon

The female mourning dove looks very much like a pigeon. Her dress is dull grayish brown or fawn colored, and she lacks the coloring around the neck which distinguishes the male. When in repose the female is a flabby, supine, shiftless-looking creature, but she impresses one of the most famous of all bird love calls. Perhaps the male mourning dove is inspired to his plaintive call in appreciation of the refinement of his mate, for she is among the gentlest of birds.

Fish Heads to Clams

Clams and mussels begin their lives on the skin, gills, or fins of fish, where they live as parasites for two months. During this time, they develop a foot, and then drop off to begin an independent existence.

Slip and Pantie Set Made in Quick Time

Slip comfort's written, between the very seams of this slip and pantie set that's dedicated to smooth fitting and easy making. They're within everyone's reach, and their low cost makes them an out-and-out economy. The slip does a nice job of molding the figure, with its fitted bodice and all-in-one straps that can't slip. The neckline's cut low enough in back to allow it to be worn with your low-cut frocks. And could anything be smoother than waistband panties which lie flat? A non-shrinkable rayon or crepe is nice.

Pattern 0002 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 18 requires 3 1/2 yards 30 inch fabric. Complete programmed sew chart included.

Send fifteen cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, style number and size.

Ziegfeld Was a Genius in Realistic Painting

The reason the Follies became the institution they were and gave birth to new developments in lighting, costuming and plasticity lay in Ziegfeld's genius in using human beings as painters use the contents of color tubes. He possessed a peculiar instinct when it came to women. Some of his girls had a quality rarer than beauty—a uniqueness, some flag-waving characteristic you and I would never see.

I have often sat with him at auditions and wondered why he chose certain types. There might not be the faintest glimpse of charm—only a long, lean body and a commonplace face—but afterwards, when the girl was made up and costumed, you saw what a magnificent structure that long, lean body was for its banerlike draperies, and how the blankness of that face had arranged itself into two eyes that looked like stars and a mouth adventurous and exciting.—Fannie Brice in Cosmopolitan Magazine.

Don't Guess But Know

Whether the "Pain" Remedy You Use is SAFE?

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headaches is SAFE to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN.

He will tell you that before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin most "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and often for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate Bayer Aspirin among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this:

You can get Genuine Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by asking for it by its full name, BAYER ASPIRIN. Make it a point to do this—and see that you get what you want.

WRIGLEY'S SPEARMINT PERFECT GUM

THE FLAVOR LASTS

AMUSEMENTS in JAPAN

A Sandal Shop in Tokyo.

Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—W. H. S. Service.

NOT many years ago it was held up against the Japanese that they never indulged in athletics. Today there are, in Tokyo, two huge stadiums, one originally seating 65,000 people, but enlarged in 1931 to accommodate 80,000, the other 30,000, and on the days of baseball games there are few vacant seats.

With the exception of wrestlers, there are no professional athletes in Japan. Teams are made up largely of undergraduates in the various universities, and it is the intervarsity games which draw the largest crowds.

Baseball, skillfully and intelligently played, is as popular in Japan as in the United States, but it is not the only popular athletic sport. Rugby football is played everywhere and played well. As it is part of the army training and as something like 100,000 young men go through this training annually, rugby may well supersede baseball in popularity. Hockey and association football are played more and more and boxing is becoming popular. Wherever there is space in Tokyo, there is a tennis court. The Y. M. C. A. pool is always full of swimmers, as are the great outdoor pools in summer, and Japanese swimmers hold some world records. More and more rowing crews in racing shells are appearing on the rivers and lakes.

Golf clubs are springing up, and, as in America, the links are used largely by business men. At the army maneuver field, on the outskirts of the city, you can see magnificent riding. So the old accusation of lack of interest in athletic sports can no longer be made.

These modern games have not entirely driven out the old, purely Japanese sports. Thousands gather, as of old, to watch the wrestling matches, where the immensely fat men so well known in Japanese prints carry on their strange matches under the ancient rules. Archery is also popular among the chosen few, and the great matches are almost always sponsored by some of the imperial princes. It takes a strong man even to bend some of the tough old bows.

Athletics Build Up the Race.

It would be impossible to estimate what athletics are doing for the Japanese as a race. The Bible says that no man by taking thought can add a cubit to his stature, but there is no doubt that succeeding generations of Japanese are taller. When you meet young men in Tokyo, dressed in gymnasium costume, running through the streets; when you see the finely proportioned bodies of the boys in the Y. M. C. A. pool; when you go to a university graduation and see the students all together, you no longer think of the Japanese as a particularly "little people." With a better-regulated and better-balanced diet and with physical training from the earliest years, through all grades of school, the Japanese are growing up physically. They grew up mentally a long time ago.

It is said that the generation now reaching maturity is, on an average, an inch taller than the preceding generation. As a generalization, one should doubt this, but at the same time one feels sure it is true in the cities where modern ideas of exercise and diet are prevalent.

There is probably no phase of life in Tokyo which more clearly shows the contrast between the old and the new than do the theaters. You go to the Kabuki-za or to the splendid Tokyo theater and there see ancient dramas given in the old style of acting; or you go around the corner to a movie theater and see the latest Hollywood production. One seems just as popular as the other and just as crowded.

The Kabuki and Tokyo theaters are enormous, thoroughly modern, handsome buildings. The orchestra seats are like those in an American theater, except that they are lower. The boxes have no seats, because people seem to prefer to sit on the floor. In the old style, the plays begin—there are generally three or four given in succession—from two until four o'clock

In the afternoon and last until ten o'clock at night.

Huge Theater Stage.

The stage is enormous, the lighting and scenic effects superb. It is probably true that the Japanese were the first to have a revolving stage for quick shifts of scenery. The actors strut in the ancient style and chant their lines. In fact, if the lines are emotional, they are sung by the musicians at the sides of the stage, since it is not considered proper to show too great emotion.

But, in spite of all this, the actors—men, of course, take the women's parts, and a Japanese lady explained this as being necessary "because men are so much more graceful"—are really great and make a profound impression on any foreigner who has the intelligence to rise above the "queerness" of the performance.

It may be true, as some have said, that the living actors of the stage adopted their stilted style from the puppet shows of old, but the style cannot hide their power of character portrayal. You feel, on leaving the theater, that you have been living in all the color of past centuries.

And then the movies are just as crowded as the theaters. There is a movie industry in Japan, but this does not detract from the popularity of the Hollywood productions. Talking pictures were hard to deal with at first, but now a solemn individual sits at the side of the picture and translates, apparently to the satisfaction of the audience, as the play progresses.

The translator's endeavors to keep up are more interesting to the foreigner than are some of the plays. The contrast between the two types of entertainment is merely characteristic, like all the other contrasts.

The Japanese are voracious readers of newspapers. Newsboys run or bicycle throughout the city, dropping their papers in every shop. At important street corners stand women with bells, which they ring continually to show that here are newspapers with the latest papers.

Where fifty years ago the newspaper was unknown, they now are read far more generally than in the United States, two of the great dailies having a larger circulation than any standard-sized papers in the United States.

These great papers are thoroughly up-to-date. They have regular airplane services of their own to carry pictures from Osaka to Tokyo, and transmission of pictures by wireless or by wire is as much used as in the United States. Moreover, the papers carry on large humanitarian work in the maintenance of hospitals or welfare enterprises.

Lots of Gay Cafes.

Tokyo is full of cafes, always crowded, modeled somewhat on the cafes of Paris. In former days people gave get-together parties, those rather solemn affairs at which get-together dances their symbolic dances. They were very expensive, and those who could not afford the expense contented themselves with picnics. Now the cafes are crowded, their principal patrons being, perhaps, the "mobos" and the "mogas."

The Japanese, more than any other nation, love to abbreviate, and "moba" is the abbreviation for modern boy, and "moga" is the abbreviation for modern girl. Indeed, these mobos and mogas, dressed almost always in European clothes and trying to adopt the freedom of European manners, are about the most modern aspect of Tokyo.

One might go on almost indefinitely in pointing out the various contrasts of this city, where at every point the contrasts between the old and new, between the occidental and the oriental, is so striking. It should never be forgotten that both the old and the new, both the western and the eastern, are real in Tokyo. Somewhere in the fashion of the two lies the truth of Tokyo. When one remembers that the western ideas have been naturalized for less than a century, one can understand the inevitable outcropping of essential ideas.

Lesson for March 22

JESUS TEACHING TRUE VALUES

LESSON TEXT—Luke 13:11-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you.—Matthew 6:33.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Good Gifts.
JUNIOR TOPIC—When Is a Man Rich?
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Is Most Worth Living For?

The common tendency of men is to be engrossed with the gifts of God instead of knowing him as the heavenly Father and enjoying his blessed fellowship. Man's supreme need is to know and enjoy God himself.

1. A Warning Against Covetousness (vv. 13-15).

The occasion (vv. 13-15). One of the company requested Jesus to be umpire in a disputed estate. Two brothers were in trouble over an inheritance. Christ refused to enter the sphere of the civil law and warned against the spirit of avarice. His mission was pre-eminently spiritual.

2. The warning enforced (vv. 16-22). This was done by the parable of the rich man. He showed most clearly that to be concerned with earthly riches while neglecting God is the highest folly. Concerning this man, note:

a. His increased goods (v. 16). His riches were rightly obtained, for the ground brought forth plentifully. A man may be rich because the Lord's blessing is upon him.

b. His perplexity (v. 17). His lands were producing more than his barns would hold. He did not want it to go to waste. No frugal man wants to see the fruits of his toil perish. If he had possessed right views of life and a sense of stewardship before God, he would have seen that his barns had enough for his personal needs, and would have distributed the surplus to the needy.

c. His fatal choice (vv. 18, 19). He chose to enlarge his barns, and give up his life to ease and luxury. It ought to be a delightful task for men whom God has made rich to devote their time and energy to the distribution of their possessions to benevolent objects.

d. The awful indictment (vv. 20, 21). God calls him a fool and this is no arbitrary judgment. Riches furnish neither contentment in life nor guarantee of the continuance of life. It is not only foolishness but madness to forget God while engaged in heaping up riches. Soon the man must die and his riches may get into the hands of unworthy men or even curse the lives of the children who inherit them.

11. The Certain Cure for Anxiety (vv. 22-34). Having shown the folly of the rich man who gained gold and lost God, he now urged the disciples to trust God and dismiss all anxious care.

1. The argument (vv. 22, 23). This is summed up in one brief sentence: "The life is more than meat, and the body is more than raiment."

2. The illustrations (vv. 24-28).

a. God's care for the fowls (vv. 24-26). The ravens do not sow nor reap, they have neither storehouses nor barns, yet they live, for God feeds them. If God does not forget the fowl, certainly he will do more for his children who have been created in his likeness and image and redeemed by the precious blood of his Son.

b. God's care for the flowers of the field (vv. 27, 28). If God is so careful of those flowers which appear but for a day, how much more will he clothe his children?

3. The exhortations (vv. 29-34).

a. The getting of food and clothes should not be man's chief concern.

b. Seek the kingdom of God (v. 33). Those who make God's kingdom first shall have all of their needs supplied (Phil. 4:19).

c. Be not afraid (v. 32). God's good pleasure is upon his own and all good things he will give them.

d. Practice self-denial in order to give gifts to those in need (vv. 33, 34).

Be Ready for the Coming of the Lord (vv. 35-40).

Having warned the disciples against the acquisition of worldly goods, while forgetting God, and shown them the needlessness of anxiety for food and clothes, he shows them the blessedness of being in a state of readiness when the Lord shall come. Conviction as to the certainty of the Lord's coming is a sure cure for worldliness and anxious care.

This attitude of heart he made clear by two parables; that of the return of the Lord, and that of the thief. The Lord will be so pleased with those who are waiting for him that he will take delight in sitting at the banquet with them, and he will even serve them.

Goodness Before Wealth

You are much in the wrong if you do not prefer the good qualities of the mind, before the advantages of fortune; a good man before a wealthy one; a man capable of being a faithful friend, before a rich unfaithful pretender to friendship.

Littleness of Soul

Every man is a littleness of soul, which cannot see beyond a certain point, and if it does not occupy the whole space, it itself excluded.—Hawthorne.

Make These Spring Accessories Colorful

PATTERN 1132

Just as soon as you complete one of these smart pairs you can begin using it, for either is right for now, or Spring. Both are very easy to do, for the greater part is just plain crochet, with a simple shell stitch for contrast in hat brim, and on the purse. The rayon and wool mixture so popular now is an attractive yarn to use. Pattern 1132 comes to you with directions for making the set; an illustration of it and of all stitches needed; material requirements. Send 15 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) to The Sewing Circle, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Ave., New York, N. Y.

Eiffel Tower Modernized Into Television Structure

Back in 1887-89 Alexander Gustave Eiffel built the famous tower which bears his name for the International Exposition in Paris. It was then regarded as a mere engineering "stunt." Sober engineers declared it was a faulty built and predicted it would be razed. Today, states a writer in the Washington Post, important as a meteorological and wireless station and guide for airmen, it still towers above Paris. A short time ago France added to its usefulness by making it a station for the broadcast of television programs. An interlaced ironwork structure, the Eiffel Tower reaches a height of 984 feet. The many visitors who ascend, by stairway and elevator, to the circular balcony surrounding the glass pavilion which tops the tower can see 55 miles on clear days.

Pawning Wives Great Idea Till Matea Want 'Em Back

Husbands of Peking, China, who thought the idea of pawning their wives a great one, now are appealing to the police to get their mates back. They say that when they were ready to repay the loan they could not redeem the wives. The trouble is not with the lenders, but with the women themselves who refuse to return to their erstwhile husbands on a variety of pretexts.

Above all, they accuse their husbands of harboring the design of sending them to Manchukuo next, and state that, although they are prepared for everything in reason, that is a step to which as patriotic Chinese women they can never agree. There is no law dealing with this particular form of pawn-broking.

Cheerio Nice day, ain't it?

Spring, the gentle Spring, is approaching. Let's see what our long haired poets will have to offer. Will it be this—

"Spring, glorious Springtime,
First it rained
And then it snow;
Then it rained and Frizz and Blew." Or this:

From the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam—

"Come, fill the Cup,
And in the fire of Spring
Your Winter garment of Repentance fling;
The Bird of Time has but a little way to flutter—
And the Bird is on the Wing."

A man of our acquaintance remarked that the Rubaiyat was his Bible; he had every verse committed to memory.

"This winter has been a very mild one indeed," so remarked a Subscriber. "Take it all in all, this is the best climate in the world; of course it has disadvantages in having dust storms at rare intervals; but, as a Citizen remarked, 'I'd take the world with a fence around it to please some people.'"

A certain local young business man said to this Scribe "I think your column is the 'nertz'; I'd suggest that you vary your style a little."

OKay, here goes. Give us the gong if you've heard this'n before. There once was a man who was a resident of Carrizozo who was tickled pink when a ver there was a dust-storm; quoting the fellow, he was sure nice weather would follow. And if the day was a beautiful one, it didn't please him a bit, for, he sighed, a dust storm will get us soon. Can you beat it? Talk about your Pessimistic Optimist, there's one with bells on.

The Anglo-Carrizozo ball team was playing the Carrizozo Cobras last summer. The Cobras were leading by one score, and it looked pretty black for the Anglo Carrizozo nine. The Cobra pitcher weakened, allowing two men on bases; "Old Reliable" Garrison stepped up to the plate and smashed out a two-base hit, winning the game for the Anglo Carrizozians. Those present declared it the most exciting game of baseball they'd ever witnessed.

We once knew a Dutchman who said he couldn't remember back any further than when he was 20 years of age.

Quoting a Citizen "The trouble about giving a bird $200 a month after he's 60, is that then he is apt to be unable to have much fun spending the money. Why not retire 'em when they get to be 30?"

Did some one say — Dust storms have started again in the Southwest. Huh? Listen here, young feller, tiz against our religion to discuss the windstorms we have in the Carrizozo vicinity.

Djaja ever note that the big geat guy always gets in front of you at the show—and it's the gospel truth, sure enough.

As the Dutchman says "Oh, dit you see dose geese flying over by Sourwine's house, mit dere legs hangin' down?" (As if a goose could fly any other way.)

—We'll skip the politics this issue, if it is OK by you.

So, we'll vary our style somewhat. This column deals with the German this week, so we reluctantly say "Auf Wiedersehen" (ill we meet again.) Or Adieu; "From the Land where the Sunshines spends the winter."
