County Candidates

We repeat what we said in last week's issue that the County Republican ticket is the strongest the party has ever put before the voters for years past.

The candidate for Sheriff, S. E. 'Ben' Greisen, needs no introduction to our people. He served two terms as County Clerk with a perfect record - and if elected, will serve the County as Sheriff in the same capable manner.

For County Treasurer, we have Morgan Lovelace, accurate clerical man and expert accountant. Mr. Lovelace has served the town of Carrizozo for two terms as Clerk, and is now serving on his third. Morgan has kept books for several of our business houses and was a Clerk in the local postoffice during the administration of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Gumm. If elected, Morgan will make an excellent County Clerk.

For County Assessor, we have Andy Padilla. Everybody knows Andy - and are well acquainted with his business qualities. He graduated from the Alamogordo High School, served eight years as Assistant Postmaster at Tularosa, and graduated from St. Michael's College at Santa Fe in 1910. Mr. Padilla is also a member of the Board of Trustees of the town of Carrizozo. Will make an ideal County Assessor, and respectfully solicits your support.

For County School Superintendent, Mrs. Margaret Merschant is the nominee. Her qualifications are par excellence. She is a graduate of the San Diego State Teachers' College, and has had advanced courses in the University of Colorado and the University of California.

She has had a varied amount of experience in High and Rural school work as well. Mrs. Merschant's excellent qualities will make Lincoln County a perfect County School Superintendent. If elected, she will maintain the high educational standard already established in this County. She solicits your support.

For County Clerk, Clayton Hust, an excellent young man with a remarkable amount of experience in the Clerical Line. After a High School education, Clayton served in the U.S. Navy where he was an accountant and bookkeeper and perfected himself in that line. After coming out of Navy, he was engaged in that capacity with several firms in the east. Clayton is a home boy - born and reared in Lincoln County. He solicits your support and if elected, will make the County an able and efficient County Clerk.

For County Commissioners, we have three men, all fully competent to make up a good Board in those important positions. Mr. Maes is from the lower valley, being a stockman and knows the needs of our people in that important industry.

Mr. Penix, besides being a signal service man for the S. P. Company, is also a stockman in the Corona District. Max is well known among our people and solicits your support. He has resided in the Corona district most of his life.

Mr. E. E. Lemon is an excellent accountant and bookkeeper. He served the old E. F. & S. W. Railroad Co. for many years as Clerk and station agent. If elected, he will make an excellent County Commissioner, and the election of the above-named three gentlemen will give the County Board for which it may be proud.

To Our Readers

You will see in this issue of The Outlook, paid political advertising for the Democratic Central Committee. We accept paid advertising from all sources when the same is accompanied by their checks.

For Probate Judge, we have Elerdo Chavez, who has served in this office for three terms. His experience has led him to be a man doubly well fitted for the office. You could do no better than to vote for Elerdo Chavez - and he solicits your support.

For Representative for the 16th District, we have a lady of excellent qualifications. Mrs. Geraldine DuBois Perkins. Mrs. Perkins is the owner of the Corona Drug Store, and a business lady in every sense of the word. She has excellent educational advantages which will make her an ideal representative for Lincoln County. She solicits your support.

For County Surveyor, A. H. Harvey has been named, and in view of his amount of experience in that line and having served the County with much satisfaction in that office for many years, and the opposition failed to nominate a candidate.

For Senator, 18th District, Ernest Key is the candidate. Everyone knows Ernest, who has served his second term as County Clerk. He will make us a first-class Senator for Lincoln and Coconino counties.

Open Air Meeting Southern Pacific Hotel Sunday, Oct. 25, '36, 1 P. M.

Prominent leaders of the National Organization of the Salvation Army and Baron Auriemma will be with the party.

This is a good-will tour and not a financial appeal.

The people of Carrizozo and vicinity are cordially invited to meet these people and give them a welcome reception.

Should the weather be bad, the meeting will be held in the Community Hall. O16-23

Notice to Contractors

Notice is hereby given that sealed proposals, for furnishing of all labor and materials for the additional work herein enumerated, Union High School Building, Capitán, New Mexico, Public Works Administration, Project No. 8454, will be received by James H. Howard, clerk of the Board of Education, Capitán, New Mexico, until 7:30 o'clock p. m. on the 22 day of October, 1936, at which time and place bids will be publicly opened and read; proposals sent by mail will not be received after the time and date above stated.

1. Principal work called for: Drilling a water well; pump pit; installing of an automatic pump, and pressure tank water system; septic tank; drain tile purification field; water heater, and hot water storage tank, plumbing fixtures.

2. Rain water cistern, pressure tank and automatic pump, and filter.

3. Gymnasium, stage and dressing room, fibre ceiling board finish; plastering masonry side walls of stage and dressing rooms; blackboards and trim.

4. Steel lockers in corridor.

5. Steel lockers in dressing rooms.

The proposal will embody statements to the effect that the bid is accompanied by a bid bond or certified check upon some solvent bank payable to the order of the Board of Education, Union High School District, Capitán, New Mexico, which bid bond or certified check shall be in a sum not less than 5 per cent of the maximum bid, with the understanding that if the proposal is accepted the bidder within ten days after receiving written notice thereof will enter into a contract and give a performance bond in the full amount of the bid for such work. In case of failure of the successful bidder to enter into a contract and give an acceptable performance bond, the said check shall be forfeited to the said Board of Education, as liquidated damages, otherwise it will be returned to the bidder within (30) days from the date of the opening of bids.

Attention is called to the fact that the award of the construction contract is conditioned upon funds being available to the said Board of Education for such construction, and the said Board of Education reserves the right to hold all bids for a period of 30 days from the date of the opening thereof.

The proposal will also embody statements that the bidder (1) is transmitting a statement from a recognized surety company, that said company will furnish the bidder all the necessary bonds and insurance policies required on said project; (2) will furnish insurance policies covering adequate public liability and property damage, workmen's compensation, and contractor's contingent liability; (3) will abide by all the reasonable rules and regulations promulgated by the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works in regard to work on the project; and (4) is transmitting a record of experience, financial standing and general qualifications.

Meeting of Small Grazers

A meeting of small grazers, whose interests are affected by the administration of the Taylor Bill, is hereby called for Oct. 24, 1936, at 10 a. m., at the courthouse in Carrizozo. This will be of the utmost importance to the small stock raisers and will be open to anyone living in New Mexico. You are urgently requested to be present. A permanent organization will be effected, the object of which will be to adequately protect the interests of the public domain.

Any communication relative to the meeting should be addressed to the undersigned.

Here's Early Slant on Major Eastern Grid Alma Momsies

YOUR scribe may as well put his neck out among the celebrated gentlemen who boast how they can handicap a most amazingly erratic sport with prim statistics.

YALE—After two years of probation Bob Beckwith is back at center and the line seems likely to be the strongest since Pond and Neale took over the coaching assignment.

HARVARD—Fair enough line, especially at the tackles, where Gaffney and Kerovian perform. Offense seems vocally weak, though.

PRINCETON—When Gil Lea, last and greatest of the football Leas, graduated in June, Princeton took stock and found three other first-string ends also were missing.

COLUMBIA—Far better than last fall. Sid Luckman, triple-threat back, and Art Rodvlas, a fine end, are the best of some unusually strong sophs.

DARTMOUTH—Weak at guards and none too sure Mutt Hay will recover sufficiently to resume starting at center.

CORNELL—Several teams will find the Big Red tough to take but Cornell is at least a year away from what old grads hoped for when they hired Coach Snavely.

FORDHAM—Spies insist Jimmy Crowley is working with numerous rugged and powerful candidates, but that the Rams are by no means as strong as touted.

MANHATTAN—Line is certainly big and fast and probably dumb. Tuckey could be the best fullback in the East.

N. Y. U.—Not as strong as last year and definitely missing the kicking and passing of Big Ed Smith.

PITT—A fine bunch of boys with just one weakness, the lack of a Nick Kilaky at center.

ARMY—Car Davidson says the Cadets are big and strong with more reserves than last year but that they lack speed.

NAVY—Another possible dark horse inspired by the revenge motif. Still sore over that first half run-away last December.

HOLY CROSS—Big, strong and fast with a nice combination of soph and juniors.

PINE TREE STATE

View on Monhegan Island

Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

THE Pine Tree state legally got its name several years before its neighbors.

At first the Province of Maine extended from the Merrimac river to the Sagadahoc, now the Kennebec, but on November 7, 1629, by an amicable division, Captain Mason received the territory between the Merrimac and the Piscataqua rivers, and with the consent of the council gave to his portion the name of New Hampshire.

It was as the outpost of early settlement that Maine offered a refuge for those who sought more religious freedom than could be found in the Massachusetts Bay Colony.

The settlers in the 17th century came largely from across the sea, but the wave of emigration from Massachusetts to the New Hampshire and Maine frontier began even before the movement into Rhode Island and Connecticut and these contributions, like those of the century following, were of the adventurous and independent spirits.

Trained in the French and Indian wars to defend the frontier, the men of Maine were quick to support the common cause of independence. Indeed, a month before the Declaration of Independence, the town of York sent assurances to the General Court of Massachusetts that if Congress should declare the colonies independent the inhabitants of York would "engage with their Lives and Fortunes to Support them in the measure."

Almost a Boundary War As soon as independence from England had been attained, the idea naturally arose of regaining the ancient privileges of the old province, later the district, of Maine.

U. S. Highway No. 1, entering Maine by the Interstate Memorial bridge from Portsmouth, New Hampshire, at Kittery Point passes the site of Fort McClary, erected by Massachusetts early in the 18th century to enforce its rights to commercial use of the boundary river and to protect its merchants from "unreasonable duties" exacted by the Government of New Hampshire.

Fort Kent takes its name from a two-story blockhouse, a reminder of Maine's own private-war scare of 1839, when the state-called its militia to arms and congress authorized the President to raise 50,000 troops for the defense of the country's northeastern boundary.

This boundary dispute had continued ever since the peace negotiations following the Revolution. The Treaty of 1763 adopted as the northeastern boundary of the United States the southern boundary of Nova Scotia. As agreed upon before the war, these two colonial boundaries had been, respectively, the "High Lands which divide the Rivers that empty themselves into the said River St. Lawrence from those which fall into the Sea" (Atlantic Ocean), and a line following the St. Croix from its mouth to its source and thence drawn due north to the southern boundary of Quebec.

The preliminary negotiations had been largely a debate as to rivers. The Americans had at first contended for the St. John river in place of the St. Croix, and with some what similar spirit the British government had instructed its diplomatic representatives to attempt to extend Nova Scotia westward to the New Hampshire line; if not, then to the Kennebec, "or at the very least to include Penobscot."

Settled By Compromise But the identity of the St. Croix river was settled in 1785 by the old map and plan of Champlain, which was used to discover the ruins of the buildings of the De Meux colony, already covered by a forest of nearly two centuries' growth—evidence conclusive that the oceanization ers were unanimous in the decision. But argument continued, so the King of the Netherlands was selected as the arbiter. His award was in effect more of a recommended compromise than an interpretation of treaty language.

A settlement of the dispute, which had now lasted for 59 years, was arranged by the Webster-Ashburton treaty of 1842. This was much less favorable to Maine than the spurned award of the King of the Netherlands. Acceptance of that award would have saved it a strip of timberland about 5,500 square miles in extent, as added territory for the future Aroostook county, which, however, is even now larger than the states of Connecticut and Rhode Island combined.

United States Highway No. 1 skirts the open sea at relatively few places. From Ogunquit to Wells the motorist may look out over a low line of sand dunes facing the ocean. A mile or two beyond Portland the scattered islands of Casco Bay open up many vistas of the Atlantic.

Again, in the Rockland-Camden region, the road follows the shore, with the broad Penobscot bay in full view, but east of here only between Hancock and Sullivan are there satisfactory views out to sea. So deeply indented a coast does not accommodate itself to a shore-line highway.

Pleasant as is the panorama of sunny farms, quiet villages, and shady woods along the trunk highways, to see the best of the Maine coast, detours are necessary. Of these sight-seeing excursions to the shore, some are over well-surfaced highways, others along single-track, primitive roads.

Detours to Coast Towns One detour, over excellent roads, leads through colonial York Village, past bold Cape Neddick to lovely Ogunquit, distinguished as an artists' colony.

Another detour leads to Kennebunkport, the present literary capital of Maine, where an 18th-century village, the winding river, sheltered beach, and wooded shores unite to set the scene for an attractive summer community and an inspiring environment.

Beyond Cape Porpoise is Beachwood and Biddeford Pool, the latter once called Winter Harbor, because here Richard Vines and his company passed the winter of 1616.

Beachwood is a descriptive name equally befitting many places along the coast; a short beach between rocky points with marsh or pond behind the barrier. On one side of this pond beach grasses and rock shrubs grow, and extending inland from the other shore is the oak and pine forest.

The next detour is a short one to popular Old Orchard Beach. Little could early explorers foresee that this long crescent of firm sand would some day be a crowded pleasure resort, as well as a favored take-off for trans-Atlantic airplane voyages.

Portland is modern Maine's metropolis, a busy, thriving world port, making the most of its fine harbor and its geographic position a few precious miles nearer Europe than most other American coast cities. Yet it has never ceased to be "the beautiful town" through whose pleasant tree-lined streets Henry Wadsworth Longfellow wandered when a boy.

Much Like Norway's Fjords East of Portland the coast line perceptibly changes, the fjord character becoming more marked, with islands more numerous. All this is explained by subsidence of the land. The present coast is now a drowned region, wherein old valleys of the former topography have become bays and sounds and reaches. Long divides between valleys have become peninsulas stretching far out to sea, and old hills are the islands of today.

Norway and Maine owe their marvelous beauty, where land and sea join, to similar geologic history, and it, on those unrecorded voyages, the Vikings actually sailed along the Maine coast, the bold headlands and the deep bays, stretching far back into forested hills and mountains, must have called to mind their homeland. Similarly, the State-of-Maineer visiting southern Norway recognizes that the same type of rock-bound coast and islands he had known in the bays of Maine.

STAR DUST Movie Radio

By VIRGINIA VALE

FRED ASTAIRE, when he and his wife arrived in New York after their European vacation, staged what may be called either an outrageous attack of temperament or a burst of completely justified anger.

He was willing to pose for photographers for newspapers and newsreels, but his wife was not. Somebody snapped her anyway—and Astaire proceeded to raise the roof until he got the plate.

He explained that Mrs. Astaire does not want publicity; that she is not a Hollywood celebrity, but his wife, and does not want to be anything else. She feels, apparently, that the public can have no interest in her.

Astaire would seem to be right. And there's a question as to whether he'd ever have got that plate if he hadn't made himself very disagreeable in order to do so. Perfectly calm and even-tempered people have discovered, the moment they came into contact with the motion picture business, that they weren't taken seriously unless they flew into a rage every so often.

Madeleine Carroll, whom you'll see in "The General Died at Dawn," (that is, you'll see it if you want to see a swell picture) is in pictures because she wants to be, not because she has to earn a living.

She is the wife of Capt. Philip Astley, who was considered one of the greatest catches in England before they were married. At that time she had not made a name for herself; she was just one more girl who was doing all right in pictures.

She went right on doing all right in them. Hollywood discovered her, and claimed her. Beautiful, intelligent, talented, she manages both her career and her marriage very well indeed. One thing she couldn't manage—she and her husband had planned to go to their castle in Spain last summer, and the revolution spoiled their plans.

We're always hearing about the effect that the gowns worn in pictures have on fashions. So it may interest you girls to know that at the presentation of "Fashion Futures" at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, held recently by fashion authorities, these were among the dresses chosen from pictures which, it is said, will be modified for the rest of us to wear this year: Joan Crawford's red velvet robe, worn in "The Gorgeous Hussy"—it has huge sleeves, mink reverses, and braided cuffs and shoulders.

Loretta Young's blue challis, with shirred skirt and sleeves and a ruffled petticoat, worn in "Ramona." And Olivia de Havilland's bouffant organdy, with a pleated sounce for a hem worn in "The Charge of the Light Brigade."

When the football breakfasts get under way Albie Booth, who was chosen by the All-American team when he played at Yale, will describe them for WNU, New York.

Last fall he attended one of the big games in the party with your correspondent. And, unlike many men at football games, he just watched the game. He didn't call plays, he didn't express opinions about players, he didn't even say what he thought of the game.

Jane Hamilton, RKO actress, bought a new coupe the other day and went into a huddle with the salesman over having it painted a special shade of gray. She couldn't decide on the shade, and was thinking it over when a gray car was driven in.

"Well," said Jane. "I think that color will probably do." "It should," retorted the salesman. "That's Clark Gable's '30-'000 Duesenberg."

ODDS AND ENDS—Joseph M. Schenck, who is chairman of the board of the 20th Century-Fox, has imported a Sheela pony for Shirley Temple. The pony's name is "Sweet of Spirit." They're making pictures just with Shirley these days, because she's growing up. In two years Robert Taylor has become Metro's most popular player. If you've read "Case With the Wind" don't you think that Miriam Hopkins ought to have the role of the heroine when she took it home? And Clark Gable is perfect for the hero. Loretta Young has gone off to Honolulu, alone. Rumor had it that she and Eddie Duchak would travel there on their honeymoon. "When Time has been kind enough to give me a look at New York's Radio City Music Hall—that's how good it is. Jack O'Leary is very funny on the radio. I'd just seen him with Bob Burns during Ring Lardner's absence; but for some reason speakers don't appreciate him.

CHOICE OF FOOD CALLS FOR CARE

What the Body Does to It Is Prime Consideration.

By EDITH M. BARBER.

IMPORTANT as the choice of food and its proper preparation is to good health, it is no more important than the work which the body does after the food is taken into the mouth to prepare it for absorption. The mouth is the ante-chamber of the chemical and physical laboratories through which our food must pass on its way into the blood stream which carries it throughout the body. The tissues, the bones, the nerves and the organs select from it what they need. If they do not find the right material for their growth and maintenance, bodies will not be built up properly during growth and our body machinery will "creek" instead of "running smoothly."

The mouth starts the mechanical process of making almost all foods ready for digestion. All solid foods are or should be ground into small portions which make it possible for the chemical juices of the digestive system to get to work on them quickly. There are special juices provided by the glands which furnish saliva in the mouth, which act on the starches which we eat. Starch digestion, however, is usually only begun in the mouth. The final work is done by one of the internal juices after the food has passed from the mouth and to the stomach.

In the mouth we have, however, as well as mechanical and physical effects, a psychological influence through which the juices of the stomach begin to flow so that they are ready to begin at once their functions.

Anchovy and Horseradish Canape.

Butter
Anchovy paste
Horseradish
White bread
Stuffed olives
Mix the butter with an equal part of anchovy paste and season to taste with horseradish. Spread on the loaf before cutting into slices one-fourth inch thick. Cut into finger lengths, trimming the crusts, slice the olives across and place in a row down the center, overlapping each other.

Stewed Corn.

1 can corn or 2 cups fresh corn
1/2 cup cream
2 teaspoons sugar
Salt, pepper and paprika
Heat corn in cream. Add sugar and season to taste with salt, pepper and paprika. Bring to a boil, cook four minutes, and serve.

Crab Meat Filling.

1 can (medium size) flaked crab meat
1/2 cup minced celery
1 tablespoon minced onion
1/4 cup mayonnaise

Mix ingredients and use as sandwich spread.

Lobster, shrimp, tuna fish, chicken, veal or pork may replace the crab meat in the above recipe.

Cinnamon Toast.

Cut bread in slices one-fourth inch thick and toast lightly on both sides. Butter, sprinkle with sugar mixed with cinnamon; a proportion of one-half teaspoon cinnamon to one-fourth cup of sugar, or spread mixed butter, cinnamon and sugar on slices of bread and bake in a moderate oven, 375 degrees F., until brown.

Margaritas.

2 eggs
1 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup cut nut meats.

Beat eggs slightly and add dry ingredients, sifted together; add nuts; fill small buttered tins two-thirds full of mixture and place nut meat on each. Bake in a moderate oven, 375 degrees F., until brown.

Rich English Tea Cake.

1 cup sugar
1 cup butter
5 egg yolks
5 egg whites
1/2 pound flour
1/2 teaspoon mace
1 cup sultana raisins
1/2 cup shaved citron
1/2 cup blanched almonds

Cream the butter, add sugar gradually and continue beating; then add the yolks of eggs beaten until thick and lemon colored, whites of eggs beaten stiff and dry, flour, mace and fruit. Beat vigorously five minutes. Pour into a deep pan and place almonds on top. Cover with paper for first hour of baking. Bake one and one-fourth hours in a slow oven (275 degrees Fahrenheit).

Decorating a Door.

The door of a closet or of a passage way which is badly placed in a room can be changed from an awkward interruption to an interesting addition to the room's decoration. One method of doing this is to paint the edges of the panel or the whole panel—in one of the principal colors used in the room's furnishings so that it will echo the same hues in the curtains or upholstery.

Old Ivory Finish.

The way to obtain an old ivory finish for woodwork or furniture is to tint light ivory paint with raw sienna and burnt umber. Apply a glaze coat of raw sienna mixed with burnt umber after that and then wipe lightly.

Be Prepared.

A little time spent on re-conditioning the summer cottage, before it is deserted for the winter, will protect your vacation hangout against weather destruction and prepare it for occupancy next year—ready for your own family or for rental.

Hard wood floors are waxed, oiled, shellacked, or varnished, but not painted, except in rare instances.

Waxed floors are beautiful but slippery. Varnished floors are everywhere in evidence. The other treatments are usual also. The wood should remain untreated. It will darken with time and the treatment of wax, oil, etc., will hasten the toning. The light color of the wood does not show dust as fast as stained wood. Both dark and light woods are employed in marquetry.

Wide board floors bespeak age. Softer woods were used in these floors, and paint was, and continues to be, the finish. Fairly light colors are in old-time character, although a yellow ochre, similar to pumpkin color is of that same era. Dark and bright colors are more modern.

Spatterwork floors were the same or elegance for painted floors, and they still represent the most expensive "painted floor" treatment. While the old reason for spattering floors was to have them easy to care for, as dust and dirt was not so immediately apparent on them, their beauty was also considered. The same is true today. Spatterwork floors have regained their vogue.

Spattered painted floors are a revival of an old-time fashion delightfully adapted to old houses and reproductions of them.

Attractive Cakes to Serve at Parties, and How to Make Them

Recipes for Old-Fashioned Sponge, Queen and Mocha Cakes.

The season for parties and entertainments is now in full swing, and delectable dishes are wanted on menus. Chief among these are cakes, so here are some recipes to help the hostesses.

Old-Time Sponge Cake.

1 cup flour
1 cup granulated sugar
4 eggs
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon lemon extract
A dash of salt

Add sugar a little at a time to the well-beaten whites of the eggs. Beat yolks separately and add to above. Sift the flour twice after adding the salt and baking powder. Mix this lightly with first mixture. Add flavoring. Pour into square pan and bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees.

Lemon is a flavoring particularly well suited to sponge cake. Do not remove cake from pan until cold, but let it cool in inverted pan, as this prevents shrinkage and makes cake easier to remove.

Queen Cake.

1/2 cup butter
1/4 cup sugar
1/2 cup milk
4 eggs
1/2 cup flour
2 level teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon almond extract

Cream the butter and then add the sugar gradually, the milk, almond extract and well beaten eggs. Beat flour into cake, when flour has been sifted twice after salt and baking powder have been added. One-half cup of candied or maraschino cherries cut into pieces supplies an attractive note of color to cake. If used, add the last thing.

Fancy Cakes From Either Batter.

Cut cakes into diamonds, finger strips, and squares. Frost with dif-

erent colored icings or chocolate frosting, letting the icing cover sides as well as top of pieces. Dot tops with bits of cherries, halves of English walnuts, or blanched almonds, pistachio nuts, tiny triangles of candied citron, etc. Sprinkle some tops with coconut shreds.

Layer Cakes.

Either kind of cake can be made into chocolate layer cake, or any preferred layer cake. Ornament the tops with any of the things suggested for small cakes. The batter of the above cakes is so good that no frosting is needed, although it is decorative.

Individual Mocha Cakes.

1/2 can sweetened condensed milk (caramelized)
1/2 cup hot coffee
1/2 cup walnut meats, finely chopped
24 large chocolate wafers
1/2 cup whipped cream

Blend caramelized sweetened condensed milk and hot coffee, beating until smooth. Chop walnut meats and add. Spread prepared mixture on chocolate wafers. Pile four wafers on top of each other for each individual portion. Chill in refrigerator three hours or longer. Garnish with whipped cream if desired. Serves six.

Good Work

Do your work wherever you are, and do it faithfully and well; and so contentedly that men will want you one step higher, and will call you up. When you get there, work so thoroughly that they will want you still higher. The better you work the higher you will be drawn up. Do not force yourself up. That leads to chicanery, to pretence, to mistakes, and even to temptations and crimes.—H. W. Beecher.

One act of charity will teach us more of the love of God than a thousand sermons.

Pajamas That Give Ease and Warmth

1923-B.

This suavely tailored club style pajama set is the essence of simplicity. Whether your cotton, satin, silk crepe, pongee or rayon is expensive or not you won't be taking a chance with pattern No. 1923-B for step-by-step sewing instructions are included and guarantee to guide you every stitch.

College girls approve its conservative styling—busy housewives find them adequate to greet the unexpected guest and the business girl revels in their comfort and ease assuring details. The trousers are snugly cut and the soft blouse roomy enough for any 12 to 20's daily dozen. A natty pointed collar, wide cuffs and belt add an air of distinction to your garment.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1923-B is available for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 35 and 38. Size 14 (32) requires 4 1/2 yards of 39-inch material. Send 15 cents in coins.

Send for the Barbara Bell Fall Pattern Book containing 100 well-planned, easy-to-make patterns. Exclusive fashions for children, young women, and matrons. Send fifteen cents for your copy.

The Household

By LYDIA LE BARON WALKER

FLOORS are among the first considerations in decoration when the house is put in order for the winter.

This season may seem far distant according to the temperature, but the homemaker realizes that considerable thought has to be given the subject before work is begun. The return to home after the vacation season makes the matter of importance to consider now. What shall be done to the floors?

This question can be answered only when the style of the floor is known. The architecture of the house is apt to govern the floor. There must be consistency in the treatment for good decoration. For example, in quaint old houses wide floor boards are found. In modern houses, very narrow boards, close fitting and of hardwood are the usual type. Marquetry floors are the finest type. The direction of the boards in the regulation type of hardwood floors is frequently changed to form border effects.

Spattered painted floors are a revival of an old-time fashion delightfully adapted to old houses and reproductions of them.

EDITORIAL COLUMN

"I for one, am dedicated to the proposition that henceforth no American citizen shall ever again be put in a position where he has to sell his vote for bread"
—Gov. Landon of Kansas.

Millions Honor Landon on His 49th Birthday

TOPEKA, KAN.—"Landon day" was celebrated for the first time on September 9 by millions of Americans who expect that Alf M. Landon, governor of Kansas, will be the next president of the United States.

It will be the 49th birthday of Alf Landon, Republican nominee for president and governor of Kansas, a "typical prairie state." In the nation-wide Landon celebration many friends and admirers in Pennsylvania, the state of his birth, and Ohio, where he spent his boyhood, sent greetings to Gov. Landon.

The Republican National Committee celebrated the day by issuing a new Landon campaign poster. This will be distributed throughout the country. It shows a recent portrait of Gov. Landon. Besides the usual heading, "Gov. Alf M. Landon, Republican nominee for president," it carries the following caption which holds him up as a new national leader:

"That leadership along the trail, which we have loved long since, and lost awhile, has come to us again."

New Deal Spending Would Buy All Land in 3 States

KALAMAZOO, MICH.—Money spent by the Roosevelt administration this year is enough to purchase, at $100 an acre, all the 26,000,000 acres of land in Michigan, the 24,000,000 acres in Indiana and the 28,000,000 acres in Wisconsin, David W. Davis said here in an address before the Kalamazoo County Republican club.

"As a nation, we are wealthy beyond the dreams and comprehension of man but we cannot yet comprehend the meaning of a billion dollars and the least appreciation of this vast sum is held by the men in Washington who are distributing the taxpayers' billions," said the speaker, former governor of Idaho and assistant secretary of the interior during the Coolidge Administration.

Sin to Destroy Food
To destroy food and raiment is a sin, and the Bible tells you so. Listen to Proverbs, 28th chapter, 19th verse: He that tilleth his land shall have plenty of bread; but he that followeth after vain persons shall have poverty enough.—The Southern Farmer.

Argentine Corn Floods

Docks on Pacific Coast

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—Corn from the Argentine, at the rate of 20 million pounds a week, is coming into Los Angeles harbor, Tom Erwin, former president of the Los Angeles County farm bureau, said here.

Twenty tramp steamers are now under charter to bring 180,000 tons of Argentine corn to San Pedro in the next three months, bringing the total since Jan. 1, 1935, to 10,714,288 bushels, Mr. Erwin said.

"At the current price of Argentine corn delivered at the Harbor, this represents a loss to Americans producing and handling corn of $35,571,427," he said.

"A Greek tramp steamer, the Mount Cynthus, last week unloaded 7,300 tons of corn from the Argentine at the Harbor. The 397,185 bushels in this one shipment would have required 10,791 acres of American farm-land to produce and would have given employment to 263 persons.

"The total amount of South American corn which has been imported or bought for delivery since the beginning of this movement would have put 40,000 acres of land in cultivation in this country and would have employed 2,798 people on the farms."

With Mr. Roosevelt's crop surplussage in effect, imports of corn last year were 128 times as large as in 1935.

When a man is in a hurry to get a job done, the best man is he who does not get his hands bogged down.

New Mexico Needs A GOVERNOR

(Not a Whip-cracking Political Boss)

Isn't it about time that sympathetic understanding of the people of this great state and their problems, and an intelligent and economical conduct of their affairs, supplanted fear-inspiring, rule-or-ruin, political machine tactics in the statehouse at Santa Fe?

The record of the present administration is ample proof that the only way New Mexico can bring about a return of government for the benefit of all, instead of only for those subservient, is to Restore the Bureau of Child Welfare to non-political administration.

Reduce the costs of state government by eliminating political pensioners and parasites from the public payrolls and stop the use of public funds for building a personal political machine.

Put an end to expensive and indiscriminate personal use of state-owned motor vehicles, and reduce the number of those vehicles to those required only by absolute necessity of governmental function.

Abolish the $182,000-a-year Port of Entry bureau as a "collecting" agency and turn the policing and protective duties over to the State Police, where they properly belong.

Put the State Police back on a non-political basis and stop the practice of having them serve as valets and bodyguards to the governor.

Keep politics out of the state's higher educational institutions, as well as out of the common schools and all relief activities in New Mexico.

Seek amendment of the gasoline tax law so that farmers, ranchers and others, who wait weeks and months for refunds, will buy gasoline tax-free on making proper affidavit.

Remember . . .

What Roosevelt Has Done for New Mexico!
Let's Study a Few Pages from the Record!
It's a Story of Progress!

Roosevelt Abolished the Hoover bread lines which were getting longer each day in New Mexico.
Roosevelt provided jobs for the unemployed.
Roosevelt raised money to feed the hungry, care for the sick and shelter the homeless.
Roosevelt took the jobless boys and young men off the highways and gave them gainful employment in CCC Camps!
Roosevelt became the first President to provide social security for the aged, the dependent and the blind.
Roosevelt made it possible for New Mexico last year to receive $36,000,000 in Federal funds to provide employment for our jobless and relief for our needy.

Let's Not Forget

That under the Roosevelt Work Program every town and city in New Mexico has obtained needed permanent improvements. Schools, municipal auditoriums, sewer systems, water systems, dams, farm to market roads, bridges, irrigation projects, National guard armories, parks, fire stations, playgrounds, and scores of other needed improvements, all requested by local governing authorities, have been generously provided.

Today it is difficult to find a skilled laborer who is not employed. It is difficult to find a man out of work who really wants a job.

It was President Roosevelt's objective to see that the hungry were fed, the sick cared for and the homeless sheltered. These things he has done.
In future years it is probable that Roosevelt will be best known and loved for his championship of Social Security.

Social Security in New Mexico means that every month the dependent aged, the blind, and the dependent children receive a check from the State of New Mexico—a check sufficiently large to meet their needs. Funds to provide this economic security come jointly from the State and Federal Governments. Social Security in New Mexico also means that crippled children are hospitalized, that public health services are broadened and that New Mexico in general is being made a more healthful, happier place in which to live. Until this program is fully operative, persons in need are receiving direct relief.

REMEMBER —
President Roosevelt made these things possible.
Senators Carl A. Hatch, Dennis Chavez, Congressman John J. Dempsey and Governor Clyde Tingley worked shoulder to shoulder with President Roosevelt to see that New Mexico secured all the benefits to which she was entitled under the Federal Works Program.

They have worked to discover the particular needs of each community and to see that those needs are provided for.
Consider what the Roosevelt New Deal has meant to New Mexico—what it has meant to you personally, and then compare this record of achievement with the

REPUBLICAN PROMISES TO
Reduce Federal appropriations to "a minimum," as requested by the Liberty League. This means reduction in work projects, relief and benefits to farmers and stockmen.
Economize by "firing white collar workers," thus creating another unemployment problem which the National Administration has worked so bravely to overcome . . .
Repeal the Social Security Act and substitute a dole.
Social Security means fulfilling an obligation to our people. A dole means charity.
Compare the Roosevelt record of achievement with the Republican promises!
Watch for more pages from the record!

Remember . . .

"The Death That Saved"

By FLOYD GIBBONS

Famous Headline Hunter

"HANGING by the neck," as it's spoken of in the law books, is generally considered fatal. In fact, the only man I ever heard of who was hanged by the neck to save his life is Harry J. Perry of New York City. It just goes to show how a difference in circumstance will change the whole picture for you. For most people hanging is tough luck. But Harry is not only alive and kicking, but a Distinguished Adventurer.

A lot of people out front are clamoring to know what Harry was hanged for. Well, I'll tell you—it was this way. Harry was hanged for being accommodating. It was about the middle of February, 1915, and the city of Boston was just getting over a bad snowstorm. A freezing spell had followed the storm, turning the snow to ice. It collected on the streets and on the housetops. Big icicles hung down from the roofs, threatening to fall on the crowded sidewalks below. And before that cold snap was over, there were icicles on Harry Perry's heart that threatened to fall down and punch holes in the soles of his shoes.

Harry was living in Boston in those days, and working in a store on Boylston street. The store roof, like a lot of other roofs in the neighborhood, was fringed with icicles a foot long. They had to be cut down before they fell and hurt somebody, but when the foreman suggested it to the handymen, none of them wanted to do it. "That slanted slate roof is coated with ice," they told him, "and it's so slippery that it would be suicide to try and get out on it."

The foreman was disgusted. He called the handymen a bunch of sissies, and he went through the store telling the world that if they'd give him just one man with nerve enough to try it, he'd go up there and do it himself.

"So I decided to be the little tin hero," says Harry, "and volunteered for the job."

Wished He Had Been Less Hasty in Taking Job.

Harry says he was young in those days. He didn't know much about roofs, and he didn't realize the danger until he got up there. Then he took a look at the prospect and wished he hadn't been so hasty. He was eight stories up, on the ridge of a roof that was steeply slanted. It fell away on both sides of him, a smooth, slippery sheet of ice, with nothing to get a hold on, and nothing at the edge of the roof but an ice-filled gutter. That was what he was going to have to stand on while he chopped away those big, thick icicles.

The foreman had a rope with him, to lower Harry down to the roof's edge. He looked around for something to snub it on and found nothing but the chimney. The chimney was square, with sharp corners, and he knew the rope wouldn't slide around it very easily, but there was nothing else in sight, so the chimney it had to be. He looped the rope around it and began lowering Harry toward the edge.

The rope was hard to maneuver. It stuck and jammed against the sharp corners of the chimney. I let Harry down in a series of short jerks that scared the life out of him. The ice was so slippery that nearly all Harry's weight was on the rope—and that rope wasn't a new one, either. In fact, it was pretty old. Harry began to wonder if it wasn't going to break, and as he did, beads of perspiration began popping out on his forehead—beads of perspiration that froze before Harry could wipe them off. By the time he reached the edge of the roof he was trembling like a leaf. But the worst was yet to come!

All at Once Things Began to Go Wrong.

The gutter was full of ice, and Harry couldn't depend on that rope to hold him if he ever slipped over the edge. He chopped out a place to rest his foot and, standing on the gutter, began to cut away icicles. Then everything went wrong all at once. Suddenly he felt the gutter crack under him and drew back. But no sooner had he shifted his weight to the rope than he heard the foreman's warning cry: "Don't move, Harry. Don't move—still we get another rope! THE EDGE OF THE CHIMNEY'S ALMOST CUT THIS ONE THROUGH!"

Harry looked up at the foreman. "His face," he says, "was deathly white. I looked down at the ground, eight stories below. Then I realized what a fix I was in. My senses were becoming paralyzed, and I felt as if I couldn't support myself any longer. The leg braced against the gutter began to get numb. The rotten gutter itself would slip from under me at the least pressure. I could see the old rope now—badly frayed and holding by only a few strands. I never felt so weak in my life. I wanted to move and relieve my numb leg, but I didn't have the strength.

"I began to hear voices below me. A crowd had collected in the street. I had been peering freely, and now my underwear felt as if it were coated with ice. I felt some slight jabs as the strands of the rope broke one after another, and I could see the foreman, sick in his stomach now, and his face green. My nose began to bleed, and the blood froze as fast as it came out. But at last the boys arrived with another rope. They made a noose and slid it to me."

But still the worst moment hadn't arrived.

Too Frightened to Put Rope Around His Waist.

They yelled to Harry to put the rope around his waist, but he was too weak and too frightened. If he moved that much, he knew, the old rope and the gutter would break and he'd go hurtling to the street below. So he strung that noose AROUND HIS NECK. And then, with his two hands he did his best to relieve the pressure while they hauled him, choking, to the ridge.

Harry says no torture could ever be worse than that trip up the side of the roof. He says he'd rather be shot than go through it again. They got him up safely, but he was more dead than alive when he arrived. And volunteer for any more heroic stunts? Harry will be hanged if he does.

Vowel Sounds

Prof. R. G. Kent, secretary of the Linguistic Society of America, says: "All languages have vowel sounds. Some forms of writing do not indicate the vowel sounds, but in actual speech the vowels are necessary to support the consonants. The Egyptian hieroglyphics did not indicate the vowels; and neither did the written form of Hebrew until the invention of the so-called masoretic points. The relation of speech to writing is a very complex one which cannot be narrowed in a few sentences."

Everyone Can Be Hypnotized

Practically everyone can be hypnotized, although some succumb much more readily than others, states a writer in the Los Angeles Times. Because a person can be easily hypnotized does not imply that he is of low mentality, or has a weak will. Instead, he seems to have the ability to fix, to concentrate the attention upon a particular point. "Scatter-brained" persons, those whose minds are continually wandering, or jumping from one problem to another, are usually hard to hypnotize.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for October 11 BECOMING A CHRISTIAN

LESSON TEXT—Acts 16:22-24, Philippians 2:11. GOLDEN TEXT—Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved.—Acts 16:31. PRIMARY TOPIC—Two Happy Prisoners.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Heroes in Prison. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How May I Become a Christian. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How to Become a Christian.

The conversion of Lydia and her gracious growth into usefulness as a Christian is in striking contrast with the experience that Paul had with the demon-possessed damsel (Acts 16:16-18). A satanic power of divination had made her profitable to unscrupulous men. Such men have not perished from the earth, and there are still those who make merchandise of silly and sinful women.

Paul commands the demon to come out of her and at once the issue is drawn.

I. Christianity versus Creeds

As long as the missionaries were at the place of prayer and in the home of Lydia they were not disturbed. But as soon as they touched the illegitimate gain of these "business" men who were making money from the misfortune of the poor damsel, bitter opposition arose. Cunningly combining the plea of false patriotism and anti-Semitism with the ever-potent argument that business was being hindered, they raised a hue and cry which resulted in the beating and imprisonment of Paul and Silas (Acts 16:14-21).

We live in another century, but men are the same. Let the church and its members only go through the motions of formal service and present a powerless religious philosophy, and the world will applaud and possibly support its activities. But let the pungent power of the gospel go out through its life and ministry, and deliver devil-possessed men and women, let its God-given grace expose the hypocrisy and wickedness of men and there will soon be opposition.

II. Down, but not defeated (vv. 25, 26). The preachers landed in jail, beaten, bloody, and chained to the stocks. What a disgrace it would have been if they had come there because of their misdeeds. How ashamed we are when professed Christian leaders sin and fall into the hands of the law.

But "Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness sake" (Matt. 5:10). Little wonder that they forgot their bruises and their chains and began to sing and pray, even at midnight. Note that "the prisoners were listening to them." The words we speak, the songs we sing, our every action, speak either for God or against Him. Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God.

As they pray God speaks, chains fall away, prison doors open. Men can lock doors; God shakes them open. The jailer, cruel and bold when he put them into prison, but now in fear, is about to kill himself. But God has better thoughts concerning him. Paul cries out, "Do thyself no harm" and he experiences

III. Salvation Instead of Suicide (vv. 27-34). Thank God for the earthquakes in our lives which bring us to Him. The jailer, being rightly exercised by God's dealings with him, asks the greatest and most important question that can ever come out of the heart of unregenerate man—"What must I do to be saved?" Reader, have you asked this question? Then you, too, are ready for the answer, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved."

The closing verses of our lesson present the personal testimony of Paul that he had surrendered.

IV. All for Christ (Phil. 3:7-14). All was but loss to him compared with what he gained in Christ. We speak of surrendering all for Christ, but as a matter of fact we lose only what is of no real value and make infinite gain.

Paul, as are all great followers of Jesus Christ, was a "one thing" man. All that he had or was or hoped to be, every ounce of energy and love, went into his pressing "toward the goal unto the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

Overcoming Desires I count him braver who overcomes his desires than him who conquers his enemies; for the hardest victory is the victory over self.—Aristotle.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart

National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington.—Mr. Secretary Morgenthau lately has gone into the money market to borrow, approximately one billion dollars. He asked the banks and other people having idle money to purchase four hundred millions in new government bonds and at the same time asked them to extend loans totalling about $550,000,000 that matured on September 15. The maturing securities, of course, do not take new money out of the money market, but it is borrowing just the same despite the technical name of re-funding.

We Borrow a Billion

The Treasury's action in borrowing such a huge sum at this time came as a surprise. To many financial authorities, in fact to most of them, there was no need for borrowing additional funds at this time. It was a circumstance in which, as far as most observers could see, the Treasury had idle money in sufficient amount to meet the needs for the next several months.

Aside from the fact that the Secretary's action results in an increase in the public debt by the amount of new money borrowed, it is a matter deserving more than passing attention—much more attention than Treasury borrowings heretofore. The reason is that the administration is again piling up in the Treasury a huge amount of idle funds. As nearly as I can calculate the results of the September borrowings, the Treasury will be left with a mere $1,700,000 in unused cash. Of course, the Roosevelt administration which has dealt only in billions, this sum may not appear important. Mr. Morgenthau said it was necessary to have these funds available because of "unsettled conditions" abroad. But that answer, to me, does not suffice.

I recognize that most people find little interest in discussing Treasury financial policies. I know from the type of letter that I get from those who do me the honor to read these reports that the subject of Treasury finance seems far removed from anything in which they can possibly have an interest. But notwithstanding those facts, I feel the matter should be discussed in every section of the country because it directly touches every taxpayer; and that is of vital importance.

Here is how it affects the taxpayer and when I refer to the taxpayer I refer to every individual in this country, because all of us are paying taxes either directly or indirectly: When the Treasury arranges a cash balance, it provides funds upon which the various government agencies may draw in accordance with congressional appropriations. To that extent it is like money you deposit in a bank. But otherwise it is quite different. The cash balance in the Treasury lies idle. It brings no return, no profit to anybody.

But it is important to remember that there are only two ways in which the Treasury can get money for this cash balance, namely, by borrowing or by taxing you and me. During the Roosevelt administration the Treasury has borrowed about $2.12 for every dollar it has collected in taxes. The result is a gigantic public debt.

There is another result, however, that is not as apparent to individuals. Since the Treasury is borrowing money it has to pay interest on what it borrows. You and I are paying this interest in the form of additional taxes. So, therefore, not alone are we being taxed for the money that is spent and which must be repaid, but we are being taxed to pay the interest on idle funds.

Mr. Morgenthau's reference to unsettled conditions abroad directs attention to what is happening in Europe and Asia and the link that exists between those conditions and our own.

President Roosevelt lately has said on several occasions that he did not like to be away from Washington more than four or five days at a time because of those unsettled conditions. Every one knows that our foreign friends are rearming. I believe every one realizes as well, however, that each of those foreign nations is in a position where it cannot initiate hostilities. At least, each one is in a position where very great provocation must occur before it can justify the starting of a war in the eyes of nations like our own.

Any one who wishes to examine those unsettled conditions will find at the very bottom two types of propaganda. One comes from Russia, the other from Germany. The two types of propagandists, while violently hating each other, are preaching exactly the same sort of thing. They are telling the world that if the world wants peace it must align itself with one or the other of the two schools of thought, depending upon which type of propaganda you read. With circumstances like that going on abroad, it seems to me that we as Americans ought to realize fully—and ought to defend—the type of government that we have. Neither Stalin nor Hitler preaches our type of economic thought. In view of that, Americans surely ought to tighten their girdle and take a definite stand for the preservation of our traditions, our practices, because it is under those traditions and practices that our nation has grown great.

American Doctrine

I have been a little bit disappointed that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Secretary Hull of the State department have not preached the American doctrine at more length. I am sure pronouncements by them in condemnation of communism or fascism would find a hearty response at the hands of the American people.

It is to be recognized that changes take place in world economic and political thought. They are taking place in our country. More are coming. But I condemn the practices of communism and fascism because they have ruined the lives of all excepting a few people in every nation where those policies are operative. They will destroy the independence of thought and action, the happiness, that we have come to know in this country as a natural right.

In negotiations with foreign powers, Mr. Roosevelt has not been fortunate. I think it is generally agreed among observers that the President fumbled the ball when he failed to take advantage of a splendid opportunity to deal with France and Great Britain when he first became President. Likewise, I know there are many students who are convinced that the President by his own acts broke up the London economic conference in the summer of 1933 and with the collapse of that London meeting went any hope for an early recovery from the depression on a world basis.

France Off Gold Standard

The war debts question still hangs in mid air. The recognition of Russia I am convinced turned out to be a fizzle. The far eastern program, if there was a program, has yielded nothing because it must be said in truth we have not cemented our friendship with Japan.

Within the last few days we have seen the collapse of the French currency. We have seen the President join with Great Britain in co-operating with the French in their difficulty. Yet it is apparent to anyone who will review the financial and economic history of the last three years that the French have made a great effort to remain on the gold standard—and they had no help from us until they could no longer stand the strain.

It is always easier to use hindsight than foresight. It is easier as well to call attention to mistakes three years after those mistakes have been made than to take a bold stand when the errors were first discussed. These facts, however, do not in any way lighten the responsibility that was ours as a nation in 1933.

I refer again to the London economic conference and the events prior to it in 1933. There were plenty of men in the United States at that time who said openly that the United States should move quickly and take leadership in world stabilization of currencies. It appeared for a time that President Roosevelt would take that action but instead he is charged with having broken up the London conference because he failed to assume that leadership which he could have had.

That brings us to the link between the United States and the conditions of Europe. Mr. Roosevelt, through Secretary Morgenthau, says now that the United States will stand with Great Britain in helping the French. The question naturally arises why did not the United States stand with France in 1933 when France and a half dozen other European nations wanted to remain on the gold standard for its currency?

Personally, I have never seen any reason why the United States should have devalued its dollar as was done. If we had not devalued, one thing is quite certain: Maintenance of the gold standard by the United States would have continued to strengthen the currency of those countries in Europe, including France, that desired to continue that currency basis.

"Wasting my time," Barry told Harwood, the next morning, in the city editor's busy office at The Globe. "My time, and nearly a hundred dollars of the paper's money. Winslow had it straight. The Fane girl was strutting her stuff from one o'clock until long after the murder."

"Well, it's good to be sure."

"Yes, and I'm mighty sure now. Every step I've taken since our last meeting leads right up to Mrs. Kelly."

Harwood looked at him quizzically. "Step No. 1?" he asked.

"My advertisement offering a reward for the number of the cab that killed that artist's wife."

"You don't mean that you got it?"

Triumphantly, Barry opened his note book.

"There it is," he said. "029017. The figure under it are the number of the driver who gave me the information." Ernie copied both numbers.

"Swell work," he commented. "Anything else?"

"Lots. This fellow had a passenger who got out at Twenty-third street around midnight. When the woman was killed—two hours later—the driver bumped into him again in Sixteenth street, very much rattled, and looking as though he'd committed a murder."

"Any description?"

"Rather a vague one. That doesn't matter. I'm sure, in my own mind, that this passenger was the caller Kelly expected, and that he wasn't the murderer. I'm equally sure that he knew murder had been committed."

"Let's call it a mere supposition. In that case, Kelly was killed around two o'clock. At two o'clock, Mrs. Kelly wasn't in Harlem."

"How do you know that?"

Barry's answer was a full report of his adventures of Saturday. "Without Step No. 1, Step No. 2 means nothing. In other words, if Kelly had been killed at midnight—which is the theory everyone's worked on—Mrs. Kelly's alibi would have been hopeless."

Harwood joined his fingertips in an almost prayerful gesture. "I wish we could find the guy who looked as though he'd committed a murder."

Barry made no reply.

"That's always the trouble," the city editor went on. "What kind of a skate is this Luis Moran? Tough?"

"On the contrary. Cries over a mammy song."

"There's a heap of 'em do," Harwood philosophized.

"He's a Southerner, with a soft voice, and a funny impediment in his speech."

"That so?" Harwood inquired.

"Where is this Coconut Bar?"

Barry told him, and promptly returned to Mrs. Kelly. "How the deuce are we going to prove what she did after she got home?"

"That's up to you," Ernie said. "I'm off on a new tack now." His eyes twinkled. "One that would go a long way toward establishing your theory of coincidence. Gosh, I'd give my two uppers to break this story within the next week or two."

Thursday evening, Barry spent in his room, mostly thinking. He had telephoned Pat twice since their luncheon together, and found her enthusiastic over her guests. "There's nothing wrong with the boy," she declared; "nothing that a few weeks' out here won't cure. He's on the beach now, with his mother."

Judge Hamblidge had taken to the little fellow at once. Almost like having a grandchild. It kept his mind on his worries. And no one could see Peggy, being brave, but always staring at nothing, always thinking of what might happen, without pity that warmed into affection. "She's really an awfully good sort," Pat said, from Southampton. "I like her a lot. When are you coming out?"

"Tomorrow, I hope."

"Well, we'll expect you for dinner." That breach was healed, all right. Pat had called him "the gem of the earth." In the same hour, he remembered again, he had told her he loved her. As to that, she still maintained silence. "That's the kindest thing she could do," Barry thought. "A Judge's daughter, and I—"

Barry had learned not to think of the future. "Nor heed the rattle of a distant drum," as his own father had put it. Just for now, it was pleasant to be somebody who knew Pat—and he wanted to take that awful look out of the other girl's eyes. "That oughtn't to be hard now," Barry thought. "If I could get that Filipino to talk. He knows when Mrs. Kelly came home, and he's probably got a damned good idea what she did afterward. If we could get to that Oriental—"

At which point, Evans came, and he had been drinking.

"Sorry, sir," he apologized, making the nearest chair. Evans had some of Whitish companions. "Sorry, sir, but I've been having dinner with Kelly's chauffeur."

"Liquid nourishment?"

"Yes, sir," Evans admitted, sheepishly. "But that was the only chance I had with that Irishman."

"Well, I drove Miss Hamblidge, and Mrs. Rogers, and the boy to Southampton, like you said. And I started back today. It was nearly eight when I made the garage, and I was good and hungry."

"There's a decent cafe a few yards away. Nolan—that's Kelly's chauffeur—was sitting at a table, with a load he ought to've gone twice for," Evans smiled.

"Ed had a grinch on women in general. And he was chowed plenty; I hadn't been with him long when he opened up on Mrs. Kelly. There's something queer between her and this Filipino, he says."

"Charlie?"

"That isn't his name, but let it go at that. And, when Ed said 'queer,' he didn't mean anything wrong. Just some kind of an understanding. Mrs. Kelly's been giving the Chink coin and jewelry, regular. Charlie showed him some of it, Ed says."

"Well, the night of the murder Nolan drives Kelly to the Coconut Bar. And home—at nine o'clock. When he gets out at his house, Kelly says, 'Put the car in the garage. Mrs. Kelly's gone up to Harlem, and I won't need you 'til tomorrow morning.'"

"Ed obeys orders. He goes back to Kelly's, and sits in the kitchen. This Chink is in the butler's pantry, getting a tray ready. And while the two of 'em are down there, the damnedest row starts upstairs."

"Rogers and Kelly?"

"No. This was around nine o'clock. Mrs. Kelly. She was laying Mike out so you could have heard it a block. Ernie copied both numbers."

Wall, this goes on for ten or fifteen minutes, and then the bell from the parlor rings. Charlie starts upstairs with the tray. He gets up two steps, when Kelly appears at the head of the night. "Come up here, you lousy spy. Come up here while I tell you where you get off!"

"Charlie sets down the tray, and goes. Nolan follows into the pantry, and has a stiff drink. Then he sits down again, and listens to Kelly laying out the Chink."

"Could he hear anything? Words, I mean?"

"No. Just Kelly's voice. Mrs. Kelly was out of it. She'd gone to her room. Nolan thinks. But Kelly made noise enough for two. And, after another ten minutes or so, Charlie comes back."

"I'm sired, Charlie says—in the Chink lingo. 'I got to get out. That blankety-blank told me to go quick, or he'd kill me.'"

"Are you going?" Nolan asks.

"Sure," the Chink says. "I got to get by money first. He chased me out of the room when I asked for it, but he's going back," the Chink says.

"Nolan then took the cook to a movie, and when they got back, everything's quiet. It's after midnight, because those two walked home. Kelly's upstairs, talking to somebody, and the Chink's in his room, packing and muttering to himself something frightful. So Nolan says good night to the cook, who goes into her room, and then Nolan slips into the pantry, and takes another shot of that hooch."

"What hooch?"

"The rye whiskey I was telling you about."

Barry sprang from his chair.

"The rye whiskey?"

"Sure. And it was in a cut-glass decanter."

"Are you certain?"

"Nolan is. And he's just as certain that it was still in the pantry when the guy upstairs left."

"Why?"

"Because he heard the front door close ten seconds before he went out the back way."

"Gosh!" Barry exclaimed. "That puts it up to Mrs. Kelly, all right."

Evans shook his head, drunkenly.

"Mrs. Kelly wasn't home," he said.

"She went to her sister's after the high-lights in Harlem, and Nolan got her there the next morning, before they called the police. There were only three people in that house after the guy went who was visiting Kelly—Kelly herself, cook, and a mighty mad Chinaman."

"Filipino?"

"Whatever he was, he was mad, and the doctor that killed Kelly was down stairs with him until just about the time Kelly was killed."

"Thanks," Barry nodded. "I think we've got something."

"Oh, I forgot to give you this. It came to Southampton—just as I was leaving," said Evans.

"This" was a cablegram. Also in the smoke-filled room, Barry opened it. Nine words. "Father and I sailing for home Sunday. Love, Mother."

"For an instant, he stood, frozen, the wire in his hand.

Directly before him, an evening newspaper lay open on the table.

"Out-going passenger and mail ships," he read. "Sailing tomorrow—Steamship Orange Nassau. For Port-au-Prince, La Guayra, Curacao, Maracaibo, Carupano, and Pampatar. I'm on my way to one of 'em tomorrow!"

CHAPTER IX

Barry's panic was short-lived. Between him and the sailing list had come a vision of Peggy, with beaded lashes screening eyes forever staring at nothing.

"I can't do it," he said to himself. "I can't run away and leave that girl in the lurch. Nor Pat either. I've tackled this job, and I've got to go through with it."

"Anyw'ay, it begins to look as though the end were in sight. If Ridder sails Sunday—"

He went back to the shipping news. "If Ridder sails Sunday, that's the Bremen and she's due here the following Saturday. That gives us eight days. I'd better see Winslow."

He called Peter next morning, but the attorney was in the country. "Left last night," his secretary reported, "and won't be back until Monday."

Barry had a dinner engagement at Southampton. "We'll start things humming on Monday," Barry told himself. "I've got my house to put in order, too. Ridder's house, that is."

Evans telephoned around ten, and before noon they were on their way to Southampton. "My last week-end with Pat," he was thinking. "Where'll I be next Saturday? Out of luck, and out of a job. In jail, maybe, and in the newspapers. That's my finish with—everybody."

There was a new atmosphere at the Hamblidge's. Pat had been right in telling Jack that he'd "cheer my father up a lot." "They're building a railway on the beach," she laughed, when the boy—sunburned, and active—joined them before dinner.

"You must go to bed now," Pat bade him, "if we're to take our ride in the morning. We have a canter every day before breakfast," she added to Barry, ringing for a maid to take charge of the youngster. "I discovered the dearest little pony in the village, and the man brings it over at nine o'clock, with another horse for me. Jack's getting to be a regular Buffalo Bill."

The strained expression of a week ago was beginning to disappear from the face of Judge Hamblidge. But the greatest difference was in the boy's mother. Naturally imitative, as Barry had remarked, she had been quick to observe and emulate Pat's moderation with make-up. Her speech, too, had lost all but an occasional inadvertent reference to "guys" and "dames." She had stopped staring into space. "What's the news about Jack?" she asked, quite calmly.

"Free next week," Barry declared ringingly.

At the dinner table, in spite of herself, Peg caught some of the contagion of Barry's new confidence. Nolan's story sounded like the solution of everything; they agreed. "We've got to get Jack out before Saturday," Barry said. "His father'll be home then."

Both women looked up at him.

"What'll happen to you?" Peggy asked.

"The main question," Barry urged, "is what's going to happen to Peg. And Jack. And Jacky."

"We'll meet that when it comes," Peggy returned, steadily. "But now I'm worried about you."

She excused herself early, with the plain purpose of leaving Barry with Pat. But the Judge stayed on. His legally trained mind had been busy with the Nolan disclosures.

"If Mrs. Kelly slept at her sister's, why didn't she say so to you?—it would've been her best alibi."

"Yes, but it would have involved admitting that she'd had a run-in with Kelly."

"That's true," Hamblidge admitted. "But Nolan was drunk last night, you say. And some parts of his story simply don't hold water. I don't believe there was anything 'queer' between Mrs. Kelly and the Filipino. Kelly's flinching that out wouldn't account for his calling the man a 'lousy spy,' would it?"

"No," Barry retorted. "But listen. If the Chink was a 'lousy spy,' he got paid for it, didn't he? Wouldn't that explain Mrs. Kelly's giving him 'coin and jewelry'? And everything else? The Chink's reporting Betty Barclay's message, and all the rest of it? I tell you, this story's as straight as a string. Betty Barclay went on the road with her show about the time Mrs. Kelly sued for divorce. I found that out some time ago. She got back the day of the murder, and phoned Kelly. Mrs. Kelly learned of that from the Chink, and lit into Mike. Then Mike lit into the Chink, and the Chink killed him. I think we can prove that."

The Judge shook his head.

"Anyw'ay, it certainly establishes reasonable doubt of Jack's guilt."

"They can't convict Jack," the Judge insisted. "Peter says so, and I've never known Peter to be wrong when he made an assertion like that. But acquittal means waiting for the trial, and waiting for the trial means that Jack will still be in jail when his father returns."

Pat remained silent, but the next morning, on the beach, she drew Barry away from the little group engaged in railroad construction.

Hard Game

Cracked skulls and broken arms are not unusual among players of Jai Alai, the Spanish game. Players have to handle a ball half the size of a baseball and almost as hard as a golf ball at terrific speed. A "softer" game was needed for less reckless athletes. So American "soft ball" is being introduced.

Pattern 5193—Here's Fun for you—and Beauty for your dinner or tea table—in a lacy pattern which you can crochet so easily of string. It won't take you any time at all to learn the "sample" square design, on which all the others are based, and to crochet a goodly number of squares. When you've enough, join them to make a beautiful table cloth, bedspread, dresser scarf or

GROUND GRIP TIRES

SAVE time and money and get greater efficiency by equipping the rear of your car and truck with a pair of Firestone Ground Grip Tires. They will give you the super-traction needed to pull through mud and unimproved roads and will save you the time, trouble and money of applying chains.

Harvey S. Firestone was born and raised on a farm in Columbiana County, Ohio, which he has operated ever since 1904. It was here on this farm that Mr. Firestone conceived the idea and worked with his tire engineers in developing a practical tire for farm use. Mr. Firestone's experience in farming gave him the realization of the need for a pneumatic tire with lugs of rubber that would increase the drawbar pull, roll easier, save time, and speed up farm operations on cars, trucks, tractors and all wheeled farm implements.

Firestone engineers are continually working with Mr. Firestone on his farm to secure greater farm efficiency. They developed the Ground Grip Tire which is so designed that in soft mud roads it cleans itself and the bars of rubber are so placed that they will not bump on paved roads. The design of this tire is so unusual and its performance so amazing that a patent has been granted by the United States Patent Office covering its exclusive features. The secret of the extra traction of Firestone Ground Grip Tires is the scientifically designed rubber lug of the tread. Under this extraordinary super-traction tread are placed two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords. This is patented Firestone construction feature which makes it possible to weld this heavy tread to the Gum-Dipped cord body, making it one inseparable unit.

Go to your nearest Firestone Tire Dealer or Implement Dealer or Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store today and ask to see these money-saving tires. And when you order a new tractor or implement, specify Firestone Ground Grip Tires.

THE WIND HOWLED

"The recent blizzard and snowfall was the earliest I've seen in this section of New Mexico, and I have been here nearly thirty years," observes a Friend. "We hope that it isn't the forecast of a severe winter." To think of a raging blizzard, combined with snow, ice and wind on Sept. 27. Makes us think of the verse: "The melancholy days have come — The saddest of the year."

STORM DOES DAMAGE

George Titsworth's stately trees in Capitan were broken and bent over during the storm of last Sunday, according to advice received at this office. Doors in Carrizozo were swelled shut, and many and various leaks in the homes were reported from the driving snow and sleet of the blizzard. Numerous trees were uprooted in town.

Some have accused the writer of dealing too much in politics. Note — Now's the time if there ever was one for politics. In other words, it's on everybody's mind.

"I can always go to a show, but I can't hear speaking like was heard Monday night at the Community Hall," says a Democrat. "The talk by Jaffa Miller was convincing, and we all enjoyed it immensely."

—So much for politics.

Tests Corn Imported From Argentina

James A. Noble, chief grain sampler of the Chicago Board of Trade, reports first samples of Argentine corn test "excellent." Fifty million bushels, it is estimated, will have to be imported this year, because of New Deal's "security" program.
