COMMENTS

Lewis Burke

Your Master of Ceremonies speaking. Greetings and Salutations. Come and get it, before it gets cold!

—Are you-all listenin'?

We hope you'll pardon me while I discuss my favorite subject, i. e., Politics. — You Democrats don't HAVE to read what we say.

DEMOCRACY vs. COMMUNISM

The issue is not Roosevelt vs. Landon. It is not the Democratic party vs. the Republican party. The issue is the Socialism of Roosevelt and his Brain Trust vs. Democracy.

SHALL THE PEOPLE RULE?

We are confronted now with a change in our government from a Democracy, in which the government is servant of the people, to a Communist state in which one loses all of his rights in personal freedom and property rights, and becomes the servant of the state.—Jeffersonian Democrat.

THIS WEEK'S BEST STORY

"There are two Literary Digests, one Democratic and one Republican," remarked a local Citizen. Ain't that rich?

—Bushwal

Turn the Squanderers Out by voting for Landon.

Please forgive us; there isn't much news in the paper besides politics. Printers have to eat Frijoles or Beans — Si, Señor.

The Carrizozo Gondolier says: When you see a girl nowadays with red fingernails, you may be sure she didn't stain 'em putting up preserves or making catsup.

Past Matrons' Club

of Carrizozo celebrated, the 26th Anniversary of the constituting of Comet Chapter No. 29, O.E.S. They had as guests members of Chapter and Stars sojourning in this jurisdiction — also Past Patrons. Mrs. D. S. Donaldson of El Paso and Mrs. J. R. Green of Alamogordo, Past Matrons of this Chapter were present, and took part in a playlette entitled "Friendship's Road."

Mrs. Roswell of El Paso accompanied Mrs. Donaldson, Mrs. Burns gave a beautiful piano number. Mrs. D. B. English and Miss Cole, Grand Ruth, accompanied by Mrs. T. E. Kelley, sang "Star of the East," which was most effective. Mrs. Ula G. Mayer gave the address of welcome which was fittingly responded to by Mrs. B. S. Burns. Mrs. R. E. Blaney presented Comet Chapter No. 29 with a beautiful white altar set, the gift of the Past Matrons' Club. Mrs. Ina Mayer, on behalf of Comet Chapter most graciously thanked the Past Matrons' Club for the beautiful gift.

Refreshments were served in the banquet room by the Past Matrons; all present took part in recounting reminiscences of years of service, giving the Past Patrons an opportunity of expressing their views. Mrs. R. E. Lemon deserves much credit for arranging the musical portion of the program. Many thanks, Mrs. Stimmel, for the beautiful birthday cake.—Contributed by M. L. B.

How the Club Works

Down in Carrizozo

(Santa Fe New Mexican)

Mrs. Ola C. Jones, Carrizozo, Secretary of the Lincoln County Board of Education, is Democratic State Vice-Chairman.

The New Mexican has been furnished a copy of an official letter she has sent to teacher in the rural schools.

The teacher is notified of her re-appointment on condition that "she refrain from going about the County speaking unprofessionally concerning the administrative department of the county school system, and that she work at all times in harmony with those in authority."

Is there a y doubt about what this "authority" is, referred to by the Democratic State Vice-Chairman?

ALF M. LANDON Governor of Kansas TOPEKA

October 28, 1936

Mr. M. J. Barnett, Mgr., Republican Headquarters, Carrizozo, New Mexico.

Dear Mr. Barnett:

The Governor has asked me to thank you for the copies of the rhymes and songs which were left on the Landon train.

The Governor is very sorry that the cold from which he is suffering did not permit him to make an appearance at Carrizozo.

Very truly yours, Carl A. Rott, Secretary.

WOMAN'S CLUB

met at the lovely home of Mrs. Nellie Branum Friday, Oct. 16; there being very little business, the meeting was turned over to Miss Ruth Ryden, who was in charge of the program.

Little Jerry Cooper and Bill Gallacher sang "Polly - Wally Doodle" with Jerry playing the guitar. Their encore was "Rancho Grande."

Miss Ruth Ryden made a very interesting talk on the Health of Lincoln County, showing the improvements by the medical corps.

Dorothy Hoffman, Joy Bowlin, Loy Bowlin and Jerry Dixon participated in a little play "Only a Cold," emphasizing that many different contagious diseases start with a common cold. The refreshments were doughnuts and cider. The refreshment Committee were Meses. Richard, Ola Jones, Sears, C. A. Branum, Davis, Cooper, Chas. Mayer, Elliott and Miss Leslye Cooper.

W. T. Lumpkins

On Monday of this week, W. T. Lumpkins, resident of Captain and prominent in all affairs of a community nature in our neighboring town, died at a local hospital after an acute illness of about two weeks. Mr. Lumpkins had been ailing for about one year, but kept up until a short time ago, as mentioned above, he was compelled to enter the hospital.

Mr. Lumpkins was Justice of the Peace in Captain, which office he held much to the satisfaction of his community. He was also identified strongly in politics, being an ardent Republican. He was a great advocate of the principle of the Brotherhood of Man; strong in manly character and charitable in his nature.

Funeral services were held at Captain with Rev. Lewis of the Nazarene Church conducting the same and interment was had at Roswell. He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife and sons, Chester, Bill, Louie and Sherman.

The sympathy of friends over the county is extended to the bereaved relatives.

Supt. Ming and his staff of teachers left this morning for Albuquerque to attend the Teachers' convention which lasts until the close of the week. As a consequence, the kids are off also for the two days, which they will put in, in "silent study," especially the boys. Oh, Yeah!

BUSINESS MEN'S CLUB

When the Carrizozo Business Men's Club met Wednesday evening members present 16 in number, were greeted by the efficient waitresses, Helen George, Virginia Jones, Polly French and Robbie Armstrong, in the new uniforms. The dresses and aprons are white and bordered with black. The caps are also white with black trimming and the laps of the dresses are trimmed in a corresponding color and on the left lapel appears the first name of the waitress in letters of fancy needlework, while on the front of each cap appears the name, Southern Pacific Hotel. They are nifty, up-to-date and add prestige to the excellent service of the hotel.

Personals

Mrs. Alfredo Lopez, who is ill at the Robinson Hospital, is reported as much improved.

Mrs. Manuel Chavez had her tonsils removed at the Robinson Hospital last week and is doing nicely at the present time.

Benny Sanchez of San Patricio, was a business visitor here last week.

E. Bello and Lupe Gabaldon were business visitors from the Claunch country the first part of the week.

M. Doering returned Wednesday from a six weeks' trip to Portland, Ore., Chicago, Evansville, Ind., St. Louis, the Dallas Centennial and El Paso. Mike says the Centennial is very nice and advises all those who can afford to make the trip, to do so.

Alberto Jauregui is here from Tucumcari, visiting the Amado Jauregui, Juan Oozio and Sabino Vidaurri families.

Prof. H. E. Alden, former bandmaster of A. & M. College, visited Carrizozo with his brother and sister-in-law the early part of the week.

BORN—At the Rathmann hospital, to Mr. and Mrs. Louis Mixon of Ancho, Oct. 28, a girl. Mother and daughter are doing nicely.

At a meeting of stockmen in New Mexico District No. 4, held at the courthouse Tuesday, three members were elected to the Advisory Board of said district to fill vacancies left by expired terms. Wm. W. Gallacher and Vicente Del Curto were re-elected and Eugene Baird was elected to fill the vacancy left by W. A. Winder. Homer Latham, Jim Cooper and E. J. Isaacks acted as election judges. This meeting was conducted by Will O. Hall, Graziar.

Marshall Beck, a former home boy, returned to Denver to resume his duties with the Westinghouse Electric Corporation, after a brief visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Beck and local friends. He will be transferred to Wichita, Kansas, shortly.

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Burks of Captain were here Tuesday. Mr. Burks killed a fine young buck the first day of the season and presented the Outlook family with some choice roasts, for which we return our thanks.

D. I. Clowe, ex-mayor of Artesia, is here with his son Dan and son-in-law, Murt Sullivan, deer hunting and are guests of the S. H. Nickels family. Mr. Clowe was at one time bookkeeper for the old Carrizozo Trading Company.

Leslye Cooper Honored

by the Rainbow Girls as Worthy Advisor, Rainbow Assembly No. 7, with a party at the Freeman Ranch last Friday evening.

About 25 guests were present. The evening's entertainment consisted of dancing and playing games. Leslye was presented with a lovely box of Madeira Napkins. Doughnuts and cider were served at the close of the affair. —Reported.

Floyd Gibbons Adventurers' Club

Hello Everybody!

"Animal Man"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

WELL, sir, I am pleased to note that Old Lady Adventure is still busy initiating new members in this club of ours. The newest is Distinguished Adventurer Edwin da Costa of New Haven, Conn. And Ed writes: "Many times while reading the stories in your column I have wished I might have some weird experience. Well, by Jove, Floyd, read this one."

You see, Ed is back from South America with the tale of just the sort of experience he'd always wished he could have. And now it's his turn in the story-tellers' circle, and he's going to dish it out to us.

Ed went to South America last November. Cold weather doesn't agree with him and he'd heard it sometimes got a little warmer down near the Equator. He landed in Brazil, hung around the coast for a while, and then took a six-week trip up the Amazon with some English explorers. Did Ed get into an adventure with those explorers? He did not. Explorers like quiet, peaceful lives compared with us folks who live in civilized parts of the world. Ed got into that adventure AT A HOTEL.

Hotel Whose Guests Lived in Stucco Huts.

After he left his explorer friends, Ed landed in Pernambuco and put up at the Derby hotel. "The hotel," Ed says, "was located about five miles outside the city limits, in an isolated section. Why they ever built it there, I don't know. Like all the other hotel buildings in mountain sections of Brazil, this one contained only an office, dining room and dance hall. The guests lived in individual stucco huts, called chalets, located away from the main building near the jungle's edge. The space between the main building and the chalets was filled with hibiscus shrubs, swaying palms, and other tropical plants of rare beauty, but at night one felt very lonely, all alone in one's stucco hut, and I was pleased to make acquaintance of another American who was also stopping at the hotel."

The other fellow was a man named Kellmer—a South American representative of a Texas oil concern. He and Ed struck up quite a friendship, and together they spent the long evenings strolling through the gardens, smoking and talking.

One evening at dinner, Kellmer told Ed about the Becho—or animal man. He was a strange creature whom the natives were all talking about—a feroce robber who used an animal pelt for a disguise. HE HID IN DARK PLACES TO POUNCE OUT ON HIS VICTIMS. HE CARRIED A BIG REVOLVER AND HE WASN'T AT ALL BLOW ABOUT SHOOTING PEOPLE WHO DIDN'T DO WHAT HE TOLD THEM.

Decided They'd Better Have Revolvers.

It all sounded like a native's tall story to Ed and Kellmer. At first they laughed about it. But as the days went by and each one brought a new tale of some atrocity by the Becho, they began to wonder. And one day when the rumor was going around that the Becho had killed another man, Kellmer bought two revolvers and presented one to Ed.

Ed and Kellmer searched the hotel grounds

A few more days rolled by. Then, one night while Ed was sitting in his chalet, he heard a knock on the door—heard Kellmer outside calling, "For Pete's sake, Ed, let me in!" Kellmer stood there, clad in a black-and-white zebra-striped bathrobe, his revolver in his hand. "THE BECHO'S ON THE GROUNDS," HE GASPED. "I HEARD VOICES AND FOOTSTEPS. LET'S TRY TO NAB HIM!"

It Looked Like Taps for Kellmer.

Ed got his own gun. He and Kellmer started a search of the hotel grounds. Says Ed: "The palms swished spookily in the breeze. The night was pitch-dark, and before long both of us began to shake like hula dancers. Presently the sound of hoofbeats came to my ears. Then they faded. We secreted ourselves near the great iron gate by the roadside and waited. Suddenly, a shot rang out, shattering the stillness of the night. All at once we found that we were in no mood to be shot at by bandits. Separating—we ran like deer, Kellmer for his chalet and I for mine."

Safe inside his hut, Ed nervously lit a cigar and awaited developments. They weren't long in coming. Somewhere outside he heard a loud jabbering in the native Spanish and Portuguese dialect. He looked out of the window and saw a crowd of people and half a dozen horsemen of the Guardia Civil grouped around Kellmer's chalet. He dashed over to see what was wrong and arrived just in time to see the native policeman dragging Kellmer forcibly from his chalet. Kellmer saw Ed. "ED," HE HOWLED, "TELL THESE NITWITS WHO I AM. THEY WANT TO STRING ME UP!"

Ed accosted the captain of the guard. "What do you want with this man?" he asked.

"Senior," replied the captain, "we have caught the Becho."

Ed's eyes opened wider. "Why that's not the Becho," he protested. "That man is a guest at the hotel!"

"Becho in a Black and White Skin."

The captain shook his head. "Senior," he said, "the hotel watchman positively saw the Becho at the gate in a black and white skin. He fired a shot in the air, and the Becho ran into this chalet. He is the only man in the place, and if he is not the Becho, where did the Becho disappear to?"

For a moment, Ed was puzzled. Then he remembered Kellmer's black-and-white striped bathrobe and started to laugh. "I'LL SHOW YOU THE ANIMAL SKIN THAT WATCHMAN SAW," he told the captain. And he went in and got the robe. "Senior Kellmer was with me," he explained. "We were hunting the Becho too, when the watchman saw him and took the bathrobe for an animal skin."

Kellmer was released then, and the police rode away with as much pomp and dignity as they could muster. "And the next day," says Ed, "I saw Kellmer coaxing a bonfire near his chalet and asked him what he was doing. He said, 'I'm burning that bathrobe—that's all!'"

The United States Naval Academy is maintained to train young men to be officers in the Navy. After four years of practical and theoretical seamanship, tactics and gunnery, each graduate is made an ensign. An ensign in the Navy is equivalent in rank to a second lieutenant in the Army.

Lights at Sea

At sea at night a red light can be recognized as a red light as far as it can be seen, which is usually from three to four times farther than a green light appears green. ## IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, © Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for October 25

CHRISTIANITY AS LOVE

LESSON TEXT—Acts 18:14; 1 Corinthians 13. GOLDEN TEXT—And now abide faith, hope, charity (love), these three; but the greatest of these is charity (love). 1 Cor. 13:13.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Why Paul Was Not Afraid.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Course in the Night. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Christian Love Is and Does. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Love, the Law of Life.

By way of Athens the apostle Paul and his co-workers came to Corinth, one of the great commercial and social centers of Greece. It was a city known for its magnificent architecture and its patronage of the fine arts, but even more widely known for its abandonment to vice and wickedness. Here Paul, the apostle of faith, demonstrated that his faith was rooted in love, and it was to the Christians who were dwelling in this infamous spot of corruption that he addressed his supremely pure and beautiful discourse on love.

The first portion of our lesson finds Paul at Corinth, and provides an introduction to the study of the love chapter from 1 Corinthians by showing from his experience that I. Love Is a Fact, Not a Theory (Acts 18:1-4).

The man whom we now recognize as perhaps the greatest preacher and teacher of Christian truth who ever followed the Lord Jesus Christ "came to Corinth." That great and busy city in all probability knew nothing of his arrival and cared nothing for his message. No one met the distinguished messenger of God and received him into a home of comfort and honor.

But God had not forgotten him. For we read that Paul "found a certain Jew"—a convert to Christ, and his noble wife, and "abode with them." Persecution had sent Aquila to Corinth, and he was there for Paul to find.

And the humility of loving service expresses itself further in the fact that the one who was to bring Corinth the glorious message of the gospel did so at his own cost. He labored with his hands at the trade which he, as every Jewish boy, had been taught by his father. Christianity does not ask, "What will ye give me?" but "How much can I give?"

In his first letter to the church which grew up at Corinth we find the exhaustively rich chapter in which Paul so fittingly describes true Christian love. It is impossible in any short discussion of this passage to make a complete study of it, but we note

II. Four Truths About Love (1 Cor. 13:1-13).

1. Love is superior to the other graces (vv. 1-3).

Life has many excellent gifts and men seek after them. How do they compare with love? Glowing eloquence, the far-seeing eye of the prophet, mountain-moving faith, self-sacrifice—without love they all lose their worth; in fact they are nothing. All the attainments of men apart from Christ are vain and empty.

2. Love is necessary to the other graces (vv. 4-7).

There is a sense in which love is not so much a grace in itself as the underlying and motivating power, which shows in every fine and noble expression of Christian character. Study these verses to see how patiently and unselfishly love works.

3. Love is permanent; other graces fall (vv. 8-12).

Some gifts will cease, for there will no longer be any need for them. They are temporary in their value or simply a means to an end. But love—it began with God in eternity and will go on with him through eternity. Why then do we labor and seek after these other graces so diligently and neglect the one grace which is above them all, for

4. Love is supreme (v. 13).

Even over those other graces which with love will abide, namely, faith and hope, love stands supreme. It is the fundamental of all fundamentals. Without it all else is empty and futile. And let us remember, this is not pious theory; it is fact and to be translated into daily life.

Hardships

Wounds and hardships provoke our courage, and when our fortunes are at the lowest, our wits and minds are commonly at the best.—Charron.

Common Sense

Common sense in one view is the most uncommon sense. While it is extremely rare in possession, the recognition of it is universal. All men feel it, though few men have it.—H. N. Hudson.

An Odious Quality

Conceit is the most contemptible and one of the most odious qualities in the world. It is vanity driven from all other shifts, and forced to appeal to itself for admiration.—Hazlitt.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted

By William Bruckart

National Press Building

Washington, D. C.

Washington.—Some time ago I reported in these columns that Mr. Roosevelt had sent a commission to Europe to study consumer co-operatives. I said at that time that the commission was likely to find itself unable to reach an agreement concerning a report to the President on the consumer co-operatives and that in the event they were able to reach an agreement, the publication of their findings would be delayed until after the election.

The commission has returned to this country and has gone through its labor pains to the end that there are six different views, an opinion by each of the six different commissioners concerning the value or lack of it that consumer co-operatives have.

But it is important to know developments concerning this commission because it appears that by engaging in an investigation of the consumer co-operatives, the President has awakened a number of different interests in our own country to the fact that there are some kinds of co-operatives which are not helpful. The fuss stirred up by failure of the six commissioners to reach an agreement makes it seem unlikely that there will be any unanimity of opinion in congress if and when Mr. Roosevelt attempts to gain action in a legislative way to encourage creation of these co-operatives. In other words, if a move is made in congress, or if the Chief Executive attempts to force congress to enact legislation favorable to consumer co-operatives, we are likely to see a vigorous legislative battle. Personally, I hope that happens. Unless that end materializes, there is every likelihood that the average person who has not access to full information will be inclined to favor consumer co-operatives, without realizing he is lending his influence, whatever it may be, to fostering institutions that in the end are certain to cause heartaches and financial losses.

I am in a position to say that the one thing upon which the President's commissioners were able to agree was that consumer co-operatives in Europe constitute the focal point for radicalism. Not a single consumer co-operative was found, I am told, that was not controlled, managed or inspired by radicals of one breed or another, mainly, communists. These hotbeds of radicalism constitute "pressure groups" that have been able to impress governments in the various countries of an ability and an influence that do not actually exist with them. That is to say, these groups, like minority groups everywhere, are cohesively organized and they are vocal, in addition. The result is they have been able to force upon peoples in many countries restrictions over private and independent initiative, or to gain for themselves exemptions and privileges not accorded to others. The result is an obvious alignment of peoples into fresh factions, the tendencies of which are dangerous.

Tugwell's Activities

It may be news to many persons that we have consumer co-operatives in this country and that these agencies or units already are being fostered by the United States government. I refer to the activities of Professor Rexford Guy Tugwell, who has installed in the resettlement colonies various and sundry consumer co-operatives. It may be news as well to many to learn that Mr. Tugwell has spent almost two million dollars in financing these co-operatives to get them started. And the third bit of news respecting this circumstance is that a book written by James Peter Warbasse is being used as a guide for the creation of these consumer co-operatives in federal resettlement projects.

Now, the name of James Peter Warbasse may not seem important. Many persons have written books, but there are not many volumes extant in the United States that advocate changes in the form of our government. Yet, there are propositions in the volume to which I have referred which do just that and these books, as I have said, are serving more or less as a guide for the people whom Professor Tugwell has "resettled."

With this brief presentation of the facts, it seems to me it does not take much imagination to see the basis upon which the promoters of the consumer co-operatives are building their structure in this country. Taking these facts into consideration with the information brought back by those who made the study for Mr. Roosevelt, it is made to appear at least that a foreign link is somehow or other being forged, and that link, I believe, is designed as a fundamental unit in the general radical program to change the form of our government as well as the form of our national life. I can arrive at no other conclusion.

There is still another phase of this general proposition of consumer co-operatives that ought to be of interest to every producer in this country. Let us assume, for example, that they were perfect in organization and management; that they prospered and expanded in numbers and that they were rendering genuine service to the people. If that condition were to obtain, does it not occur as a natural question that with so much strength, the consumer co-operatives would eventually establish a class alignment between producer and consumer? It seems to me that the natural course of events would lead to this end, and if it did lead to this end I am afraid that because there are more consumers than there are producers, the producers would get the dirty end of the deal. They would be short-changed because they would be outnumbered.

This phase seems the more important because the food stores, food fields generally, are the sectors in which these consumer co-operatives operate best. As a matter of fact, the food field is the most fertile field for experiments anyway and here is quite apparently another experiment that has fastened, or is fastening itself as a parasite upon the agricultural industry of this country.

I know there has been some argument that the consumer co-operatives are the answer to the effort to destroy chain stores. That is not so. Chain stores in foreign countries have licked the co-operatives. They have virtually destroyed them where the co-operatives attempted to drive the chain stores out of business. It becomes important then to recognize that while the United States has many chain stores, it has not now and never will have as many chain stores as it has independent.

Again, here is a threat to independent business men, particularly to the small shop owner, whether he be in a large city or in the thousands of small towns and villages where the owners of such stores are important to their communities and pillars of strength in our national society. If the consumer co-operatives get going, I predict a further decline in the number of independent merchandise houses throughout the United States. For that reason, if for none of the others that I have outlined, it does seem important that the consumer co-operatives move in this country should be stopped in its tracks and that those responsible in an official way for encouraging this sort of thing should be shorn of power.

It may seem a far cry from the farm field to the price of beer as a working man finds it, but there is a direct connection between the two. Recent developments again demonstrate the fact that our whole economic structure is quite closely related. There is an increase coming in the price of beer. Either the working man and others who like beer are going to pay more for it, or else they will get a smaller glass. The answer is that ingredients entering into the production of beer have increased in price to such an extent that, according to official figures, the brewers are now paying about $1.60 more for the things that enter into the production of one barrel of beer than they did when the sale of beer again was legalized.

This circumstance is significant for the reason that it shows conclusively how tampering with the currency upsets the general balance within our economic structure and results sometimes in displacement of markets and sometimes in diminution of sales. In the case of beer it probably will result in a displacement of markets, rather than any decline in the amount of beer consumed, despite the fact that the ultimate consumer will be paying more.

This condition is of interest to agriculture generally because it has always been contended by the proponents of open sale of beer and whiskey that a substantial new outlet for farm crops was made available by the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment. Rather, it was a restoration of an old outlet that existed before the Eighteenth amendment was adopted. But there has been a combination of circumstances, largely the result of governmental meddling, that has mitigated against the farmers obtaining full benefit from repeal. These may be enumerated as follows: Devaluation of the dollar, crop restriction under the Agricultural Adjustment act, higher taxes, and a tendency on the part of the Roosevelt administration to increase imports from abroad.

In the case of the devaluation of the currency, the main purpose, as announced by the Roosevelt administration, was to increase prices. It has had that effect and has made the brewers pay more for the hops they must import from abroad, and they must import hops because our own production is insufficient.

A True Neighbor

OF ALL the best talents, that of belonging, of being a true member of the community, is the greatest, and for many in our large cities, the least expressed. To be a true neighbor, citizen, patriot—to take on the state, so that what it does you do; to have the state within you, so that all that wounds public life hurts you—is to recover the top root of existence, to lay hold of the most vital of all the strands of life.—Joseph Lee.

To accept good advice is but to increase one's own ability.

Still Coughing?

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Croomlinson. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with anything less than Croomlinson, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and inflamed membranes as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled. Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged. Your druggist is authorized to guarantee Croomlinson and to refund your money if you are not satisfied with results from the very first bottle. Get Croomlinson right now. (Adv.)

CONSTIPATION

Unrelenting Enemy of Health

"HOW are your bowels?" The doctor asks this important question because a primary need of good health is for the bowels to regularly pass off the waste of metabolism. Every doctor knows you cannot be well, feel well or look well if you allow constipation to hinder daily evacuation and thus prevent body cleanliness. You should know it. Then why let a bad condition continue? Try Doan's Regulator. They are mild and effective; act as a digestive and hepatic stimulant; increase the flow of bile and relieve temporary congestion of the intestines. Be regular with Doan's. "Not a word to anybody," Harwood had said. "Dig in 'til I phone you. One little leak, and we're finished."

Barry saw that. But why should Harwood fear the leak coming from him? Pat? Nonsense! Winslow, of course, who was Morano's lawyer. But Ernie had said, "Winslow isn't that kind of a lawyer." And he had said also, "If Winslow's shielding anyone, it's Judge Hamblidge. Judge Hamblidge, or someone else close to him." Except Winslow, who was close to Judge Hamblidge, but Pat?

Into Barry's mind trickled slowly small, insistent recollections—one after another. Recollections that, in the beginning, seemed to have nothing to do with the case. Pat was in town the night of the murder. Naturally—with her father; what of it? "He wouldn't let me stay with him," she had said, at dinner the next evening in Southampton. What of it?

But the trickle was becoming a flood now. The afternoon Hamblidge had confessed seeing Kelly, why did Pat keep checking the Judge? What did she fear his disclosing? And the confession itself; why did he make it? "Tim of again," Barry raged at himself. "Just because Ernie said, 'Winslow may be shielding Hamblidge, or someone close to him.' That might mean someone close to Winslow. But who's closer than the Hamblidges? And then he remembered declaring, the afternoon of the Judge's confession, 'The man—or the woman—who killed Kelly knew what he—or she—was going to do.'"

"Why do you say 'she'?" Pat had asked, emotionally. "This wasn't a woman's crime."

Winslow had asserted, too; only a few hours ago: "That man." Curious. And motive? Well, you couldn't deny that. If Kelly was threatening Judge Hamblidge, and Pat knew it. There was no doubt that she did. "I've got something in my pocket," the Judge had quoted Kelly as shouting, and Pat had intervened promptly. All those weeks, before the decision was filed, she had written under the newspaper attacks on her father. Suppose she had known what was compelling that decision, and undertaken to remove the compulsion. "Silly" Barry fumed at himself. "Fantastic!"

The house of cards was a wreck now, and Barry turned to other self-questionings. "That paper in Kelly's pocket—the threat over Lois. But it seems to have been the threat over Hamblidge, also. What's the connection?"

"None," he finally decided, interring that idea, too, and turning in bed, determined that he must sleep. "Something between Morano and Kelly, yes, but between Morano and Judge Hamblidge—well, that's just beet-tops!" With that he fell asleep.

The telephone awakened him. "Ten o'clock," the girl at the switchboard droned. "Call from Southampton?"

"Mr. Gilbert? This is the hospital at Southampton, Miss Hamblidge asked me to tell you that Jacky Rogers has been hurt. We don't know how badly yet. His horse threw him. She'd like to know if you can come at once."

"Certainly."

"Miss Hamblidge says, if you'll go straight to her house, she'll be there."

Fortunately, he got Evans at once, and they were on the Merrick road less than an hour later. "Never mind the red lights," Barry ordered. "Keep going."

But Evans was wary, beating the lights when it seemed safe to do so; stopping when it didn't, and pushing the car to its limit on stretches of unpaved highway. Before two o'clock, Evans drew up in front of the Hamblidge's. Pat was waiting.

"I've just this minute got back from the hospital," she declared. "Feg's still there, of course. But Jacky's arm's broken."

"Nothing worse?"

Pat shook her head. "The whole thing's my fault," she said, tremulously. "Jacky's too young for a pony. Although I had one at his age."

She took him into the drawing-room, where they were joined by her father, who seemed terribly broken.

Between them, they told Barry what had happened. A bit of paper had blown across the pony's eyes, and he had bolted, with Pat after him. She got hold of the bride, but the frantic little animal had dragged her out of her saddle. Still she had clung, until, maddened, the pony had bucked, and thrown his small rider. Pat had let go then; not without visible and invisible casualties to skin and clothes. Pat's nerves were on edge, and Hamblidge rambled on about the "poor kid," and this being "the last straw" for Feggy, and what were they going to do, now, with the Riders coming to Southampton.

And, suddenly, Pat said, "This is Wednesday."

Barry conceded the point. "We agreed to tell the truth if Jack wasn't free Wednesday."

The Judge's muscles stiffened. "What do you mean by the truth, Pat?"

"That you saw Kelly after Jack left him."

A crooked decision? I'd ask who else might have wanted that paper—and what became of it?

Both Pat and her father were staring at Barry now, with wide, startled eyes in which lay something like terror. The Judge cried, "We can't face that."

"We've got to face it," Pat said. "We've got to. There's a woman with a sick boy—"

"There's another woman, too," the Judge interrupted. "A woman closer and dearer to me—"

He checked himself, remembering suddenly that he and his daughter were not alone. Remembering, he turned back to Barry. "You know how I feel about all this," he pleaded. "I've said repeatedly that we must clear Ridder at any cost. But now you've put my year into words. They can't convict this boy. What's the difference whether he's free tomorrow or two weeks from tomorrow? If there were any possibility of convicting an innocent man—any innocent man—I'd have no choice. But now—"

"The telephone rang in the hall."

"Mr. Winslow on the wire," a servant announced. "Very important, sir."

The Judge went out, closing the door after him.

Pat excused herself. "I think I'd better go to my father."

Barry waited, alone, but his anxiety was great, too, and, at last, he parted the double doors and went into the drawing room.

As he did so, he heard the Judge's voice. Evidently, Hamblidge had just hung up the phone, and was addressing his daughter.

"They've arrested Morano," he said. "For murdering Kelly. What are we going to do now?"

But the girl had seen Barry. Her hand, closed over the back of a chair, and she swayed dizzily.

Barry caught her up in his arms. "It's no use. We've got to have the truth. Who murdered Mike Kelly?"

His grip tightened on her shoulders. "For God's sake—Pat—darling—was it you?"

"Who murdered Mike Kelly?"

The question was being asked him from every news-stand in New York. Beneath it, in huge headlines, the Globe answered, and accused. In journalistic circles, that story is still referred to as "the big beat": "Who murdered Mike Kelly?"

And, at seven o'clock that night, Morano was "still at liberty." The police hadn't arrested him—in spite of the Globe, and Winslow's message to Hamblidge—nor manifested the least interest in his whereabouts. The first show at the Bar was beginning when Tim Laugherly arrived with "Big Bill" Devine.

"Where's the boss?" Tim asked one of the head waiters.

"Upstairs—on the balcony. He's having his dinner."

Whether Morano counted too much on his pull, or whether he realized the impossibility of escape, no one ever knew. The platinum blonde had urged him to clear out. "What for?" he asked.

"Then he said, 'Even in America, you can't get away with murder forever—not forever, you can't,'" she testified later.

"I'm tired of the whole business," he said. "We might as well have it over."

What Morano meant by that was soon evident.

It was buyers' night at the Coconut Bar. The street-floor was so crowded that the detectives had trouble reaching the stairs.

Tim walked into Morano's little dining room.

"Hello, Luis! They want to talk to you at headquarters," Tim said. Luis refilled his glass.

Directly beneath him, 20 brazas voices were bawling a chorus:

"Let me be—
That's all I'm askin' you.
Can't you see?
That's all I'm askin' you.
Take your hand from off'n my hips.
Take your mouth away from my lips.
Let me be.
That's what I'm tellin' you—"

"I guess you better come along, Luis."

Morano rose.

"I'm not going," he said.

"No?"

"Because why?"

Kelly was killed between one and two o'clock in the morning.

"At one o'clock, Morano telephoned his attorney that he was hopping into his car to drive to Morristown. But the police know, and have always known that Morano's car was still in front of the Coconut Bar three hours later. They know, and have always known that a new traffic cop gave the chauffeur a summons at that time, and that the two men went into the Bar together to find Morano. He was not there, and the doorman said he had not been there since shortly after one o'clock."

"Where was Morano? The police know, or should know that he was the occupant of a taxicab that dashed out of Sixteenth street—where Kelly lived and was then lying dead—at two o'clock the morning of the murder. Half a block from Kelly's house, the taxi struck and killed a woman, Mrs. Theodore Jaxon, of 53 Washington square. The number of that taxi is, or should be known to the police. Its driver is, or should be known to the police. He is George Mundelein of 861 Cass street, the Bronx."

"Morano hired the 'cab' at Sixteenth street and Sixth avenue, and told Mundelein to take him to the Coconut Bar. When the accident threatened to identify him, he changed his mind, and ordered the driver to 'keep on going.' He said then that he had to catch a 2:12 train at the Pennsylvania station."

"Whether or not Morano caught that train, he was not seen again until late the next evening, when he reappeared at the Coconut Bar with his right wrist heavily bandaged. Morano told the doorman he had sprained the wrist playing with one of the horses on his stock farm. But Morano was not anywhere near that farm the night of the Kelly murder, or the day following."

"Most of these facts are, or should be known to the police. Morano is still at liberty. No effort has been made to detain him as a material witness. For more than two months, another man has been locked in the Tomb, under indictment for this murder. If the police haven't known of Morano's connection with the case, they have been grossly and criminally negligent. If they have known, they have been grossly and criminally corrupt."

"In either event, the public awaits their next move."

And, at seven o'clock that night, Morano was "still at liberty." The police hadn't arrested him—in spite of the Globe, and Winslow's message to Hamblidge—nor manifested the least interest in his whereabouts. The first show at the Bar was beginning when Tim Laugherly arrived with "Big Bill" Devine.

Take your mouth away from my lips.
Let me be.
That's what I'm tellin' you—"

"I guess you better come along, Luis."

Morano rose.

"I'm not going," he said.

"No?"

"Because why?"

"Because I don't like your boarding house, I don't like that easy chair you got waiting for me. If you're gonna croak me, you might as well do it right here."

"Nobody don't want to croak you," Tim argued. "What's the use making trouble, Luis?"

For answer, Morano gave him the contents of the glass of champagne in the eyes.

"Big Bill" Devine seized Morano's right arm.

Only for an instant, however. As Luis came forward, "Big Bill" caught him straight on the chin. It was a terrific blow. It sent Morano spinning against his own chair, and then, over that, through the flimsy railing, and down among the dancers, 15 feet below.

"Let me be—that's all I'm askin' you," came voices, bawling the chorus. And then a babel of voices.

Screams, cries, shouts for help.

The band was still playing when a "bouncer" lifted the boss's shoulders. He was bleeding at the mouth, and worse dead.

HOW ARE YOU TODAY

Dr. James W. Barton TALKS ABOUT

Our Bodily Fuel. MORE and more we are realizing that in comparing the body to a machine or boiler—a man-made piece of metal—we are doing a great injustice to this wonderful work of creation—our body.

It is true that the boiler takes in fuel and manufactures heat and energy but that is as far as its likeness to the body goes. That body of yours must take in fuel (food) enough to keep it warmer than the surrounding air, and must create energy for the workings of the body itself and for the extra work which the huge muscles on our body were meant to do.

But the food we eat must have the raw materials in it to do more than give heat and energy; it must be able to supply materials for all the various kinds of cells of the body—nerve cells, muscle cells, bone cells, liver, kidney, and all the various juices necessary for the proper working of the body processes. And as these cells are wearing out all the time, the food eaten must be able to repair them.

And still another important point is that while all the fuel in a boiler gives heat and energy, the fuel or food taken in by the body in addition to giving heat and energy must be made up of different kinds of fuel or food stuff, each of which has definite uses or uses.

Functions of Foods. Thus proteins (meat, fish, eggs, cereals) not only repair or build up tissues, but create so much extra heat that all the body processes work faster and create that much more energy.

The fat foods (butter, cream, fat meat, egg yolks) also create heat and energy but burn more slowly and what isn't needed may be stored as fat. Fat is also helpful in preventing the proteins from burning too rapidly.

The starch foods (bread, potatoes, sugar, pastry) are not builders but great heat and energy producers; in fact starch foods supply two-thirds of the body's energy. The starch foods also help to spare or save the protein foods from being used up too quickly. In addition to proteins, fats and starches, there are the mineral salts, vitamins (which make foods more active and prevent various ailments) and last but perhaps most important, water. Water must be taken in foods and as water itself if the body is to do its work; every individual cell needs water daily.

As we think of all the different kinds of foods and what they do to or have done to them by the body, we realize how different the body is to a machine.

Overweight and Diabetes. When insulin was discovered by Drs. Banting and Best, Toronto, Canada, and was shown to prevent death from diabetes, it was naturally thought that diabetes would gradually disappear; or at least that the number of cases would rapidly decrease. Now, insulin was a wonderful discovery because previously young people afflicted died in a short time, and adults attacked by diabetes in later life died in a very few years.

With ordinary care with the diet young and old are enabled to live comfortably and safely by the daily use of insulin. As far as our present knowledge is concerned insulin will have to be taken daily the rest of their lives.

But notwithstanding this wonderful discovery the cases of diabetes are not decreasing. This may be due in part to the fact that more people live to middle age than ever, before because the percentage of babies that are now saved at birth and during their first year is greater than in former years. Another factor may be that more patients learn that they have diabetes.

However, notwithstanding that more people live to middle age, and more people report their diabetes, it would appear that there is still an increase in the number of diabetic patients with diabetes.

What is the reason for this increase in number of diabetics notwithstanding the knowledge and use of insulin?

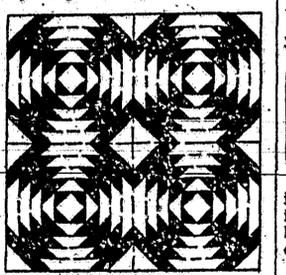

It has been estimated by careful investigation that one in every five—men, women and children—are overweight. It has been proven by a large life insurance company that six in every ten men past forty-five years of age who have been attacked by diabetes are at least 20 per cent overweight. In women the percentage is higher—66 per cent are at least 20 per cent overweight, and 50 per cent are 30 per cent overweight.

Dr. Barton.

Rising Taxes, Not Income Will Pay for New Deal

CHICAGO.—Robert Kratky, director of the Republican National committee taxpayers' division, called upon the record to refute the assertion by President Roosevelt in his Pittsburgh speech that "the tax revenue depends for its size upon the size of the national income." "How does Mr. Roosevelt explain," asked Mr. Kratky, "that a national income of only $32,959,000 in 1935 produced a greater federal tax revenue than was produced by a vastly larger income of $81,034,000,000 in 1929?" "The record shows that federal tax receipts in 1935 amounted to $3,989,683,202 while in 1929 they were only $3,540,034,044. That means that the taxpayers of this country paid more taxes out of a 53 billion dollar income they received in 1935 than they paid out of their 81 billion dollar earnings in 1929. "More than that, it means that considering the relative size of their incomes in the two years they paid twice as much in taxes in 1935 as they did in 1929."

Debt Threatens U. S. Credit, McCarl Warns

CHICAGO.—The national debt under the Roosevelt administration has reached a high point, according to John R. McCarl, recently retired comptroller general of the United States, that to "recapture and regain our good credit," it must be curtailed at the rate of a billion dollars a year. "We certainly have not solved the problem of agriculture," said Mr. McCarl, "and this administration has suggested no program to take the place of the 'hit-and-run' experiments that have kept agriculture in a state of uncertainty and doubt during the last three seasons. One thing is certain, definitely certain, we must stop trying to run the farms of the country from Washington." Mr. McCarl asserted that the interest rate on the national debt will so advance that, with additional borrowing necessary for this year, it will force our interest costs alone to approximately a billion dollars a year.

Canada Dumps Record Cheese Total Into U. S.

CHICAGO.—Importations of Canadian cheese, steadily rising since the inception of the Roosevelt trade agreement with Canada Jan. 1, were climaxed by an all time record of 3,460,000 pounds during August, the farm division of the Republican National committee reported here. The figure, which the United States department of commerce told dairy farmers would not be ready until "late in October," was obtained from official Canadian government sources. The August total was the largest for any one month on record, and greater than all of the nation's cheese importations for 1935. The Republican committee also reported that butter imports during 1935 were 2,875,000 pounds, as compared with 1,305,000 pounds in 1934 and 892,000 pounds in 1932.

"We Have the Criminals on the Run"

(Out of the Penitentiary)

BY HON. CLYDE TINGLEY

Governor of New Mexico

(With apologies to "The Master Detective"—May, 1936.)

ACCORDING to the records of the Secretary of State, confirmed by the prison records, Governor Tingley, up to September 22 1936, within a period of 21 months, had issued 90 Pardons and 125 Commutations of sentences of defendants sentenced to the New Mexico penitentiary by the State courts.

Of the 125 persons who have received commutations 107 have been released.

Tingley also has issued 21 pardons in misdemeanor cases, one commutation of a jail sentence and one parole to a jail prisoner.

The names of the 236 persons who have received the executive clemency are withheld for the obvious reason that some of them might be damaged. The only guilt involved in the Tingley Pardon record is the public scandal of its occurrence.

Either a scandalous condition exists in our New Mexico courts which sentenced these persons, or a scandalous condition exists in the executive office, because the number of pardons issued by Tingley establishes an all-time high record for a similar period.

Confirmation of the list of the Tingley pardons and commutations can be had at the office of the Secretary of State, at the State Penitentiary, or at Republican state headquarters in Santa Fe where a complete record of each case, with names, is on file.

Is that chasing criminals out of New Mexico and keeping them on the run? . . . Or is it turning loose large numbers of criminals to prey upon the community?

What price was paid for this vast drove of liberations? It cannot be that our courts and juries were wrong in 286 cases!

Yet our Governor assured his readers in the article in the Master Detective that he would only issue pardons and commutations in cases of "obvious miscarriage of justice!"

Governor Tingley, as a contributor to detective fiction, had an article in the May, 1936, issue of 'The Master Detective,' on pages 5 and 62. In it he told the Department of Justice and G-men how to abolish crime. He said he had proved his system in New Mexico. He indicated that things in the criminal line were awful when he took over the job, but that he set right out to abolish crime in our fair state and did it "in a period of six months."

Space forbids reproduction of the entire article, which is too bad, as it is a gem of crime running fiction. There are certain paragraphs, however, which the voters are entitled to read. Here they are:

"I have made it my policy to give our state police my undivided support, and I shall do this as long as I am in the Governor's chair. To back them up I have let it be known further that criminals will be promptly and sternly punished, and that there will be no hope for them of clemency in the shape of pardons or commutations from the governor's office

"I feel that it is my sworn duty to make sure that a law breaker sentenced to prison serves his full sentence. Although I would not hesitate to rectify an obvious miscarriage of justice which resulted in the incarceration of an innocent man, on the other hand those individuals convicted in our courts who will receive clemency from the governor will be few and they will have to deserve it."

ANOTHER ONE

--And Why?

On Monday, October 12, Hyman Roy, of Albuquerque, who had been sentenced to be electrocuted on October 16th, for murder, was given a reprieve of two months, or until December 16th . . . Or until after the election.

Announcement of the reprieve was made Monday at the office of the Governor.

Roy shot to death two persons, one a woman, at a filling station in Albuquerque. The crime was a particularly brutal one. Roy's defense was insanity due to intoxication.

He was originally sentenced to death October 23, 1934. The case was carried to the supreme court where conviction was confirmed and the execution date set for October 16th.

For some weeks past it has been currently reported that certain Albuquerque negroes had interceded for Roy with Tingley and that they had promised to "deliver the city's negro vote" in exchange for a commutation. It has been known for some days past that Tingley would issue the reprieve on October 12th.

It is not asserted that Governor Tingley made such a "trade!" It is merely asserted that current report has it that such a "trade" was tendered him. No doubt the Governor felt this to be one of those cases where "an obvious miscarriage of justice" needed to be rectified; although the state supreme court seemed to feel otherwise.

The facts are as stated. Draw your own conclusions.

Yanks Are Tops But Giants Rate Medal for Valor

PLENTY of people will tell you that the world champion Yankees are going to stay on the top of the baseball heap for some years to come—like their predecessors of the Ruthian age. And it looks as though plenty of people are going to be right.

The boys from the Yankee stadium are young and healthy. There's hardly a creak in a carload of them. The only spot where age insurances might be in order for Joe McCarthy is at second base and even the supposedly fading Tony Lazzeri drove in 111 runs during the American league season and had a batting average of .287.

Only Lou Gehrig and Bill Dickey among the other regulars are older than twenty-eight. Dickey is a year under thirty, while Lou tops that age by three years. Of the pitchers, Ruffing and Hadley are thirty-two; Pearson twenty-seven, Gomez twenty-six and Fordham Johnny Murphy whose pitching stopped the Giants in the last game and who should be a 20 game winner in '37 is twenty-eight.

So the Yanks can give Old Man Time a race for his maximum for a few years at least. Incidentally Marse Joe doesn't have to be ashamed of the trades he made last winter when he decided to strengthen his club. He picked up Jake Fowell and Dump Hadley from the Washington club and Monte Pearson from Cleveland. How would the Yanks have looked in the World Series without them?

But on the other hand, the vanquished Giants need a lot of overhauling. Last June owner Stoneham said they wouldn't do. But the rest of the league by being woefully weak made a liar out of him. He can't take a chance with the truth another year, though.

Some so-called prognosticators go so far as to say that in their present condition the Giants will be lucky to finish in the first division next year. That Ave-ruc Yankee blast off Fitzsimmons in the final game proved he needs plenty of rest between starts. He'll be thirty-six next year and Hubbel thirty-four. Manager Bill Terry is playing on borrowed time. So is Travis Jackson. Sam Leslie's future is a question. The club will need more secondary pitching and some additional extra base punch somewhere in the lineup.

While the praise for the World Series is being handed out, though, don't overlook the Giants. They did a magnificent job considering what they had to work with. Colonel Bill Terry battled as desperately for a lost cause as did that ancestor who fought for the Confederacy.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

ON PHILADELPHIA'S Sanson street the gossip is that Coach Harvey Harman will get the gate in his Christmas sock no matter what happens to Penn's football team this fall. Lou Young will return to the Alma Mater as athletic director and Bert Bell will be the new H. C., they say. Mrs. Carl Hubbell was the most tensely nervous of the Giants' wives no matter who was pitching. She always looked as if she wanted to root out loud but just couldn't. Mrs. Gabler was the smartest dressed of the ladies who gathered by themselves in the stands when the club was in town and who visited one another's apartments to listen when the National league champions played in a town where games were broadcast.

Jock Whitney won $8,000 from the Guests (Winston and Ray) when his Greentree team won the National Open polo title. He made one $1,000 wager while riding down the field three goals behind in the fifth period. Dave West of the Rutgers Targum now does a column called Not in the Box Score. Ike Gellis, the eminent writer and promotion expert, is the voice with the smile announcing events at Bill O'Brien's new sports club in White Plains. Before his hair had turned to silver Walter Winchell used to be a left-handed first baseman on the One-hundred and Tenth street lots. He was a sweet fielder but no Lou Gehrig up at the plate and if he doesn't like it he can sue his Uncle Frank Bakst.

Friends Wonder Why Landis Ignored Stark

North Carolina fans are so vexed at Dr. Graham, the State university president who wishes to give free, public and limited aid to football players, that they may ask the legislature to investigate him. The reason is that down yonder where so many good clovers come from recently there are some things (such as proselytizing) which you just don't speak about in public. Starter George Cassidy is one of the most nonchalant of turf officials. The other day he was gnawing on a fried leg of chicken while preparing to dispatch a Belmont field. Friends are wondering how Judge Landis happened to forget a very honest and capable former ballplayer and umpire named Dolly Stark when he put the okay on World Series broadcasters.

Rutgers players (who performed in a practice affair against the Lions) say that Columbia's football team is being overrated in the papers. Dorothy Snyder brought her pretty sixteen-year-old self all the way from San Antonio to see her daddy do the Giants' third base coaching. Walters in a high-class Boston hotel already have presented Gus Uhlmann with a bottle of champagne and may wind up by painting his name all over the Bunker Hill monument. The reason is that when the celebrated cartoonist was visiting the town recently he gave the garçons a tip on Bill Yale who then proceeded to win at Belmont at 30 to 1.

Three-year-old Skippy Bartell was the most energetic of Giants' rooters. He was always fighting to get out there on the field and help the old man play shortstop. Horsemen are balking at the starling gate okayed for New York next year. It is a six-strand rope affair and they claim it is the gallows for a rider if the barrier slips. Four generations of the Levin family (their hay Dave is a wrestling champ) have been in the butcher business. Note to the numerous clients who want to know three reasons why Joe Louis' highly publicized suit against that weekly mag probably will never go very far in court—Ask Messrs. Black, Roxborough and Blackburn.

His booking agent shortly will announce that Jesse Owens has changed his mind again and really will turn pro. A bit of sentiment does not hurt in sports. For instance there is Emilio, which belonged to Bill Knobelkamp, Louisville baseball magnate. After Bill died there were folks who said the colt was no account and should be disposed of. But, out of respect for Brother Bill, Pat Knobelkamp would not let the traders send the thoroughbred down the river. Now Emilio is stepping so fast he seems likely to be another King Saxon. Golf pros, lured with the present P. G. A. administration, are plotting a new organization to be labeled the North American P. O. A.

Germany is building four giant ships to transport its Olympic team to Japan in 1940 in three days instead of three weeks, the best schedule. The eight pitchers who have won three games in a World Series were right handers. Lou Gehrig took a few aspirin tablets before each of the Yankees' games in the closing weeks of the campaign.

The toughest position to play in football? "Center," says Bert Metzger, Notre Dame's watch-chain guard of a few years back, who for his size was the greatest lineman of the last decade. "He takes a mauling all through the game, but he has to hang in there and keep passing that ball."

About the Octopus

Greek Fisherman With His Octopus Catch

Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

HERE is a fascination about sea creatures. Some, however, to the average layman, are fascinating only at a distance. Consider the octopus.

With its relatives, the squid, cuttle fishes, the pearly nautilus, and argonauts, the octopus belongs to one of the most remarkable groups in the animal kingdom, the Cephalopoda, meaning the animals that have their heads united with their feet.

Some octopuses are relatively small animals with a centrally located bulb-shaped body about two inches in length, erected above a head with a pair of gleaming eyes, for the creatures actually stand on their heads! The mouths are pointed downward and are surrounded by eight radiating arms, which together correspond to the "feet" familiar in other mollusks.

As one examines 12-inch specimens it is hard to realize that their relatives, the common octopuses of European and West Indian waters, have arms five feet in length, giving their possessors a spread of ten feet or more, while the great Octopus apollyon of the Pacific is known to attain the enormous diameter of twenty-eight feet! Their cousins, the giant squid, practically double these dimensions from the tip of their tail to the end of their great tentacular arms, and are the largest invertebrate animals known to man.

It seems impossible that these huge creatures, the submarine-like giant squid, with its efficient method of propulsion and aggressive habit and the weird, soft-bodied octopus, with its baleful eyes, protean changes of form and color, and repulsive manner of engulfing its prey—both among the most active and intelligent inhabitants of the sea—should belong to the same animal phylum as the lowly snail and clam. Yet science found that such is the case.

Marauder of the Sea

The common octopus is one of the most gruesome marauders of the sea. Hiding in rocky crevices on the bottom, or squatting in the midst of a nestlike lair of boulders, which it has dragged together, the repulsive creature lies in wait for its prey, the eight tapering arms sprawling in all directions, extending, clinging to the rocks with their powerful sucking disks, or undulating through the crevices as they explore everything within reach.

The large, coldly staring eyes are elevated on rounded protuberances, enabling it to see in all directions. Should an unwary fish or crustacean venture within reach, a long tapering tentacle darts forth; the slender tip encircles the prey, which struggles desperately to escape the adherent suckers, but without success, and the hapless creature is dragged down to the cruel jaws to be torn apart by the parrotlike beak.

This species of octopus is equipped with a double row of suckers, arranged alternately, along the underside of its arm, gradually diminishing in size toward the slender, tapering tips. At their base, the arms are united by a membrane forming a flexible funnel, which engulfs the captured victim, and presses it against the jaws in the circular-mouth-opening at the bottom.

Though the octopus appears sluggish as it creeps over the ocean floor, nevertheless, on occasion, it swims rapidly backward through the water, trailing its tentacles out around its head in a stream-lined bundle. It propels itself like a skyrocket by shooting a stream of water from its siphon in the direction opposite to its motion.

Cerebral in Battle

Occasionally two individuals meet in seemingly mortal combat, their tentacles twisted in a tangled mass as they strike at each other with their murderous, curved beaks. When excited, their color patterns, which normally are changing through various shades and mottlings of brown, yellow, and tan, become more vivid, and the warty prominences of their bodies project rigidly. Waves of red, purple, violet, and blue successively suffuse the body, sometimes standing out in contrasting colors on different areas at the same time.

A black, laky fluid may be discharged from the siphon, in the mark of which the beast conceals its maneuvers. When the octopus creeps over a sandy stretch, its colors fade to pale tan or grayish white, harmonizing with the surroundings so perfectly that the creature becomes practically invisible.

Various tales are related of octopuses attacking persons who attempted to prevent them from returning to the sea. Occasionally, apparently authenticated cases are reported of encounters between divers and octopuses on the Pacific coast.

Pearl divers in the Pacific islands tell of fights with octopuses, and such incidents have strayed into literature, from Pliny to Victor Hugo. These are often inaccurate or exaggerated. In "Tollers of the Sea" Hugo describes a fight between Gilliat and an octopus which, though thrilling, is erroneous, and even the spirited drawing of Gustave Dore depicts an octopus unlike any that ever existed.

Nevertheless, the 28-foot octopus of the Pacific, or even large examples of the common octopus of Europe and the West Indies, are formidable antagonists at bay.

The common octopus is one of about 200 species belonging to the order Octopoda. Most of them live in comparatively shallow water, about 100 fathoms or less, though deep-sea octopuses are dredged from time to time. One of the weirdest of the deep-sea species is Baird's Octopus (Octopus bairdii), a pale, bluish-gray creature, with gleaming black eyes and elongate, tapering soft "horns" (or cirri) above them, ornamented with knobs on their sides. Its entire body is covered with minute, granular tubercles. As is usual among octopuses, the third tentacle on the left-hand side in the male is modified for sexual purposes. In this species, the tentacle terminates in a spoon-shaped structure with nine transverse ridges across it.

Some Strange Species

The fairylike Dancing Octopus (Octopus bermudensis) of Bermuda may be seen flitting about in the shallow, transparent water among the coral reefs. The brown body, spotted with white, is balanced gracefully upon long, slender tentacles. Some of these wave about like the arms of a tiny sprig; others pirouette upon the sandy bottom, barely touching it with their tips, for all the world like a ballet dancer.

In striking contrast to these species, the Umbrella Octopus (Opisthoteuthis agassizii) flaps about through the water, alternately opening and closing a parasollike membrane, thus assisting the siphon, which propels the animal through the oceanic depths by shooting a stream of water from the mantle cavity. This peculiar membrane connects the eight arms almost to the tips and, when spread out, is an efficient animal trap, enfolding within its embrace any fish or crustacea with which it may come in contact.

One of the most remarkable of all the cephalopods is the Argonaut, or Paper Nautilus (Argonauta argo). This delicate creature is so fairylike and so beautiful that it seems impossible it should be classed with the Octopoda, yet the eight arms and other structural characters betray close relationship. Its most remarkable feature is the fragile paper "shell," or "boat," of the female argonaut, famed in song and story. It is she who is supposed to sail over the tropic seas, unfurling the expanded tips of two of her arms as sails, or, as some poets have fondly imagined, using them as oars.

Eggsacs of the Argonaut

These theories were long ago disproved erroneous, but the truth is even more marvelous. The "shell" is not a true shell, comparable to that of other mollusks, for it is not secreted by the mantle. It is really an eggsac, formed between the oval expansions terminating the first pair of arms. The arms are held together, and gradually a thin gelatinous material appears between them. This is molded on the inner surface of the membranous expansions, and slowly hardens through exposure to the water to a spirally papyry substance, sculptured with parallel ridges of most delicate texture. The two halves of the shell are joined on one margin to form a keel decorated by a double row of brown knobs spaced to correspond with the suckers of the arms, by which they are apparently formed, and by which they are clinging to the shell.

The argonaut herself herself within the shell, still holding to the outside with her embracing arms, and lays her eggs, suspending them in a grape-like cluster to the interior of the spirals. She swims about at the surface of the sea, nearly submerged,

Army of Criminals Is Greatest Menace Facing America

Nation Is Most Lawless in Entire World

AGAINST what enemy will Uncle Sam wage his next war? The nation's chief danger, according to Sociologist Rowland C. Sheldon, is not from Red Russia or Nazi Germany, or Oriental Japan. It is from the army of criminals now walking armed through the streets of American cities and rural communities.

The National Crime Prevention Institute, of which Mr. Sheldon (already identified with the Big Brother movement) is executive director, is now mobilizing the forces of public spirited men against this domestic "menace."

Anti-Crime Crusade

"Since a military leader must deal with raw recruits first in marshalling his force, so is the National Crime Prevention Institute setting out to establish the principles of obedience to law practically with the baby-in-its-crib, the child-in-kindergarten, in schools, on into adolescence and adult life."

Crime may be looked upon as a social disease with a terrible toll of waste of human life and hopes. As such, it should be attacked by the methods of preventive medicine, just as the forces of the U. S. Public Health service and local health boards have battled against such physical diseases as smallpox, diphtheria, or typhoid fever. Education and helpful social influences should inoculate the child against the poisons of criminal environment.

Crime Is Controllable

The part that the police department may play in such a program of public welfare is envisioned by Walter M. Germain, Inspector of police at Saginaw, Mich., and member of the board of directors of the National Crime Prevention Institute. In a statement just made public by Mr. Sheldon, Inspector Germain said:

"It has been proven that crime is just as amenable to human control as disease. The criminal ranks are largely recruited from among young boys. The criminal is made during his formative years, when he is being subjected to deleterious influences of neighborhood environment, when he is getting into difficulties at home and in school, while he is becoming a problem child."

Drouths of 18th Century Traced in Rings of Trees

Hanover, N. H.—Drouths that troubled farmers half a century before the Revolutionary war have left their records clearly written in the rings of New England trees, Prof. Charles J. Lyon of Dartmouth college has found.

A tree ring represents the amount of wood grown in a given season. In a good year it is thick, in a drouthy or otherwise bad year it is thin. Long-past alternations of good and bad years have been read successfully in other parts of the United States, particularly the Southwest, but hitherto the records from New England have been confused and contradictory.

"Making Sense" of Weather

By studying a larger number of tree stumps, in several different locations in New Hampshire and Vermont, Professor Lyon has at last been able to "make sense" out of early New England weather.

"Many years since 1800 are found to have been outstanding for the good moisture conditions available for plant growth," he states. "During the same three and a third centuries, about twice as many years are marked by actual physiological drouth which retarded plant growth throughout the entire area. Cyclic effects are not evident."

Mental Disease Strikes All Equally, Test Shows

Albany, N. Y.—Foreign-born persons in New York state are no more subject to mental disease than are native Americans, if allowance is made for difference in age and environment, reports Dr. Benjamin Malsberg, of the New York State Department of Mental Hygiene, in the American Journal of Psychiatry.

Although the average annual rates of first admissions to mental hospitals seem to indicate that the cases of mental disease among foreign-born are twice as numerous as among native Americans, these figures are misleading, Dr. Malsberg declares. The foreign-born are older, on the average, than the natives and consequently have had more chance to develop mental disease. They are also more concentrated in cities, where mental disease, or at least hospitalization for it, is more common.

Ants Dig Wells

It is no longer a secret in South Africa how white ants obtain their water supply. A naturalist has discovered that they can get water even in deserts. When a well was being sunk on a Transvaal farm the drillers saw a tiny two-inch shaft running into the earth. They traced a miniature well sixty-five feet deep. With amazing persistence the white ants had dug their way until they found water.

The naturalist kept watch and saw water-carrier ants moving up and down the shaft by day and night, each returning to the surface with a drop of water. The round trip required half an hour.

To regain lost weight is a simple matter when certain bodily functions are restored to normal. Of foremost importance is the stimulation of digestive juices in the stomach to make better use of the food you eat... and restoration of lowered red-blood-cells to turn the digested food into firm flesh. S.S.S. Tonic does just this.

Forget about underweight worries! If you are deficient in stomach digestive juices and red-blood-cells... just take S.S.S. Tonic immediately before each meal. Shortly you will be delighted with the way you feel... your friends will compliment you on the way you will look.

S.S.S. Tonic is especially designed to build sturdy health... its remarkable value is that it is scientifically proven... that's why it makes you feel... yourself again! Available at any drug store. C.S.S. Co.

Rid Yourself of Kidney Poisons

Do you suffer burning, stings, or the frequent winstons, backache, headache, dizziness, loss of energy, leg pain, swelling and puffiness under the eyes? Are you tired, nervous, feel an aching and don't know what is wrong?

Then give some thought to your kidneys. Do they function properly for functional kidney disease? Perhaps you would like to stay in the blood, and to poison and treat the blood system.

The Household

By LYDIA LE BARON WALKER

THERE are two ways to give a gloss to table linen. One is to have the pieces evenly damp, and iron them until they are actually dry. The other is to put a very little starch in the slightly blued rinsing water when the linen is washed.

To get the best results in the former method, the linen must be quite damp. When ironed dry the material will have that excellent quality that it had when new. If the textile is not dampened well, it does not have a good "body," whereas when it is, the linen seems almost as if it were starched. One great advantage of this method is that the starch does not muss and crease as it does when starched.

The reason why table linen is starched is that the starch acts as a sizing, which we know is given new material in order to add weight and a semblance of a finer quality of goods than it actually is.

Sizing

Sometimes sizing is advantageous in new textiles as, for instance, in mosquito netting, stiffening for interlinings, veils, and numerous other things. In table linens it is undesirable. When buying these linens, be careful not to get those sized, as this filling will wash out, and leave the material without the "body" that good napery should have.

When laundering table linen that is old and thin, it can be somewhat restored to its former weight by lightly starching it. Good new linens require no such treatment. Starched material must be carefully handled as it will crease badly and muss easily.

A finish suggesting that of double damask can be imparted to less excellent table linens by ironing it on the wrong as well as the right side. The linen can be reversed when the right side gets soiled, and it will still look well unless spotted if it has been ironed on the wrong side. Use quite a hot flat iron and press with some weight. Iron slowly. Starched material scorches more readily than unstarched, so a hotter iron can be used on unstarched laundry. Table damask should always have a good gloss both for a fine finish and because the pattern shows to advantage when it is.

A Word About Cambric

The word cambric is known to every woman, but the meaning of the word is not so familiar. To one person it signifies an ordinary cotton cloth, fine or coarse. To another it means the finest grade of linen, and between these two understandings of the word, there are various interpretations. Cambric may be the choicest of handkerchief linens, or a glazed cotton cloth used for linings. It may be figured, striped, corded or twilled, and in many colors besides white. The word, originally of high significance has been changed in textile terminology, and in the comprehension of it, until it has lost its prestige.

Cambric, in its original and proper meaning, is the highest grade of best quality linen, fine, closely woven, and almost as soft and beautiful as silk. Its name comes from the place in France, Cambria in the department du Nord, where its manufacture is reputed to have been originated by Batista. Another name for this material is Batiste. This name may have a double origin since the soft fine linen was used to wipe the heads of infants after baptism. In early days cambric was used for handkerchiefs and neckerchiefs sometimes called cambric or cambricks.

Original Uses

One of the original uses of cambric was to make the ruffa so popular in the days of Queen Elizabeth. It was also used for cravats in early days, and continued to be worn before collars, as we know them today, came into use. For the cravat the material was cut on the bias, in a long strip, and four times the width worn. It was a work of art to fold these cravats, wind them about the neck and tie the bow in the back. The appearance was similar to a priest's collar.

Imitations of genuine cambric were put out under the names of Scotch cambric, cotton cambric, and cambric muslin, all of cotton. It is the latter sort cambric muslin that was woven striped, corded, etc., and in colors. From this stock were made. Fine cotton sheeting is termed cambric sheeting, but linen cambric would be too lightweight, for sheets being more akin to handkerchief linen. Cambric lining is a common sort of cotton cambric. The use of the word seems to be waning. The genuine material continues, but under various names.

BARING SECRETS OF APPLE PIE

Famous Expert Wants Hers With Double Crusts.

By EDITH M. BARBER
"BESS my soul! No apple pie!" exclaimed the Earl of Dudley, according to legend, whenever dinner was served without his favorite dessert.

From my own experience with Englishmen I feel sure that he probably demanded an apple tart rather than pie, which may be called purely American. We demand our pies with double crust. We use plain pastry, while the English prefer crust of the puff-paste type. Both are good desserts, when well made. Be sure that your apples are tart and that you use plenty of sugar. I like to mix a little flour with the same amount of sugar to sprinkle over my bottom crust before I put in alternate layers of apples and sugar. Then I add a good-sized piece of butter before I put on my top crust.

What, no cinnamon or nutmeg? I do not go so far as did Irvin Cobb when I asked him his stand on the much discussed question of which belongs with apple pie. "Neither," he pronounced, "it is a sin against a great fruit." If I use either, I prefer cinnamon, but I usually reserve it for brown betty with which I think it does belong. I keep nutmeg for other important uses.

Apple Pie.

5 or 6 apples
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon flour
1 tablespoon butter
Pare, core and slice apples. Mix sugar, salt and spice. Line a pan with pastry, sprinkle with flour mixed with a tablespoon of sugar. Add the apples and sugar in alternate layers. Dot with butter and cover with upper crust of pastry. Bake in a hot oven, 450 degrees Fahrenheit, for ten minutes, then lower temperature to 350 degrees Fahrenheit and bake until the apples are soft, 40 to 45 minutes.

Pastry.

1½ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup fat
Cold water
Sift together flour and salt. Cut in the fat with pastry blender or two case knives. When fine add at one side of the bowl one tablespoon of cold water and stir in as much of the flour and fat as the water will take up. Continue this until you have four or five balls of dough and some dry flour left in the bowl. Press together with fingers. If all the dry flour is taken up, add a little more water. Chill and roll.

Doughnuts.

1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons shortening
2 eggs
1 cup milk
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon grated nutmeg
1 teaspoon salt
Flour (¾ to 4 cups)
Cream the shortening with the sugar and add the beaten egg. Add two cups flour mixed and sifted with baking powder, salt and spices, alternately with the milk; then add more flour to make dough stiff enough to roll. Roll to one-fourth inch thickness. Shape with a doughnut cutter, fry in deep fat, 375 degrees F., and drain on brown paper.

Banbury Tarts.

1½ cups sugar
4 tablespoons flour
2 eggs
2 cups raisins
½ cup candied orange peel
Pastry
Mix the sugar and flour and add the eggs beaten lightly. Cut the raisins and orange peel into pieces and add to the first mixture. Roll pastry an eighth of an inch thick and cut into rounds three or four inches in diameter. Spread one-half on each round with the mixture, moisten, fold and press the edges together. Bake about fifteen minutes in a hot oven (450 degrees F.). Sprinkle with powdered sugar before serving. Instead of the candied orange peel the grated rind of one orange may be used.

Try New Arrangements

The next time you find your living room furniture disarranged by family or guests, leave it as it is while you stop to consider whether after all that grouping may not be more interesting as well as more convenient for conversation than your usual one.

If it proves quite impossible from the standpoint of balance—a fundamental principle in room arrangement—try to work out a third way of placing the chairs which will be just as satisfactory for conversation and for an artistic effect.

Finishing Metal Furniture
Metal furniture to be used in the house may be finished with enamel or lacquer. If the metal surface has already been enameled and is smooth after sandpapering, it needs no further preparation before refinishing. Brass beds that are to be painted should be cleaned first with benzine.

Spatter for Floors

Old-fashioned wide board floors, lately returned to favor, are particularly adapted to the painted spatter finish.

STAR DUST

Movie • Radio

By VIRGINIA VALE

HAVE you heard Hildegardé on the radio? You must, not merely because she is delightful in a way all her own, but because it is always interesting to watch the progress of someone who is on the way to stardom.

Not so many years ago she was playing the piano in a motion picture theater. She went abroad. First thing she knew, the Milwaukee girl was singing for royalty—King Edward VIII when he was Prince of Wales, the King of Sweden, ex-King Alfonso of Spain, the Duke and Duchess of Kent—they all helped make her one of the toasts of Europe.

Now she has come back home, and broadcasts on Tuesday evenings from ten to ten-thirty, and on Saturdays from eight to eight-thirty over N. B. C.

Marlene Dietrich couldn't wait to get off to Europe—and now she can't wait to get home!

She is making a picture in England, you know, and there have been delays (it's reported that Robert Donat walked out on it, for reasons not announced at the time) and she doesn't know when she'll return. She is so sold on Hollywood that she telephoned her studio dress designer to ask his advice on the gowns she will wear in the English picture—perhaps she was afraid that the designers over there wouldn't let her wear enough feathers!

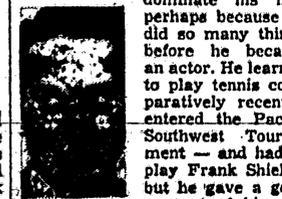

Marlene Dietrich

Well, another grand picture has come along, one of the best in years. It is "My Man Godfrey," with Carole Lombard, William Powell, Alice Brady, Gall Patrick, Jean Dixon, Eugene Pallette and Alan Mowbray. It is almost too funny—you find yourself laughing so hard at one bit of funny dialogue that you miss the next one.

Take it from Simone Simon, who has become so tremendously popular in so short a time, her name should be pronounced "Semone Semon"—but it takes a French student to get that last syllable exactly right. She is having a grand time in Hollywood; goes out practically every night, looking even younger and cuter than she does on the screen, and gets just about everything she wants at the studio by day.

It is good news for Nelson Eddy's many admirers that his new fall series of broadcasts is under way. He began them September 27 from Hollywood, on a nation-wide Columbia network of eighty-two stations, and will continue to broadcast from there until his concert engagements take him East in January.

You can't help liking Errol Flynn. He refuses to let making pictures dominate his life, perhaps because he did so many things before he became an actor. He learned to play tennis comparatively recently, entered the Pacific Southwest Tournament—and had to play Frank Shields, who he gave a good account of himself, though he was up against a champion. When he lived in New Guinea he collected rare snakes for Dr. Raymond Ditmars. Now he collects rare insects for British museums, and his wife, Lily Damita, goes along, though she loathes bugs and doesn't particularly care for the Mojave desert, where he does his collecting.

No doubt you've heard Edwin C. Hill who comments so ably on news events. Well, he's starting something original with his new series. He will begin with a summary of the week's news, and after that, with the aid of a cast of actors, will dramatize a presentation of the story of some unknown American hero or heroine.

ODDS AND ENDS... Buster Crabbe, after teaching Harold Lloyd's children to swim, has begun giving lessons to Shirley Temple... The March of Time is off the air for only a short while, but to give the people who do it a chance to rest after sixty successive weeks of broadcast... Eleanor Powell ordered fifteen pairs of slacks at once; the Hollywood habit of wearing them got her, and now all she needs is a mink coat to wear with them... Helen Hayes, who is broadcasting again, wears a slave bracelet instead of a wedding ring... When Bing Crosby gets back into the harness and begins making pictures and broadcasting again, he'll have a new title—president of the Del Mar Turf club; it's near San Diego... Production of "Camille" has been held up indefinitely by Irving Thalberg's death, which prostrated Greta Garbo.

My Favorite Recipe by Barbara Stanwyck

Canapes Blancs
1 package cream cheese.
6 strips crisp bacon.
Onion juice.
Paprika.
Cayenne pepper.
Small pearl onions.

Place the cheese in a mixing bowl and mash with a wooden spoon. Crumble the bacon and stir into the cheese. Add onion juice to taste, dash of cayenne pepper and paprika. Spread this paste onto rounds of bread which have been fried in oil to a golden brown, and top each canape off with a small pickled onion.

County Candidates We repeat what we said in last week's issue that the County Republican ticket is the strongest the party has ever put before the voters for years past. The candidate for Sheriff, S. E. 'Ben' Greisen, needs no introduction to our people. He served two terms as County Clerk with a perfect record - and if elected, will serve the County as Sheriff in the same capable manner. For County Treasurer, we have Morgan Lovelace, accurate clerical man and expert accountant. Mr. Lovelace has served the town of Carrizozo for two terms as Clerk, and is now serving as his third. Morgan has kept books for several of our business houses and was a Clerk in the local postoffice during the administration of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Gumm. If elected, Morgan will make an excellent County Clerk. For County Assessor, we have Andy Padilla. Everybody knows Andy - and are well acquainted with his business qualities. He graduated from the Alamogordo High School, served eight years as Assistant Postmaster at Turlock, and graduated from St. Michael's College at Santa Fe in 1910. Mr. Padilla is also a member of the Board of Trustees of the town of Carrizozo. Will make an ideal County Assessor, and respectfully solicits your support. For County School Superintendent, Mrs. Marguerite Merchant is the nominee. Her qualifications are par excellence. She is a graduate of the San Diego State Teachers' College, and has had advanced courses in the University of Colorado and the University of California. She has had a varied amount of experience in High and Rural school work as well. Mrs. Merchant's excellent qualities will make Lincoln County a perfect County School Superintendent. If elected, she will maintain the high educational standard already established in this County. She solicits your support. For County Clerk, Clayton Hust, an excellent young man with a remarkable amount of experience in the Clerical Line. After a High School education, Clayton served in the U.S. Navy where he was an accountant and bookkeeper and perfected himself in that line. After coming out of Navy, he was engaged in that capacity with several firms in the east. Clayton is a home boy - born and reared in Lincoln County. He solicits your support and if elected, will make the County an able and efficient County Clerk. For County Commissioners, we have three men, all fully competent to make up a good Board in those important positions. Mr. Maes is from the lower valley, being a stockman and knows the needs of our people in that important industry. Mr. Penix, besides being a signal service man for the S. P. Company, is also a stockman in the Corona District. Max is well known among our people and solicits your support. He has resided in the Corona district most of his life. Mr. R. E. Lemon is an excellent accountant and bookkeeper. He served the old E. P. & S. W. Railroad Co. for many years as Clerk and station agent. If elected, he will make an excellent County Commissioner, and the election of the above-named three gentlemen will give the County a Board for which it may be proud. For Senator, 18th District, Ernest Key is the candidate. Everyone knows Ernest, who has served his second term as County Clerk. He will make us a first-class Senator for Lincoln and Otero counties.

Lyric Theatre R. A. Walker, Owner Show starts at 7:30 p. m. Friday - Saturday George O'Brien in "O'MALLEY of the MOUNTED." A thrilling story of the Northwest Mounted Police, written by Wm. S. Hart. Comedy, 'Dame Shy.' Sunday - Monday - Tuesday "ROBIN HOOD of EL DORADO," featuring Warner Baxter, Ann Loring and Bruce Cabot. A saga of the gold rush days... and nights of '49. "Crow Raising" and "Alias St. Nick." Sunday matinee at 2:30; Sunday night show at 8:00. -Extra Special- Wednesday-Thursday-Friday Richard Dix and Margaret Callahan in "SPECIAL INVESTIGATION." "Molly Moo-Cow" and "Fight is Right." Marshall Beck came in from Denver this Tuesday, for a short visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Beck and local friends. On his trip, he made a visit to Ft. Worth and Dallas, where he attended the Centennial. Marshall was a visitor in Houston, El Paso and State College also. He is an electrical salesman for the Westinghouse Co. and is being transferred from Denver to Wichita, Kansas. Lorenzo Guibara has a force of men working the Coyote clay pits. Mrs. Anna Brazel spent about ten days in the lower valley visiting old friends and while there, she was the guest of Mrs. Fred Pfingsten. She returned Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Lemon returned from White City, Kansas, where they went about a week ago on account of the illness of Mr. Lemon's father, whose condition was much better at the time of their departure. For Probate Judge, we have Elerdo Chavez, who has served in this office for three terms. His experience has led him to be a man doubly well-fitted for the office. You could do no better than to vote for Elerdo Chavez - and he solicits your support. For Representative for the 18th District, we have a lady of excellent qualifications. Mrs. Geraldine DuBois Perkins. Mrs. Perkins is the owner of the Corona Drug Store, and a business lady in every sense of the word. She has excellent educational advantages which will make her an ideal representative for Lincoln County. She solicits your support. For County Surveyor, A. H. Harvey has been named, and in view of his amount of experience in that line and having served the County with much satisfaction in that office for many years, and the opposition failed to nominate a candidate. He served the old E. P. & S. W. Railroad Co. for many years as Clerk and station agent. If elected, he will make an excellent County Commissioner, and the election of the above-named three gentlemen will give the County a Board for which it may be proud. For Senator, 18th District, Ernest Key is the candidate. Everyone knows Ernest, who has served his second term as County Clerk. He will make us a first-class Senator for Lincoln and Otero counties.

Open Air Meeting Southern Pacific Hotel Sunday, Oct. 25, '36, 1 P. M. Prominent leaders of the National Organization of the Salvation Army and Baron Auriemma will be with the party. This is a good-will tour and not a financial appeal. The people of Carrizozo and vicinity are cordially invited to meet these people and give them a welcome reception. Should the weather be bad, the meeting will be held in the Community Hall. O16-28

Entertain Teachers The members of the Carrizozo Business Men's Club had a night of pleasure at the last meeting Wednesday evening, when the club carried out its annual custom of entertaining the teachers of the Carrizozo schools, at a 6 o'clock dinner at the S. P. Hotel. It served an unusual thrill to the club from the fact that for at least once a year, they have the opportunity of looking their best before the ladies, far away from the view of their wives who had to be content with remaining at home while their husbands were engaged in the matter of informing the ladies of just how much they knew. After the dinner, Pres. John E. Hall presented Roy Shafer, member of the school board, who being provided with a list of questions, propounded the same to the different teachers. None of the questions were related to the educational profession as some might think, for the object was to create amusement instead of seriousness. Many humorous answers were returned which furnished much merriment to the assemblage. Teachers present were: Supt. Eric Ming; Misses Edith Sammons, Clara Snyder, S. H. Nickels; Misses Haldane Stover, Ernestine Sorey, Della M. Ward, Fressale Davis, Marie Cole, Marie Lyle, Evelyn Sprinkle, Dorothy Arnold, Edna Lee Jerad; Messrs. Phil Bright, R. A. A. Chase and Babe Stevens. Sister Mary Aurelia Champayne was unable to attend.

Witt Sears Last Sunday morning at Captain, Witt Sears, 77, who had been a resident of that place for 16 years, passed away. Mr. Sears was a good citizen, possessed of a friendly disposition and character in all matters of a community nature. He was born in Alabama. He leaves to mourn his loss, a wife and seven children, namely: Perry, Burl, John and Payne Sears; Misses Emmett Bantor, Melrose, N. M.; Sallie Clark, Stevensville, Texas; E. E. Covey, Carlsbad; besides three brothers and one sister. The funeral was held at Carlsbad Monday and the remains interred in the local cemetery at that place. The survivors have the sympathy of our community. M. H. CROSSMAN Republican Candidate for Representative, 30th District Comprising Otero, Lincoln and Socorro Counties Your Support Solicited Mrs. Gunther Kroggel was an El Paso visitor for a few days this week.

LANDON SPECIAL Here Yesterday The Sunflower Special arrived here on schedule time yesterday 12:55 and remained while the train was serviced, a period of ten minutes. Cyrus McCormick, National Committeeman, boarded the train at this point. Contrary to the expectations of the large crowd at the station, Governor Landon was unable to appear from the fact, as was announced from the platform, that he was ill with a severe cold. His physician made the announcement that the Governor was taken ill at Tucson Wednesday and was unable to speak at El Paso and Alamogordo. It is to be regretted that the word of his illness failed to reach here before his arrival. The Democrats have seen fit to make some political capital out of the Governor's misfortune, but that is due to the policy of the party to make political fodder out of human misery. Much to the credit of Governor Landon, he has spoken at different places over the state, at Raton, Clovis, Albuquerque - and that is more than the President has done for us during the entire campaign; he has never entered the borders of the state. Governor Landon was not scheduled to speak here, but only announced to make a brief stop. He made no public appearance between Tucson and Oklahoma City, under his physician's advice. The Music-Drama Study Club met Oct. 8 at the home of Mrs. R. R. Esie and Miss Grace Jones with a good attendance. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Albert Ziegler on Nov. 12, with Mrs. Selma Degitz and Miss Thelma Shaver as hostesses-in-charge of the program. Our old friend Floy Skinner, Supt. of the Bonito water system, awakened at his home in Nogal Monday morning to find his garage and barn in flames. Had it not been for the timely arrival of his many good neighbors the residence would have suffered in the same manner, but with hard work, the home was saved and also the family car, but the garage and barn with all contents, were destroyed. The loss was about $1,000. Thursday evening of last week, Mrs. C. E. Freeman, assisted by Mrs. Clyde Luckey, entertained at a farewell party given in honor of Mrs. Oren Stearns, who left Sunday for El Paso to spend the winter. During the party hours, the ladies made initial guest towels for the honor guest, and sang old familiar songs. There were 35 in attendance.

Personal Mrs. Enrique Maes and son Hilario were here Sunday night on their way to El Paso to visit Mrs. Maes' daughter, who is ill in a hospital at that place. S. H. Nickals is up and around after being confined to his bed for about one week. His daughter Marjorie is also under the weather. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gallacher and Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Bentrow were Albuquerque visitors the first of the week to hear Gov. Landon. W. J. Sandfer of Tinnie was a business visitor in town Wednesday of this week. Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Framp of Ancho were in town Monday. Harold Dean of Bingham was in town Tuesday, attending to business with the New Mexico Mechanical Equipment Co. Prof. Karl Cunningham, superintendent of schools at Capitan, was a business visitor in town the latter part of last week, and while here, was a pleasant caller at this office. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kockendorfer of Glendora, Calif., were the guests of Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Blaney for a portion of last week, after visiting the Carlsbad Cavern and the Bottomless Lakes. On the return trip, they will view the Petrified Forest, Painted Desert, and other points of interest before returning home. The Kockendorfers were residents of Chicago with the Blaneys and the families were neighbors in the Windy City. Mrs. Maggie Pfingsten of the Nogal-Mesa was a business visitor in town this Tuesday. Rev. J. A. Bell is attending this week the New Mexico Annual Conference held at Clovis. He will receive his appointment to return to Carrizozo or to some other place in New Mexico. According to statistics, this Church has the best report for a Carrizozo charge that has been made in years. -Rev. J. A. Bell. Prof. F. E. Meeks, vocal instructor of the Fort Stanton country, was in town last Saturday, and while here, made this office an appreciated call. Mrs. Sabino Vidaurri, daughter Cecilia and Mrs. Joaquin Ortiz were El Paso visitors this week. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Comrey and R. L. Hale of Capitan were business visitors here last Saturday. John E. Brady was here Wednesday from Hondo and while in town, informed us that prospects for election of the entire Republican candidates on both state and county tickets were very bright in his locality. Mrs. Dolly Marohn, daughter Ruth, son Daniel and wife, all of Des Moines, Iowa, spent two days here as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Walker of the Lyric Theatre, leaving last Friday for an extended pleasure trip to California and the Pacific Coast. Mrs. Marohn is Mr. Walker's youngest sister; Daniel and Ruth are nephew and niece to the Lyric manager.

Camp Any donations of old books or magazines will be sincerely appreciated by the entire personnel. Leave donations at the Outlook office. Big Republican Rally was held here last Saturday night at the Community Hall. The County Candidates all made short address; M. H. Crossman, Candidate for Representative of the 30th District, comprising the Counties of Lincoln, Otero and Socorro, also made an excellent address - as did Ernest Key, candidate for Representative for the 18th district. Prager Miller, twin brother of the Republican candidate for Governor, was the principal speaker of the evening, made a splendid address on state issues. It was one of the largest political gatherings held here for years. Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Casler and Fred Greer of Tucumanari took a two-day pheasant hunt near Dexter, Bryan's old home. They bagged their limit and returned home Tuesday. Manager G. T. McQuillen of the local telephone office returned Tuesday from a two-week vacation in which he spent the major portion at his old home. He also attended the Centennial at Dallas and the Ft. Worth Exposition. Julian Mirelez returned this week from Slayton, Texas, where he visited his parents, sisters and brothers.

Boy, howdy! Have we been busy! Everyone wants their work may pronto, whatever that means.

BEDTIME STORY

Some time ago, a certain man had a sick wife. He grew tired of answering questions about her condition, so he conceived upon an idea. He had a sign made that he carried in front of him with the following wording: "Mrs. Brown is improving, thank you."

The above would be fine for our information in the presidential poll.—Seguro Miguel.

Crop Insurance "Insurance companies are writing policies today covering risks that they did not consider feasible a few years ago. I believe that the question of crop insurance should be given the fullest attention."—Alf M. Landon at Des Moines, September 22, 1936.

What is a Billion? Spending at the rate of $4.00 each minute, day and night, it would take from the time Columbus landed in America until 1936 to get rid of one billion dollars. But the New Deal manages it at a much faster rate. It spends a billion dollars every eight weeks.
